The winless Emeralds, defeated by a past Neagunee team here last Friday, 20-6, will be facing a tough foe that trumped over previously unbeaten Marquette last Friday, 42-6. They have won two, lost one and tied one.

Manistique played a strong game against the rugged Miners.

ers, who are now 3-1 for the season, but once again trouble in getting their offense going, scoring only when they were backed, 20-0.

Neagunee got their first TD in the first period as Bruce Lahti returned a punt 50 yards to the Manistique 11. Darryl Waara went over from the one two plays later for the score, but the conversion pass failed and it was 6-0.

Their second TD came in the second quarter, in a 10-play march from their own 28. Richard Duclou went 11 yards for the score and a pass for the conversion was complete this time, making it 14-0 Miners at the halftime.

Manistique held the visitors during the third period, but Neagunee got on the scoreboard again the fourth quarter when Waara went over from the one again. The run for conversion fell again, 6-0.

The Emeralds found their opportunity for a score moments later, as quarterback Kendall Nelson pitched a 39-yard scoring strike to Dave Mickelson.

The pass for the conversion fell short, and that was the scoring for the evening, 20-6.

LaPointe singled out the defensive work of Jeff Poulain, John Adams, Keith Aldrich and John Clarke as bright spots for the evening. A sobering note was the loss of sophomore line-man David Waters, who broke his leg in a pileup in the second quarter.

Nelson was the leading ground-gainer for the Emeralds, with 33 yards in eight carries. He also completed six of 12 passes for 42 yards.

New Deer Management Units

These 98 permanent deer management units were established this year by the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) by further refining its program, keying to Michigan's deer herd. For hunters, the new system is slightly different from last year's. As shown here, unit numbers and boundaries will remain essentially the same from year to year. The plan, which will promote more flexibility in deer regulations because these rules can be better tailored to local situations by working with more, but smaller management units. The stabilized units will allow DNR game men to make better year-to-year comparisons of the kill and hunter success in each area and provide more accurate guidelines to work from in shaping deer hunting regulations. Each of the new unit's ownership of land, cover types, land-use patterns, and climatic zone were carefully weighed to form close-knit and clearly defined management tracts which, as such, will also lend themselves to effective wildlife habitat improvement work.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Selwachow, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Salo, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hoholik and the club steward. Ticket deadlines is Friday evening, Sept. 25.

Frosh grid event set

Manistique will host its annual Freshman Football Festival next Wednesday at A.P. Hall stadium at 7 p.m. Munsing, Newberry and Gladstone freshmen teams have been invited to join the Manistique squad in presenting the event, which includes various game situations and formations. Guilio Canale, assistant athletic director at Northern Michigan University, will be the speaker at the evening luncheon following the stadium events. The luncheon will be held in the main gym.

PP&K near the deadline

Time is running out for Manistique area boys to register in the Punt, Pass and Kick Competition. This competition, now in its ninth year, is open to boys 8 through 13 and is absolutely free. They will be competing for 18 handsome all-metal trophies to be awarded during the local competition which are sponsored by Alex Creighton Co. and Manistique Jaycees.

Contestants will be competing against boys in their own age group in three football skills—punting, passing and kicking. Gold trophies will be awarded to the first place winners of each age group, silver to the second place winners, and bronze to the third place winners. There is no body contact and participating does not affect a boy's amateur standing.

Registration closes Oct. 10, so all boys 8 through 13 are urged to go with their dad or legal guardian to registration headquarters at Alex Creighton Co.

Everything is free and each boy gets a copy of the PPA&K Tips Book which contains stories and tips by Don Merethith, Mike Clark of the Dallas Cowboys and Billy Ladridge of the Atlanta Falcons; and an introduction by Don Shula, the coach of the Baltimore Colts.

The local competition is scheduled to be held at A.P. Hall Stadium on Oct. 11 at 2 p.m. Local first place winners then go on to Zone and then, possibly, District, Area, Division, and National contests where they compete for more trophies.

Also, All District winners go with their parents to area competitions held in NFL team stadiums. The 12 National finalists compete during half-time in the annual NFL Play-Off Game in the Orange Bowl in Miami, Florida. They and their parents also take an exclusive tour of Cape Kennedy, the history-making site of the Apollo moon shots, and the Air Space Museum.

Punt, Pass & Kick is a nationwide program that is sponsored nationally by Ford Dealers and the National Football League.

The Fair Labor Standards Act, administered by the U.S. Department of Labor, protects the educational opportunities of rural youngsters by prohibiting the employment of children under 16 in farm work during school hours.

School social worker plays vital role in education

The School Social Work Program is one of the pulled personnel services offered by the Delta-Schoolcraft Intermediate School District to assist teachers and other school staff members in understanding of pupils and to give help to those pupils who are not profiting from the school program.

In planning an adequate instructional program for every pupil, teachers need information about each child. For some students, more intensive study and remediation is needed than can be accomplished in the classroom situation. The school social worker is concerned with such pupils of all ages as are having difficulty with personal and social adjustment in the school, home, and/or community. It is the purpose of the school social work service to help pupils improve their utilization of school and community experiences, as well as to assist parents, school staff and community to understand and to help children through a wide variety of programs and methods.

The school social worker works cooperatively with other members of the school team; the classroom teacher, principal, school psychologist, nurse, counselor, curriculum consultant, and other school staff members in studying and planning for the pupils' growth toward more satisfactory adjustment. The school social worker complements the work of the members of the school team and works cooperatively with them.

The school social work services function through written referrals originated by the teacher, discussed with the principal and the parent. The school social worker, through a wide variety of assessment and intervention techniques, endeavors to help pupils, school staff, parents and community to identify adverse conditions, needed services, and resources to plan and execute programs for and/or with all these groups. Because the school social work service is concerned with developing and maintaining a school, family, and community environment which fosters the maximum development of students, the school social worker serves as a resource person in school and community health activities. It also works with the school staff on curriculum planning and the general instructional program in relation to specific needs of pupils.

The school social work service deals with personal and family information which is of assistance in helping the student attain a more appropriate adjustment in his school program. Because of the confidential nature of this work the case records are maintained in a confidential locked file. To assure that confidentiality is maintained in each case, information concerning the child is not released without the written consent of the parent or guardian.

Personal adjustment problems - aggressive tendencies, daydreaming, emotional instability, fears, nervousness, unhappiness, withdrawing behavior.

Physical problems - problems of general health, physical handicaps, peculiarities causing a feeling of rejection or ridicule.

Social adjustment problems - irresponsibility, cheating, stealing, over-suggestibility, defiance, lack of friends.

Personal adjustment problems - aggressive tendencies, daydreaming, emotional instability, fears, nervousness, unhappiness, withdrawing behavior.

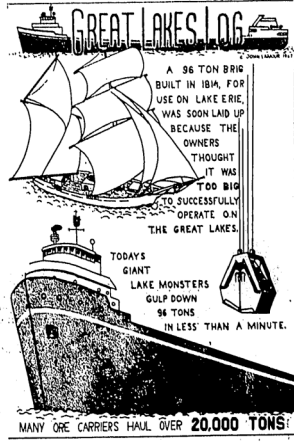

Physical problems - problems of general health, physical handicaps, peculiarities causing a feeling of rejection or ridicule.

This classification while not complete, indicates some of the types of problems which are referred by teachers, principals, parents and other agencies or individuals. Emphasis is made on the need for early identification and early referral of the child with the problem.

Although the school social worker is called upon to work with children of all grade levels, the placement upon intermediate programs can be a challenge to the child treated at that age as possible.

Obviously, the school worker is not alone in the pupils' referral process. Students, medical, psychological, and psychiatric help are needed. In some instances, the school worker is not only a source and must be for such help. The school worker is also a challenge to the teacher. In many instances, the school worker is called upon to work with children of all grade levels, the placement upon intermediate programs can be a challenge to the child treated at that age as possible.

Polynesian reefs teem with strange fish life

One of nature's strangest partnerships operates in warm waters that swirl among coral reefs.

One partner, the sea anemone, franks among the simplest marine forms. The other, the clown fish, wears an unusual protective coat of mucus that makes the cooperation possible.

Sea anemones carpet a reef like a jungle plank, their poisonous tentacles prepared to paralyze unsuspecting intruders. The gaudy clown fish comfortably lounges among anemone's branches, turing other creatures to their death upon waving tentacles.

Underwater creatures such as these engage in a constant struggle for survival around the world. The drama unfolds most colorfully in the clear blue waters of Polynesia.

Picturesque reefs and calm lagoons around Tahiti and its neighboring Pacific Islands were explored in "Polynesian Adventure," an hour-long color special on CBS Television Network April 15.

The documentary was produced by the National Geographic Society in association with Metromedia Producers Corporation, Alexander Scourby narrates.

An almost limitless variety of living jewels darts amid the Polynesian reefs, a submerged landscape of awesome beauty.

Each square inch of the coral metropolis teems with life. It ranges from the simplest - the Papsu clam, "sensitive" to the slightest change in light or kind of movement - to the most fearsome - the mania ray, a prehistoric giant.

Unchanged for millions of years, the mania ray, or devilfish, can crush man or boat with powerful pectoral fins. But its major prey is the tiny shrimp.

Every movement of the mania suggests power. Occasionally it may leap from the water a ton or more of fish erupting from the sea, then crash back with a deafening thunderclap.

Recalled one adventurous fisherman who harpooned a mania ray: "The devilfish came topside as if hurled by a submarine explosion. One of its great battle fins flashed out, sending gallons of water over us and splintering the harpoon pole against the boat's side as if it had been a match stem. A 10 foot pectoral wing struck the water with a noise that carried a mile."

The duel between man and monster lasted almost five hours before the devilfish succumbed.

In contrast, the tiny wrasse lives a gentle life in this deadly marine world. Wrassee, "nature's" tooth-brushes, serve other creatures. They establish "cleaning stations" where fishes, big and little, converge to have parasites picked from their teeth, unhealthy tissues gnawed away, and bacterial infections dutifully removed from fins, gills, and even eye surfaces.

While working inside the jaws of their often-terrifying customers, wrassee get a meal and - usually - immunity from danger.

Plan parking curb at Thompson site

Vehicle parking at the boat ramp beach launching site that hindered the launching of boats at the Thompson access site has come to the attention of State Police and Conservation Officers in that area.

In accordance with the rules and regulations governing the use and occupancy of state lands, the director of the Department of Natural Resources has recently signed an order prohibiting the parking of cars in this immediate area. Boats must be unloaded at the launching site and the cars removed to the parking area immediately thereafter.

Environment important, MSU specialist reminds

Michigan communities usually attract thousands of tourists who will have to be taken care of during the next few weeks, according to John Hodge, district resource development leader in Michigan University's Cooperative Conservation Service, stems from population.

At the close of the next year, says Hodge, "we'll have a nation of 350 million people, and that means adding to the present population, the equivalent of 15 cities the size of New York or 65 cities the size of Washington, D.C."

Hodge says that America will have the same number of square miles as it does today—11 million—but will be using 11 times more land for livestock and for various industries and business enterprises.

The same amount of fresh water will fall from the sky as today, says Hodge, "but we'll use 11 times as much of it as we're now using. And we'll need from the same thin of topsoil that feeds us today, we'll need 60 percent more."

Hodge's attention leader claims that although Americans will be spending much more by the year 2000, they will be working with four-week vacations being the rule. At the same time, the population will be mobile, with three times as many automobiles as today, and thousands of miles of new highways and roads.

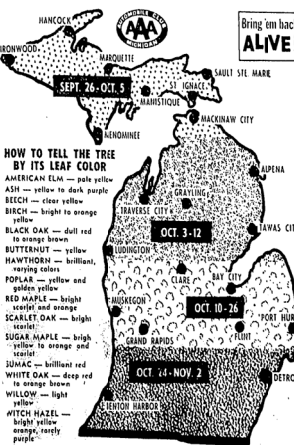

Hodge reports predict that almost completely urbanized America with nearly 300 million people crowded into 10 percent of the continental land mass, leaving mid-hill type tryside on holidays and vacations, revisiting the solitudes and ecology of nature's most beautiful creations—if only by weight of numbers. Water will be dirtier, air more full of smog, and developers will have bulldozed and substituted many of the beauty spots of today.

To prevent the wholesale degradation of their quality environments, Hodge urges communities to undertake basic land use planning and to build nances to suit local conditions. "The use of effective ordinances and other controls is one of the most realistic ways to preserve quality in local environments," he says. "But do it now—before it's too late!"

Time Guide for Color Season

Fall color show about to begin

Mother Nature is about to begin her annual coloring of Michigan, and much of North America.

Fall foliage in an area beyond the Canadian border, from the Great Smoky Mountains to the Rockies creates a spectacular color display unparalleled anywhere in the world.

The annual leaf-changing show is a virtuoso performance that only Nature could produce, the National Geographic Society says.

This eye-catching pageant in full color is at its best in portions of the United States and Canada because those areas have just the right combination of tree types, climate, and soil.

An essential ingredient is a great variety of deciduous trees the kind whose broad leaves turn color, and drop in autumn. The majority of these are hardwoods and they are most abundant in North America.

The coloration process works best where there is real Indian summer—clear, bright days and moderately cool nights in proper proportion.

Reduced daylight hours, not drops in temperature, set off the changes in leaves. The shortening of the days signals a tree to slow down its growth and enter a dormant period.

The roots respond by curtailing the flow of sap—a combination of water and nutrients—to the leaves, which slowly lose their firm connection with the twigs and branches.

At the same time, things begin happening to chlorophyll, the green pigment in leaves. No longer renewed by the tree's

Ex-resident hits 100th year

A former Manistique resident was honored at special 100th birthday party Sept. 7 at the Barry County Medical Facility in Hastings, Mich.

Mrs. D.E. (Minnie) Seller, whose husband was a veterinarian here early in the century, was honored. She has been patient at the Facility since 1967, but is described as being "very alert," and reads a lot, writes letters, and enjoys company.

She was married to Dr. D.E. Seller on Feb. 23, 1888, in Decaturville, Mich., and the young married couple moved to Manistique, where Dr. Seller cared for horses in the lumber camps owned by the Chicago Lumber Co.

Present at the party were her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Treeland; two sons, Earl and Thomas and members of their families, including four great-grandchildren. A birthday cake, ice cream and favors were enjoyed.

Mrs. Seller received many gifts, cards, calls and messages, including letters of congratulation from President Nixon and Gov. Milliken.

"Sitting and Talking..." That best describes the speech and hearing program of the Delta Schoolcraft Intermediate School District.

For the past three weeks, David Footenight, coordinator of the program, along with Mrs. Carol Cleveland and Miss Leon Dougherty, of the intermediate staff, and Miss Diem, of the elementary staff, have been evaluating the speech of all school children from kindergarten through the 12th grade in the two-county area. This is being done in an effort to determine the number of children that are in need of some type of help with their speech.

A typical day would involve a conversation with about 200 students each. In addition to determining the number of children with speech problems, Mrs. Hilmi Lepisto, the teacher-coordinator of the intermediate staff, has been attempting to discover those pre-school children that are deaf or severely hard-of-hearing.

The screening being conducted is a necessary first step in trying to determine the probable number of staff members necessary to meet the needs of the community.

The first specimens of the modern Chihuahua reportedly were found about 1850 in the Mexican state of the same name, the National Geographic Society says. The tiny dog rapidly gained popularity, and some brought more than their weight in gold.

Health club starts drive

The annual membership drive for the Medical Health Careers Club of Manistique High School gets underway today (Thursday) when the club will meet in room 200 at 7 p.m. Books, brochures and pamphlets will be distributed to incoming members at the meeting and a question and answer period planned. Club by-laws will be discussed and suggestions accepted on program plans, field trips, and fund raising ideas.

Some of the proposed programs for the coming year include movies on health careers, panel discussions by representatives from health careers, and talks by graduates in the paramedical careers. A special program for high school students and their mothers, with assistance from the American Cancer Society, is being planned to educate all on breast and uterine cancer self-examination.

The Medical Health Careers Club has been invited to become a part of the Michigan Health Council, while remaining under the auspices of the Michigan League for Nursing. John A. Doherty, executive director of the Michigan Health Council, has stated that he feels the club help familiarize the youth with the more than 150 opportunities offered in health careers; the scholastic requirements for admissions to schools; the training period, tuition and scholarships available, and employment opportunities waiting at completion of the course of study.

Doherty has suggested that the club organize an auxiliary sponsor this year, and plans for this are being advanced with the aid of George Hensley, program director at Marquette University.

1970 Hemi-Cuda.

This year, here are 10 new Barracudas. And we've changed the looks substantially. We've packed a 426 Hemi engine under a "Shaker" hood on one of them and called it the Hemi-Cuda. However you look at it, our Barracuda is all-new. We've moved it two inches closer to the ground. Pushed the wheels farther apart on our standard torsion-bar suspension. Put a tough optional bumper on the front that comes in most point colors. And given the interior the design and comfort of a jet cockpit. If you want a car that makes it... Plymouth makes it.

1970 Sport Fury Brougham.

One of 28 Fury models with a new wide stance. It's big enough inside to carry six adults in comfort. It's plush. But the price is still Plymouth. With a front seat that has individual adjustments for the driver and passenger, center armrests, and a reclining back on the passenger's side. Of course, the carpeting is thick, the headlights are hidden, and the price is still Plymouth. Whether you like your luxury in small packages, or as big as a 1970 Sport Fury... Plymouth makes it.

Area needs are outlined

Industrial development, better roads, more aid to education financing assistance for pollution control, tourism development—these were some of the topics covered by local representatives when Gov. Milliken's Fact-Finding Mission visited Manistique last Wednesday.

Richard Whitner, director of the State Commerce Department, his assistant, Ward Whitman, and Jean Worth, retired editor of the Escanaba Press, were in town to hear community leaders relate their needs and problems and offer suggestions as to how the state can help this area and the Upper Peninsula.

Speaking in the morning session were Frank S. Hoholik, president of the Manistique Pup and Paper Co., Ralph Gilliam and Nat Dellis, representing the Top O'Lake Michigan Chamber of Commerce. Afternoon speakers were Edwin E. Wuehler, superintendent of the Manistique Area Schools; Manistique City Manager Robert Noe, and David M. Kelly of WTIG radio, discussing communications and transportation.

"Total involvement of our people" in an effort to attract new industry was urged by Hoholik. He cited a poor attitude of some people and a lack of know-how in attracting industry as two major drawbacks.

"A wigwam economy cannot survive in this age," he commented.

Dellis cited the need for good, maintained safe state highways, supply the economic heartbeat of the community," pointing out it would aid both tourism and industry.

The bulk of complaints that came from the 15,000 visitors to the Chamber of Commerce office this summer centered around highways, Dellis said, adding that US-2 was a "death trap."

Gilliam urged the state help the area develop a "four-season" tourist economy by helping the Michigan Tourist Council with funds for literature, films, and participation in metropolitan area travel shows. Ontario has benefited from the reduction of tolls on the Mackinac Bridge, he pointed out, because of their increased promotion since that reduction.

Vocational educational needs also hinge around increased state financial participation, Wuehler told the visitors. The Manistique school district is twice the size of Macomb County, he pointed out. The district runs 1,200 miles of bus routes every day. He cited the case of 6,600 students who travel 95 miles by bus to get to Manistique, they are bused to Escanaba twice weekly for vocational education classes, an additional 45 miles, making a 180-mile round trip these days.

He also cited 1980 census figures that showed 45 per cent of the county's adults had not progressed beyond the 8th grade, and 68 per cent have not completed high school.

Until this year the district's only vocational program, for which they received outside financial assistance was in home economics, and the only assistance received was a matching grant of $9,000 for equipment. This year the district has added a co-op program in distributive and office education, as well as the Bay de Noc College classes for about 200 students.

The district receives no added funds for this letter service, he pointed out, and added that even this experiment was on shaky ground as late as last year because the Legislature had not passed the appropriation for community colleges. Furthermore, there is no insurance the district will be able to continue the program beyond this year.

"We are only accommodating 100 students (in vocational education) and 40 of these with considerable difficulty," he said. "This provides service for only a small fraction of the 70 per cent who end their education with high school."

Wuehler urged that the state establish, with certainty, that community colleges will be funded for high school vocational courses; that the level of funding for state programs be established with certainty; that greater flexibility be permitted in the guidelines that allow a district to receive state funds; provide money for transportation for vocational programs; designate the Manistique Area Schools as a Vocational Center; provide funds for building, construction and equipment and additional financial assistance for operation of the program; recognize in any state aid formula that operational mileage alone is not a true measure of effort, which is rather a ratio between the available financial resources and the amount of dollars raised for all educational purposes.

Noe, in his presentation pointed out that it is costing the city more now to treat sewage than treating water, and that the city faces a major financial effort to comply with the Department of Natural Resources decree to remove 80 per cent of the phosphorus from its waste water. With $1.5 million in water and sewer bonds now outstanding, it will be extremely difficult to add one half a million more dollars in debt, he pointed out. Water bills would have to be raised by 50 per cent to merely meet the annual operating expenses of $40,000 for such an operation, he estimated.

Noe said that a water filtration plant probably costing another half million dollars, will also be necessary within the next five years.

The Water Resources Commission "turned a deaf ear and acted like they could care less" about the city's economic problems, he told the visitors. He said the city wants to work with local industry to try and help solve their problems along with the city's, but "We need time and the state is not about to give it to us."

"We have to be realistic," he said. "We can live with industry and still have the beauty of the woods around us. It's all very well to write long articles on the beauties of the woods but you need paper to write it on, and a paper mill to make the paper."

He said he hoped the state could come up with more money for the city to help stem the flow of people to the environs where people do not have to worry about pollution controls.

Kelly lauded the lowering of the tolls on the Mackinac Bridge but said, "Repairs and temporary improvements in the area of roads will in the long run only add to our transportation problems, not solve them. A high concentration of planning and funding is necessary to provide the Upper Peninsula and Manistique in particular with highways sufficient to meet the demands of future vacationers, new industries, and our expanding local population."

He pointed out that although in 1968 the U.P. received only .8 of one per cent of the State Highway Department's budget, better than half the Michigan residents visiting the U.P. are from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

He urged backing of the current bill to put 25 per cent of the state highway monies north of Tontwine 16; liaison with the

Seney Refuge area closed to goose hunting this year

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources Commission has approved the continuation of the goose hunting closure around Seney National Wildlife Refuge in the Seney-Germansh area. The 95,456 acre refuge itself is closed to waterfowl hunting, although it is open for big and small game hunting.

Recommendations for the fourth year of the closure came from Federal and State wildlife biologists concerned with the status of the local goose flock.

In addition to the Seney closure the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has ordered a closure of all waterfowl hunting on the 51,250 acre Tennessee National Wildlife Refuge in Western Tennessee. This refuge, previously open for duck and goose shooting, is the primary wintering ground for the Seney goose flock.

Goose hunting was first prohibited in the Seney vicinity in 1966 after the return of only 500 Canada geese in the spring of that year indicated that certain protective measures were needed to assure perpetuation of the flock. A combination of disease, predation and heavy local hunting pressure were problems responsible for the decline.

Several factors promoted biologists to recommend another year's closure of goose hunting. Even though nesting surveys this year showed nesting pairs increased from 211 to 243, up 15 percent over the previous two years, the increase was not as large as had been anticipated. The returning spring population was nearly 1,000.

After a successful hatch of nearly 1,100 goslings, 50 percent were killed unexpectedly in mid-June by bird malaria (Leucocytozoon). Last year bird malaria killed 730 goslings or 71 percent of the hatch. Because most Canada geese do not nest until they are two years old the loss of 1988 production will not be realized in the nesting population until the spring of 1970. The departing fall flock is estimated at 1,400. Thus it is important to protect the remaining breeding birds from excessive hunting until to reach a nesting population sufficient to increase and maintain itself against the combined forces of disease, predation and hunting pressure.

In spite of the losses from bird malaria the refuge flock

Meeting in the Schoolcraft County Sportsmen's Club, delegates passed the following resolutions:

To return to the one buck law;

To open the ruffed grouse and woodcock seasons on Oct. 1 instead of Sept. 15 as is now the case;

To restore the bounty on foxes;

To close Marquette County to beaver trapping;

To prohibit all net fishing in Huron Bay, Lake Superior;

To increase small game license fees by 50 cents and earmark the additional money for payment of bounties;

To leave coyote bounty fees unchanged;

To remove the creel limit on whitefish on Lake Superior (it is now seven daily);

To continue stocking the Great Lakes with lake trout, but to plant more of the fish off shore;

To urge the Upper Peninsula's congressional delegation to support funding for the Great Lakes sea lamprey control program;

To allow bait fishermen to fish for bait in Keweenaw Bay and to place them under a separate $25 license instead of requiring them to pay $50 for a commercial fishing license;

To prohibit the setting of traps on beaver dams;

To urge the state to step up habitat development on state-owned lands and seek to encourage improvement of habitat on privately owned lands through consultant services and other inducements;

To redouble efforts by the NMSA opposing restrictive laws governing sporting arms and ammunition;

To prohibit private development within 16 feet of the mean water line of Great Lakes waters, except in established harbor and moorage areas.

Delegates treated a proposal to open the deer hunting season on the Saturday nearest Nov. 15.

They also turned down a proposal urging the state to set aside more primitive and semi-primitive areas. A proposal to increase coyote bounty payments to $30 for males and $35 for females died for lack of support.

As an aside, Kelly urged state help in efforts to secure central gas for the area, saying that the Michigan State Gas Co. was using service to this area as a wedge to gain support for their requested rate increase.

He also leveled criticism at deer hunting regulations and the shooting of dogs. "I'm not against good deer herd management, but I don't like wholesale slaughter," he said, adding that he thought he spoke for the majority of hunters in the U.P.

He said he had asked the DNR to require hunters purchasing licenses to report if they had shot a deer last year, where and what sex. He said this would be far more accurate than the "fender surveys" now taken along the highway. He said state officials told him they could not put the questionnaire on the licenses because the licenses were already printed, but added that one official told him also that the method would not work because hunters would not take the truth.

"I am not anti-conservation," Mack said. "I love it here in the Upper Peninsula, my family was raised here, I want to stay here and have my children stay here... and I will do anything to make it better."

Rep. Charles Varnum of Manistique was also present at the banquet and thanked the club for its support in clarifying regulations on the snagging of coho, and other conservation measures.

Watch that SORE THROAT!

Sometimes a minor sore throat can be extremely dangerous to a child when neglected. It could very well be one of the early symptoms of rheumatic fever. This disease actually causes more deaths than polio did before Dr. Saulk.

Rheumatic fever is caused by the streptococcus germ which can be very readily identified by your family physician. Early diagnosis is a must. First symptoms are the seemingly minor sore throat, mild joint pains and a feeling of fatigue. Don't make the mistake of waiting for the severe stages when the sore throat worsens, sore neck glands, red-swollen joints and a high fever develop. By this time, damage may be done to the heart that is irreparable.

Big Day Theme "Looking Your Best Self." I'm sure all who attended are taking a good look at themselves, their clothes and hair style.

This is a good time of year, too, to take a good look at your wardrobe. It's time to put away summer clothes and drag out what we wore last fall and winter. I wonder how many you'll really wear this year. Did you wear it much last year - or only once or twice? Churches and other organizations are having their sales. This might be a good time to give it to someone who may be able to use it and the organization can raise funds at the same time.

EVENING MEETINGS: A committee of homemakers met last week and we decided to try evening meetings in Manistique so that more of you could come out. We're thinking especially of you who are young homemakers.

Meetings will be on various topics that will be of interest to you - foods, home furnishings, managing your money, etc. We'll be giving you information on each as the time comes and this will be done via my column, elsewhere in your newspaper and by radio.

We hope you can attend and we'll try to make the information very useable to you.

SPICIEST EATERS: I'm not a heavy spice user but I do like to try different kinds and in different ways, don't you? Americans buy more spices than most anybody and this is probably because we're a combination of so many ethnic groups. Each group, coming from a different country, has its own long-remembered native dishes. And we adopt customs of each in some way.

When we were on our trip this summer, we found Finnish food quite bland, and many times quite uninteresting because they are not users of spices. Cardamon in breads is probably the most outstanding and is used in all Scandinavian countries. I've been brought up on it so I like it. We like those we're accustomed to. Our world is getting smaller and we will be trying new spices and herbs. Home is a good place to start developing your new taster!

Priorities needed

Vietnam appraisal

ROBBEN FLEMING AND JOHN S. KNIGHT are not what, by any stretch of the imagination, might be called unpatriotic, fuzzy-thinking, wild-eyed revolutionaries.

Fleming, a noted scholar, is the relatively new president of the University of Michigan. Knight is the head of the great chain of Knight newspapers that includes the Detroit Free Press. They are leaders in this society of ours, and because of their stature, command wide respect when they speak out on national issues.

Both chose to speak out on Vietnam this past week end—Fleming at an anti-Vietnam war rally held at the University, and Knight in his "Editor's Notebook" column in Sunday's Free Press. They spoke their pieces in different ways, but together they echoed the increasing sentiments of millions of Americans.

They spoke about Vietnam, and what they said deserves repeating.

Wrote Knight: "Thus, the United States overcame its dislike of colonialism and elected to support the French against the Vietnamese guerillas on the theory that France could block communist expansion in Indochina.

"This was a grievous error which led eventually to the commitment by President Johnson of more than half a million American servicemen to the jungles and rice paddies of Vietnam.

"Had we not become so involved—even in the early years of the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations—Indochina may well have resolved its own inner conflicts without outside intervention.

"But, say the supporters of the Vietnam war, Communism has to be stopped somewhere. By this time, I would think, it has been amply demonstrated that you can't stop an ideology with bombs and gunfire or 'win the hearts' of nationalists wanting to control their own country."

Fleming was even more direct.

"I do not see how one can avoid the conclusion that our present involvement in Vietnam is a colossal mistake," he said.

He suggested an announced unilateral decision to withdraw from Vietnam, massive troop withdrawals of all but 100,000 men by the end of 1970, and advice to our friends in Southeast Asia that we will make these moves and that we must therefore re-evaluate our position in that area of the world.

Fleming said one result of the war has been ".... the alienation the war creates between youth and their elders."

He decried the "economic, human and spiritual costs" of continuing the war, and the inequity in which college students are deferred from military service "while those too poor to go to college are channeled into the military."

"We see daily the desperate need for funds at home and abroad in the cause of peace and human betterment. The whole experience contributes to a condition in which the war and the weapons of war dominate our economy to the detriment of all of us."

Candidate Nixon said last year he had a plan for ending the war. What he evidently forgot to say was the plan was the same as Lyndon Johnson's. His indecision and inactions are unfortunately echoed by a silent and passive Congress.

It is time to stop the fruitless negotiations at Paris, to stop playing numbers games on troop withdrawals, to stop temporizing on whether to bomb or not to bomb, and to stop being the benefactor of a corrupt and hopeless government that does not represent in any way the will of the people of Vietnam.

It is time for us to get out, and it is time we let our President and our Congressmen know that this is how we feel.

It is quite easy for editors and other fuzzy-thinking people to fume and fulminate about waste in government and federal spending and pouring billions down the ratholes of welfare and foreign aid; but I am going to take the opposite tack this week and come out in favor of more government spending.

How about that, sports fans? That's about as fearless as opposing adequate rainfall and mom's apple pie. I should qualify this rashness, however, before too many of you get uneasy, and add that I am proposing this increase in parts, rather than in total.

Our government spends several hundred billion dollars each fiscal year, which is a tidy enough sum to do a good many good things. The unfortunate thing is we are spending it on the wrong things.

Less than 10 years ago we made a decision, as a country, to place a man on the moon. We summoned up our vast energies and resources, put our best minds to work on the problem, gave them a big wad of dough and told them to go ahead. Result? Almost-Instant Man on the Moon.

I was just as thrilled as the next person as I watched that fuzzy TV picture of Neil Armstrong making that first step on the moon, and the accomplishments of our space program are enough to make any American swell with pride, as the politicians love to say. So don't sidetrack me about how wonderful the space program is.

But just for instance, what if we took the same amount of dough, summoned up our vast energies and resources, put our best minds to work on the problem, and turned everything loose on water pollution? Or air pollution? Or Welfare? Ghettoes? The farm subsidy? Foreign aid?

The mind boggles. If we chose to do so, we could eliminate pollution of major proportions within a decade. If we chose to do so, we could eliminate the 'dole' theory of welfare and the teeming ghettoes that breed crime and offer equal education to every youngster in the nation.

If we chose to do so, we could find a solution to a farm problem that has us paying farmers not to raise crops on one hand, and trying to find ways and means to raise still more crops on the other hand, all of this while half the world is hungry.

O.K., genius, where do we get the money?

I will be the first to admit that the wise and judicious use of money is not my primary field of excellence, or even study, but it seems simple to me that we have the money and the resources only we're spending them on the wrong things.

The Marshall Plan was supposed to last only three years and cost $12 billion dollars back when it was first proposed in 1945, but foreign aid is still with us today, and our Congress willingly spreads the Yankee dollar far and wide in a seemingly perpetual and useless effort to buy friends and influence people.

We can build a new nuclear attack carrier, and develop a supersonic jet transport that will split all our ear drums, and waste our blood and wealth in propping up a corrupt Vietnamese government that never has been worth saving.

Don't tell me the money isn't there. We're just spending it the wrong way, on the wrong things.

Somehow we lack the conviction, the motivation, the burning desire that would reassign our priorities and our obviously confused system of values.

Our city needs a new water filtration plant. We need to stop polluting Indian Lake and the rivers that give us water. We need to have better schools for our kids, and the kind of education that will prepare them to make a living. We need adequate housing and medical care for our older citizens, and we need a welfare program that is more than ADC payments and surplus foods.

If we put a high enough priority on it, couldn't we conquer cancer and emphysema and muscular dystrophy? Couldn't we build prisons that rebuild men instead of simply confine them, and offer mental health care to any tortured soul that needed it?

We have proven, by putting a man on the moon, that almost any goal we set for ourselves is within reach. Our next step is to somehow convince ourselves that it is time for some re-direction of our national purpose, and time to assign ourselves some priorities that are more meaningful than new atomic weapons or foreign aid or useless wars.

Let's have more federal spending on some things that are worthwhile, and do some pruning on these items that are a blot and a disgrace to our national ideal and heritage.

BY SUPT. EDWIN WUEHLE

HANNAHVILLE REVISITED

The Hannahville Indian Reservation is in the Bark River-Harris School District. It is the home of a number of Potawatomi families. Fred Hahne and I drove there one Saturday not long ago for a Community Action Agency meeting. It was scheduled for the Tribal Community Hall.

I was truly amazed. Five years ago the tribal hall was a run down, unlighted, unheated, paint-peeled building, marred by a profusion of printed four letter words. (The Indians never use it.) Today it is painted neatly, screened, has fluorescent lighting, a dropped paneled ceiling, running water, a veneer interior, an oil burner, a modern kitchen range, asphalt tiled floor, and the Head Start toys are stacked neatly along the walls. We were as comfortable as if we had been meeting in the Recreation Center in Escanaba.

Head Start and other federal monies were used to purchase the materials and equipment. The Indians did all the work.

I asked Mrs. Carl Peppiate, who works with the Indians, if there had been a corresponding change in attitude. I had observed that in addition to being desperately poor, their biggest problem was that they were totally without hope.

"Absolutely, their attitude has changed," replied Mrs. Peppiate. "Last week we had a clean-up meeting for the reservation church. Thirty people showed up for work."

Five years ago it is unlikely that three people would have come. Then there was no hope.

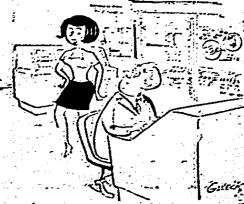

no drive, and no organization.

The work of Community Action has been reflected in the homes. The shacks are gone and mobile homes replace them. The houses which were salvageable have been improved. They now have electricity (and Mr. Hahne and I discussed what a battle that one was.)

The Economic Opportunity Agency often comes in for some rather harsh criticism, usually from people who have not worked with the program and have adopted an oversimplified, erroneous analysis of the problems. "People are poor because they are lazy."

I tried to think how much the critics of Community Action had contributed to improving the lot of the Potawatomies at Hannahville and I couldn't think of a single Indian who was better off because of the critics. I know many who are better off because of the Economic Opportunity Act, Community Action and the people who work with these programs.

This message is brought to you by the following local business establishments in the interest of strengthening community churches:

MANISTIQUE PULP & PAPER CO.

At the entrance to the valley where they buried their kings an ancient and industrious people carved the Sphinx.

This was their idea of God: the body of a lion, suggesting power... the face of a man, suggesting personality... The whole amazing image suggesting their belief in a MIGHTY deity who could be KNOWN.

Today, in our churches, we worship God as Jesus Christ revealed Him: almighty but merciful... knowing and eager to be known... loving man and seeking man's love... saving all who believe in their Saviour — His Son!

Can the ancient Sphinx base any significance for men and women like ourselves who have before us the Gospel and example of Christ?

Only this: As long as it remains, the awesome Sphinx will remind us of man's search for God. Just as our own church bells remind us of our opportunity to know, love, and serve Him!

Surf Sounds

Recognition is something that we all appreciate, and that's why we welcome Schoolcraft County's 4-H leaders for their annual Recognition Banquet tonight (that's Thursday) at the Surf.

Inland Lime and Stone Co. sponsors this event each year, and they deserve a bow from all of us for helping to make this recognition possible. These leaders spend many hours working with these youngsters, and their efforts can be seen each summer when the best projects are displayed at the U.P. State Fair.

We were also busy last week end, helping another young couple—Bill Males and the former Tina Gorsche—greet their guests at their wedding reception Saturday afternoon.

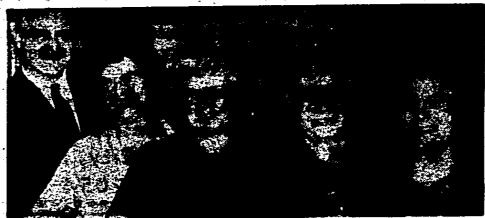

Earlier in the day we had played host to the Lady Elks who were here for the annual U.P. Fall Round-up (and our report is that this was a fine meeting, and that the local lodge members deserve a lot of credit for the work they put in toward it) and their Saturday luncheon was followed by a wig show, put on by Wigs by Lucille.

And speaking of wigs, we're really flipping ours this week with the introduction of our new Italian foods; Papa Nat has been instructing the Surf signorinas on how to pronounce cacciatore and lasagna, and there's been a lot of sampling going on in the kitchen. It's good, too!

So why not take Florence (or whatever her name is) and Rome for a Milan a half mile outside town and take a Turin to the left into the Surf? Your cares will Venice into thin air when you try some of that Italian food!
