

THE SULTAN OF JOHORE.

Coming to America to See the Columbian Exposition.

He Looks Like a Living Advertisement of the Southern Exposition—Who He Is and Where He Came From.

This country will soon witness the arrival of a new guest in the person of the richest and most widely known of the smaller oriental rulers... The Sultan of Johore will be the first of the eastern monarchs to set foot upon our shores...

The visit of an oriental potentate to this country is more than passing significance. The sultan of Johore will be the first of the eastern monarchs to set foot upon our shores...

It requires no little search to find the domain of the sultan of Johore on the map. It lies at the foot of the Malay peninsula, a very remote and one of which the world at large knows but little...

A quarter of a century ago one of them sailed his realm to England, since when succeeding rajahs have been dependents, having nothing to do but to spend their wealth in bartering to Johore as strange admixtures of intelligence, cruelty and bombast.

Johore produces species of every kind and scores of valuable woods, precious metals and gems. Its jungles are the haunts of tigers, elephants and serpents of great length...

The coming sultan inhabits a palace built after the fashion of a bungalow. It is built of bricks and wood and is not in keeping with the style assumed by his countrymen...

When he lands among us we will see a slight figure adorned with a gauzy turban well sprinkled with gems. The sultan's outer dress consists of a splendidly bejeweled jacket...

Johore's sultan leaves the affairs of his dependency in the hands of the governor of Singapore, his English master. He will visit the national cities of the United States...

The greatest domains of the world are those of St. Peter, St. Paul's, the Invillades, in Paris; St. Paul's, in Washington, and the capital in Washington.

LELAND STANFORD.

Ediblestator Governor of the Late Senator from California.

Leland Stanford was born near Albany, N. Y., March 3, 1824. Until he reached manhood he spent his time on a farm varying farm laborers with his studies...

The foundation of Stanford's great fortune was laid in the building of the Central Pacific road. The revenues derived by him and his countrymen...

From early manhood Stanford was fond of horses. Nearly five years ago he bought Mohawk, a brood mare of Lexington stock, and at Palo Alto, 20 miles south of San Francisco, started his breeding farm...

At Palo Alto he established the Leland Stanford, Jr. university at the junction of his own, which died in Italy. The endowment of the university will amount in value to $20,000,000...

Two diminutive ornithological specimens captured in Cuba. One of the smallest birds in the world, and the only two known to be in captivity here...

Known as the pajaro mosco, or 'fly eaters,' and were brought to this country from Cuba by Senator Pillsbury. He controls the circuitous privileges of the island and is familiarly known as the 'Little Harman.'

They are fed on honey diluted with water, and in order to reach this the little creatures keep themselves stationary in the air by the lightning-like motion of their wings...

A teaching ring at Salem, Mass., has sired three generations of babies. It requires no little search to find the domain of the sultan of Johore on the map.

POPULAR ELECTIONS.

THE STEADY GROWTH OF INTEREST IN STATE ELECTIONS.

Reasons That May Be Drawn From the New York State and National Elections: The Percentage of Voters in the Population Greater in the Country.

A comparison of the election returns at the end of the last century, about the time of the adoption of the constitution of the United States, with the returns for the last presidential election, shows that the percentage of voters in the United States in Massachusetts between 1770 and 1790, the proportion of voters cast to the population varied from 8 to 9 per cent.

It is the habit of many people to take it for granted that the earlier institutions of the United States were more democratic than the present ones, and that the tendency of the people to support the political power in the hands of a few men and to take it away from the multitude.

With all the talk about the large vote of the city New York in the election of its majorities to the result in the state, it is somewhat contradictory that the election returns should show that New York has the smallest number of inhabitants—less than half as large as the ratio in many of the rural counties.

There are two main reasons to account for this. One is the difference in the election laws in the cities and in the counties, and the other is the difference in the character of the population.

One reason for the high rates in New York, Brooklyn and Buffalo is the large number of aliens in the cities. The alien count in the population, but they do not count in the number of voters.

Another thing is the difference in election laws. In the cities a man has to go to the polling place twice to vote—once to register and once to cast his ballot.

A comparison of these returns with the election returns at the time of the Revolutionary war and the adoption of the constitution shows that political interest is increasing every year, and that the percentage of the population that registers in the cities is also increasing.

It may be that to the rich men and men of business the management of large business affairs and political matters are not relatively so important as they were when the United States began, but a comparison of the election returns shows that since the widening of the franchise the proportion of those who vote is greater in this state than ever before.

It is a curious thing to find when you are lying down, run your finger thoughtfully down the side of your nose and rub it over the inside of your ears, and the sinners will generally work as easily and naturally as any one could desire.

BETTING ON THE SENIOR WRANGLER.

A story of the Undergraduate Days of the Late Professor Adams, who was an undergraduate also, I will give you his appearance. He was rather a small man, who walked quickly and wore a faded coat of dark green.

Follow commenters and pensioners not but little of the stars as a rule, and I fear they were looked down upon on account of their poverty, except, indeed, those few who were certain to do great credit to the college.

A couple of days after Adams had come out of his room, I looked in on him and found him looking the part, but looking to me like a man who had been through a mill.

More than one-half of all the oil of peppermint, spearmint and tansy used in the world is said to be produced and distilled in Michigan.

One morning one of the two pet pigeons belonging to my father was found upon the highest peak of the rocky learning of my father, but from what cause we never knew.

Mr. Swan, the English electrician, declared recently that he had seen a great number of blizzards capable of melting the snow on a rapidly that to melt into a fire and larger proof sale with this instrument would be the work of only a few minutes and would be both an easy and noiseless operation.

Not a little platinum is sold as old metal and usually comes in the form of bits of wire and scraps from broken in candle-sticks.

The greatest point of resemblance between the lives of the present day and the "robust" life of yesteryear they derive their name is that they are provided by the masses as they are to be given by the king.

Children are quick to learn new words and store them up in their memory to be used on the first occasion that presents itself.

Miss Wilberly—Then perhaps I had better not sit in it.

GET AWAY, YOU KID.

If there's any man's story to tell in this world, it's the story of a kid's life. To get a kid's eye-sight—let him see a new world.

It's a nice way to get to bed. It's a nice way to get to bed. It's a nice way to get to bed.

Sho dropped to the deck in an old cart drawn by an ox with lines attached to his horns, and she repeated her in queries about the train from the east so busy that the report against finally asked.

"I'm glad for my son Sam an his wife," she replied. "Coming on a visit?" "No, sir. They did moved over to George six months ago, but they don't like it and are coming back."
