Deer is hit, but gets away

Who says there's no deer left in Schoolcraft County?

Elizabeth T. Arcey, 32, of Benoni, Mich., was ticketed for saving an operator's license and for failure to yield the right of way after her car collided with a vehicle driven by Lindell M. Pickett, 55, of Flint, Sunday at 12:45 a.m. on M-77 in Germask Township at the intersection of County Road 98.

Michael Luvit, 18, of Cooks, was injured slightly Friday at 11:40 p.m. when his car was forced off County Road 442 in Thompson Township by an oncoming vehicle. His car hit three guard rails.

Driver of the motorbike, who escaped injury, was Delbert Sheppard, 46, of route 1. He was thrown from his vehicle.

Airport hearing possible

The possibility of a public hearing on the proposed expansion and improvement of Schoolcraft County airport was outlined Tuesday night at the regular meeting of the County Board of Commissioners.

The board will advertise next week regarding a public hearing and if any written reply is received within 15 days, a hearing will be set.

Total cost of the proposed project, which calls for extension of the existing east-west paved runway and development of a shorter north-south runway, plus a new terminal building and parking area, is $300,000. It has been hoped that Federal funds would be available for a substantial portion of the total cost.

The sale of some surplus equipment at the airport, including a hay baler, three generators and a truck motor, totaling $1,200, was reported by airport chairman Norman Jahn.

John Davidson, Manistiquie Township clerk, was named to fill the vacancy on the Schoolcraft County Special Election scheduling committee, caused by the recent death of Fay L. Patterson. They also accepted the resignation of Fred H. Blaine from the County Planning Commission, effective immediately, and named Keith McLeod to finish out the rest of his term, which expires Dec. 31 this year. McLeod had earlier been named to succeed Blaine on the commission at the start of next year.

Also approved was a resolution calling for the governor to appoint an Upper Peninsula resident to be commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources. The terms of Gus Schelle of Detroit and Matt Laitala, Hancock, expire this year. Board chairman Lindsay Frenette said there was not much enthusiasm for Laitala's reappointment because of his stand in favor of the doe season in the U.P., and appointment of Wendell Sanders. The local board chose to merely endorse a U.P. representative on the commission, however.

EMPTY—The paperback collection of 200 volumes at the Manistiquie School and Public Library was removed from the library shelves last Wednesday in a demonstration of what could happen as the result of censorship. The books were returned Thursday.

Library issue still simmers

The controversy over the Manistiquie School and Public Library continued to eb and flow during the past week.

The debate is a continuing result of the complaints of a group of residents, led by Mrs. Ila Manning, 906 W. Elk St., that last week led to the "removal" of two books from the library shelves until a decision is reached by the Library Advisory Board and the Board of Education. The two books are "Do It" by Jerry Rubin and "Nigger Bible" by Robert DeCoy.

In a demonstration of what library censorship could do, about 200 volumes were removed from the paperback shelves at the library Wednesday, and replaced by a sign reading, "Is this Democracy?" The books were replaced Thursday.

Petitions supporting the American Library Association's "Bill of Rights" began being circulated by student volunteers late last week. Also, at least one meeting of concerned adults opposed to censorship was held this week.

The Library Advisory Board will hold its regular monthly meeting at noon Thursday in the conference room at the school. A joint meeting of the Library Board and the Board of Education is scheduled for next Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium.

Snowmobile mishaps up

Snowmobiling activity in Michigan in the winter season of 1969-70 resulted in 1,150 accidents which claimed 19 lives and injured 1,181 other persons, according to information obtained and compiled by the State Police traffic division. Compared with available data the previous season, deaths were up by six or 50 per cent while injuries and accidents showed a doubling of totals with increases respectively of 619 and 617.

The Division's figures, which are obtained from both traffic mobile reports of snowmobile accidents made to police or other agencies, showed 13 deaths and 562 injured in 573 accidents for 1968-69.

Department of State registrations of snowmobiles as of Nov. 3 this year totaled 131,219. This was 57,592 more than 73,287 as of Dec. 29, 1969. Unknown is the accurate number of snowmobiles operated on private property and not requiring registration.

Breakdown of types of accidents involving snowmobiles included overtraining or running off the roadway 223; collisions with another motor vehicle 244, with pedestrian 19, with fixed or other objects 297, with animals 4, with a train 1, and miscellaneous 402. The still-growing sport of snowmobiling lacks good base period data for comparison purposes. The Michigan Legislature in 1968 passed the snowmobile registration law which became effective in 1969. Collection of accident data is affected as well by the growth period.

Park birch are ailing

A number of white birch in the park area of the lower falls of Tahquamenon Falls State Park have started dying this summer. This "die back" occurs in the upper margin of the tree crown. In some cases the dying may progress steadily downward, because white birch is so important in the total ecology and beauty of the lower falls area, the Park Administration has become concerned over the future of the birch.

In their efforts to find the cause and possible solution, they called in the DNR's Regional Forest Entomologist, Keith Johnson, from Marquette.

After examining the affected trees, it was Johnson's opinion that four possible causes could be involved. Three of these concern insects attacking the trees. The fourth may be loss of vigor and dying due to the old age of some of the birch. However, because of the lateness in the season, a definite determination could not be made.

Johnson was able to say this problem will not reach epidemic proportions or cause the loss of the lower falls paper birch.

It was decided the best way to handle the problem is for Johnson to study the problem beginning next spring when the tree growth begins. The study will be continued through the summer. Management recommendations based on the study will then be made.

Rules cleared on cremation. If you want your ashes scattered over your favorite stream after you die, you can, as far as the State Cemetery Commission is concerned. The Commission, a division of the Michigan Department of Commerce, feels that cremation is final and what happens to the ashes is of no concern to the Commission as there is no health hazard involved. Earlier this year, the Commission considered a proposed rule that would require the ashes to be buried or interred after cremation. The proposed rule was withdrawn following a public hearing at which it was opposed by nearly everyone in attendance. Major objection to the proposed rule was that relatives would no longer be able to keep a loved one's ashes following cremation. Many persons, it was brought out, keep the ashes of their husbands, wives or other close relatives. The Commission reported there were 1,708 cremations in Michigan during 1969, a decrease of 67 compared to 1968.

Senior Citizens' Corner

BY HELEN MALES
Our center has been getting a "new look" this week. The ceiling has been repaired and a new light fixture added. We are fortunate to have such a fine crew that will give our Senior citizens a "home," besides doing our repair work, we get our rent, electricity, water and fuel free. We think you, the city of Manistique, for donating this to us. Many may not know this but our county also funds the center $2,000 to keep it operating. In this time of difficulty that we have in our community, we hoped to give thanks for the things we have in our town. We have a lot of people that are anxious of taking away from us.

To all those who voted for me and to the many loyal and faithful friends who assisted in my campaign for State Senator I want to express my heartfelt appreciation.
Despite my failure to win election, I want to assure you I shall not lessen my interest in your concerns and, through all channels available to me, I shall continue to work for good government for all of us.

It has been a source of inspiration to me to form thousands of new friendships during my campaign. To the youth who supported me and chose to work inside the democratic system I am also grateful.

I shall continue to cherish the wonderful experiences which came my way during the campaign and I want to invite you to contact me if I can be of service at any time.

Letters to the Editor

Nov. 1, 1970
To the Editor:
I read your letter to Garf in the paper recently and thought you might like to read this one I'm sending that I got from a Donut Dolly. I thought you could publish it as a public warning or something.

for it means no less than "Get the hell out of here." Do not let it shake you if he picks up the phone and yells "Parade, parade, six" or "Ranger out" for goodbye or simply slouts "working."

I have 67 days left in the Army. I've been here in Nam a little over a year. I'd like you to mention a few of my buddies that are also short: Dennis (Grub) White, Jeff Mattlin, Roddy Savages, Rick Marsler, Roger Vanderville, and anyone else who's short.

Never ask why the Jones' son held a higher rank than he, and by no means mention the term "extend." Pretend not to notice if at a restaurant he calls the waitress "Number one girl" and uses his last as an acronym. He will probably keep listening for "Homebound" to sound off over AFM. If he does, comfort him, for he is reminiscing. Be especially watchful when he is in the presence of a woman, especially a beautiful woman.

I get the Tribune over here and enjoy it. I think my favorite column is District Court, 'Ja Ha.

Above all, keep in mind that beneath that tanned and rugged exterior there is a heart of gold. The only thing of value he has left. Treat him with kindness, tolerance and an occasional flit of good humor, and you will be able to rehabilitate that whole side of a woman, especially a hollow shell of the happy-go-lucky guy you once knew and loved.

Well, I must close now, Take it easy.

Dear Citizens, Friends, Draft Dodgers, Etc.
In the near, very near, future, the undersigned will come once more into your midst, dehydrated and demoralized, to take his place again as a human being with the well-known forms of freedom and justice for all; to engage in life, liberty and the somewhat delayed pursuit of happiness. In making your him back into organized society you might take certain steps to make allowance for the crude environment that has been his for the past 12 months. In other words, he might be a little Asiatic from Vietnamitis and overseasitis, and should be handled with care. Do not be alarmed if he is infective with all forms of rare tropical diseases. A little time in the "Land of the Big PX" will cure this malady.

What's the question

PERHAPS IT WOULD BE HELPFUL, in the current uproar over our library and its books, to determine exactly what it is that we are arguing about.

In rough-and-tumble debate perhaps a case can be made for the techniques of answering a question with a question, or of cloaking a passage in patriotism, using insinuation and innuendo and impugning the morality and veracity of your opponent. There is little place for these approaches, however, when we are attempting to sort out the systems by which our library shall operate.

What are we arguing about?

The two books, "Do It!" and "Nigger Bible," by Jerry Rubin and Robert DeCoy?

The library advisory board and how it operates? The school board's role in library operation? Library methods and procedures? The librarian's judgement? Censorship of all books in the library? Some books?

The issue at hand may be one, some, or all of these, but basically part of the trouble has been that we have galloped off in all directions trying to find the answers before we know what the questions are.

We have let emotion replace reason.

Board President William Mueller did a good job of analyzing the situation at the last board meeting when he remarked that there seemed to be general agreement that there should be restrictions on this kind of material, but the question was, what type of restrictions? Unfortunately, his perceptive analysis seemed to get lost in the heat of the arguments that followed.

There is little argument for the approach that says any and all books should be made indiscriminately available to youngsters of every age.

At the same time there is little reason why the reading habits and inclinations of the general public should be subjected to the whims of self-appointed censors and moralists.

There is little reason that those who are leery of attempting to control teaching methods and resource materials should be labeled as un-Christian, immoral, permissive and unpatriotic.

We are walking a thin line here, and the danger of over-reaction can be just as serious as the folly of ignoring public sentiment in the matter.

Unfortunately, what is happening is that we are dividing ourselves as a community, choosing up sides for a battle that can have no winners. You are either for one side or against it, and there is no middle ground in the minds of many.

We say this is unfortunate, for we think there is a middle ground. We think solutions can be reached after reasonable and ordered discussion in a logical manner. We are not writing law here, nor are we prescribing moral standards for the community. Certainly morality is involved, but there is immorality in censorship, and having a little bit of censorship is like being a little bit pregnant. The end result is inevitable.

Let's not divide our community into the good guys and the bad guys. Let's not tear down friendship and understanding and respect in the course of attempting to solve a problem. That's the sort of thing that can destroy America as we know and love it—and nothing would delight Jerry Rubin more.

Fire in the forest which was a surprise to most of us, "so we'll hunt."

So off we went. By the time we had arrived at our hunting stands we were a wet, soggy, bedraggled group, but we spread ourselves out for about a mile along a ridge overlooking what Hentschell contended was a deer run, and waited for the dawn's early light.

This was before I got smart several years ago and constructed a deer blind with a few creature comforts, and so that day I felt rather exposed, trying to hide from the rain under a big pine. I rigged up my raincoat to some low branches right above me, to form a roof of sorts, and sat and shivered on an old log that butted up against the tree trunk.

It took awhile, what with the dark and the rain and the cold, but eventually, a great idea was born. I would build a fire.

The old log I was sitting on was fairly dry, and there were dry pine needles underneath, so it didn't take long. Thinking ahead, I built the fire on the end of the log away from me and the tree, so that I could continue to sit beneath the shelter and warm my feet while the log I sat on burned away. Oh my, did that fire feel good.

And as I sat there, reviving, I noted an interesting thing. The fire had spread to the wet part of the log, and a tremendous cloud of smoke was being generated. The wind was blowing away from me, however, and the smoke-screen rolled and curled down the knoll, across the swale and through the tag alders, directly toward Himsel's blind.

Well, By the time the hour had come to go back to camp I was dry and revived, having enjoyed a brief nap before the warm fire. The blaze was extinguished and the ashes buried and I was ready for lunch and the card game.

But Himsel? Oh my. He was disgruntled, cold and soaking wet. "Didn't see a thing," he complained, "and some dumb bleep bleep had built a fire somewhere and there was smoke all around me."

"Yes, I noticed that too," I said, "Probably some sugar beeter."

I never did tell him who built the fire. I may not be the smartest hunter in the woods, but that day, at least, I was one of the warmest.

Some deer hunters take their hunting much more seriously than others.

In fact, I have heard that some hunters are actually disappointed if they go home without a buck.

Somehow, I like the other approach better. In the six years or so that we have gathered at Himsel Hentschell's camp at Thunder Lake for opening day, nobody has yet managed to spoil everything by shooting a deer. In fact the closest thing to it came several years ago when Harry Purdy, hunting out of Mathson's camp next door, shot a hole in the floorboards of his car. Everyone applauded his marksmanship, which put to rest the contention that he couldn't hit the floor with his hat.

(In fact someone once told Harry he couldn't pour water out of his boots if the instructions were printed on the heel, so we conducted an experiment, and he could. It took him two tries, but he could.)

It isn't that we don't take our hunting seriously. Himsel is very determined about these things, and heaven knows does his best by clearing fire lanes and building blinds and getting us up at all hours of the morning and hauling us out into the woods.

This is not easy. There is a certain inclination, when you are at camp, to set aside your normal routine, and to not necessarily observe your normal hours for going to bed and getting up. Your diet also varies considerably, you might say, with the result that many mornings you find yourself bothered with acid indigestion, if you'll pardon the expression, staggering proportions.

Thus it was on Opening Morning several years ago, when Himsel arose, took his bugle from the wall and blew reveille, then shouted "Daylight in the swamp!" This wasn't exactly factual, as there were several hours to daylight, but the hunters in the group managed to eventually get upright, pour some coffee down their throats, and throw on their clothing to face the elements.

And such elements! It was rain---cold, drizzling rain that bordered on snow, with a cold wind out of the north. Oh, what a dismal day.

Do you think that deterred us? You're right, it did, except Himsel wouldn't allow us to chicken out. "You came up to hunt," he said,

TWO-FINGERED RUMMY AND OTHER CAUSES

The Editor mentioned it casually in his column on hunting camps last week, and I quote, "Tommy Longlegs and Don Odd are playing Two-Fingered Rummy." It gave my tired old heart a lift to read this, because I take full credit and assume full responsibility for the introduction of Two-Fingered Rummy to recreational advancement in Manistique and the surrounding area.

This took considerable effort, as I had forgotten how to play this delightful and fascinating game. To overcome this minor handicap, I visited the U.P. Old Timers' Golf Tournament last time it was held at the Indian Lake Golf and Country Club. (As a matter of casual interest, I am not eligible to play in the Old Timers', but there are no restrictions on us young fellows regarding Two-Fingered Rummy.) My old Timer friends from the Highland were glad to review the rules and regulations. After a few hours and a few losing rounds, which, as Damon Runyan used to say, were "more than somewhat," I was ready to introduce the game in Manistique.

This was accomplished by suggesting to our foursome after the next golf round, that along with our tomato juice, we play this new, fascinating, and delightful game. To persuade the timid to participate, there is a line of patter that goes with the introduction. I don't have it down pat, but as I recall, it goes something like, "There's nothing to it, it's easy to learn, and you can't get hurt."

From this point on, it reads like a recipe, which I will now present for the edification of the local and visiting hunters.

Players: Any number that can squeeze themselves around one table. (Not less than two. Two-Fingered Rummy is not a game of solitaire.)

Cards: Standard 52 card deck. Remaining ingredients: A handful of small change for purpose of keeping score.

Directions: Deal one card to each player and three to the player left of the dealer. Player to the left of the dealer discards one card face up. The next player draws two and discards one. One of the two cards drawn may be taken from the discards, but it must be taken first, and it may not be discarded on that draw.

Continue this process until one player goes out completely by laying down spreads of cards in suit and sequence or three or four of a kind, or until the deck is depleted. The player with the fewest points or no cards wins. (All cards count face value, face cards are ten, and the ace is one.) At that point small change is exchanged to keep score.

Like I said, it's simple.

It is no surprise to learn that the game has been introduced at Himsel Hentschell's camp. Himsel, along with the Editor, Harold the Stone Salesman, and Tommy Longlegs are charter members of the Manistique Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement and Perpetuation of Two-Fingered Rummy (NAAFTFR). Others in the community who are members in good standing are paisan Clarence Leach, Clarence Peterson, Butch DeJoria, Bud Malloy, Ken Van Eyck, and Don Odd. (I understand there is a local ladies' chapter which is still in the organizational stages.)

As a sometimes champion of causes and movements (many of them lost), I have, on the basis of seniority, appointed myself president of the local chapter. I will gladly step aside as soon as the permanent president is elected.

It is our fond wish and fervent hope that Two-Fingered Rummy will be enhanced to the status enjoyed by bridge, smear, pinochle, five hundred, schafskop, euchre, and Old Maid. After all, "It's a great camp game. There's nothing to it. It's easy to learn. Any number can play and you can't get hurt."

We could do worse in the selection of causes which we might wish to champion.

Extension News Notes

BY HOWARD HANDORF
County Extension Director
Schoolcraft County

Have you joined the Schoolcraft County Area Industrial Development Corporation? I interviewed Phil Ott on my radio program last Saturday. He is secretary for this non-profit local corporation. Minimum memberships for an individual are $10. Joining this organization will give you a voice in the future development of Manistique and Schoolcraft County. This will not be a short term investment, however, with luck and a great deal of hard work we can all join together in trying to obtain more jobs in this area. Think it over and put your money where your mouth is!

Yes, the new Plat Books are in! Primary distribution points are: County Clerk's Office, court house and Extension Office in the post office. During hunting season these books will be available at the following locations: Cooks, Carley's Grocery; Thunder Lake, Peterson's; Hiawatha Township, Brady's Resort; City of Manistique, Northern Woolens and Top O' Lake Sporting Goods; Gulliver, Village Store; Blaney, Blaney Store; Germfask, Cliff and Gerry's Standard; Seney, Bob's Texaco. I believe (although I must admit I am prejudiced) we have a good looking book and that the errors have been kept to the absolute minimum.

As we explained when we were selling the ads, those advertisers with a $25 or larger ad will be receiving a complimentary copy of the plat book. Some of you in the immediate area have already received your copy, the remainder will be receiving their book during this week.

I visited several establishments Friday afternoon and talked with some local hunters. From the sound of things then everybody is all set to go and have a good time (even if they don't see a four-footed beast with antlers). We do have a bulletin of interest to the wives of successful hunters, however, Extension Bulletin E-657 - "Venison .. Upper Peninsula style" contains many using up the prime cuts as well as the less than choice cuts. This bulletin is available by either stopping in at the office or giving us a phone call at 341-5050.

Tax money distributed

William E. Cowman, Schoolcraft County Treasurer, has advised that the sales tax diversion monies for the third quarter ending Sept. 30, with adjusted figures for the first and second quarters based on the 1970 census figures, has been received.

A total of $11,409.89 was received with distribution as follows: Doyle, $878.90; Germ-task, $969.80; Hiawatha, $1,013.69; Inwood, $916.50; Manistique, $951.49; Mueller, $549.59; Seney, $387.08; Thompson, $581.13 and City of Manistique, $5,161.71.

A further adjustment may be made on the next quarterly payment for the townships. Since a complete breakdown on the county population figures was not received, although the final federal figures are in for the county as a whole and for the city.

When the United States inaugurated Rural Free Delivery in 1896, many farmers regarded the mailman as a federal interloper and complained that he deprived them of an excuse for going into town to exchange gossip at the county post office.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints

Through every generation — people have looked for peace and security. Hundreds of volumes have been written on the subject and thinkers and writers have devoted their lives to the search.

But of all these books, the Bible is most concerned with peace and security. "Fear not, for I am with you; be not dismayed for I am your God."

No man-made philosophy can banish the worries and troubles of today's complex life. But in the gospel we find assurance of His care.

God loves us. When we go to Him in humility, He cleanses us of sin. Our minds are put at ease. Peace fills our souls.

Go then to the Book for modern man. Through study, prayer and worship we will find that peace which has been granted to millions — in every country — in every age. Discover anew the life for modern man.

What will you have for your Thanksgiving dinner? I'm old fashioned enough to want roast turkey or chicken with lots of good dressing, mashed potatoes, gravy, cranberry sauce or relish and pumpkin pie. The rest of the meal can be anything.

Turkey prices are very reasonable this year and will vary, depending mostly on the size of the bird. Hens under 10 pounds usually cost more and special kinds like the self-basting are higher in price. The frozen stuffed turkey is the most expensive because most of the work has been done for you. All are Grade A, top quality. Watch the ads in your local papers to find the best buys. Look for a plump, fresh looking bird.

All turkeys are frozen when you purchase them. You can thaw them in different ways. The newest method recommended suggest thawing the turkey, still in its original plastic wrap, in a closed brown paper bag or two or three layers of newspaper. Place the bagged turkey on a tray or pan and hold it at room temperature until thawed. A 10 pound turkey will be thawed in about 8 to 10 hours. Larger birds, of course, will take longer. The bag or paper wrapping keeps the inside temperature at about 55 degrees - only slightly warmer than the refrigerator. Thawing at room temperature - without the paper - is not recommended. You're giving bacteria a chance to develop. Other methods of thawing are the traditional thawing in the refrigerator or thawing in cold water. For both ways, keep the bird in its original plastic wrap. The slower defrosting provided by all three methods is safer because the outside of the bird doesn't get warm by the time the inside is thawed. Slower defrosting also results in less dripping so juicier meat and lower cooking losses are other reasons for proper thawing. Place the thawed turkey in the refrigerator until you're ready to cook it.

Pre-stuffed turkeys go directly from freezer to oven. Just follow directions given on the package. More next time about your Thanksgiving dinner.
