

Urban Renewal hearing slated for next Monday

The first public hearing on the proposed Urban Renewal project for downtown Manistique will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in city hall.

Purpose of this session is the formal designation of the district. The proposed boundaries include the four block area bounded by Main, Maple, Oak and Pearl Sts., plus a one block sector bordered by Oak, Lake, Arbutus and Maple.

Manistique received word of the preliminary grant late last June, when the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) announced approval of survey and planning funds totaling $117,141 on a proposal submitted late in 1968. The total cost of the entire Urban Renewal project is estimated at $1,100,000.

The first phase of the project is concerned with preparation for the total loan and grant. This involves more detailed study of the buildings by structural engineers, a land marketability study, relocation and rehabilitation interviews with occupants, engineering cost estimates on improvements, a financial analysis and property value appraisal.

Once the boundaries are approved, a citizens' district council, consisting of 12 to 25 representatives of the residents of the area, is elected and appointed.

An Urban Renewal director must also be named to administer the program.

Once these steps are taken, the project is submitted for federal review. If approved, another public hearing is held, and then the city council must make the decision as to whether or not they should continue with the program. If they approve, the application is again submitted for legal review, and if approved, the final implementation gets underway. This involves remodeling or rehabilitating those structures deemed worthwhile saving, and the demolition of those beyond repair.

Owners are paid the appraised value of their land and building, and may use the land back for rebuilding purposes if they desire. If they relocate in another area, special loans and grants are available to assist them.

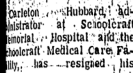

It has been estimated it will probably take another year before the council is required to make a final decision, and 18 more months before the program gets underway. Once started, it would probably take four to five years for all of the rehabilitation and demolition work to be completed.

The city is required to pay one fourth of the total cost of the project, but may claim credits improvements done within two years of the program approval. This would include such items as street paving, new sewers, curbs and gutters and lighting, and probably the new city hall.

Another public meeting on the question is scheduled for February.

Hubbard leaving hospital; takes job in Baraga County

CARLETON HUBBARD

Hubbard, administrator of Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital and the Schoolcraft Medical Care Facility, has resigned his post here effective Jan. 30. He is taking the job as administrator of Baraga County Memorial Hospital in L'Anse-au-Loup, effective Feb. 1.

Hubbard has served as administrator here since June 1, 1967, coming here from St. Ignace. In August of 1967 he also assumed the job as administrator of the new Medical Care Facility.

He is president-elect of the Upper Peninsula Hospital Council and is active in the Michigan Hospital Association. He is a board member of the Michigan Hospital Purchasing Service.

Locally, he has been an active member of the Manistique Rifle and Pistol Club and Elks Lodge 632.

Mrs. Hubbard and three children will join him in L'Anse-au-Loup as soon as housing becomes available. The family is currently living in Gulliver.

Friday last day for registration

This Friday is the last day to register for the Feb. 13 millage election, school officials reminded area voters this week.

The school will be seeking a renewal of their four mill operating levy at that election. Voters are also reminded that if they haven't voted in local, state or federal elections in the last two years their registration has automatically expired and must be renewed with the township or city clerk.

Details on the registration are found in two legal notices appearing in this week's Pioneer-Tribune.

Fire service cost outlined

A meeting between city and township officials last Tuesday, Dec. 30, on the question of rural fire protection produced a new deadline of Feb. 1 for the townships to negotiate agreements with the city.

Previously a Jan. 5 deadline had been set. City Manager Robert Noe said at the meeting that the cost of operating a four-man department, in salaries, is about $40,000 a year. One third of the calls in the past two years have come from the townships, yet his requests for financial assistance from them total only $5,000, he pointed out. The city would also respond on a flat $300 per call basis, he said.

Noe said the cost to the city, per call, is now $450. In other sectors, townships contract with the city for protection and in some cases pay an additional fee per call. Township supervisors said they were willing to participate with the city in financing the

He is also suffering severe lacerations of his left forearm and hand, left cheek and scalp, and head injuries.

The family is receiving reports from the Defense Department every four days because of the seriousness of his injuries. He's in a field hospital near Qui Chu.

Pfc. Gould was serving with Co. D, 2nd Battalion, 12th Infantry, and had been in Vietnam since Nov. 3.

He entered the Army last August and completed basic training and eight weeks ROTC training at Ft. Polk, La., before going overseas.

NEWS--The headlines are all about Prohibition, and the issue of The Wisconsin News is dated June 7, 1920. Evan Johnson, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Johnson, 223 Main St., and his friend Ronald Klich, 13, found the half-century old paper under the metal top of an old bench in the basement. The Milwaukee paper was an early newspaper publication--forerunner of today's Milwaukee Sentinel. What's Evan going to do with it? "I'm not in my room," he says; issues from June 2 and June 4 were also found.

"OUT OUR WAY"

News from Road 437

Hi Folks!

The news from road 437 makes its debut to the column for 1970 on a very cold Monday morning. It is a gorgeous sight though, as I watched the rising sun with hungry, staring eyes. The forest seemed to shiver, and every cloud, large or small, held the reflections of the sun, lighting up the sky, giving out the message of dawn.

With it came the songs of the chickadees, even the hatch came in with its playful food. Later in the day several gray squirrels came in for their share.

The Boss took me for a ride on the snow machine Saturday morning. Our route took us on the road down to the channel crossing Thunder Lake. It was such a beautiful sight down that road. The evergreens were all draped heavily with snow. Even the finest twigs on the birch trees were dressed in white. The whole earth was wrapped up in the soft, snowy blanket. The surroundings had a calm and peaceful look and the drabness of late fall was gone.

Now and then a few flakes fell from a partly cloudy sky, as we wound our way along the trail. This morning was ours alone, and I did enjoy it. My heart was thankful for what my eyes could see, and at that moment I didn't even have a thought of worries.

After we got across the channel we stopped to visit Don and Nancy Klagstad, who with their children had spent several days at their cabin. The Boss and I enjoyed our visit, as did our grandson Jimmy Hardy. Nancy prepared a bunch of pancakes, bacon and eggs for us.

What a beautiful view they have out of their windows facing the lake. I sat for some time looking out at the dancing snowflakes as they fell softly to the earth. I was cozy in my chair watching the wood burn in the fireplace. It was perfect to be settled back in a cozy chair and think of many precious memories. A fire side holds a special magic to weave over you when you sit and watch it. Try it some time, I know you'll love it.

Right now I'm rather comfortable writing my scoop, as I'm sitting pretty close to my wood stove, and I do love the aroma of burning wood.

Other folks enjoying our winter wonderland were Dr. and Mrs. Espere Davidson, son Joe and daughter Mrs. Gerald Cotton, who spent the Christmas and New Year's holidays. The Norm Underwoods are just staying, and staying, for they love our scenic country, besides ice fishing is also enjoyed. Red and Ev Nickerson also spent several days enjoying our winter scenery.

Our Christmas holidays were enjoyed as Jim and Kathy, Vernon and Joanne, with their families, had Christmas dinner with us.

Hope your holidays were enjoyed. I send out the echoes of birthday greetings to Ruth Haskins, Al Burson, Dr. Ewald Hoewer, Richard Underwood, Dr. Horne R. Davidson, Jr., and Mike Savers, also other celebrants that were missed during my absence.

Anniversary wishes go out to the James LaFaves, May the day for all of you be one of complete happiness.

I know you all have said farewell to the Old Year, hope it was left without a tear. May the coming year bring to all of you a year of health, plenty and blessings.

This month will be known for the March of Dimes, so for it I write this quotation of Washington Irving: " 'Tis the season for kindling the fire of hospitality in the hall, the genial fire of charity in the heart."

Until my next week's wintry scoop, stay healthy and happy. Mrs. Scoop al T. Losey, son of Mr. Mrs. Glenn C. Losey, was promoted Nov. 1969 to the rank of Army specialist four while assigned to the 3rd Infantry Company in Germany.

Losey is a rifleman company C, 2nd Battalion of the division's 15th Infantry Regiment.

and Mrs. John Bosanico and Brian of Lansing spent Christmas holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Bosanico, and family, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Bosanico of Chicago.

and Mrs. Gary Walker and Jason returned to Grand Marais Monday after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Beland and Gal-lee. They were accompanied on their return by their mother, Mrs. George Walker, and family, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Bosanico of Chicago.

and Mrs. Leroy Howard and daughter Lynn Marie of Detroit spent the New Year holiday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Howard, and Mrs. Douglas Howard.

area meeting
Bible instruction to maintain separateness from false religion is being given in the congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, following counsel given at their "Right Kind of Ministers" conference last fall in Isenheim.

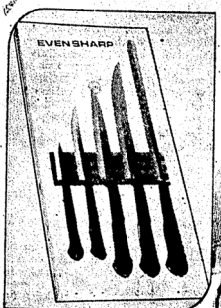

Reference officials reported 17 new ministers were baptized at the baptismal service on Saturday morning.

Witnesses regard the Bible as the official Word of God, and that it is patterned after the life of Jesus Christ. They will henceforth, they said, be delegates attending the Isenheim conference in this area, according to the plan of the Manistique congregation.

The regular schedule of home has been resumed at the Kingdom Hall.

Retail sales climb in city, but drop in rural areas

Retail sales in Schoolcraft County increased steadily in the four-year period between 1965 and 1967—but the increase seemed to be the growing status of the City of Manistiquette as the trade center for the county.

These are the conclusions found in a report by Michigan Kateidoscope, a publication of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce, released recently.

In 1967, 153 retail establishments were listed for the county, with sales totaling $22,000,000. By 1967 the number of retail outlets had shrunk to 138, but sales had climbed to $21,750,000.

The report divided these sales between the city and the remainder of the county. In 1968 the 61 out-county establishments had sales totaling $1,596,000. In 1967 there were 42 out-county businesses reporting, with total sales of $1,031,000, or a decline of more than $500,000.

The city, however, had a different report. In 1968 the report listed 94 outlets in town with total sales of $8,176,000. The 1967 summary showed 96 outlets in town, but with total sales of $11,144,000, or an increase of almost $3 million.

Figures were based on the 1963 and the 1967 census of business by the U. S. Department of Commerce.

Statewide, total retail sales rose from $10,855,344,000 in 1967 to $14,114,386,000, or an increase of 30 per cent. The Schoolcraft County increase was just over 20 per cent.

New commercial fishing rules for Great Lakes waters

Michigan's Department of Natural Resources has mailed license applications and operating ground rules to 200 eligible commercial fishermen who have qualified under refined regulations aimed next year at protecting depressed fish stocks in this state's Great Lakes.

The list of operators limited to those who met licensing requirements developed by Michigan's Department of Natural Resources in better compliance with Great Lakes fishing regulations to be harvested, about 250 commercial operators licensed in 1969 failed to measure up to new standards.

For those who did make the next steps are to out their forms, carefully read the general provisions of licenses they are seeking then submit their applications directly to the DNR district headquarters in their home ports.

Where a license is issued in 1970, each applicant will receive a personal briefing with the DNR's district fish biologist to make sure he understands the terms of the license. Those face-to-face discussions are also scheduled to give DNR personnel a better chance to know commercial operators in their areas.

Commercial fishermen not eligible for the 1970 season who feel they do not meet the new licensing requirements, will be given an opportunity to air their objections before fish biologists at the DNR's various district headquarters.

With one exception, all applications for 1970 licenses must be submitted at least 30 days before eligible commercial fishermen plan to begin their operations. The time requirement of 30 days is waived in the case of commercial netters who wish to begin fishing before Jan. 15.

Operators licensed to set nets next season will be governed by generally more restrictive rules under the new management plan and specific provisions of their licenses. However, the volume of their harvest is expected to be comparable to the annual commercial take of about 20 million pounds in past years.

John Scott, the DNR's Great Lakes specialist, explains: "Our whole new format of commercial fishing regulations is based upon providing greater protection for such species as lake trout, sturgeon, walleye, and perch which need it most. Actually, Michigan's commercial fishery has already moved down mostly to the catch of chubs, whitefish, alewife, and herring, and we don't want these new rules to hurt the harvest of these species," he stressed in the amount of gear, notably gill netting equipment, which may be set.

The new limitation on this gear is another measure to prevent over-exploitation of Great Lakes fish stocks, particularly those in the population doldrums.

Along the same general lines, provisions of the 1970 licenses leave no room for commercial fishermen to set their nets in new waters not fished during 1969.

reflects efforts by local communities to expand sport fishing services and facilities along their shores.

Within the rehabilitation zones, commercial gill netting restrictions will be in effect to give remnant populations of perch, walleye, and herring a chance to rebuild. The same controls in these waters will also protect lake trout and add thrust to the program to restore self-supporting populations of these fish in lakes Superior and Michigan.

In addition to the gill netting regulations for rehabilitation zones, commercial fishing will be closed to taking perch and walleye throughout the three upper Great Lakes, except for a portion of Saginaw Bay in Lake Huron where perch will remain on the commercial catch list.

Herring, another species virtually in total collapse in Michigan's Great Lakes waters, will be off the commercial fishing list in lakes Michigan and Huron. In Lake Superior where herring populations are more abundant, these fish will remain open to commercial netting, except during their spawning season.

Sturgeon, classified nationally as an endangered species, will be protected from commercial fishing throughout Michigan's Great Lakes waters.

In commercial fishing zones, netting operations will be continued under 1970 licenses without jeopardizing the over-all restoration program for the Great Lakes. These areas will cover traditionally productive commercial fishing waters where, in most cases, whitefish will be the major species to be netted. Lake trout and salmon will come under safeguards in these zones, still open to sport fishing.

The DNR will allow next year's licensed netters to take lake trout on a limited scale for assessment study purposes and in three zones where the incidental catch of these fish can only be solved by closing the areas to commercial fishing.

The three zones are as follows:

- All waters south of a line from Big Bay Point to Ausable Point and north of a line from Presque Isle Point to the mouth of Miners River in Lake Superior;
- Northern Lake Michigan in areas of Peninsula Point, Point Detroit, and Sac Bay Point;
- Northern Lake Michigan in areas of Point Barre, Garden Island, Hat Island, and the Village of Good Hart.

Under the zone management plan, as well as specific regulations covering individual license holder, commercial fishermen will not be allowed to expand their operations over 1969. As a matter of fact, they will be more restricted in the amount of gear, notably gill netting equipment, which may be set.

The new limitation on this gear is another measure to prevent over-exploitation of Great Lakes fish stocks, particularly those in the population doldrums.

Along the same general lines, provisions of the 1970 licenses leave no room for commercial fishermen to set their nets in new waters not fished during 1969.

Fire service

The possibility of using the city only as a back-up service for those townships establishing their own volunteer departments was also raised. Supervisor Agner Dehlin of Hiawatha Township suggested a county-wide millage levy to pay the townships' share.

County Commissioner Norman Palm of the City questioned the $40,000 figure of $40,000 in salaries for the fire department. Noe later said that salaries ranged between $6,500 and $7,000 per man per year, but that fringe benefits and the cost of extrajury men raises the expense total.

Looking ahead

MOST PEOPLE WOULD DENY any ambition to play God and control men's destinies, yet very few would turn down the opportunity if it were offered.

The Power of the Press being what it is these days we aren't in any position to make the offer either, but for the sake of argument this week let's just imagine that you were sitting in the Catbird Seat for the next 10 years with the power to move and shake, hatch, match and dispatch and everything else you've always figured was the ultimate.

Before we get carried away here, let's confine ourselves to this immediate area. We'll leave the Middle East and Asia and the Moon out of our territory, and concentrate on what the coming decade will bring to Schoolcraft County and our Upper Peninsula.

When they held that Town Meeting of the Air last month for the Upper Peninsula, topic No. 1 seemed to be more jobs and industry, and that's a good one for starters. Certainly we need to find ways to attract industry to this area, for it is a simple economic fact of life that you need new jobs to provide the tax base for public services and also to provide the payroll that will enable workers to have money to spend in local marketplaces so that all of us can join the rest of the U.S. in what has come to be described as the Affluent Society.

At the same time we should develop an awareness that an industrial boom could pose certain threats to this northern environment which we so proudly and rightly regard as unique. Escanaba is currently in the throes of agony over air pollution, trying to resolve whether industry is worth a certain ripeness in the air or dust clouds over the waterfront. Here in Manistique we were taken aback last year when Larko Chemical's pilot plant down at the harbor wafted a rich smell of dead fish across parts of town.

There is a middle ground, and any responsible industrial firm today is usually willing to bow not only to the cries of the public at large but to increasingly rigid anti-pollution laws.

The same sort of dilemma presents itself when we make great plans to lure hundreds of thousands of tourists to our vacationland. They bring with them comforting amounts of money which they spend freely, but they also clog our highways and litter our woodlands and raise hell and make noise where there once was peace and quiet.

Again, there is a middle ground, and if you have the job of controlling destinies for the next 10 years it's going to be up to you to find ways in which we can share the pleasures of our Northland with these visitors without overdeveloping it into a sort of Disneyland North, with gimerack tourist traps, paved parking lots and indoor plumbing at every turn of the road. The snowmobile may prove to be our greatest boom since the invention of the wheel, but if we allow them to clatter and whiz about the landscape indiscriminately they can become a motorized blight instead of a golden chariot.

If we were directing things for the next decade we would concern ourselves with the long range picture as well as the immediate gain.

We would also pass a few decisions that would not only allow property tax relief to the embattled private owner, but also provide some equitable payments to local units of government in lieu of taxes on state and federally-owned land. We would concern ourselves with the quality of education our children are receiving, and concentrate more of our efforts on developing vocational skills that have some meaning as well as more abstract knowledge that only aids the college-bound student. We would find a way to make home ownership easier than car ownership, so that a family can begin early to acquire their equity in what will probably be their largest single investment.

And here we're run out of space just as we've nicely getting started on things to do during the 1970's. But then it's probably just as well. If we accomplish what we've outlined, we will indeed be enjoying the good life here in the years to come.

Annual awards

Once again the time has come. For the presentation of the annual Pioneer-Tribune Awards for Meritorious Service and Advancement of Humanity, that famed occasion that ranks somewhere between the Nobel Peace Prize ceremony and the awarding of Good Conduct Medals by the U.S. Army.

In a special effort this year we will be covering the entire decade of the 60's, which is quite a bit of covering, now that you mention it.

Our top award of 75,000 Patagonian plasters and an all-expense two-hour vacation in Shingleton goes to Lustworthy H. Longleer, that eminent scientist and humanist whose research made possible the discovery and development of the miniskirt. Mr. Longleer, who admits he first gained inspiration for this major scientific advance by watching his secretary work in the bottom drawer of the file cabinet, is currently being treated in the Clement Haynesworth-Brunswick Memorial Clinic for eyestrain.

At the same time, we are creating a separate citation, which consists of a bushel of rutabagas and a poke in the eye with a sharp stick, for Leonard T. Limpwrist, that demmented designer who threatens to undo all of Longleer's good work via development of the maxicoat, a form of clothing that resembles a walking bedspread. This has to rank with the invention of television and the elimination of running boards from automobiles as the greatest step backward in years.

In the Humanities we are pleased to award a special citation that consists of the Collected Poems of Joe Willie Namath, plus a year's subscription to the Pioneer-Tribune, to Miss Maybelle McVoom, that prominent Hollywood starlet who was named Miss Uplift of 1967 and also made the Pioneer-Tribune's Best-Dressed List for 1968. The award goes to Miss McVoom for her touching role as the Little Match Girl in that epic film, "Hell's Angels Meet King Kong." We are trying to make arrangements for Miss McVoom to make a personal appearance at the Woodchopper's Ball in Steuben on Washington's Birthday where she could be crowned Miss TwoCycleSnowmobile.

In the field of Medicine, Dr. Aaron Trial receives the award for his development of a dual purpose tooth whitener and em-balming fluid. Dr. Trial spent countless hours mixing his formula in his field research station at Thunder Lake, cleverly concealing his important findings by describing the concoction as Bloody Marys and using his unsuspecting hunting companions as guinea pigs. The survivors are expected to share in the award, which consists of a gross of high intensity antacid tablets.

A Special Service to Mankind Award will be presented this year to two winners...W. Himself Hentsch and C. Alfred Rood, who collaborated in preparing an all-purpose comprehensive casualty-life insurance policy that will pay $100,000 to the survivors if the insured is hit by a streetcar on the Thunder Lake Road between 1 and 3:30 a.m. on Feb. 29, 1970 or Nov. 31, 1971. The prize, a genuine deer head stuffed with the comic sections from the 1938 editions of the Escanaba Daily Press, is being offered by the Safety Division of the Upper Inwood Express and Suburban Transit Lines.

In the field of Transportation our award for the decade must go to Thurs T. Lushwell, developer of the four bottle carburetor for the Finnish Snowmobile. There are those who are confused about Mr. Lushwell's capacity with the Snow White Development and Research Corp. Mr. Lushwell's capacity is about two fifths, and it was this that enabled him to detect a knock in the snowmobile propulsion system when the unit was down a quart.

Musically, there is no doubt that the award of the decade must go to Strum Thurmond McChord, developer of the three-string banjo that will replace the electric guitar as the nation's most popular instrument. "Thumbs" McChord, who hit upon his great idea one evening when his G string broke, is also the originator of that American Pop classic, "The rest of the band have their girl friends, but the banjo player has his pick."

Finally, the Spiro T. Agnew Award for Courageous Journalism has to go to W. Pierpont Howley, former co-publisher of the Peche Island Post Gazette and Sunday Advertiser and now assistant entertainment editor for the Lansing State Journal. Howley fought a valiant battle in a losing cause the summer of 1969 when he protested the action of the State Journal in deleting the phrase "sugar beeter" in an article stolen from one of the leading newspapers in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. "I like to tell it like it is," said Howley, "and a little honest obscenity never hurt no one."

There they are, the Winners for the 1960's. One of these days we should prepare a list of losers and give them some sort of recognition as well.

Whenever I write about someone who has passed on, it is amazing how many people tell me, "I knew him too."

Many in the Manistique Area knew the tall, soft-spoken superintendent of the Stephenson Consolidated School District. Although he served only two school systems in the Upper Peninsula, his influence ranged much further than Stephenson and Harris.

The Lions here knew him because he had been a district governor and probably had visited the Manistique club. He also administered the Lions' Student Loan Fund and high school graduates throughout the Peninsula benefited.

As secretary of the Stephenson Area Chamber of Commerce and president of the Stephenson Community Development Corporation, people interested in these activities came in contact with him often.

Several Manistique board of education members visited one of the Stephenson elementary schools before the vote was taken on the Lakeside school. The Stephenson superintendent conducted the tour.

When the Manistique High School was appraised by a North Central evaluation team, the Stephenson superintendent evaluated the administrative portion of the school. He said of his visit "I got more out of this than I gave." This was modesty, but he was always learning and he gave a lot. His recommendation then--in 1964--was that the district should employ a business manager and also that the district should write the federal applications for the township schools.

He was handicapped. He had lost an arm in a hunting accident, but he could do almost anything anyone else could do. After ten minutes you didn't notice his shiny black glove.

I'm personally indebted to him, because when I first came to the Upper Peninsula in 1957, I called him often for the latest educational information and for advice. I made it a point to ride with him to conferences and to sit near him at meetings and dinners because I wanted to learn from his wide and varied experiences.

His concept of the school and the superintendency was that the district should serve the total community and the superintendent should be active in community affairs. He demonstrated this through the school and with his own involvement during the 40 years he served as a superintendent.

The Stephenson Consolidated School District and the Stephenson Community will miss Joseph B. Gucky in many ways, but a lot of us who don't live or work there are going to miss him too.

Rolling chopper is utilized to reduce forest pine slash

A rolling chopper was recently put into use on the Hiawatha National Forest to reduce the large accumulation of pine slash. Nearly 1,000 acres of Jack Pine is harvested each year on the Hiawatha. Larry Haack, Fire Control staffman, pointed out the advantages of the chopper over the former method of control burning.

Haack said that while burning is effective in removing the slash and in making it possible to plant a new forest, it also has several disadvantages. Weather is a very critical factor in control burning. A day must be chosen which will insure a burn of the right intensity without doing damage beyond tolerable limits. If the fire is too hot, damage to the soil can be great. It is possible to dispose of heavy slash accumulations where topography will not permit mechanical equipment.

Two hundred and twenty acres have been treated with the rolling chopper this fall on the Hiawatha National Forest. The project is located on the Wolf Lake Road about two miles east of Camp 7 Lake on the Manistique Ranger District. The success of this operation will probably lead to the purchase of another machine for the Sault Ste. Marie District. It will be used in the Jack Pine areas near Raco.

able to destroy an accumulation of humus which has taken nature a generation or more to build. Large volumes of smoke are generated and pass into the atmosphere contributing to the growing problem of air pollution.

The rolling chopper cuts the tops and limbs of trees into pieces about a foot and one half in length and much of it is ground into the soil to decay and improve fertility. Treatment of slash with the rolling chopper greatly reduces the fire hazard, the soil is improved, and the site is prepared for planting or sending the next forest crop.

The chopper has many advantages and uses, Haack said. It can also be used to improve wildlife habitat and maintain firebreaks and accessways. However, like all mechanical equipment, it has its limitations. On very steep terrain or in swampy areas its use may be impossible. Prescribed or control burning has not yet been discarded as a land management practice since there are places where this practice may be necessary to achieve desired results. Some examples would be to improve certain types of wildlife habitat and

ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE THIS SUNDAY

This message is brought to you by the following local business establishments in the interest of strengthening community churches:

MANISTIQUE PULP & PAPER CO.

Is there life on other planets in other galaxies out there? This is a question we ask with increasing frequency these days. When God made our world, was it the only one He fashioned?

We may never know. The answer may lie far in the future. But it is an enticing subject to speculate about.

Many fascinating subjects are being discussed today—in church. If this surprises you, it only goes to show that you haven't been attending church lately. To keep in touch with this challenging world, start going not only to regular services but to some of the special discussions in your church.

Family Living

BY INGRID TERVONEN
Extension Home Economist
Michigan State University

IMPORTANT FAMILY PAPERS? Are they kept together or are they scattered here or there in various drawers in the house. Are some in a safe-deposit box at the bank? Each family should have a "personal affairs" day and January, the first month of the new year, is a good time to begin. You'll know exactly where important papers are located or should be located. You may not have a family "business" in the usual sense of the word, but any family has a great deal of business to conduct in the course of daily living and maintaining a home. This includes various kinds of insurance.

FAMILY BUSINESS. Because it is so important for family members to know just exactly what they have and where they stand financially, study group members will be reviewing a bulletin "Business Facts for Families" and recording family business in a folder called "Record of Important Family Papers" at their January meetings.

The record provides a list of important papers, that, when filled out, will help you find them when you need them. It is also a guide for others in case of an emergency.

Study group members will be receiving bulletin copies at their next meeting but if you are not a member and would like to review your family's business, call or write the Extension Office to send you a copy of each - Phone 341-5050. Your first "affairs" day may take two or three sessions. It is important that you do a thorough job the first time. It should then be kept up to date at least once a year. You, the homemaker, might like to gather all important papers, then set a time to go over them with your husband or other family members.
