OUTLINE PLANS FOR ANNUAL POTATO SHOW

1948 Exhibit Will Be Held Oct. 20; Changes Made In Regulations

Plans for the 1948 Schoolcraft County Potato Show, to be held here Wednesday, October 20, were outlined at a meeting of the Schoolcraft Potato Boosters association Wednesday evening in the directors' room of the First National Bank.

The major change in the regulations for the show was that winners in the county growers' contest must exhibit at the potato show in order to be eligible to win. Last year a grower did not need to exhibit in order to take part in this event.

It also was decided to change the regulations governing the 32-lb. competition for 4-H club members. Instead of picking first, second, third and fourth class winners in the 32-lb. class, ribbon classifications will be used—blue, red and white.

An outstanding speaker is being sought for the annual potato banquet, tentatively slated to be held in the C. K. Hall.

A committee to handle the selection of a county potato queen will be named this week, and a program to obtain nominations will start in the near future. Only girls from the various townships are eligible to compete in this contest, it was announced.

Work is now underway on the potato show premium book, the advertising in which is used to finance the show.

CITY COUNCIL AGENDA BUSY ONE MONDAY

Many Matters Discussed; Among Them Change Of Bus Station For Greyhound

Many matters occupied the attention of the Manistique city council at a busy session Monday evening.

Foremost on the agenda was a request for permission to change the Greyhound Bus line depot from the Fairview hotel, on the westside, to Denny's Restaurant, on Oak street.

Norman Hanson, of Duluth, a representative of his company's chief engineer for wanting the change was because the present depot is located on US-2 and because the traffic problem has at times been serious.

Some members of the council were of the opinion that the traffic problem would not be solved by the transfer of the depot to Oak street.

The city manager, city attorney and chief of police were instructed to investigate the matter and report at the next meeting of the council.

SCHOOLCRAFT NOT SELF-SUPPORTING

County Received $502,356 From The State During 1947 Fiscal Year

Thirty-four of Michigan's 83 counties were self-supporting during fiscal 1947, an increase of five counties over the previous year, according to the Michigan Treasury and State Treasurer association.

Test of a self-supporting county is whether its residents pay more in state taxes than the county can collect from them. The county must maintain its state aid, Henry Stuffs, survey director, said.

Schoolcraft county was not one of the self-supporting counties appearing on the survey list.

Surveying Stuffs said, the distribution of $1 million in sales tax diversion money did not increase the number of self-supporting counties as had been expected.

Clipperton, Gladwin, Ionia, Lapeer, Mason and Roscommon counties were added.

The report shows that Schoolcraft county produced $396,226 in net state revenue in 1947, compared with $502,356 from the state.

All in all, the 34 supporting counties produced $147 million in excess of what they received from the state and almost $8 million was distributed to neighboring non-self-supporting counties.

The 139 million remaining was used for purely state operations.

Total state and local revenue production during fiscal 1947 was more than $668 million. The study indicates that 91.17 per cent of this amount was produced by taxpayers in the 34 self-supporting counties.

The self-supporting counties as shown by the survey release are: Alcona, Bay, Berrien, Branch, Calhoun, Chippewa, Emmet, Genesee, Gladwin, Grand Traverse, Ionia, Ingham, Isabella, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Kent, Leapeur, Lenawee, Livingston, Macomb, Marquette, Mason, Midland, Monroe, Montcalm, Oakland, Ottawa, St. Clair, St. Ignace, Washtenaw and Wayne.

go with an Army job in Japan!

How times have changed. Three years ago, when our first victorious combat men left Japan, much of it was a shambles. The Japanese people were so dazed by defeat they didn't know which way to turn. The life of an army man often had its discomforts.

But look at him today! He's helped to start the rebuilding of Japan, to restore roads and railways, to inspire a tired and hungry people with the hope of Democracy. Under his guiding hand, courts of justice, woman suffrage and freedom of worship have been brought about. In Japan there is only one soldier for every 400 Japanese—the smallest per capita occupation army in the world.

The pay of a Private is 50% higher than three years ago, then another 20% higher overseas. And almost every cent can be banked. None of it goes for food, housing, medical or dental care, clothing, retirement annuity, or the opportunity to continue his education. The Army furnishes him equipment for organized sports. While on leave, he can ski in winter or visit summer resorts in the U. S. a fraction of what these activities would cost him in the U. S.

As an Army career in Japan is full of advantages such as these. Compare it with any job across the board—you'll find it hard to beat! Ask at your nearest Army and Air Force Recruiting Station for full details.

Gives Hints For Return To School

School days, School days. Whether your child sings those words or moans them depends a great deal upon you, the parents.

Little things that may not seem important to you are vital to your child's happiness and success in school. Shirley Newson who has had a great deal of experience instructing children in the Michigan State college nursery school reviews a few pointers for parents.

Whether your child is going to school for the first time or just starting back after summer vacation, there is likely to be some dread mixed with his anticipation of school. He needs some "props" from you as he sets forth.

New clothes are a helpful boost to a child's morale. Remember that it is important to him to be like the gang so be sure that his clothes follow their pattern rather than what you think he "should" wear. Respect his judgment about school equipment, too. Another pointer—just before school starts isn't a good time for a radical change in a child's appearance. Braids cut off, a new frizzy permanent, new braids on the teeth—are no help for first appearances. The comment from another child, "Gee, you look different," may be quite upsetting.

Be sure he gets to school on time. Walking in late could be embarrassing to him. And don't go with him or take him unless he wants you to. He may be very conscious of what the "other kids" will say.

Factors On Decentralization Cited In Industrial Brochure

With a large part of the nation's industry receiving advice as to the desirability of decentralization, the Upper Peninsula of Michigan is telling the world, through a well-planned program, of the industrial location advantages to be found north of the Straits of Mackinac.

Two factors concerning decentralization are emphasized by Upper Peninsula Development Bureau officials in publishing the new industrial brochure containing specific facts about 37 communities in the area. They are:

1. The National Security Resources Board, charged with planning to coordinate military, industrial and civilian defense, is urging owners of factories in big industrial areas to decentralize if they want to play safe in wartime. Small towns, not big cities, offer the best sites for firms in any future war.
2. Industrial migration depends upon economic conditions. Following year-long surveys, the Development Bureau, whose office is located in the city hall in Marquette, has prepared a brochure of the area's industrial location advantages in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Economic Development and the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Not Wordy
It's not a bulky, wordy affair. In fact, less space is taken up by the analysis of industrial location factors of the 37 communities than is ordinarily used to tell the story of a single city.

"As a guide for management, it is a concise, accurate statement of the essential facts needed when making a choice of planned locations," the Bureau and Department of Economic Development state in explaining the book.

Individually and by area, the book analyzes these basic industrial location factors:

Production materials, labor, sites, industrial fuel, transportation facilities, market, distribution facilities, power, water, living conditions, laws and regulations, tax structure, climate.

Regarding the dispersal of plants in time of peace so as to be prepared for war, the Bureau points to the National Security Resources Board's suggestion that:

Many Factors
"Decentralization should be seriously considered by industry in its long-range planning, with a shift of new plants away from centers of industry. Small towns offer the best opportunity for industries seeking safety in the event of war. Plants in these areas are least likely to be the object of bombing attacks. Cities of 50,000 or more people could become targets for enemy bombs. Safe factory sites should at least be 10 miles away.

There are no cities of that size in the upper peninsula, so it is reasonable to conclude, Bureau officials believe, that industrial sites in this area would not be logical bombing targets.

While some areas of the country have seen increased industrial activity and expansion in the last several years, movement of new industry to Upper Michigan has been on a small scale. Development Bureau chiefs would like industry to consider factors contained in its new book before shifting locations.

Such factors are data on the low-cost, high-quality production materials found in the upper peninsula, the supply of skilled and semi-skilled workers, available land and buildings, power, water and industrial fuel, transportation facilities, markets, distribution facilities, housing and living conditions, effect of tax rate, and laws regulating business.

Uniquely Equipped
"For the first time in the history of this, or any other region, the upper peninsula is now uniquely equipped to carry on an intensive campaign to bring new industry to its towns and cities," the Bureau says.

"Thirty-seven communities have completed 'industrial surveys' which set forth briefly, but factually, the location advantages as they exist in each place. Narrative summaries of these surveys are ready for distribution to interested industries."

Thirteen thousand copies of the brochure have been printed. The problem in these days of high prices and low dollar values. Organizations interested in building a sound future for the resort and travel industry in Michigan's upper peninsula can help in bringing visitors into the region, but it's up to the resort operators themselves to gain the "repeat business" of satisfied patrons. Courtesy, service and hospitality.

Will Tourists Come Again Is Question Asked In The U.P.

Tourist travel into and through the upper peninsula as measured by traffic counts at the Straits of Mackinac and other strategic locations, is at an all-time peak, but members of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau and resort operators today are posing this question: "Will they come again?"

As a result of interviews with U. P. business leaders and tourists, the Bureau has learned there's a feeling among some visitors that prices are too high for the accommodations offered; that little effort is being made to furnish or suggest the type of entertainment that will attract and hold vacationers; that little or no attempt is made to embellish the essentials—such as food and shelter—with courtesy, hospitality, and square-dealing.

On the other hand, a few resort operators who reduced their prices slightly from 1947 levels to compete with the type of entertainment in the peninsula's tourist field this year report their guests appear "more than satisfied" and in a few cases have lengthened their stay.

Should Seek Reason
"Every honest resort operator has to ask—and answer—the question, 'Will they come again?' himself," Bureau officials say. "If tourists are on the move, and are not staying as long as in former years, it's up to each to determine the reason why."

"All resort operators face that problem in these days of high prices and low dollar values. Organizations interested in building a sound future for the resort and travel industry in Michigan's upper peninsula can help in bringing visitors into the region, but it's up to the resort operators themselves to gain the 'repeat business' of satisfied patrons. Courtesy, service and hospitality."

Proving "the growing popularity of the upper peninsula as a tourist mecca, the Bureau has gathered reports of increased travel at the Straits of Mackinac—up 12 per cent in comparison to 1947's all-time traffic record—and at the state highway department's tourist lodge on the Michigan Wisconsin border at Ansonia. In addition, cars from a dozen or more states can be seen any day in business sections of Sault Ste. Marie, Marquette, Escanaba and other large cities in the Peninsula.

Nearly 50,000 Lure Hooks
Nearly 50,000 copies of the Lure Book—official Development publication—have been distributed to persons interested in vacations in the Peninsula, 80 per cent going to persons who have written specific requests for them.

The region has been well advertised by the Michigan Tourist Council and Development Bureau with Chambers of Commerce, tourist associations and resort operators doing a good job of following up inquiries and getting out supplemental pamphlets, folders and literature.

Some of the questions to be discussed by the speaker are listed as follows:

Do religious beliefs strengthen and influence us in the right direction of religion throughout the world? Do young people take their church responsibilities seriously, or do they consider it a center for social life? Do material considerations outweigh spiritual values in the lives of our youth today? Is a spiritual unity among our youth impossible because of denominational differences, church rivalries, creedal prejudices, and snobbery? If so, what should be done about them?
