Gen. Woodford Handed his Passports by Spanish Government.

The North Atlantic Squadron Sails from Key West to Havana.

100,000 Men to be Called out for Immediate Service.

Michigan's Quota will be 3,945 Men.

War between the United States and Spain is now a reality though not officially declared by congress.

Yesterday United States Minister S. L. Woodford was handed his passports by the Spanish government before he could present the ultimatum of President McKinley. This is equivalent to a declaration of war.

The North Atlantic squadron was immediately ordered to sail for Havana and blockade that port. Capt. Sampson accordingly sailed with his fleet at 2:42 p. m. yesterday and should have reached Havana before midnight.

It has been decided to call out 100,000 men, 80,000 to be sent to Cuba and 20,000 to be used in coast defense. The regulars will be rushed to Key West as rapidly as possible where they will be joined by the volunteer forces.

Spain will send 80,000 soldiers against the American army. Three ship loads of troops have sailed from Cadiz, destination unknown.

Michigan's quota on the first call will be 3,945 men which will include the entire forces of the state troops.

The battalion of the 19th U. S. Infantry located at Fort Brady left for Mobile Wednesday morning via Chicago. They were escorted to the depot by the Six Light Guard and a vast concourse of people.

Lawrence James.

The following relative to the marriage of Walter J. James, a brother of Mrs. W. L. Middlebrook of this city, is taken from the Cleveland Town Topics.

The house of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Lawrence, 1026 Wilson avenue, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Thursday evening, when their daughter, Miss Ida May Lawrence was united in marriage to Mr. Walter J. James. The marriage ceremony was performed at six thirty by the Rev. Dr. Deard, of the First Baptist church, in the presence of the most intimate friends of the family.

Tall palms with canopy of sunlax and swansons formed a beautiful background for the bridal party. The bride was attended by her sisters, Miss Ella Lawrence and Miss Irene Lawrence, as bridesmaids. Mr. Herbert Strong was the best man and the ushers were Mr. Fred F. Fuller, Mr. Edward C. Collins, Mr. Edwin L. Davis and Dr. Will Osborn. The bridegroom wore a heavy ivory satin in a princess style with long train. The bride had a narrow vest of the satin tulle; there were veils of beautiful point d'Alençon on either side of the vest, which was outlined with orange blossoms. Orange blossoms caught the tulle veil to the ceiling, and the bride carried orchids and white lilies.

The brides wore dainty gowns of white swiss over white silk. The skirts were trimmed with five-lace-edged ruffles with bands of insertion heading each ruffle.

The brides, ruffled horizontally, wore décolleté, with long sleeves ruffled to the elbow. The young women wore sashes of double-faced white satin ribbon and pink roses with shower of pink sweet peas. Flowers were worn in the hair.

Mrs. Lawrence wore a beautiful gown of gray silk brocaded in black. The demitasse skirt had a foot reaching of black liberty silk. The bodice had a vest of heliotrope veiled in emerald-colored tulle. The revers were of white tulle-satin and point lace, and the high stock was of white and heliotrope satin.

An orchestra played the wedding music during the reception. Pink roses decorated the second parlor and yellow jonquils and daisies were used in the library. The bridal table was set in the family dining room. Pink roses and maiden hair ferns were the floral decorations and pink shaded candleholders lighted the table. Seated at the table were Mr. and Mrs. James, Miss Ella Lawrence, Miss Irene Lawrence, Miss Moore, of Allegan, Mich., Miss Eddy, of Bay City, Mich., Miss Helen Chase, Miss Mary Demery, Miss Luanna Prescott, Mr. Herbert Strong, Mr. Edward Collins, Mr. Edwin Davis, Dr. Will Osborn, Mr. Walter Bowler and Mr. Castle.

The bride gave the ladies pearl crown pins and the groom gave the men silver mounted canes.

The receiving hours were from eight to ten and several hundred guests called to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. James. Supper was served at small tables, by LeKlyn, and later in the evening there was dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. James left for an Eastern trip after the reception. They will make their home at Dover Bay this summer.

A Progressive Establishment.

A representative of THE COCHRAN visited the Manistique Steam Laundry, owned and operated by Jos. Patterson, one day this week and found many new improvements in that first class establishment, which places it on a par with any plant of the kind on the peninsula.

The concern occupies a building 20x60 feet in dimension and is divided into an office, work and storage room and an engine and wash room. An addition 11 x21 feet was added to the main building last fall which is used as a boiler and marking room.

The work room contains all the latest machinery for doing first class work. In addition is the hand collar, cuff and shirt polisher a new steam polisher of the latest pattern has been added which will be put in operation this week. In addition to this, several young ladies are given employment in the hand polishing department, the iron being heated on a patent coal heater. The dryer is also located in this room, and consists of 11 drawers 6x18 feet each in size. These dryers are operated by steam.

The wash room is equipped with a large size Dolph steam washer, a centrifugal eddy, or steam wringer, which would fill the average household with envy, so neatly does it operate, and a hot and cold water tank. The engine is also located in this room and is a new 10 horse power upright put in last fall and a double action steam pump for pumping water into the tanks and boiler.

In the addition is located a new 13 horse power upright boiler which was placed in position last fall. A bath room is being constructed in one end of this room as an experiment and if it proves a financial success, more are to be added. Mr. Patterson has a prominent business in a small way several years ago, in the Helton addition, Westside. He then leased the C. L. Co., building near the bridge and has proceeded to build up his present lucrative business. His work has always proven satisfactory and is equal to the finest laundry product of the large cities.

sons of Veterans, Attention!

Eugene Madden, Captain of W. E. Clark Camp No. 202, S. V. has been requested by the division commander to furnish a list of sons who are qualified and would enlist in a regiment to be employed to the government in case of war. Capt. Madden urgently desires that every son who is willing to go to the front would hand in his name at once. The blank report received contains the following questions:

Number of men qualified to perform military duty?

Number that could probably be recruited from those eligible to membership residing in vicinity?

Number of present membership who will volunteer for formation of a Sons of Veterans Regiment, and permit the Grand commanding to tender services as such?

Number volunteering who have had previous experience in drill?

Give names and address of those volunteering who are graduates or have been students at any Military School.

Give names of those volunteering who have served in either State Militia or Regulars designate rank.

How many are now connected with Michigan National Guard?

More Trouble at the Chemical Works.

Sunday morning the Barrell Chemical Co. attempted to force their line of siding across the lands of the C. L. Co. a small force of men being put to work laying the steel. The building erected by the C. L. Co. was moved out of the way and the work of laying the track pushed as rapidly as possible.

Superintendent Quirk was at once notified and a force of men was ordered to the scene to prevent further extension of the line by the Barrell Co. and to remove such portions as might be on their lands. Several personal conversations took place but the C. L. Co. finally succeeded in ejecting the Chemical Co.'s crew and tore up the track.

The matter will probably be carried to the courts for settlement.

Dr. Walker Tenders his Services.

Dr. W. W. Walker has tendered his services as surgeon to the state for the Spanish American war. Dr. Walker served through the civil war as an assistant surgeon and is well versed in all its requirements. He is a splendid surgeon, a courteous gentleman, and would prove an efficient officer.

A Pleasant Surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. Matt Schneider celebrated their tin wedding last Wednesday evening. A large number of friends, residents of the Westside, who had learned of the date, dropped in unexpectedly and with the assistance of the Manistique Band, made it a merry event and one long to be remembered by Mr. and Mrs. Schneider.

I have no hesitation in recommending Dean's Ointment. To anyone requiring a reliable and soothing preparation it will prove invaluable. I suffered for years from itching hemorrhoids, and though I tried everything, I was unable to obtain relief until my attention was called to Dean's Ointment. I was somewhat surprised when the first application to me proved so effective. It had from the first a soothing effect, and I was surprised to find that it cured me in a surprisingly short time when you take it strictly according to directions. CHAPTER XXV.—(Continued.)
"Where to, m'lord?"
"Palace Mansions."
"Yes, m'lord," murmured Charles to Barker, as they drove off, "that the old dodger's done it at last. Palace Mansions is the order—that's where Mrs. Harris lives, you know."
"Ay," muttered the coachman, in reply. "And Mrs. Harris' catch a Tartar in 'em, no mistake about that."
They generally takes care of themselves, said Charles, with a cynicism worthy of his estimate made for Barker. Coming events, they say, cast their shadows before, and Barker, who had been giving a small share of attention to Charles, and gossily, suddenly pulled in his horse with a jerk. Charles is inclined to be playful, told he remarked.
"I'd advise they know it is the wrong time of year for the town," returned Charles, superciliously.
"Likely enough. 'Osses is as sensible as Christians and sensible than some," Barker rejoined.
"I'll bet you'll see the grand the 'playfulness' of the horses, old and subsided; indeed, on the contrary, it increased, and to such an extent that when they turned into the Kensington High street, and proceeding along at express speed, with the evident intention of losing as soon as they had a chance.
Barker, however, knew his work and did not give the reins a cent at all, and by the time they reached the corner of the road for which they were bound, they were going steadily again.
"Fortunately, at this point, however, that terrible master of the horse, the unforseen, happened a little child with a balloon as large as a man's head suddenly he got the string with which he held it captive, and the balloon soared and dashed into the near horse's face; the child screamed at the loss of her toy; the horse reared and plunged, Barker administered a cut of his whip, and the next moment they were dashing down the road, and an elderly woman was lying helplessly in a dead faint just where the carriage had passed.
"My God! see what some one," shouted Lord Aylmer. He was the kind of man who, on emergency, always appeals to the Delti, whom in all his ways of life he utterly and systematically ignores. "Let me get out," he cried.
Barker, who was pulling in the horses with might and main, had administered their mad speed, and a moment or so later, the horses, with a face like chalk and a dreadful fear knocking at his heart that the motionless figure lying in the road might be his own, he pulled up just where the crowd was gathering, and Lord Aylmer was out of the carriage before Charles could collect his scattered senses sufficiently to get off the box.
The crowd was gathering in numbers every moment, and was not only dense and strong, but curious. Lord Aylmer, however, without standing on ceremony, vigorously eluded his way to the inner circle.
"Let me pass; stand aside, Policeman, I am Lord Aylmer, my horses were frightened by an infernal balloon that a child was carrying. Is she much hurt?"
"Dead faint at present, my lord," returned the policeman, who had the woman's head upon his knees. "I wish we could get some brandy and some water."
Lord Aylmer looked around for Charles. "Charles, get some brandy and water from somewhere or other. Be quick."
Just then a well-dressed young woman pushed her way through the crowd. "Let me pass, please," she urged. "Can't you get I've brought brandy? Stand back, you men. Have you never seen an accident before? Do you want to kill her? Stand back!"
She was a handsome woman, scarcely more than a girl; her hands and face spoke betokened that she was gently born; her fearless speech put into words what was in her mind, and the effect of causing the crowd to shrink back a little. "Is she much hurt?"
"Pretty bad case, Miss," answered the policeman, who was trying to get a little brandy down the unconscious woman's throat.
"Hadt you better get her into my house? She's not here," he said.
"Has any one else for a doctor?"
"I should get her off to the hospital at once, Miss," the policeman replied.
"Would you? Poor thing! I was standing at my window and saw it. You oughtn't to let your coachman drive like that," she added, severely, to Lord Aylmer.
"I don't; but my horses were frightened by a child's balloon," he explained.
"You oughtn't to have horses that are frightened at trifles," she responded, illogically.
"I think you'd better get her off at once," he said, before she should give us sign of coming round."
"How can we take her? Shall I? I have the carriage here ready, and the horses are sober enough now."
"Yes, my lord, I really think that's the best thing we can do," the other

Oh, so you have not cut the chain, Master Dick; you've not burnt your boats behind you. What a fool you are!

He opened the letter without the smallest scruple, tore the envelope into a thousand fragments and scattered them to the winds, then settled down to enjoy the tender words beginning—"My own dear Dick," ending "Your loving and faithful little wife, Dorothy."

"So her name is Dorothy," he mused. "Strange that they should always lay such stress on their love and their faithfulness! They're all alike. I wonder who the Esther is that she talks about. Barbara is evidently the old girl who came to grief just now. Well, Barbara is safely laid by the leg for the next few weeks. Really, it could not have fallen out better if one had planned it all. I wonder who the Esther is? Esther hasn't come yet, she says, but may come at any moment. I must find out about Esther."

When they got to Palace Mansions, he saw Dorothy looking anxiously out of the window.

"On the watch," he said to himself. "And pretty uneasy, too."
The lady face disappeared when the carriage drew up at the door, and the smart footman, in his glory of crimson and white, jumped down and opened the door for the handsome old gentleman, who got out and went into the building. He knocked at the door of No. 2, and Dorothy, being perfectly alone, had no choice but to go and open it.

"Am I speaking to Mrs. Harris?" said the wise, wicked old voice.
"Yes," answered Dorothy, wondering what he could possibly want with her.
"I have something to tell you. No, don't be alarmed; it is nothing very bad. Fear don't alarm yourself."

CHAPTER XXVI.
THE mention of his name and of the policeman and of the doctor, by a young lady who had gone to Barbara's aid, and the presence of St. George's horse all about him, he would, he knew, be useless to deceive Dorothy as to his name, and he boldly gave his own name and trusted to the chance of her not knowing that he was anything to Dick. Dorothy started as if she had been shot, and at the first "something to tell," which almost always tells its means had words, she staggered back, and would probably have fallen if he had not caught her.

"I beg you will not frighten yourself like this," he cried. "Indeed, it is not so serious as you think."
"It is!" Her lips could not utter Dick's name, her agony was so great; but her eyes spoke volumes in place of her tongue.

It never occurred to Lord Aylmer that she was thinking of Dick. He only thought how lovely she was in her distress, and wondered how he could best tell her the truth.

"The fact is," he said, blurring the truth out at last, "there has been an accident, and your old servant—"
"Barbara is she hurt?" Dorothy cried in dismay.
"I am sorry to say that she is hurt. More sorry to be obliged to own that it was my own carriage which did me the mischief. But won't you let me come in and tell you all about it? It is such a shame to keep you standing there."
"Oh, yes, of course. Forgive me, but I—that is, you have startled me, and I forgot that we were still here. Come in!"

QUEEN MURDERS ENGLISH.
Many Errors Made in Her Address to Parliament.

If Corbett were alive he could still criticize the English grammar of the speech prepared for the sovereign at the opening of parliament, says the London News. The queen adopts this speech at her council on the advice of her ministers and it is then given to parliament as "her own words." It is important to observe that the president of the council and the minister who last saw the queen at Osborne in reference to the speech read recently is also the head of the education department. Is there an inspector of schools under him who would pass a reference to expenditure which is beyond "former precedent"? A question in English grammar might be set in the schools from the following sentence: "A portion of the Afridi tribes have not yet accepted the terms offered to them, but elsewhere the operations have been brought to a successful close." Is the reference to Crete we read. "The day of arriving at an unanimous agreement upon some points has indeed protracted their deliberations (the), the deliberations of the powers, but I hope that these obstacles will be before long surmounted."

"What obstacles? As 'the difficulty' is the subject in this sentence, that obstacle' would appear to be the appropriate word. Obstacles are 'an unanimous agreement.' As in these days 'unanimous' is not pronounced common but younanimous, this word before we have given any thing in speech and in writing but lamely defended, like certain rhymes, as satisfying the eye although offending the ear. As for the grammar style of the speech, it is not likely to be used as a model in the secondary schools.

THE SECRET OF A GOOD DISPOSITION

Mr. Pinkham Says a Careful Regard for Bodily Health Makes Women Sweet and Attractive to All.

The world is filled with sweet women who are held back from usefulness by some trouble of the female organs. Restlessness and nervousness rapidly destroy sweet dispositions. Irritability and nervousness rapidly destroy sweet dispositions. Restlessness and nervousness rapidly destroy sweet dispositions.

My dear Mrs. Pinkham—I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think it is the best medicine for women in the world. I was so weak and nervous that I thought I could not live from one day to the next. I had prolapsus uteri and leucorrhoea, and thought that I would die. I had dragging pains in my back, burning sensations down to my feet, and so many miserable feelings. People said that I looked like a dead woman. Doctors tried to cure me, but failing, I had given up when I heard of the Pinkham medicine. I got a bottle. I did not have much faith in it, but thought I would try it, and it made a new man of me. I wish I could get every day in the land to try it, for it did for me what doctors could not do."

—Mrs. RALPH CRAIG, Baker's Landing, Pa.
That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safeguard of woman's health is clearly proven by the thousands of letters constantly being received. Here is one from Mrs. W. P. VALENTINE, 696 Perry Ave., Camden, N. J.:

"DEAR Mrs. PINKHAM:—Before writing to you I felt very bad, had terrible sick headaches, an appetite, giving pain in stomach, pain in my back and right side, was tired and nervous, and so weak I could scarcely stand. I was not able to do anything, had sharp pains all through my body. Before I had taken a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I found myself improving. I continued its use until I had taken four bottles, and felt so well that I did not need to take any more. I am like a new person."

PARTY LOYALTY.

We hear each those days of fealty to party, loyalty to party tickets when nominated, and have heard the offenders' tickets as nominated party as a crime little short of treason. Although I have all my life almost invariably voted a straight Republican ticket and expect to continue to do it, why is it that some of the best men who are in the party or who refuse to do it and link over the treason election play and the consequences of most honest men applaud their action.

Yet there is something that withholds us from following their example. It is because we are not so honest as we think we are. (Do we believe that loyalty to party management covers a multitude of sins and victory assures us reward and commendation?)

"Lo, the poor Indian" led staggering up the hills by a democrat to vote a ticket with his hand filled with visions of moon whiskey. The Tribune of our management commends this act as most heroic and reprehensible and righteous indignation is at once manifested.

If this act had been committed in our management's interest, would the same indignation have been manifested on the back and had it been very clever and his reward awaited him?

Since the present voting system has been established to secure the purity of the ballot in election day, dishonesty and trickery in both great political parties have, to some extent, failed. They have attempted to do good government. They have marshaled the forces of those elements who step nearer the people. They storm the doors of the canvases and primary meetings of all parties.

Here they grasp the opportunity to do more effective work than was ever possible at the polls under the old system of voting. If they secure the control of the canvases they allow them to be packed with the most disputable element of all parties to secure the nomination wanted and the conflict resolves itself in that to some extent, the old system of voting. If they secure the control of the canvases they allow them to be packed with the most disputable element of all parties to secure the nomination wanted and the conflict resolves itself in that to some extent, the old system of voting.

Who to man dare scratch his party ticket or openly denounce such leadership without expectation of being heralded by the Tribune of party management as being renies in party loyalty.

Common honesty teaches us and the law proclaims that the purity of the ballot must be protected and guarded in party canvases to insure good government and the nomination of the best men for office.

But it is notorious that even in Marquette, a city of churches, a town made up of good people in the majority, law is sometimes disregarded in this matter and dishonesty winked at by men who hold it to their religion to denounce and bring to light that which is dishonest and they hide behind the excuse.

Ah, but this is politics and I cannot soil my reputation by disturbing its flow.

Who will disturb it? Certainly a hog, yawling in the mine does not disturb with the intention or purpose of making it less filthy.

I hold it to be the duty of every good American citizen to be active in politics whether in the pulpit or the rostrum, or a layman in the pew or in the body of the auditorium. This is needed to cleanse it from the stains of reproach and relieve some few at least of laboring under a fanciful burden of the damned if you do and be damned if you don't condemnation.

If it is not the mission of the Republican party to confront evil in politics wherever found, if outside, levy it out, and if inside, kick it out, then I have had a misapprehension of what its mission was for a number of years. Has the Republican party wandered so far away from its time honored principles that its bitterest enemy can take up its shield and with some show of reason cry on to victory?

The democratic party claiming the sentiments of Abraham Lincoln as its own and rallying the people under its standard with this subterfuge.

It is not time that the rank and file of the Republican party demoralized in places along the line new leadership I think so, and I fancy no great attempt will be made to drive an out of the Republican camp by my expressing these opinions.

April 18. A. C. CARPENTER.

UPPER PENINSULA NEWS. Monmouth already has two daily papers, but rumor says a third is to be started. The new paper will be republican in politics.

A prairie schooner carrying three persons, cast anchor in Homer yesterday morning, says the Index. The party hailed from Florida and were bound for Luce Co. in the upper peninsula. They came from the road just two months, having driven all the way overland, a distance of probably 2,000 miles. It is surprising what attractions Michigan offers to some people.

Monmouth county is soon to have another newspaper. "The Powers Opinion" to be published at that place by E. J. Dunn of lower Michigan.

John Camp, one of the men present at Hunt's Spur when the murder was committed last February, is quite evasive of the opinion that some one else is sufficient to bring the guilty party to justice. St. Ignace Enterprise.

Captain Ralph of Escanaba was a captain in the 14th United States Infantry during the war, and recently he again offered his services to the government in like capacity. He served in the regular army five or more years.

There have recently been passed in the Soo a number of counterfeitfeit and silver dollars and the police are now aware of a class as to their origin and are of the opinion that some one near the city is making them. The coins are well made and in a dull light would readily pass for the genuine article.

The Leader is by far the best 3-for-quarter cigar in the local market. It is made from the best tobacco and is smoked by many who have tried other brands and have decided to stick to Zimmerman's Leader.

Bons Becomes a Maniac. Peter Bons, the murderer of Pearl Morrison was taken yesterday to the asylum for the criminal insane at Leoni. He went in the custody of Warden Freeman, who led the double aim of taking Bons and attending the meeting of the joint prison boards at Detroit.

Bons is believed to be hopelessly insane. For the past three weeks he has been a raving maniac. In his delirium he is the only suitable place for him at the depot, and in fact, it will be a surprise to most people that he has gone, as outside of a small circle of prison officials little or nothing was known of his recent condition.

Warden Freeman went to the depot bought two tickets and boarded the E. B. train. The train was stopped opposite the prison and Bons was brought aboard.

The murder of the girl Pearl Morrison which was perpetrated last summer at the little village of Crystal Falls, is one of the most cold blooded in the criminal history of the upper peninsula. It created a great sensation at the time which was followed by a smaller sensation growing out of the way in which it is said Bons' confession to his crime was secured. The confession is alleged to have been secured by a detective who, in the garb of a priest, visited Bons in jail.

At no time after his arrest or at his trial did the confessor show the slightest compunction for the dastardly crime he had committed. He received the sentence of a life term in the branch prison absolutely unmoved, and showed such unmistakable evidences of the brute that Judge Stone, in pronouncing his sentence, spoke of the utter futility of addressing any remarks to the wretch before him, and dismissed the case with the bare announcement of the sentence.

Bons entered upon prison life October 1, 1897. Those who saw him when he was brought to Leoni, remarked, as those had done who had seen him elsewhere, upon his demure appearance.

Predictions were freely made that his term at the branch would be a short one, that he would either die in prison or in the course of a short time go violently insane.

This last prediction has come true, and it will cause not the slightest surprise to those who have seen him or had anything to do with him. - Mining Journal.

Death of an Old Resident. Mrs. Nicholas Funk died suddenly at her home on Water Street Friday afternoon of congestion of the lungs superinduced by an attack of la grippe.

Deceased was 61 years of age and had resided here for a number of years being better known to the old residents of this city as Mrs. Annetta Savage. Her first husband died some 15 years ago, her second union taking place in 1896. Four children, Joseph, Steven and Agnes of this city, and Mrs. Anna Honko of Chicago, are left to mourn her death.

The latter was seriously ill at the time of the death of her mother and could not be present at the funeral services which were conducted by Rev. Fr. Reinhardt from the Catholic church Monday.

Mrs. Funk was well and favorably known and the family have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Duval takes Exceptions.

Maj. Duval of the Weston Furnace Co. takes exceptions to the terms up in the Democrat of the trouble between the Barrell Chemical Co. and the C. L. Co. and brands it as a "issue of falsehoods."

He says the right of way granted the Chemical Co. was not at the Soo Line but to a point connecting with the tracks in the former yards. When the track was surveyed, he was in a hospital seriously ill and had nothing whatever to do with it. When the Chemical company commenced work on the line, they made a blunder in leaving the trouble and rather than go to the expense of moving it elected to jump C. L. Co. land.

The apology for a slanty" erected by the C. L. Co. was simply a small building built to be easily moved and to be used as a shelter for their watchmen.

The crew of men at work Sunday were employees of the Barrell Chemical Co. and not of the Soo Line, who had nothing whatever to do with it. They did not upset the "shanty" into a ditch but simply moved it out of the way.

The statement that the general manager of the Soo Line had telegraphed orders to put in the switch and sidetrack, and if it was prevented, all connections between the C. L. and Weston Furnace Co. tracks and the Soo road, and the spur into the line quarries would be taken up, is a fabrication constructed out of whole cloth.

All the tracks leading from the Weston Furnace Co. and Weston Marble Lime Co. to the Soo Line, furnishing the steel, thus constituting a joint ownership.

The April term convened Tuesday morning with Judge Steere on the bench. The term was non-jury and only a small number of cases were on the docket. The following were disposed of:

The cases of the People vs. John Liston, and the People vs. Ed. Logan on the same charge were disposed of in the same manner and went over to the next term of court for trial. Attorney Peters appeared for the defendants.

Agnes Dupont vs. Northern Lead Co., bill dismissed.

Navigo, Holcomb & Co. vs. White Marble Lime Co., transferred to the United States court on motion of attorney for plaintiff.

Delta Lumber Co. vs. Richard Egan, ejectment, default.

Robert Olson, Nels Lofgren and Gustave Lusch were admitted to full citizenship.

The session closed at five o'clock yesterday afternoon.
