THE THIRTEENTH MAN.

A Sad Story of the End of a Bridesmaid.

Arthur Zangwill came home from his late one night and sat for quite a while by the window. He was exceedingly grave, but it was not that he was afraid. The effects of twenty years of experience had made him the intense experience enough for a half dozen lives that had been crowded into his young manhood had been much upon his mind. He had been made an indifference to life. Death appeared to his fervent imagination a refuge rather than any of the misadventures and he suggested it to his friends as the best solution of the deep mystery of his own existence. They had been trying so hard to unravel the suggestion was caught up eagerly and the suicide club was formed.

There were but nine at first. Barrie insisted that the club have a membership of thirteen and that was that. That's unusual, you know. It's no lucky number. There's Craft, who I know would join, and well, we've no trouble in getting up seven others.

Barrie said Barrie was right and mentioned his roommate, Hawthorne, as a possible addition. But Barrie said that Hawthorne went out to bring in his friends and shortly came back with them and another lady, Harper, who had readily embraced the notion.

The thirteenth man was Price Wilkie. He dropped in to speak for Wilkie for a moment and Zangwill detained him and explained about the latest freak which had taken the form of a suicide club. Wilkie looked frightened at first, but Zangwill argued him. He sat down to listen and finally agreed.

It was not hard to get the details. The thirteen students talked it over and determined that every man should die at his own convenience within the next sixty days. They held their first meeting on November 7 to make all necessary preparations, such as setting their beds and writing their wills. But that later that that fatal date would single one of the members. They shook hands upon it solemnly. "This is as it was going to be," they parted. It was a very solemn parting and they shook hands again. As they did so there was a momentary reflection that one of the number might be dead before they met.

Zangwill walked home thoughtfully. He had sixteen of life and felt no regret for the solemn compact he had entered into. He had accepted himself to death and had no other thought but that he would comply with its tragic terms.

Before going to bed he wrote a note to his brother in the west. "The letter was more affectionate than any of the ordinary letters, but there was a bit of his impending doom. The letter was longer, but had a great deal to say about his brother's life. Then he sank upon his bed and dropped into a dreamless slumber.

Zangwill slept late and when he looked out the city was already afloat. He drank a cup of coffee as his eye ran mechanically over the pages of the morning paper.

Suddenly the hand that held the paper began to shake violently. His lips dropped apart, his eyes stared. Five minutes later Barrie found him slumped back in his chair, gasping stupidly upon the paper, which had fallen to his knees. He pointed to the one more helplessly, unable to speak.

Barrie that and the bright eyes, Jewy with beam, was dead.

The police had led them over to where she was standing and introduced them. She was his daughter, the sister of the dead young man. Barrie later said that he had not moved off of the dead young man. Barrie later said that he had not moved off of the dead young man.

Miss Rork, who taught in our schools last year, died quite suddenly at Marinette last week. The papers of that city speak very highly of the deceased. Miss Rork had many friends here who are pained to hear of her death.

A local minister who does not believe in dancing, paid $1 toward the success of the Charity Ball, but requested that his ticket be torn up. By so doing he proved himself as being willing to do his part, in alleviating distress no matter what the method used to attain the end in view.

Episcopal services were held morning and evening last Sunday at the Central School Building, Rev. Frank F. W. Greene of Escanaba officiating. If, as we understand, these services are for the present to be continued by clergymen from different parts of the Upper Peninsula, we hope that Mr. Greene may soon again visit Manistique. Both his sermons on Sunday were able efforts, showing alike the scholar and a kindly sympathetic nature which appealed at once to the hearts of his hearers.

The following from an exchange is good enough for republication: "A man who loafed in our office six hours each day for 300 consecutive days, who used our smoking tobacco, matches, stationery, heat, free locals, postage stamps, and drinking water, got his back up on account of a fancied injury and has announced his determination not to call on us any more. An involuntary "Thank God," escaped our lips upon receipt of the news. "There is one vacant chair" is being hummed by the office force, and levity, not sorrow characterizes the rendition of this usually mournful song."

Handling cedar is the principal occupation of many of our citizens.

Under the management of Beason & Rindy, the store is apparently doing a thriving business.

Frank Mullen is building a new saloon 25x30 feet, two stories high. The lower part is to be used as a bar room, and the upper room as a dance hall.

H. G. Rindy is building a new residence.

Jas. Stewart, in partnership with T. Quarty of this place, and A. Green of Tulliver, is doing a hustling business in cedar, James is also quite a veterinarian.

It certainly looks more becoming for a justice of the peace to let his whiskers grow, and ours is not behind the times.

The report that a boat load of lumber had been driven ashore opposite this burg, caused a general rush to the beach. Some lumber was obtained but two horses were lost in getting it.

There will be a Christmas tree in Mullen's hall Christmas night, a grand time is predicted. The Ladies Secret Society are doing most of the work to make it a success.

Two gold watches, and a wedding ring are already billed for the town. After the exercises and distribution of presents, a free dance will be indulged in.

It is a good thing for President Cleveland and the democratic Congress that they do not reside in our village. If they did we would predict a series of funerals.

Camp 19, Delta Lumbering Co.
The camp above mentioned is composed of seventy men; the most of them very industrious in their work and some of them full of fun and good at witty stories.

First, we must mention our thoroughly experienced, very kind but energetic foreman, Lewis Townsend, who is a veteran of the forest of forty years' standing.

Our clerk is a very smart, short, bloody little Englishman, very popular among the boys. Once in a while he gives us a few pointers of Shakespeare on his own hook.

The cook, Geo. Valentine, is one of the best cooks of this upper peninsula; John evokes every morning a-la Mardi Gras, and prunes in style. He is a well learned man of highly cultivated manners.

Arthur Hughes, Patsy Mae's ex-stag driver, is now stimulating oxen in this camp.

Duncan Campbell, who has had thirty years' experience in the lumbering business as teamster, although fifty-five years old, is yet foxy and cunning all day long. He beats them all on saw logs.

Frank Butterfield has a lively time with the "noble gray, round stuff" that's what he is after. He is the comical genius of this camp.

Mr. Strickland, with the gentle big boys, is the best log-piler in the vicinity.

Andrew Richardson as everybody knows, is the heartiest laughter on earth but he gets nervous when the big fellow comes round.

A very smart lad is James Woodley. He is sweet on a brunette belle who lives up here.

Jos. Barbeau is up here helping the foreman out.

Louis Savard is removing the obstacles that stop the progress of the bovines.

Charles Allen being a very courteous and affable young man has lots of friends. He is clever cant hook man.

Wm. Richardson is the most profound politician here. He is the "grand old man" of Camp 19, as Gladstone is of England.

The influenza has reached us. Every day five or six stay in camp. The rest of the boys are very courageous and well.

We have five million feet of saw logs on skids now and we calculate to take them out during the rest of the season.

TARIFFS REVENUE

PRICES WILL BE HIGHER FOR OUR ONLY SUPPLIES.

A Clear Explanation of the Meaning of a Tariff. Pay Little - Increased Customs.

The larger the duty in fronting the new tariff for revenue only the greater seem to be the complications surrounding it. Yet this should be, it is the simplest thing in the world. A single paragraph could do it. It is not even necessary to get into long or elaborate tables, such as have been attached to all previous tariffs that were ever placed upon our duties. A tariff for revenue only is simply this:

It can be so easily understood by anybody who can read. All difficulties in our custom house will be abolished at once. The new bill need merely state what the amount of this tariff for revenue only is to be - abolish the McKinley tariff, and the three to five per cent tariff of 80 cent ad valorem and apply it to our imports during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1902, and give, at a glance, the contribution to revenue that will be derived from each and all of our imports on the same basis of value, and it simplifies the matter to the understanding of every member of the majority of the ways and means committee, who are poor enough to grasp the situation and to be struggling under outside influences. Here are the figures:

Table with 3 columns: Value, 30 percent tariff, 80 percent tariff. Lists various goods like Iron, Steel, Cotton, etc.

In round numbers the above figures are correct and show the situation clear as a bell. Every importer of goods can tell at a glance how his business will be affected. Everything under the new system will be fair and equal.

Under the McKinley tariff we find that only about 10 per cent of our imports have been paying any duty at all, and that in those cases the average ad valorem duty was nearly one-third of the actual value of the goods.

Under a tariff for revenue only every dollar's worth of our goods, whether imports or exports, will pay its share of duty. There will be no unjust discrimination, whereby $50,000 worth of goods will bear no contribution to the revenue, and be added to the duty to which the other goods are subjected.

PROTECTION'S CHAMPION.

A Brief Biography of Governor William McKinley. William McKinley of Canton, O., was born at Niles, O., Feb. 26, 1843, and is now therefore in his fifty-ninth year. He enlisted in the State Militia in May, 1861, as a private soldier in the Twenty-third Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and was mustered out as captain of the same regiment on a brevet major in September, 1863. He was prosecuting attorney of Stark county, O., from 1867 to 1871. He was elected to the Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth congresses, receiving the certificate in the latter, but late in the first session the seat was given by the house to his opponent. He was elected to the Forty-ninth and elected to the Republican nomination in 1896, receiving 18,776 votes against 10,217 votes for Phelps, the Democratic candidate. He was first elected governor of Ohio in November, 1896, by a majority of 21,511 votes over Campbell, the Democratic candidate, assuming that office on Jan. 8, 1897. His term expires on Jan. 8, 1901. His re-election on Nov. 7 continues the office of the Buckeye State until Jan. 8, 1902. The overwhelming majority by which he defeated the free trade candidate, Larry Neal, is a fine protest against the people of Ohio against the carrying out of the Democratic free trade plank of the Chicago platform. Ohio will have protection. What is good for Ohio is good for other states.

On the other hand, the Union points out that the policy of protection is at the heart of the manufacturing industries throughout every part of the country, the letter of duty, and consequently large dividends in the way of corresponding increases in profits and dividends to all New York, saying that "the expansion and development of our industries is most dependent upon the largest amount of protection they are at the state or city of New York."

It is naturally enough, when bankers see diminishing dividends, they intend to make some effort to check the decrease, and as the Union says, "they may be the reason why our bankers of New York are so anxious for the repeal of the McKinley Law. Knowing as we have the country prospered elsewhere, where so long a protection was assured, it is not surprising that there should be a change in the relative bank earnings and of New York. The reason assigned, too, seems plausible enough, judging by results.—American Economist.

Business Growing Interests. The tariff on foreign tobacco has not only had the effect of increasing the consumption of domestic tobacco, but it has also had the effect of causing a very marked improvement in the quality of the domestic goods. Tobacco manufacturers have seen the increased demand for their goods, and have tried to meet it with one another in placing the best goods on the market. Growers are producing a better quality of tobacco, and we get our tobacco from their crops and are placing it in their hands. They are more interested in their product and are making a better article of tobacco, and we get our tobacco from their crops and are placing it in their hands.

A very large proportion of the goods that come from the stock of goods is smaller. The stockholders have been prepared for this, and it is therefore evident that we cannot hope to meet our needs for our sales were over 30 per cent less than those of the corresponding months of 1892, and they are now increasing, but slowly. Naturally a large house, carrying a large stock of goods that needs constant care and attention, cannot afford to have its sales over 30 per cent less than those of the corresponding months of 1892, and they are now increasing, but slowly.

Under a tariff for revenue only every dollar's worth of our goods, whether imports or exports, will pay its share of duty. There will be no unjust discrimination, whereby $50,000 worth of goods will bear no contribution to the revenue, and be added to the duty to which the other goods are subjected.

The Swedish Lutheran church will celebrate Christmas Day by holding high mass at 5:30 o'clock next Monday morning. Christmas exercises will be held Monday evening. A tree has been prepared and the church very handsomely decorated.

The charity ball.

Although the elements spiraled against a large attendance at the ball last evening yet large numbers attended and all enjoyed themselves. The Ideal Orchestra rendered the best of music and the managers did everything to make the occasion a pleasant one.

As the various merchants sold tickets it is not known to a certainty what the receipts were, but from indications no less than $100 was realized for "sweet charity's sake."

Henry P. Howell worked like a hero, and the success of the Ball may be, in great part, attributed to his efforts. Although sick he boomed the Ball from morning until night during the past week. The committee will meet this evening and then the actual receipts will be ascertained.

Presbyterian Announcements.

The Sunday morning services will consist of a S. S. Missionary concert, after which the regular quarterly missionary collection will be held.

In the evening Rev. Rogers will deliver a sermon on the Life of Our Saviour. Stereopticon views will add interest to the evening's program.

The Christmas exercises will be held at the church Monday evening. A tree will be one of the features. The exercises proper will be preceded by a stereopticon entertainment. The public is cordially invited to attend these various services.

A New Departure.

It is usually the custom for the scholars in the various schools to give a literary program on the last day of school prior to a vacation. This year Mrs. Kimball, the superintendent of our local schools has departed from the usual order of things by asking the scholars to bring clothing, provisions and money with them to school next Friday morning at the usual school hour. The goods will, in the afternoon, be packed at the Central building, and forwarded to the needy sufferers in the iron country. We propose that persons not having children of school age should also bring their mite to the same place. If you have a cast of overcoat, shoes or suit of clothes, wrap them up and leave them at the Central building that day.

A Bold Robbery.

Monday noon while the employees at the depot were to dinner, the office was entered, the money drawer forced and $20.45 abstracted therefrom. Mr. Gilligan was absent only fifteen minutes, and upon his return, a hasty glance revealed the fact that an interloper had been there. Mr. Gilligan suspicioned a fellow that had been loafing about the depot all day, and caused his arrest on suspicion of having committed the crime. Officer Hughson made the arrest. Turnkey Hayden, after a close search found the money in the culprit's socks. He was brought before Judge Bowen Tuesday afternoon, waived examination and gave the judge a written statement admitting his guilt, and asking for clemency for this, his first offense. He bound him over to the next term of the circuit court in the sum of $300.

The fellow gives his name as Jno. Douglas, of Port Williams, Ont. He looks like a man that has seen better days. Hunger and lack of means made him desperate and caused him to commit a crime that may be the means of giving him a year in the penitentiary.

Given Away.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and demoralizes, saps the vigor and cheerfulness, and causes a general weakness and loss of energy. It is a disease that is often overlooked, but it is one of the most serious and dangerous of all. It is caused by a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to be cured until the cause is removed. Women as well as men are made miserable by kidney and bladder trouble. NEW CHURCH EDIFICE

Catholics at St. Ignace Just Completing $200,000 Building.
Father Meohler, priest in charge of the Roman Catholic congregation at St. Ignace, expects to have his new church dedicated on January 15. The flag of the Most Holy Name of Jesus. Father Meohler has been situated at St. Ignace for three years past and the handsome edifice soon to be dedicated will be in large measure a monument to his tireless and well considered work for it. It will represent, completed and furnished, an outlay of about $200,000 and will be dedicated free of debt with the exception of about $1,000, a fact that reflects great credit on Father Meohler and the St. Ignace congregation.
The new church, which is named in honor of St. Ignatius, has a seating capacity of 500. There are about 200,000 communicants in charge of Father Meohler and the congregation in all numbers about 800 people.
The new church will supersede what is probably the oldest church structure in the upper peninsula. It has done service for the better part of a century, having been erected in 1831 by Father Bonfield. The original church was a log structure, which was subsequently covered with clapboards and later was otherwise remodelled and enlarged. The original church at St. Ignace was erected by Father Marquette in 1671, when he conducted his Indian missionary work at the straits. Meaning Republic.

WAS A BUSY YEAR

Among Contractors and Builders, A Number of Handsome Residences and Blocks Erected.
The year just drawing to a close has been a busy one for Manistique contractors and builders.
Among the residences of note erected this year may be mentioned those of Wm. B. Thomas, N. W. Fox, C. W. Dutton, J. J. Patisson and Chas. R. Orr. Scores of smaller houses were erected.
The First National Bank block and the Kluge block were the only business blocks erected in the city this year.
A refreshing improvement in architectural beauty is being noticed every year in the buildings erected, and when Manistique has its quota of these smart of the streets, in the residence portions of the city will compare quite favorably with those of cities of greater pretensions.
Compliments Rev. Kunes.
Speaking of the proposed Christmas services of the Catholic church at Crystal Falls, the Diamond Drill has the following to say concerning Rev. Kunes, the pastor, well known here:
"Rev. Joseph P. Kunes, the pastor, has spared no effort to make the Christmas services attractive, so and impressive. He has worked hard and his congregation will, as a result of his labors, be treated to services that would do honor to parishes in places much larger and with many more opportunities to make impressive the services than Crystal Falls."

CHANGES IN GAME LAWS

State Game Warden Chapman Has a Few Ideas to Enact.
Charles H. Chapman of the State Game and Fish wardens' office has a few ideas to enact.

You Cannot Always Beat the Game

With apologies to Geo. Ade: One there was a man who wanted it all. He always figured his own profits up to 10 per cent but, without a quiver and gave away the formula, but he also insisted upon figuring everybody else's profits down to the one-half of one per cent. In his own mind he was a great success and finding out what everything cost. His motto was: "Nobody must make a dollar off me." Wisenever he was obliged to "show off" a few cents of profit in order to make a sale at the store, his countenance was convulsed with pain, and if he ever had to pay the same price for a thing that other people paid, he considered himself stung. He brag was that he could save it all on the expense account, and he was so busy saving nickels that he never had time to make dollars. His whole life was a struggle to find out other people's cost marks so he could cut the price. Every time he bought an ice cream soda he went home and prayed for forgiveness afterwards. He attended church because no admission was charged at the door, his favorite hymn was, "In God's Salvation's Fire". He thought that his wife and crown wouldn't cost him any but Mrs. Moore was practical also. She said she would hold the lines. The sheriff searched the house. It seemed deserted. Evidently all the family must and dropped it. He figured it all up and found out that he started with and about six per cent added, but that he had never had any fun. Then one bright spring the quarter indicated, the crowding figure of the (negative) was pulled from lores proceeded to even up old scores. The undertaker made a profit on the coffin and burial clothes that would have given the man epilepsy, and charged $10 for white gloves that cost only 10 cents. The sexton got $5 for an amount of work the dead man used to pay him 75 cents for. The lively sexton was charged $10 for white gloves that cost only 10 cents. The sexton got $5 for an amount of work the dead man used to pay him 75 cents for. The lively sexton was charged $10 for white gloves that cost only 10 cents.

He evidently decided to save his fare and lost his life while stealing a ride on the east bound flyer. Nearly all of the money he received for the watch was found on his person after the accident.
He leaves a widow and four children, and a number of relatives in this city. Mr. Ignace, Nausbay and Neil Chalko.

The Detroit Tribune writes up Sheriff Moody's arrest of John "Gibbaler" as follows:
The practical Sheriff Moody of Schoolcraft, while in the country, accompanied by his wife, on official business, passed a home show, drawn curtains about surrounding and somber aspect suggested mortality. He was right. The householder was a recent at the funeral of the householder. "I have a warrant for the arrest of his son, and I think I see smoke issuing from the chimney," said the practical sheriff to his wife. "I will take a look inside." A wife would be likely under such circumstances to contract moisture of the eyes, lay hold on her husband arm and plead: "Oh, Salvation's Fire!" He thought that his wife and crown wouldn't cost him any but Mrs. Moore was practical also. She said she would hold the lines. The sheriff searched the house. It seemed deserted. Evidently all the family must and dropped it. He figured it all up and found out that he started with and about six per cent added, but that he had never had any fun.
