THE REPUBLICANS WON IT.

Hurdick and the Rest of the Boss-smoked Under by Monday's Ballots.

The Republican village ticket headed by that stalwart politician, Charles B. Mersereau, was an easy winner in Monday's election, the majorities being from 119 to 172.

Monday was an ideal election day and nearly every voter availed himself of the opportunity to cast his ballot. The most sanguine predicted that the total vote would not reach 400 and even at noon when only 250 ballots were cast the professional bookies quite reasonably, during the afternoon the balloting for votes was more rapidly done than in the forenoon and when the polls closed at 3 o'clock the clerks announced the total vote at 365. At about eight o'clock the votes were all counted and the results are given out as follows:

Table listing candidates and vote counts for various positions like Mayor, Councilmen, School Trustees, etc.

The straight tickets were, Republican 217, other 147.

The weakest man on the ticket, didn't do a thing to his countryman. Say, boys, bolting will never make a winning for you.

Stick to the good old Republican party even if you can't get the nomination for an office that you just desire.

Trustee Klugstad received the largest number of votes on the Republican ticket and Harry Ross is somewhat elated over landing in number of votes the Citizens party.

But fair tickets were thrown out on account of being marked wrong. This number is far less than usual which goes to show the vote are 'righting out' the new style of voting.

The board of election consisted of H. P. Hovey, W. L. Middlebrook and Aug. Ahlstrom, with Theo. Hudon and H. C. McRae as clerks. Messrs. John Gayne and Frank O'Brien were gate-keepers.

Prof. Patengill coming.

It seldom occurs that a county is so fortunate as to secure the services of Hon. H. B. Patton as its institute conductor, two years in succession, hence we may consider ourselves especially fortunate in this respect as he has consented to be with us at the coming institute which is set for Oct. 21. He needs no introduction to the teachers or schoolboards of Michigan. Those who have not the pleasure of a personal acquaintance know him through his valuable paper the "Michigan Teacher" and "Teachers' Topics" papers which no teacher who hopes to keep abreast of the times can afford to be without.

Our institute last fall ranks second to none in the state. We have every reason to be proud of its work. Those who were fortunate enough to have seen him might be said to have seen the best. Why should not the coming one be just as interesting and helpful, if all will but feel a personal interest in it and each do his or her share to make the meeting a success?

Let it be impressed upon the minds of each that there is to be a Teacher's Institute at Manistique, beginning Oct. 21 and plan accordingly so that nothing may interfere with his or her being present.

In our base ball. The Wolverine are to cross bats on the indoor diamond with Capt. Chapman's picked nine of the Star opera house next Wednesday night. Both teams are made up of picked men thus the contest will be one of good playing. Baseballs will be arranged for the spectators.

Chapp's team is composed of the following: E. N. Orr, V. P. Chappell, F. Kelly, W. L. Larouer, Chas. Redwine, W. B. Thomas, Ollie Howard, W. A. LeJune and Dr. E. B. Patterson.

Big Farewell Meeting. There will be a farewell meeting at the Salvation Army hall, next Monday night. It will be conducted by Capt. John May late of St. Paul. A big time is expected. Every body invited.

Oyster supper and Entertainment. The Woodmen of the World will give an oyster supper and entertainment at the opera house, Friday evening, March 25th. The Manistique minstrel company is arranging a pleasant surprise for the occasion. The members of the order will leave nothing undone to make the affair the best of the season. All invited. FORGET OR LIGHT OUT OF

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Cont. from p. 17.) "Mr. Aylmer is here, my lord," he said. "Will your lordship see him?" "Certainly, of course," exclaimed his lordship. "Show him here at once."

"I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

"I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"SPLENDORS TO BE UNROLLED" LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the First Ep. Corinthians. Chapter XIII, Verse 12. as follows: "For Now We See Through a Glass, Darkly; But Then Face to Face."

The Bible is the most forceful and pregnant of books. What has the sweetness of a mother's hush for human trouble, it has all the keenness of a scimitar, and the crushing power of a lightning-bolt. It portrays with more than a painter's power, one stroke of the great God are figured by all the splendors of the future, now sounding with the crackle of consuming worlds, now thrilling with the joy of the everlasting emancipation. It tells how the children of the earth, who have died; and how another tree, though leafless and bare, yet planted on Calvary, had the life of the world in it.

THE KLIPPSCHROEF.

The Klipschroef or Klipboek, is often called by the collectors, seems, like the channels of Europe, to be created for no other purpose than to complete and adorn a mountain landscape.

FORGET OR LIGHT OUT OF

CHAPTER XVIII.—(Cont. from p. 17.) "Mr. Aylmer is here, my lord," he said. "Will your lordship see him?" "Certainly, of course," exclaimed his lordship.

"I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

"I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

"I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

I deny the charge. I suppose that the multitude of the finally lost, as compared with the multitude of the finally saved, will be a handful. I suppose that the few who have believed in Christ, today, as compared with the hundreds of thousands of those who have lived, would not be smaller than the number of the stars in the firmament. I suppose, compared with those who shall have upon them the health of heaven, we are to be remembered that we are living in comparatively the beginning of the Christian dispensation, and that this world is to be populated and redeemed, and that ages of light and love are to flow on from this hour, in the multitude of the saved will be vast majority.

The idea of the text is just as true when applied to God's providence. Who has not come to some pass in life that would have made him despair, had he not been sustained by the grace of God? Who has not felt that he was sinking in the mire, when he has not been lifted up by the hand of his Father in heaven? Who has not felt that he was sinking in the mire, when he has not been lifted up by the hand of his Father in heaven?

It is a good and sweet and dear of Esther. Dorothy, my dear, and over and over again. "Just like her to throw everything aside on the chance of being able to do a good turn to some one in need." "I don't feel half as nervous as I did."

"Not I," she said, Barbara, speaking out of her very heart; then she added with a significant smile, "Miss Estlin never could abide David Stevenson, neither could I."

"I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said. "I have made your will, and all that," he said.

Mr. F. (a prominent historical writer) went to President Lincoln to get an appointment, and being asked of what denomination he was answered that he was a Presbyterian.

President Lincoln had said to Bishop Simpson: "You wait here; we are to have a cabinet meeting here directly, and I will see to it."

Said Seward: "This is not true of my department. I never give an appointment to any man because of his denomination, nor even know what he is."

"Well," said Blair, "you've got him there, bishop, but there are not two in my department that are Episcopalians."

"That is not true, and you may come to-morrow morning and look for yourself." "It will be there at such a time." And he was there.
