ORR BROS. and CO.

$15,000 BLAZE.

Casper Bros' Clothing and Dry Goods Stock Ruined.

Blumrosen Bros' Block Damaged to Amount of $1,000.

Casper Bros' dry goods and clothing stock was almost totally destroyed by fire Thursday night, and the building owned by Blumrosen Bros., in which the stores were housed, was badly damaged.

Although the fire was at an early hour but few people were on the street. It was that the fire apparatus was some time in reaching the scene, but when the two alarms were directed on the flames they were effective, placing the fire under control in a few minutes. The fire pump at the electric light plant did excellent work, furnishing a good, steady stream, while the hose engine did its usual good work. In the absence of Chief E. J. ... the management would not have been better.

Before midnight the fire was out and when the smoke cleared away the stock was found to be almost valueless. The fire was the result of the fire in the two stores. The ceiling and walls of the building above the roof are badly damaged and the plate glass windows are worthless.

The dry goods and clothing store in Blumrosen & Co's store adjacent to the one burned was considerably damaged by smoke and water, water running a stream down the walls into the stock and shelves. Some goods were also damaged through moving.

The fire was at first noticed at about 10:30 o'clock by Messrs. H. A. Halverson and W. M. Pydell, who were passing the block. The front and rear doors of the store were forced in, and those who entered the building soon after the fire was noticed claim the blaze was in the clothing located to the right and rear of the store and under the line of pipe passing to the chimney. This leads to the belief that the fire was caused by the falling of stove pipes, which was lying on the clothing.

M. L. Casper, the son-in-law of the firm, was at the scene of the fire and did not learn of the loss until he received a telegram via Cadillac and should have reached here Wednesday. He returned here late last evening. A telegram reporter talked with Mr. Casper this morning, but could not learn what would be done with the damaged goods nor anything regarding his business intentions, which depends on the adjustment of the loss.

Casper Bros', dry goods, clothing, pants furnishings, etc., valued at $12,000, insurance $1,000, loss $11,000. The North British and Mercantile $2,000, Insurance Co. of North America $2,000.

Blumrosen Bros', building, damaged to amount of $1,000, covered by insurance. Blumrosen & Co. goods, damaged by smoke and water, insured.

The Schoolcraft County Bank is a guarantor for the companies carrying insurance above.

INCREDIBLY PROPPED TWENTY FEET.

Engineer Aiken Narrowly Escapes Death in the Gap.

Locomotive No. 8, which is used on the branch and about the yards of the Chicago & Eastern Michigan, and a car loaded with logs, went through the bridge west of the C. L. mill at about five o'clock this morning. They went to the river bed below, a distance of about twenty feet. Engineer Hugh Aiken and Old Foreman, a part man, were in the cab and the locomotive was in the middle of the gap and about to fall. The foreman had his left leg quite badly gashed by escaping steam and the other man was fortunate in not receiving a scratch.

The locomotive was coming toward the C. L. mill pushing the covered train which Foreman Peter Ahlstrom and another man were riding and they jumped when they heard the timbers breaking. The engine and tender went down first and car and the car of both fell down and fortunately did not strike the former car which would have been crushed to death.

The timbers which gave way were inspected last spring and all appearances were good, but since the accident they were found to be rotten in the center.

Mr. Aiken was taken home and medical attendance summoned. He, it is stated, will not get again in about ten days.

Roof of a New Theater Collapses at Detroit. Killing Eleven Men and Severely Injuring Nearly a Score of Others—Our Troops Go to Cuba.

Deadly Disaster at Detroit. The new Woodward building, on Monroe avenue, near the Campus Martius, Detroit, was nearly completed and was almost ready for dedication and a plunking for the people when one of the most terrible catastrophes occurred ever known in the history of the Michigan metropolis.

There were about 40 men employed in the structure, when, without an instant's warning, the entire roof fell in upon them, carrying the upper gallery floor and an immense amount of scaffolding and temporary work down to the lower floor.

The roof of the falling, crushing, grinding mass was followed by the piles and groins of the roof fellows in the rear. The fire department and hospital ambulances were on the scene in a very short time and even then the work of rescue had been begun by spectators who risked their lives under the dangerous walls.

Reports from Berrien county show that here after a new fall wheat is raised by a new pest known as the wheat fly. Wm. Strasser, Co. 1, 2nd Michigan, is seriously ill at Niles, from blood poisoning resulting from a laceration received at Camp Alger.

SHAKING IN A SHAKING

THE QUESTION OF DIS-EASE TRANSFER.

The case of Every Kind First Reported in the Daily-Courier Free of the Circuit by Edward Strauss, M.D., is a case of Freckle and Chagrin.

It is possible for one man to communicate to another by the shaking of hands?

If this question be true, should the custom be abandoned or should it be modified under medical instruction so as to minimize the danger?

The existence of micro-organisms inimical to life and health has been established beyond dispute. Dr. Breiter found his thesis, recently printed in The Medical Record, on this hypothesis. But his leading point, insisted upon with much force, is the danger which is hidden in the apparently harmless and sanctimonious pliancy of shaking hands. He says:

"That the surface of the human body is a very rich field for the propagation of an array of organisms... The most common of these are the bacteria, which are the cause of many of our diseases, especially of the common cold, influenza, diphtheria, and other diseases. These organisms are everywhere, and they are very tenacious of life. They can survive for long periods of time in a dry state, and they can be transferred from one person to another by the shaking of hands."

The shaking of hands is a very common habit, and it is a very dangerous one. It is a habit that should be abandoned, or at least modified, under medical instruction. The shaking of hands is a habit that should be abandoned, or at least modified, under medical instruction.

The modern quick moving elevator, with its shafts, cables, pulleys, gears, ropes, and counterweights, is a very complicated piece of machinery. It is a piece of machinery that should be handled by a professional person. It is a piece of machinery that should be handled by a professional person.

"Do you know," said one of them to the other, "that if you hold your breath going down in an elevator you don't feel that unpleasant feeling you don't feel it at all."

Of course nobody in the elevator lifted intentionally, but nobody could help hearing who did and the conversation instantly ceased, and everybody drew a long breath. The elevator shot downward in silence.

"Of course," said the other, "the elevator man as he threw back the door, and the women streamed out from the car upon the floor, talking now and then, and there was one at least who said that the plan was effective."—New York Sun.

BEARS IN YELLOWSTONE PARK

Fearful Incidents - Adventure for "Larry," Tenderfoot Gamester

Among the stories which Henry O. Du Val brought back from his trip to the Pacific coast was one about "Larry," the tenderfoot of the lumber station at Natick, in the Yellowstone Park, which everybody will appreciate who knows the witty Irishman, and few people have made the trip in the last few years to whom he is unknown. "The rank is full of bears, cinnamon and silver tips," said Mr. Du Val, "and the after-dinner hour at the hotels is always spent by the guests in watching the big clumsy brutes lumbering about in the woods the feed at the refuse heaps. Larry is only a lumberjack station, a big tent, which tourists stop in the middle of their day's journey for rest and refreshment. All Larry's supplies come from the hotels, and one day, a short time before our visit, the lumberjack found almost arrived, and the fresh wagon from the hotel had not made its appearance. There was not a slice of bread in the tent. Larry is proud of the reputation of his taste; something has to be done, and done at once. Already he hears the rumbling of the wheels and the hoofbeats of the horses that tell him that his guests are at hand. In an inspiration comes to him. He hastily summons his entire force, waiters, cooks, scullions, and all, and imparts a few words of instructions. As the coaches draw up at the front of the tent, Larry, at the other end, shouting at the top of his lungs, out comes the table and kitchen force at his heels, waving tablecloths, napkins, anything at hand, and scattering in all directions. "There he goes," yells Larry. "Head him off, kill the murtherin' beast! O, the thief of the world. There he is behind the corner, now we'll run him down by the fence!" and away they all go dashing about in all directions, the amazed guests still sitting in the coaches and wondering what it all meant. One by one the bear's people return. Larry at their head—hot, crestfallen. "Och, whatever shall I do," says Larry, "the 'bivouac dining, morn' crumbs of bread, harrin' crackers, have I got in to eat. The brutes have stolen the whole of it." The guests assemble around him with words of comfort, but it is long before Larry will be satisfied. He has seen the life of the whole tribe, whether the government protects them or not. Shure, how can he set a decent table if the ideal man should be the only little by the guests call him down. They "like crackers," they wouldn't eat any bread if they had it! Larry had gained his point, and material had been furnished for the adventure of an ordinary kind, and many members of the party will doubtless entertain their friends with the story of how the bears stole their bread at Larry's.

IDEAL CAVALRYMEN.

MUST BE BRED TO THE HORSE FROM CHILDHOOD.

American Gamester Film the Bull-horn In used to Live in the Middle Ages, In Resources, Has an Indian Instinct of Locality.

(Special Letter.)

O be a perfect cavalryman the man must be reared to ride before he is able to walk," is the saying of a high authority. It is supported by the fact that the conquerors of the world in all ages of history have been recruited from regions in which the horseman was the only man of consideration, and the art of riding was taught the boy at so early an age that it was an instinct with him rather than an acquirement.

There is another class of cavalrymen, the British mounted regiments in India, the French in Algeria, and those splendid riders, the United States Cavalry, reared by routing service and Indian campaigns on the plains—cavalrymen of the modern school, who fight either in the saddle or dismounted, and through constant frontier warfare against savage horsemen have become admirably expert.

For the gathering, branding, herding and shipment of the millions of cattle that roamed the plains, a class of men who could ride, and endure heat and rain, was required, and this the cowboy was developed. He is his successor of the Texas and Mexican vaquero, multiplied and modified. He can ride and throw the rope as well as the time vaquero, but has more of the civilized and fewer of the homicidal traits of the latter.

A SIRDAR'S BULLET.

Gen. Kitchener's Singular Experience in the Campaign of 1898.

The Sirdar of the army in Egypt, on whom the eyes of Englishmen are now turned from every quarter of the empire, has had a very extraordinary experience, having evaluated a bullet with which he had been wounded, and which he now preserves as a memento. During the campaign of '88 Major Kitchener was hit in the side of the face by a bullet, during a skirmish near Suakin, and was taken down the Nile, and thence to the Citadel hospital at Cairo, where, despite all the efforts of the surgeons, the bullet could not be located, the X-rays being then unknown. On the authority of Sergeant Dillon, late of the medical staff corps, who is now in London, and who was then specially detailed to look after the injured officer, the wound was a healthy one, and very soon healed, and the medical officers came to the conclusion that the bullet had worked its way out without being noticed on the passage down the Nile. Dillon one day tempted his patient's appetite with a tasty beef steak, which the major had no sooner attacked than he put his hand to his throat exclaiming: "Dillon, if there's no bone in the steak, I've got the bullet!" This proved to be the case, the bullet passing through the alimentary canal without injury to the distinguished officer.

IRVING SPURGEON.

The recent autobiography of the late Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon contains an account of what may be termed an early business venture, and its influence on his character. Spurgeon was brought up on Waterbury, but not altogether willingly. His grandmother coaxed him with money to learn them. At first she gave him a penny, but when she saw how easily it was earned, she increased the price to a halfpenny and then to a farthing. There is no telling how low the amount per penny might have fallen, but just at this time his grandfather made a discovery which seemed more desirable to Spurgeon. He discovered that his house was overrun with rats, and offered his grandmamma a shilling a cupation of rat-killing gave him more money than bearing him "duty," of rats which consequently has been more permanently profitable to me.

A FATHER'S STORY.

From the Evening Crescent, Appleton, Wis.

A remarkable case for a disease which commonly wrecks the lives of children and left them in a condition which death would prefer, has attracted a great amount of attention among the residents of our town and of Appleton.

The case is that of little William Joseph, son of Richard H. Joseph, well known employer of one of the large paper mills in the Fox River valley. The mother was afflicted with a disease which attacked her in the form of a typhoid fever, and as a result, she died in the hospital at Appleton. Mr. Joseph, who is now in the hospital at Appleton, Wisconsin, told the following story:

A PERFECT BAKING POWDER.

The constantly increasing demand for Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder, the standard cream of tartar powder for forty years, is due to two causes.

FIRST:—The extreme care exercised by the manufacturers to make it pure, uniform in quality and of highest leavening power. Skilled chemists test every ingredient as to purity and strength.

SECOND:—Recent State investigations show that the majority of other baking powders contain alum, and consumers are giving such powders a wide berth. Nothing is left to chance in the manufacture of Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. It is pronounced by all authorities as free from alum or other adulterant. It never disappoints. Each can is like the other. THE BEST IS ALWAYS THE CHEAPEST.

Comfort for Women.

Some time ago Pullman's Palace Car Company built three parlor cars for the N. O. & N. Y. New York train, and the radical departure from other cars of this character as in the toilet room for ladies, which was eight feet in length. Recently the same company has built eight new sleepers for the New York St. Louis line of the U. S. & A. and the design of the cars has evidently been inspired by the popularity of the ladies' retiring room in the parlor cars to give to the ladies a vast degree of comfort, a dresser with long pier glass. The cars are said by the Pullman people to be the finest they ever had turned out, and the ladies' retiring room is exceedingly commodious and contains, besides other toilet necessities, a dresser with a long pier glass. The cars are decorated in vermilion wood, decorated with light mahogany work, and the upholstery on the backs and seats is entirely new and different from any heretofore being a sort of a mixture of pattern of bright color. A similar change of ornamentation has never been before, giving the car an air of freshness.

Years of suffering relieved in a night. Itching piles yield to one of the curative properties of Jones' Ointment. Never fails. At any drug store. Keene.

A face that cannot smile is like a lantern without a light. Knock down a line and you hit the dead square in the face.

"Little Fields" neglected—thousands of lives sacrificed every year. Dr. Wood's Nerve Pine Syrup cures little cold-cures, big colds, low down to the very verge of consumption.

If you joke, laugh most heartily at the joke that hits you.

What's the secret of happy, vigorous health? Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it.

We seldom remember predictions that do not come true.

Diphtheria relieved in twenty minutes. Simply keeping the bowels, the stomach, the liver and kidneys strong and active. Burdock Blood Bitters does it.

The body may be clean but the soul alone can be pure.

DOWN ON THE FARM.

Titles of the Salt Appreciate the Little Water-Worker.

Near the little town of Wood's Corners, about six miles from Ionia, resides R. L. Pierson. Mr. Pierson, a farmer by occupation, has had all his hard-working tillers of the soil he has found the burdens the soil bear no light load to carry. Few people who never see a farm appreciate what it means to follow the plow from sunrise to sunset, but if the public in general do know how hard such work is, the kind of man who has long hours of work of any kind means long hours for the kids, and they can't stand it without rebelling. When the farmer comes home tired out at night, if he only realized that the tired feeling mostly always came from tired kidneys, and that the little wonder-workers, Don's Kidney Pills, would right the wrong brought on by over-work, he would be easier for him. Read what Mr. Pierson says about his experience:

THE SMALLEST BOOK IN THE WORLD.

The smallest book in the world is precisely five-eighths of an inch wide and three-eighths of an inch high, says the New York Journal.

It contains two hundred pages and five pages of the very finest type imaginable.

The point of a pin would cover a letter, and a magnifying glass is necessary for anything like reading.

Charles Scribner's Sons have a copy of this wonderful little volume, which is kept in an envelope in the safekeeping in Padua, Italy, in 1895, and is a reprint of an Italian letter to Galileo, printed originally in 1892.

It is a curiosity, but as such it outdoes all previous attempts at making small books, "thumb books" as they are called for they are no larger than your thumb.

The exchange of R. R. Buell and one of her consorts, the Pomroy, went out the rocks just outside the harbor, Saturday night. The Buell and consorts were making up to leave for the east and when awaiting one of the langes they were circling around and in the darkness went into the rocks east of the breakwater. Both went "hard on," the former being released by the tug Elmer and Evans at 2:30 Sunday morning and the latter Monday forenoon.

About 65,000 lb. of lumber was jacked from the Buell before being released nearly the last load of the Pomroy was thrown out before she was moved. The former received injuries to her wheel and she and the latter had a hole stove in her bottom. Sunday afternoon the Buell left for the east and upon arrival at Detroit will undergo repairs in dry dock. The Pomroy is held up at the dock here awaiting orders from Commodore Dulac.

This is the first accident of any account that has befallen the Buell since her change of Capt. Woodruff and this one luckily was not a bad one.
During Saturday night there was quite a heavy sea and wind from the south.
