

work we directed attention to the importance of the Youth Fund drive, slated for Friday, Dec. 13. The importance of this campaign deserves further emphasis. If it is a success, there is a strong possibility that the Boy Scout program in Manistiquette will come to the Youth Center, to be organized and the Youth Center, to be organized.

Such as Schoolcraft has just achieved—the lowest in the state with a minimal record—does not just in the average, a low record is one of the important products of Boy and Girl Scout programs and other programs and activities. A plan invested next week in the Youth Fund will help this work to continue to achieve such a record. We can think of no other contribution than one to be made to make better use of our boys and girls.

It is better from Michigan's general received here which chronicles the end of the energy in Thompson townships which started with an audit conducted by a group of taxmen and reached its peak when attorney general instructed J. J. Sheahan, prosecuting attorney, to take civil and criminal action against the township's officials on the basis of facts set forth in his audit.

Manistique? "No!" declare three geology experts of the University of Michigan. Professor Kenneth A. Landos and two associates made a study of the geology of the Straits region for the State Department of Conservation. Soil shales rock in the Straits would not be adequate for foundations to hold bridge piers, concludes Landos.

The Michigan Department of Economic Development announces that Michigan ranks second in population increase for the period April, 1940 to July, 1948. California was first. Michigan's present population: 6,209,000.

Wholesale prices have declined about 7 1/2 percent during the past 12 months and now are around 10 percent under the postwar peak reached in September, 1948. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports a 12.7 percent decline in farm prices; 8.9 percent drop in food prices during the past 12 months period.

Among the present problems which promise to result in requests for more state spending is that of the postwar rise of prices because of postwar inflation and in Michigan. Governor Williams has asked the State Mental Health Commission to make a search for an immediate solution. A Detroit daily newspaper sponsored an independent study of eight sex murders in Detroit and other cities in recent years, and the survey came to the conclusion that additional state facilities were urgently needed. Prospect is new demands for state aid.

Auditor General Muri K. Atan reports that the state collected and returned to local governments three dollars for every dollar returned by the state for state work during the past fiscal year. Total of state aid payments was $309,863,726, as compared to state cost of institutions, departments, and maintenance of highways and building amounting to $102,925,073.

Aten points out that expenditures for the past year were over 18 million dollars higher than revenues. He makes this prediction: "Under the present financial structure, if and when sales tax revenues take a nose-dive, the inevitable result will be financial chaos in the general fund."

Governor Williams is said to still hold the firm conviction that new taxes will be needed in 1950 of the postwar rise of prices and constitutional diversion of sales tax revenues back to local governments.

ents in higher prices and continued high consumer spending, it is entirely possible that the threatened treasury deficit may be do layed or at least kept to a low amount. Republican legislative leaders appear to be gambling that no deficit will develop or, if at all, the deficit will be minimal. To impose new taxes in an election year is not popular with many legislators.

Building facilities at the Michigan State Fair are wholly inadequate for present needs, declares James D. Friel, general manager. Since the collection was constructed in 1921, "no major building" has been erected at the fair grounds.

Friel concludes that Michigan lags far behind Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio and Minnesota in the State Fair facilities. While it is unlikely that anyone will dispute the judgment of Mr. Friel, it is equally unlikely that the legislature will grant new funds for needed State Fair improvements, especially in view of the financial situation confronting the state and the local governments.

Former Governor Harry P. Kelly is said to be cool to urgent appeals that he announce his candidacy for governor in competition

Matches, One-Time Luxury, Now Available to Everyone

Only in the last century have matches been produced in the United States at a cost that makes them available to all according to national patent council.

Earliest recorded description of fire-making does not go back beyond 4000 B. C. Egyptian hieroglyphs of that time tell of the bow and fire stick.

By 2 A. D. fire was obtained by striking flint and by friction. Even as late as 1847, ten years after Alonzo Phillips was granted the first U. S. patent for phosphorus matches, flint was still in use.

The "ethereal match" appeared in France in 1706. This was a sealed glass tube containing a phosphorus-tipped waxed string. The user broke the tube and the rush of air caused combustion.

The instantaneous light bottle, consisting of a container of sulphuric acid and splints tipped with potassium chlorate, sugar and gun arabic, was used for 40 years in America and Europe, beginning in 1866. A box of 50 splints cost $2.

73 Firms With 1,675 On Payroll Locate In U. P.

Seventy-three industries, employing 1,675 persons in year-around work, have been started in Upper Michigan in the last three years, according to results of a survey received by the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau from the Michigan Department of Economic Development.

Some of the industries, according to report, grew directly out of the community industrial survey program conducted by the department, the Development Bureau and cooperating towns and cities. Others were the indirect result of the program.

The industrial development program, given considerable impetus last year by the publication of the "Industrial Location Advantages of Michigan's Upper Peninsula," is being continued and industrial committees of several communities are conducting an intensive search for industrial prospects among manufacturers visiting this area.

The department's area development division has two booklets which are available upon request. One is entitled "Partners in Progress," a handbook to guide communities in the organization of industrial development corporations. In connection with this, the department offers the services of its field men to study specific problems involved in a particular area in establishing these corporations. "A Personal Opinion of My Home Town" is the other publication released recently and available for state-wide distribution. This 18-page survey booklet, when completed by local communities, is a concise inventory of a town's assets and an analysis of them. The Department of Economic Development says it is ready to assist areas in furnishing supplies, directing the inventory, tabulating results and making recommendations for future development.

Students Should Know How To Get Job, Says Speaker

(Continued from page one) you do from 8 to 5 to be our business, and when you do after 5 be- gles to reflect in what you do between 8 and 5, then it becomes our business, too."

The speaker also stressed the importance of properly filling out an application, which is the first step in obtaining a job. From the personal point of view of the man who sits down and evaluates the prospective employees, the only thing he has to evaluate is the application since the applicant is no longer there. "An application is just like a salesman's sample case or the grocer's show case. It is selling your wares when you are not present as an individual to sell those wares yourself. One that is haphazardly made out won't do you much good," he emphasized. "The first duty of educators, then, he went on, "is to teach students just how to go out and get a job. Business and industry need the students, and the students, in turn, need business and industry, and unless there can be cooperation between us, then we are failing to do our best for that boy or girl in the community in which we operate."

Adequate Pay First He mentioned that first among the responsibilities of industry and business to students is an adequate rate of pay, which responsibility he believes business and industry is discharging. Second is the responsibility to the student of proper orientation. "To us," he stated, "that means the elimination of 'Security,' he pointed out, "is the frustration and the adjusting of industry. Every one of you teachers has a certain responsibility in your classes in the preparation of tests for student consumption."

Tell the students that just because they are out of school, they aren't through taking tests. We in industry are still preparing tests, but we prepare them a little differently, in that we do it in an effort to determine what best suits the youngster when he comes into the plant—how we can best adapt him to a job in which he will be happy, and now he can best follow the skills for which he has the most aptitude. Besides the rate of pay and orientation, there is the added responsibility of safety to the student while at work, to see that he has the proper tools for the specific job—properly guaranteed tools and adequate instructions for their use. "We accept that responsibility," the speaker said, "and are continually trying to discharge it in a satisfactory manner."

Stress Security He stressed the fact that there must be such a thing as security. "Security," he pointed out, "is the business itself. It is natural and should be expected that any business or industry should reap a profit, else it would be under foolish to have invested money in it. Industry has a responsibility to its stockholders who come from various walks of life—school teachers, mechanics, grocery store clerks, etc., and must reap a profit first, in order to discharge that responsibility and, secondly, for the security of the people who work in the plant, for without investments and without the continued economic success of that business, there is no hope for those people that you send out of your schools and that we accept, unless there is economic security for the company who is in operation."

Public Opinion Still Largely Determined By Press-Alleman Public opinion is still largely determined by the newspapers, Gene Alleman, secretary-manager of the Michigan Press Association recently told journalism students at the University of Michigan.

And that opinion is based on the news story turned in by the reporter, Alleman said in the first of a series of lectures given to the members of "Today's Newspapers" sponsored by the Department of Journalism. The reporter is still the heart of any newspaper. He said newsmen must separate their primary responsibility of accurate news reporting from their secondary job of interpreting.

NO LONGER CONFINED TO WHEEL CHAIR THANKS TO O-JIB-WA

Painful Rheumatism and Arthritis in My Legs, Hips and Back Put Me in a Wheel Chair for Over a Year, and Made Me Practically an Invalid

No medicine has a better reputation or is as highly recommended for relief of the painful miseries of rheumatism, arthritis and neuritis than O-JIB-WA Bitters. For over 35 years this famous old herb medicine has been tested and readily accepted because of its proven merit.

HERE ARE THE FACTS! No medicine being sold today for rheumatism and arthritis has received such public acclaim and enthusiastic recommendation by its users than O-JIB-WA BITTERS. The reason for this is because O-JIB-WA is not just a pain desecrator as are so many tablets on the market today, containing primarily opium and salicylates. O-JIB-WA works through the blood stream and loosens up the stiff joints to relieve the distressing pain which the stiffness has caused. O-JIB-WA is really wonderful, and would be glad to recommend O-JIB-WA BITTERS to others, as it has done so many times for me in helping me to get on my feet and to live a normal life.

Couldn't Walk - Had To Be Carried A year ago last April, the bottom of my feet became very sore, and soon after this my ankles began to swell and pain. The pain moved up to my knees and back. The swelling was so bad I used to wonder how I could get out of bed. I spent a great deal of money on several other treatments for my feet, but they did not help. I was in a wheel chair for over a year. I was confined to my wheel chair, practically an invalid, and the only balm I had

Trunkline Changes In Eastern U. P. Are Indicated

Accounts and studies, made by the highway department over a period of years, indicate the need for changes in state trunklines in the eastern portion of the upper peninsula in the better portion of the highway system, says a recent report made by the department.

The objectives will be accomplished by returning certain portions of M-117 and M-48 to the county road commissions as county roads, when the related trunkline changes have been completed. In all cases the return of certain portions of the present trunklines to the counties has been approved by resolutions of the county road commissions. The City of Newberry officially approved the return of a portion of M-28A to the city. The intersection of M-117 in Mackinac county from near Kipouette to the intersection of US-2 northwesterly to the junction with M-48 east of Rexton, will be returned to Mackinac county, but will be maintained by the state until a new M-48 route is constructed from the intersection with US-2 in the vicinity of Nausbury. M-48 from west of Garnet north to McLeod's Corners at the junction with M-28, will be returned to Mackinac and Lapeere counties. In view of the uncertain weather conditions affecting the preparation of the proposed M-117 trunkline, state maintenance will be continued until May 15, 1950, on this section being returned to the county.

M-117 will be relocated on the route beginning at US-2 one mile south of Engadine, north through Rexton, west of Newberry. This route will traverse a highly developed agricultural area, whereas there are not more than a dozen houses along the entire route of the present location of M-117 and M-48 through Mackinac and Lapeere counties. From Dewey's Corners east for two miles, M-28 provides a connection to present county road 406 running north to Newberry. The county road will become a part of M-117 and be reconstructed from the intersection with M-28 north for two miles, to within one mile of Newberry. When this reconstruction is completed present M-48 from Roberts Corners at M-28 north two miles and west one mile will be returned to Lapeere county. At the same time M-28A, along McMillan avenue in Newberry and west through Dollarville and south to Dewey's Corners at junction with M-28, will also revert to Lapeere county. The portion in the village of Newberry will revert to that village.

Speed Penicillin 'Crops'

Production of penicillin "crops" can be stepped up through X-ray treatment of the molds in a new process patented recently. Boxes of 50,000 to 100,000 roentgen units are applied to mold spores. Though most of the spores are killed, those remaining are newly induced, mutated strains which produce larger "crops."

Copy Of Famed '76 Declaration Being Featured At U-M

King George III never saw John Hancock's signature on the American Declaration of Independence, even though Hancock did write his name large enough so the King "could read it without his spectacles."

Nobody in England saw the original copy of the Declaration of Independence, as a matter of fact, because the document was kept in the United States, where it is now exhibited in the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C. The copy of the Declaration which did go to England is now in the Clements Library of the University of Michigan. The story of how it got to England was told over the University's FM radio station, WUOM, in one of a series of broadcasts entitled "Treasures Off The Shelf."

Howe Got Copy

At the time the Declaration was written, Sir William Howe was organizing a campaign against the American rebels under George Washington. Forces of both the British and American armies were massed on Long Island. Somehow, while waiting for the strategic moment to launch an attack, Howe heard about the Declaration of Independence and either made or received from someone else a handwritten copy of the document. Howe immediately sent his copy to England to Lord George Germain, the British secretary of state for the American colonies. Germain in turn attempted to present the copy to George III, but the King, for one reason or another, refused to receive it. Legend has it that the King was physically unable to touch the paper—that it was literally "too hot to handle." At any rate, the document was retained in Lord Germain's personal files and never became a part of official British records.

Several years ago the Clements Library of the University of Michigan acquired the private papers of Lord Germain, and among them was this copy of the Declaration of Independence—the copy which actually took to England the news of the American Revolution.

LICENSES FOR ICE FISHING PRINTED

Agents To Have Supply Before Christmas; Changes Noted In Digest

With ice fishing expected to start in earnest next month, the conservation department announces that over a million and a half 1950 fishing licenses will soon be on the way to 3,700 agents throughout the state. All license agents are scheduled to have a supply before Christmas.

New fishing licenses will be required starting January 1, the department reminds anglers. The initial printing order was for 1,600,000 licenses, 10,000 more than last year, and included 1,200,000 resident licenses, 250,000 nonresident 10-day licenses and 250,000 nonresident annual licenses. There is no change in the license fee. Resident fishermen will continue to pay $1.50, nonresident $2 for the 10-day and $3 for the annual license.

Changes Marked

In the 1950 fish law digest, copy of which anglers may secure when they buy their licenses, regulation changes (which were effective September 23, 1948) are printed in boldface type for easy checking. Waters designated open to taking rainbow trout in September, October and November are not listed. List may be obtained or checked with the local conservation officer.

Some of the changes to be noted in the new digest: Elimination of the six-inch size limit on pan fish (bluegills, sunfish, perch, and rock bass and warmouth bass) which permits anglers to keep any length fish in this category, but not more than the legal limit of 25 in any combination per day or in possession of which not more than 15 may be bluegills.

Deer Hunting in Pennsylvania

A million deer hunters comb Pennsylvania's woodlands each fall. Since 1941 they've driven away with 273,446 dead deer. Despite this, 60,000 Pennsylvania deer probably will starve this winter. This is not unusual, nor exclusive with Pennsylvania. Michigan loses 10 per cent to 70 per cent of its fawn crop this way annually. And—though a hunter may spend all day in the woods without seeing a deer—a 1947 survey by three outstanding biologists showed 30 of the 48 states are bothed by deer-crowding.

Penney Company Giving Employees Christmas Bonus

The board of directors of the J. C. Penney company has authorized a special payment of an amount equal to two weeks' pay for all full-time associates who have been employed for the full year of 1949 and on a proportionate basis for extra and part-time associates and for those employed less than a year.

All Penney associates throughout the company share in this payment except those who are members of the management staff and whose earnings are determined by the company's long-standing profit-sharing plan.

U-M Drama Centers Around Burgoynes Invasion Of 1776

A battle-scarred veteran of an attempted British invasion of New York state during the American Revolution is on display this week in the University of Michigan Clements Library.

The veteran in this case is a pocket-size book entitled "Devout Christian's Companion." It was printed in London in 1783, and is entitled to a place in the Clements Library's collection of rare books and manuscripts of American history because of an inscription on the flyleaf. The inscription reads: "I took this book off one of Burgoyne's soldiers . . . Oct. 11, 1777."

Radio actors at the University are telling the story of this little volume in one of a weekly series of broadcasts entitled "Treasures Off the Shelf." These dramatic programs are all based on little-known events of American history as revealed in the collections of the Clements Library. They are broadcast over the University's PM station, WUOM, and over 21 other stations in Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana.

In Soldier's Pocket

The "Devout Christian's Companion" began its long journey in England in the pocket of some British soldier who was a part of the invasion force under General Burgoyne. These troops were sent from England to Quebec, beginning an invasion of the rebellious colonies from that point.

Fort Ticonderoga in New York fell to the British redcoats without a shot being fired, because the Americans abandoned it and retreated southward. The first battle of the invasion came near Hubbardston, in Vermont, where the British defeated a small rebel force. But from that point on, it was a different story. From the southern tip of Lake Champlain, the invading British began a march to Albany which should have required only three days time. Instead, three months passed before they reached Saratoga in New York State.

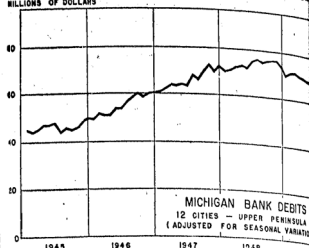

Constant raids by the Americans cut off the British supply line, and sickness and hunger spread through the British camps. In October, when the regulars met the American rebels in battle before Saratoga, their force had already been cut in half by deaths from disease and from the frequent skirmishes. Burgoyne and his whole army surrendered—and that ended the British invasion from the north, intended to halt the Revolution in its second year.

Found in Store

The "Devout Christian's Companion" became the property of an obscure American soldier, Jesse Banister, who participated in the Battle of Saratoga, 1777. There is no record of the book's whereabouts from then until 1947, when the Clements Library bought it from a Connecticut book store.

U. P. Bank Debts Continue to Decline

ANN ARBOR—Bank debts, regarded as the most inclusive measure of business activity, continued to decline during October in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, as indicated in a chart prepared by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Michigan.

The Bureau reports the decline fits the influence of the strike on mining operations. Below is a chart showing the woodworking and related districts.

Mr. and Mrs. Vartin Guidebeck and daughter, Ruth Ann, returned Friday from Deer River, Minn., where they attended the funeral of a brother-in-law, man Schneider.

Winter's Official Arrival Scheduled For December 21

Interest in astronomy reaches its highest peak each December, according to Dr. Hazel M. Losh, assistant professor of astronomy at the University of Michigan.

The official arrival of winter, the appearance of some of the most beautiful stars in the heavens and the never-ending mystery of the Christmas star help to arouse the interest of both the amateur and professional astronomer, she reports.

For the record, winter will arrive officially at 11:24 p. m. on Wednesday, December 21, when the sun enters the winter solstice. The shortest day of the year occurs then but this also means that the sun will be heading northward again after dropping more than 23 degrees south of the equator.

"The mystery of the Christmas star still men's thought and imagination," Dr. Losh says. "Every-one is familiar with the story of how a bright star directed the wise men, bearing gifts for the newborn Christ, to Bethlehem. But the astronomical information is too incomplete and the data not entirely certain for any definite conclusions to be drawn as to the identity of this star."

Venus is mentioned most frequently since it is in a favored position for the Christmas season, the University astronomer reports. During the month, Venus will be a "marvelously beautiful and brilliant" object in the southwest twilight and will reach its greatest brilliance on Christmas night.

"Besides Venus, a bright meteor, a bright comet, a new star or nova or an unusual grouping of two or more planets have been suggested as other possibilities as the Christmas star 1,949 years ago," Dr. Losh says. This year, Venus passed just to the south of Jupiter on the night of December 6, providing an unusual attraction in the heavens.

While there will be many beautiful stars in the December sky, Dr. Losh calls particular attention to the Northern Cross which will be standing upright in the west at around 9 p. m. on Christmas Eve.

Walter G. Wilson, of Moran, former forest ranger here, visited in Manistique Tuesday.
