NATIONAL GUARD MEMBERS BACK

Citizen Soldiers Praised By Governor Williams At Annual Encampment

Michigan National Guard troops, among them over 50 from Manistique, returned to their home communities Saturday, completing two weeks of summer training which won them commendation from both military and civilian officials.

Top-ranking army inspectors expressed surprise at the progress of Michigan Guardsmen during the 1937 encampment and praised recent improvements in training facilities at the state military reservation.

After witnessing a review of Michigan troops and their motorized equipment, Governor Williams complimented Guardsmen "for a job well done." During his day-long inspection of the camp, the governor said he was "particularly impressed by the evident pride that the officers and men took in their several duties. With such spirit I know they will not only get intense satisfaction from doing a good job but will serve the state of Michigan and the United States well."

Payroll $846,000
Guardsmen drew their two weeks of active duty military pay Thursday and Friday before breaking camp for the trip home. Total pay roll, including the allowance for airman who completed their summer training schedule last week, is estimated at $940,000.

Special troop trains moved out of Grayling Friday night carrying units making the trip home by rail, while motor convoys left Saturday morning with the remainder. During their stay in camp some 7,800 Guardsmen absorbed additional small arms and heavy artillery weapons practice, learned about speedy movement of an infantry division into combat zones by air, bivouacked overnight in the wooded areas of camp away from the main garrison and put into use for the first time the state military reservation's new armored training center.

At a Sunday morning memorial service honoring Michigan Guardsmen killed in past wars Governor Williams said, "You are demonstrating to all the world your faith in our way of life and your determination to defend it against all enemies. You are an object lesson in democracy under arms which our enemies cannot fail to understand. You are keeping faith with the heroes of yesterday, and with generations yet unborn."

But rights begot duties—our continued safety as free workers depends on our willingness to put in 365 days a year at being good citizens. That's a whole-time job—our freedom, our security, our very lives depend on it!

Probably most of us think that we are already pretty good citizens—but let's take a look at the record.

The right to vote is fundamental to freedom. Yet in the last presidential election 45 million did not take the trouble to go to the polls. Almost half of us didn't value freedom enough to walk a block or two and cast our ballots.

Let's look ourselves over some more. It took thousands of years and a lot of wars to set up our right to trial by jury. Yet, too many regard dodging jury service as a very smart thing to do. Those same duty dodgers yell their heads off when they think some injustice is done in our courts.

Then there are folks who can't spare the time to attend P.T.A. meetings. Others who think their sole duty as Union members is to pay dues—let some one else attend the meetings. There are stockholders who draw dividends, but don't vote.

Let's remember this! We'll hold on to our right to celebrate Labor Day only as long as we hold on to freedom. And that's a full-time job—it takes 150 million good citizens working 365 days a year to do it right.

Are you a full-time citizen? Check here!

Do You Find Out Election Issues? Attend local political meetings! Hear both sides! Ask questions! KNOW the issues!

Do You Vote Intelligently in All Elections? No election is unimportant. Vote in all of them according to your conscience.

Do You Serve Gladly On Juries? If you haven't served before, you'll be surprised to find how interesting and important it is.

Do You Join Local Civic Groups? Being to Parent-Teacher's Association or serving on School Board? Good educational policies promote Freedom.

Do You Vote to Uphold the Plans and Goals of the Nation? Don't leave it to others to make decisions that affect your life.

Fall Will Arrive September 23 - U-M Astronomer Says
Fall will begin on Friday, Sept. 23, at 4:06 a. m., Eastern Standard Time, when the sun enters the autumnal equinox.
This will be the feature attraction of an astronomical nature during September, according to Dr. Harold M. Losh, assistant professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan.
If you want to check your directions note where the sun rises and sets on September 23, Dr. Losh indicates since it will be at exact east and west on that date. The day and night will be of equal length and the sun will start its long journey south of the equator. Days will be increasingly shorter and the nights longer until the sun reaches its most southern point, the winter solstice, in December.
The bright planet, Jupiter, will continue to dominate the night sky during September, according to Dr. Losh. Jupiter will be in the south while Venus will be the bright "evening star" in the west. Take a look in the west at twilight on the evening of September 25 and the crescent moon will be very close to Venus.
The period around September 25 should prove favorable for the observation of "earthshine," a faint pinkish glow on the moon caused by the reflection of sunlight from the earth. The glow lights up the lunar landscape at a time when it is turned away from the direct rays of the sun. Dr. Losh says a more favorable time for this astronomical event is "The Old Moon in the New Moon's Arms."

U-M Solar Studies Help To Forecast Radio Conditions
Observations of the sun by University of Michigan astronomers continue to have practical applications in forecasting of radio transmission conditions a report from the National Bureau of Standards indicates.
Solar studies being conducted at the University's McMath-Hulbert Observatory, near Pontiac, include the recording of flares on the sun. These solar flares are usually followed by magnetic storms which disturb radio transmission conditions on the earth.
The observations of the University astronomers are sent regularly to the Radio Propagation Laboratory of the Bureau of Standards, which in turn sends warnings to radio stations of impending disturbances. Since the flare-ups on the sun affect radio reception on the earth in scattered areas, it is sometimes possible for a station to change its frequency and continue its regular work.
During the war the observations of the sun at the McMath-Hulbert Observatory were regularly used in predicting radio transmission conditions for the armed services. They are continuing to serve the same purpose during peace time.

Chicago Couple Hurt In Crash

Lions Members Inspect Inland

(Continued from page one) about 30% of our production. The percentage of stone to steel mill customers totals 67%—the balance is used for aggregate, lime burning, cement, papermills and agricultural limestone. The total flux stone used in the United States for the year was 28,000,000 tons, of which we shipped 2,800,000 tons or approximately 10%.

Stripping
Before the stone can be quarried a layer of soil must be removed. This is called stripping and varies from 2 to 12 feet in depth.

200,000 to 250,000 cubic yards of this material is removed each year—by trucks in the summer and railroad cars in the winter.

Drilling
The stone must be drilled and blasted to prepare it for digging. Two rows of 6" holes are drilled parallel to the face—the first 25 feet back and the second row 20 feet behind that, making a cut 45 feet wide.

The holes are spaced 18 feet apart longitudinally and average about 38 feet in depth.

Twelve churn drills are used and drill about 200,000 feet a year.

Blasting
The average shot contains between 300 and 400 holes, which breaks between 250,000 and 400,000 tons.

650,000 to 750,000 pounds of dynamite, along with 150,000 feet of primacord and some 5000 blasting caps are used each year.

Loading
The stone is loaded into railroad cars by three 170-B Bucyrus-Erie full revolving electric shovels. These shovels have 5 cubic yard buckets and can load a ton car train containing some 500 tons in 45 minutes.

Haulage
The stone is hauled seven miles from the quarry to the plant at Port Inland by a standard gauge electric railroad. Six haulage units consisting of an electric locomotive and nine 30 cubic yard cars are operated on the main line, and two diesel electric locomotives are used at the harbor for plant switching.

Total trackage at the harbor and quarry is about fifteen miles. The cars and locomotives average about 15,000 miles per year.

Crushing
To prepare the quarry run

stone for market, it must be crushed, sized and washed.

Cars are dumped directly into a 60" Gyration crusher, which can handle a car about every two minutes.

The stone is crushed against steel breaking head weighing about 60 tons. This head moves in an eccentric circle of 1-3/4" throw and is driven by a 250 H. P. motor.

The bottom of the crusher building is 22 feet below lake level.

Milling—Sizing
The material is sized on roll grizzlies and double and triple deck vibrator screens.

All sizes but the 1/2" to 1 1/2" open-heap stone are washed, which requires some 3000 gallons of water per minute.

We produce three metallurgical sizes which utilize all stone larger than 1 1/2" and comprises two-thirds of the total production. All stone passing 1 1/2" screens goes into about fifteen various commercial sizes.

An average of 20,000 tons are put through the mill each day.

Stocking
Before shipment, the stone is placed in storage piles by four travelling stackers. There are ten of these piles, each 50 feet high and 400 feet long containing about 15,000 tons of live storage.

Our total storage capacity is 100,000 tons of all sizes.

Shipping
The stone is reclaimed from storage for shipment through tunnels which run under each pile. A system of 48" conveyors discharging on a main 60" conveyor carry stone to the shuttle where it is loaded into either boats or cars.

An average 10,000 ton boat can be loaded in 1/2 to 3 hours.

Dock and Harbor
The 60" belts run 500 feet per minute and deliver about 3000 tons per hour.
