

GOVERNMENT IS IN PARTNERSHIP

Commerce Secretary Is Speaker at Meeting in Rochester

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—Daniel C. Roper declared tonight that government "is definitely in partnership with business as its servant and protector and will remain so," in sounding a plea for cooperation in the partnership to enable corporate business to "function for the good of all."

"It is recognized," the secretary of commerce said, "that the limits of government should be extended only as the failure of industrial leadership makes the extensions seem imperative for safeguarding the capitalist system and the public good... when and where business proves incapable of adequate self-discipline, government must respond... constructive legislation."

Roper spoke at the fifteenth anniversary dinner of the Rochester Chamber of Commerce and over a local radio station (WHAM).

He stressed the necessity for the government-business "partnership" to cooperate in safeguarding the principle of the profit system because the government, he said, must rely upon tax from income as its chief source of revenue.

"Business as a whole recognizes the need for a broad program of social security," the commerce secretary asserted. "Must it not accept the corollary policy that government, as the representative of public interest, is a partner in all business which affects the national income?"

"Is it not the equal responsibility of good business and government to effect procedures that would establish standards of justice and fair dealing, control abusive monopolies, subsidy, market control, price collusion and other unethical devices?"

The most effective course through which to achieve safe results, Roper said, was a more solid front of constructive business initiative behind the efforts of a "majority" of business and industrial leaders who, "confronted by great odds imposed by the unfair trade practices of a few, are continuing their constructive efforts to improve the standards of conduct of the unscrupulous minority toward each other and toward the public."

"Undue authority, finance and other factors," declaring that the economic stability of small communities "must be maintained... * * * If economic security is to be maintained for all."

He urged protection of "sound democracy" in industry against "undue centralization of economic stability of small communities * * * must be maintained... * * * If economic security is to be maintained for all."

MEYER DENIES AID NOT ENOUGH

Refute's Judge's Claim That $2 Per Week Is Insufficient

Denton Harbor, Mich., Jan. 24 (AP)—The "proven" contention of probate judge Malcolm Hatfield that $2 was an insufficient welfare allowance for a family of two for one week was challenged today by H. C. Meyer, Berrien county relief administrator.

Judge Hatfield made his statement after he had lived a week on the emergency relief administration of $2 to test its sufficiency.

Meyer charged that the judge had not taken into consideration "the fact that those on relief buy at reduced prices. Through the cooperation of merchants food is purchased at a price only slightly above wholesale prices."

In addition, Meyer said, the emergency relief administration provides tons of surplus commodities, consisting of fruit, vegetables, meats, cereals and other products.

Then, too, he added, most welfare clients earn a little money each week to supplement their welfare allowance. The allowance, he explained, is $1.50 for the head of the family and 50 cents additional for each other member of the family.

MAID TELLS OF HEARING NOISE

Little Fireworks Found in Trial of Kimmel at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Jan. 24 (AP)—A slow-talking negro maid employed at the home of Paul A. Wright, airport executive on trial for murder, testified today she heard what sounded like firecrackers exploding the night Wright's wife, Evelyn, and his friend, John Kimmel, were shot to death.

Under direct examination of Prosecutor S. E. Roll, the witness, Leona Navy, said the exploding noises occurred some time after Wright returned home in the company of a man whose voice she did not recognize.

She said she always slept with the bed covers over her head.

"I was asleep when I heard a fast walk coming toward the house," the maid testified. "It sounded like Mrs. Wright's walk. Some time later I heard the refrigerator door open and close, and after that I heard a car and a voice I recognized as Mr. Wright's."

Heard Three Voices

"The strange voice said something about the trees in the patio being pretty," Mr. Wright said. "Yes they are." Later, in the kitchen, I heard three voices. I heard Mrs. Wright say: 'John, have another drink.' The man said: 'No, I still have one.'"

The witness said she also heard a banging on the piano, but it didn't sound like music to her, and after that the noise that sounded like firecrackers exploding. That was all she heard, she testified, until an ambulance siren awakened her again.

E. C. Williams, police ballistics expert, testified he made test findings of the automatic pistol used in the shooting, and that shells were ejected in a circle with a radius of four to five feet.

Wright's purported confession, as released by district attorney's investigators, stated that he fired at his wife and Kimmel from a hallway of the living room, sev-

Saginaw 28.10; Bay City 28.7; Adrian 28.01; and at Muskegon coast guard station a reading of 28.04 was listed, the lowest in two decades. In all cases, the glass was still falling.

The University of Michigan observatory reported its barometer reading had fallen to 28.15 at 4 p. m. from 29.4 yesterday noon. This, officials said, was an unusually fast and low fall by their records.

A snow storm swept across the Upper Peninsula Monday, and severe conditions were threatened for Tuesday.

Plows at Work

Marquette reported all county plows at work. All rural school pupils were sent home at 10 a. m. Four inches of snow had fallen between 6:30 a. m. (CST) and noon.

The federal weather bureau in that city predicted zero temperature by Tuesday morning, with more heavy snow and a 40-mile-an-hour wind shifting from the north to the northwest.

A gust of wind tonight blew down the 188-foot vertical antenna of WBOE (Marquette Mining Journal) radio station. The antenna had been completed last week.

Reports from Jackson said high winds blew scores of fishing shacks from nearby lakes Monday afternoon. Thirty-five shacks were carried off at Ackerson lake, five miles southwest of Jackson. No one was hurt.

HUNDREDS HOMELESS

Rockford, Ill., Jan. 24 (AP)—A sudden upsurge of icy waters forced more than 600 families out of their homes.

The main business street of Galena, Ill., at the state's northwestern extreme, was covered with water but no one was made homeless. The Galena river reached a crest of 22.58 feet, and then began dropping rapidly.

A score of families fled from homes at Edwards, Ill., as the Kickapoo creek ran wild. Railroad traffic was delayed.

Eight persons, including an 88 year old woman and a seven months old child, were rescued from two islands in the Fox river at Aurora, Ill. The city's largest park was inundated.

RESCUE DELAYED

Two Harbors, Minn., Jan. 24 (AP)—High seas and a lashing gale over Lake Superior forced the coast guard cutter Diligence to abandon efforts to reach two marooned fishermen on Cat Island, off the Wisconsin shore tonight.

The Diligence returned here after a six hours fight against a storm at this end of Lake Superior. Members of the crew were ready however to make another attempt at dawn tomorrow.

The fishermen, Conrad Shovick and Henry Alken have been marooned on the island since Jan. 12. They had proceeded here by dog team but shifting winds broke the ice around the island and the floes drifted out, leaving the two stranded.

from their homes in three states today.

One life was lost and dozens of persons were endangered. Highway and railroad traffic was seriously impeded by rivers and creeks which swelled out of their channels in northwest Illinois, southern Wisconsin and eastern Iowa.

More than two inches of rain fell over most of the area. A sharp drop in temperature turned the rain to snow, however, and key cities in the harassed areas reported the streams had begun to recede.

Rockford Hardest Hit

The weather outlook was for much lower temperatures and clear skies by morning, heartening the army of rescue workers.

The death victim was Eddie Proctor, 6, caught in a murky swirl as he attempted to ford a normally dry run enroute to school at Amboy, Ill.

Streets, highways, country roads, bridges and fields were inundated.

Rockford was the hardest hit city in the distressed region, which reached as far south as Peoria county in north central Illinois and into eastern counties of Iowa and southern counties in Wisconsin.

The situation was not alarming in the neighboring states, however. Police rescued some 50 families from flood menaced homes at Beloit, Wis., where two inches of rain hit the Rock river and Turtle creek.

Four families received assistance at Janesville, Wis., where some streets were four feet under water. The road to Beloit was cut off.

Water surged about a cabin near Clinton, Iowa. Four occupants were rescued. Elsewhere in Iowa streams left their banks, flooded fields and interrupted highway travel.

Protracted rains over Arkansas were halted by falling temperatures and threats of serious flood damage appeared ended. The worst danger was in south Arkansas, where the Ouachita river rose four feet over its 24-foot flood stage.

Four major sections of Rockford were under water. Police removed more than 600 families from beleaguered homes. Nearly all bridges near there were submerged.

Factories were closed because employees couldn't reach them, or were busy saving their possessions. Some trains were rerouted. Engineers dynamited an ice jam in the Rock river.

Employ In Detroit City Office Admits He Filched $23,000

Detroit, Jan. 24 (AP)—Chief Assistant Prosecutor William A. Dowling, of Wayne county, said tonight that he had obtained a confession from Philip Boylan, 32, admitting theft of $23,000 from the city treasurer's office.

Boylan, Dowling declared, said that he filched from mail receipts and spent the money on parties and gambling. The thefts, Dowling quoted Boylan as saying, had covered a period of more than a year.

She and her husband both had been ill for nearly a year. Double funeral services will be held here tomorrow. Both were born on Mackinac Island.

Mrs. Williams' first husband, George Van Riper, died while rescuing men from a ship, and for a number of years Mrs. Williams was his successor as lighthouse keeper on Beaver Island. Later she served as keeper at Harbor Springs. She retired from the service in 1906.

She was the author of a book, "A Child of the Sea and Life Among the Mormons," which dealt with the attempt of "King" James J. Strang to found a colony on Beaver Island early in the last century.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 24 (AP)—Barbara Jean Backstrom, 17-year-old Muskegon girl whose suit was made possible by a special act of congress, won a $3,885.13 judgment today against the government.

Miss Backstrom was hurt in a fall on Muskegon pier in July, 1934, and the congressional act was necessary to allow her to sue the government. Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond entered the judgment.

The suit was filed in behalf of Miss Backstrom by Davis Bahlstrom, of Muskegon, her guardian. Of the award $3,500 was allotted for damages and the balance for hospital expenses.

It was either me or Gray." He announced he did not intend to retain a lawyer, adding: "I'll plead guilty to kidnaping but not to a murder charge. I think Ross was dead before I shot him. I'll get just as much punishment for kidnaping, anyway."

Seadlund claimed Ross was not "fingered" by a confederate and that he had meant only to rob him. He continued:

"When I pulled him from the auto, Ross said 'I've always figured I'd be kidnaped.' Then I said 'Then you've got some money.'"

Planned Other Kidnapings

Seadlund, in the interview conducted through a government agent, said he was visited last night by his widowed mother Mrs. Paul Seadlund of Ironton, Minn., and a sister.

Prosecutors expected the trial to start before a jury within two weeks. They pointed out that under the Lindbergh law only a jury could recommend the death penalty.

Justice department officials at Washington announced Seadlund had toyed with the fantastic idea of kidnaping Jerome "Dizzy" Dean, star pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, during last summer's baseball season. But he abandoned the plot after he doubted the management would pay $50,000 for his release.

They said he also contemplated snatching Joe DiMaggio or some other member of the New York Yankee squad.

Seadlund signed the card bearing his history with his alias, Peter Anders. He gave his age as 27; his home as Spokane, Wash. He is five feet, 11 inches tall and weighed 150 pounds.

Private funeral services for Ross were held at the Rosehill cemetery chapel. After the rites, attended by his veiled and weeping widow, the body was buried in the family lot.

Reed, who is 53, was nominated to succeed George Sutherland, 75, retired.

AUTO COMPANY GIVES FIGURES

Union Affiliation Not Considered in Lay Offs at Fords

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—The Ford Motor company offered figures of unemployment and production schedules today at a national labor relations board hearing as company attorneys opened defense against union charges of discrimination.

William L. Yule, manager of the Buffalo assembly plant, testified he did not consider union membership in making seasonal layoffs during 1937.

The discrimination cases were pressed by the United Automobile Workers of America in a series of hearings which began January 11. The company introduced employment and production figures at various times during last year, purporting to show a relationship between employment and production schedules.

Yule testified that 437 men were laid off last December 31 and that rehiring began two weeks later when production schedules were stepped up. Orders to increase January production schedules, he said, were received from Detroit offices of the company by telegraph.

He declared he did not consider union membership in hiring or laying off employees and that he had not instructed any subordinates to do so.

Company Attorney Ulysses S. Thomas asked Yule:

"Did you know, when production started in the fall of 1937, which men belonged to the union and which did not?"

"No," Yule replied.

Yule also denied that the Ford company had employed anyone to "spy" on employees belonging to the U. A. W. or that he had received a report from an outside agency regarding union activities.

NLRB attorneys introduced a Ford pamphlet entitled "Ford Gives Viewpoint on Labor" was evidence late in the day when the case was adjourned until Friday.

"They point out further," he added, "that this is readily a coup d'etat for the C. I. O. Inasmuch as the cards are stacked for the CIO to swallow the A.F. of L. In other words the tail is going to wag the dog."

Bridges warned the A.F.O.L. against such a merger, asserting it had won "a well merited position of respect in the eyes of the American people."

"THIS SEASON," says Mr. Riggs, "I've sold tobacco in Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, and Tennessee. More than 7,500,000 pounds, I figure, amounting to about $2,000,000 in money.

"Time after time I've seen Lucky Strike get the prettiest tobacco in the auction. That's one reason I've smoked Luckies ever since I've been an auctioneer.

"Another reason I and so many other tobacco auctioneers prefer Luckies is because we have to watch out for our throats." (Luckies are extra-easy on the throat because the "Toasting" process takes out certain irritants found in even the finest tobacco.)

Mr. Riggs goes on to say that Luckies are the top cigarette with people who know tobacco. And he is talking facts.

Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many—yes, twice as many exclusive smokers as have all other cigarettes put together.

My head ached severely also and I had awful spells of dizziness. I got no enjoyment from rest or sleep either day or night as the frequent action of my kidneys was so disturbing. My vitality was low and I didn't even have the necessary energy to get about as I should. With that extreme tired feeling all the time I could hardly do my work. Then I read in the paper where so many other people with cases similar to mine were getting relief from KruGon so I immediately started with it."

"In a very short time I was feeling much better," continued Mrs. Drabenstot. "By the time my first box was gone I was getting wonderful results so continued the treatment. The poisons were soon eliminated from my system and my kidneys were much improved. I have new pep and energy, get full nights of sleep and rest and am feeling like a new person. ### SEVERE COLD WAVE IS SEEN

Warning Is Posted By Weather Bureau; Roads Slushy

Warning that a severe cold wave will descend upon this city was issued in the weather forecast for this vicinity today.

Yesterday's forecast called for "decidedly colder, with severe cold wave; strong shifting winds becoming northwest."

While the temperature hovered above freezing most of yesterday, the barometer dropped to a depth seldom recorded here. It descended at times to 29.50 or lower, which is an unusual occurrence at any time of the year.

The heavy, wet snow, which fell regularly throughout the day, accumulated on the streets and highways as slush, making driving and walking not only unpleasant, but dangerous. Numerous accidents, most of them minor in character, were reported at the police station yesterday.

Light service in the city was interrupted for a few minutes yesterday and last night, the heavy snow carrying down the wires. No serious difficulty was reported, however.

The past several days of warm weather have had their effect upon the ice in Little Bay de Noc. The ice yesterday measured 1 1/2 inches as compared with 14 inches last week, weather bureau officials said.

TEACHERS WILL MEET ON FEB. 11

Well Known Writer Will Be One of Principal Speakers Here

Jack Morrow, well known lecturer and foreign correspondent, will be one of the principal speakers at the annual Delta county teachers' institute which will be held in Escanaba on February 9. It was learned yesterday from county commissioner of schools, C. P. Titus.

Charles Anspach, president of Ashland college, Ashland, Ohio, and George Gilbert, of Marquette, upper peninsula representative and regional supervisor of the state department of public instruction, also is scheduled to speak at the institute.

Gilbert will discuss departmental services as rendered through the U. P. office and the latest developments in departmental activities, including finance and secondary school study as well as the instructional program.

Morrow, whose lectures are handled through the Redpath bureau, is an "internationally known American foreign correspondent, editor, author, brilliant lecturer and noted authority on problems in the Far East."

Morrow has spent 16 years of his life in the Pacific area as a soldier, newspaper editor, correspondent and student of international problems. Establishing himself as a reliable authority, he has lectured for the past two years in leading forums, universities, colleges and men's and women's organizations.

Edited Paper in Japan

With the intelligence department of the Canadian army in Siberia, Morrow took his discharge from the army at Vladivostok in December, 1919, and joined the staff of the Japan Advertiser in Tokyo. In many of the following year, he accepted the position of editor of the Japan Times and Mail, being closely associated with the late J. R. Kennedy, one of the keenest occidental students of Far Eastern affairs of the last half century. From 1925 to 1933, Morrow was editor and manager of the Maui News, one of the leading newspapers of Hawaii.

His lecture topics, however, are (1) Japan, Rising Sun in the International Firmament, (2) The Pacific Scene Through Critical American Eyes, (3) The Psychology of the Oriental, (4) Hawaii, the Melting Pot, (5) My Own United States and (6) What's the News?

George Doswell Brooke

George Doswell Brooke, recently elected president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company, now becomes president also of the Pere Marquette Railway company and the Nickel Plate road as a result of his election by the boards of directors of the two roads at their recent meetings in Cleveland. He succeeds W. J. Harahan, who died December 14, last.

Mr. Brooke was also named a director of the two roads, which he has served in the capacity of executive vice president since December, 1936. His appointments climax an active 35-year career in railroad work, marked by a sequence of promotions from rodman to various executive posts.

Mr. Brooke joined the C. & O. in 1924, after a career on the Baltimore and Ohio railway that had centered attention on him as one of the most promising young men in the railroad industry. His first connection with the C. & O. was as assistant to R. N. Begien, operating vice president.

Under two presidents—the late W. J. Harahan and the late J. J. Bernet—Brooke's rise was rapid. He was made a vice president by Mr. Bernet in 1930. In 1936, under Mr. Harahan, he was advanced to the highest ranking post next to the presidency—the office of executive vice president on the C. & O., the Pere Marquette and the Nickel Plate road.

Mr. Brooke was born at Sutherland, Va., and is a graduate of the Virginia Military Institute. He taught at Culver (Ind.) Military Academy before entering railway service. He is a civil engineer of standing in the profession. He is of a studious and quiet tempera-

SLIGHT UPTURN IS INDICATED

No Definite Demand for Steel Presented, However

Slight improvement in demand for steel continues to manifest itself but not sufficient to indicate a marked change in the position of consumers, says Steel.

Buying is in small lots and its nature indicates it is for filling gaps in the stock rather than for protecting the future. Prompt shipment is asked. Rolling schedules are intermittent, depending on accumulation of small orders. One effect of this condition is to divert some business from mills to warehouses. Jobbers are buying fairly well to meet this demand.

Some steelmakers find January orders slightly better than in December, part of this being attributable to moderate increase in automotive specifications, which are beginning to assume more importance.

Railroads offer little tonnage although small purchases of cars, rails and a few locomotives come out each week. Programs for the year are being held back until the rate situation is made definite. Every effort is being made by the interstate commerce commission to expedite hearings and arguments to the end that a decision may be made in February. Beliefs that some measure of relief will be granted and considerable buying is expected to follow.

Shipbuilding continues to pile up a future tonnage of steel which will furnish a backlog over many months. In addition to craft already awarded to builders, who will start soon placing the steel with mills, a number of further projects are pending. Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. will take bids next week on two tankers which will require about 10,000 tons of steel and bids will be opened Feb. 1 on the 12 cargo ships the maritime commission is about to award.

THE RED DEMOCRACY (Chicago Journal of Commerce) Rid of most of its enemies (press dispatches say the "purge" has not yet been completed) by the direct and simple expedients of the firing squad and whatever does duty in Russia for the traditional wall, the Soviet is now treating the populace to a sample of constitutional government—Red style.

World Affairs Reviewed

When Japanese troops recently marched victoriously into Tsinan, the heart of Shantung Province fell to the Nipponese.

Tsinan, situated in the northwest sector of the province, is geographically off center, but in every sense it is the center of Shantung, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Four railway stations attest the importance of transport in Tsinan. The Tientsin-Pukow line passes through the city on the way to link Peiping with Nanking.

Pre-rail paths of commerce, the water routes around Tsinan, are important in provincial business. The dilapidated old Grand Canal, still filling northern needs from southern rice fields, is accessible from Tsinan.

Stout gray stone walls surround Tsinan, an inner rampart neatly squared and an outer wall hugging suburbs into a diamond-shaped enclosure. Before foreign trade could storm the walls with force or treaties, the government in 1906 first invited European and American agents to Tsinan, and even laid out a commercial quarter on broad western lines, outside the walls to the west on the site of old graveyards.

In addition to the grain from western fields, factories in Tsinan receive peanuts and tobacco grown from plants said to have been introduced by American missionaries and American tobacco companies respectively.

Greater diversion would be a death blow to the St. Lawrence seaway proposal. Chicago, by a dog in the manager attitude, has blocked ratification of the seaway treaty in the Senate.

Quebec women are campaigning for the right to vote in provincial elections. We hope that when they secure this boon they will take a greater interest in politics than many Michigan women do.

The U. S. House of Representatives passes an appropriation bill totaling less than budget estimates. Don't worry, the Senate will fix that.

An Interior Department investigator questioned about wire-tapping, insists he never spied on the President. Very considerate, indeed.

Dispatches from Paris would indicate that what the French nation needs is a good cabinetmaker.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER Washington—Before the important business advisory council meeting at the White House last week, there was a regular anti-administration rebellion among the fifty business leaders friendly to the New Deal who compose the council.

Nevertheless, the resignation movement among the council members was stopped by the President's general friendliness and his specified approbation of the program drawn up by the council.

Especially encouraging to the business leaders of the council was the President's receptive attitude toward demands for the establishment of an "economic council" of twenty-five members, representing labor, industry, finance and other segments of the national economic life.

Above are recounted two highlights of the business advisory council meeting which did not reach the ears of the world. The gathering was one of the most important events in the strange saga of the President's dealings to date with the depression.

They arrived in a towering rage. Except for such government representatives as United States Treasurer William A. Julian, there was not one of them who had not been shocked and infuriated by the Jackson and Ickes anti-monopoly speeches.

Colorful Stories Background of Club Tableaux

Interesting stories are the background for the tableaux of the correlated arts program, "Great Loves of Life and Legend," which will be presented at an open meeting of the Escanaba Woman's club Wednesday evening at the First Presbyterian church.

One of the least known is that of Aimee and Josephine, who were cousins. After having visited Josephine at Napoleon's court, Aimee embarked on a vessel bound for her own country. Turkish pirates seized the ship. Aimee was taken to Turkey and the Sultan because of her beauty and intelligence made her his head wife. The Russians were at war with Turkey when Aimee learned of Bonaparte's divorce from Josephine, and she immediately brought about peace with the Russians, who upon going back to their own country cut off Napoleon's retreat and thus bringing about his defeat.

The program Wednesday evening will include the pictures presented by a cast of club members, with Miss Marie Berold, narrator, and music by the Senior high school orchestra, directed by R. P. Bowers, by a group of three soloists, Mrs. Edward Lucas, Noble Swenson and Rev. Carl E. Berger, and by the Woman's club music group chorus, with Mrs. William Shepeck soloist, and Mrs. John Bartel, director.

PROJECT COSTS ARE LOWERED

Delta-Alger Co-op Unit Construction Cost $900 Per Mile

Construction costs for the Alger-Delta Co-Op rural electrification project are much less than those of the most favorable in lower Michigan a few years ago, according to Joseph M. Donnelly, member of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission.

Contracts for the Upper Peninsula project, the first of its kind in the northern part of the state, call for a price of less than $900 per mile in contrast to costs of the most favorable territory in the lower peninsula, which ranged about $1,500.

On the subject of the state rural electrification projects, Donnelly said:

"These cooperatives are not being organized on a hit or miss basis, but, under the careful guidance of the Rural Electrification Administration at Washington, they are being formed and built into organizations which will be assisted and supervised by Washington until the entire loan of the federal government is paid back. It is interesting to note in passing, that these loans are made to these cooperatives at interest rates of 2.88 percent, and must be amortized over a period of from 20 to 25 years.

Nine Units Started

"During the past year, nine separate cooperatives have been organized in Michigan. They will service portions of more than 30 counties. A glance at the map will show that these nine cooperatives are stretched over the State, all the way from Lenawee County in the extreme southeastern part, to Ontonagon County on Lake Superior in the farthest northwestern part of Michigan.

"They serve areas of fairly dense rural population and also the so-called thinner districts. They are located in the territories of the two largest private electrical utilities in Michigan, namely the Detroit Edison Company and the Consumers Power Company, and also in the territories of some of the smallest electric utilities in the State.

"The aim of the Rural Electrification Administration is for the cooperatives to buy from private utilities or municipal plants, the electric energy needed for retailing to their members. Michigan is one of nine states in the Union where most of the private utilities have not as yet cooperated in rural development to the extent of offering electricity to the cooperatives at satisfactory rates. And the consequence has been that some of the funds allotted to these cooperatives that would have been available for line construction are being used for building generating plants."

Ban On Selling Of U. S. No. 2 Potatoes Begins With Today

Bernard Wetherell, in charge of federal-state potato inspections in the Upper Peninsula, announced last night receipt of word from Commissioner Strange of the Michigan department of agriculture that after today, January 25, it will be unlawful to sell U. S. No. 2 grade potatoes in Michigan.

The ruling is in conformity with one made by Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace which applies throughout the nation. The step forbidding the sale of the No. 2 grade potatoes has been taken in an effort to bolster the market for the better grades which has become demoralized because of excessively heavy shipments to the primary market centers.

The past week-end has witnessed an almost unprecedented movement of potatoes from the Upper Peninsula as well as other potato growing regions. On Saturday 23 car-loads of potatoes were shipped from peninsula points and 19 or 20 truckloads were also dispatched to the city markets.

Foresters Post Fund To Get Slayer of Pal

Who shot Junior Forester Royal M. Nettleton?

"Chipping in" a nickle to a dollar each toward a $1,000 reward for the capture and conviction of Nettleton's slayer more than 1,500 employees of the United States forest service, region No. 9, and CCC workers in the region's camps are seeking to aid authorities in solving this northern Wisconsin forest murder mystery. The reward, it was stated Saturday by Scott Leavitt of the Milwaukee forest service office, will be offered through Sheriff Jesse Ramsdell of Forest county, where the fatal shooting occurred last fall.

Scores of posters announcing the $1,000 reward were sent to Ramsdell Saturday from the Milwaukee forest office. These will be tacked in conspicuous places in the forest communities and distributed to law enforcement agencies in Wisconsin and upper Michigan. If the money is unclaimed by Dec. 15, 1938, the contributors propose to withdraw it and offer it to Mrs. Nettleton, widow of the slain forest worker.

Employees in Nicolet forest also contributed $150 to enable Mrs. Nettleton to return with her baby to Eugene, Ore., where her relatives live. The baby, a girl, is scarcely 3 months old.

Miss Sundelius Called By Death At Chicago Home

A special welcome program will be given in their honor at the Army Corps auditorium, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

"I AM ONE OF THE MILLIONS WHO PREFER CAMELS" SAYS RALPH GREENLEAF

WORLD'S CHAMPION IN POCKET BILLIARDS

"HEALTHY NERVES ARE A MUST WITH ME!"

FOURTEEN different times the news headlines have flashed: RALPH GREENLEAF WINS WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP. In a special interview during his recent championship play in Philadelphia, Ralph said: "I'd say the most important rule in this game is to have healthy nerves. And on that score, I think, Camels have a lot extra to offer. One of the main reasons why I've stuck to Camel cigarettes for twenty years is—they don't ruffle my nerves."

And America as a nation shows the same preference for finer tobaccos that Ralph Greenleaf does! Camels are the largest-selling cigarette in America

HE IS COUNTED THE GREATEST POCKET-BILLIARD PLAYER OF ALL TIME. Here Greenleaf executes a difficult masse shot, requiring split-hair accuracy, faultless stroking, and healthy nerves. And the world's two famous masters of the cue — champion Ralph Greenleaf and the 18.1 balkline billiard champion, Willie Hoppe—are both Camel smokers.

Fencing experts, too, appreciate Camel's finer tobaccos. As BELA DE TUSCAN, the famous instructor, says: "Fencing is very tiring, and I welcome the quick 'lift' I get with a Camel."

JAMES L. CLARK, famous scientist and explorer, says: "I always carry plenty of Camels with me into the wilderness. 'I'd walk a mile for a Camel!' Many's the time I've done it."

HELEN HOWARD, top-flight spring-board diver, of Miami, Florida, says: "Camels don't irritate my throat—not even when I'm sitting around in a wet suit, a target for irritation."

Japan Decides on a Long War

Japan's withdrawal of her ambassador from China and the simultaneous departure of China's ambassador from Tokyo ends the first phase of Japanese intervention. What Japan's military leaders have launched last summer as a brief punitive war has become a war of attrition.

No doubt remains that this is a major war, one that will determine the future of the peoples involved for generations to come. Before it is over it may decide the fate of Soviet Russia and of the entire Orient in its relations with Western Powers. Because of this war the Yellow Peril envisaged by Western rulers since Napoleon proclaimed it and Germany's last Kaiser echoed it, may become a dread reality or disappear in the face of a Red Peril more dangerous because it enlists the omnipresent poor.

Last Sunday's official statement of the Tokyo Government did not receive the attention its importance deserved. In this proclamation Japan gave to the world the decisions of the Imperial Council which had met a week earlier, but kept secret the results of its deliberations. Now we know that when this council met for the fourth time in the history of modern Japan, it decreed a war of extermination against the Nationalist Government of China. It made the fateful decision to ignore henceforth the Chinese authorities who transferred their capital from Nanking to Hankow as the Japanese army advanced up the Yangtze.

A New Puppet Government

In line with this decision Japan has created another puppet government in Peking similar to the one it set up in Chinese Manchuria in 1932. It includes Chinese nonentities, who have been persuaded or dragged into playing an unhappy part for the conquerors of their country. This so-called government is to make a pretense of ruling over those parts of China occupied and dominated by the soldiers of Japan.

Obviously this step will have no effect upon the real government of China or upon the Western Powers who recognize that government. They will continue to accredit their ambassadors and ministers to the China which is represented by Chiang Kai-shek and his associates. But it commits the leaders and people of Japan to a hazardous and unwelcome undertaking. They are now committed to support their foehdly militarists in the pursuit of an adventure which may well ruin their country before it is completed.

The 'No War' Fiction

For obvious reasons related to our own unfortunate Neutrality Act the Imperial Council decided against a frank declaration of war. China had twice rejected the ignominious terms of peace presented through the German ambassador and in view of Japan's determination to transform a punitive expedition into formal warfare, a declaration to that effect was in order. But for the time being it serves Japan's purpose to ignore the existence of a state of war which might cause trouble in her foreign relations.

The United States is also willing to go along with the fiction that there is no war. Application of the Neutrality Act would suspend the sale of munitions to both China and Japan, would bring the "cash and carry" provisions up for public debate, and might well lead to the refusal of American labor unions to load or unload Japanese ships arriving in our ports. Thus an act intended to keep us out of war, if applied, lead to a serious crisis between Japan and the United States.

President Roosevelt does not propose to apply the Neutrality Act if he can avoid it. When asked at his press conference on Tuesday whether Japan's withdrawal of her ambassador to China did not materially alter the situation, he quoted the opinion of the State Department that this action did not constitute a severance of diplomatic relations. This is formally correct since both embassies remain open in charge of minor officials. It is one of those situations familiar to diplomacy, where it is possible to interpret a certain state of facts in whatever way is most convenient at the moment. The President did not fail to add that this Government's policy in the Orient is on a 24-hour basis.

Stronger Than Declaration

Japan's officials declare that their action, amounting to a final repudiation of the Government of Chiang Kai-shek, is even stronger than a declaration of war. The chief secretary of the Japanese Cabinet, Almiria Zarem, announces that hereafter Japan considers the former Government of China as merely a local regime which will never again be regarded as speaking for China as a whole. It is for this reason, he adds, that Japan will not dignify it by issuing a declaration of war.

Thus the die is cast. Those who know the Orient will not underestimate the importance of this new situation. In the Far East "face saving" is essential. For

Richest Girl in the World

By ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE CORBY—heroine; richest girl in the world.
BRET HARDESTY—hero; bridge builder.
RODNEY BRANDON—Connie's fiancé.
KATIE BLYN—Connie's "double."

Yesterday, Bret finds Constance Corby is another girl now that she has become her old self again. They quarrel and Connie wins but something tells her she will not always win.

CHAPTER XVII
 Connie was to win out once more in her plea for a second honeymoon, if not a trip around the world, at least part way.

"Please, darling," she coaxed Bret. "Think what fun, just the two of us visiting every odd corner on the globe, seeing things through both our eyes, enjoying them together. When we come back we can settle down to the serious business of living. You can decide what you want to do; where we want to live. But first let's have a real honeymoon, please, darling!"

It was difficult to refuse her when it seemed to mean so much to her, when he loved her so much. After all, a honeymoon was one thing that did not happen every day! He had promised not to let her money come between them. So finally Bret allowed himself to be persuaded.

They booked passage for the luxurious Prince of Wales suite, Connie's private pullman, a gift from her grandfather on her birthday, took them to New York. At the docks there was such a throng of reporters and photographers, such a huge crowd of curious spectators eager for a glimpse of the young couple, or possibly an autograph, that it was necessary to hire police escort.

This was Bret's first experience as the husband of the richest girl in the world. He was not at all sure that he liked it. He said he felt as though he were some sort of freak on exhibition. He felt like a fool.

"Oh, you'll get used to it," Connie assured him. "Anyway it seems there is nothing one can do about it. I suppose people do think we are freaks of some sort. Just because of so much money. As for the newspapermen, I used to get angry with them, too, but they are just doing their jobs, you know. We are 'news,' and so they have to tell the world about us."

Bret said he supposed she was right. Nevertheless he did not think he would ever get used to being public property. He was certain he never would enjoy it. He was glad now that they were going away; they would not be "news" in other countries.

However he was to find that they still were, to the other passengers on shipboard. People stopped talking whenever the new-lyweds, whose romance was so strange and thrilling, approached on their daily promenade around the deck; they stared as they made their way across the big dining room to the captain's table. When Bret and Connie played games, or swam in the big pool, or danced, there were whispers, though often audible comments, and always a group gathered as an audience. Once Bret opened the stateroom door suddenly to discover a man eavesdropping outside.

"I almost pitched him overboard," he told Connie violently. "Why on earth should people spy on us and whisper behind our backs and rubberneck? I think, honey, if you don't mind, we'll stay close to our rooms during the remainder of the voyage."

Connie said she did not mind. Poor Bret, he was getting a taste of the gilded cage in which she always had lived. She did not mind the way people behaved as much as usual; not only because she was used to it, but because it was impossible for her to mind anything as long as she had Bret.

They were very happy during this second honeymoon. Perhaps they would never be quite so happy again. It may be that each realized this, in their hearts, and so made every moment a perfect, shining one.

It was fun, as Connie had predicted, seeing and enjoying everything together. In London they played at sightseeing, and the night spots. In Paris they were very gay, doing the rounds of night clubs and the Bohemian quarters; and Connie, to Bret's amazement, purchased trunkloads of gorgeous clothes of which he thought she had more than enough already. In India they obtained an audience with Gandhi, the richest girl in the world sitting at the feet of the poorest man! They ordered an exact replica, in miniature size, of the famous Taj Mahal. They stayed a month at Connie's villa on the Riviera, where the white sands were sanded by the blue Mediterranean. In Bangkok and Delhi they browsed in the street markets and bought everything from fruits to this reason it is much more difficult to retreat from an announced policy than in the West where diplomatic give-and-take is the rule, at least among the democracies. Japan has made her decision. It binds her to a long war which her people did not want and of which they will grow tired before it ends. How long can the military dictatorship which now rules their destinies, force them to do its bidding?

FIRST MANAGER OF GIANTS DIES

Colorful Baseball Figure Is Stricken After Long Illness

New York, Jan. 24.—Baseball lost another of its landmarks today with the death here of Jim Mutrie, first manager of the New York Giants from 1883 to 1892. Mutrie, 56, died after a long illness.

tache and his convivial spirit. Mutrie's own playing experience was limited to a short blitche with the New Bedford club as shortstop in the 1870's, but when John B. Day purchased the Troy club of the National league in 1883 and transferred it, bag and baggage, to New York, he chose Mutrie as his pilot and business manager.

Jobless Benefits Explained To Lions

How jobless benefits are administered under the Michigan unemployment compensation commission act was explained to members of the Escanaba Lions club last night in an interesting talk by John Biekola of Marquette, Upper Peninsula director of the M.U.C. Mr. Biekola also answered questions from members on the workings of the somewhat complicated jobless insurance act.

It was announced that the Escanaba Winter Carnival queen and her court would be guests of the Lions next week. A sensational trial is also scheduled in the club to investigate charges that the Lions club bowling team, captained by Harry Ehnerd, "threw" a recent match game to their opponents on a bribe. Atty. H. J. Yelland will handle the prosecution and Atty. Clyde McGonagle will be the defense attorney.

The program last night, which included selections by a boys' quartet, was prepared by Clyde Nelson. Merton Jensen presided at the meeting in the absence of Gust Asp.

LIBRARY WORK IS DESCRIBED

Miss Hessel Speaks at Luncheon Meeting of Rotary Club

Interesting facts concerning the history and operation of the Carnegie Public Library in Escanaba were told by Miss Adele Hessel, local librarian, in a talk at the luncheon meeting of the Rotary club at the Delta hotel yesterday noon.

In June, 1902, Andrew Carnegie, noted steel magnate and philanthropist, gave Escanaba an opportunity to accept a gift of $20,000 for a library building, according to Miss Hessel. The city owned the present site of the library, and in April, 1903, the building was completed. On June 1, 1903, the library opened its reading room to the public, and on July 7 books were circulated for the first time. On that day but 19 volumes went out, which was the smallest daily circulation the library ever had. In 1934-1935 the library was redecorated, new stacks added and improvements made to the grounds.

but by 1937 the news had been pretty well covered. In 1936 likewise Russia was still a big subject for books, but interest veered most decidedly toward Spain. The best book, no doubt, was "The Life and Death of a Spanish Town," by Elliot Paul, because of its human sympathy. It reveals all the inhumanity and brotherhood of men.

"The war in China spurred interest in the Far East, although no book can be said to have dominated the field. The largest sales went to "400,000,000 Chinese," which is a surprisingly comical and delightful book about Chinese.

Other widely read books mentioned by the librarian were: "Successful Christian Living," by Harry Emerson Fosdick; "Book of Marvels—the Occident," Richard Halliburton; "Education of Hyman Kaplan," Leonard Ross; "Midwest," "Flowering of New England," "Northwest Passage," "The Citadel," and "A Lantern in Her Hand."
