$2,000 Emergency Allocation Made To Welfare Department For Mounting Relief Needs

Appropriation Is For Two-Month Period; Detailed Report In June

An emergency appropriation of $2,000 to the Schoolcraft county department of social welfare to meet welfare costs in the county until the June meeting of the board of supervisors was approved by the county board at its spring meeting Monday.

The board made the $2,000 appropriation at the request of the social welfare commission, composed of Charles H. Howard, chairman, August Carlson and Frank Hart, Chairman Howard, who was spokesman of the county board that grows social welfare costs.

County delinquents who require hospitalization are treated at the University hospital under contract with Dr. George A. Shaw.

The spiraling health costs attributed to deep x-ray therapy for cancer patients at the University hospital in Ann Arbor, and treatment for other patients at the University hospital and elsewhere which cannot be provided.

Howard said that a more detailed report on the welfare needs for the remainder of the year would be submitted in June, and that the supervisors could ascertain from that exactly what the county's share for the final six months of the year would be.

Project For Development Of Quarry Pool Submitted To Council By City Manager

Cost Of Long Range Program Estimated At $30,000.00

A long range program for the development of the quarry pond into a public swimming pool at an estimated cost of $30,000 was submitted to the Manistiquette city council Monday evening by James Dickson, city manager.

The city manager submitted his report, stating that it had been approved by the Manistiquette recreation board.

In his proposal the manager recommends the construction of a staid, industrial type, eight-foot forced around the quarry pond.

This is estimated to cost about $10,000, and his proposal recommends that money be provided in the budget annually to defray the cost of the fence.

His second step for developing the pool is to allow supervised swimming there without any guard presence of a boat and raft. This plan, his report points out, would involve very little cost except for the purchase of a life-guard, the purchase of a boat, and the construction of swimming rafts by city crews.

The third phase of the plan is that of allowing the city crew, with compressor and bulldozer equipment, to clean up and develop the west shore line into smooth concrete. This type approach to the water edge. This work, the city manager indicated, could be done during slack periods in regular city work beginning this year.

The fourth and final stage for development of the pool is to pump the pond water level down three feet so that the shallow ends, now covered, would be accessible for cleaning, smoothing and leveling, and the construction of either timber or reinforced concrete curb-type pool, six feet apart and parallel, along the very edge of the table rock where it drops off its depth from three to four feet to a few feet below.

Construction is estimated to cost between $7,000 and $10,000, and the proposal suggested that the work could be done in three stages.

Complete plans and specifications for a 32-bed hospital which meets the approval of the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital board of trustees have been filed by James L. Cavin, hospital committee chairman.

Cavin said this week that James L. Duck, director of the state office of Hospital Survey and Construction, the agency which controls the distribution of funds for hospital construction in Michigan, will come to Manistiquette with members of his office May 12 for a meeting with the local hospital board of trustees.

STREET CREWS ASK MORE PAY, SHORTER WEEK

Civic Organization Representatives Solicit Support For Plan

An hourly increase in pay and a shorter work week were requested in a petition submitted to the Manistiquette city council at its regular meeting Monday night by employees of the city street department.

The men asked for a pay increase of 15 cents per hour, a shorter day, and a shorter week. Members of the council discussed the matter briefly but do not have any action until the new city budget is submitted and final assessment figure are available.

James Dickson, city manager, recommended that any increase made at that time should be retroactive to May 1.

The men have heard a request from Mrs. Louise Welch that steps be taken to abate a smoke and odor nuisance. She suggested that a smoke ordinance be adopted. Walter Burns, mayor, assured her that the council would endeavor to obtain a sample smoke ordinance from the Michigan Municipal League, and that such an ordinance would be given thorough study by the council.

Ask Hand-Support Representatives from various civic organizations and the Manistiquette Band association appeared before the council to discuss city support for the new municipal band. Spokenman declared that it would require about $4,000 to purchase uniforms and necessary instruments for the band this season, and asked the city council to provide half of this amount.

"We will not need this amount of money next season, but we do need it in order to get started," he said. "I am sure, one of the spokesmen, said."

The council took the matter under advisement and promised to include the bid in the budget for the new budget if it were financially possible.

Other speakers on behalf of the band included Fred Helman and Leonard Muthaupt, both of whom reviewed the effort last summer and fall of getting a reorganized band started here.

The council also rejected two bids on the city-owned tractor. An application by Raffay and Fombeck to set up tanks for a bulk gasoline plant was also referred to the city manager for investigation.

Schoolcraft county farmers are reminded that they have the right to vote in which to sign their A.A.A. farm plans if they wish to enroll their farms in the 1948 agricultural conservation program and receive assistance from the program in the form of incentive payments and materials for carrying out approved conservation practices, Norman Stauffer, A.A.A. chairman, announced Thursday.

Project For New Hospital Moves Ahead

Plans And Specifications On File; Board Meets With State Group May 12

Complete plans and specifications for a 32-bed hospital which meets the approval of the Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital board of trustees have been filed by James L. Cavin, hospital committee chairman.

Cavin said this week that James L. Duck, director of the state office of Hospital Survey and Construction, the agency which controls the distribution of funds for hospital construction in Michigan, will come to Manistiquette with members of his office May 12 for a meeting with the local hospital board of trustees.

He will review the local application for federal funds at that time. Duck and his party will spend four or five days in the upper peninsula, meeting with representatives of other communities interested in obtaining federal hospital grants, but Manistiquette will be the first application to be received by them.

Of major importance is the requirement that the applicant community must have two-thirds of the funds in hand before the application will be accepted," Cavin said. "The board of trustees has advised that we can satisfy the requirements as to this, however, not all of the funds pledged have yet been received in order to fully comply with the state requirements."

Some complaints have already been received from persons getting their gardens in, Anderson said.

Too Much Emphasis On Grammar Rules, U-M Educator Says

Rules of grammar, despair of many a schoolboy, have been over-emphasized in many schools, believes a University of Michigan educator.

Dr. Fred G. Walcott, assistant professor of education and English, explains that memorizing rules of grammar and applying them in drill book exercises is still the accepted method of teaching in most schools. Educational research has proved, however, that such "over-learning" does not "carry over" well in preparing the pupil to express himself correctly both in speech and writing. Prof. Walcott says: "We must learn correct grammar and the ability to speak and to write from direct, concentrated practice in speaking and writing, not in studying the rules of correct usage, nor in learning formal book exercises," he asserts. "Effective teaching of correct grammar consists of oral repetition and conscious listening."

Conservation Men Look For Meanest Man—Fish Thief

Conservation men are still looking for the guy they consider to be the meanest man alive. He is the so-and-so who stole the Thompson fish hatchery's famous Old Man Sturgeon, long a big attraction to tourists who had made the hatchery his home since 1928 and was repeatedly put on exhibition at the Upper Peninsula State Fair in Escanaba.

The sturgeon, weighing about 50 pounds, was stolen several days ago while the night watchman was making his periodic inspection trip to outlying buildings a half mile from the pond where Mr. Sturgeon slumbers.

Fish division men are hoping they can catch the culprit. And when they do—look out!

FOUR LITTLE RULES
This year the state and federal forest services are conducting a drive to prevent forest fires, ninety per cent of which are caused by human carelessness. Four simple rules have been prepared—and every one of them should be memorized and remembered by people who go into the woods on business or pleasure.

- 1. Hold your match until it is cold—then pinch it to make sure it's out.
2. Crush out your cigarette, cigar or pipe ashes. Use the ash tray in your car, and never throw smoking materials
into the wind.
3. Drown your campfire in water—then stir and drown
it again.
4. Make sure you know the law before burning grass, brush, fence rows or trash.
There's nothing in those rules a child cannot understand.
There's nothing that will cause anyone trouble or expense.
Their observance would save for ourselves and our descendants a very large part of the millions of acres of fine timber and grazing land that fire destroys each year—and save with it human and animal life, and the breeding ground of wild creatures.
In a matter of hours, fire will devastate a forest that represents the work of nature for scores or hundreds of years. It will raze out our most beautiful vacation and hunting regions. If you don't want to be the cause of such a fire, follow these four simple rules of conduct in the outdoors.

Humor nature and freedom of the press being what they are, it is inevitable that some of Kim Sigler's newspaper supporters now disagree with parts of his 1916
reform program.

Representative Elton R. Eaton,
editor of the Plymouth Mail, differs with the governor on the proposal for power to hire and fire department heads and to scrap, in effect, control of state departments through the state administrative board.

It so happens that the administrative board was created by Governor Alex J. Groesbeck, early in the '20's, while Eaton was Groes-beck's executive secretary. Eaton says the board is just a corporation board of directors and that the governor, as "chairman" of the board, has ample powers to get things done.

The Plymouth editor recalls that Groesbeck's power to hire and fire was used to oust Tom Johnson as state superintendent of public instruction, and that Fred Green used the cry of "dictator" to upset Groesbeck at the next Republican primary.

Governor Sigler retorts that he has no power today to remove department heads or other state officials. "In order to remove an official I have to prefer charges of malfeasance, misfeasance and nonfeasance," he told the press.
Sigler does not believe in boards and commissions. He regards them as inefficient. He would like to reduce the present 100-plus state units to around 20.

long enough to keep him. When the state gets a good governor, voters can keep him four years or longer by the simple method of re-electing him.

It is Mr. DeFoe's conviction that the Sigler proposal is more potential than practical. The governor and other elective officials (and perhaps the legislators, if the amendment is revised to include them) would be elected in a non-presidential year, beginning in 1917. Michigan elected Democratic governors in the presidential years of 1892, 1906 and 1910; Republican governors have won in every non-presidential year campaign
since 1914.

The Lansing legislative situation has been interesting to watch for several reasons. Governor Sigler's reform program was presented to the legislature without much advance consultation with legislative leaders. The 4-year term for the governor and other elective officials, for example, was linked to a similar term for county officials but not to members of the state legislature.

This now appears to have been a tactical error. Legislators were cool from the start. They warmed up to it reluctantly and only when political pressure was applied that the family is being planned.
Thursday, adult instruction class,
7-8 p. m.

After asking legislators to do something for the governor and nothing for themselves, Sigler further ruffled their pride by appearing before committees and warning members he would summon legislators back for another special session unless they submitted his program to the people. Otherwise he would appeal to the people, circulate petitions, and get the amendments on the November ballots.

An Associated Press writer reported that the Governor announced, well in advance, a state of seven delegates-at-large for the state republican convention in Detroit after he had assured the press that the gathering was to be "unbiased." Furthermore, the convention endorsement of the proposal reform was characterized like this: When the state is driven to a poor governor, two years is warm." Sigler methods were said to be "amateurish."

On the plus side of the Sigler edger must be placed in bold letters his traits of high courage and the idealist, the reformer, the knight battling for "better government." He delights in challenging the status quo.

The governor's troubles come largely from his zeal and impatience to get things done. By seeking more power for himself in order to achieve these reforms, he has antagonized a number of influential people in the party, including those in the legislature.

Now that the legislative record is on the books, popular debate on the issues will get under way. The verdict will come in November.

CHICK CHICK BUILDER

Be sure you're ready for this year's baby chicks. Cleaning the brooder house equipment is the first necessity. All dirt and dust should be removed. The interior should be thoroughly deuced with water and the floor and walls scrubbed at least four feet up from the floor. Then scald the floor and walls with hot water. This will kill even such disease germs as coccidia if the water is near the boiling point. Then give the brooder house a final scrubbing, using a solution of one can of concentrated lye to 15 gallons of water. This and many other important points are clearly stated in the Larro Chick Book. Come in and get your free copy. And let's have a talk about your feed requirements. We recommend Larro Chick Builder for the first 12 weeks.

SOCIETY

Swanson-Elstrom

An impressive candlelight ceremony at Zion Lutheran church Saturday evening united in marriage Miss Jeanne M. Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bjorkman, of Nahma, and Ralph W. Elstrom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elstrom, Manistique. The Rev. G. A. Herbert read the service in the presence of a large group of relatives and friends at 8 o'clock. Before the ceremony, Mrs. Harry Ahlstrom, played Schubert's "Serenade," "Berceuse," by Godard and Wagner's "Song to the Evening Star." As the bride walked down the aisle with her father, who gave her in marriage, Mrs. Ahlstrom played the traditional "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin" by Mr. and Mrs. Gus Nye sang "Because" by O'Hardenet before the service began, and Barnby's "O Perfect Love" as the couple were kneeling at the altar. The bride was lovely in a gown of traditional white satin, fashioned with long sleeves tapering to a point at the wrist, an off-the-shoulder neckline with yoke of nylon, fitted bodice and peplum skirt extending to a court train. Her fingering veil of illusion was gathered to a tiara of pearl orange blossoms, and she wore a double strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bride's bouquet was of white sweet peas, stock, carnations and stephanotis. Mrs. George Cleaver, of Holly, who was her cousin's matron of honor, wore a floor length gown of lacy blue-tartan lace cloth, styled with sweetheart neckline, short sleeves and a peplum which formed a fish tail in the back. She wore matching elbow length gloves and a headress of ruffled net, and carried a colonial bouquet. The bridesmaids, Miss Eleanor Carlson and Miss Peggy Nyquist, wore identical floor length gowns of dusty rose, in the same style as Mrs. Cleaver's with matching gloves and headresses. They also carried colonial bouquets. The bridegroom's brother, Vermer Elstrom, was best man, and usher were Arthur Allen, Jr., and Bert and Helston. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Bjorkman wore a skipper blue crepe dress trimmed in pale pink. Her accessories were pink and she wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Alma Elstrom, was attired in a navy blue dress trimmed in powder blue with navy accessories. She also wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors, which were beautifully decorated with cedar boughs. The guests were received under a red and white streamers and wedding bells. Centering the linen coffee table were the four Manistique high school, served food and white centers in the navy and is now connected with the Lakeside Grocery. Out-of-town relatives and friends at the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Anderson and family, assisted by Mrs. Victor Carlson, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ausay and Mrs. Mrs. John Ott, and Misses Helen George Pinter, of Milwaukee; and Wynal, Evelyn Mickelson and Mrs. Walter Nussman and

Mr. and Mrs. George Cleaver; of Sanberg-Wahlstrom. Announcement was made here this week of the marriage in Lansing Saturday of Ruth Sandberg, of Manistique, and Carl Wahlstrom, of Flint. The ceremony was performed at the Judson Baptist parsonage, the Rev. Gilbert Miles officiating. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Gust Christensen, of Lansing. The bride wore a white blue suit with navy and white accessories and a shoulder corsage of orchids, roses, stock and jonquils. Mrs. Christensen wore light blue with a corsage similar to the bride's. A wedding supper was served later at the Christensen home, the table centerpiece featuring a wedding cake with white tapers at either side. Mr. and Mrs. Wahlstrom will live in Flint where the former is in the employ of the Buick Motor company. Shop in Manistique.

Cardinals To Open Rainbow League Play Here May 16

Gladstone Will Come Here For Initial Tilt; Schedule Announced

The Manistique Cardinals will open their 1948 Rainbow League season on the fairgrounds district on Sunday, May 16, against the Gladstone Redskins, according to a schedule drafted Sunday at a league meeting held at Treary.

Chasler Charrier, of Manistique, is managing the team this year, succeeding Robert Harbin, 1947 manager. Practice workouts began at the fairgrounds Monday and are being held each evening. Several players have been reported, but some are expected to be out of the team as they try out, Charrier has announced.

The Cardinals will play the Junior Cards Sunday at the fairgrounds. Manager Charrier said Thursday that there is as yet no picked lineup, but asks that last year's regulars report in uniform.

The schedule approved calls for 12 league games for each team, with the ten league teams playing each other once in the first round and then all teams playing in their own division for the final four games.

The complete schedule follows:
May 16—Gladstone at Manistique, Manistique at Gladstone.

U Of M Historian Uncovers Naval History On Lakes

(Editor's note: This is one of a series on historical spots and monuments in Michigan based on information in the Michigan Historical Collections at the University of Michigan.)
The United States once had a busy seafaring navy on the Upper Great Lakes.
Both vessels played colorful roles in U. S. control and settlement of the region which now is the most important inland waterway in the world. One ship was the target of a furious British bombardment; the other helped in the founding of Chicago.
The boats were built in a former U. S. shipyard on the River Rouge near the present Ford Motor Co. plant. At one time the shipyard was owned by the University of Michigan, according to Dr. F. C. Cloyer, assistant director of the Michigan Historical Collections at the University, who has done research on the tiny navy.
First ship constructed there was the 100-ton, 18-gun President Adams. She was completed May 18, 1800, later that year the schooner Tracy was launched.
Hauled Supplies
As 18th century warships were expected to earn their keep, the ships frequently hauled supplies for merchants as they carried out official voyages. One year the cost of operating the President Adams was just over $800, thanks to her earnings as a freighter.
On March 9, 1803, the War Department ordered construction of a fort at the mouth of the Chicago River. Captain John Whistler, who had been designated commandant of the new fort, sailed from Detroit to the spot in the Tracy. He was in charge of building the fort, called Fort Dearborn, and was in command there for seven years. Thus the Tracy played a part in the building of the nation's second largest city.
During the War of 1812, the British captured the President Adams while she was undergoing repairs in the shipyard. She was renamed the Detroit and was sailed to the British Port Erie on the Canadian side of the entrance to the Niagara River.
A young U. S. navy lieutenant, Jesse D. Elliott, tried to recapture the Detroit. But he was unable to maneuver her out of range of British shore batteries. The Detroit was blown to pieces by enemy guns not far from where the Tracy had struck a reef and sunk three years earlier.
Perry Victory Decisive
The following year, the famed Captain Oliver Hazard Perry defeated the British in the battle of Lake Erie, Sept. 10, to regain American control of the Upper Lakes. British-U. S. Naval competition on the Upper Lakes probably would have continued for a long time afterwards. However, the Rush-Bagot Agreement of 1817

Peninsula Gets National Winter Sports Pubs

The upper peninsula, making a bid for a share of the winter tourist trade, received national publicity among vacation-goers this year through an article in the February issue of "Freightliner," which is published in New York.
Material for winter sports activities in this region was prepared by the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau and appeared in an article entitled "Box the Snow Sports Compass," written by Brynne Langley. All sections of the country were covered in the article.
The uniform worn by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz when he signed the Japanese surrender document in Tokyo Bay, Sept. 2, 1945, has been donated as a permanent exhibit at the Naval Academy Museum, Annapolis, Md.

U. P. Legionnaires Meet At Ishpeming July 16, 17 and 18

A full schedule of business meetings, social sessions and recreational events is being planned for the 28th annual convention of the Upper Peninsula association of American Legion posts, which will be held in Ishpeming, July 16, 17 and 18, under sponsorship of the Ishpeming post.
The tentative program, drafted by the convention committee at a recent meeting of officers of U. P. Legion organizations, promises a full round of activity.
Plans call for the convention to open Friday afternoon, July 16, with business sessions for which the principal speakers will be representatives of groups and organizations interested in the affairs of veterans, such as the Veterans Administration, Office of Veterans Affairs, Michigan state employment service, Michigan veterans trust fund, Legion Bill and service officers.

Shorten The Wait, Refresh The Man

The coming of quieter, faster diesel locomotives is suggested as one explanation of the high kill of deer by trains along a three-mile stretch of track in McMillan deer yard, district game manager Otto DeWard of Newberry reports.
Bodies of nine deer were found along the 3-mile stretch of right-of-way which is between here and McMillan, and other fatally injured deer are believed to have managed to get into cover of the woods on either side. Similar deer kills have been reported along the track west of McMillan, and near Trout Lake.
A total of 79,000 Naval Reservists participated in two-week active duty training cruises during 1947.
