Anniversary of Church Society To Be Observed

The fifty-seventh anniversary of the founding of the Christian Endeavor movement will be observed by more than 20,000 members of 770 societies in Michigan during the week of January 30 through February 6.

Christian Endeavor is an outstanding youth movement in the world today, and provides an effective opportunity for growth in the Christian life and leadership training that has made it of lasting value to millions of persons throughout the world. The first Christian Endeavor society was formed in the Williston Congregational church in Portland, Maine, by Dr. Francis E. Clark, on February 2, 1881. The movement spread rapidly and soon became interdenominational and interracial. In December of 1881 the first society in Michigan was organized in the First Presbyterian church at Muir. In the 57 years of its history the movement has spread until it is now represented in 100 countries and islands of the sea with more than four million members. Young people from 87 different denominations are represented in the world-wide fellowship.

William Hiram Foulkes, D. D., L. L. D., Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church, U. S. A., makes the following statement regarding Christian Endeavor: "It has saved a generation of young people by showing them that Christianity while not creedless is finally a life to be lived. It is to the lasting credit of Christian Endeavor that while it has steadfastly stood for the great affirmation of evangelical Christianity both in its challenging pledge, as well as in the whole program of its activities, it has put a premium upon Christianity as a religion to be lived out in daily service."

Plans for the week in Michigan include a one-day emphasis on the work of the local church and denomination a three-day series of

Birthdays Party

Donald McMartin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McMartin, entertained a group of his friends at an attractive party on his eleventh birthday anniversary, which was on January 11.

The children played games and later enjoyed a birthday supper, a large cake centering the table. Donald was presented with a number of pretty gifts.

At the party were Donald Swelander, Bobbie Calouette, Robert Farrell, Ernest Sorby, Junior Mylander, Morvin Mylander, Arthur Anderson, Jay Cook and Eddie O'Connell.

Barr P. T. A. Meeting

Members of the Barr P. T. A. attended a very interesting meeting yesterday.

The program on Scouting was in charge of B. W. Phillips, Boy Scout executive, and Cub Scouts and Cub Pack mothers were present. There was a display of Cub uniforms, and also of Indian trinkets and bead work, and Mr. Phillips talked on both. The school entertainment was presented by Miss Frances Graham's third grade.

A short business session after the program was followed by a tea, with Mrs. Carl E. Anderson chairman of the hostess committee which included the officers of the unit.

U. A. W. Auxiliary

The Women's Auxiliary to the United Automobile Workers, Local 53, will hold a corn game party and box social at the Eagles hall Saturday evening, January 15. All union members, their wives and friends are cordially invited to attend.

Bethany Aid Today

The Ladies' Aid of Bethany Lutheran church is meeting in the church parlors at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Hostesses are Mrs. Fred Bergquist, Mrs. Herbert Sundell and Mrs. Fred Swanson. A cordial invitation is extended all members and friends to attend.

Paty's Birthday Party

Paty Sheedlo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sheedlo, who was nine years old Tuesday, entertained a group of her friends at a delightful afternoon party at her home, 207 Stephenson avenue.

Games, a birthday supper, for which attractive appointments were in pink, and a skating party later in the afternoon, were included in

Knights, Pythian Sisters Install Official Leaders

At joint ceremonies held in the Odd Fellows hall on Tuesday evening the Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters installed recently elected officers who will serve during the ensuing year.

Officers of the Pythian Sisters who were installed include the following: P. C., Mable Girard; M. E. C., Marie Rose; E. S., Uncia Stimson; E. J., Emma Jensen; manager, Martha Moberg; M. of R. and C., Mayme Follo; M. of F., Adele Drake; Protector, Florence Jensen; Guard, Hulda Nelson. Mrs. Girard acted as installing officer.

Knights of Pythias officers installed were: P. C., Howard T. McKie; C. C., Nicholas Carr; V. C., Alvin Nelson; Prelate, Charles O. Follo; M. of E., Roy E. Olson; M. of W., Howard T. McKie; M. of A., Robert Schoen; I. G., Glen Schoen; O. G., S. A. Woolen. A. W. Moberg was the installing officer.

After the installation there was a short program followed by a luncheon. Miss Dorothy Girard provided the music for the program.

Travel Talks Are Enjoyed by Members of Club

One of the most interesting programs of the year was the travelogue given by Mrs. Fred Leighton, Mrs. Lillian Reynolds and Miss Marie Bezdold Wednesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Escanaba Woman's club at the Sherman hotel.

Mrs. Leighton spoke on her summer trip abroad; Mrs. Reynolds on her cruise to the Hawaiian Islands, and Miss Bezdold described Washington and spots of historic interest nearby, illustrating her talk with attractive slides.

A display of colorful and interesting articles which the travelers had collected during their trips added to the interest of the afternoon's program.

A tea of lovely appointments followed the talks.

Mrs. Carl E. Berger was chairman of the day and Mrs. J. H. Mater, chairman of the tea.

The term cowboy first was used during the American Revolution and was applied to a band of Tories who stole cattle from both sides.

Installation At Meeting Tonight

Installation of officers of the Lady Maccabees will be held at a meeting this evening at the North Star hall, which will open with a dinner at 6:30 o'clock. A regular business session will follow the dinner and the remainder of the evening will be given over to a program of corn games. All members are urged to attend.

Today's Recipe

An excellent recipe for real old-fashioned English toffee, requested recently, has been received through the kindness of Mrs. Agnes Brahm of Marinette, who is well known for her accomplishments in baking and candy-making.

English Toffee

One-half pound butter
One cup sugar
Two tablespoons water
One-half pound milk chocolate
Nuts

Melt butter, add water and then sugar. Boil slowly until golden brown or until mixture cracks from the spoon when held under very cold water. Pour into buttered pan and cool. Cover with melted chocolate and sprinkle with nuts. Lift up and turn over. Cover other side with chocolate and sprinkle with nuts.

Former Hancock Photographer Is Honored By Time

Hancock—The retirement of Edward Steichen, former resident of Hancock, from the field of commercial photography is occasioning interest in New York art centers and in the press.

Of interest to Portage lake townpeople, however, is the fact that the artist spent approximately ten years of his life in Hancock, an item which Time, in its crowded but informative article, fails to mention.

Upon departing from the Copper Country Steichen was to undergo considerable traveling. Having spent considerable time in France where he improved his technique he established a studio in New York City.

LOCAL TRIO TO MEET 'STIQUE

Final Debate of Present Preliminary Series Here on Friday

Escanaba high school debaters, representing the affirmative, will meet the Manistique trio at the W. W. Oliver Memorial auditorium in the Junior high school Friday night, starting at 7:30 o'clock.

This debate will be the final one of the preliminary series and upon its outcome will depend largely which of the two teams will be eligible for the elimination series.

Thus far, the locals, coached by Bertrand Henne, have won two matches and lost one. They defeated Menominee and Newberry and lost to Ishpeming.

The local trio will consist of George Ramspeck, Frank Bender and Allan Earle with Beatrice Morton as first alternate. The roster of the Manistique team, coached by Preston Tanis, has not been received here.

Professor Forrest A. Roberts professor of English and debate coach at Northern State Teachers college, will be the sole critic-judge.

A girls' double quartet, directed by Beatrice Morton, will present whispering vocal selections before and after the debate. The numbers will include "Whispering" by Schonberger and "Kusan Lullaby" by Berlin.

On The RECORD

By Dorothy Thompson

Who Loves Liberty?

Some time ago the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom invited me to speak in Jersey City. This is one invitation that I accepted. I would like to make a speech in Jersey City. In fact, I feel it my duty to make a speech in Jersey City. Because in the Supreme Court fight last year I opposed the President's plan for its reorganization with whatever reason, logic and vehemence at my disposal, for the simple reason that I believe that the powers of government should be limited, and the basic rights guaranteed to individuals under the Constitution should not be left to the interpretation of a "kept" court, switched into line — to use the Nazi phrase — with the policy of this or any other Administration. I would have opposed a plan to pack the Court if it had been proposed by liberals, conservatives, reactionaries, or socialists.

Now that I have found that I am among many comrades — in the Harvard Club, in the Union League Club, in the American Manufacturers Association and the American Bar Association. In fact, those of us who opposed the reorganization were held up to ridicule by our "liberal" friends because of the company we found ourselves in. That did not make any impression on those of us who really believed in what we were fighting for. As Oswald Garrison Villard pointed out in the Nation — in an article criticizing the Nation's policy — personal integrity is in a bad way when one first looks around to see who is going to be on one's side.

But I notice that neither the Union League Club, nor the Harvard Club, nor the Manufacturers Association, nor the Liberty League or its still surviving members, are holding mass meetings or passing resolutions protesting against what is going on in Jersey City.

I remember also that a number of important Catholics rightly opposed the Supreme Court reorganization scheme because they realized that the Bill of Rights, embodied in the Constitution, is the greatest bulwark that a minority like the Catholics has against possible persecution. But we don't hear the Catholic Hierarchy protesting vigorously against what is happening in Jersey City. On the contrary, the Catholic Hierarchy in Jersey City itself is collaborating very closely with Mayor Hague.

Now these are reasons why I should like to go to Jersey City and make a speech — an old-fashioned, conservative speech about the Constitution of the United States and the protection of minorities. I have never fallen for this idea of "majority mandate" or "unchecked majority rule" when it emanates from the lips of Mr. Roosevelt or the New Deal Administration. I have protested that neither the Constitution of the United States nor the interpretation of that Constitution contained in the basic document of American political philosophy, "The Federalist," so presents American democracy. The very essence of American democracy is the protection of certain basic rights of individuals, groups and minorities against a majority of even 95 per cent. And since I have said that before the Union League Club, I should also like to say it in Jersey City.

But I am having a hard time speaking in Jersey City because it seems to be difficult to find a hall in which to enunciate a doctrine which the most conservative organizations in this country are delighted to hear when it can be directed against the Roosevelt Administration.

I also tried to get an interview with Mayor Hague a number of weeks ago. I wanted him to elaborate a little further on some of the things that he has publicly said. I believe in even giving a Mayor Hague a break, you see, and I would have preferred not to attack him without first talking with him. But somebody in Mayor Hague's office responded to my telegram by saying that Mayor Hague would not receive any members of the Press. Mayor Hague will not talk with the members of the Press, he said, about the C. O. business. Well, that's familiar. Neither will Mr. Hitler discuss with anybody the Jewish business in Germany.

I might, of course, go to Jersey City and make a speech about the Constitution of the United States on the street. I am willing to do that, too. But, in order to make a speech on the street you have got to have a permit in Jersey City, and Mayor Hague and his machine control the permit business. Or I might write a speech and hand it out on the streets of Jersey City, but to do that I also have got to have a permit and Mayor Hague and his machine control the permit business. Or I might find some little community forum in Jersey City whose leader would have the courage to get together a few people, in a church perhaps, and let me come and speak.

But then whoever sponsored me would probably have to go through the inquisition and blackmail which confronted the chair-

Richest Girl in the World

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE CORBY — heroine; richest girl in the world.
BRET HARDESTY — hero; bridge builder.
RODNEY BRANDON — Connie's fiancé.
KATIE BLYN — Connie's "double."

Yesterday, interested in the engaging young man at her side, Connie consents to dine with him at the next town. Her adventure is under way! Bret tells her he would like to have her see his country.

CHAPTER VII

He looked at her, coming back to the present again. "I believe you would," he spoke slowly. "Look here," deep color stained his dark face. "don't get me wrong — I can see you prefer people to mind their own business, not ask questions — I won't do that. But if you aren't going anywhere special, what I mean is, if you're up against it, I'd like to help you out."

Connie said, "That's kind of you — but I don't need help. It was the first time in his experience that anyone had ever offered to help her. It made a warm glow spread all through her; it made her feel as though she had found a friend.

"Well, I didn't know... besides you never can tell." He dug in the pocket of his tweed coat, pulled out a card. Before he handed it to her he wrote something across the back. "Keep this. Just in case," he urged.

She thanked him; put the card in her purse.

"Reckon we'd better be getting back," he suggested. "And thank you ever so much, Miss Blyn — I beg your pardon!" He gave her a low, elegant bow. "Thank you for dining with me. I enjoyed it."

"I enjoyed it, too," she told him. "But don't let's pretend anymore." She did not want him to call her by her real name.

"I don't believe you want to be that rich girl, after all," he chided.

No, Connie thought, after the people had piled into their places and once more the wheels were turning round and round, humming their rhythmic song, she did not want to be herself, not until she was forced to again. Gone was that empty feeling; she no longer was sick of everything, tired of life. Why, it was gorgeous, just to feel so peaceful, so content, to watch the blue sky darkening into black, the tiny lights flickering on in the houses and villages as they sped by, the first star come out to blink solemnly down at man of the meeting that invited Signor de Los Rios to come and speak on Spain, Signor de Los Rios is the Ambassador of a friendly power in the United States, but the chairman of a meeting that invited him to speak was visited by the Monsigneur of Jersey City, who backs up Mayor Hague, and queried as to whether he was a Communist. And it was made very clear to him that if he backed up the meeting his business would suffer.

I don't think that this is very bright of the Monsigneur. He should take a look at Germany, where exactly the same thing is happening to priests of the church that is happening to C. I. O. organizers in Jersey City, and against which this column has repeatedly protested.

Nor do I think it's very bright of the Chamber of Commerce in Jersey City to back up Mayor Hague in his suppression of all civil liberties for anybody who may be considered a "subversive influence." Some fine day, you know, there might be a labor government in Jersey City; strange things happen in this world, and then Mayor Hague will have established a beautiful pattern, which, if I know the dominant C. I. O. psychology at present, they will follow.

Then perhaps they will put Chamber of Commerce officials on ferries and ride them out of town, or pick up members of the American Manufacturers Association, as vagrants and stick them in jail, and perhaps they will say, like Mayor Hague, "I am the law."

Well, if that happens I will join the protest. But although Emerson says "a foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds," I don't think that this kind of consistency is foolish.

Perhaps it is a personal prejudice, but I happen to dislike intensely liberal fascists, reactionary fascists, labor fascists, industrial fascists, Jewish fascists, Catholic fascists and personal fascists. When it comes to choosing the particular brand of fascism, I'm not taking any.

You don't have to choose between them — you can always die first.

But this business of Mayor Hague raises the whole question. Who loves liberty? Who really believes in free speech? I happen to be a writer, from a family of writers, and when we put a product on the open market we've got to subject it to the untrammeled criticism in the public prints of anybody who chooses to take a blast at it. We earn our livings by this product. The income tax authorities regard the royalties from a book just the way they regard dividends from a manufacturing concern, and we

her. This was the most beautiful time of all the day; an hour with an ache in it, a loveliness almost unbearable. Yet she did not feel lonely, or sad. It was true, what the young man had said, she was happy, really happy for the first time that she could recall.

After a time she closed her eyes once more, having adjusted the deep comfortable chair to its reclining position, for this was the only bed the coach provided for its passengers during the long night.

Connie had thought she would be too excited to sleep, perhaps too uncomfortable, remembering the luxury of the wide Marie Antoinette bed. But before there could have been time to count many sheep, or to fuss about comfort, she had been lulled to a sleep so sound it was untroubled by any dreams. She must have slept thus for several hours. Then she was awakened to a sense of confusion, a new stiffness in arms and limbs.

The bus had stopped. Two men, one a rough looking, coarse individual, the other scarcely more than a boy, whom she remembered as having been sitting in the back near the mother with the baby, had whipped revolvers from their pockets. The boy had pressed his against the driver's back, the man's was leveled at the occupants in the coach.

A woman screamed; a man swore. Bret Hardesty started to his feet, his dark face flushing, his fists clenched.

"Sit down, you!" The muzzle of the one revolver was trained threateningly at his chest. "Another sound out of anyone, one move — and I'll fill the bunch of you with lead." The gunman looked capable of doing just that.

"Please sit down!" Connie tugged at Bret Hardesty's coat. Her blue eyes entreated him. He sank back in his seat, but his face was still flushed, his dark eyes narrowed.

"Everybody stand up," the man ordered, now. "As you file out, hand over your money — or take what we give you and like it!"

Connie obeyed with the rest. "Don't do anything please!" she managed to whisper with a pleading desperation to her newly-found friend. She had a feeling that Bret Hardesty was not going to empty his pockets without protest even though he faced a dozen revolvers.

She was right about that. She had no sooner parted with her roll of bills than she heard a thud behind her. Bret had knocked the revolver out of the fellow's hand, rearing across the driver's shoulder to switch off the lights at the same time. Now they rolled and fought in the aisle.

There were screams from the frightened women, three shots rang out. Then the slim figure of the boy could be seen taking to his heels.

"Bret, Bret... are you hurt?" Without realizing she called him by name. Scarcely knowing what she was doing, Connie tried to feel ahead into that inky blackness from which still came the sound of those two bodies pummeling and struggling.

Then there was silence.

"I'm all... okay." Bret's slow drawl came as though nothing had happened, except some loss of breath. "Turn on... switch. I've got... this one."

Connie managed to find the switch, wondering how she did, her fingers, relieved and smiling, began to file back in, bursting into voluble chatter as people will after a tense unusual strain.

The driver came forward with a piece of stout rope with which to bind the bandit's hands. He was a sorry-looking bandit now, all the bravado knocked completely out of him.

"Better empty his pockets and give back what he took before we turn him over to the police at the next town," Bret said.

"I'm not sure about regulations as to that," the driver objected. He started to investigate the man's pockets. Then uttered a shout. "Hump! The money's gone. Nothing to hand back!"

"My partner... he musta swiped it," the fellow muttered sullenly, when Bret gave him a sharp shake, demanding to know what had become of it.

"A swell partner!" Bret commented. He suggested they had better get started. "Maybe they can pick up the other fellow, too; he acted like an inexperienced kid."

"You're not hurt, are you?" Connie asked anxiously, after the excitement had died down and they were on their way again.

His thick dark hair was rumpled, his shirt torn open at the neck; there was a faint purple shadow spreading around one eye, but aside from that Bret Hardesty still looked intact.

"Not a scratch," he said, smilingly. Then with his serious look again. "But it's you I'm worrying about. Now you will have to let me help you!"

He thought she had lost everything she had. But there was the ring and the brooch and the pearls safely hidden in the imitation leather bag. Still, she need not tell him about them.

"I guess I will," she said.

That purple shadow was most becoming she decided. It lent him a rakish look that rendered him decidedly handsome. She had never met such a man.

It seemed quite ridiculous and unnecessary — now that she had met him to think of losing him again.

LEADERS BUCK PROFIT TAKING

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES table with columns for various stock indices and their values.

By FREDERICK GARDNER (Associated Press Financial Writer) New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Stock market leaders bucked profit-taking today and retreated a little in the process.

Only the utilities, as a group, stayed on the plus side throughout the session, although a few rails and gold mines held at the finish gains earned in an earlier rally.

Reports the administration favored cooperation with the utilities on a program calling for non-duplication of private facilities provided the focus of resistance for power company shares.

Transactions fell under yesterday's figure, totalling 1,299,500 shares against 1,506,260. There were 234 advances, 339 declines and 191 issues were unchanged.

DAY'S MARKETS IN BRIEF

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Stocks: Irregular; rails and utilities advance. Bonds: Mixed; Japanese issues continue under pressure.

NEW YORK STOCKS (Last Sales)

RAILWAY BOND ISSUES HIGHER

BOND MARKET AVERAGES table showing bond market trends.

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—Selective lower-priced rail bonds advanced today on the bond market, while Japanese issues continued to decline.

Trading in rails reflected switching to a large extent. B. & O. 4s was up 1/2 and 2 1/2 points higher at 62 and 69 1/2, respectively.

Prices Irregular; Utilities Are Up

New York, Jan. 12 (AP)—A few utility shares pushed fractionally higher today on the curb market but others in this group, unable to withstand late selling pressure, showed small losses.
