"people"are difference, Moffat tells Chamber

Moffat makes a good point? What makes it a town? The difference is that we have small groups of people who give and efforts to help family grow." Moffat, vice president and general manager of Inland Line and Stone Co., spoke at the annual dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at the Fireside last Saturday night. Moffat noted community efforts in Gaylord and Frankfort as examples of what can be done with unified support and enthusiasm. He suggested that this area adopt the popular song from the musical, "Amie, Get-Your-Gun," to read, "Anything you want and industry

Townships losing fire protection

Five area townships have been served notice in the City of Manistique that fire protection service for their areas will be cut off next month unless they enter into a yearly contract for the protection. City Manager Robert Nee told City Council Monday night at his regular meeting that he had mailed notices to officials in Doyle, Manistique, Iliawatha, Ironwood and Thompson townships, informing them of the decision. The letters read: "The City of Manistique is currently extending fire protection service to your areas. This service is becoming in-

Probate vote Tuesday

The question of whether or not Schoolcraft County should join with Alger County to form a new Probate Court district will be decided at a special election next Tuesday. Voters in 42 counties in Michigan will be voting on similar proposals to merge with adjoining counties. The election is a result of Act No. 271, Public Acts of 1969, approved by Gov. Milliken Aug. 11 this year. Voters in both counties must approve the creation of the district before it can take place. If approved, the merger would be effective Jan. 1, 1971, and judges would be elected in the fall of 1970. Any non-attorney judge of probate now serving would be eligible for election as a district probate judge. All other candidates must be attorneys. Under the reorganization plan, the probate judge's salary is set at $20,000 per year, with three-fourths paid by the state and one-fourth by counties in the district. An additional salary, not to exceed the annual legislative allowance for district judges, may be paid by the counties if they desire. The act also directs that the State Supreme Court may assign Probate judges and sets the fees that may be charged in Probate Court.

Students to work for Chamber

Forty Manistique High School students should have a pretty good idea of what the Chamber of Commerce is all about by the time November has come and gone. They are the youngsters enrolled in the new Co-operative Vocational Education program in distribution and office training. Through their respective clubs, the Distributive Education Club and the Office Education Association, they have agreed to participate in Operation JOIN—a membership drive for the Top O'Lake Michigan Chamber of Commerce—a community service project. The drive is scheduled to open Nov. 1, and will last through the month. Thirteen teams of three students each will be canvassing the approximately 250 business establishments in the county, carrying pledge cards for membership in the Chamber. Prizes will be awarded to the winning team. Nat Dellis, Chamber president, spoke to the students last week on the aims and purposes of the organization.

Yule season plans readied

Plans for the Christmas shopping season in Manistique were outlined Tuesday morning at a meeting of the retail division of the Manistique Area Chamber of Commerce. A Christmas parade to mark the start of the season in this area is planned for Friday night, Nov. 28. Most stores will close from 5 to 7 p.m. for the event, then will remain open until 10 p.m. Santa and his elves, band music, and candy for youngsters will be included as part of the parade. Evening hours for Yule shoppers were set, with the stores to be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings the first two weeks of December, and nightly from Dec. 15 through the 23rd. As usual, stores will close at 5 p.m. Christmas Eve.

Mrs. Herbert honored by child aid group

Mrs. J.J. Herbert of Manistique, a long-time trustee of the Michigan Children's Aid Society, received special recognition last Saturday at the 50th anniversary dinner of that organization, held at Marquette. Vern C. Dallquist of Marquette, executive director of Children's Aid and Family Service, made the presentation of a plaque to Mrs. Herbert. Accepting for her was Probate Judge John Paketty. The plaque reads: "For distinguished service to the children of the Upper Peninsula, Children's Aid and Family Service of the Upper Peninsula Board of Directors, Oct. 22, 1969." Mrs. Herbert's long association with the group began when volunteer work ended in 1917 at the Detroit branch, where she

New bus can "broadcast" lessons on six channels

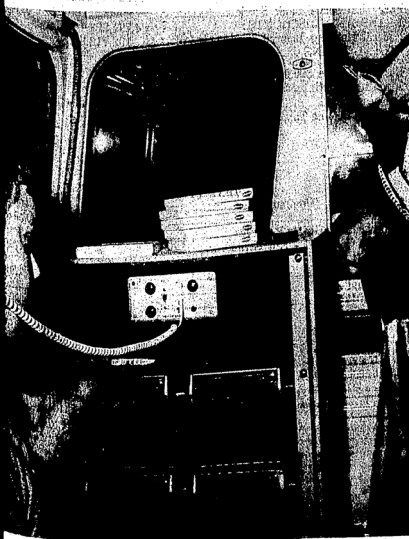

It's new, it's different, it's unique. But what do you call it? Technically, perhaps it's an audio bus. Non-technically, perhaps a traveling tape recorder. However, to those students who will have the opportunity to use the new vehicle, perhaps it's best to call it a learning bus. From the exterior, the new 72-passenger bus, delivered last Friday, looks the same as any other yellow and black vehicle in the bus fleet of the Manistique Area Schools. The difference is inside, where at the rear of the bus one seat has been removed to make room for a console housing the equipment used to broadcast messages on six different channels. Students receive these messages, recorded on small cassettes or tape recording cartridges, via individual earphones that are plugged into small receiving stations at each seat. These tapes can be pre-selected so as to supplement class work being done during regular school hours. Ron Patrick, audio-visual director for the Manistique Area Schools, has been busy preparing the cassettes for use on the bus. With each cassette providing 15 minutes of program, he is scheduling three different cassettes per channel per day. With six channels and five school days, that means 90 different cassettes per week. A tentative schedule drawn up by Patrick lists six different topics—one for each channel. These include study skills, selected tapes for secondary students, a study of the presidency, music appreciation, work skills and modern math. These, of course, can be changed regularly. Patrick stressed that it will be up to the students to make the experimental bus a success or a failure. "All we can do is to make the tapes available," he pointed out, "if the student chooses not to use the headphones while traveling or the bus there is little that can be done. Present plans now call for the bus to be used on the run from Germfask daily, as well as to and from Escanaba on Tuesdays and Thursdays when 40 boys are transported to Bay de Noc College for vocational training. "We hope to eventually get our own faculty members taping supplemental material for their classes," Patrick explained, pointing out that such a practice would be in effect an extension of the classroom. The bus is a real bargain for the Manistique Area School District. Its cost, and the cost of the special equipment and tapes, was included as part of a project under the National Defense Education Act. With the project total cost of $25,130.95, the district spent $15,213 for the bus, $5,500 for the audio equipment, and $4,417.45 for tapes. Half of this amount, or $12,521.97, is reimbursed by the Federal government. Thus instead of paying $12,500 and only receiving a new bus, the district is paying $12,500 and getting the new bus plus the audio equipment.

DIAL A PROGRAM—Students using the earphones on the new learning bus will use these controls to dial any one of six channels they wish to hear.

AND CENTER?—No, it's just the console on the new audio learning bus just received by the Manistique Area Schools. Billy Beck, left, is a student while putting in a tape, watched by Ron Patrick, audio-visual director for the school system.

LEARNING AND RIDING—Student Billy Beck and teacher Ron Patrick show how students will use the earphones in the new learning bus that will go into service soon in the local school system.

Surf Sounds

The Fantasy was Fantastic! We're talking about the Fall Fashion Fantasy, of course, held Tuesday evening with us at the Surf in cooperation with the Peoples Store.

We hope that those of you who were there enjoyed it as much as we did, and for those of you who missed it—our sympathy! It was a fabulous success. We've just got to send some special thanks to the models who did such a fine job—Emma Wilson, Debra Weber, Meg Moffat, Carolyn Miller, Brenda Hugison, Mike Fanning, Linda Fanning, Dorothy Peterson, Jerry Sleeper, Linda Archey, Donna Johnson, Frank Hentschel, Ray Hugison, Ruben Meyer and Bill Carmody.

The commentary came from Nat Dellis and Helen Jean Volzine, while Jim Malloy provided the music on the organ. Perhaps the busiest man on the scene were John Miller and Clarence Peterson from the Peoples Store... they did a wonderful job of making sure the entire promotion was a success.

A success? We mean fantastic! A Fantastic Fantasy, that's what it was!

FEED WEED CONTROL: Fall is a good time to control weeds in Michigan fields. Yellow rocket, which shows up each spring in many alfalfa fields, can be controlled in established stands by treatment in late fall after a killing frost. The use of MCPA at one-half pound active ingredient per acre will kill yellow rocket and other broad leaved annual weeds. Simazine (Princep) at one and one-quarter to 1 1/2 pounds of active ingredient per acre will control yellow rocket, broad leaved weeds

Confused plants
at local nursery

The Leonard Walters family is keeping a close watch on the goings-on in their nursery rows at Valley Nursery this year—and some of the unusual events taking place are mountain ash trees, which usually blossom early in the season, in blossom now but bearing the red berries at the same time. Also a crab tree, which regularly blooms in June, is now in blossom.

Another rare occurrence for our area is the crop of muskmelon, watermelon and grapes to maturity.

Stonewall Jackson, a Presbyterian deacon in civilian life, opposed the idea of civil war, hated to break the Sabbath by fighting, and did not smoke, drink, or play cards. He ate sparingly and often sucked on lemons, says the National Geographic Society Book, "The Civil War."

Winter potential

IT WASN'T PLANNED THAT WAY, but the front page of last week's Pioneer-Tribune was a little wintery.

First we had the story of the new winter sports show being planned for Nov. 8 in the main gym of the high school. Then there was the story about the new snowmobile club and their plans to offer a big week end of racing next March here in Manistique. Finally there was the announcement that Santa Clans would be here for his annual visit on Dec. 6.

It was coincidental that the first snow of the season swirled about our heads Wednesday as we went to press, but there's no denying the obvious—winter is about to move in with us as a permanent guest, or at least until April.

There was a time when most of the communities in northern Michigan went into an economic hibernation immediately following deer season when the last of the red-shirted big spenders left for the Big City and home.

Times have changed, however. The big boom in skiing happened to coincide with the opening of I-75 freeway that founded thousands of ski enthusiasts and their wallets into Grayling, Gaylord, Boyne Mountain and Petoskey. Today these communities balance their summer tourism boom with the winter ski season, and everybody's quite happy with the arrangement.

What skis did for northern lower Michigan, so may the snowmobile do for the Upper Peninsula.

Snowmobiles don't require cleared slopes and big hills and chair lifts. The main requirement seems to be snow and lots of wide open spaces—commodities that the Upper Peninsula has an adequate supply of.

The past several winters have seen the development of major snowmobile races across the Peninsula, and we applaud the local group of enthusiasts for their efforts to get in on the action.

We have several advantages here in Manistique that are not found in some neighboring communities.

First, by the accident of geography, we are closer to the major population centers downstate. It's less than 90 miles from I-75 as it leaves the bridge, and an easy day's drive from Detroit.

Secondly, we have adequate facilities for housing and food.

During the postwar years this area saw considerable growth and development in motels and quality eating places—largely built to handle summer trade, willing and eager to tap any revenues that might come their way during the long winter months that were formerly written off.

Take these factors, plus development of the new snowmobile track up by the quarry, the increasing interest as evidenced by the formation of the local snow machine club, plus the still largely untapped potential of such trail areas as Blaney Resort and the Hiawatha National Forest, and you have the makings of a winter boomlet.

Although coho fishing this fall has not come up to expectations generated by the fabulous run of fish last autumn, there is still hope that this might eventually be developed as a major attraction for that time of the year.

If we can find ways and means of attracting visitors here during the former months of hibernation, then tourism will indeed become an even larger factor in our local economy.

A prize-winning weekly newspaper published every Thursday at Manistique, Michigan, at the Top O' Lake Michigan in the heart of Michigan's beautiful Upper Peninsula.

The Griffin

Another chapter in the voluminous story of the Griffin, first sailing ship on the Great Lakes, seems to have been opened last week with the announcement of a Detroit man that he has discovered the remains of the ship.

As any good student of history should know---particularly local history---the Griffin disappeared along these northern Lake Michigan shores soon after leaving on a journey back to its starting point at Niagara Falls. That was 290 years ago this fall.

There is some controversy as to exactly where the Griffin sailed from. The majority school of thought contends it was Washington Island, off the tip of the Door Peninsula. Others say it was Big Summer Island, just off the tip of Fair-port. The story of the Griffin is just a part of the greater saga of Robert Rene Cavellier, Sieur de la Salle, a 36-year-old Frenchman whose explorations opened up the Great Lakes and the heart of America.

La Salle built the Griffin during the winter of 1678, just above Niagara Falls. His exploration plans were delayed by creditors and internal bickering with the French government at Montreal. The ship finally sailed in August, 1679, passed through the Detroit River and Lake St. Clair and into Lake Huron.

The expedition almost came to grief in a storm that caught them between Saginaw Bay and Thunder Bay, but the Danish pilot, named Lucas, kept the tiny craft from swamping or going aground, and they arrived at Missilimakinac, or St. Ignace, on Aug. 26.

After some delay here, the craft came westward, coasting along the northern Lake Michigan shores, past Seul Choix and its rocky reefs, down along the Garden Peninsula to the island "situated at the entrance of the Lake or Bay of the Puants," meaning Green Bay.

Here, LaSalle found some of his advance party with furs they had purchased from the Indians, and he decided to send the Griffin back to Niagara Falls, where the furs could be sold to pay off his debts and buy more supplies.

The pilot and his crew of six set sail, and Fr. Louis Hennepin, a colorful if not always accurate chronicler of the expedition, wrote of their going:

"They set sail on the 18th of September, with a very favorable light west wind, making their adieu by firing a single cannon; and we were never afterwards able to learn what course they had taken, and though there is no doubt, but that she perished, we were never able to learn any other circumstances of their shipwreck than the following: The bark having anchored in the north of Lake Dauphin (Michigan), the pilot against the opinion of some Indians, who assured him that there was a great storm in the middle of the lake, resolved to continue his voyage, without considering that the sheltered position where he lay, prevented his knowing the force of the wind. He had scarcely sailed a quarter of a league from the coast, when these Indians saw the bark tossing in an extraordinary manner, unable to resist the tempest, so that in a short time they lost sight of her, and they believe that she was either driven on some sandbank, or that she foundered."

The Detroit man mentioned in the first paragraph won't say exactly where he's found the Griffin, but is specific enough to say that it is "about 12 miles off Drummond Island in the north channel opposite Thessalon, Ont."

This is in the general area of other claimants to finding the last of the Griffin. One man claims he has found the ship on Greenough Point, near Tobermory, Ont., in Lake Huron. Another claim is that the wreck is on Find Out Island, off Tobermory, in Georgian Bay. And back in 1890, a lighthouse keeper on western Manitoulin Island found traces of six skeletons, a watch, a chain, and 17th century coins.

LaSalle himself believed that the pilot and crew scuttled the ship and took the furs and trade goods overland in an attempt to meet Daniel Greysolon, DuLuth, the courier de bois leader of western Lake Superior.

It's still a mystery, 290 years after the fact. What most local people don't realize is that the key to a major historical puzzle may be under their very noses, so to speak, somewhere along this stretch of northern Lake Michigan shore, where the Griffin was last seen.

Maybe next week we'll talk some more about this mysterious ship of the Northern Sea.

THE LEAST OF THESE MY BRETHREN

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Matthew 25:40.

To me, the least of the brethren always seemed to be the handicapped—the deaf and hard of hearing, the blind and partially sighted, the speech defective, the mentally retarded, the crippled and the emotionally disturbed.

It has taken mankind centuries to adopt a humanitarian attitude toward the afflicted. Historically, the position of society has been rejection. The reasoning went--the infirm are a burden. The tribe has neither the energy, the time, nor the resources to nurture them; therefore, reject the handicapped and they will sooner become less of a burden.

The Puritan adopted a similar position, but reasoned differently. Handicaps are the visitation of God and consequences of sin. We don't want anything to do with sin, therefore, we'll reject and hide the handicapped.

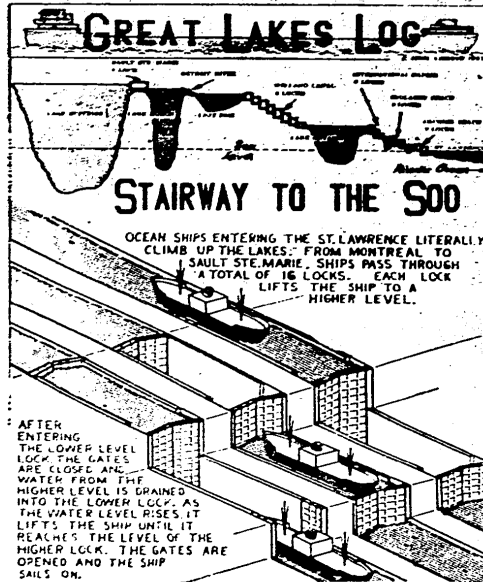

Until recently, the attitude of education has not been much better. They tried to do something about the problem by encouraging residential centers for severe cases. Then they complicated it by making certification requirements for personnel so rigid that they closed out many of the people who could have helped.

But education for all is of relatively recent origin. It had been considered a charity and a privilege rather than a right. The first compulsory education laws in Pennsylvania were vetoed by the governor as being "un-American."

We blithely went about mouthing, "We'll educate everyone to the maximum of his potential." But our attitude was, "If the kid gets too complicated, we'll throw him out." It would be like a doctor saying, "We'll pitch you out of the hospital because you're too sick."

If we say we're going to educate everyone, then we had better mean it, and the "everyone" includes the handicapped. For the first time, the Manistique Area Schools has a speech therapy program and three special help rooms. That's progress--but it's not enough.

NOBODY LOVES ME

Mark sat in the middle of the hospital ward, looking scared and lonely. All around, other babies were being hugged and cooed at by their visitors.

He couldn't know we'd stopped to get his clothes and that today he'd be going home. His understanding of the situation was limited. But then he saw us, and he laughed and held out his arms, loneliness and fear forgotten.

Sometimes life makes us feel lost and lonely. Perhaps a business fails, a son is unreliable, a new job overwhelms or a loved one's gone. When we can't see our way, where can we turn?

God is our Comforter. Whatever our problem, there is guidance and help in His word.

Your church is the best place to learn understanding of God and yourself. This understanding is the key to the abundant life that is His promise.

Germfask

BY MRS. JENNIE CRAWN

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carlson of Marshall visited Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thren at their camp on the River Road.

Former resident Mrs. Hope (Ackley) Jones and her husband of Detroit and her daughter, Mrs. David Butterfield of Lake City, visited her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. V. Buggs at Grand Marais. They also visited friends here.

Mrs. Nettie Ackley was hostess to members of the East End Craft Club Monday afternoon. Following the business meeting the group tied a quilt for the hostess.

Mrs. Kathy Peterson and children visited her sisters-in-law and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Ehn in Detroit and Mr. and Mrs. Harvard Lancour in Brighton for a week. They returned home with Mr. Peterson.

Officers were elected when the Happy Hour Club met at the home of Mrs. Betty Hartman. Mrs. Mae Lawrence was elected chairman and Mrs. Kathy Peterson, secretary-treasurer. Decorated yardstick holders were made. The club met last week at the home of Mrs. Judy Skentland and made tree decorations. Mrs. Mae Lawrence will be hostess to the club Nov. 6. The group will make decorations from large pine cones.

Dennis Archey of Newberry visited their brother, Oral Archey, Saturday.

Mrs. Nina Barker of Newberry visited her granddaughter and family, Mrs. Nina Barker last week. Other visitors at the Barker home were Mr. and Mrs. Ling Burns of Germfask and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thren of Remus.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Brusseau and family of Newberry visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Musselman.

Members of the Fellowship Club met Saturday night at the home of Mrs. Kathleen England. Mrs. Berdella Decker was co-hostess. The next meeting will be Nov. 22 at the Herbert Musselman home.
