Romney, Levin and Davis carry county Primary vote

Lenore Romney, Sander Levin and State Representative Robert Davis were Schoolcraft County winners in voting in Tuesday's Primary election. Mrs. Romney held a 446-277 advantage over State Sen. Robert Haber in the fight for the Republican nomination for U.S. Senator; Sander Levin held a 3-2 margin, 325-211, over his nearest challenger in the four-way race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination; and Davis held a 374-141 advantage over Frank Heselton in the race for the Republican nomination for State Senator from the 37th District.

In the only other state-wide race, Gov. Milliken took Schoolcraft County 510-115, from his challenger, Janet Turner, for the GOP nomination. County voters also settled primary races in four townships, and by an overwhelming 1,049 to 775, endorsed an advisory proposal to ban antler deer hunting in the county for at least two years.

Here are the races by townships:

DOYLE
There was one race--on the Democratic ticket for trustee for a four-year term. Agnes McClean defeated George Husick, 38-23. Unopposed Democratic candidates were Richard Rodgers, supervisor, 59; Edwin Johnson, clerk, 58; Edna Bashore, treasurer, 59; Robert Goudreau, trustee for two-year term, 58. On the Republican side, the only candidate was Adela LaCroix, trustee for a two-year term, 15.

GERMFAK
No contests were on either ballot. Republican candidates, and their votes: Robert Jack, supervisor, 32; Carley Williams, clerk, 34 and Charles Snyder, constable, 17. Democratic candidates and their vote totals: Mary Lytle, treasurer, 21; George Burton, trustee for four years, 10.

HAWATHA
On the Democratic side, clerk Maynard Blandford was unopposed and totaled 56 votes. For treasurer, it was Margaret Ann Deloria, 27, losing to John Swanson, 39. Other totals: Lawrence Aldrich, trustee, four-year term, 47; Nicholas Frankovich, trustee for two-year term, 49; and Leo Dean, constable, 60.

The Republicans had the big race in Hawatha, with incumbent superintendent Agner Delth successfully withdrawing the challenge of Merwin White, 38-63, other GOP candidates and their totals: Kathleen R. Reid, clerk, 89; Joel J. King, treasurer, 109; and Charles Hentel, trustee for four-year term, 110.

INWOOD
The only candidates in Inwood Township were on the Democratic ticket, where there were no contests. The candidates and their totals: Joel Carley, supervisor, 25; Arthur Gray, clerk, 25; Margaret Cantrill, treasurer, 23 and Donald Benard, trustee for four years, 22.

MUEHLER
Probably the hottest township race was in Mueller, where Democrat incumbent supervisor Wells Housner successfully turned back challenger Harry Wilton, 72-45. Housner also picked up three write-in votes to lead the Republican slate for that office. For the Democratic nomination for the clerk's post, Cecil Hubick defeated William H. Tenneyson, 83-36. The closest race of the day came when Janet G. Haull defeated Diane Sue Price for the Democratic nomination for treasurer, 59-58. Sandra Lee Price totaled 65 votes running unopposed for the nomination for trustee for four years, and in the Democratic race for constable, Kenneth Leontopedy Lyle Rosebush, 78-69.

MANISTIQUE
Democrats had the competition in Manistique Township. Linda Sellers defeated James Gierke for the nomination for supervisor, 61-57, while incumbent John Watson turned

US-2 survey planned

A planning survey to determine the most feasible type of highway along the US-2 corridor in the Upper Peninsula is under way, the Department of State Highways said this week.

Henrik E. Stafseth, Department director, said the study will be conducted by Edwards and Keley, Inc., an engineering consultant firm of Minneapolis, under a $10,000 technical assistance grant from the Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission (UGLRC).

The US-2 study -- to develop guidelines for a high mobility thru-bone route -- is one phase of a three-part study. The other two phases involve different types of routes in related areas of Minnesota and Wisconsin.

General purpose of UGLRC is to revive the "distressed economy" of the entire region. With its $10,000 grant, UGLRC emphasized the importance of highways to economic development.

Major thrust of the US-2 study will be to determine the type of highway that can best serve not only existing economy but also stimulate economic activity while still providing safe, efficient travel conditions.

US-2 presents unusual and seemingly conflicting service elements such as high mobility versus numerous exits for recreational advantage.

In its planning objective, the Edwards and Keley firm stated:

"This travel corridor (US-2) includes all of the elements considered of prime import to the study: major recreation areas along the Lake Michigan shoreline; several urban areas; established businesses -- probably tourist and recreation oriented to which ready access must be provided; long-distance through traffic; and a tremendous potential for recreation-tourism economic development."

"Obviously, all of the objectives cannot receive optimum consideration. The determination of the relative value of each of these considerations will be the primary concern of this phase of the over-all study."

The study, therefore, will determine whether an entirely new type of highway would best serve; or whether it's preferable to improve existing US-2 -- adding more lanes, for example.

The study will involve that portion of US-2 from Interstate 75 at St. Ignace to Escanaba. The study also will incorporate the M-35 corridor from Escanaba to Menominee. Resultant guidelines are expected to have application to US-2 west from Escanaba to Ironwood and to other economically distressed regions of the nation.

The Highway Departments of Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin developed criteria for the study and will be involved in it.

Michigan's liaison representative to the consulting firm is Sam F. Cryderman, engineer of the Highway Department's Transportation Planning Division.

Cryderman said U.P. local interests are encouraged to volunteer data and information to the consulting firm. He said the Highway Department also stands ready to assist local groups in developing data and information deemed pertinent to the study.

U.P. local interests wishing to confer with the study team should contact: Frank B. Likens, project manager, Edwards and Keley, Inc., 4930 W. 77th St., Minneapolis, Minn. 55435.

Similar contact with the Highway Department should be made with: Sam F. Cryderman, Engineer, Transportation Planning Department of State Highways, P.O. Drawer K, Lansing, Mich. 48904.

FULL HOUSE--Those spectators who climbed the sand hills at the north edge of the Little League diamond had a birdseye view of the action Monday afternoon as the Manistique All-Stars defeated West Duluth, 4-2, in sub-regional play.

Little Leaguers advance

Manistique's Little League team rallied for three runs in the fifth inning to edge a Duluth team in sub-regional play, 4-2, in sub-regional play at the Little League diamond in Manistique. The Manistique All-Stars, winners of their fifth Little League Series, defeated the Duluth team in sub-regional play, 4-2, in sub-regional play at the Little League diamond in Manistique. Shore squad at 6 p.m. in the second contest, and the winners of Friday's games will meet at 2 p.m. Saturday for the sectional and the right to progress to regional play. Regional winners then go to Williamsport, Pa. for the Little League World Series.

Camp dedication set

A lodge and dining hall, plus an historic Indian Point Bell, will be dedicated in ceremonies at Summer Camp on Big Island Saturday afternoon. The new lodge, made possible by a $50,000 grant from the Foundation, was started last summer. It will enable the camp to accommodate up to 100 campers per session. The mission bell, from Nahma, was donated by the Marquette Diocese of the Catholic Church. The camp, operated by Summer Science, Inc., was founded by educators and businessmen from the Detroit area in 1967. Adult organizers of the camp each recruit high school students dedicated to a scientific study and take them to the island, three miles south of the tip of the Garden Peninsula, for a summer with experts in their own field.

Jeff Miller found himself with control trouble in the first inning as Ontonagon picked up their two runs, but he settled down to hurl hitless ball the rest of the game to pick up the win. The second grand slammer came in the fifth, as Jimmy Nelson, who had put three previous fly balls deep to left field, made it off the fence for four more runs. Ketchik allowed only four hits, walked one and struck out five for the pitching decision. Box scores and pictures on Page 2.

Art classes open Monday

A two-week series of art classes, fostered by a grant from the Michigan State Commission for the Arts, opens here at one o'clock Monday afternoon in Manistique High School art room. Classes will be held afternoons on Friday, August 10 through 21. Tuition fee for the entire course is $5.00.

Ellen Phelan, of Detroit, instructor at Detroit Institute of Arts, has been appointed by the State Council to conduct the classes here.

All interested persons in the Manistique area and neighboring districts are urged to participate in the artist-in-residence course. Registrations are being accepted by Margaret Dixon at 301 South Cedar, Manistique, or by the Manistique Art Club, Box 100, Manistique, Mich. 49854. Miss Phelan, who has bachelor and master degrees in art from Wayne State University, indicates her goal in the Manistique program is to stimulate a "more conscious involvement with formal painting problems such as color placement, structure, use of pictorial space" and "to develop greater technical facility and control of various media." She has also said, "We do hope to make this a more continuing experience than our two weeks together would imply."

GRADUATE--Mrs. Anna Blanchard, a teaching great-grandmother, is congratulated by her sons Elmer and Edmund after receiving her bachelor of science degree from Northern Michigan University on Saturday.

Veteran teacher 'graduates'

Mrs. Anna Astlin Blanchard of Gould City, a great-grandmother who has taught in the public school system for over 50 years, was among the graduates who received a bachelor of science degree from Northern Michigan University on Aug. 1. The oldest person ever to graduate from Northern Michigan, Mrs. Blanchard received her special teaching certificate from Ferris Institute and began her teaching at the White School, located south of Gould City. Subsequently she taught at the Blanchard School and Cortice, both in the Gould City area. In 1929 she began teaching at Newton Township school, where she continued until 1960 when a broken leg suffered at school forced her temporary retirement. Then due to the illness of her husband, she remained in retirement until 1963 when she returned to teach the kindergarten class at the Engadine Consolidated school, where she is presently employed. In 1967 she taught her great-granddaughter, Jeannette O'Neil, daughter of the former Elnora Blanchard and Jim O'Neil. The mother of two children, Elmer and Edmund Blanchard of Gould City, she has 12 grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. Her grandson Tom Blanchard graduated from Northern Michigan in 1962 and two grandsons, John and Gerry Blanchard, are in the process of receiving their degrees there. Their education has been interrupted by service in the Marine Corps, John in Vietnam and Gerry at OCS School in Quantico, Va. Now that she has received her degree, Mrs. Blanchard plans to continue teaching the youngsters as she has for so many years.

Jury finds no cause

A decision of no cause for action was returned by a Circuit Court jury last Wednesday afternoon in the civil damages suit filed by Mrs. Charlene Gould against John G. Korte, 208 N. Fifth St.

Mrs. Gould sought damages of $175,000 for herself and seven children in connection with the snowmobile -- car accident that resulted in the death of her husband. The accident occurred Feb. 2, 1969, when a car driven by Korte struck and killed Gordon F. Gould, 40, on M-94. Gould had stopped his snow machine in the road when the accident happened at 7 p.m.

Following the claim were jury foreman Billie Doyle and jurors Patricia DeGroot, Eula Ann Rosebush, Aisley Fleck, Mary Schubring, Audrey Newborn, Ellen Aldrich, Thomas McManus, Carl Lyons, Lawrence Anderson and Robert Smith. Juror Maurice Cosmeaux voted for the plaintiff in the 11-1 decision. The jury was out for just over an hour before returning with the decision.

Ken Tilton spent Monday at the hospital, but is back home today. Our grounds have been so pretty since the rain, Mike sure keeps things looking neat around here. Our flowers are flourishing too. We all get to enjoy the pastures. The patio garden is a joy to see, thanks to Agnes Bary, who put them in for us.

Mrs. Robert G. Lee and daughter Roberta from Pontiac, Mich., visited Mrs. Helen Merwin and Mrs. Charlotte Kerr this week.

Jim Huphson is still undergoing treatments at the hospital in Minneapolis.

Social Services role described in series

(Editor's note: In an effort to better acquaint the public with the various jobs of the Department of Social Services, the Pioneer-Tribune is presenting a series of six articles that tell the story and localize the various programs that are offered.)

FOURTH OF A SERIES

You're healthy - the doctor says so. You've got 20-20 vision, and you aren't even wearing glasses. You're earning a good income.

So why should you be concerned about disability, blindness or unpaid medical bills? This isn't a sales talk for insurance, but an introduction to some programs which you as a taxpayer are supporting through the Michigan Department of Social Services.

In the current furor over Aid to Dependent Children, much of the other work done by Social Services has gone somewhat unnoticed. Among these less-publicized programs are those devoted to the disabled, the blind, and persons unable to pay for medical care.

These programs are designed to help those with physical as well as financial problems. Although a physical handicap does not always mean poverty, persons who are severely disabled are frequently unable to earn enough to support himself. Even a relatively affluent person may not be able to meet the constantly rising cost of highly specialized medical care.

In such cases, the Department of Social Services may be able to help. Aid to the Blind and Aid to the Disabled, as the first two programs are known, both require medical verification of the condition. The last time you hit your thumb with a hammer, you may have convinced your wife that you were too disabled to put up the screens the next day. The last dent in the fender may have convinced you that your wife is blind. But this won't count.

Both programs set specific limits on the person's real property which a person may own. The amount of assistance which a person receives is determined by listing his monthly income and expenses according to standards set by Social Services.

In February, 1970, there were over 25,300 Aid to Disabled recipients in Michigan and over 1,400 Aid to the Blind recipients.

Assistance to the blind does not stop with money. Perhaps more important is the program of training and vocational rehabilitation available from Social Services through the Division of Services to the Blind.

Rehabilitation of a blind person must frequently begin with learning how to handle the ordinary chores of everyday living. A blind man must learn how to shave. A woman who is blind must learn how to apply her makeup. They both can learn to travel by bus, and how to dial a telephone.

To help teach these and other skills, Social Services recently opened a new facility in Kalamazoo which will serve the entire state, including the Upper Peninsula. The training which is now available at this center was formerly only available to the blind by moving to Topeka, Kansas; Little Rock, Arkansas; or Minneapolis, Minnesota.

During training at Kalamazoo, the person lives at the facility, and is actually learning during almost all his working hours. After successfully completing this kind of training for every day living as a person who is blind, he may go to another Social Services facility in Saginaw, the Michigan Industries for the Blind, in order to learn a vocation.

Fire Calls

A fire that apparently started from lightning that followed wiring into the house caused considerable damage to the rural home of Roy Arcey, on County Road 433 in Manistique Township, last Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Public Safety firemen located the blaze in the basement. There was some fire damage and heavy smoke damage. Firemen reported. The loss was not covered by insurance.

Firemen were also called to the home of Mrs. Mina Envald at 177 N. Houston Ave. Monday at 2:50 p.m., for an overheated oil stove. No damage was listed.

"OUT OUR WAY"

News From Road 437

This morning the birds' singing woke me up, with different notes coming in from all directions. It seemed to me like several birds were trying to do the same note better than the others.

Our summer breeze is a bit cool this morning after our thunderstorm Sunday afternoon. The Eastern Kingbird has come around again. They seem to enjoy flying back and forth from the antenna to the trees, capturing any insects in a true "out our way" fashion. The color of this visiting bird is a slaty black with white underparts, and a band of white at the tip of its broad fanlike tail. There seems to be a patch of orange on the crown, which is not usually seen. I found them interesting to watch.

The Evening Grosbeaks have been coming in to feed on the berries of my honeysuckle bush. I don't think they would feed on these berries as their food is mainly seeds of maples and aspens. I guess a change in season doesn't even hurt the birds.

There is still plenty of color to be seen along the roadsides that fields. Queen Anne's Lace, black-eyed Susans, the light blue chrysanthemums, the purple asters, the purple daisies and the evening primroses. These flowers keep up the beauty of our late summer season for us to enjoy.

More new summer residents will be out on our way in the future. Mr. and Mrs. George Verren of Cornell, Mich. have purchased a lot from Mintonyes at the point at Thunder Lake and are busy building a cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Paczanski from Troy, Mich. purchased a cabin on Thunder Lake and Mrs. Charles G. Wood and family are vacationing here for several weeks with their family and guests. Mr. and Mrs. Scott and family from Detroit.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Morgan spent a week at Thunder Lake at the Shubert's cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nappas and family spent several days at Thunder Lake. Mrs. Betty Clemenson and family.

Dr. Harry Quick and son Jerry of Chicago Heights were guests of Mrs. Betty Clemenson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bonner went to Marquette to attend the graduation of their son-in-law, David Eck, who received his B.S. in business administration at Northern Michigan University. Also attending the graduation were Mr. Eck's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ott from Los Angeles, Calif.

An accident happened to Chip Bonner while vacationing at his cabin on Thunder Lake. While reading a little girl, he hit the ball from the shore sending it between the cottages. He traveled to hit a tree, coming back to hit the windy in Dorothy Brunet's cabin. Would you say that's a hole in one? At his vacation was spent replacing a window. Better luck next time Chip.

Ugh! Next week's chat, stay healthy and happy.

For the second straight season, packaged hardwood from the Upper Peninsula is being taken by the lower Michigan market.

Some 300,000 packages for firewood has been contracted for by the Kroger stores for distribution, primarily in the Detroit-Grand Rapids area. Arrangements again this year were made by officials of Upper Great Lakes Timber, Inc., an adjunct of Upper Great Lakes Regional Commission, as part of its program to find diversified markets for northern woods products.

The amount is relatively small compared to the potential, but Timber, Inc., representatives believe it is a more stable market. Arrangements were made in time so that all woods being sent downstate--will be some of birch and other of mixed species--will be dry. Last year some was green and, despite instructional slips with each package, many consumers experienced difficulty handling the green wood products.

William Henrikzen, who handled the project this year for Timber, Inc., said that the information on the market availability is distributed to all producers so that all interested concerns can seek participation.

The market is confined to a metropolitan area this year but efforts are already under way to determine the possibilities of extending it into Wisconsin areas.

News Notes

Howard H. Hainfort
County Extension Director

This last week, I was on the road to Marquette and also around the county. I believe that I was one of the lucky ones, as I was only forced off the road once, and observed one other car being forced off the road here in the county. I guess when most vacationers get over 20 miles from home, they become a veritable leech behind the wheel and every second counts (even if you arrive there dead). I admit that I am not a professional driver and have my share of poofs like anyone else but I have not had any major accidents either.

One thing I cannot understand is why the tourists drive like a fat out of hales when there are some of the most relaxing and inspiring scenery in the state here in the Upper Peninsula. Possibly, most people from out of the area do not realize that they are out of the land of four lanes, divided expressways with a limited access. Even so, I have come to a conclusion that I am safer driving on the major expressways in Detroit than I am here on either U.S. 2 or M-28 during tourist season. At least, this will come to an end shortly and we can drive in a more relaxed manner until hunting season appears again.

there are some fish in the area but they are down in deeper water - say 50-100 feet deep where I cannot safely go with my 14 ft. fishing boat (perhaps Dave Hood would like to try with his mighty sail boat).

Some important dates for us here at the Extension Office are August 18 thru August 23 - the dates of the U.P. State Fair, August 25 thru August 28 - the dates of 1970 4-H Youth Exploration Days (formerly State Show) at Michigan State University. I also received a copy of the Premium List for the 121st Michigan State Fair in Detroit, which will last for 11 days, August 28 through September 7.

U.P. Activities Days at Northern Michigan University last week proved to be an interesting and educational experience for Pam Wood, Marsha Tuttle, Katie Parker, Julie Thorell, Laurie Steele, Rita Aldrich and Edna Brock, all those from Schoolcraft County who attended. It is hoped by all that this event will take place again next year and more 4-ers from our county will be able to attend. We find now that the number who can attend these events is unlimited but the only thing we lack is the money to send more members.

I have spent some early morning hours at Thompson Creek last week to see if the mighty Coho was going to return. As yet, I can report nothing in the way of salmon but have observed some Steadhead in the area (I even caught two). George Chivala from the hatchery reported that the first Coho returned to the stream last week, however, the rest of the crowd did not appear with it as yet. I have an idea that

Sawyer plans open house

Preparations are underway for the K.L.Sawyer Air Force Base Annual Open House, which will be held Aug. 8. Gates will be opened to the public at 11 a.m., and the open house will continue until 4 p.m.

These are the Boeing KC-135 Stratotanker, the Boeing B-52 Stratofortress, the McDonnell F-101 Voodoo, the Convair T-28, and the Lockheed T-33 T-28 Bird. Efforts are being made to have other types of Air Force aircraft on hand also for static display.

Other types of Air Force equipment will also be on static display with military personnel on duty to explain the functions.

Civilian guests will also be able to watch a low level simulated air refueling between a KC-135 and another aircraft. The Second Air Force Band will provide music and there will be several refreshment booths set up for the convenience of guests.

Wuehle named to U. P. group advising NMU broadcasting

The names of 16 Upper Peninsula citizens who will be members of the new Broadcasting Advisory Board for WNMU-TV and WNMU-FM, the local television and radio stations of Northern Michigan University, were announced this week by Dr. John X. Jamrich, member of Manistique from Marquette, Mich., superintendent of the Manistique Area schools.

EDWIN WUEHLE

Other members of the Broadcasting Advisory Board are: Stan Pruth, Sault Ste. Marie; Keith Lewis, Fr. Lawrence Gahler, Honor Hilton, Lou Appell and Frank Mead, Marquette; Mrs. S. J. Bessolo, Hancock; Robert Goodell, Houghton; John Hietala, White Pine; Robert Slining, Ironwood; Edward H. Billings, Iron River; James Klungness, Iron Mountain; Edward Kitch, Menominee; and Tom Worth and Joe Alimenti, Escanaba.

"We feel quite fortunate that a distinguished group of people has agreed to work with us in bringing the major role of the Broadcasting Advisory Board to the University in bringing the 'Upper Peninsula' said Dr. Jamrich. "With their support, the potential for this service is bright indeed."

The major role of the Broadcasting Advisory Board will be to help link citizens, schools, colleges and other institutions and organizations in the area with public broadcasting activities and personnel. The board will assist station management in developing this promising communication medium so that it may best serve the people of the Upper Peninsula.

William G. Mitchell, Northern's Director of Learning Resources and head of the television and radio outlets, says that, "All our efforts to bring top quality programming of a cultural, informational and educational nature to the U.P. will be to no avail without close ties to the local communities which we serve. For this reason, such a group as the Broadcasting Advisory Board, to help guide us and to strengthen local ties, is essential."

"Experience throughout the United States indicates that only through such close citizen-station management cooperation can the full potential of public broadcasting be realized."

The first meeting of the Broadcasting Advisory Board will be scheduled early in September. In the meanwhile, Board members will be receiving a series of papers, documents, and other materials designed to acquaint them with the goals and possibilities of public broadcasting in general, and with the history and policies of WNMU-TV and WNMU-FM in particular.

Somehow or other I got involved in doing a radio program on barbecuing last week. I know how to do it (I think) but I have never really done much of it. Seems like it's a man's job and they're good at it. Many of them become gourmet cooks and tackle some of the more difficult kinds like roasting and use special seasoning.

One young fellow I know takes pride in his turkey. He starts out with a 7 to 8 pound bird and cooks it very slowly - almost an hour per pound. He bastes it with garlic flavored butter about every 20 minutes and keeps the coals at the back and sides - none directly underneath the turkey. You can use an aluminum foil drip pan or just coarse gravel underneath. He picks a day when he has nothing else to do and you can see why. Just he says it can't be beat for juiciness or flavor.

This is the time of year when many groups like the Lions or Kiwanis have a fund raising chicken barbecue. The chicken is delicious even though most of the men are novices at such a production. It's a big job for those who are working and turning chicken over the lot coals. They usually have one expert who oversees the whole thing and checks for doneness. When the legs turn in its socket and the joint is loose, the chicken is well cooked.

How much charcoal should you use? Most people use more than is necessary and start cooking before the coals are ready. The coals can be started in a pile until two thirds are covered with a grey ash, then spread out so there is about one inch between coals to reduce flare ups. And that grey ash is hot so do it carefully.

Barbecuing is a casual, friendly way to entertain. You can spend a lot or very little. Hot dogs, hamburgers and bratwurst seem to taste so much better. So does steak. There are a variety of marinades to use and sauces to brush on the meat. It's a real fun kind of cooking so do enjoy it while you can.

Vacations are wonderful - especially if they're the kind that are relaxing and make you feel good about getting back to work again. We had just that kind when we went to Winnipeg, Canada last week. Bernetta Kalahka was my travel-mate. Many of you know her because she has been here several times as an Extension clothing specialist.

Bernetta is Catholic so we looked for a church to attend on Sunday morning. We found a little, pretty one in Virginia, Minnesota, where I heard one of the best sermons I have heard in my life. The priest talked about the pace of life we set for ourselves in Winnipeg where we look the usual sightseeing hours. We also saw Liberaire in person at the new 2100 Seat Concert Hall, he is really more masculine than you see him in person. He is a big ham and makes no bones about it but he can play that piano! The program also featured a 25 man orchestra from Trinidad - their only instruments were old oil drums on which their selections varied from calypso to Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus."

I expected Winnipeg to be quite British and it is but I was surprised to learn many Ukrainians have also settled in the area. They comprise 11 per cent of the population and next year schools will be teaching the basic Ukrainian language in the 5th and 6th grade. One of their churches, a Greek Orthodox Cathedral, had the balconies we connect with Russian churches.

A fresh start?

SEVERAL WEEKS AGO the editor wrote a column about various and sundry misadventures that "seemed like a good idea at the time."

That same sort of label could no doubt be placed upon the informal meeting that School Board President Bill Mueller had at his home several Sundays ago. After all, it seems perfectly logical to invite fellow board members over to your home so they can discuss some of the problems of education today with a man with some experience in that field.

Things began to go awry, however, when two of the seven board members were not invited to participate.

The unhappy recent history of our board shows a marked division among the members. Disagreement in itself is no hurdle to efficient board operation, but squabbling and hickering can be disruptive and disheartening to all concerned, no matter which side of the argument they are on.

A meeting such as the one in question may unfortunately undo more than it can accomplish, for those who were not invited—including the administrative staff members—are naturally resentful, feeling that there is the implication that they are unwanted or unneeded.

Our school district is the largest single unit of government in the county. It spends more than a million dollars a year, and it affects almost every citizen, directly or indirectly. The business of that district can be—and often is—highly controversial or debatable. These are the reasons that the meetings of the policy making board of that unit of government should be so arranged and so ordered as to allow the full range of expression and participation. That is why the law requires that all meetings of the Board be public, that all of the books be kept according to standard methods and audited annually, and that a yearly report to the public be published.

Even with these safeguards we have found, in recent years, a mistrust of our board and of our administration, and a tendency to impugn the motives behind every action. That such mistrust can be contagious is demonstrated by the reaction to the Sunday morning meeting.

Perhaps now that there is better understanding of these pitfalls, there can also be a fresh, new start based on harmony and mutual trust that will lead to improved school administration and operation.

Ironic justice

The empty beer can sailed out of the car window, and the State Police car pulled the vehicle over for a littering violation.

That's what led to the arrest the other day of Pun Plamendon, self-styled revolutionary and spokesman for the new generation—the man who is dedicating his life to overthrowing the establishment.

There is sort of an ironic justice to it all—the young visionary who wants to found a new order but doesn't know what to do with an empty beer can.

His plight typifies in many ways that of so many young people today who have come to expect instant results to age-old problems. We have every bit of sympathy with their outrage at injustice, but at the same time we cannot begin to understand their intolerance.

Intolerance? They might be puzzled by the charge. How can they be charged with intolerance, when equality and justice are part of their battle cry?

They forget that equality and justice are not new words, nor new ideas. The revolutionary young today hold no exclusive franchise over these concepts, and are not exploring virgin territory when they expound on them.

Their intolerance lies in their refusal to accept the worth and value of that which has gone before; in their insistence on rejecting the previous generations' gains and achievements. They are intolerant of their heritage, and it is saddening to realize that they lack the perspective to realize that there is much of worth and value in that heritage, along with all the assorted evils that they have seized upon to crusade against.

To which I put the question, isn't this intolerance just as bad and just as stifling as those other, more obvious kinds of which the middle and older generations stand accused?

The plea of those who are of the Age of Aquarius is to be accepted for what they are rather than how they appear, and I would subscribe to this if they meant it. Too often it is used as an excuse, or to use their language, a cop-out.

Long hair and a beard should not be automatic symbols of protest and revolution; neither should they be regarded as manifestations of philosophical awareness, intellectual achievement or social conscience. Any fool can let his hair grow; any fool can get a crew cut. The activists do not want to be pre-judged because their hair is long, yet at the same time they will pre-judge others because their hair is short.

For a generation that claims to be so sensitive to the needs of some of the people, there is a remarkable insensitivity to the rights of all the people. The poor and the black are not the only people in our nation whose rights are impinged and for whom justice is a mockery. Is it not better to fight injustice and deprivation wherever they may be found, rather than to attempt to isolate them and compartmentalize them into minority groups and economic strata?

The same indictment can be made against the new generation when it comes to pollution. It is encouraging to note the interest and concern of the collegians and their counterparts in the need for environmental improvement. It is discouraging to note at the same time that they indict industry for polluting the waters and skies, the young will casually blight the parks and the beaches with beer cans, paper wrappers and debris. No, that sort of pollution does not just come from the young alone, but they are active participants, and just as blithely ignorant of what they do as their parents are.

Consider the rock festivals, such as Woodstock. Assume, even, that the high-decibel electronic cacophony that resulted is not a form of noise pollution (an assumption that requires greater forbearance than the young shall ever know). What you had at Woodstock was an undisciplined mob that turned the fields into mud walls, blighted the countryside with litter and polluted the area with their wastes. The fact that they polluted their minds with the intellectual garbage that this was a meaningful experience, and polluted their bodies with pot and acid are too easily discounted by those apologists for the young.

This is not meant as a blanket indictment, or a scattergun blast against the entire younger generation. If you want to, you may call it a volley against that small segment that I like to refer to as the lunatic fringe; a reply to those young who feel their elders are hypocritical incompetents and to those elders who are apologetic because their generation failed to solve the world's problems 20 years ago.

Each generation has its own imperfections and shortcomings, and each generation becomes more aware of this with the passing of years. The current young are still largely unaware of their own flaws and weaknesses, with some even so naive as to believe they possess none. Realization, perhaps, will come in those years ahead when their own offspring challenge them by asking what they did to make this world a better place.

Vacation time

TAKEN YOUR VACATION YET? Although August is now upon us, with prospects of school starting in three weeks or so, there is still plenty of time for vacationing.

It doesn't have to be the traditional two or three weeks of traveling and visiting, you know. Just a short respite of two or three days can help you go back to work rested and refreshed.

That's why we're fortunate to live here in the Upper Peninsula.

You can drive to any part of the U.P. in a day from Manistique. And there are all kinds of interesting spots to visit. We pride ourselves on our tourist attractions, but have you seen them all?

Such a mini-vacation is particularly exciting in September and October, when the traffic is down and colors start to turn.

Try it. You'll find out lots you never knew before about our U.P.

SO WHO COOKS WHAT?

Two weeks ago, I confessed to cooking sneakers. That started it. Ever since, people have been telling me about the assorted items they have stewed, boiled, baked, roasted, and toasted.

My mother (who incidentally is an avid reader of this column) wrote, "One time we had a conference and I made coffee in the big old fashioned coffee pot on the stove and everyone commented on the good coffee. I was going to make a half pot more, so I dumped the coffee grounds out. I found a pot holder in the coffee grounds. I threw the pot holder under the stove so no one would see it. The next coffee didn't taste like the first batch."

She also wrote that my father, as a young man, had what was considered a very stylish pair of fur mittens. They went from his finger tips to his elbows. He laid them on the oven door to dry and my aunt bumped the door shut. The next morning she built a roaring fire in the cook stove and baked the fur off the mittens.

Mrs. Wood on Chippewa told me she always cooks the pots and pans. It is a habit from the times when the kitchen equipment wasn't as well made as it is today. The housewives always dried them in the ovens to prevent rust. To this day she habitually cooks the pots and pans.

Her daughter follows her mother's practice, when in her mother's house, but one day included the bonehandled knives and forks. She baked the handles off.

One of the most unusual accidental baking incidents comes from Everett Wood. He relates a lumber camp tale. When the old cook stove oven door was open, the camp cat would sneak in and soak up the heat. This was cozy for the cat as long as the oven didn't get too hot and he wasn't discovered. One night this feline decided to spend the night there and wasn't concerned when the cook shut the oven door on him. The next morning the camp chef built a blazing fire in the stove. Lumber camp kitchens at breakfast time were noisy places and no one heard the cat. That is the recipe for the cremation of camp cats.

By contrast, there was the man who wrote to tell me he nearly baked five hundred dollars into nothingness trying to dry it in the oven. He never told me how it got wet in the first place which might also have been interesting.

In addition to pots and pans, knives and forks, cats and money, I have had reports of cooked golf balls, decks of cards, a swim suit, a watch, a billfold, a laundry bag, a beach towel, a pair of sunglasses and a parakeet. This all leads me to believe that nearly anyone is capable of cooking almost anything. All he needs is the opportunity.

It seems to most of us a just decision is one that lets us win. — Dale Holdridge, The Langford (S.D.) Bugle.

Meeting set on wood use

A statewide conference of logging mechanization and forest management will be held Sept 17 and 18 in the Holiday Inn at Marquette, at the time of the fall meeting of the Michigan Wisconsin Section of the Society of American Foresters. The program is being developed by Upper Great Lakes Timber, Inc., cooperating with the S.A.F.

Approximately 150 delegates, including representatives of industry and woods producers are expected to attend the two-day session.

The foresters will have a brief business meeting during the two-day stay but the major portion of the time will be devoted to the technical program.

Two outstanding figures in the woods industry have already agreed to be on the program. They are Zigmund Zazada, who was one time associated with the Hardwood Forest Research Station at Marquette and is now in charge of Applied Forest Research at the University of Minnesota at Cloquet; and Eric Bourdo, Dean of the Forestry School for Michigan Technological University, Houghton.

The woods industry is in a position where today's wood supply is in surplus but with an expected increase in demand within the next decade a shortage is predicted to develop under today's forest management and harvesting systems. The situation raises basic questions that foresters want discussed and their findings shared with industrial and producer sectors of the industry.

How closely can the projected demand be estimated? What kind of harvesting systems will be needed in the light of a labor shortage, new mechanization harvesting systems coming into the picture, and the ability of plants to use all species instead of the high selectivity of the past?

In addition, silvicultural systems and methods must come under scrutiny to achieve the two-fold purpose of assuring continuity of wood supply and developing the forests for multiple-use by the general public.

Foresters face the primary responsibility for most of these decisions. Upper Great Lakes Timber, Inc., is dedicated to determination of these same questions from the producer-public view. The symposium is a joint recognition of mutual concerns.

OCEAN'S EDGE OCEAN'S EDGE

Yesterday I saw the ocean for the first time. Jim and I had been invited to a house party at a cottage on the shore. Having recently moved East from the Midwest, I had anticipated nothing more on the drive down than a weekend of fun and games, swimming and dancing.

But I wasn't prepared for the ocean. Its grandeur and beauty stirred me. Today I walked along the beach for long hours watching the waves or searching the shore for shells, listening to the wonderful roar of the sea as whitecaps splashed around me.

Tonight as I stood at ocean's edge, the stars seemed near. Breakers crashing rhythmically sprinkled phosphorescence on the sand. For an instant I was caught within infinity. Sky, beach and tides contained me—in that moment I saw God.

I may never again achieve the clarity of that second on the beach, but someday I may. For this experience has awakened in me a longing to know more about God and the Truths the beauty of His world reveal.
