Timber receipts show decline

Upper Peninsula State Foresters report that timber sale receipts have dropped considerably over last month's receipts. Foresters believe that this is following the general market trend across the Nation. However, some believe that part of the drop was due to heavy rains, resulting in bad road conditions, and also because of highway load restrictions during May. Foresters believe this is a temporary slow-down and the logging activity will pick up again during the summer.

The demand for peeled aspen remains high in most of the Upper Peninsula with a slight increase in the demand for balsam and spruce. There is no market for rough aspen, balsam and spruce in the Sowerby District, but the demand for jack and red pine pulpwood remains high in that area.

Total timber sale receipts for the three Upper Peninsula Forestry Districts totaled $47,19 for the month of this timber was cut from active timber permits. The look pool as $7 new permits were issued by foresters involved $367 acres with an estimated value of $720.

New armory site satisfactory

Following an on-site inspection last week, officials of the Michigan National Guard have declared the new location of the Manistique Armory to be satisfactory.

Two officers of the Michigan National Guard checked the site located on the south side of Elm Street, north of the old quarry and advised the city that the site met initial requirements. The new location was offered by the City Council after the previous site on East Lakeshore Drive was declared unsatisfactory.

City Manager Robert Noel stated Monday that the city is now conducting a survey of the new site and making soil tests preliminary to final approval. In the meantime Hilly Ellington Associates, architects for the Army project are proceeding with plans for the proposed building.

The East Lakeshore Drive property was rejected because soil tests indicated conditions which would make it extremely costly to construct as large a building as the Armory on the site.

Bridge winners
The Indian Lake Golf and Country Club afternoon bridge winners for this week were Mrs. A. W. Cockram, Mrs. W. B. Orr, Mrs. J.W. Sheehan.

Unique snow fence project work of farmers, agencies

Thanks to cooperative efforts of farmers, a paper manufacturer and agencies at three levels of government, winter driving conditions on M-24 in Alger County should improve a few years.

All placed a rule-like planting of 15,000 small red pines and nine spruce trees along nearly five miles of the highway where snow blowing from open fields frequently piles up and makes driving difficult. Snow removal costs along highways in the county are among the highest in the state.

Over a few years' growth, the trees will form a natural snow trap more attractive and durable and in some five-foot than man-made fences.

Norman Perry, district forester for the Department of State Highway, said he hoped similar projects would be undertaken in other northern Michigan areas where drifting snow is a seasonal impediment to winter travel.

Working on the project with Perry were Edward Stinner, director of the Alger County Soil Conservation District; the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and Martin Henriksen and Elson Carberry of the Alger County Road Commission.

Fifteen farmers in the Chatham area, where the planting took place, were reimbursed by the Agriculture Department for part of the cost of the trees. Kimberly Clark Corp., which has a plant in Manistiquette, furnished a free planter. Generally, the trees were placed

Ask citizens to join U.P. Legion convention

As chairman of the 50th Convention of the Upper Peninsula Association of American Legion Post 28, I announced a few weeks back that patriotism had been selected as the convention theme with "For God and Country" as the motto.

In support of the convention theme and motto, I also stated that public participation in the convention would be planned and encouraged to the fullest extent. It is our intent that this participation will offer all members of the so-called "Silent American Majority" an opportunity to stand up and be counted for God and country and to make the members of the American Legion here in the U.P., along with all residents of the U.P., who wish to join us, the great, large, healthy lungs of this "Silent American Majority."

Plans are near completion for the June 18-21 convention in Marquette, and I would like to announce, at this time, the events which have been planned for public participation. First, the Patriotic night celebration at 8:30 p.m. on Thursday night, June 18 in the downtown Marquette area which features a fly-over, one hour of patriotic music by the Marquette city band followed by a fireworks display. Secondly, the Memorial service scheduled for the Marquette Armory at 7 p.m., Friday night, June 19 wherein we will have an opportunity to honor those who have died in defense of this country and our way of life.

Finally, a section of the parade scheduled for 1:30 p.m., Saturday, June 20th is being reserved for the public to join by stepping out in the street behind a banner reading "For God and Country."

We feel that we have provided the opportunities for the "Silent American Majority" to sound the national loud and clear to all who seek to destroy our country and its government, I now urge, no I challenge, not only the Legionnaires but all residents of the U.P., to participate.

Join us in Marquette, stand up and be counted, let's make

"For God and Country" not just a motto, but once again a way of life throughout the United States of America.

Scouts aid area wildlife

While most other Manistique area youngsters were enjoying a day off from school recently, 10 local Boy Scouts were out sweating and sweating black flies while planting shrubs to improve wildlife habitat.

The scouts from Troop 402 of Manistique put in nearly 1,000 man-hours of work on the High Bluffs and nearly 1,000 shrubs - cranberry shrubs were planted on the Mint Farm above M-94 in Schoolcraft County. Both of these areas have declining populations of migrant songbirds. It is hoped that the berry-planting projects will help the birds by providing another source of food. The plantings will also provide excellent nesting areas for the birds.

Scout patches of red were sewn on a coverlet for the shrub plantings to provide additional food for the birds. Deer, bear, porcupine and small mammals may also take advantage of the plants. The sites for the shrub plantings were selected by Game Habitat Biologist Ray Sarno and the ground was prepared by disk-

Kris Gibbons, Mike McKenzie and Mike Hepp, Assistant Scoutmaster. Eddie and Biologist Sal oversaw and assisted the boys with the planting. Scoutmaster Francis Mallette was unable to be present.

Social security pay here now totals $136,000 monthly

Social security benefits paid to residents of Schoolcraft county totaled $136,000 a month as 1969 ended. Arnold T. Williams, social security district manager in Escanaba reported last week.

A benefit increase, signed into law by President Nixon on Dec. 30, has since raised the monthly rate of payment by 15 per cent for the 1,558 social security beneficiaries in the county, Williams noted.

Of the social security beneficiaries living in this county, 1,061 are retired workers and their dependents. Another 322 are receiving benefits as the survivors of workers who have died, and 149 are getting benefits as disabled workers or the dependents of disabled workers.

Williams pointed out that although the majority of social security beneficiaries are older people, about one-out of every four is under age 60.

In the State of Michigan, 223, 203 people under age 60 are collecting social security payments each month. The 125, 844 who are under 18 are receiving payments because a working father or mother has died or is getting social security disability or retirement benefits.

Of the 19,704 who are 18 through 21 years of age, most are getting students' benefits under a provision which permits the continuation of a child's benefits past his or her 18th birthday, and up to age 22 if he or she is attending school full time.

COLLEGE WEEK FOR WOMEN is going on right now on the campus of Michigan State University. It's a big event for many homemakers - they can make a summer treat and learn something at the same time. They're living in Hubbard Hall, a new high-rise dormitory and most of the classes are also held there. Fourteen women from Area 24 are in attendance and about 45 from the Upper Peninsula.

HOME CANNING time is near. Be sure you do it right. Remember that if it is improperly canned you have wasted time and money. And you could expose yourself and your family to food poisoning. If you're not sure, get the proper information from a reliable source before you start. Don't be influenced by a neighbor's short-cut method of just adding aspirin and cold water.

If canned food is to keep, it must be best treated or processed in some way. Always use a pressure canner for low acid foods, such as green beans, corn, peas, and other such vegetables. Meat, for safety, must also be canned by the pressure-canner method. The hot water bath method can be used for fruits and tomatoes. Open-kettle canning is recommended only for jams and jellies.

Prune-Rhubarb Jam is a new one to me. Mrs. Otto Lindin gave me the recipe and I'm going to try it soon. It sounds good and Molly said it is very good. We'll have the recipe for you in this column very soon.

This week's Traffic Safety tip.....

I'm Guy Bowman, and during the school year my friends and I go to Fairview School. Lots of people don't realize that there are still school buses running for special classes during the summer, and drivers may forget to observe the safety rules. I hope you're not one of those drivers, and that you'll be watching for children and school buses all year around.

"OUT OUR WAY"
News From Road 437

It's a lovely morning out our way, and if you wish to take me on a tour along the roadside, you'll see me in my green and yellow, and in my red and white. I'm a member of the roadside family, and I'm a member of the roadside family, and I'm a member of the roadside family...

In the fall the stems are topped by clusters of berries. Amusee forgot to mention another beauty of the swamp the light lavender swamp laurels. In the orchid family and what beauties they are, find the showy lady-slipper, insectivorous flower. The showy lady-slipper is our barret and most beautiful orchid in the cool of the woods the star-flower with its two fragile six to seven pointed stars on a three-lobed stalk surround a whorl of five to nine shiny white leaves. As the stalk starts to come in on us it brings to the end of our tour, a day well spent I'd say. On the way home we hear the singing of the field cricket, from the waters come the low songs from the throats of the frogs. So the sunset comes and lingers slowly behind the trees to set for the night, and the sky will give us our twinkling stars and moonlight to enjoy the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Sturgill of Canoga Park, Calif., stopped in to visit with me. Mrs. Sturgill is the daughter of the late William Schnieler.

Dr. and Mrs. Horace Davidson, son Joe of Columbus, Ohio, and daughter Mrs. Gerald Cotton of Herrin, Ill., are vacationing at their little-away on Thunder Lake.

Guests of the Ron Piepelt family were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Johnson.

Vacationing also out our way are Bob and Lee Arnold of St. Mary's, Ohio. These folks enjoy several visits out our way.

Sunday brings in our summer also it is Father's Day. So it should be a day of joy for dad, by being walled on and made comfortable in his easy chair.

With the summer breezes come the echoes of birthday wishes for Vernon Amelin, Ted Bursan, Jack Sharkey and Signe Stram.

Anniversary wishes go out to the Edmond Peppers, Donald Heitz's, Jacob C. Haas's and Leo Decker's.

May the day for all of you be one of complete happiness. Until next week stay healthy and happy.

World Of Pharmacy

Tommy Thompson, J.P. Quick The World of Pharmacy CONVULSION

Due to leetling? Not Doctors discarded this notion a long time ago. It is something to be expected, hence "natural." No! Should the doctor be called? Definitely, yes! Convulsion is commonly due to high fever. Panic is no help. Restraining the child is wrong. A calm loosening of the clothing followed by a sponge bath of alcohol and water is usually effective. BUT THE DOCTOR MUST KNOW. Fever is not the only cause. The doctor must eliminate other factors such as brain injury, epilepsy, meningitis and several others. Especially if convulsions recur, a child has little danger sense and takes many a little spill. But be wary of the hard spill from chair or crib. Get the table top that can cause head injury. Watch the child. BE SURE TO TELL THE DOCTOR!

Schedule meetings on accident reporting

The Michigan State Police will instruct all Upper Peninsula law enforcement department representatives in these of the revised state traffic accident reporting form during a series of five training sessions June 22-25. Col. Fredrick E. Davis, department director announced. Locations and starting times for the two-hour sessions are: Monday, June 22, at 1 p.m., State Police, Sault Ste. Marie. Tuesday, June 23, at 10 a.m., State Police, Marquette. Tuesday, June 23, at 2 p.m., State Building conference room, Escanaba. Wednesday, June 24, at 10 a.m., State Police, Iron River. Thursday, June 25, at 10 a.m., city police department, Houghton.

The new form, which is being implemented July 1 in the Upper Peninsula and statewide by about the first of the year, was first field tested by police agencies in the Ingham county and Jackson post areas. Following that, it was put into use by all police agencies in the counties of Kent, Genesee and Kalamazoo.

The revised report is a one-page record designed to simplify and expedite the investigating and reporting of traffic accidents. It has provision for a supplement where in-depth analysis of special types of accidents is wanted.

The new form is the first major revision in 12 years. Under study a year and a half, it incorporates recommendations made by officers in the field and standards of the National Highway Safety Bureau.

Dr. Waters

Continued from Page One— new examination. Material used in the first exam will not be reused in the second. A composite of successful candidates taking the first examination, he said, is "a male of age, practicing individually or in partnership, who maintains membership in his local, state and national American Medical Association units, who has taken an internship and some residency training; who is engaged in active medical practice and holds at least one active appointment on a hospital medical staff, who includes internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics - gynecology, psychiatry, orthopedics, industrial medicine and emergency room care in the services generally rendered." Dr. Walsh said that the Board of Family Practice is unique among specialty boards because it has no "grandfather clause" which allows doctors practicing in the specialty when a board is created to become diplomates of that board without taking an examination. It is unique also, he added, because it requires recertification by examination at six-year intervals to maintain membership status. As with other specialty boards, the principal functions of the Board of Family Practice are to provide a certifying examination and testing and grading facilities, and to grant certification. The initial examination was prepared by a special committee of the AAGP working in conjunction with the National Board of Medical Examiners, with final preparation and grading phases being directed by the Board of Family Practice. The National Board of Medical Examiners is a private, non-profit agency whose function is to design examinations and testing procedures for medical specialty boards and licensing agencies. Headquarters of the Board of Family Practice is at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, Lexington, under direction of Dr. Nicholas J. Pisacano, secretary - treasurer of the Board.

License time for boaters

If you own a boat which is 16 feet or longer and you use it in the Great Lakes or connecting waterways, now's a great time to get it licensed for the 1970 boating season. Michigan's boat plate law applies to all crafts whether they are motor-driven or not so long as they qualify in length and are used in the Great Lakes or connecting rivers and lakes. Boat plates must be purchased each year. They may be obtained at selected Secretary of State branch offices, usually the larger branch offices or branches close to affected waterways.

Michigan's boat plate law... in effect since 1911... is not to be confused with the state's motorboat registration law in which all motorboats must be registered during three-year cycles.

Cost of plates, according to Secretary of State James M. Hare, range all the way from $5 for boats 16 to 20 feet to tonnage rates for boats longer than 65 feet.

Many boats qualify for both boat plates and motorboat registration, says Hare.

The boat plate law applies to sailboats if they are 16 feet or longer, and use the Great Lakes or connecting waterways. The only exceptions are canoes of any length with motors of less than two horsepower.

Boat plates, notes Hare, go with the boats if they are sold or transferred. The boat plate registration is transferred to the new owner at no cost.

Plates should be displayed on both sides of the boat back of the center of the craft so they do not conflict with possible numbering of the boat which goes on the front of the hull. Plates should be as easily seen at all times and must be attached so that tarpaulins or other boat coverings will not hide them.

Boat owners unsure of the length of their boats may measure them from the tip of the bow to the back of the boat.

Following is the cost of boat plates:

16 feet...but not over 20 feet...$5
 over 20 feet...but not over 28 feet...$15
 over 28 feet...but not over 35 feet...$25
 over 35 feet...but not over 42 feet...$35
 over 42 feet...but not over 50 feet...$45
 over 50 feet...but not over 65 feet...$75

Boats longer than 65 feet are based on $1 per foot and $1 per ton additionally for each registered gross tonnage.

An estimated 25 million Americans have high blood pressure, a disease which is like installment buying—you can get along fine if you do what you are supposed to do—but you pay penalties if you don't. HBP, however, can be neglected for awhile, but then when it strikes, it has very severe penalties. The Association, a Michigan United Fund agency, says: "Get a doctor and follow his orders."

Vote of confidence

YOU CAN LOOK at the recent school board election any way you want to, but in our book you can chalk it down as a vote of confidence in our schools and their administrations.

Denton Nelson and Margaret Waters, the two incumbents, ran on their record of past achievements. The challengers were forced to run against that record, and there were calls of it being time for a change.

The result, in which the incumbents were returned to office, seems to indicate that the voters are, for the most part, satisfied with the way things are going.

It should also help lay to rest the oft-repeated but never substantiated charges that there has been financial hanky-panky in the district in recent years. It's easy to make political hay with such charges, but a far more difficult thing to prove them. The records have been open and available, and school personnel have offered their time to go over the books with those who question the figures. Nobody's accepted that offer yet. The report of the auditors shows that everything is in order. The state department believes that everything is in order. Where then, is the financial mismanagement?

A million-dollar plus budget that ends the year $11,000 in the red is not mismanaged. A school district that can successfully recover $126,000 in back state aid is not mismanaged. An operation that allows the lowest school tax rate in the area is not mismanaged.

Credit should be given where credit is due, despite personalities and lingering resentment over consolidation. It is time to unify our school district, and to begin to work together.

Study in contrasts

IF YOU WANTED a study in contrasts it was necessary to go no further than the Manistique harbor last week end.

Officially it's called the Manistique Yacht Basin, but the truth is that the title is about the only thing it has going for it.

The "Exploratory Fishing Trip" sponsored by the Department of Natural Resources for this area brought in top fishermen, sportsmen, writers and conservationists.

With them came hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of sleek fishing craft.

The sight of these bright, shining, gleaming boats tied up to the rotting docking and piling in the harbor is the study in contrasts we mentioned.

Interestingly enough, the experts themselves were not too upset over the lack of facilities. hhh

"There is always a time lag in these things," commented one, "between the time that the fishermen start coming into an area and the time that facilities are developed to service them."

The event did not help to emphasize the importance of the city's proposed marina development, and the need to pry loose the Federal funds that are needed to get the project underway.

This area could develop a thriving sports fishing industry, particularly along the Seux Choix shore, if the fish continue to thrive and harbor facilities are made available.

Let's hope that time and circumstances don't combine to pass this area by with this opportunity.

A prize-winning weekly newspaper published every Thursday at Manistique, Michigan, at the Top O' Lake Michigan in the heart of Michigan's beautiful Upper Peninsula.

The trouble with being a historian is that no two people can ever agree on exactly what happened when some event of historical significance is reported, or some historical figure analyzed.

We are still arguing about who won the War of 1812, for instance. One historian will write that George Washington seldom smiled because his false teeth didn't fit him, and another will write to contend that the reason was he was constipated. A story on Abe Lincoln that insinuates he told off-color stories and needed a deodorant will prompt feverish activity in southern Illinois to show just the opposite.

Most people think of history as pretty dull stuff, which is too bad. Most historical authorities, unfortunately, write like they had a head full of mush, and get so involved with detail and background that they fail to capture the magic of the event itself.

Etienne Brule was the first white man to see the Great Lakes, but unfortunately there were no television or radio announcers or tape recorders or newspaper correspondents on hand to properly record the event. The result is we get some facts and statistics that are dull as dishwater when with a little imagination and innovation we could have a lively story.

"Well, here it is 1610 A.D. already," said tall, handsome, swarthy, devil-may-care Etienne Brule, promising young French explorer, "and I think I will go out and discover a few things."

So Etienne went out and the next thing you know he has discovered the Ottawa River, Lake Nipissing and Lake Huron, which is not bad for a beginner.

"Voila!" cried Etienne, very pleased with himself, for exploring paid very well in those days, and he made enough so that he was able to lie around and draw unemployment for five years.

In 1615 he took a little trip down into New York and Pennsylvania, but the Quakers and the Shakers had pretty well cleared up all the exploring business in that area, and a bunch of Iroquois captured him and pulled out his fingernails and roasted his toolies over the campfire, which Etienne thought was a pretty unfriendly way to treat a tourist.

"Sacre Bleu!" he told his girl friend Marie

ALONG THE SIDELINES with Dave Rood

Exciting history

back in Quebec, "I'm a gonna study war no more!" But then he had a fight with Marie and his boss, Sam Champlain, needed some exploring done up around the Straits, so Etienne took off again after hitting Sam up for an advance that financed a dandy farewell party at the Chateau Frontenac.

Etienne hit it a pretty good lick this trip, for he right off the bat discovered Drummond Island, the St. Mary's River, and Sault Ste. Marie. Then he worked overtime one day and discovered Lake Superior, and on the way home he decided to discover Mackinac Island.

"Enchante!" he exclaimed as he sat in his canoe in the Straits, with the bow pointing off towards Prange's Department Store in Green Bay. "On my left, that is the lowair, and on my right, that is the oppair. I make one big pile of livres from thees treep."

He then went on west for awhile and discovered Naubinway, and the next day he was going to discover Manistique, but when he stepped ashore here he went into sawdust on the beach up to his armpits and he said the devil with it and turned around for home.

He could have retired at a very early age, what with all the money he had made exploring this trip, but he made the mistake of stopping at Mackinac Island on the way home and the high prices there cleaned him out, just like any other tourist.

Etienne fell on hard times after that. He took a trip over to Lake St. Clair, near Detroit, then got himself captured in one of the wars between the French and British, and sold out to the British, who then moved back to New York and left Etienne alone amongst his former friends, who treated him like a low-down skunk for selling out.

He made one last try at exploring and went over to Lake Huron again, but the Indians that used to be his friends had other ideas so they captured him, broiled him over an open fire and ate him, which is an even worse way to treat tourists than what the Iroquois do.

All of this is only a rough outline, you understand. With a little work and a little imagination we could make our history of the Great Lakes into a real exciting story. Especially if we find out what Etienne and Marie had that fight about.

A GOOD CONTRACT

As boards of education and teachers head into the summer rounds of negotiations, it is fair to ask, "What is a good contract?" The subject is vast and one must consider the youth and the citizens of a community as well as the legal framework for formal relationships between teachers and boards of education.

The negotiation division of the Michigan Education Association says, "...the test of course is whether or not we can create unique relationships which best meet the needs of public education and the teaching profession or are compelled to adopt traditional labor-management relationships which have existed in the private sector." My observation is that most teacher master contracts have been more "traditional labor-management" than "unique."

Mr. Kai Erickson, a representative of the MEA, adds that he hopes that we can be imaginative and creative enough to create our own concepts. He lists some of the ingredients which he thinks should be considered:

An extended school year with additional time included for in-service education.

The improvement of the teacher evaluation procedures, including tenure teachers as evaluators.

A salary schedule which recognizes the difference in types of training.

A reexamination of the extra pay for extra duties and perhaps providing additional released time.

Hiring permanent substitutes.

A teacher committee to pass on applications for personal leave.

A teacher committee to review federal programs.

Office hours for teachers in the evenings for parent and student consultation.

The answers to what constitutes a good teacher contract will vary considerably from district to district. The socio-economic structure of the community will influence them. The only real solution, as Mr. Erickson suggests, is for the representatives of teacher associations, board associations, administrator organizations and parent and student groups to begin working creatively and imaginatively to establish concepts which previously have been untried. Unfortunately, this imaginative-cooperative approach is not developing and public education is heading down the traditional labor-management trail, perhaps to the detriment of most people involved in it.

It's an ugly replacement for pine needles. Ashes and embers belong in your fireplace, not on the forest of the forest. Use fire like dynamite.

Echoes

from Harbor View Towers

BY HELEN D. MERWIN

This is a busy place. We have been presented with two lovely paintings by Sue Caffey. One is hung in the main lobby and one in the community room. They are lovely. Mr. Tilton gave us some mod-places which are also very pretty and they are in the community room.

Last week Mrs. Barr, Mr. Marzine and Mrs. Skoglund planted all the flowers in the patio planter.

We had such a lovely dinner party Tuesday evening. It was given as an appreciation dinner for Mr. Noe and a thank you from all the housing authority members and the tenants of Harbor View Towers.

They presented Mr. Noe with a beautiful winter scene, typical of this North country. The food was greatly enjoyed by all. Mr. Noe gave a farewell address to us. There were thirty eight in attendance.

Our next project will be a trip to Fairview Manor, at Gladstone where they have asked us to come and visit the afternoon of June 25th from 2 to 5 p.m. We hope we can get two or three carloads to go.

After the fourth of July we hope to have another card party. Many of our tenants are away now on summer visits.

The best I have this week is a poem written by Margaret Stevenson:

In Appreciation of Harbor View Towers

Remember when growing old meant loneliness
Insecurity and heartaches too
With old friends fast departing
And new friends far too few?

Well, everything is different here—

We have not been cast aside;
For us, a home has been provided

Where we can live with dignity and pride.

Here friends are all about us—

Always some who understand.
Just reach out and there you'll find
An ever ready helping hand.

To those who are responsible,
We wish that we could show
Just how much this refuge

means to us;
Truly "Our Cup Doth Overflow."

Our gratitude is boundless—
Words are inadequate to express

The warm glow kindled in our hearts,

The depth of our happiness.

Some extol the life hereafter;
Some, re-incarnation and re-birth

But Harbor View Towers has given us

A Paradise here on earth!

Are you over 40 and acting like you aren't?

After 40 the possibility of cancer of the rectum increases markedly.

Yet almost 3 out of 4 people stricken in their prime might be saved by early diagnosis and prompt treatment.

The next time you have your annual checkup, be a real adult. Ask your doctor to include a procto examination.

After all, life should just begin at forty.

It's up to you, too.

LOOKING FOR GOD

Some say you find God just as well in a garden, in the woods, or on a golf course as in a church — that God is everywhere. But be honest about it.

Are you not more apt to think of weeds, or mosquitoes, or a poor shot than you are of God? And after all, you have made this outing to seek pleasure.

But when you go to church, it is with the specific intention of worshipping. Here you engage in prayer, praise and thanksgiving. Here you mingle with people who are seeking God and have come to feel His presence. In the quiet beauty of a church you find few outside distractions, and you know that this place is dedicated to the service of God.

For peace and happiness which comes from really feeling God's presence, worship in the house of the Lord this Sunday — make it a regular practice.
