CHINESE SINK GUNBOATS AND SIX JAP PLANES

MADAME KAI-SHEK REORGANIZES AIR FORCE

BY JAMES A. MILLS
Hankow, Jan. 5 (AP)—China's deep resolve to fight Japan to the utmost was exemplified today by the government's decision to strengthen the national military council and by renewed activity of Madame Chiang Kai-Shek's reorganized air force.

Bombs Dumped
(In Shanghai, Japanese said six Chinese bombers were intercepted at Wuhu by a fleet of Japanese pursuit planes and forced to dump their load of bombs in the Yangtze and flee. They reported no damage.)

In the reorganization move Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, who recently resigned the presidency of the executive Yuan—corresponding to the premiership—so he could devote his entire time to prosecution of the war, remains as head of the military council. He will have six new military boards under him which will devote all their time to such matters as military operations, military training, military administration, political training, military justice, transportation and publicity.

Recruiting Continues
Economic affairs and heavy industries, formerly under the national military council, have been transferred to the executive Yuan. In his capacity as head of the supreme war council, and commander-in-chief of the armies, Chiang in the future will exercise plenary powers not only over military affairs but civil matters. Instead of losing prestige and influence, the generalissimo is a more powerful figure than before he stepped down as official head of the civil government.

These readjustments and recent changes in the executive branches of the government, Chinese officials say, disprove reports that former communist leaders are now playing an important part in the national government. It is true, however, that left wing elements as well as leaders of the eighth (communist) army have been given membership in the advisory council for national defense, which recently was enlarged to 75 members.

Recruiting goes forward on a great scale. All cities and towns outside Japanese occupied territory are swarming with troops who, in some cities, outnumber the civil population. By spring China expects to have eighty full divisions in the field.

Gundry said treasurers of the upper peninsula's 15 counties would attend the meeting.

ROBINSON CASE IS CLEARING UP

Woman Missing in Russia Identified; Demands Sent to Soviet

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—Identification of the mysterious Mrs. Donald L. Robinson, missing in Soviet Russia, as an American citizen—Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens of New York—aroused the state department today to press for a complete solution of the month-old case.

Secretary Hull prepared to address further demands to the Soviet government, through the embassy in Moscow, for information on the woman's whereabouts. Officials indicated he also was ready to demand her release, if she is under arrest and circumstances justify his request.

Jews Prohibited From Using Baths

Nurnberg, Germany, Jan. 5 (AP)—The city council today decreed that Jews will be prohibited from using public bathhouses as the result of frequent disturbances involving Aryans and Jews.

Previously the baths merely had carried notices, "Jews are not wanted." Now Jews will be forced to go to the Jewish hospital, three miles distant, for health baths.

NLRB VERDICT TO BE DEFIED IN FORD CASE

WAGNER LABOR ACT VIOLATIONS ARE DENIED

Detroit, Jan. 5 (AP)—The Ford Motor company, assailing findings of the national labor relations board as "unjustified by the facts and unsupported by the evidence," announced tonight it would not comply with certain orders of the board which held it guilty of violating the national labor relations act.

The company's statement, in the form of a reply to the board's order that it "cease and desist" from certain practices, reinstates 29 discharged employees and post notices of compliance in its Dearborn and Highland Park, Mich., plants, was issued immediately after the petition for rehearing of the NLRB complaint was denied in Washington by the board.

Testimony Hearsay
NLRB officials said they would ask a federal circuit court of appeals for an order to enforce the board's ruling, but that they were undecided when or where the action would be instituted.

In seeking a rehearing, the Ford company contended the NLRB had not considered a number of relevant factors—including the General Motors and Chrysler sit-down strikes—in making its decision. The firm maintained also that the board had based its finding on testimony that was partly hearsay and that the company had been given no opportunity to examine the NLRB examiner's report to the board.

Enforcement Order Next
The Ford response, signed by P. E. Martin, company vice president, clears the way for the NLRB to seek an enforcement order in a federal circuit court of appeals. The company likewise refused to reinstate 29 employees who the board charged were dismissed for union activity, to reimburse them for loss of pay, to post notices of compliance with the board's order and to maintain the notices for sixty days.

Today's reply was made to the NLRB regional office in accordance with the order which directed that it be advised within ten days from the date of issuance of the NLRB order December 24. The reply was delayed because the petition for rehearing on the original complaint was pending until today.

The Ford reply stated that the company "has not in the past been guilty of any violations of the provisions of the national labor relations act, and that in making said paragraphs of its order the board exceeded both its constitutional and its statutory authority."

WILL REEMPLOY MEN
St. Louis, Jan. 5 (AP)—In an amended answer to charges of unfair labor practices filed with the National Labor Relations Board, the Ford Motor company indicated late today its willingness to reemploy 210 of the 278 union workmen alleged to have been discriminated against when production at the St. Louis assembly plant warrants.

Earlier in the day Ford counsel had flatly rejected a settlement of the charges, proposed by the United Automobile Workers of America as a means of ending the national labor-relations board hearing into the alleged unfair labor practices. The union offered to dismiss its complaint if 278 of its members were reemployed immediately.

The amended answer reasserted the company's general denials of the union's charges and stated two affirmative defenses, that no strike exists at the plant here and production does not warrant hiring additional men at present.

Son Of Packard Head Banking Commissioner

Lansing, Jan. 5 (AP)—Alvan Macauley, Jr., son of Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car company, and assistant vice president of the National Bank of Detroit, was appointed state banking commissioner today by Governor Murphy.

He succeeds Charles T. Fisher, Jr., son of the General Motors executive, who resigned to re-enter the private banking field. Macauley is 41 years old. After service in the army during the World war he was employed as an apprentice in the Packard company. He has been a member of the Detroit port commission and a trustee of the Children's Hospital of Michigan. Later he worked in advertising and selling for a metal products firm.

Macauley, a graduate of Yale university, joined the staff of the Guardian Detroit bank in 1933 and later transferred to the National bank. Murphy, while mayor of Detroit, appointed Macauley chairman of the port commission. After Murphy's election as governor, he appointed Macauley to the social security study commission which created the state's unemployment compensation act.

Fisher was 31 at the time of his appointment a year ago, one of the youngest men to hold a high state office. He resigned from the board of the National Reconstruction Finance corporation to become the state's banking commissioner. Previously, since 1931, he had headed the Michigan division of the National Credit corporation, organized under former President Hoover.

The governor praised both men in announcing the change.

KIDNAPER DIVES, CHOOSES DEATH

Father of Five Admits Dec. 24 Abduction of Banker's Son

Richmond, Ind., Jan. 5 (AP)—Harry C. Walter, 52, unemployed carpenter and father of five children, chose suicide today rather than legal punishment for the Christmas Eve kidnaping of 3-year-old John Bryan, Jr., Center-ville banker's son, and three other persons.

Walter, who with William Chester Marcum, 30, confessed the kidnaping shortly after their arrest last night, dived 15 feet from a balcony to a concrete floor in the county jail here. He suffered multiple skull fractures from which he died several hours later in a hospital.

"I don't know why he done it," said Marcum, also an unemployed carpenter. "I suppose he done it for his family—thought that might help them—but it won't do them no good."

State Police Superintendent Don Stiver said the men planned the crime "to get money to live on." Walter made his suicidal plunge as he and Marcum were being led to prosecutor John Britten's office.

Shouting "To hell with the sheriff," he dashed to the balcony rail and dived over before Turnkey Paul Andrews could check him.

Drive For Members Launched By UAWA

Detroit, Jan. 5 (AP)—The United Automobile Workers of America tonight launched campaigns on national and state fronts in an effort to obtain relief appropriations for the auto industry's unemployed.

Homer Martin, UAWA president, asked the senate committee on unemployment and relief to grant him a hearing in order that he might explain the unemployment problem.

DEFICIT OVER BILLION SEEN BY PRESIDENT

WAR TROUBLES AND RELIEF CAUSE UNCERTAINTY

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—President Roosevelt sent to congress today a budget calling for a $539,000,000 cut in government spending next fiscal year; but estimated that nevertheless there would be a billion-dollar deficit.

At the same time he gave notice that because of two grave uncertainties—foreign troubles and the relief needs of the unemployed—the deficit may be even greater.

Revenues Reduced
Congress received the message with mixed comment. Some said there should be greater cuts in spending. Others objected to some recommended cuts.

Chairman O'Connor (D-NY) of the house rules committee said he regretted "very much to see this irreducible minimum of a requirement of about $7,000,000,000 for federal expenses."

Mr. Roosevelt's estimate of total expenditures was $6,869,000,000, compared with estimated expenditures for this year, closing next June 30, of $7,408,000,000.

He estimated revenues for the 1939 year would be $5,919,000,000, compared with an estimate of $6,279,000,000 for this year.

Farm Benefits Cut
The greater part of the proposed cut in spending was accounted for by the total suggested for relief. The budget figure was $1,226,000,000 as against $1,759,000,000 this year.

Faith of Mr. Roosevelt's figures to allow all that some had hoped for farm benefits "brought quick protests."

Nothing that the budget called for a $330,000,000 direct appropriation for soil conservation payments and use of $110,000,000 of other funds for this purpose, Senator McGill (D-Kan), co-author with Senator Pope (D-Idaho) of the senate farm bill, commented.

"The sum is entirely inadequate. It has been our understanding all along that we could count on $500,000,000. Surely the congress will insist on it."

Navy Building Studied
There were many general comments of approval, however, such as that of Senator Sheppard (D-Texas) who said the budget was "an honest and logical effort to bring expenditures and income into balance at the earliest possible date."

At almost the same time his message was being read to the senate and house, the president began a conference with high naval officials and legislative leaders on a message he proposed to send congress, asking supplemental naval appropriations.

Those attending the conference hinted afterwards that the president had in mind scrapping the present Vinson-Trammell naval bill, based on the Washington and London naval treaties, and asking for a far bigger navy than congress now has authorized.

President's Picture Shot Full Of Holes In Detroit Barroom

Detroit, Jan. 5 (AP)—Declaring he was ready to answer any charges, Jack Mason, wrestling referee accused of firing several pistol bullets into a portrait of President Roosevelt, appeared at the Wayne county's prosecutor office today. He was freed upon his promise to return when summoned.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea had reported that Robert Summer-ville, a bartender, said Mason made remarks "not favorable" to President Roosevelt as he fired 10 or 11 shots at the portrait on a barroom wall.

McCrea said he regretted there was no law to cover "insults to the president." He added that Mason might be charged with illegal possession or careless use of firearms. He declared Mason's permit to carry a gun expired in November. The permit was obtained by Mason as a Ford Motor Co. service department employee.

All Through

Harris and Ewing from NEA. George Sutherland

Associate Justice George Sutherland announced yesterday that he is retiring from the U. S. supreme court, and this opened the way for President Roosevelt to clinch his "liberals" majority on the high tribunal. Justice Sutherland, born in England 75 years ago, earned reputation as a lawyer in Utah. President Harding appointed him to the supreme court in 1922. He is a member of the conservative wing of the tribunal.

TRIPLE KILLING CASES SIMILAR

Fenton, Mich., Methods Same as Those at Youngstown, O.

East Lansing, Jan. 5 (AP)—State police, believing these might be a link between the triple killing on a farm near Fenton, Mich., last April and three slayings on a farm near Youngstown, O., Tuesday, forwarded the files on the Fenton case to Youngstown police officials today.

Detectives at state police barracks here pointed out that the methods used by the slayer of Henry Baumeister, 38, his wife, 36, Baumeister's 60-year-old father were the same as those used by the man who slew Jehiel Davis, 76; his sister, Mrs. Lydia Hildebrandt, 72, and his wife, Eleanor, 73, on their Fenton farm.

Police investigating the Fenton slaying have searched for Roy Larsen, youthful farm hand who disappeared after the murder. A youthful farm hand is sought in the Baumeister killings.

Police said that in each case the supposed slayer had been employed for only a month or six weeks prior to the crimes. Days was found fatally beaten in the bedroom of his home and wife, Eleanor, were found stuffed in a feed box in a barn.

Cutter Nansemond Finds Fishermen, Lost In Superior

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 5 (AP)—The coast guard station at Eagle Harbor tonight announced that six fishermen, unreported since Dec. 28 when they left Gay for Manitow Island, off Keweenaw point in Lake Superior, were safe on the mainland.

The coast guard cutter Nansemond of Marquette found the men tonight. It was reported in a radio message. One of the three fishing boats was wrecked, and the Nansemond is standing by. The message did not give the location of the Nansemond.

Stork Derby Entry Has Her 12th Child

Toronto, Jan. 5 (Canadian Press)—Mrs. John Nagle, one of the contenders for Charles Vance Millar's $500,000 "stork derby" bequest, last night gave birth to her 12th child—a girl.

"I would have liked twins," she said today, "but I'm pleased anyway."

Mrs. Nagle, 35, and married 18 years, claims nine children eligible for the money left by Millar for the Toronto mother who bore the most children in the 10 years following his death. The period ended Oct. 31, 1936.

Ford Official Awaits Eloping Daughter, 17, To Give Blessing

Detroit, Jan. 5 (AP)—Somewhere the bride "Trudie" Bennett and her former groom, Russell Hughes, were honeymooning today while the bride's father, Harry H. Bennett, personnel director of the Ford Motor Co., waited to learn what he could do to start the young couple off in happy married life.

In the midst of kidnap fears, Trudie, 17, had eloped to Auburn, Ind., with Hughes, a 21-year-old Michigan Normal college classmate. Bennett wants her to come home and receive a belated parental blessing.

State police today uncovered further facts which, if known originally, would have forestalled the midnight police search for the missing girl. Intimates revealed that the couple had met a year and a half ago, that they had been engaged for six months, and that only a week ago, the bride and only an aunt, Mrs. Otto Koch of Ann Arbor, they wanted to go to Indiana and be married.

WAY IS OPEN FOR CHOOSING NEW LIBERAL

PRESIDENT IS NOW ABLE TO BUILD UP MAJORITY

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—Associate Justice George Sutherland announced his retirement from the supreme court today, giving President Roosevelt a long-awaited opportunity to increase the court's "liberal" faction to a dependable majority.

Four of the remaining members—Stone, Brandies, Cardozo and Black—have habitually espoused a liberal interpretation of the Constitution, tending to confer wide powers on the federal government instead of restricting them to the letter of that document.

Battles May End
Now, one more follower of that school is expected to be appointed by the president, who has engaged in repeated battles with the court about the way in which the Constitution should be interpreted. This appointment would give the liberal group five of the court's nine members.

Aside from these five, Chief Justice Hughes and Associate Justice Roberts have occasionally supported the liberal side and thus held a balance of power, which, as Washington sees it, will end with the new appointment.

AAA Reversal Possible
Of course, the new alignment would not reverse the court's historic decision outlawing the NRA as unconstitutional, a verdict which touched off the long administration battle against the courts. The vote in that case was unanimous.

But it could reverse the decision by which the AAA was invalidated, to Mr. Roosevelt's expressed annoyance. That decision was six to three. Among the six were Associate Justices Van Devanter, who retired last spring and was replaced by Justice Black, and Sutherland.

If Black and Sutherland's successor voted for the validation of such legislation and the others voted as before, the lineup would be five to four in favor of holding it constitutional. Hughes and Roberts both sided with the "conservatives" in that case.

Three Names Prominent
As always, when an important governmental post becomes vacant, Washington was abuzz tonight with speculation as to who would be appointed. Everyone interested had his list of possibilities and some of them were lengthy. But several names stood at or near the top of each.

These were Solicitor General Stanley Reed, Senator Sherman Minton of Indiana and former Senator Sam G. Bratton, now a judge of the tenth circuit court of appeals. These three were known to have been among those under consideration when Black was appointed last year.

Other names mentioned included: Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general; Felix Frankfurter and James M. Landis of the Harvard Law School; Senator Wagner (D-NY), and Ferdinand Pecora, a judge of the New York court of appeals.

Governor Delays Washington Trip; Has Severe Cold

Lansing, Jan. 5 (AP)—A heavy cold and recurrence of a throat infection compelled Governor Murphy to postpone a trip to Washington tonight to lay Michigan's relief problems before President Roosevelt and a group of high federal officials.

Dr. Oliver B. McGillivuddy, his physician, said the governor had "a highly infectious throat condition and a cold" and ordered him to remain in bed at his hotel here.

Murphy said he would be well enough to make the trip Monday or Tuesday.

Shortly before the governor was examined, Norman Hill, his executive secretary, announced that Murphy had accepted an invitation to lunch with the president in the White House Thursday. The governor also planned to discuss the state's relief problem with the president, Henry Morgenthau, Jr., secretary of the treasury; Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior; J. F. T. O'Connor, comptroller of currency, and Frank Bane, director of federal social security.

Motor Death Toll 39,243 For 1937

FEDERAL ROAD FUND HELD UP

Wallace Asks Michigan to Delay Highway Projects

BY PAUL MAY
Washington, D. C.—Although the secretary of agriculture today announced allotment of approximately $4,200,000 of federal funds for highway work in Michigan during the fiscal year 1939, the money will be held up until congress has had a chance to consider President Roosevelt's proposal that all highway grants for that year be cancelled, it was announced at the agriculture department today.

Secretary Wallace has written a letter to the governor of each state asking that no projects be submitted for approval, under the 1939 allotment, until congress has had time to act.

The 1939 highway allotments announced for Michigan are as follows: for regular federal aid, $3,784,165; for secondary or feeder roads, $756,833; and elimination of hazards at railroad-grade crossings, $1,620,378.

The allotments earmark the money, but payments cannot be made from these funds until specific projects have been approved by the bureau of public roads.

In North Woods Mystery Death

The mystery of the lonely but luxuriously appointed hunting lodge, shown in top photo, deep in the wilds of Ontario, Canada, may be solved by the official inquest into the death of pretty Helen Grier, lower center, 28-year-old Pontiac, Mich., stenographer, Vernon Spencer, lower right, Wilson, Mich., farmer and the woman's companion on a hunting trip last October, told police he returned from a brief foray after moose and found the pajama-clad body of the stenographer in the cabin. Her head was pierced by a bullet and her skull fractured. Testimony of Dr. E. R. Frankish, lower left, Canadian medical and legal expert and authority on ballistics, was expected to shed light on the woman's death. Spencer has been held in jail as a material witness. The inquest is set for January 7.

BATTLE RAGES AROUND TERUEL

Two Spanish Armies Push on Through Deep Snow in Crucial Struggle

(By The Associated Press)
Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Jan. 5.—A renewed struggle for strategic Teruel in eastern Spain raged today in the height of the Aragon winter.

Government advisers said their defending armies, machine-gunners and artillerymen poured lead with devastating effect into the reinforced ranks of insurgents attempting to push into the provincial capital from the northwest and south.

The two armies, described by both sides as one of the greatest concentrations of the civil war, fought in deep snow on the outskirts of Teruel while within the city government forces still tried to wipe out a bitterly-resisting insurgent garrison.

Insurgents said their soldiers, driving ahead in an effort to capture the city "within three days," pushed forward more than a mile through snow that was sometimes three feet deep.

E&LS REQUESTS RATE INCREASE

Short Line Railroads in Country Want 15% Raise

BY PAUL MAY
Washington, D. C.—Showing a net income of $83,961 for 1936, the Escanaba and Lake Superior railroad has appealed to the interstate commerce commission, along with other short line railroads throughout the country, for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates.

The net railway operating income of the railroad for 1936 was $78,534. Interest charges on the line's investment of $1,924,659 totaled only $4 for the year.

Other revenues and expenses were: freight revenue, $273,403; passenger revenue, $767; railway operating revenues, $293,678; railway operating expenses, $206,323; railway tax accruals, $41,482.

The Escanaba and Lake Superior railroad is listed as a class two railroad 75 miles in length. It is one of 283 short line steam railroads demanding freight rate increases similar to those demanded by the class one railroads.

Orange, N. J., Jan. 5 (AP)—Tony Galento, Roly-poly Orange heavyweight, knocked out Charley Massera of Pittsburgh in 45 seconds of the third round of a scheduled ten-round boxing bout tonight at the Armory. Galento weighed 218, Massera 185.

Galento took it easy for two rounds, laying back for a shot at Massera's chin. In the third he let go with a left hook to the jaw that had its echo from the canvas. It was Galento's fourth straight knockout.

A sell-out crowd of 6,200, which paid $11,000 gross, gave their fellow-townsmen a rousing ovation as he finished the Pittsburgher.

Massera looked like he was going to upset the dope during the first two rounds as he out-scored Galento with a sustained attack to the body. Tony fought only in spurts and stood his ground as Massera threw leather into his round body.

Galento rushed his opponent in the second round and hurt him with a barrage of left hooks, but the Pittsburgher came back strong and took the round as he battered Tony's body.

Tony ran from his corner in the final heat, throwing both hands.

FIRST BAG GOES TO CAVARETTA

Chicago Cub Youngster Picked as Regular by Charlie Grimm

Chicago, Jan. 5. (AP)—Phil Cavarretta, 21-year-old youngster of the Chicago Cubs, will start the 1938 training campaign as regular first baseman, forcing "Rip" Collins to beat him out of the job if he can.

Charlie Grimm, manager of the Cubs, made this announcement today as he arrived to go over spring training activities with Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the team.

Cavarretta's selection as a regular comes as a reward for his services after Collins suffered a broken ankle in the heat of the pennant race last August. The youthful Chicagoan had a chance as first baseman in 1935 and 1936, but failed to satisfy Grimm.

The Cub boss said he had about given up hope of making any deals that might bring pitcher Van Lingle Mungo to the Cubs from Brooklyn. He said he had talked to Burrell Grimes, manager of the Dodgers, twice since the winter meeting.

"If Grimes thinks he can get a whole ball club for Mungo, he won't make any progress with me," Grimm said.

Extradition Asked In Land Swindles

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 5. (AP)—Gov. Frank Murphy took under advisement tonight Kentucky's request for the extradition of Mrs. Julia M. Barker and other Michigan residents indicted in an alleged $46,000 real estate swindle by a Fayette county (Ky.) grand jury.

The governor's legal advisor, Edward G. Kemp, called for memoranda on disputed legal points at the conclusion of a four-hour hearing. He asked attorneys to submit their arguments not later than Monday.

state supreme court.

Sutherland, for years a bulwark of the court's dwindling conservative bloc, announced his retirement at a brief press conference. Affable and apparently well-pleased, he handed reporters a brief letter addressed to President Roosevelt. It said:

Draws $20,000 Annually

"Having reached the age of more than 75 years, and having held my commission as associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, and served in that court 15 years, and thus being eligible for retirement under the Sumners act of March 1, 1937, entitled 'An act for the retirement of justices of the supreme court, I desire to avail myself of the rights, privileges and judicial service specified in that act, and to that end, I hereby retire from regular active service on the bench, this retirement to be effective on and after Tuesday, the eighteenth of January, 1938.'

Among the "rights and privileges" to which he referred is a guaranteed income of $20,000 annually for the rest of his days. The Sumners act, permitting retirement at full pay, was passed, some said, to encourage older judges to leave the bench.

The judicial service of which he spoke, is the privilege of serving from time to time in the lower courts, if he chooses to do so. Justice Van Devanter, who retired under similar conditions, is now performing such service.

Native of England

Sutherland, a small, wiry figure, was one of the few supreme court judges born in a foreign land. He was a native of England, but his parents emigrated to the United States when he was fifteen months old.

He moved on to Utah, and Sutherland's rearing was in the pioneering environment of the west. He was a member of Utah's first legislature, served later in the national house of representatives and in 1905 was elected to the senate.

Sutherland was a powerful figure in the Republican politics of his state and was generally credited with swinging Utah to William Howard Taft in 1912. It was one of only two states which Taft carried.

President Harding appointed him to the court in 1922. Noted for his belief in the wisdom and inviolability of the letter of the Constitution, he said in one opinion:

"Whether the legislation under review is wise or unwise is a matter with which we have nothing to do. The only legitimate inquiry we can make is whether it is constitutional. If it is not, its virtues, if it have any, cannot save it: if it is, its faults cannot be invoked to accomplish its destruction. If the provisions of the Constitution be not upheld when they pinch as well as when they comfort, they may well be abandoned."

AGE AVERAGE DROPS

Washington, Jan. 5 (AP)—Departure of 75-year-old Associate Justice George Sutherland will cause another drop in the average age of members of the supreme court.

There was one decline last summer when 78-year-old Willis Van Devanter was succeeded by 51-year-old Hugo L. Black.

The average age now is 69, compared with slightly less than 72 before Black was named.

Brandeis, 81, is the oldest. Next in order are McReynolds, Sutherland, Hughes, each 75; Butler, 71; Cardozo, 67; Stone, 65; Roberts, 62, Black, 51.

Michigan Law Says Railroad Must Buy Employe Uniforms

Lansing, Jan. 5 (AP)—Attorney General Raymond W. Starr, stepping in where the English departments of the University of Michigan and Michigan State college failed to agree, held today that a coma has no legal meaning, and that therefore railroad conductors and brakemen are entitled to new suits of clothes at their employers' expense.

The coma in question in an act of 1879 which decrees that "every railroad corporation shall provide a uniform, hat or cap and a distinguishing badge" to each employe dealing with the public.

The act has been interpreted in the past as meaning that the railroads had the alternative of buying full uniforms, or hat or cap and badge for employes. Few of them chose to buy their employes' suits.

The state public utilities commission questioned the interpretation recently and Starr, before whom the issue was laid, passed it on to the university and college English departments. The university decided the comma took the place of the word "or." The college decided the comma was used instead of the word "and."

Starr called in assistant Attorney General Blain A. Pugh, and received the opinion that the comma had no legal meaning.

"Punctuation is not a part of the English language," Pugh reported. "The words control the punctuation marks and not the punctuation marks the words."

He agreed with the M. S. C. experts that the comma was used for the word "and." Starr supported him.

Under the ruling, the railroads must supply uniforms, badges and hats or caps for the employes affected.

Farm Crop Index One Point Lower

Lansing, Jan. 5 (AP)—The state cooperative crop reporting service disclosed today that the price index for 21 principal farm crops produced in Michigan was down one point on December 15, 1937, as compared with the preceding month, and far below the corresponding date in 1936.

The service reported that reduced prices of cattle, wool and eggs had more than offset increases in the prices paid to farmers for other agricultural produce.

Grand Rapids Jail Death Investigated

Grand Rapids (AP)—Coroner Simeon Leroy investigated Wednesday in an effort to learn why Pinley M. Clark, 48-year-old Port Huron barber, died in Receiving hospital here after being removed there from a cell at police headquarters. He was locked up Monday night on a charge of being drunk.

Sentence Reduced To Deport Convict

Mt. Clemens, Mich. (AP)—Judge James E. Spier announced Tuesday that he reduced the seven to 15 year prison sentence of George Wyporowicz, 46, to five and a half years, to permit the prisoner to be deported to Poland. Wyporowicz, now in the state prison of southern Michigan, was convicted here in 1934 of attacking the 15-year-old daughter of a Sterling township farmer who had given him free room and board. The prisoner, who once lived in Detroit, has a wife and three children in Poland.

SHANGHAI—THE KEY TO CHINA

PERMIT Japan to strengthen Shanghai and by means of it she will dominate all China—that is the consensus of Far Eastern experts. A quick glance at this city—the greatest prize in all the Orient—reveals why.

Shanghai is the key to China China has but one great seaport and that is Shanghai. Alone, the city accounts for 42 per cent of the nation's total customs revenue. Located at the mouth of the Yangtze, the Mississippi of China, the city is a trade outlet for nearly 200,000,000 people in the vast Yangtze basin.

And, too, because it is nearest to Japan and America, Shanghai looms as the inevitable headquarters for all Western Pacific commerce. Already it ranks fifth among world ports and is fast gaining in trade clearance.

Moreover, it is a strategic industrial center. Here vast engineering works, docks and factories are located. Some 30 textile mills are owned by Japan alone, employing 60,000, while the British own 24 mills and the Chinese four.

So today, a city of nearly 4,000,000, Shanghai is vitally important both to a free China and to an aggressive Japan. Magnificent, modern metropolis, her seaport trade is depicted on 1936 China stamp.

KruGon Again Unfailing in Giving New Health; Stomach, Bowels, Now Fine; Kidneys Regulated, Appetite Restored

"KruGon really begins to give results where the ordinary medicines of the present day leave off," said Mrs. Mary Hamm, 532 East North St., Danville, Illinois. "For over two years before I knew of

MRS. MARY HAMM

KruGon I had been afflicted with a stubborn stomach disorder which became so serious that I could not eat a meal without suffering with indigestion, abundant gas formations and awful bloating. My bowels were terribly irregular and my entire system had become filled with poisons. I was subject to frequent headaches and was very nervous all the time. My kidneys caused me no end of trouble and the constant night rising I was forced to, allowed me no peace at night. Finally after everything else had failed I was told about this new KruGon and decided to give it a trial in my case.

"My health troubles were soon conquered when I gave KruGon the opportunity to help me," continued Mrs. Hamm. "My kidneys and bowels have been regulated and my entire system has been cleansed of all those poisons. My stomach is now functioning properly, and I no longer am bothered with indigestion, gas or bloating. Those dreadful headaches are in the past and my nerves have even been quieted. I cannot find words to fully express the praise I feel this new KruGon deserves."

KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ludington-St., this city.

Teachers Will Confer at Junior High School Art Room

Vocational agricultural teachers from several Upper Peninsula high schools will attend a meeting to be held at the junior high school art room here Saturday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, Supt. John A. Lemmer said yesterday. A similar meeting will be held at Iron River Friday night.

In each city, the sessions will be devoted to discussions of the enterprises to be included in vocational agriculture courses for high school students and for evening and part-time classes in the communities of the Upper Peninsula.

Consultants for the sessions will be Harry E. Nesman, assistant supervisor, Vocational Agricultural Education, Department of Public Instruction, and H. M. Byram, Michigan State College. J. G. Wells, Michigan State College director of extension work for the Upper Peninsula will also attend the meetings which are being arranged by George D. Gilbert, regional supervisor, Department of Public Instruction.

The two conferences are part of a series of fourteen similar meetings being held in various parts of the state. Also scheduled for January are conferences in Adrian, January 5; Dowagiac, January 12; and Lakeview School, Battle Creek, January 13.

The Story of Bedaux

Windsor Tour Fiasco Matched by Disastrous Attempt to Motor Over Rockies

EDITORS: This is the second of two stories on the life of Charles E. Bedaux, industrialist friend of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

When Charles E. Bedaux first saw New York, back in 1908, he owned precisely one shirt—the one he had on his back.

When New York first saw Charles E. Bedaux, however—"saw" him, in the sense that its holy-toity upper-crust people began to take notice of him—things had changed. The once-penniless immigrant had become very much a somebody, his clothes were faultless and he had lots of them, and his flair for making spectacular use of his newly-acquired wealth made a deep impression on New York's social consciousness.

It was in 1927, or thereabouts, that New York first became conscious of the wealthy industrial engineer. He and his wife began attending Metropolitan Opera performances on Monday nights, started giving small dinner parties in their Fifth Avenue apartment, and began to appear at cocktail parties.

Sprayed With Perfume

The apartment was not large, but it was—er—sumptuous. It had a music room, a green and gold Georgian drawing room, a library paneled in walnut, a long hall leading to Bedaux's study (paneled in oak) and some large bedrooms. It had an exotic atmosphere, quite literally: Mrs. Bedaux, fond of lilac perfume, used to buy it by the quart and spray the apartment with it literally.

Bedaux's office, in the Chrysler building, was also something to see, with its weathered oak walls and its quiet, restful air as of a medieval monastery.

Then there was a "play apartment" which Mr. and Mrs. Bedaux maintained in Greenwich Village. Its principal function seems to have been to serve as a stage for parties, and also—as a retreat where the Bedauxs could get a few days' rest when the social whirl got too exacting. They liked to give "foreign parties" here; one night everything about the place, from food to lighting fixtures, would be Japanese, the next time it would be East Indian, and so on.

Buys Castle Cande

But Bedaux did not confine himself to New York. He had plenty of money, and he believed in getting fun with it. He bought a hunting preserve in North Carolina, a shooting lodge in Scotland, and a $600,000 chateau in France—the famous old Chateau de Cande, in the Loire district, where he started the natives by uprooting vineyard and laying out a private golf course. The chateau itself has upwards of 100 rooms, is surrounded by more than 1000 acres of land, and dates back—most of it, anyway—to the early 1500's.

Bedaux never was a man to acquire possessions and let it go at that, however. He liked to go places and do things. The incredible fund of energy which had swept him up to success in the American business world stayed with him when he went out to play.

So, in 1929, he and Mrs. Bedaux set out to cross Africa—and the Sahara desert—by automobile. Everyone told him that it couldn't be done, which probably was one of the principal reasons why he wanted to do it. And do it he did, triumphantly.

Full of Crocodiles

One other time he went vacationing in Africa, was attacked by a leopard, and narrowly escaped with his life. Another time, also in Africa, a water buffalo charged his auto and almost wrecked it. Still another time, a swarm of African bees gauged up on two members of his party, and Bedaux risked his own life to drag the two to a place of safety. Again, a hippopotamus rammed the boat in which he was crossing the Niger river, which was full of active crocodiles at the moment.

Bedaux, thus, like Theodore Roosevelt, is an apostle of the strenuous life. His New York lawyer once remarked, "Well, that's his idea and Mrs. Bedaux's idea of fun. What can be said for it is that it does keep them healthy."

One of Bedaux's few unsuccessful ventures grew out of this fondness for strenuous outdoor life. That took place in 1934, when Bedaux decided to prove that who-ever told him you couldn't cross the Rocky mountains by auto was wrong.

Never did a Canadian northwest see so completely de luxe an expedition as that with which Bedaux charged its hidden fastnesses. Up to remote Fort St. John, on the Peace river, came the entourage: five tractors, a hydroplane, three river batteaux, a vast amount of equipment that included asbestos tents, electrical gear and wireless equipment, 100 horses, and a set of striking-looking cowboys to handle them.

Amid all of this came Mr. and Mrs. Bedaux and a guest, Mme. Alberta Chiesla of Switzerland. Along, also, came Mrs. Bedaux's maid, Josephine.

Away the cavalcade went—galantly and laboriously, the tractors kept breaking down, or getting stuck in the muck. Up near Sifton Pass the wireless equipment had to be abandoned on account of its weight. Rainy weather set in, and small rivers became foaming torrents. Two tractors slid off a mountainside and were lost in a river. Another was lost in an attempted crossing of the Halfway river, when the raft which was carrying it was swept down through the rapids.

A horse-wrangler was drowned in the Kwadacha river. Some 30 horses died in two days; those which survived became too weak to carry the loads they were supposed to carry. A two-foot fall of snow put the party in genuine danger of being hopelessly marooned.

Defeat for Bedaux

Wearied and bedraggled, the caravan at last turned about and came back, leaving all its de luxe equipment in the rivers and swamps. But Bedaux was unshaken. When he came out he grinned and said, "The trip has been unique, and was justified if only for its fascinating experiences."

The trip was at least unique in that it marked a defeat for Charles E. Bedaux. He was not to know another one until 1937, when he attempted to stage-manage the American visit of his friends, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

This friendship began because Mr. and Mrs. Bedaux conceived an intense admiration for two people who could sacrifice as much for love as the Duke and Duchess sacrificed.

At the time of Edward's abdication, the Bedauxs did not know either of them; but they at once offered the Chateau de Cande to them, and it was to this place that Wallis Simpson went when she left London. It was here, too, that she and the duke were married.

Hostility Rippled and Grew

When the duke plained his American tour, it no doubt seemed natural enough to him to entrust the arrangements to this wealthy American who had been such a generous friend-in-time of need. But he had reckoned without the hostility which—rightly or wrongly—Bedaux and his famous system had aroused in the ranks of organized labor.

This hostility rippled gently at first. Then it rose to a roar of protest. And at last Bedaux had to make his second acknowledgment of defeat, in the historic telegram which read:

"Sire: I am compelled in honesty and friendship to advise you that because of mistaken attacks upon me here I am convinced that your proposed study will be made difficult under my guidance."

And so the duke did not come. His prestige was somewhat diminished, and the whole affair had been a fiasco. It had had only one definite, tangible result:

It had at least made America—all of it, not just factory executives, labor leaders and New York society—acquainted with dynamic, strenuous, irrepressible Charles E. Bedaux.

Ishpeming in Limelight

ESCANABA has its smelt jamboree and shindigs, Sault Ste. Marie its famous locks and the Copper Country its scenic Brockway Mountain Drive, but at Ishpeming the big attraction is winter sports.

For more than a half century, Ishpeming has had the ancient sport of skiing on an organized basis. Tournaments were held there long before they were ever attempted in some of the other well known skiing centers of America.

Last week-end, the Mather Inn at Ishpeming lodged about one hundred winter sports enthusiasts, most of whom came on the North-Western railway's all-expense tour. During the dull winter season, the hotel appreciates such patronage.

Other Upper Peninsula communities, who have not been able to advance as far in the promotion of winter sports, should appreciate what Ishpeming is doing and wish the boosters of that city even greater success.

The findings of this group will command a wide interest in the light of recent developments in the Far East, for Uncle Sam's attention is now turned Pacificward.

The likelihood is that statehood will not be advised at present. However, it seems equally likely that statehood will be declared the manifest destiny of Hawaii.

In their 40-year struggle to attain statehood, Hawaiians have marshaled an army of facts to support their plea. Along with Texas, they claim to be one of the only two portions of the nation entering the Union voluntarily—not by purchase, nor by conquest; not by discovery, nor by occupation.

Figures submitted to the Joint Committee by Samuel Wilder King, Hawaii's delegate in Congress, disclosed that of the 29 Territories admitted to the Union as States, only one, Oklahoma, had a larger population than Hawaii. Also, he showed, the average probationary period before these Territories became States was 21 years, whereas Hawaii has been an incorporated Territory for 37 years.

No Territory would be considered thoroughly American unless it laid claim to a string of "firsts." Here, Hawaii follows in the best American tradition. In 1901, the first Territorial legislature passed a 2 per cent income tax, which later was upheld by the Supreme Court of the Territory. That was a dozen years before the 16th amendment was ratified, giving us our present Federal income tax.

Furthermore, a compulsory education law was placed in effect in the islands in 1842. On the mainland at that time only Massachusetts had such a law. In the matter of workmen's compensation laws, social welfare legislation, and like progressive measures, the islands have been among the leaders.

To the Territory's long efforts to prove worthy of statehood, President Roosevelt's "Aloha" message of July 28, 1934, came as a sort of benediction. Ending his visit there, the President said:

"The problems you are solving are the problems of the whole nation, and your Administration in Washington will not forget you are in very truth an integral part of the nation."

"I have seen with my own eyes that you are doing much to improve the standards of living of the average citizenry. That is as it should be, and I know you will put forth every effort to make further progress. There are indeed many parts of the mainland where economic and educational levels do not come up to those which I find here."

"I shall ever remember these days, days that are all too short; your flowers, your scenery, your hospitality; but above all, the knowledge that American can well be proud of the Territory of Hawaii."

"And so I say to you 'Aloha' from the bottom of my heart."

Winter Parking

SOME citizens have expressed the opinion that during the winter months it would be well that the enforcement of the one-hour parking limit ordinance be discontinued.

They contend that automobile traffic is greatly reduced during the winter months, and that the enforcement of the regulation forces motorists to park on the side streets. Diversion of the cars to side streets gives the Ludington street district the appearance of business inactivity, they claim.

Appearances mean something, of course, from the standpoint of community morale, but the fact remains that merchants lose business when shoppers are unable to find parking room. The City of Green Bay, a busy shopping center, restricts parking to 45 minutes the year round. Other cities also have been forced to impose restrictions, provide special parking lots, and take other steps to better accommodate the motoring public.

There is one particular advantage to the enforcement of the one-hour parking restriction in Ludington street during the winter. After a snowstorm, the snow loading crews are able to move more rapidly than in past years due to the fact that their operations are not hindered by as many parked cars. Motorists who parked their locked automobiles for the entire day have caused much delay in the work of snow removal during previous winters. And certainly, the prompt removal of snow from the business district is a service that everyone appreciates.

Traffic Increases

Figures released by the state highway department disclose that the Stratts of Mackinac ferries carried 467,897 passengers during 1937, as compared to 353,139 the previous year. This represents an increase of 32 per cent.

These statistics should be accepted as conclusive evidence that the Upper Peninsula is increasing in popularity rapidly as a vacationland. During 1938, the advertising of Michigan's recreational attractions will be intensified with a nationwide campaign, which is expected to attract more tourists than ever to this state. Vigorous publicity efforts on the part of various Upper Peninsula communities in recent years should serve to draw these visitors to the northern part of the state.

The state highway department faces the problem of providing more adequate ferry service at the Stratts of Mackinac. The fleet of boats was unable to take care of the traffic conveniently during the rush season last summer, and unless another boat is added this congestion will certainly be aggravated in 1938.

At the same time, the Upper Peninsula should make ready for the larger influx of vacationists expected this coming season. Improved accommodations, more entertainment attractions and courteous service are the objectives that should be attained in order to keep pace with the demands of the vacationing public in these times.

CIVIL SERVICE NEWS

(Iron Mountain News) With the turn of the year Michigan's civil service law is effective and the next 12 months should show whether it is to be a success.

It can be made a success providing there is fair treatment all around, but if the instrument is mishandled to favor any group or party and thereby nullify its intent, succeeding legislatures will complete the emasculation and there will be civil service in name only.

Fear is expressed that Democrats will seize the advantage of their great majority on the state payroll to protect their tenure under the security clauses of the act. But it should be remembered that civil service is not exclusively a Democratic innovation. The Pollock study commission that first drafted a proposed law was appointed by Governor Fitzgerald. A legislature under Governor Murphy enacted the measure. Under such auspices there should be no discrimination, and if there is the plan is certain to fail.

Of promise is the fact that the director of the service, Mr. Brownrigg, has had experience in setting up such systems and he was brought to the state from California for this particular job. He therefore should be unfettered by any local alliance and the indications are he is to have a free hand.

Civil service should end the spoils system and greatly increase the returns that the taxpayer gets for his payroll dollar. It should eliminate unnecessary positions and establish a higher grade of ability all along the line, bearing in mind that the qualifications required should be reasonable and in accord with the particular opening to be filled.

Examination of employees and applicants will now be started. During the year, as the system is being founded, it will undergo some tough jolting, but if it survives 1938 in good shape it will be well on the way to becoming a permanent institution.

END FREE POSTAGE!

(Milwaukee Journal) During the fiscal year which ended last June the post office carried free, for other departments of government, mail to a postage value of $34,981,027. In the same period it carried for members of congress "franked" mail to the value of $1,137,655. Under the law, it is permitted to subtract these and other subsidy items arriving at net operating costs. The post-office department is, therefore, protected; but so, incidentally, are the other government departments and congressmen.

How can government departments justify a postage bill of more than $100,000 for each business day? How can congressmen justify postage bills which amount on the average to more than one-fifth of their

Washington, D. C.—In the far southern seas, 200 miles toward the South Pole from the bottom of New Zealand, lies a group of islands which constructively once were American possessions by right of discovery but it is doubtful whether the United States Government would care to have these dots of land, for they have the reputation of being bewitched. Not only has an unknown number of ships come to grief on the weather shores, seemingly attracted off their courses by some strange magnetism, but when survivors of wrecks have been castaway there they have been overcome by a curious lethargy as though some Circe presided over the dangerous shores.

The Auckland Islands lie in the position 50, 24 South; 166, 7 East. If one cares to search them out on the map, they are of volcanic origin, possess a fertile soil and, save on the rocky crags, are richly forested. Yet they have never been inhabited, except for one short period of 33 years.

These far southern waters were among the last to be explored. Mariners had looked for the Northwest Passage and had sailed north of Siberia, but for some reason the Antarctic world did not attract the adventurers. It was in 1801 that a Yankee whaler first sighted the islands and reported their position, but because of bad weather no landing was made, no American flag was planted. However, the mere discovery and the charting could well have formed the basis for a claim.

The first landing of record was made by Captain Briscoe of the whaler Ocean, a British vessel owned by the old whaling firm of Enderby and Company, after which Enderby Island is named. Ever since, the islands have been claimed by Great Britain and no one has thought it worth while to dispute the claim. Politically they come under the New Zealand Government.

Captain Briscoe landed in 1806 and thought the islands suitable for use as a whaling base. While very cold in the Antarctic winter, the climate is temperate enough in the opposite season to permit of heavy growths of timber and, as fuel is needed in the trying out of whale blubber, the islands were regarded as being conveniently located to the whaling grounds.

The whaling and sealing station was established on Main Island, largest of the group, but its usefulness did not meet expectations. The men left there succumbed to the sorcerer's apathy which broods over the place and would do little work. Moreover, often the islands were unapproachable because of the violent seas which crashed on the weather shores. In 1839, the settlement was given up as not practically tenable, and during the 98 years which since have passed they have been given up to the undisputed possession of such mystic influences as seem to preside over them.

GRAVEYARD OF SHIPS

This does not mean that they have not been visited. They have been visited by many ships but to the ships' sorrow. On the lee side of the islands, the prevailing winds being almost wholly from west to east, there are safe harbors and men have landed there successfully, men composing relief expeditions to take off shipwrecked mariners. The bitter landings have been on the weather side where ship after ship has gone crashing on the rocks, usually with the loss of all hands.

These wrecks have occurred only since the early 19th Century for the reason that, before that period, no ships sailed these waters. The records show that no ship which ever struck the Aucklands was able to get off again. There is speculation as to the fate of certain ships reported missing and a reasonable supposition that they came to their end on the Aucklands, but because the huge seas grind all evidence to bits quickly, full identification has not been made.

In 1849, an Australian vessel was blown near the coast but, the wind falling, was able to beat off the lee shore. However, she drew close enough to sight the remains of three separate vessels, although unable to go ashore to identify them. Shots were fired but no answering signal came from the islands. It was concluded no survivors were ashore. The next gale or two destroyed the evidence of the hulks.

In 1863, the ship Grafton was cast on the Aucklands and some survivors were able to get ashore. After months they managed to build a crazy boat out of wreckage from their vessel and, in spite of the enchantment which usually gripped castaways, they managed to reach Stewart Island, off the New Zealand coast. But there were but 11 survivors out of a ship's company of 371.

salaries? When is congress going to amend the law so that justification will have to be made?

For decades now, persons interested in putting expenses where they belong have urged that congress stop the foolishness of "privilege" and "franked" mail. They have urged that the postage requirements of the various departments be budgeted along with their other expenses and that congressmen be given a generous but not unlimited postage allowance. Nothing has come of it, presumably because a congressional prerequisite is involved. It is time congressmen stopped this guarding of petty privilege and did something sensible about what at times reaches the level of a national scandal, with some members "franking" mail which would cost them their whole annual salary if paid for at regular rates.

Recognizing that this is the era of dictators and "strong men," Dora is wondering just who will go down in history as the Great Dane.

A statute 147 years old provides $1000 fine for revolt on the high seas and probably was originally entitled Bounty on the Mutiny.

Answers To Questions

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

A reader can get the answer to question of fact by writing The Escanaba Daily Press Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. Please enclose three (3) cents for reply.

Q. Do drunken pedestrians figure in automobile accidents? G. M.

A. A survey by the Massachusetts Safety Council shows that they are almost as great a menace as drunken drivers. In 412 night highway accidents in that State in 1936, almost a third more intoxicated pedestrians were victims than intoxicated drivers.

Q. What is the fastest sport? H. C. S.

A. Ice hockey is so considered.

Q. What is the old Fine Arts Building of the 1893 Chicago Fair now used for? F. M.

A. It is now the Museum of Science and Industry. The building has been entirely restored, and Julius Rosenberg has provided the funds for the Museum.

Q. What day of the week was July 4, 1776? M. W.

A. It fell on a Thursday.

Q. How high should a barbed-wire fence be for confining sheep, goats, and cows? A. A. P.

A. The Bureau of Agricultural Engineering says that barbed wire is not very suitable for a sheep fence, since it tears the wool. If used, the fence may be three feet high, with the wires about six inches apart. For goats, the fence should be five feet high, made of six or seven wires. A fence, four and one-half feet high with five wires may be used for cows.

Q. May a person publish a letter that he has received without the consent of the writer? W. K.

A. This is a legal question. The following is an excerpt from Corpus Juris, Volume 13: "The writer of a letter has a right of property in the letter, superior to that of the person to whom the letter is sent, which entitles the writer to a remedy against any unauthorized publication either by the person to whom it was sent or by a stranger. As in the case of art works, the common-law literary property may be in the sender, while the title to the physical substance of the letter may be in the recipient. The recipient has the property right in the paper on which the letter is written; he may keep it or destroy it, and he can recover possession of it when lost, even from the writer; but he has no right to publish it without the consent of the writer. It has been said that the recipient of a letter may publish it against the will of the writer where it is necessary to protect his rights or to defend his character against the writer; but this doctrine has been severely criticized and it is doubtful if it would now be followed."

Q. Where is the original manuscript of Barrie's Peter and Wendy? W. H.

A. It was recently purchased at auction in London by Gabriel Wells of New York.

Q. Is Bessie Smith, the Negro blues singer, living? W. J.

A. She died last September as the result of an automobile accident. The singer was 41 years old.

Q. When was the mace first used in the House of Representatives? H. E. A.

A. The first mace of the House of Representatives was adopted April 4, 1789. It was about three feet long and consisted of 13 ebony rods representing the 13 original colonies, bound together with transverse bands of silver in imitation of the towers that bound the fœces of ancient Rome. The shaft was surmounted by a globe of solid silver about five inches in diameter, upon which rested a massive eagle richly carved of solid silver; although the eagle's wings were outspread, he grasped the globe firmly with his claws. This mace was destroyed by the British when they burned the Capitol in 1814. For 28 years thereafter a mace of painted pine wood was used, until the congressional session of 1841-42, when the present mace was procured, which is a replica of the one destroyed by the British.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—There have been many legends about doormen and some of them true.

Over the years the tale persisted that the doorman at Jack & Charlie's famous "21" Club dealt in costly realty by day. And though he seemed to subsist on quarter tips, the word went that he was in a position to buy or sell Fifty-second Street.

And there is the doorman at a downtown Russian cafe, in the dashing Cossack muff, whose credentials show that once he served in the Czar's personal guard; and who unto him, should he decide to venture back into Leningrad or Moscow.

It leads up to this: the other night your correspondent was listening to the lament of a swarthy and amiable Greek who pushes the revolving door at a club. He was moaning about the depression in mercantile shipping, a topic which seemed far removed from the man at the door of a night club. But he had a personal stake in it, he said, for he happened to be part proprietor of freighters belonging to a great Greek fleet—and business was not so good!

Hospitality The sedentary life gives the playboys their weird ideas and all kinds of funny notions germinate in their heads which they loiter at El Morocco.

Now the other night, H. H. Rogers, heir to the oil fortune gazed into the crystal of a champagne glass and announced his plans for the winter. He was, he said, going to sail his yacht down to Palm Beach and after casting anchor, he was going to cement the side of his boat against the harbor wall. Then he was planning to convert his pasted-up craft into a floating southern mansion for all his friends. And he might, too.

It's downright silly, but it's a laugh. During the past few nights, Lynne Fontanne has cuddled up to Alfred Lunt in the more intimate scenes of their classic vehicle, "Amphitryon 38," and murmured this strange query, "Perwitky? Perwitky?" once or twice. It isn't in the English script, nor did the author ever hear of it, and the Greeks, from whom the play was taken, never had such a word; nor is it an incantation the Lunts made up themselves.

But it turns out that they picked up a newspaper last week and read in a column that Lynne Fontanne wears the only Perwitky coat in town. The information surprised them, too, if for no other reason than they don't know a Perwitky coat from a Hudson seal. But they like the sound of the word and they are hoping that somebody in the audience is going to hear "Perwitky" one night and come around and explain.

Maybe it hasn't occurred to you that some of the screen's most glamorous sirens are handmaidens' wives and that these baton wavers have, at last, banded together for their own protection.

They've organized a fraternity where they can cry on each other's shoulders about the distance that divides them from their Hollywood wives. The charter members include Herbie Kay who is Dorothy Lamour's husband, Ozzie Nelson who is married to Harriet Hilliard, Roger Pryor who wed Ann Sothern, Herman Nelson who is married to Bette Davis, Johnny Green who married Betty Furness, and Lou Bring who, off the podium, is the husband of Frances Hunt.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington—"We have raised the nation's income from $38,000,000,000 in the year 1932 to about $68,000,000,000 in the year 1937. Our goal, our objective is to raise it to $90,000,000,000 or $109,000,000,000."

The perfect voice boomed out in the chamber of the House of Representatives. There was a pause, and one of those little presidential gestures with the head which used to give the signal for applause. This time no applause came, for the Congress, dampened by the recollection of depression, was in no cheering mood. And the two short sentences, in the long view more interesting than any others in the President's message on the state of the union, passed almost unnoticed.

What do they mean? A national income of $100,000,000,000, according to the best informed of the President's own economists, would mean a 20 per cent increase in prices, the replacement of unemployment with a labor shortage, and such boom times as would make the year of the great foolishness, 1929, look like one of the Puritan church supper. Or it would mean a new society, with government in control of prices and production.

UTOPIA WITH $87,000,000,000

Probably the President was just being slightly overgenerous in tossing off his $100,000,000,000 figure, since the economists seem to think there's such a thing as having too much money. But his ultimate figure of $90,000,000,000 looks like an oratorical approximation of the national income goal arrived at in a serious and fascinating study of the problem. This study was prepared some time ago by government experts, for the private eyes of the President and his most important lieutenants.

The experts concluded that the most desirable national income would be $87,000,000,000. This would mean a 10 per cent rise in prices from their present level. It would mean a reduction in unemployment to 3,000,000, or the level at which no one is jobless but the unemployables and the irreducible and constantly changing group to whom the labor turnover has brought a couple of wageless weeks.

It would mean a standard of living slightly higher than that of 1929, and it would mean a volume of production about 20 per cent greater than the 1929 volume. It would mean such government controls as we have now to prevent the recurrence of 1929's evils, but no such serious alterations in the structure of our society as the same experts think would be necessitated by a $100,000,000,000 income.

THE EXPERTS—MAGIC

Economics is a mysterious business, with all the glorious accuracy of weather forecasting on the old bunton and shibboleth system. Nevertheless, it's interesting to see how the President's experts arrived at their figure of $87,000,000,000 for the desirable national income, and why they predicted an income of that amount would bring with it a 10 per cent price rise and all the other things.

As to the price rise, the study, which was made some time before the new depression set in, sets forth the theory that since the really prosperous days there has been a dislocation among the national industries.

Some industries, the experts said, would go to capacity production long before others. Therefore, considerable price rises in the promptly profitable industries would be unavoidable before the laggard industries could catch up. They set 10 per cent as the maximum price rise which could be permitted without peril of further dislocations.

The actual size of the proposed income was governed by the experts' notion of the income necessary to bring full reemployment by 1939. They assumed, to start with, that 3,000,000 represents the minimum of unemployment. They took 9,500,000 as the jobless total for 1936, and concluded that 1,800,000 more persons would be added to the labor market by 1939. That gave them about 8,000,000 workers to be absorbed by industry before full reemployment could come.

Thus the 20 per cent increase in production, the general prediction as to living standards, and the experts' belief that the whole business could be managed without very violent changes in governmental method.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

A WASTE OF TIME

No heart for music, mind for wit. He didn't see how men could sit around the board and listen to a song and story as they do. The joker's jest, the poet's rime, He said were just a waste of time.

Men had their care, and he had his. He said, with life the way it is, With all its worry, want and wrong, There's little time to think of song. The poet said, "No truer thing. Was ever said, that's why I sing."

And when the jester lightly spoke He frowned upon the fellow's joke And shook a disapproving head. "Life is too serious," he said, "Yes, much too serious at best." The joker said, "That's why I jest."

He busied him with bigger things: He had more pow'r than many kings, More wealth than Midas had to spend, And died at last without a friend. Without a jest, without a rime, His life was all a waste of time.

DONALD STREHL IS ACQUITTED

Manistique Youth Found Not Guilty; Arson Case Dismissed

A circuit court jury yesterday found Donald Strehl, Manistique youth, not guilty of negligent homicide in the death of Witte Griffin, Canadian sailor who was an occupant of the Strehl car when it crashed into the rear of a CCG truck on the Whitefish hill near Rapid River on the afternoon of June 21. The jury deliberated for about two hours.

The case was given to the jury late yesterday morning after the prosecutor and defense attorney had made their final pleas. Testimony had been completed Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the jury which acquitted Strehl were Mrs. Mae Nelson, Pauline Murray, Ozias King, Bernitta Olson, Edward Mileski, Maude LaMothe, Arthur Mayou, Olga Olson, Cecil Hull, Selma Braskick, Archie Reese and Helmer Stromquist.

Following an afternoon recess before which the state's case had been concluded against Camiel DeYoonke of Gladstone, charged with arson, Prosecuting Attorney William Miller made a motion that the case be dismissed because he felt the state had failed to produce the corpus delicti. The motion was granted and the case dismissed.

Members of the jury who heard the testimony but who were not called on to sit in deliberation were Frank Brander, Otto Dittrich, Louis Carr, Donald Roberts, Hattie Heric, Blanche LaPorte, Mrs. Henry Breault, Lawrence Erickson, Isadore Chartrand, Harold Freytag, Elizabeth Madden and Victoria Humbert.

In the case of Frank Tynes and George Britz, Jr., charged with robbery, the jury was chosen but dismissed until this morning without hearing any evidence. Members of the jury are: Arthur Mayou, Ozias King, Donald Roberts, Alfred Sjoen, Victoria Humbert, Louis Creton, Joseph Louis, Florence Brooks, Cecil Hull, Frank Brander, Olga Olson and Elizabeth Madden.

James Rickenson Sanity Test Case Is Dropped By Son

Menominee—The James Rickenson case in Probate Judge Katherine Stiles Laughton's court took a new turn today when John Rickenson, a son of the 64-year-old Menominee township farmer, withdrew his petition for an examination to determine his father's sanity.

The elder Rickenson was scheduled for jury trial of sanity this afternoon. Withdrawal of the son's petition for an examination was followed by withdrawal of a demand for a jury trial for her husband.

If the jury trial had been held it would have been the first in an insane examination in this county since 1904, Judge Laughton said.

Mail Order Courtship
Mrs. Rickenson married the aged man about one year ago in Escanaba. The marriage culminated an acquaintance that started when Mrs. Rickenson answered an advertisement of Rickenson's for a bride. The bride, formerly Mrs. Marguerite Wakely, came to Menominee from Indiana, bringing a son with her.

John Rickenson, a son by Rickenson's first wife, indicated today that he would petition probate court this afternoon for appointment of guardian for his father, to manage both his father's person and property. Four days after the Rickenson's were married Rickenson decided his bride a half interest in his 120-acre farm.

To Ask Guardian
The son said that he would file a petition to have Judge Laughton name a special guardian for his father to act during the period of 14 days before a regular guardian could be appointed.

The elder Rickenson had been in jail here since he was brought to Menominee Thursday for examination. He refused to return to the farm with his wife and step-son Friday, and today again refused to return to the farm, although both the wife and step-son pleaded with him to go home. He told officers he feared his step-son.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys
Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Mixed Quartet Gives Concert Here Tonight

The Chelanah Mixed Quartet will appear this evening at 7:45 o'clock at the Mission church, in a program of sacred music, featuring vocal, trombone and piano numbers. The quartet has been recently organized and is now appearing in a series of concerts in the Upper Peninsula, Minnesota and in Chicago. It is composed of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wade and Rev. and Mrs. Cecil Johnson of Stambaugh. They are all graduates of North Park college, Chicago, and studied under the same instructor while at school. They have appeared with the college glee clubs which travel from coast to coast, and also with the college chapel choir, a selected group of solo voices used for special concert work and radio programs. These friends have recently met again at Stambaugh and are ready to give a varied program in vocal and instrumental numbers. Mr. Wade, high school instructor is accomplished on the trombone and will render two groups in the program, and the ladies of the quartet will play a piano duet. There will be solos, duets and special arrangements of vocal numbers. Rev. Johnson will give a brief message on the theme of "sacred music." The concert is being sponsored by the Young People's society of the local church, and although there has been an advance sale of tickets they will also be available at the door. After the program, refreshments will be served in the church parlors by the sponsoring organization. There will be a small charge for refreshments. The public is invited to attend the concert.

A dinner, at which members of the family group will honor their mother, will be served in the evening.

McKenney On Bridge

most popular events on the tournament program.

At Washington, where the American Contract Bridge League recently held its national tournament, Lieut. R. A. Cook of Annapolis, with Lieut. C. W. Humphreys, won the event over a strong field. Their victory was in part, at least, made possible by the way in which Lieut. Cook (South) played today's hand.

Short suit openings often will deceive a declarer. It is quite obvious, looking at all four hands, that three no trump can be made easily.

But with a spade opening and East playing the nine spot to the first trick, the declarer cannot expect that suit to break. Therefore, he started the club suit and finessed the jack.

East won and returned a heart, dummy's king winning the trick. Two rounds of diamonds were taken and when the declarer found that suit did not break, he led two rounds of clubs only to find that the extra trick could not be made there.

Declarer now played a small spade from dummy. East felt that he must unblock this suit for his partner and played the jack. This play gave the declarer his one opportunity to make the contract. He won with the ace and now leading a spade, forced West to win with the queen.

West, in desperation, laid down the ace of hearts and exited from his hand with the jack of hearts. South won with the queen and then cashed his high diamonds, thereby using some of the "bad luck" of the hand to assist him in making the contract.

Contract Problem

(Solution in next issue)

The bidding went: South and West, pass; North, one club; East, one heart; South, two clubs; North, two no trump; South, three no trump. Should East open away from his heart tenace position or try to find some other lead?

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

"She lives for her family" used to be a compliment. It isn't any more. Today we are beginning to see that a woman's first duty is to herself. Are women becoming more selfish, then? Not at all. They are just waking up to the fact that the most any human being can do is to make as much of himself as possible. Investing every bit of herself in others doesn't pay dividends—not to the woman, or to those she loves most. If she gives her whole life to her family letting them take her strength, her beauty, her gaiety—all in the name of love, she must eventually realize that she has short-changed herself. We are loved for what we are—more than for the sacrifices we have made. And the sooner all young women realize that the fewer cheated and unhappy middle-aged women there will be in the world. Don't always put your children first. The mother who makes old clothes "do" for herself so that her children can be dressed within an inch of their lives isn't being fair to either herself, her husband, or the children. Men want to be proud of their wives. It is much more important to them that their children look as though their pictures could be used in the pages of an expensive style magazine. Children want to be proud of the mother, too. And any woman will admit that nothing in the world is so depressing as shabby clothes. Few things make a woman less sociable. The old refrain "I can't go because I haven't a thing to wear" is all too often true even today where mothers are concerned. But even more important than a mother's spending her share of the family check on herself is the need for her to be the person she was before she ever changed her name. She has to be someone

SNOW PLOWING EXPENSE HIGH

30 Per Cent of County Road Commission Income Used

The financing of snow removal work now uses 30 per cent of the income of the Delta county road commission, according to J. T. Sharpsteen, county road engineer. He points out that with the increase of trucks and automobiles causing an almost complete elimination of horse-drawn traffic, there has come an insistent demand for improved roads, which are kept open every day in the year.

The McNitt Act also has been an important factor in the increase of the responsibilities of county road commissions.

Prior to the adoption of the McNitt law in 1931, which required county road commissions of Michigan to take over township roads in five years, the Delta county road commission had jurisdiction over 133 miles of county roads. Through the operation of the McNitt law the road commission is now responsible for six times as many miles of road.

In 1929, $193,000 was spent on county and township roads in Delta county. Of this amount $130,000 was raised by a direct property tax and $63,000 came from the automobile weight tax.

In 1935, the Delta county road commission had an income of $120,000 with which to take care of the same roads that required $193,000 in 1929. None of the 1936 income came from a direct property tax.

In 1929, the total amount spent on township and county roads in Michigan was $35,000,000. In 1936 the amount available for the same roads had dwindled to $20,000,000.

Tommola, Marquette. District clerks are Dolf Stindt, Ewen; William B. Hanna, Baraga; Milton Misener, Crystal Falls; A. L. McNeil, Escanaba, and Oscar Nordeen, Marquette.

The next conservation school will be held at Pigeon river, where district supervisors from all over the state will convene later in the month.

NEW MARK FOR YEAR IS MADE

Yesterday morning marked the lowest the thermometer has reached thus far this winter, an official reading of seven degrees below zero being recorded about 7:30 o'clock. H. S. Kenny, temporarily in charge, said yesterday.

The previous low for the year was three degrees below zero, recorded on December 27.

Continued cold weather is predicted for today.

The monthly meteorological summary for December issued yesterday reveals that, although the month was comparatively mild throughout, the mean temperature was about two degrees lower than the normal for the month. The highest temperature for the month was 36 degrees, recorded on the third while the lowest was three below on the 27th. It is interesting to note that on the later date, the high for the day was 35 degrees, just one less than the highest for the month.

December of this year was the driest since 1930, the precipitation this year being 0.91 while in 1930, it was 0.20.

Only three days of the month were clear, seven partly cloudy and 21 cloudy.

While the voting was close for some offices, the union voted to cast a unanimous ballot for Wilson as treasurer as a gesture of thanks for his work.

DOORS OPENED AT POSTOFFICE

New Munising Structure Costing $46,100 Now In Use

Munising, Jan. 5.—Both postoffice clerks and patrons felt elated here Monday when the new postoffice building opened its doors for business.

The building was constructed at the cost of $46,100. Work on the building was begun on June 8 and the doors of the postoffice were opened for business more than a month and a half before the scheduled date of completion.

Five windows confront the person entering the postoffice through an interior vestibule, money order and postal savings, registry and COD, parcel post, stamps, and general delivery. The old office only had two windows in daily use; one, general delivery, parcel post and stamps, the other, registry and money order. Four mail slots also are in use at the new postoffice, papers and packages, air mail and special delivery.

city letters and out-of-town letters.

An employees entrance is in the lobby and five well-placed bulletin boards are on the lobby walls. A well-equipped postmaster's office is off of the lobby. The building has a fireproof vault. Cat-walks are at one side of the building inside the office and postal inspectors may watch operations through slits in the wall.

In the basement there are two postoffice storage rooms, an unfinished space at the front of the building and a boiler room and fuel room.

The postmaster, Anne O'Donnell Wright, and all the clerks, readily admit that they're a little excited over the pleasant and well-equipped postoffice and "just know they're going to like the new place."

The BEARS HAVE BERN

SIX new bear cubs arrived recently to augment the bruin population of Bern, Switzerland and the incident made front-page news! The reason is that Bern seems to be the bear capital of the world.

Bruin is the official mascot of Switzerland's ancient capital city. He appears on the Bern coat-of-arms, he is one of the city's top attractions, and he crops up here and there and everywhere in its daily life.

Famous are the city's sunken bear pits where the shaggy animals scramble up trees and bid for a handout from the passerby. Bears adorn the street cars and buses, bakery shops mold gingerbread bears and souvenir shops sell piano stools, tables and grandfather clocks supported by carved bears. Most of the home-carved notions likewise bear images of this lumbering animal.

In downtown Bern many of the city's fountains portray bears in armor. And one of the rarest sights is the striking of the large clock in the medieval clock tower of Bern; it is followed by a most amusing procession of mechanical bears. Depicting old bruin, the Bern coat-of-arms is shown here on a Swiss semi-postal charity stamp.

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—The National Guard of Michigan was 236 men short of its allotted strength at the close of the fiscal year 1937, according to the annual report of the chief of the national guard bureau, made public today.

Allotted 5,002 men, the Michigan National Guard had only 4,766 at the fiscal year closed, the report shows. Personnel included 341 commissioned officers, as compared with 386 allotted; four warrant officers, with five allotted; and 4,421 enlisted men, as against 4,611 allotted.

Of the enlisted personnel of the Michigan National Guard, 16 were enrolled in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, and 3,144 men had less than a year's service as the fiscal year closed.

Available for use by the Michigan guard units were 46 armories, 35 owned by state, county, or city, two owned by some organization, and nine owned by private parties. Of these 46 armories, 42 provided adequate facilities for training, the report shows. Adequate storage and fire protection for United States property was available in 35 of the 46 armories. Only eight had garages and hangars, only three had stable accommodations, while 28 had adequately equipped indoor target ranges.

Disbursements for the Michigan National Guard, made by United States property and disbursing officers during the fiscal year, totaled $228,434.22, the report shows.

Divided by arms of the service, the Michigan National Guard strength included the following: 122 officers of infantry, 2,124 men; field artillery, 45 officers, 585 men; engineers, 8 officers, 170 men; air corps, 19 officers, 108 men; medical corps, 41 officers, 391 men; quartermaster corps, one officer, 40 men; chaplains, 5; headquarters, 11 officers, 42 men; special troops, 14 officers, 193 men.

On The RECORD

By Dorothy Thompson

Devil Chasing in Modern Salem

It is the awful frivolity of speeches like those of Mr. Jackson and Mr. Ickes that is really distressing. I use the word frivolity advisedly. The world we live in is excessively dangerous, and his moment in this country is excessively dangerous, not only for us, but for the whole civilized democratic world.

Dorothy Thompson

On October 9th "The New Statesman and Nation" which, as an English socialist paper, shows a grasp of the problems of capitalism which we sincerely wish were quite as clear to Washington said:

"In the case of the United States, it is becoming evident that under-investment is producing its Nemesis. Up to a point American recovery could and did proceed merrily on the basis of cheap and ample supply of banking credit supporting a consumer demand which was expanded by vast relief expenditure and, subsequently, rapid wage increases.

This is the comment of a labor organ on the theory of so-called Washington economists that our whole trouble is still an absence of consumer demand and that everything can be solved by increasing labor purchasing power.

"The penalty," continues "The New Statesman," "was the absence of any proportionate revival of investment in the capital goods industries—housing, railways and the power utilities. Partly because rising wages and costs bade fair to destroy profit margins, partly through mistrust of government's proclivities, American capital has hung back, as French capital has done, from investment in fixed plants and construction. Without such investment consumer demand reached this summer as it was bound to, temporary saturation point. . . . Stocks of commodities . . . show heavy inventory losses at current prices. If negative investment develops on a large scale, the reactions on the prices of raw materials, and hence on the prosperity of primary producers, may easily convert what is so far a moderate setback to American activity into another world economic crisis."

Here, then, is a socialist publication agreeing with an analysis submitted as early as last March by a liberal economist who has always championed the social objectives of this Administration, that deflationary and under-investment policies were, as early as then, "threatening a crisis in the monetary institutional setting of capital goods activity and recovery." And that the policies which have deliberately discouraged investments are "as incompatible with this Administration's social objectives as they are with the economic functioning of the system, constituting, as they do, a gratuitous reversal of economic trends which, if uncorrected, could lead to a synthetic, dynamic deflation in the world economic order."

The socialist organ which I am quoting points out that negative investment, which is not the result of a conspiracy but flows automatically from certain conditions, is adverse upon the primary producers, that is to say, upon agriculture, which is being hit obliquely through the attacks on industry.

Let us make no mistake about it. This is what we are up against: the possibility of another world economic crisis, at a time when class hostilities have been agitated to a sharpness never before known in our domestic history and when the whole world is torn by contending ideologies, and propagandas.

The problems we have to try to work out are terrifically complicated. They have to do with certain factors that are beyond our control as a domestic economy, and with perennial paradoxes inside any system of private enterprise: the recurrent dilemma of over-investment at the cost of the workers—or under-investment because profits disappear.

Now even "The New Statesman and Nation" whose contributors show some structure in their thinking, know that at this moment it is the second of these dilemmas which menaces us, and again, to quote this publication: "President Roosevelt's attempt to kick American capitalism into prosperity and hold it up by deliberately inflating the purchasing power of the consumer has failed."

"We over here would not dare to put it as drastically as The New Statesman and Nation does because some of the fallacies of the Administration have affected the thinking of businessmen themselves, who have been misled by the idea that taking in each other's consumable washing is a way of producing wealth. Even those of us who are most critical do not go farther than to say that the policy has run its course, and we must now take measures to balance the teetering economy on the other side—unless we are to take the defeatist attitude that the world is sliding into chaos anyway and we had better slide with it. If it slides, we will all be on the toboggan party, willy-nilly. The sixty dual families and the last taxi chauffeur as well.

I find it intolerable that in this situation high officials of the

CHAPTER XVIII
"Well," Barry laughed, "as a matter of fact, that plane dropped into my lap just as I was scrambling ashore and trying to shake the Caribbean out of my ears and eyes. The pilot, who was the manager of a chain of German coffee plantations, noticed my ship in the waves, and came down to reconnoiter."

"As I don't speak much German, and his English wasn't any too fluent, it wasn't until he had me just how badly I needed his plane. But he finally did get the idea. I dropped him at one of his plantations, refueled and stocked up with provisions, and hopped along. Fortunately the plane had a radio—"

"Oh, I say," the announcer cut in, "then it could have been your signals that amateur in Texas was picking up."

"Probably was," Barry said. "We had some talk with someone up there after I stumbled on the Aurelius outfit, while we were trying to grab out a clearing for me to take off from."

When it was over, old Miranda blew her nose vigorously three times before she said, "Well, I suppose we'd better go about getting another Christmas tree set up. He ought to be here about day after tomorrow. . . . We're going to be busy."

They planned for hours. Then they sat, just talking. When they finally looked at the clock and got up to go to bed, old Miranda said with what would have been a giggle in any one else, "Do you know, I'd almost forgotten how restful it is to have another woman around. You can't really—er—let down your hair, I believe, in the modern idiom—with a man. The creatures just don't have any hair to let down."

Barry's broadcast proved a real nuisance in the end. The airport and several friends had called to deliver his message almost before the radio was turned off that night. Next day they were flooded with telephone calls and visitors. Miss Chattam was one of the first.

"Well," she said to Linda, "you and Barry have given this town a surprise. Of course, I guessed there was something in the air. . . . but I must say, Miranda—her pale, gimlet eyes probed old Miranda's face—"you are a mastermind at keeping a secret. Let's see—just when were they married? Why, almost two weeks ago it must have been! . . . To think of your harboring a romance like that under your roof for two weeks, and never giving a sign even to your oldest friends!"

But if Miranda Trent were disconcerted by the implication her face was inscrutable.

"After all," she said tartly, "if my grandson and his wife thought it better not to make any announcement until his return, I fall to see why the whole town should be concerned."

"Rita Blanchard had a telegram inviting her to Florida this morning," Miss Chattam ran on with apparent irrelevance. "Well, I guess she needs a trip. She didn't look any too brisk when I saw her."

United States Government should make such banal statements as that the villains are "sixty American families." I wish it were so. Then it would be simple. We could guillotine them. Or that "capital has gone on a sit-down strike." Just what does that mean? The utilities, for instance, are trying to get capital. They want to go out to the public and raise capital, and they can't do so for the simple reason that the public has no confidence in the investment under the present conditions. The sit-down strike is on the part of the American investing public, which means hundreds of thousands of people, and the Administration is not attacking the sixty families, but is attacking the judgment of every American with a few dollars with which to buy shares.

The presumption that we are asked to accept is that there is a secret conspiracy of a few big businessmen to bring down the Roosevelt administration by strangling the American economy; a kind of mass suicide movement in which they would certainly lose their own fortunes and possibly their necks.

Also we are told that the object of this conspiracy is to force Congress to repeal all that has been gained in the last five years. Now just what has been gained? A lot of red ink has been transferred from business to the government's books at the cost of the American taxpayer. There have been definite gains in social consciousness on the part of the American public, including most of business, and for them we have the spirit of the first New Deal to thank. This country is not going back on the idea of social security, or of high inheritance taxes, or of any high taxes that are not economically self-defeating, or of taking measures to protect the investor from fraudulent issues of securities, or of preventing the kind of holding companies that existed prior to 1935.

There has been much technical criticism of many of the acts which have been passed, but the point is that it has been technical. But the Administration has constantly tried to twist that criticism, even when it has come from the leading and most disinterested experts of the country, into heartless attacks on the poor and helpless. And this twisting is important. For the emotional flight from the real issues and defects of government acts, accompanied by person-at the postoffice this morning. . . . That reminds me, Miss—Mrs. Trent"—she turned to Linda—"Rita saw that singer who made such a hit at one of the night clubs in the city—Silvia," she called herself—and Rita said she'd have sworn it was you—knowing how beautifully you do sing, and that you were out of town just then. . . . I hear she's not singing there any more. . . . Oh, well, some people will believe anything. She tittered placatingly and clattered on, "By the way, Miranda, how are you going to announce the marriage?"

"I should say," replied Barry's grandmother dryly, "considering the airing the whole episode seems to be getting the only competition we could offer would be the daily newspapers." Her eyes snapped wickedly. "Don't miss the morning paper, Lydia."

When Miss Chattam had finally gone, the old lady went to her writing desk and scribbled busily for a few moments.

"There!" she exclaimed with satisfaction. "There's no defense like blowing the enemy up with their own powder."

She read aloud: "Mrs. Miranda Trent of Trent Hall, Nordhof, announces the marriage of her grandson, Captain Barrymore Trent, United States Naval Air Corps, to Miss Linda Benton daughter of the former Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Benton of Mount Kisco, New York. The bride is well known in her own right as a singer. During the Christmas holidays, she was a featured entertainer at a fashionable night club in a neighboring city. . . . Well, if there's any question in any one's mind about how we stand on this matter, I fancy that will settle it. . . . That is—er—what do you think, my dear?"

Linda said steadily, with her head high, "For your sake and Barry's, I wish it had been different—that I had not been up there—showing myself, when he was—but I have nothing to hide."

"Never waste time wishing things might have been different," snapped the Duchess. "The point is: we have nothing to hide. We make no apologies."

There was so much to do that everyone in the house was still flying around when the airport called to tell them that Captain Trent had landed, and was already on his way home.

Snow had begun to fall early that morning. The ground was white, and the boughs of the trees were bent with snowy plumes when a car came up the drive and stopped before the house. Someone cleared the front steps two at a time; then Barry burst into the hall, stamping the snow from his feet.

"Well, well!" he said, grinning at the ring of expectant faces in the hall. "It looks like a white Christmas, after all. And do I smell bacon and coffee?"

Then, in spite of Linda's good resolutions, she was crying and laughing on his shoulder, while old Miranda blew her nose and grumbled unsteadily. "Dear me, Barry! You seem to have brought the whole outdoors inside with you!"

He was a little thin, a little hollow about the eyes, but his spirits were as irrepressible as ever, and his appetite was enormous. When he had answered an unreasonable number of questions, he rebelled.

"Oh, have a heart!" he protested. "Who do you girls think I am—Marco Polo? I hope you haven't been getting into mischief while my back was turned. You look guilty."

Miranda exchanged a glance with Linda which said, "We might as well tell him now."

So Barry had to hear all about Silvia Star and read the announcement in the paper. He listened with blank astonishment that twinkled into amusement as he watched his grandmother's face.

"I see," he said. "As usual, we simply thumb our noses at the vulgar public. . . . You didn't tell Linda, I suppose." He went on with bland malice, "about how Great-aunt Julia Trent startled the neighborhood by disguising herself as a jockey and riding her own horse into the money at the Saint Michael's sweepstakes?"

"I did not," said old Miranda. "Linda doesn't need to have any ideas—put into her head. She's made history enough for one generation."

Then the Christmas tree had to be trimmed, with Linda handing things up to Barry on the step-ladder, and old Miranda being very mysterious about the dozens of ribbon-decked parcels she produced.

They had supper in the drawing room, with the double doors into the front parlor thrown open so that they could see the lighted tree. It was a very gay little supper, with Jefferson hovering delightedly over them, and Cleely beaming in the doorway from time to time.

Linda went to the piano and sang for them—"The Little Lord Jesus"—"Silent Night"—"O Little Town of Bethlehem."—and because old Miranda asked for it, "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes." Miranda Trent had to tell her favorite story about how years ago, Lydia Chattam's home had hung her by an undergarment to the top of a fence with her stockings legs dangling helplessly—"for all the world like sticks of candy," my dear Linda; because the stockings had stripes running round and round."

Finally Barry stood up, glass raised.

"To the Trent women," he said. "God made 'em unpredictable, and by golly, we like 'em that way!"

St. Joe Plays Baraga; Eskymos At Gladstone

RUSHTON COACH OF MARQUETTE

Local Cagers Are Eager to Avenge Earlier Defeat

With a record of one defeat and one victory for their pre-holiday efforts, St. Joseph high school cagers will swing into their post-holiday schedule Friday night at the junior high school gymnasium when they entertain their old rivals, Baraga Parochials of Marquette.

The game will be in the nature of a homecoming for Carroll Rushton, Baraga coach, who was a graduate of Escanaba high school. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Rushton of this city and is serving his first season as coach at Baraga after several years as athletic director at Graveret high at Marquette. He resigned his position there last spring after he had passed his bar examination but this year the urge to coach became too strong and he returned to the Marquette.

The Marquette crew displayed plenty of power in disposing of St. Joseph in the opening game of the season played at the Frison City early in the year. They won by a score of 41-23 in a manner which left no doubt as to the superiority of the two teams in that game.

Since that time, however, the locals have another game under their belt, a victory over Felch, and they feel confident that they will be able to turn tables on the Baragans at their meeting here Friday.

Baraga has a host of veterans, including Cardoni, Schmelzer, Crowley, Tonella, Thornton and Dagenais, who are capable of taking care of themselves. The local attack is centered around the lanky Russ Faber, center, who has been high point man of the season thus far.

Basketball League Now Has 8 Teams

Two more teams entered the city basketball league yesterday bringing the total to eight. The new teams were the Granada Gardens and Spartans. Both teams have an imposing list of former city league and basketball stars.

Tonight is the deadline for teams to enter and no late entries will be accepted. League play will start Wednesday, Jan. 13th. A meeting of managers will be held at the city recreation center, So. 14th and 3rd avenue, beginning at 7:00. League rules will be discussed. Any manager who cannot come is urged to send a representative.

Youngsters Invited In Escanaba Races

There will be races for the youngsters at the U. P. open amateur speed skating meet to be held here this Saturday and Sunday. A 220 and a 440 will be conducted for boys and girls 10 and 11 years of age. Entry blanks may be obtained from the rink custodians or from the city recreation director. After the blanks are filled in, they may be left with the rink custodian or at the city recreation office. They must, however, be in by 9 o'clock Thursday. Medals will be awarded the high point winners in the two races.

These races are open to all boys and girls even though they may not be members of the Bay de Noc speed skating club which is sponsoring the meet.

All Set for Open Speed Skating Meet on Week-End

Fourteen members of the Bay de Noc skating club were practicing when the Daily Press photographer arrived for a picture. Members of the club caught while practicing for the open speed skating meet at the park ring on Saturday and Sunday are: front row, girls, left to right, Lyle Asselin, Miriam Hebert, Frances Jerow, Laura Johnson, Delvine Hebert, Beatrice Gallagher and Lilla Mae Ness. In the back row, the boys are, Bill Stoll, Eddie Hira, Kenneth Gallagher, Donald Ness, Gene Hebert, John Hebert and Robert Thompson. With the members who are not shown in the picture the club has about thirty skaters who will compete against all comers from Wisconsin and Michigan in the races here over the week-end.

CHAMPS ENTER SKATING RACES

Oconomowoc Team Will Give Competition to Escanaba Speeders

Local skaters will get plenty of competition this Saturday and Sunday if the records of some of the visiting skaters mean anything.

Among the Oconomowoc skaters, there is Floyd Usher and Edward Dobratz, juveniles who had to skate a special race to decide the 1938 Wisconsin state championship at Milwaukee last Sunday. Usher won the skate off. Included also are Jim Kane, now an intermediate, Jr. state champion in 1937, Walter Jaeger, third high point winner in the senior division at the 1938 Wisconsin state meet, and Doris Tetzlaff, Wisconsin state champion in Class B senior women. From Detroit comes Albert Dimmer, Jr. junior skater who won the mile race at the Michigan state meet in Alpena in 1937. Edwin Zander, winner of the Twin City senior championship in 1935 and 1936 and Marquette county champion of 1937 also will skate at the meet.

Entries close today. In spite of the imposing array of skaters who have entered the meet, there are still plenty of chances to place in all of the races, regardless of lack of experience. The chance to skate against champions and gain additional experience should not be missed.

Lineup Complete On Granada Team

Booking a game at Garden for January 19, the Granada Gardens basketball team of Escanaba has announced the following roster of players: Peltin, Schou, B. Hansen, A. Hansen, H. Bergensen, V. Bergman, C. Engstrom, Milt Embs, L. Wedell. The Garden team will probably include: Potvin, Hennessey, Tatrow, B. Farley, J. Delorier, J. Boudreau, C. Prokop and Feldhusen.

SPILLING the DOPE

Now it can be told... when Eddie Simonich was at his Ironwood home for Christmas he told a story on himself which happened in that famous Notre-Dame-Minnesota game... with the Irish holding a slim one point margin and the Gopher machine rolling along towards what appeared to be a certain touchdown in the final minutes of the game, things looked anything but bright for the boys of South Bend... A substitute was sent in by Layden with instructions to tell Eddie to play deeper in the secondary against the passes... "Hey, Eddie," the sub yelled, "loosen up on your pass defense"... Simonich paid no attention to him... he yelled again but Eddie still did not move... before the sub could yell again the Gophers shot a pass toward Simonich's territory, which Eddie snagged with a beautiful leaping one handed catch which ended the Minnesota threat... later, when questioned as to why he did not move deeper at the sub's instructions, Eddie replied... "I didn't hear anyone yell... I was too busy juggling!"

NAHMA MEETS TRENARY FIVE

Undefeated Algiers Will Invade Lair of Tobin Crew

Nahma, Jan. 8—Nahma high school will play host to a tall, undefeated Trenary team Friday night. Nahma high is extending every effort to blend together a combination that will break Trenary's winning streak.

Nahma high will be battling to clean a record of one defeat in three years on the home court. It is expected that the Nahma lineup will be unchanged from that of other games with the exception of the center position which was left vacant due to an injury received by Jack Tobin, six foot center. Tobin will not rejoin the squad until sometime in February. Ray James, substitute center, has been showing up nicely and is expected to give an account of himself Friday night. Dick LeBrasseur and Don Douville, veteran guards, will be on duty to stop the fast-stepping forwards from Trenary. The forwards for the starting lineup will be chosen from Ritter; G. Le Brasseur and Champ, others to see action will be Rauls, McDonald, Hruska, Beloria, and Loy.

A large crowd of local fans are expected to be on hand for this game, as it is the first time Trenary has played at Nahma in several seasons. Wallace Cameron of Rapid River will officiate.

Ages Of Skaters In Escanaba Meet Will Be Checked

Ages of all participating in age limit classes of the speed skating meet to be held this coming Saturday and Sunday must be verified by a birth certificate. This policy will hold in all events in which the department of parks and recreation sponsors or cooperates with.

Beginning at 4 o'clock Friday and lasting until 10:00 P. M. ages will be recorded at the recreation office in the municipal garage. Once a boy or girl has registered with the recreation department, they will never have to do it again as a record of their age will be kept. All who participate in sports or other recreational activities, and especially those who are 18 and under, are urged to obtain their birth certificates and get their ages recorded. It will save doing it later on.

Nahma Will Have Volleyball Teams

Volleyball teams will be organized at the Nahma clubhouse January 6 by WPA Recreation Director Charles Johnson.

BOXING CHAOS TO BE CLEARED

Committee to Decide World Champions Proposed

BY ALAN GOULD
New York, Jan. 5. (AP)—Plans to bring some order out of chaos in the prize-fight business, from an international standpoint, were set forth today by Edward C. Foster of Providence, R. I., executive secretary of the National Boxing Association.

Foster, a wealthy importer who has been instrumental in removing many causes of confusion from the American fight scene, will present a standardization program to the international boxing conference scheduled at Rome, Italy, beginning April 19.

Chief among the proposals on which it is hoped to obtain international agreement are: (1) appointment of an international committee to decide on world champions, to eliminate present confusion; (2) adoption of a universal "no-foul" rule; (3) requirement that all title matches be at 15 rounds; (4) adoption of a uniform system of point-scoring; (5) co-operation of all countries on suspensions or other disciplinary measures; and (6) better control of amateur boxing, to eliminate "bootleg" promotion and semi-professionalism.

Honoree of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States for alleged failure to properly control amateur boxing, Foster said: "It's time for the A. A. U. to clean house," said Foster. "Many boys fighting now as amateurs really are semi-professionals; in fact some are as good as 60 per cent of the professionals."

"Things have gone to ridiculous lengths. I know of one instance where the prize for an amateur bout was one potato, redeemable at the box-office for $7.50. It's all right to pay a boy legitimate expenses but why all this masquerade and subterfuge?"

Foster argued in favor of an intermediate amateur class, between the "novice" and "open" groups, to give newcomers a better competitive chance.

MANY FIGHTS PLANNED
Plans for addition heavyweight fights for this winter, supplementing the title match already scheduled between Joe Louis and Natte Mann on Feb. 23, were disclosed today by Al Weill, matchmaker for the 20th Century Sporting Club.

Two recent winners among the big fellows, Buddy Baer and Gunnar Barlund, have been booked for a match late in February. Buddy's brother, Max Baer, later will meet the winner of the Jim Braddock-Tommy Farr bout, listed for Jan. 21.

Max Schmeling, principal heavyweight challenger, is expected to accept terms for another tune-up match at the Garden, late in March.

Freddie Steele, middleweight champion who meets Fred Apostoli this Friday in an "overweight" 12-rounder, is slated to defend his title on March 11.

Well said he was negotiating for Barney Ross, welter champion, to stake his crown against Lou Ambers, lightweight titleholder, March 18, but Brig. Gen. Phelan, chairman of the state athletic commission, warned of possible objections to this match from class challengers of the two champions involved.

Former Michigan Cage Coach Dies
Boston, Jan. 5 (AP)—Funeral services for Dr. Frank J. Sexton, 66, one-time intercollegiate baseball coach who died at his home here yesterday, will be held Friday at St. Aidan's church, Brookline.

Dr. Sexton coached baseball teams at the University of Michigan, University of Pennsylvania, Brown and Harvard.

As an undergraduate at Brown, Dr. Sexton was one of the university's greatest pitchers. After his graduation in 1893 he became a starting hurler for the old Boston Nationals.

After leaving the Nationals in 1894, Dr. Sexton coached at Michigan and Pennsylvania, where he studied medicine. He returned to Brown and coached for 12 years. He retired from baseball activities in 1915 after coaching at Harvard for four years. Three of his four Michigan teams won the Big Ten championship.

He leaves his widow.

KEILMEN SEEK NEW REVENGE

Old Rivals Renew Series on Upbay Court on Friday Night

Gladstone, Mich.—Strenuous sessions were the order of the week as Coach Eldon Keil prepared his Gladstone high school cagers for their first after-holiday game against Escanaba here Friday night.

It will be the first of a home and home series played annually. Gladstone is scheduled to wind up the season against the Eskymos on the Delta county seat court.

The long holiday layoff affected the squad to some extent and early seasons this week were anything but promising. However, before Friday evening the team is expected to come pretty close to approaching pre-holiday form.

The starting lineup likely to be named by Coach Keil includes Gohert and Sigal, forwards; Helm, center; and Gabe and Zervic, guards.

Harris Five Plays Chatham Friday; Out After Revenge

With new plays and a polished up passing attack, the Harris basketball team will seek revenge against Chatham Friday night at the Bark River community building. A preliminary between the reserves of the two schools will precede the main battle, and will start at 7:15. In a previous encounter at Chatham, the Chatham basketball team won 20 to 15.

On the Harris crew will be: S. Motto, Bartoszek, Sharon, Nelson, VanEnkevort, Kleinman, R. Houle, D. Houle, E. Motto and Beauchamp.

EMERALDS GO TO NEWBERRY

"Purge" Cripples 'Stique Before Contest With Powerful Indians

Manistique—With three regulars dismissed from the squad for infraction of rules, Coach Wassberg will take a reorganized basketball team to Newberry Friday when the Emeralds meet the Indians in the first of a two game series.

Hupfer, Olson and Peasley were released from the squad before the Christmas holidays by Coach Wassberg and will not be in uniform for the remainder of the season.

The "purge" has necessitated considerable experimenting in an effort to find the most successful combination from the remaining material on the squad. Sough, regular center, has been shifted to a guard position and Joe Noe, who was reserve center, has moved up to the first string. The probable starting lineup against Newberry will be Slough and Norton, guards; Noe, center; G. Heilsten and Jordan or Orr, forwards, B. Heilsten and Smith, forwards, also will probably get into the game.

Coach Wassberg indicated yesterday he was not looking for a victory over the always powerful Newberry quintet.

The reserve teams of the two schools will meet in a preliminary.

Detroit U. Shades Michigan Normal

Ypsilanti, Mich., Jan. 5 (AP)—The University of Detroit edged out the Michigan Normal cagers, 34-32, by coming from behind in the final four minutes of play. The Titans were ahead, 23-19, at the intermission.

Detroit was surprised by the resistance of the Hurons. It was trailing, 21-20, when Roger Hayer substitute forward, went on the floor and immediately registered a goal to put his team one point ahead. Free throws by Bob Callahan, center, and guard O'Donnell gave the Titans their remaining points.

Callahan, a sophomore, collected 14 points. Jimmy Walsh, Huron forward who plagued the Titans with his good play, scored 9.

Jess Owens Wants Amateur Standing

Chicago, Jan. 5. (AP)—Jesse Owens, brilliant negro track and field star who had a falling out with the A. A. U., after winning four gold medals in the last Olympic games, said today he would apply for reinstatement as an amateur.

The former Ohio State university speedster, holder of world running broad jump, sprint and hurdling records, made the decision today after a talk with J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to the president of the Amateur Athletic Union.

"Owens assured me he had received no money for sports appearances and I told him he might apply for reinstatement under the rules. I offered him no other encouragement. The board of governors of the athletic union has the final say on such problems," Bingham said.

Bushnell Starts Job As East Sports Czar

New York, Jan. 5 (AP)—As a

Bushnell today plunged into duties that eventually may make the 37-year-old Princeton graduate the most powerful figure in intercollegiate athletics.

Officially he is the executive director of eastern intercollegiate athletics. Just what all that entails not even the quiet, unassuming former manager of Princeton athletics himself knows.

He does know, however, he has been hired to serve a gigantic but loosely woven federation in which 55 colleges, eleven associations and seven sports are involved.

Each association will keep its entity, but Bushnell will be of administrative officer of each, fulfilling duties formerly assigned to committees or part time executives. Whether he will be strictly an administrative officer or will be called upon to settle disputes depends on the federated organizations themselves.

"I've got to feel my way along at first," he said. "There is no precedent to guide me and I will not be fully acquainted with each association until all the records have been sent me."

"I have some definite ideas on the running of such events as the I. C. A. A. A. track and field meets but would rather not say just what they are until after I have talked them over with the directors."

In addition to the E. I. A. and the I. C. A. A. A., the new setup includes the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball and Basketball Leagues, Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball Conference, Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association, Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League, Intercollegiate Games Association, Intercollegiate Ice Hockey Association, American Division of the International Intercollegiate Ice Hockey League, and the Quadrangular Hockey League.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 5—Announcement of Marquette university's 1938 football schedule, the most attractive and at the same time the most formidable in the university's history, has been made by Athletic Director Conrad M. Jennings.

The schedule, containing one highlight after another, includes the annual classics with Wisconsin and Michigan State and four inter-sectional tangles, three of them with Texas teams. Four games will be played in Milwaukee and two more within 90 miles of the home precincts.

Following is Marquette's 1938 card:

BAN ON CENTER LEAP DEFENDED

Chairman of Basketball Rules Committee Will Resign

Columbus, O., Jan. 5 (AP)—L. W. St. John of Columbus, announcing his intention of resigning the chairmanship of the national basketball rules committee, tonight defended basketball's new center jump elimination rule.

"Those who say that the game this season is too fast because of the 'no jump' rule overlook the fact that with the jump there was some rather strenuous activity, too," said Ohio State university's director of athletics.

"For one thing, it placed a severe strain on the centers themselves and then there was always the possibility of an injury as rival players smashed in to get the tip-off after the ball had been tapped."

"The rule merely adds about six minutes of time to be spent in actual play instead of useless effort."

St. John said he would resign at the spring meeting of the national rules group to give a young man a chance to carry the ball. Last week he gave up the chairmanship of the national collegiate group on basketball rules.

During the last few years, St. John has steered both rules groups through several major adjustments in basketball regulations.

SPARTANS LOSE TO CALIFORNIA

Lead Changes Five Times in 31-29 Battle at East Lansing

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 5 (AP)—A towering University of California basketball team passed its way to a 31-29 victory over Michigan State college tonight in a hot fight before 5,000 fans.

The lead changed hands five times before the Golden Bears pulled away in the last few minutes. It was the first defeat for State on its home court this season.

George Falkowski, Spartan forward, kept State in the running with a fancy display of sharp shooting. Falkowski scored 16 points, with six field goals and four foul shots. Lee Hunt was high man for California, with 11 points.

State, puzzled by the height of the Golden Bears, found it difficult to get its short passing game under way. Once satisfied that the Californians weren't as tough as they looked, the local boys settled down and, with Falkowski leading the attack, the Spartans tied the score at 14-14 as the half ended.

Lee Hunt put California into a four-point lead early in the second half. Shooting with one hand, he dropped two baskets through the rim. Falkowski and Shidler tied it with short shots after breaking from scrimmage. Hunt scored two free throws and his teammate, Maurice Lilot, made a sensational running shot that put the Bears into a lead that State was never to overtake.

Franchise Renewed

Iron Mountain.—Renewal for 30 years of the city's franchise to the Iron Mountain Gas company was approved by the council last night, following a communication from the company.

It was pointed out that ordinance No. 163 granted a franchise to the Iron Mountain Light and Fuel company, subsequently acquired by the Iron Mountain Gas company, a Michigan corporation. That franchise expires February 16, of this year. Under its terms the city has the right and option to purchase the plant, mains and other assets of the company, or, not desiring to do so, the company has an alternate right to a renewal of its permit by applying at any time within three years preceding expiration of the existing franchise.

Since the aldermen expressed no desire or intention of acquiring the property for the city, the franchise was renewed.
