Speech Causes Excitement

His peace proposals, the most definite he has yet made, caused some excitement among observers of labor trends. The offers were announced at an uproarious session of the United Mine Workers convention. Lewis said his purpose was to quiet "those abroad in the land who say this labor controversy is terrible."

Ready February 1

Lewis emphasized his peace proposals by declaring: "If the A. F. of L. is so anxious for peace, we'll make a proposal. We want peace—peace with honor."

Gains Claimed

The convention came to its feet, cheering, whistling and applauding, Lewis beamed. "Previously Lewis had declared that no one had been 'hurt' by the C. I. O. fight."

Some Opposition Heard

The applause and shouting that greeted a "no surrender" speech by Philip Murray left no doubt that a majority of the delegates were supporting the C. I. O. fight. Nevertheless, some rank-and-file opposition was disclosed in half a dozen resolutions. Typical was one from Hanna, Wyoming, asking "definite steps to end this strife for the ultimate benefit of all organized labor in the United States" and a referendum "before any more funds of the United Mine Workers are expended in this cause."

"His girl lives over there."

her, for a companion, a lover and a husband.

She did not mind if he amused himself some with Veronica. She could easily see why Veronica's kittenish helplessness would appeal to Bret. Hadn't he been attracted to her at first, when he had thought she was Katie Blyn, because he had thought her helpless, a maiden in distress? Bret's chivalry was old-fashioned, but it was delightful.

The dinner was practically over. A great deal of champagne had been drunk, with many toasts to the occasion, and for the continued marital bliss of the host and hostess. Now it was time for the ladies to retire to the drawing room for coffee, leaving the gentlemen for one last drink and smoke.

Connie rose to give the signal—she liked keeping such age-old customs, they lent a certain dignity, in spite of the modern note that her parties achieved as well.

Someone had just asked Bret a question, one of the men, but Veronica Whitney repeated it again, in her high, shrill voice that carried too well.

"Yes, Bret darling, do tell us what you do? We know there's some talk . . . Connie spoke of your going into the stock market or politics—but didn't you use to build houses or something quaint? What do you do, Bret?"

Connie was the only one who recognized that little fine line—etling around her husband's mouth, the only one who saw the storm gathering in his dark eyes.

"What do I do?" Bret asked. He, too, stood up, pushing back his chair with a grating sound; he made a bow to the whole company, for it seemed that all noise and laughter and chatter suddenly had ceased. "Why, didn't you know?" he addressed Veronica but first his eyes had flashed on look down the long gleaming table to meet those of his wife. "I'm a gigolo, my dear Mrs. Whitney—ladies and gentlemen. I don't do anything. I don't suppose I ever shall. I live, very neatly and comfortably, thank you, on my wife's seventy-odd millions. And this anniversary that you all are celebrating so merrily is a toast—and a jest—to just that."

There was a stunned silence for a long, tense moment.

Then Bret bowed again, murmured something about begging his wife's pardon, and his guests, before he turned and walked out of the room.

Connie stared after him. It was as though she could not move, or speak, or think. For Bret to behave in such a manner, to throw such an insult into her face, to jeer at their anniversary party.

"He didn't know what he was doing," Rodney said, low at her side. The babble and laughter had been taken up again, as though nothing had shattered it.

"Probably had a few too many drinks, upset about something. Don't blame him too much, Connie dear."

She let her old friend take her arm to start the movement into the other room. She managed to hold her head high, with pride and defiance in that manner that was especially her own. But in her heart she felt that what Bret had done was inexcusable. Things could never be quite the same between them again.

Richest Girl in the World

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE CORBY—heroine; richest girl in the world.
BRET HARDESTY—hero; bridge builder.
RODNEY BRANDON—Connie's fiancé.
KATIE BLYN—Connie's "double."

Yesterday, Bret wants to re-dedicate their marriage to usefulness; Connie puts him off—or so she thought, but she was to be mistaken.

CHAPTER XIX
 The anniversary dinner was held in the brown-stone mansion on Fifth Avenue. It was a landmark pointed out to all sight-seers visiting New York. It was more like an institution than a home and when Connie was not there it was empty—except for the many servants.

Upon seeing it first Bret had remarked that it was very grand. That had become a set phrase with him. But it never was said with enthusiasm, certainly never with anything approaching awe.

Tonight, seated at one end of the long lace-covered table, lighted with tall candles, decked with a profusion of flowers and glistening glass and shining silver, Bret thought again that this scene was very grand. The women were all beautiful in their low-necked evening gowns, representing the latest fancy of the Parisian dressmakers; the men all handsome in their dark coats, white fronts and ties. Everyone seemed exceedingly gay. There was a great deal of chatter and laughter, most of it inconsequential. The noisier such a party became, the more successful it was apparently. Tonight the noise hurt Bret's head. Or maybe it was because he had had a few too many Scotch and sodas before dinner with the gentlemen.

He had not meant to have too many. He did not approve of the amount of Scotch and soda, and other beverages, his wife's guests consumed. But he had been so bored. And so hurt, because of that brief scene upstairs in Connie's boudoir.

Connie easily was the loveliest woman present. She had made quite a success, not only with her parties, but as a social leader in her smart crowd, now that she was a young matron. She seemed to enjoy this success. If one could judge from her bright eyes, her flushed cheeks, the way she took the center of the stage.

Rodney Brandon sat at her right. It was Rodney from whom Connie had run away to become Katie Blyn. But he had forgiven her for that. He had explained that the papers had discovered that that girl was not Connie. He had granted them an interview, only because he had hoped the story might bring her back to him. She had explained that she had had to run away, though she had been sorry to have him go.

Rodney and Bret liked each other as well as could be expected. They could not have been more exact opposites. Often Connie was struck by the contrast between them, Rodney so fair, so polished, so perfect; Bret, dark and serious and natural. She wished that they would become real friends, her husband and her old sweetheart. She was happy tonight, having them both, one by her side, the other at the far end of the table, both somehow complimenting her and belonging to her.

For Rodney had told her, too, that he still cared for her; that he always would care.

"You may have fitted me, practically at the altar, my dear," he had said, his eyes mocking, yet with his slow smile; "you may have married someone else, but I

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. If they stubbornly refuse anything else.

Firmly packed by continual pounding of the high wind, the snowdrifts balked efforts of the V-type plows to open a lane. Two plows were used in an effort to open the road. CITY DIGS OUT AFTER STORM

Services Curtailed As Result of Season's Worst Blizzards

Gladstone yesterday was digging itself out following one of the most severe storms of recent years.

With the assistance of a county plow, borrowed after two of the city plows broke down, municipal crews had thoroughfares pretty well opened.

Highway M-35 was completely blocked here, between 10 and 12 feet of snow filling the cut at the top of the bluff. A large plow was being brought here from Iron Mountain to assist in opening the road.

Rail traffic over the Soo Line is gradually being resumed. No. 8, eastbound arrived here at one o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued on to the Soo with the plow ahead. No. 7 was made up here and left for Minneapolis last night at the regular time.

Efforts are being made to resume regular train service today.

School attendance suffered considerably Tuesday and yesterday. However, it was improved yesterday afternoon, particularly in the high schools.

Removal of snow on Delta avenue will be started today by city crews. Until all streets have been taken care of there will be no sidewalk plowing with the possible exception of in the vicinity of schools.

Arrange Seven Ski Events For Winter Sports Carnival

Seven ski events are being arranged by the Swedish club as a portion of the Winter Carnival to be staged here Feb. 11-13, it was announced yesterday by Hilding Granberg.

On Saturday, Feb. 12, there will be four events for children. Three of them will be for boys and one for girls.

On Sunday, the three remaining feature events are to be run off. These will include a men's race for men 15 years and over, a ladies' race and a men's free-for-all.

The latter will be over a 6 mile course and a beautiful trophy, donated by the Swedish club, is to be awarded the winner.

Medals will be given the winners of other events. Granberg urged skiers to start immediately to train for the events.

CATHARTICS A BAD HABIT

If you have common constipation, due to lack of bulk in the diet, the great objection to pills and purgatives is that they perpetuate the trouble. Why not encourage elimination with a natural laxative food—with Kellogg's All-Bran. It absorbs moisture and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. At the same time it improves intestinal tone because Kellogg's All-Bran contains the intestinal tonic, vitamin B.

Skiing Party To Be Held Tonight

The usual weekly skiing party to Wickman's farm on the Days River is to be held tonight. All planning to attend should register with Hilding Granberg by noon today.

Attention, Masons!

Members of Gladstone Lodge No. 396, F. & A. M., are requested to meet at the Masonic Temple this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock to attend services and pay their last respects to their departed brother, William H. Freeland.

Movies Too Tough For Sonja Henie, Skate Star

ICE SWAN MAY QUIT PICTURES

“Don't Kid Me, I'm Still a Skater,” She Says; Film Hours Pall

BY PAUL MICKELSON New York, Jan. 26 (AP)—Sonja Henie, rated by her handlers as the most superbly trained girl athlete in history, has found the movie grind so tough she may toss it and a two-year income of about $400,000 into the ash can.

“I can't stand that strain—working from early morning to seven or eight o'clock at night—and do not intend to do so,” she said.

“I train hard and can keep going at top speed with anybody but not as much as they (the movies) demand.”

Sonja was further irritated by the request of her film employers that she give up her current exhibition tour.

“Don't kid me, I'm still a skater.” And to prove it, the petite Norwegian miss is wowing New York in a show that is a complete five-night sellout.

Her present tour has been so successful, says Manager Hugo Quist, that she could pile up a gross gate of $1,000,000 a month by skating five days a week, which she is able to do.

She has made three smash hit movies, her fortune from the proceeds and her exhibitions soaring over the $350,000 mark in less than two years.

“It has taken Sonja five hard years of work to build up her marvelous endurance,” said Quist. “Endurance is why she's so superb. She can skate all day.”

“How much longer do you suppose she'll continue skating?” “I don't know. She has all the money she wants. Only yesterday she turned down an offer of $3,500 for one radio broadcast.”

“I ask her when she's going to quit,” she says. “In two years. I quit.” She's been saying that for five years now.

Twist of Wrist

Joe Falcario

Joe Falcario... position of wrist at delivery of hook.

(Sixth of 10 instructive articles on bowling.)

BY JOE FALCARIO Match Game Champion Manipulation and control of the ball rests in the fingers. A ball with holes that are too far apart causes the bowler to press his grip in an effort to hold the ball securely. This often will result in the ball backing up after it gets down the alley about 40 feet.

In gripping the ball, insert the thumb as far as it will go. This is contrary to the advice of some. Keep your eyes off the pins. Some very fine bowlers advise you to watch the head pin con-

Basketball Proves Valuable Adjunct To Grid Game; Teaches Players Use Of Speed, Grace

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD NEA Service Sports Writer Basketball is in a peculiar position in regard to its relationship to other sports. Football coaches swear by it. Track mentors swear at it. Which oftentimes puts the poor cage coach in the middle. An athlete works mostly with his hands and feet, and that's where the trouble comes in. With the exception of boxing, no other sport requires as much stress on hand and footwork as basketball.

Because of the new trend in gridiron play, football coaches want as many of their men as possible to play the court game... especially backs and ends.

Basketball players make great ball-handlers in the fall. They do wonders with the lateral pass. Wingmen who spend their winters dribbling on the hardwood are much more glue-fingered on the receiving end of a forward pass than ends who don't play the cage game.

Tackles and guards, usually noted for their lack of grace and agility, move around like half-backs after they've played basketball.

Hard on Sprinters On the other hand, track coaches maintain that the best way to ruin a cinder star's career is to let him romp on the hardwood.

Basketball, they say, is much too rough. The constant, jarring contact with the floor is apt to do great harm to leg muscles.

There was a time when baseball players considered basketball fine for winter conditioning, but like track men, their sentiments have been swaying the other way. Many a baseball player who starred in the court game in his younger days, now avoids it for fear it will cut down his speed.

Excellent proof, however, of what basketball can do for an athlete may be seen in Keith Topping, Stanford's star end of a couple seasons back. When Topping first came to Stanford he didn't believe he'd ever play football. His chief love was basketball.

Although tall and rugged, Topping didn't seem to be able to relax his body enough to play the grid game. But a year of basketball loosened him up, gave him new-found grace and co-ordination. By the time he was a senior he had developed into one of the country's best flankers.

Excelsior Star Time was when there was a liberal percentage of grid stars on every collegiate cage roster. The number have been decreasing of late.

And the best basketball players are proving to be those who are strictly basketball players—the boys who concentrate on that sport alone.

This is especially true in the southwest and California where the grid season runs so long. By the time the boys can get themselves adjusted to the indoor game it's almost too late.

Thus coaches concentrate on developing boys to star expressly in basketball.

There are exceptions throughout the country, of course. A few football players go great guns on the court. Among them are Tut Warren and Ted Shoemaker of Alabama.

Bob Herwig of California, Jim McDonald of Ohio State, Nile Kinnick of Iowa, Bob McLeod of Dartmouth, Jack Hamilton of Arkansas, and Emmer Dohmann of Nebraska.

The percentage, however, is very low.

Michigan Alcohol Producers Inactive

BY PAUL MAY Washington, D. C.—Michigan alcohol producers were not very busy last month, as the Internal Revenue Bureau's periodic report, out today, showed that no ethyl or denatured alcohol was produced during December in the state.

There was a gallonage of 16,205 ethyl alcohol left in stocks at the end of the month, though records showed that no denatured alcohol was left.

During the month in question, Michigan producers withdrew 22,296 gallons for sale, on which Federal tax was paid.

Total U. S. production during the month of December was 17,261,669 gallons in the ethyl alcohol division, while 1,841,127 gallons of completely denatured alcohol were turned out, along with 5,186,000 gallons of specially treated product.

stantly, but I insist that is wrong. As I have stressed in previous articles, keep your eyes on a spot 12 or 14 feet down the alley. This gives the bowler the tendency to follow through with his arm, rather than snapping the ball in delivery. The follow through is just as essential in bowling as it is in other sports. Watch that picked spot and try to guide the ball so that it rolls over the spot and follows a line to the head pin.

NEXT: Footwork.

From gridiron to cage court in one easy jump, was the move made by Perron Shoemaker, left, and Tut Warren, who were regular ends for Alabama last fall. Now they hold down the guard posts for the Crimson Tide hoop team.

Henie and Quist Ideal Combine In Raking In Shekels

BY HARRY GRAYSON Sports Editor, NEA Service New York—Sonja Henie smiles “Yes,” but her stern manager says “No.” and the little Norwegian winds up with another $15,000 for herself. That is what her percentage averages for a single appearance with her Hollywood revue.

Sonja Henie Hugo Quist

A strange and perfect combination is Sonja Henie and Hugo Quist.

Quist worships the ground she walks on, and Miss Henie has sublime faith in the silent Finn.

Quist became widely known in the track and field trade when he brought the incomparable Paavo Nurmi to America in 1925.

Everywhere he went, Nurmi collected transportation from Helmsingters. He got rich as an amateur, and now is a prosperous automobile dealer in his native land.

When Quist arrived in New York from Finland in 1911, he organized the Finnish-American A. C., which was nothing more than Quist and a group of long-winded athletes who beat all the college teams and the pick of the New York Athletic Club for years.

No one knows more about conditioning than Hugo Quist. So it was that when the late Wilhelm Henie first brought his daughter to America as an amateur in 1929, he contacted Quist. He wanted his wonder girl properly trained and needed advice from a financial angle.

Thus it was that Quist had the inside track when Miss Henie turned professional following the Winter Olympics of 1936.

Quist Puts Sonja Across Quist had a number of lean years between Nurmi and Miss Henie. He couldn't raise enough money to bring the Golden Girl of the Silver Skates and her parents to this country.

Madison Square Garden told him that New York had seen her as an amateur... that she no longer merited a booking. But Quist persisted, and finally she was booked to skate before, between periods, and following an amateur hockey game.

The Garden underestimated her drawing power, and when the house was sold out, offered her $500, and told her to quit waiting her time with Quist. Miss Henie so advised Quist, and was told to demand 50 per cent. This she did, with the admission to the Garden officials: “Quit wasting your time with me. See Hugo Quist.” She collected $14,000.

Quist literally stuffed Sonja Henie down Hollywood's throat. She was turned down by one of

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

Here and there in sport... Biggest paid admission crowd in world's history was 165,000 at the Indianapolis Speedway, Decoration Day, 1936. Jim Thorpe, noted Carlisle Indian, was once the property of the Detroit Tigers for 27 minutes... Detroit bought Thorpe on Feb. 23, 1921, from the Akron Club and sold him to Toledo... Thorpe made his first major league appearance with the New York Giants on April 14, 1914, when he pinch-batted in the ninth inning for big Jeff Tesreau, the Giant pitcher... But Thorpe never played regularly in the New York lineup... The National League pitchers looked him over a few times and decided he was “a sucker for a curve ball.”... So they “curved him out of the league” and he was sent to the minors... After that he made several attempts to get in the majors, but to no avail.

Tony Canzone, former lightweight champion, engaged in 16 title bouts, either as champion or challenger... Bill Russo, Brooklyn bowler and brother-in-law of Joe Falcario, recently rolled two perfect games in a single night... Marty Brill, former Notre Dame collegian, now coaching at LaSalle College, Philadelphia, says a boy cannot play football for fun and get away with it... “I tried letting the boys get some fun out of the game and it didn't work... We won only two games and I had to make three regulars and a reserve turn in their suits... If you really want to win you and your players have to work and that's all there is to it.”

Tennis, as a definite game, was not established until France gave it life in the twelfth century... Its early official name was “Le Paume”... It was first played only by royalty, the nobility and the aristocracy and was barred to the general public... Enthusiasm over tennis cost the life of King Louis X of France... He became overheated while playing, retired to the grotto to cool off, caught a cold and died of pneumonia... King Charles XII went insane during his reign... Afterward, he was interested in only one thing—tennis... To please his whim, his people always moved him to a room overlooking a tennis court while a game was in progress... After more than a century of barring the hot polio from indulgence in tennis, the French rulers became tolerant in their attitude and the public adopted the game with great enthusiasm... However, the clergy was barred from the game for hundreds of years.

Winter queens from all parts of the peninsula will be invited there as guests of the club to compete for the title “Queen of the North.” An elaborate throne will be built at the west end of the municipal rink and for the parade of the winners and the coronation of the winner. Following the ceremonies there will be a semi-formal ball honoring Governor Murphy and the “Queen of the North.”

Cheboygan Carnival Delayed By Storms

the big outfits after a screen test. Makes Screen Set Like Her But Quist knew she had it, and skated her for six nights at a Hollywood rink.

She knocked the film colony crazy, and it was Mrs. Ed Eberle, wife of the studio manager of 20th Century-Fox, who brought Darryl Zanuck to her. One peek at her and Zanuck signed her without a screen test.

Her first picture grossed more than a million. Her second will do more than $2,000,000 when all the returns are in, including the European.

Miss Henie set some kind of a New York record when she opened with Madison Square Garden sold out a week in advance for five nights while her third picture was showing on Broadway. Her six-week tour will gross $600,000 and Miss Henie gets 50 per cent.

Sonja Henie has plenty to sell, and Hugo Quist is a master salesman.

PIRATES EYEING UP THAT FLAG

Waner Says He Won't Be Surprised If They Connect

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Paul Waner, Pittsburgh outfielder and former National League batting champion, said today he wouldn't be surprised if the Pirates won the 1938 pennant provided they get a powerhouse hitter for the cleanup spot.

“Give us a long distance hitter who could really powder that agate for extra sacks and we would go places this season,” Waner said.

“Sure, we've got a good ball club,” he said. “Our pitching staff may not be the best in the league but it's a good one. We have some pretty consistent hitters but what we need is someone in that four or five hole who can slap that apple with men on the sacks.”

Waner admitted sending back his contract but denied he was a holdout.

“The first contract they send you,” he said, “is sort of like the opening bid at an auction. They go that to make you feel you are not so good. If you accept that's just so much for them.”

PUTTING GOES SOUR

Coral Gables, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Paul Waner, Pittsburgh outfielder, faded from the Miami Biltmore left-handers golf tournament today before the booming shots of J. L. Matthews, Miami printer, and it was up to Lloyd Brown of Cleveland to keep the cup in the baseball family.

Brown, Cleveland Indians pitcher, reached tomorrow's 18-hole finals by downing Leon “Goose” Goslin, former Detroit baseballer, 6 and 5.

Waner, twice winner of the southpaw tournament and medalist in this renewal, lost a 3 and 2 match to Matthews, who played out the round for a medal 75, four above par.

The Pirate slugger carded a 79 as his putting turned sour. Two down at the turn, Waner didn't win a hole from the husky Miamian, who hits the ball as far as the average professional.

“I had some misgivings over the tournament,” Waner said. “That's the reason I brought Brown over from Sarasota. We want to keep this cup in the family.”

Brown, with a 40 for the front nine, had little trouble ousting Goslin.

OLD DIZ BACKS TERRY'S PIECE

Finest Article He Ever Read, Comments Dean at Daytona Beach

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 26 (AP)—Bill Terry got support in his feud with sports writers today from an unexpected quarter—Dizzy Dean.

“I think Terry's article is the finest I've ever read,” declared “Old Diz,” speaking of the New York manager's piece in a current magazine.

“Understand,” he amended quickly under Mrs. Dean's prompting, “I'm not taking a crack at sportswriters—and I don't think Terry is either—but I believe that Terry is absolutely right in refusing to allow any of his players to talk to a sports writer.”

“I believe that sports writers should write the truth, and I believe they try to, but they shouldn't try to run the game.”

“Sports writers have done a lot for baseball and they've done a lot for me, but they shouldn't try to run the business office and they shouldn't try to carry personal grudges into their writing.”

What baseball needs, said the St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, is more players like Terry.

No Mungo Trading, Says McPhail, New Dodgers Executive

Cincinnati, Jan. 26 (AP)—Larry S. MacPhail, newly-named executive vice president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Burleigh Grimes, the team's field general, headed for St. Louis late today, leaving behind their stout denials of any immediate plans to trade Van Lingle Mungo.

“We have made no propositions to anyone for Mungo,” said MacPhail, who spent the day in conference with officials of the Cincinnati Reds and the Nashville Vols.

MacPhail, former general manager of the Reds, termed Mungo the “best pitcher in baseball” and added:

“When some of the other clubs realize this, we may be able to talk trade. Mungo goes only when we get real value for a great player.”

RACE DATE SET

New York, Jan. 25 (AP)—The board of stewards of the Inter-collegiate Rowing association today set Monday, June 27, as the date for this year's championship race on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, but turned down a suggestion to cut the race from four to three miles.

Eskymo Cagers Play At Sault On Friday

It's out of the frying pan and into the fire for the Escanaba high school cagers who, after losing to the powerful Ishpeming quintet, now face an equally mighty outfit from Sault Ste. Marie.

Coach Raymond Altenhof, former University of Michigan star, has one of the best basketball teams in the history of the Lock City this year after two somewhat indifferent years. The Soo cagers have waded through all opposition except, of course, Ishpeming.

The Hematites defeated the Blue Devils by three points in one of the most closely-contested games played by the two teams.

Among the boys who will be remembered by the Eskymos from last year are Manno, Ranta and Loveless. This trio proved a thorn in the side of the Eskymos last year when the locals lost a close one to the Altenhof crew.

In spite of defeat by Ishpeming last Friday, Coach Carl Nordberg said he was well satisfied with the work of his cagers. They put up a splendid defense against the visitors' attack, which has swept all before it this year. In addition, the local offense matched the field goals of the visitors and lost only on the margin of free throws, of which Ishpeming had several more than Escanaba.

Nordberg, who has been handicapped in practice this week because of the weather, has indicated that he will use the same lineup as that which he employed against Ishpeming. That will mean Hurley and Hansen will be at forwards, Eis at center and Abrahamson and Fredericksen at guards.

Parochials To Play St. Paul Five Friday

Undismayed by their 38-24 defeat by Rock last week, Coach Johnny Vandewelle's St. Joseph high school quintet will travel to Negaunee Friday night (weather permitting) to meet St. Paul's cagers in the first of a two game series.

Coach Vandewelle has been practicing with several new combinations this week and said last night that he expects to have an entirely new front line on the floor Friday. He intends to shift Knauff, high scoring guard, to forward and to install a newcomer, O'Donnell, who has been showing up well, at the other forward post. At guards, he expects to have McDermott and Gray. In reserve, he will have Loeffler, Luskin, Langenfeld and Ashland.

The Negaunee aggregation, after a slow start, has displayed a high scoring machine in its past two games, soundly trouncing National Mine and the strong Eben cagers. Another indication of their power is the fact that they lost to Rock by three points, while the locals lost by 14 points.

Included in the St. Paul lineup are Baldini, Russo, Triano, Jacobetti, Motto, Malno and Spelghatti, most of whom performed here last year.

UPBAYS MEET ISHPERING FIVE

Gladstone, Mich.—Local basketball fans will see one of the finest teams in the Upper Peninsula in action Friday night when Ishpeming comes here for their annual battle with Gladstone high.

There will be a preliminary between the reserves and a picked senior class team, starting at 7:15 o'clock.

Under the sterling tutelage of C. C. Watson, Ishpeming again has a brilliant team. It is undefeated thus far this season and among its victims have been Escanaba (twice), Stambaugh, Sault Ste. Marie, Negaunee, Marquette and Wakefield.

By virtue of its two victories over Escanaba, one by a lopsided score, the Hematites rule favorites to defeat the locals.

Coach Eldon Keil has not definitely decided on his starting lineup for the tilt.

T. J. Barry, Vulcan, will handle the game.
