CHIEF OF TVA DEFIES STAND OF ROOSEVELT

INTERNAL DISPUTE HAS DRAMATIC CLIMAX

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, chairman of TVA, bluntly defied President Roosevelt today and declared himself not a participant in a hearing called by the chief executive to determine "the facts" behind TVA's bitter internal row.

Face-to-face with the president and in the presence of his opponents on the TVA board—Vice Chairman Harcourt A. Morgan and Director David E. Lillenthal—the chairman criticized the inquiry as "an alleged process of fact finding" and repeated his plea for an "impartial, comprehensive and complete" investigation by congress.

Emphatically, he declined to answer Mr. Roosevelt's questions as to what factual basis he might have for the charges of bad faith and malfeasance he has hurled at Harcourt A. Morgan and Lillenthal. He referred the chief executive to a brief prepared statement asking for a congressional inquiry.

On the other hand, Harcourt Morgan and Lillenthal were ready with a long series of documentary exhibits and oral testimony which they contended exonerated them of "dishonesty" charges of the chairman.

Just before the hearing adjourned, the president admonished all three directors that they owed it to the country not to continue longer to jeopardize the public welfare by personal differences.

At Chairman Morgan's request, the three are to meet the president again next Friday so that he, and they if they choose, may present written statements. Otherwise, a White House aide said, the hearing was over so far as Mr. Roosevelt was concerned.

The fact which has split the TVA for two years was brought to a dramatic climax in the office of the president. The three TVA directors sat around Mr. Roosevelt's desk and a corps of stenographers recorded the proceedings for the press.

Chairman Morgan, 59, sat at Mr. Roosevelt's left. Almost directly facing the president was Harcourt A. Morgan. To the president's right was Lillenthal.

Mr. Roosevelt began the proceedings with a statement that he was preserving an impartial position as between the two factions.

"If there be no such evidence then there should be either a definite end to such personal attacks and aspersions or else resignation from the board," he said sternly.

He noted that Chairman Morgan had referred to the claim of Senator George Berry of Tennessee for compensation for marble lands assertedly flooded by Norris Dam as an instance of "dishonesty" of obtaining "honesty, openness, decency and fairness in government."

Whitney Arrested On Second Charge Of $103,000 Theft

New York, March 11 (AP)—Aristocratic Richard Whitney, whose very name had been a symbol for Wall Street profligacy, stood twice charged with theft tonight as the manifold investigations of the spectacular collapse of his firm opened a great fiscal scandal.

Whitney, socially impeccable, five times president of the New York Stock Exchange, the erstwhile "Morgan broker" through whom many of the orders of the mighty J. P. Morgan company were executed, surrendered in mid-afternoon to State Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr. upon a second grand larceny complaint.

The maximum penalty under that charge is ten years. His arrest had been ordered a few minutes before, after the testimony of Commodore William A. W. Stewart of the exclusive New York Yacht club, long a friend, that Whitney, in addition to all the other derelictions charged against him, "unlawfully" had taken $103,000 in club bonds from a safety deposit box.

Already, he was under grand larceny indictment obtained by Thomas E. Dewey, the New York county (Manhattan) district attorney, for the alleged misappropriation of some $105,000 from a family trust fund set up by his father-in-law for the benefit of Mrs. Whitney, her sister, Mrs. Mary Sheldon Murphy, his alma mater, Harvard university, and St. Paul's school of Concord, New Hampshire.

Assistant State Attorney General Ambrose McCall, successfully opposing Tuttle's request for lower bail, told Magistrate Thomas Aurelio it was believed the total amount of the alleged peculations involved might "reach over a million dollars."

Surrogate James A. Foley signed an order suspending Whitney from exercise of his authority as co-executor and trustee of the estate of his father-in-law, George Sheldon.

MOONEY PARDON MOVE OPPOSED

California Solons Will Hear Man Who Got Bombing Facts

Sacramento, Calif., March 11 (AP)—Lawmakers sympathetic toward Tom Mooney encountered new signs of opposition today as they renewed their effort to give him a "legislative pardon."

Police Captain Charles Goff, veteran officer who assembled the evidence on which Mooney was convicted of the San Francisco Preparedness Day dynamiting 22 years ago, received permission to address the state assembly, before which the pardon move was pending. He will be heard later.

A pardon measure failed of passage by only two votes in the assembly early this morning after Mooney had appeared personally to declare his innocence.

Supporters of the pardon measure, confronted with the possibility of challenges as to its competency even if passed, took the position that the matter of legality and effectiveness could be determined after enactment.

State Buys Game Land On Escanaba And Cedar Rivers

Lansing, March 11 (AP)—The state conservation commission moved today to acquire approximately 12,000 acres of land for park purposes with $23,112 in funds derived from sale of game licenses.

An additional expenditure of $12,700 for additions to the Traverse City, Orchard Beach, and Higgins Lake state park was approved.

The game fund purchases included 120 acres adjacent to the Cedar River tract for a waterfowl habitat; 6,291 acres at the Escanaba River tract, and 240 additional acres for the Houghton Lake state forest.

MORE JOBLESS CAMPS NEEDED

Added Upper Peninsula Sites Sought for Single Men

Lansing, March 11 (AP)—The emergency relief administration disclosed plans today to establish additional camps for unemployable single men in the upper peninsula, after receiving a stay in conservation commission demands for removal of one of the camps from the Muskegon area.

Philip Schafer, social service director for the ERA, said a rising volume of unemployment in the upper peninsula would necessitate the opening of additional camps.

The lower peninsula camp is located near the Muskegon state park. Conservation Commissioner Harry H. Whitley of Dowagiac told Schafer he felt Muskegon should decide "whether they want to give up the park and devote the area to infirmary purposes."

"We can't have 200 men running around loose near a public park and bathing beach," he added.

Schafer said the camp has an enrollment of 210 men whose disabilities make them unemployable in industry, although they are not entirely helpless. He told the commission he considered the cost of moving the camp would cause a hardship, and the location recommended itself because it provided employment opportunity for persons who have rehabilitated themselves.

Only two such camps now are operated in Michigan. The other is at Hageman Lake, in the upper peninsula.

Soo Boat Sinking Trial Reaches End

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 11 (AP)—The trial of three officers of the Pittsburgh Supply Co. steamer Frontier on charges of negligence in connection with the sinking of the vessel here last summer came to an end today.

A. C. Board of the United States bureau of marine and navigation, who conducted the hearing, said findings of his board would be submitted to Washington for decision.

At today's session the accused officers, Capt. Thomas A. Small, Capt. William F. Collins and Chief Engineer Robert MacArthur said they believed the Frontier seaworthy. Two men lost their lives when the vessel sank.

HOUSE HANDS TWO DEFEATS TO PRESIDENT

TAX REVISION BILL SENT TO SENATE, 294 TO 98

Washington, March 11 (AP)—The administration suffered two clear-cut defeats in the house today before the chamber passed the tax revision bill by a vote of 294 to 98.

President Roosevelt told reporters this morning that a proposed tax on closely-held and family-owned corporations was not punitive and that it was designed to erase special privilege existing under the tax laws, but two hours later the house flatly declined to put this levy in the tax bill.

Pork Levy Criticized

Meanwhile Secretary Hull criticized an excise tax on imported pork on grounds it would be disastrous to the American corn and hog industry, and the house refused, 201 to 182, to eliminate the pork tariff-tax from its bill.

There was no angry debate in the chamber—all that had been left behind yesterday. Members merely went through the routine of ratifying their previous tentative decisions, then wrapped up the bill for delivery to the senate.

Before the lop-sided vote for passage, they refused to take out an amendment to raise the tax on hard liquor from $2 to $2.25 a gallon.

Modification Hinted

Balloting along almost rigid party lines, they scuttled a Republican motion to return the bill to the ways and means committee—a motion intended to obtain complete repeal of the undistributed profits tax and imposition of a flat 12 1/2 per cent tax on capital gains instead of the graduated levy the bill provides.

Whether the administration would continue in the senate its fight for the levy on closely-held corporations and against the pork tax remained to be seen.

But numerous senators said they would have voted to strike out the so-called "1B" surtax on the family-type corporations had the house not done so. Several said the house's action would result in a more friendly senate reception for the legislation.

Many discussed further modification of the measure, however.

Stimulus to Business

The bill represented the answer of its house sponsors to pleas of business men for the easing of their tax burdens. Although it is designed to produce approximately as much revenue as the law it would replace, its backers said the undistributed profits and capital gains taxes had been modified so extensively that there should be "a very substantial stimulation to business."

These are its principal features: A 12 1/2 to 16 per cent income tax for all corporations having net incomes of $25,000 and less in a year. About 88 per cent of all corporations would pay no undistributed profits tax.

A 16 per cent income tax and a 4 per cent surtax on undistributed profits of most corporations having incomes exceeding $25,000. These firms represent about 12 per cent of the total number of corporations but they make about 90 per cent of the total profits of incorporated industry. Definite maximum rates of 16 (Continued on Page Two)

Hitler Conquest Hangs War Scare Over Europe

(By The Associated Press) London, March 11.—Germany tonight crushed Austria's fight against Nazification, and her action, in scorn of protests by Great Britain and France, created Europe's most ominous situation since Hitler defiantly occupied the Rhineland on March 7, 1936.

Italy, once Austria's protector, stood by to give the Austrian-born German leader a free hand in a convincing demonstration of the strength of the Rome-Berlin axis. Diplomatic sources in London agreed that Britain and cabinetless France would do nothing beyond Hitler's bloodless conquest beyond a joint protest they indicated had been sent to reinforce separate warnings to Germany of the "possible consequences" of Hitler's course.

The two nations instructed their ambassadors in Berlin to protest in "the strongest possible terms" against "such use of coercion backed by force."

Both Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador, and Andre Francois-Poncet, French ambassador, informed the German government its action was "bound to produce the gravest reactions, of which it was impossible to foretell the issue."

French foreign office officials said Italy had refused to join the two countries in "any action whatsoever" to defend Austrian independence.

In Berlin, where newspapers called Schuschnigg a "traitor," Nazis were jubilant but they said Hitler had no desire to have Austria made a part of Germany but rather that she was to remain independent.

Diplomatic circles here however scoffed at this assertion. In Rome, the Fascist grand council reconvened while the government remained in contact with Berlin on the rapidly changing Austrian situation.

Italian protection of Austria in 1934 caused her to rush troops to the Brenner Pass as a warning against a Nazi coup, but a massing of soldiers at the frontier now was considered "most improbable."

The French and British protests to Germany were all the two nations could do, informed sources said, short of going to war against Hitler.

Rail Association To Urge Pay Cuts Affecting Million

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Pay cuts affecting about 1,000,000 railroad operating and non-operating workers will be recommended by the Association of American Railroads at a meeting in Chicago next week.

Directors of the association announced today the meeting of the executives of its 142 member roads would be held March 18 "to consider decreases in wage rates and such other action as may be required."

The statement of the board, authorized by J. J. Peilley, president of the A.A.R., said last Tuesday's interstate commerce decision granting a freight rate increase "is depressing not only to railroads but to industry as a whole and to general employment."

It was indicated tomorrow would be devoted to the customary last pleas of the prisoners. Since Bucharin was expected to speak at length on his philosophical motives, the verdict was believed unlikely to come before early Sunday.

Then, if precedent is followed, those condemned to die probably would have five days at most to live—three while their clemency pleas are considered and two before they are led to the execution wall.

'Hands-Off' Policy Followed By U. S. A. In Central Europe

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Officials anxiously studied developments in Austria and central Europe tonight but maintained a "hands off" attitude.

Taking their lead from Secretary of State Hull, they refrained from placing the United States in the position of taking sides.

The secretary said he had conferred with the president in the last two days on the situation in central Europe, but without formulating a special policy.

He denied emphatically a rumor that the United States had urged Germany in a friendly way to moderate in her treatment of Austria.

Officials doubted that any question regarding American recognition of the new Austrian government would arise. They believed it would be an internal change that would not call for a specific recognition. Such was the case when Kurt Schuschnigg, the anti-Nazi Austrian chancellor who has just resigned, took over the premiership after the assassination of his predecessor, Dollfus.

War Rumors Discussed

Senator Norris (Ish-Neb) commented to reporters that the developments in Austria "make you think there might be a war over there."

Norris said the philosophy among nations now seems to be that "if we can take you and you can't stop us, we will do it."

Senator Lewis (D-Ill.) addressing the senate before reports had been received that German troops were crossing the Austrian border, asserted an "imminent conflict between Germany and Austria will lead to control of Austria by Germany."

When control is obtained, Lewis asserted, "Germany will arrange with Italy to join Japan in carrying out complete possession of the Orient."

Representative Brewster (R-Me.) expressed belief the developments in Austria were not at all likely to lead to a general European war. Even if they did, he declared, "there is absolutely no reason why the United States should be involved."

FALLS DOOMED, STATE WARNED

Ontonagon River Scenic Attractions May Be Made Waterless

Lansing, March 11 (AP)—Assistant Attorney General Edmund Shepherd told the state conservation commission today an engineer for the copper district power company of Houghton had warned him the company "might" destroy Bond and Agate Falls as scenic attractions unless the commission changed its attitude toward a proposed power development. The falls are on the middle branch of the Ontonagon river in the Upper Peninsula.

Shepherd, appearing before the full commission, said the engineer advised him the company might shut off all flow of water at the waterfalls, divert the water into pipes and pass it through power plants.

Thomas J. Masterson, commissioner from Iron Mountain, said he would "rather lose both Bond and Agate Falls than have the people of this state surrender in the face of a threat."

Joseph F. Deeb of Grand Rapids, counsel for the company, told the commission he knew of no such plan and would not countenance any reprisals.

Deeb said the company would submit a new statement of its proposals for diversion of water from the middle branch of the Ontonagon. The water would be passed into another tributary, to generate power as part of the company's expansion program.

GERMAN AIMS ARE ENFORCED WITH TROOPS

SCHUSCHNIGG QUILTS; NAZI CABINET FORMED

(By The Associated Press) Vienna, March 12 (Saturday). (AP)—Austria has submitted to Adolf Hitler.

The government yielded to Germany's armed might and gave up its five-year fight against domination by the German Fuehrer.

German troops, massed on the border, marched into Austria at three points. Early today they were reported at Linz, Austria, 40 miles from the German frontier.

Major Clausner, leader of Nazi S. A. troops in Vienna, broadcast, by announcement that: "Austria has become free—Austria has become National Socialist... a new government has been formed."

The anti-Nazi chancellor, Kurt Schuschnigg, resigned in the face of a German ultimatum demanding reorganization of the government.

Arthur Seys-Inquart, Austria's Nazi leader, was appointed to succeed him.

Cabinet Hand-Picked

The appointment was announced officially early today, after two days of strife, rioting, troop mobilization and bloodshed.

The new cabinet, all but two of whom were Nazis, was announced as follows: "Seys-Inquart, chancellor and defense minister.

Wilhelm Wolf, foreign affairs. Franz Hueber, justice. Hueber is a brother-in-law of Germany's number two Nazi, Field Marshal General Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

Oswald Menghin, education. Dr. Hugo Jury, social welfare. Rudolf Neumayer, finance. Anton Rheinthal, agriculture. Hans Fitchboeck, commerce. Michael Skubl, secretary of state. Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Skubl's assistant. Hubert Klausner, Nazis' political representative.

Army Reserves Called

"Earlier, Seys-Inquart had sent a telegram to Hitler saying that the "provisional Austrian government" requested Germany to send troops as soon as possible to assist it in "preventing the shedding of blood."

The new chancellor was one of five Nazi sympathizers included in the cabinet at Hitler's order February 15. He started formation of a cabinet which the press bureau declared would give "thorough recognition to nationalists."

"Tonight's developments came after moves and counter-moves by Schuschnigg and the Nazi command. There was violence throughout Austria Thursday and Friday.

Early today German troops mobilized near the Austrian border. Austria likewise sent troops to danger points. Schuschnigg had his regular army of 70,000, but called out 100,000 reserves and 30,000 guardsmen.

"Swastika On City Hall

Vienna and many Austrian cities were in turmoil, with Nazis and Schuschnigg supporters clashing over a plebiscite on Austrian independence Schuschnigg had ordered for Sunday.

Nazis denounced it vehemently, claiming it was violation of Schuschnigg's agreement with (Continued on Page Two)

Committee Wants Portion Of School Fund Cut Refunded

Lansing, March 11 (AP)—The executive committee of the Michigan Education Association announced today it would ask Governor Murphy to restore at least part of the $2,800,000 cut from appropriations for public schools in his budget-balancing campaign.

The committee protested to state budget director Harold D. Smith that the state administrative board made available $1,000,000 to the state highway department for road services recently. It demanded "proportionate restoration of funds to the schools."

Harley Holmes, president of the Association, asserted reduction of the school funds from $43,000,000 to $40,200,000 left the schools' financial resources "depleted to the extent that many districts will be closing schools year and make further curtailments."

TEXAS BAD MAN HELD AT MILAN

Prisoner Counts That No County Jail Can Hold Him

Detroit, March 11 (AP)—Under heavy guard, a man identified by the Department of Justice as Freeman McCollum, Texas desperado, was transferred today from the county jail here to the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich., where he will await removal to Leavenworth penitentiary to serve a 16-year sentence for bank robbery.

McCollum was arrested here last night by special agents of the federal bureau of investigation and Detroit police in the home of a relative.

Special guards were placed in the county jail when the prisoner said that "they have never built a county jail that can hold me."

McCollum had been sought by federal officers since he escaped from the Corpus Christi, Tex., county jail while awaiting transfer to Leavenworth. He led eight other prisoners in a spectacular break from the jail, drilling a hole in the wall and sliding to the ground by means of a rope made of mattress covers.

All members of the gang except McCollum were captured in a three-day roundup in various Texas towns by Texas Rangers and federal authorities.

Special guards were placed in the county jail when the prisoner said that "they have never built a county jail that can hold me."

Gary, Ind., March 11 (AP)—Dr. William A. Wirt, founder of the Gary educational plan of "work-study-play" and precipitator of a congressional investigation in 1934 when he said "brain trusters" had told him President Roosevelt was "only the Kerensky of this revolution," died today. He was 64.

Superintendent of Gary schools from 1907 until his death, Dr. Wirt was summoned to Washington four years ago to explain a letter in which he had said some of the administration's advisers were plotting to destroy "the America of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln."

A special house committee, headed by Rep. Bulwinkle (D-N.C.), conducted an investigation. Nothing came of it. Three Democrats on the committee reported they found no foundation for the charges. Two Republicans reported the investigation was not thorough. The house took no action.

Two Track Teams Prove Favorites in Annual Big Ten Meet

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Chicago, March 11. (AP)—Michigan's defending champion Wolverines and the Hoosiers of Indiana, by taking more than five qualifying places apiece, operated as expected tonight in the University of Chicago field house and remained the favorites in the annual Big Ten indoor track meet.

Iowa, rated as an outside chance to cut into the championship battle tomorrow, gave the most impressive display of the trials with six places—at least one in each of the four events in which preliminaries were held—but did not appear to have the additional strength necessary to out-finish Michigan and Indiana.

The Hoosiers fulfilled all expectations by packing most of their early punch into the middle-distance events, landing two men, Sam Miller and Fred Elliott in the quarter-mile, and finishing up with Miller, Jimmy Smith and Mel Trutt, in the half-mile.

Three In Hurdles

Michigan's most powerful display was made in the 50-yard high hurdles, in which Elmer Gedeon, Stan Kelley and Sherman Olmsted qualified for the semifinals. The other Michigan places were gained by Doug Hayes in the quarter, and Tommy Jester in the 880.

Iowa came up with Ed Wiggins and Fred Teufel in the 60-yard dash—in which both Michigan and Indiana failed to qualify a man—Carl Teufel in the quarter-mile, Jimmy Lyle in the half-mile, and Bush Lamb and John Collinge in the hurdles.

Illinois, Purdue and Wisconsin accounted for four places each, Northwestern and Ohio State for three, and Chicago and Minnesota two apiece.

John Davenport of Chicago and Illinois' Bill Lehmann shared top performance honors in the dash, each taking a heat in 6.4 seconds, three-tenths of a second slower than the meet and American indoor world held jointly by Ohio State's famous Jesse Owens, and Sam Stoller of Michigan. Gedeon and Lamb won their hurdles heats in 8.7 seconds, well over the meet mark of 8.5 held by Lee Sentman of Illinois.

Berlin, March 12 (Saturday) (AP)—Reichswehr Adolf Hitler sent German troops into Austria during the night to make good the new Nazi government he established yesterday.

The troops were said by Deutsches Nachrichten bureau official German news agency, at 1 a. m. to be passing through Rohrbach, near Linz, Austria's Nazi hotbed.

Other reports which could not be confirmed said the troops already were in Linz.

At the same time a source which usually has proved reliable said that all members of the new Austrian cabinet except Chancellor Arthur Seyss-Inquart were closeted with Hitler at a late hour

Hitler at Berchtesgaden February 12.

As tension increased, Schuschnigg postponed the plebiscite indefinitely.

Then, Schuschnigg announced that, bowing to the German ultimatum, a new government was being formed.

He declared that "to prevent the shedding of blood" orders had been given for Austrian troops to fall back "in case of invasion."

Before midnight the Nazi swastika flew from the chancellery and the city hall. Vienna Nazis went wild.

Swastikas appeared even on the flagpoles about the headquarters of the Fatherland Front, previously the only legal political party in Austria.

While Schuschnigg, President Miklas and Seyss-Inquart were in conference and before appointment of the new chancellor had been announced, many police and minor officials openly avowed their switch to the Nazi cause.

Seven torchlight parades marched into Vienna Jewish quarters. Two Jews were injured.

Nazi crowds stormed the Fatherland Front building. Windows were smashed.

Dozens of Nazis hurled torches and tossed them inside. Firemen sprayed the building.

German troops first moved across the border at 10 p. m. (4 p. m. E. S. T.) at Salzburg, Kufstein and Mittenwald they marched into Austrian territory.

DELTA COUNTY TEACHERS MEET

Program for Next Year's Health Education To Be Presented

A series of four meetings of Delta county teachers will be held next Tuesday, March 15, when Miss Georgia Hood, Upper Peninsula Couzens Fund health service director will present a program for carrying on health education next year.

Miss Hood will meet with teachers of Nahma, Garden and Fairbanks township at 9 a. m. at Garden. For the teachers of Brantford, Masonville, Ensign and Bay de Noc townships at 11 a. m. at Rapid River high school.

Teachers of Maple Ridge and Baldwin townships will meet at 1 p. m. at Rock high school.

The Delta county courthouse, Escanaba, will be the place of the meeting for teachers of Cornell, Escanaba township, Wells, Bark River and Ford River townships at 4 p. m. on the same day.

Miss Hood's health course will be presented in the nine northern counties next year.

Commander Eugene F. McDonald, who visits Escanaba every summer aboard the yacht, "Mizpah," is now cruising in the vicinity of British West Indies. He sent a radiogram to Ed C. Voght from Trinidad this week.

Commander McDonald Describes His Cruise In Southern Waters

An interesting radiogram has been received by Ed C. Voght from Commander Eugene F. McDonald, who is now cruising in his yacht, Mizpah, in the vicinity of Trinidad, the Mizpah visits Escanaba every summer.

McDonald described his cruise experience in the radiogram as follows:

"Tonight waiting for the Zenith Foundation program we are lying in Scotland Bay on the west coast of Trinidad, temperature about eighty. Here we can look westward and see a northern tip of South America.

"Columbus reached Trinidad and saw the same sight of South America but thought it was just another island and went on back to Spain without bothering to call. Since leaving Miami on Feb. 3 we have called at Havana and the Isle of Pines, which we put into because of weather, then Montego Bay in Jamaica, where the finest bathing beach in the Caribbean exists, then to Kingston, Jamaica, where we took on a supply of Jamaica rum. We then went on to Ciudad Trujillo, Dominican Republic, where we entertained and were entertained by President Trujillo and his secretary of state and secretary of foreign affairs.

"Visited With President

"President Trujillo wanted us to stay longer and use his summer home Sans Souci. He also sent the army band down to entertain us in the evening and during our entire stay we had government cars and escorts at our disposal. Then on to Ponce, Puerto Rico which was the antithesis of the cleanliness and prosperity we had witnessed in the Dominican Republic. From there, we sailed for the delightful Dutch island of Saba, which is nothing but a volcano with no harbor. Doctor and Mrs. Keeler, Gene Kinney and I went ashore in the dinghy, and had a good ride over the rolls, but landed right side up on the 25-foot rock beach of Saba.

"We climbed nine hundred feet in the air to the village named Bottom, built in the crater of an extinct volcano. Cleanliness and relative prosperity were apparent on this little Dutch island and I was delighted to find the brigadier general, who had four soldiers under his command.

"We paid our respects to the Dutch governor and he in turn came down to the Mizpah, had dinner on board and spent the night with us, returning to his upstairs home in the morning. From there we called on the island of Barbuda, one of the most dangerous spots in the world, with no lights on it and chart shows 64 wrecks since 1865. We approached the island at night but anchored 13 miles off in 12 fathoms of water, turned our searchlights toward the island and fished. We caught a five foot shark which we turned loose after killing him, and then caught an 11-foot shark, and found inside of him not only the five-foot shark but also the octopus which I had shot with my revolver.

"In the morning we went in with the port launch and practically all of its thousand inhabitants were down at the wharf in the lagoon to meet us, but the only white man on the island, the warden, was not there. We found him out on the beach waving an English flag and carrying an official book of rules telling what to do in case of a wreck, which he firmly believed the yacht was.

"We then called on the French island of Guadeloupe, spending a delightful day there. We then moved on a few miles south to the British island of Dominica, and witnessed a native carnival, with no shops or stores open. Even the harbormaster and the quarantine officers were dancing and singing along the streets with the rest of the people.

"All were colored, wearing screen masks to make them look like whites. At times hundreds of these chanting masqueraders gathered around our automobile, making it impossible to proceed, but were good natured every way.

"The next day we had an inter-

Freight Service Hearings Will Be Held On March 28

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—Motor freight service rendered by the Chicago and North Western railroad to Council Bluffs, Iowa, Marinette and Green Bay, Wisconsin, Menominee and Escanaba, Michigan, and points in Illinois, Nebraska and the Dakotas, will be scrutinized by the interstate commerce commission to determine whether the line is entitled to an operating license.

The commission issued formal orders today requiring the truck operating railroad to be represented at hearings to be held in Chicago March 28 on its application for permission to continue service to the above cities over 23 separate routes.

The Council Bluffs operation is an intercity one between the Iowa city and Omaha; the railroad operates general freight service between Marinette and Menominee, and between Green Bay and Menominee, among other services.

Under the motor carrier act of 1935, the line applied to ICC for the necessary license to continue operations to these points, and as is required of the commission, full investigation to determine public need for it has been ordered.

The order requires the line to be represented at the proceeding, upon pain of peremptory denial of the application, for positive proof must be presented of public need of service with proper and safe equipment, of no undue interference other lines competing over the same areas under prior operating rights.

Michigan In Washington

By Esther Van Wagoner Tuffy

The successful career of the modest soybean as an industrial product—Henry Ford demonstrated that 70,000 acres of soybeans could be converted into auto parts at a profit—may be paralleled by other commodities. What is needed in most cases is a financial loan.

So we find Senator Vandenberg this week advocating an amendment to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act to provide for an increase in funds available for industrial loans from $300,000,000 to one billion dollars. Specifically, it will make new resources available for immediate development for greater industrial uses of farm commodities.

Not wanting to be accused of any New Deal spending, the Senator stresses that the program is self-liquidating.

Our newspaper congressman, Paul W. Shafer, of Battle Creek, made headlines again this week by asking Congress for a seven-member committee to study the alleged diversion of Social Security funds. In fourteen months the Treasury has paid out 100 million dollars to those insured against the hazard of old age—but it has taken in $1,662,000,000 from employees and employers in payroll taxes under the Social Security act.

Shafer would give the committee power to send for persons, papers, administer oaths, and to report back to Congress at any time.

Both Michigan senators were asked the other day in the Senate if a war prevented the import of sugar could enough sugar beets be produced in this country to take care of our needs.

Vandenberg, who favors a policy of a 100 per cent production of our requirements informed the Senate we were now producing 25 per cent of our sugar consumption—held down by our government policy.

Brown, the principal author of the Brown sugar bill, says we are limited by the ability of our beet sugar factories to handle the sugar beets which could be produced by the farmers of the United States.

No matter who is taxed—some-one objects. Fifteen educational institutions in Michigan were among the 528 institutions to protest against a tax on gifts for education.

The Association of American Colleges presented a resolution urging an amendment to eliminate from taxation gifts from individuals in excess of the present 15 per cent exemption, within reasonable limitations. Also they would interpret "income from donations to revocable trusts for education and charity" as the income of the trust and not the donor.

Colleges report a great decrease in gifts in the past 10 years and that the present tax law would create an even more alarming situation.

The Michigan list includes: Adrian College, Albion College, Alma College, Battle Creek College, Hillsdale College, Hope College, Kalamazoo College, Marygrove College, Michigan State College of Agriculture and Applied Sciences, Nazareth College, Olivet College, St. Joseph's College, University of Detroit, University of Michigan, and Wayne University.

In Washington, it is rumored that Democrat State Representative Harry Glass, of Grand Rapids, who has a temporary job on the Bituminous Coal Commission here in Washington, will not run against Carl E. Mapes, the veteran congressman from Grand Rapids, but will seek a seat in the state senate. Mapes' opponent is more apt to be Tunis Johnson, the present mayor of the home town of all three.

Miss Betty Vandenberg, talented and popular daughter of Senator and Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, will be the soloist with the Washington civic orchestra at a concert on March 15. On the following Tuesday, the 54th birthday of the Senator, she will play at a musicale at the Sulgrave Club.

To the Editor,
Remove Poverty by destroying money.

Money is something that is very much constitutional. Article 1, section 8, part 5 reads:

"Congress shall have the power to coin money and regulate the value thereof; and of foreign coin."

Yet due to the sinister force controlling our monetary system, it is powerful enough to cause object poverty instead of securing the blessings of order, peace and prosperity. I refer to the international bankers. It is this common enemy to our recovery—to the recovery of the farmer, the laboring man, and the independent thinking industrialist, that we must destroy, if we intend restoring social order in America. The depression is perpetual unless the money question is solved.

The banker knows that if he controls the money system of a nation he dominates the industry of that nation. It is essential that we, Americans, unite and disentangle ourselves from the unconstitutional government of the Federal Reserve Banks. I repeat, this racket is the cause of the object poverty in our nation.

Remember; this current movement to upset the money changer's tables is our only salvation. If we fail to accomplish this aim, you may be sure these same international money barons will contrive new schemes of plunging us into inevitable chaos. What is the solution to our difficulty? There is only one economically speaking. Let industry and labor join hands in destroying the money racketeers, through our duly

AT THE DELFT

The most thrilling chapter in the screen exploits of America's intrepid G-Men was unfolded yesterday at the Delft Theatre where Columbia's "Trapped by G-Men" made its local bow.

Jack Holt, the screen's favorite he-man adventurer, stars as the service's ace agent, with Wynne Gibson opposite him in the role of the first G-woman to "get her man." It's a grand new slant on the G-Man type of film and adds immeasurably to the exciting romantic appeal underlying the film's dynamic action. Both stars contribute outstanding performances in roles tailor-made for their superb talents.

AT THE MICHIGAN

"Main Street" with the lid off forms the exciting and humorous setting for "Scandal Street," the new Paramount picture which opened yesterday at the Michigan Theatre with Lew Ayres and Louise Campbell topping an all-star cast. Roscoe Karns, Porter Hall, Edgar Kennedy and Elizabeth Patterson are seen in this story of how jealousy traps a beautiful young girl in a murder scandal.

Louise Campbell is the girl in the case, whose alarming beauty and charm upset the ordinary quiet and security of "Midburg." Alarmed at having such an attractive stranger brought into daily contact with their susceptible husbands, the resourceful wives of the community keeps their minds alert and their tongues active about the comings and goings of the beautiful stranger.

AT THE MICHIGAN

There are more than 2,800,000 telephones on farms in the United States. About 44 per cent of the total number of farms in the country have them.

The total front in the World War was approximately 400 miles long; American troops held about 25 per cent of it.

Claims Pettengill Bill Would Injure Local Industries

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C.—Industries in Escanaba will be deprived of a competitive advantage by passage of the Pettengill bill repealing the long and short haul clause of the Interstate Commerce Act, according to Frank H. Plasted, freight traffic manager of Southern Pacific Lines.

Railroad witnesses have just completed testimony before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee urging that the measure, which has already passed the House, be enacted into law.

Plasted, expanding on testimony he gave before the committee on behalf of all the railroads of the country, admitted that Escanaba industry will be deprived of a competitive advantage by enactment of the law.

Interior cities, through repeal of the long and short haul law, will be given railroad rate equality in order that they can compete with cities located on waterways and enjoying the advantages of cheaper water transportation costs.

While giving the interior cities not located on water equality in the matter of rates, the cities located on water will be deprived of the advantage they enjoy through ability to utilize a cheaper form of transportation.

According to Plasted, the adoption of the Pettengill bill will not, however, deprive Escanaba of any natural advantage that it enjoys. He explained that the rivers and harbors improvements which make possible water navigation into Escanaba were largely financed by the federal government and paid for by all the taxpayers, and thus is a man made advantage, the benefits of which should be shared by the country as a whole.

Paul T. Haagen the creator of the Building Improvement feature, is a licensed registered architect in several states; a member of the American Institute of Architects, the Architectural League of New York and other important societies in the United States.

As an architect he has planned and constructed all types of buildings from smallest homes to buildings costing in the millions, but has given particular study to residential design and reconstruction of existing structures.

Some years ago he entered the publishing field as editor of "HOME BUILDING," a national magazine published in Chicago serving the building industry and devoted to the small home.

Later he was the editor of "ELECTRICAL SPECIFICATIONS," a magazine published in New York City designed for the architect and engineer.

During the time Mr. Haagen was in the editorial field he traveled extensively throughout the country and made a number of surveys that gave him a very keen insight, first-hand and practical, into the needs and requirements and the present inadequacies of a vast number of smaller homes.

With a background of professional training as an architect and with the editorial experience gained while in charge of two national magazines, Mr. Haagen has a great fund of knowledge which, through this Building Improvement feature, he is placing at the disposal of those interested in building and modernizing.

Well known authorities co-operate with Mr. Haagen, contributing to the page articles on interior decoration and gardening.

look at the illustrations will become conscious of the fact that up at Escanaba, where there are cool streams and lakes and scenic woodlands, there is plenty of opportunity for spending an enjoyable vacation.

This year's queen is Jeanne Mickelson. Incidentally, the name is quite appropriate in view of the fact that the New Sweden Tercentenary is being celebrated here in conjunction with the smelt jamboree.

What Is Age? "If a man past 50 is killed," writes a reader, "the papers report it with a headline that probably says, 'Aged Man Killed by Auto.' I am past 50, and I do not consider myself an aged man.

A newspaper writer replies: "For any person who has passed his 50th birthday, old age will not begin until after his 60th. When he reaches 60, it is put off again."

This tendency strengthens nowadays, compared with the traditional attitude toward age. Men and women past 50 used to acknowledge they were old. Skakespeare wrote of himself as old when he was in his early forties. Why the changed attitude now?

Partly it is because people, on the average, live much longer than they used to and retain their health longer, as a result of more hygienic living and better medical service. Partly, perhaps, it comes from discarding beards and long hair, which made men and women look old and venerable before their time.

Largely, though, we may feel younger, and act younger, and look younger, because we have adopted a Cult of Youth. We might almost call it a religion.

Shansi to Shensi

WRITING from Tunkwan, China, on Feb. 28, a United Press correspondent told of one of the greatest mass-flights of humanity in history. There were 500,000 to 1,000,000 persons, he said, trying to squeeze through the mountain pass there to reach the province of Shensi, from southern Shansi, whence the Japanese have been driving them.

"They are fleeing through freezing weather," he said, "from a death that comes to them all but unseem—death from screaming Japanese artillery shells, roaring bombs from big, two-engined Japanese bombing planes, and whining machine gun bullets from diving Japanese pursuit craft."

And the reason for that ruthless pursuit? Oh, Japan is depending herself against Chinese aggression.

FARMERS OBJECT (Iron River Reporter)

Such farmers as are opposed to the proposed land zoning ordinance for the county declare a majority vote on April 4 can be traced to the city voter where its chief support lies. Which is probably true for the city voter is more amenable to the argument that men should not be allowed to settle in isolated spots and then demand public services in the form of roads and school transportation far exceeding their small contribution in taxes.

Some farmers are protesting vigorously against a law which prevents them from settling anywhere they choose. "This is still a free country and what part of it would have been settled if the pioneer hadn't been permitted to homestead a farm where he pleased?" is a summation of their reasoning. And there's something to it. But the day is fast disappearing in America where liberties prejudicial to the rights of the majority are left unchecked.

Many of the methods of the past were invoked because America was a growing country with an expanding need. This, however, is the day of surpluses when the nation is producing more, with the aid of technical and scientific advance, than our population can consume under present distributive methods. More and more also, government and public funds are being used to control production, to equalize prices, and guarantee producers minimum income. When the producer yields to this, he must anticipate some form of submission to rules. He gets farther and farther away from the liberties he talks about and nearer to what the New Deal calls "orderly organization". In the end he may or may not be better off but our past problem with agricultural surpluses has led most people to believe some form of crop control is necessary.

If properly understood, land zoning is sound and as helpful to the pioneering farmers as to others. The present farmer is not affected in any way. He owns his land and can do with it as he pleases. He can erect any buildings he chooses, for there are no building restrictions in the ordinance. It is the man starting out to settle a new farm who is affected, for he will be permitted to settle only on land tested for production fertility and which is not too remote from neighbors. Too many sad experiences have been reported where men put their small savings into unproductive land far from neighbors, worked hard in clearing it and exhausted their savings and labor only to find they could not make a living. In the meantime they had demanded roads and other services costly to the taxpayer.

Land zoning long ago was adopted in cities to prevent building abuses in business and residential districts. The theory, in effect, is now being applied to agricultural lands but not without the vote of the people in the community. The economic benefits are many.

GREAT LAKES FISHING (Ironwood Globe)

Better control of the commercial fishing industry is seen by Fred A. Westerman chief of the fish division of the Michigan conservation department, as a result of the Great Lakes fisheries conferences held recently in Detroit. If he is correct,

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent London—Great Britain has had 20 years' experience in slum clearance and low-cost housing—vital social problems that only now really are being attacked in America.

England's public housing experiments—her successes and failures, here really imposing results—therefore constitute a school of experience which Uncle Sam well might attend.

The British solution of the housing problem has taken four forms: 1. Slum-clearance by local authorities. 2. Small-house construction by local authorities and private builders with government subsidies. 3. Alleviation of overcrowding under the direction of local authorities. 4. Loans for the purchase of homes by dwellers.

In 1929, the National Housing and Town Planning Council reported that one-quarter of the population of England and Wales was living in slum and overcrowded conditions. Britain passed a new housing act the following year and in 1933 the National government turned its attention to the problem. It laid out a "five-year-plan" calling for the demolition of 250,000 slum houses and removal of 1,300,000 people from unfit habitations. These figures were revised upward, in the course of time, and by 1937 covered the destruction of 403,000 houses and the rehousing of 1,900,000 slum dwellers.

The work has kept pace with the plans. Up to September 30, 1937, the British authorities have razed or declared unfit for human habitation, 172,219 houses. An additional 158,616 more have been repaired.

To re-house the displaced slum dwellers, local authorities all over England are building dwellings at the rate of about 5000 a month. Loans for their construction amounted to $167,500,000 in the fiscal period of 1936-37. From April to October, 1937, approval was given to $93,000,000 in loans for this purpose, and the slums in England and Wales are expected to be eliminated within the next ten years.

Small house construction began immediately after the war when it was realized that construction had ceased during hostilities. In 1919, Parliament passed enabling legislation for the construction of small houses. These were intended to help the working classes but later proved to be of assistance to the white collar groups, chiefly.

Local authorities and private builders, using government subsidies, added 3,484,132 new dwelling to England's housing, up to September 30, 1937. Including slum-clearance projects and alleviation of overcrowding projects, the national treasury has contributed $900,000,000 in subsidies. About 13,500,000 people—approximately 35 per cent of the population—have been re-housed.

Up to 1935, the authorities of Greater London had built 69,000 small houses and apartments, had contributed $200,000,000 of their own in outright subsidies and had constructed whole villages.

In 1934, however, outright subsidies from the national government were stopped because there were idle funds in the banks which were available for construction.

Overcrowding still remains a problem but it is being rapidly solved. A survey made by the Ministry of Health showed that 241,554 houses were overcrowded on the basis of one and a half persons per room.

Under laws established for the purpose, families which crowd their dwelling are removed by the local authorities to more suitable premises. Landlords can be—and are—prohibited to take new families into certain structures after a given date.

As a result of conferences between landlords and local authorities anywhere from 20 to 30 per cent of the overcrowding has been voluntarily abated. However, 200,000 houses will be needed to alleviate this condition.

The London County Council which has charge of housing improvement in the city's area, was enabled through legislation passed by Parliament in 1936 to lend money for the purchase of small homes by those who dwell in them. Nominally, the loans are restricted to the purchase of homes within the London area but by stretching the rules, the London County Council has been able to make loans to people who live outside but work in London throughout the year.

Since 1936, $26,750,000 has been loaned. Of this sum, $8,710,000 is still outstanding. Through these loans, 10,000 homes have been purchased.

The commercial fishing industry is destined to a long life instead of being threatened with near extinction.

Westerners' high hopes are based on the fact that most of the delegates attending the conference were members of legislatures of the lake states. The problems of the commercial fishing industry were thus placed before legislators who can exercise influence in obtaining legislation of a corrective nature. They learned, for example, that Ontario has given its fish and game commission the authority to limit the number of nets. They learned, too, that the Wisconsin conservation commission, generally far more liberal with its commercial fishermen than Michigan, now has about the same authority as Ontario. In tightening its regulations, Wisconsin has declared two pounds the minimum legal limit on lake trout whereas Michigan still allows pound and a half trout to be taken.

Discretionary power over commercial fishing such as Ontario and Wisconsin now have should be given to conservation commission of all the Great Lake states. That seems to be the one certain way to avoid extinction of commercial fish.

Q. What is the origin of the term wild-cat as applied to financial enterprises of doubtful character? D. C. H.

A. According to Bartlett, a bank in Michigan had a large vignette on its notes representing a panther, familiarly called a wild-cat. This bank failed, a large number of its notes were in circulation, which were denominated wild-cat money, and the bank issuing them the wild-cat bank. Other banks stopped payment soon after, and the term became general in Michigan to denote banking institutions of an unsound character. The term was later applied to other schemes, such as oil wells.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—Contrary to popular belief, Manhattan's after-midnight glow and glitter is not confined to the gay spots frequented by noisy, rollicking sun-doggers.

A large number of matter-of-fact New York folk came out of their dwellings only at night, take a deep whiff of the nocturnal air and—go to work.

You can spot them in the subway trains in the tiny hours of the morning seated next to dizzy, homeward-bound neophytes. They are a sedate looking tribe, these newspapermen, photo-engravers, telephone operators, technicians, nurses, hospital attendants, transit employes, beef and barley merchants. Their own relaxation takes place not at night, but beneath the glare of a mid-afternoon sun.

A glimpse from the topmost pinnacle of Radio City before dawn affords a first-class view of their working habitat, and offers convincing proof that the illumination from the night club belt is nothing more than a mite in the Manhattan madra firmament.

The offices of over a dozen telephone exchanges gleam brightly through the Gotham gloom, the various newspaper shops sprawling throughout the midtown area are distinguishable by the blue lights from their photo-engraving plants. And stretched out along both waterfronts are the whole-hired hands go to work at 4 o'clock in order to get out the rolls and coffee for Mr. and Mrs. New Yorker's morning breakfast.

There's a dusk to dawn death watch among the city's newspaper and newsreel headquarters, too. For news cameramen are on call for fires, catastrophes and what-have-you no matter how late the hour. As for the boys in the city's firehouses, only a tiny, shaded lamp burns over the desk on the main floor near the fire-fighting trucks themselves. The firemen in this city, with the exception of the one on duty—and those who maintain a 24-hour vigilance at headquarters—sleep like any other citizens.

Vigil of Science

On the East Side, up beyond the illumination from the towering mass of steel and stone that is the Cornell Medical Center, the lights are never dimmed in a block-long building fronting the river—the Rockefeller Institute.

Here a scientist or two—in keeping with the not-so-fictional tradition of Sinclair Lewis' "Arrowsmith"—is constantly keeping sentry duty over some bacteria culture or another. Out of these vigils one is liable to read, in the years to come, of how a new dread disease was finally conquered for all time.

Of all the lights that burn steadily throughout the Manhattan night, none has the eerie quality of the pale, green lamps fronting half-a-hundred municipal buildings from one end of the island to the other. These abstinence-colored beacons are the sole signal lights offering sanctuary to the harassed, the troubled and the beguiled. Ironically enough, they are the identifying symbols of—the New York police stations.

I don't think dad can be the best pal to his son. The difference in age keeps a father from being a pal. They can't be as intimate as two boys. —Rev. Burriss A. Jenkins, Kansas City, Mo.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington, March 12—Some men in Congress, like Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, who knows the strange gymnastics of keeping both ears to the ground at once, are watched by their colleagues as indicators of popular sentiment. Others are equally worth watching because they lead important groups; as they go, so will their friends and followers.

At the moment, the man whose plans are most significant is the forceful Wisconsin Progressive, Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr. Bob La Follette sums up the dilemma of the Liberals in the Roosevelt depression. If you want to know what the Liberals are going to do about the depression, the best way to find out is to watch Bob La Follette.

On the Senate floor, he looks more like a youngist business executive than a political leader. His taste in turn-outs is incurably natty, togas are not his dish. His manner is aggressively practical, and, when he talks, he talks of hard facts. There are moments when one can imagine him deploring the government of the country by a "lot of wild-eyed professors."

But he is the New Deal Liberal par excellence. He is about the only member of the senate with the solid background of modern history and economics necessary for an understanding of New Deal objectives. He was a New Dealer before the New Deal began, taking a lonely position on the extreme left all through the bitter Hoover years. And he has been one of the ablest, most useful and most reliable supporters of Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

LIBERALS ON THE SPOT There's no question that the Roosevelt depression has impaled Bob La Follette, John L. Lewis, Representative Maury Maverick, and all the other Liberal leaders who have flourished under the New Deal on the horns of an excessively painful dilemma. What is more, they realize it.

Their situation is simple. Liberalism carried Franklin Delano Roosevelt to a peak of triumph; conversely, Franklin Delano Roosevelt did much to make Liberalism a politically paying proposition. In the public mind, Liberalism and Roosevelt are almost synonymous. That was all very nice when happy days were here again, but now that they aren't, the story is quite different.

The President, so far, has handled the depression as though he were Herbert Hoover on an off day. He has talked, in public and private, of a "conspiracy" among business leaders, just as Hoover talked of a "conspiracy" among bear raiders. He has steadfastly refused to act in any positive fashion. Little as he loves business men, he has even had a Hooverian series of conferences with magnates.

To La Follette, to Lewis and their like, all this is desperately disheartening. All Liberals in Washington, in the administration and out, unite in taking a blackly pessimistic view of the business situation. Both Mr. Lewis and Bob La Follette believe that things will get much worse soon unless something positive, preferably spending, is done at once. Worst of all, while the President is their man, they believe that, if they follow him in his present policies, they will go down to defeat with him. That is the crux of the situation. The dilemma of the Liberals is, how long can they wait to attack the administration?

FATHER AND SON If any man can find a sensible way out of the Liberal dilemma, Bob La Follette can. He knows politics as few others are permitted to. He was his father's favorite son, and from his young boyhood a member of the political council of war which gathered nightly around the La Follette dinner table.

In the cruel years at the close of the World War, he served his father as his secretary. He remembers the days when nine-tenths of the Senate refused to speak to his father, and still loves the memory of Boies Penrose because that earthy and rather wonderful old realist brutalized the patrioters who would have expelled the first La Follette from the Senate. When old Bob campaigned for vindication

Miss Beatrice Canfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Canfield of Gladstone, who graduated from Escanaba High School in 1934, as part of her home economics training at Battle Creek College is helping serve midday lunches to youngsters in the Battle Creek public schools and, incidentally, is aiding them in overcoming their aversion to foods which are notoriously good for them.

It is hard to believe, but the balanced ration at which they'd turned up their noses at home is really getting a big hand from the youngsters who for a dime get a mid-day meal at school that's giving them weight, doing much to banish afternoon classroom fatigue, and building up a liking for many nutritious foods which mother's overzealous urging has heretofore caused them to shun.

For one thing, they like to lunch at one big table with the other kids, where no one makes a fuss over them or nags them to eat. For another, they like the dishes prepared and served by Battle Creek College home economics co-eds as a part of their training for lunchroom supervision. Served in tempting forms and fanciful shapes, the hot dishes, sandwiches, and simple desserts appeal to their imaginations and banish the food consciousness that has made them shy at something new and different at home.

Without knowing it, these young patrons of the public school lunchrooms are getting real training in table etiquette along with their meals. Napkins, proper china and silver, with subtle suggestions of how to use them, and a classroom teacher at each table to serve as a good example constitute the indirect approach in the campaign for better manners.

It is not wholly a problem of child psychology and etiquette for the co-eds who serve a full meal for a dime. It's something of an accomplishment to put out, for instance, Washington chowder, a leaf lettuce and salad dressing sandwich, a peanut butter and apple butter sandwich made with whole wheat bread, vitamin D milk, and fruit cup made of oranges, bananas, apples and canned pineapple for ten cents without going into the red. In the face of rising food costs it taxes the ingenuity of the home-ecers to buy, plan, and prepare such a meal but it is for development of initiative, resourcefulness, and business management that they have undertaken the school lunch project.

Feature Comedy At St. Patrick's Day Performance

Joe E. Brown plays the part of a small town soda jerker dignified with the title "Maitre D' Squirr" in "Wide Open Faces," his latest Columbia comedy, which will be presented at the Michigan theatre on St. Patrick's Day, March 17, as a benefit performance in observance of the day by St. Patrick's Guild, the Ancient Order of Hibernians and St. Patrick's Holy Name society.

The picture offers Joe another opportunity for one of his famous characterizations, that of a small town boy battling tremendous odds. Among other obstacles Joe is pitted against a regiment of foot-hungry crooks.

The fun starts when a notorious bank robber drops off at Joe's fountain one day and is captured by G-Men after confiding to the comedian that he is anxious to visit a deserted hotel in the vicinity. When Joe tells reporters the story the news is printed in metropolitan dailies and the underworld concludes that the bandit's last haul must be hidden in the deserted hotel.

In addition to the feature there will be an entertaining program of short subjects. Tickets for the St. Patrick's Day show are now available with a special committee in charge of the advance sale.

Isadore Furlie left last night for Manistique to take the civil service examination for conservation officers, which will be held in Manistique high school today.

the ace and king of hearts. East had to discard four times; he gave up two diamonds and one spade, but his fourth discard had to be another diamond. West had discarded two hearts, and the dummy had given up one spade and one diamond.

Now, with West holding the heart queen and jack and three diamonds, South led the spade seven. West had to give up a heart to retain his diamond stopper. The last high spade was cashed and South dropped his heart three. West had to retain the heart queen as the heart six remained in dummy, so Selinger led dummy's last diamond and won the last three tricks with the ace, king and three of diamonds. Thus he fulfilled his contract against apparently safe stoppers held by his adversaries in three suits.

Peace Prospects in Europe
Momentous negotiations are under way in Europe.

Germany and England are less likely to reach even a hypocritical agreement.

Mussolini, the Machiavellian realist, is perfectly willing to sign agreements with the intention of keeping them so long as they work in his favor.

Today Mussolini realizes that Ethiopia will be a source of Italian weakness for 50 years to come.

As for Germany, her exports are dwindling, her gold supply has disappeared, the substitution of "Ersatz" for imports has doubled the cost of production.

Mediterranean Issues
Except for Spain, the Mediterranean issues between Britain and Italy are not important.

He held the door open and Constance went in. Derek was on his knees when she entered the studio, whistling as he transferred clothing from a chest of drawers to a trunk.

Necessary Face Saving
Both Mussolini and Chamberlain are almost compelled to proclaim some face-saving compromise.

So the shadow of Anthony Eden hangs over the Rome negotiations. It will spur the conclusion of an agreement but the world will do well to wait until time has tested any settlement.

Technical unemployment has displaced so many men that only through reduced hours can we ever hope to get them back to work again.

If we are to live to a ripe old age, we must use with caution our ability to work all day and worry all night.

LOVE LAUGHS AT THE DOCTOR

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CONSTANCE MAIDWELL—heroine, the stand-in.
DEREK MANTHON—an artist who loved money first.

CHAPTER II
For a long time Constance stood, staring out over the wintry park with its frozen little lake.

Presently she stirred and looked vaguely down at the blue silk lounging pajamas she still wore—

She supposed she must change her clothes if she were to go out. "Won't you come down to the studio as soon as possible," Derek had written.

It was sneeting. She must wear something serviceable. She put on an old tweed suit and crammed a soft felt hat down over the dusky waves of her hair.

When she had clasped the fastenings of her overcoat, she stood for a moment before the mirror in her bathroom door, looking at herself with a kind of compassionate curiosity—wondering how a girl would look to whom a thing like this could happen.

What she saw was a slight, almost boyish figure—too thin, she had always thought; but Derek had laughed at that.

The girl in the mirror had a smoothly oval face with skin soft as petunia petals framed in blue-black hair. Derek had once said that the planes of her face were fluid, so sensitive was it to the most delicate shades of emotion.

As Constance went up the front steps of the building where Derek had his studio, the door opened abruptly, and a man came out, colliding with her and completely upsetting her balance.

"It's all right," Constance murmured, smiling because he looked so absurdly big and startled and concerned.

He was a youngish man, with sandy hair touched with copper, singularly live and inquisitive brown eyes in a blunt, not unpleasant face, and an air of being habitually in a hurry. But he was not hurrying now. He continued to stand in her path, looking down at her a little strangely.

"You wouldn't be a materialization, would you?" he asked. Then, as Constance looked faintly alarmed, he hurried on, smiling wryly as if realizing how absurd he must look and not enjoying the picture.

"But of course not. Phantoms don't just straighten their hats and murmur polite things when you knock them around; they shriek and clank chains, don't they?"

Derek was on his knees when she entered the studio, whistling as he transferred clothing from a chest of drawers to a trunk.

As Constance closed the door and stood for a moment with her back against it, to steady herself for what was to come, he broke off in his whistling, sprang lightly up, and came over to take her into his arms, making of it all one swift, beautiful movement.

"You're a darling to come so soon, Connie," he said almost gaily. "Isn't this the devil—after all our planning? I know what you must be feeling," he added swiftly as he bent to help her with her coat. "But can't you imagine how I feel, too?"

Constance thought, you were whistling. "But come over to the fire," Derek went on. "There's so little time to talk, and we must plan."

Constance said with a quietness she had to clench her hands to achieve. "What is there to plan? It's all settled, isn't it?"

But she did sit down in the armchair he drew up for her before the fireplace. The wood fire, needed replenishing; but for the moment neither of them noticed that.

"Settled? Why, Connie, you sound—after all, it's our future that's at stake. . . . Darling, I counted on you to understand!"

"I am trying to understand, Derek. But it's all rather sudden, isn't it?"

"Listen, darling!" Derek dropped to the stool at her feet, and taking one of her hands, rested his cheek against it, lean and warm and hard. "You're marrying an artist. In my work it's either a feast or a famine. . . . I couldn't stand famine—on your account I mean, of course. What I want for you is pearls and rubies. . . . "But Derek, I don't care about that, really," Constance said, then looking down at his bright, eager face, she thought, I am behaving badly. After all, it is for me Derek is planning.

"You see," Derek was going on, "they want the portrait done before the first of May. That's why they want us to fly west with them this afternoon."

"Us. . . . Why, then—why hadn't Derek said so at first? In that terribly hurried curt note he had written, "They want me to go with them."

"But," Constance gasped between joy and exasperation, "why didn't you explain that when you wrote? I'm not—"

She was going to say, "I'm not nearly packed," but she broke off to plan happily. I can just make it if I get the housemaid to help me. Let's see—I can wear that pin-striped suit on the plane, and my gray fox fur. . . . I'm glad I got the red hat and bag."

But Derek was going on, carried along by his own feverish preoccupation. "There'll be four of us in the party. You see Miss Thorvald had a rather bad fall from a horse last week. The family physician, who happens to be east on a vacation, is insisting that they take a nurse with them in case she's not so fully recovered as she thinks she is."

"After a moment Constance said, "I see. Of course."

"Think of the advertising this will give me, darling," Derek ran on. "California is rolling in money. And in California a commission on Baron Grapefruit is equal to a royal command."

"It must be," murmured Constance, "if it's more important than—does this—this royal personage know that you were planning to start on your honeymoon tomorrow?"

Derek stirred uneasily. "That's what I was getting around to," he said, a strange flatness in his voice. "As a matter of fact, I haven't had a minute to explain the situation. There's been no talk of anything but Miss Thorvald's portrait. But they're coming around here this morning for a few minutes. I thought we could well bring the matter up indirectly, and I have an idea they may suggest your coming on a little later."

He glanced hastily at his watch, and sprang to his feet. "They may be here any minute now. . . . Connie, dear, you wouldn't mind finishing my trunk like a darling, while I nail up these boxes, would you? I've only got a few hours."

Constance rose and began mechanically to fold shirts and pajamas. There were six suits of silk pajamas, beautifully monogrammed. Constance had given them to Derek for Christmas. Derek liked the feel of silk against his skin.

"Listen, Connie," Derek rushed on, sparring her a whimsical grimace from the box of paints he was sorting. "You'll love this what the Baron wants is something that will be a kind of glorified advertisement of the California fruits white and purple grapes, persimmons, nectarines, oranges with the sumptuous daughter in the midst as a kind of presiding deity. . . . Bacchanalia, what? . . . I'm hoping he'll listen to reason although she'd fit into it, at that."

Constance said with a delicate malice for which she hated herself. "I gather that Miss Thorvald is not too bad to look at. . . . No hairlip, then, after all?"

"Hildegard Thorvald is," Derek broke off to finish impatiently. "What in thunder are we talking about Hildegard Thorvald for? It's us I'm interested in. . . . Oh, darling."

A knock sounded sharply on the door of the studio. (To Be Continued)

Kirkland at Work on Deer Hunting Assignment

These Daily Press photos show Life's photographer, Wallace Kirkland, at work on the deer hunting assignment which brought him to Escanaba last November to make the pictures featured in Life's December 6th issue.

"Talking it over" is always a big part of the ace photographer's work. Here (top) he is shown discussing the hunting prospects with Gideon Stegath and two lower peninsula hunters in their tent camp near Polack Lake. Life calls for much research material as well as pictures made on an assignment, and its photographers must be able to write up their stories as well as show them graphically.

Wallace Kirkland, LIFE magazine photographer who visited Escanaba last November, is featured in the April issue of "Popular Photography" magazine. Kirkland is well known to many Escanaba residents as he was a guest at the Chamber of Commerce-U. S. Forest Service camp at Polack Lake during the week in which he made the deer hunting pictures which were published in LIFE December 6.

Kirkland is planning on being here for the Smelt Jamboree April 7-9, according to word received from Charles Glavin of Escanaba who met the photographer recently at Miami Beach, Florida. Kirkland was returning from Jamaica, where he made the series of pictures appearing in this week's LIFE, and had given up hope of making the Smelt Jamboree here until he learned from Glavin that it is scheduled for April 7-9 instead of the first of March as he had originally supposed. If the LIFE photographer returns in time from a flying trip to Honduras, he will be here when the silvery fish begin their annual run upstream to spawn.

How Kirkland covers a feature assignment is told in the photographic magazine story, which is illustrated with pictures he made in Iowa while making a farm series appearing in LIFE last fall.

According to the magazine story, Kirkland's early life must have equipped him to meet any imaginable emergency. He was born on August 4, 1891, on the island of Jamaica, B. W. L., the son of a planter. When he was only 13 a West Indian hurricane wiped out the plantation, killing his father. The family fortunes had gone with the plantation, so Mrs. Kirkland brought her children to the United States to start things over again. Barely into his teens, Wallace had to get out and hustle for a living.

Within a year the boy was working in a rubber mill for $2.90 a week, and he boosted the wage to $8 in the next two years. The Du Pont people employed him in their explosives division next, and from there his pleasant personality took him into boys' club work in Passaic, New Jersey.

During Uncle Sam's little tiff with Pancho Villa along the Mexican border, Kirkland was with the Army Y. M. C. A., and he continued in this capacity during the World War. Later he taught automotive engineering at Fort Huachuca, Arizona, and then went to Chicago as mechanical trouble-shooter for Yellow Cab.

To enable himself to enter college, Kirkland night-clerked in a railroaders' hotel on South State street. There followed seven interesting years in charge of men and boys' activities at Hull-House, as studied the census report to get data on the nationalities, number of farms in the county, number rented, number owned, capitalization and acreage.

After some two weeks on location, Kirkland brought home with him over 400 negatives and a sheaf of condensed copy. The copy and 160 11 by 14 prints were sent to New York.

"But back I had to go to Iowa," Kirkland said. "The editor wanted more material on hogs. So I went back and stayed another week. I interviewed a packer in Waterloo, visited twenty or more farms, saw all kinds and varieties of hogs. This time I brought back over 300 negatives and sent 85 more 11 by 14 prints to New York."

"Sorta covered the ground, didn't you, Mr. Kirkland?" "You'd think so, wouldn't you? But after all this three weeks' research I couldn't answer the only two questions the editor asked me! The first: 'What does a pig weigh at birth?'; the second: 'What is the hog census of Iowa?'"

"Some people want to know everything. The Kirklands have three children: a daughter, 11, and two boys, 10 and 18. This, plus Kirk's work with youngsters at Hull-House and elsewhere, may account for his easy manner with young people. Since 1924 he has taken boys' canoe cruises through the north, lectured and written outdoor yarns. His prose style crackles and smacks of campfires, his outing pictures take you right into the wilderness. Thus he was a "natural" to do LIFE's northwoods deer hunting series.

Mushrooms
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons minced onions
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1-8 teaspoon celery salt
2 cups sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Brown the onions in butter melted in a frying pan. Add rest of the ingredients and cook slowly for five minutes. Pour over steak.

Pecan Sticks

(2 dozen sticks)
Two cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, -1 teaspoon salt, 5 tablespoons butter, 1 cup chopped pecans, enough milk to make a soft dough.
Sift dry ingredients, work into 4 tablespoons of butter either with fingertips or 2 silver knives. Add enough milk to make a soft dough. Roll out to 1-2 inch thickness, brush with 1 tablespoon butter which has been melted. Cut dough in half. Spread half with chopped nuts, lay other half on top and brush again with melted butter. Cut into oblong strips. Bake 20 minutes in a hot oven (400 degrees F)

Broiled Sausages

8 link sausages
1-4 teaspoon pepper
Sprinkle sausages with pepper and place on a shallow pan. Broil for five minutes. Turn and broil other sides to broil three minutes. The sausages may also be cooked on top of the stove. Heat a frying pan. When it is very hot, add and quickly brown the sausages on all sides. Cover with a lid. Lower heat and cook for ten minutes. Drain off the fat as quickly as it collects—to prevent greasiness.

Broiled Sirloin Steak

2 pound steak
1-4 teaspoon paprika
1-2 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
Select steak that is one and one-half inches thick. Heat broiler and grease rack with a little of the suet from the side of the steak. When broiler is very hot add steak and broil two inches below the flame. After five minutes, turn and broil the other side for five minutes. Top with rest of the ingredients and serve immediately on a hot steak platter. Garnish with cresc.

Potato Scones

(Serves 4 to 6)
Two cups flour, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons baking powder, 1 cup mashed potato, 2 tablespoons butter, 3-4 cup milk.
Sift dry ingredients, add mashed potato and lightly work in butter with fingertips. Add milk and mix until a soft dough is formed. Roll 3-4 inch thick on floured board, cut with a biscuit cutter. Cook on a well greased hot griddle 20 minutes. Turn over when half cooked. Scones should be split and buttered and served at once.

GIRARDS BOOKED BY TOLEDO SHOW

Local Birlers Will Put On Exhibitions Mar. 18-27

The Birling Girards of Gladstone have been engaged to appear in another log-rolling exhibition at the Toledo Sportsmen's Show, March 18-27, it was learned this week.

Included in the quartet are Billy Girard, unquestionably the greatest of trick and fancy birlers and former straight world's champion, and three of his sons, all able boys on the spinning log.

The group will leave for Toledo next Tuesday by motor. The show is to be held in Civic Auditorium. The Girards are the only birlers on the show's program which includes bait and fly casting, archery, and many other types of exhibitions and demonstrations.

Bridal Lace

THEATRES

With a star-studded cast headed by Jack Holt, Grace Bradley, Raymond Hatton and Ruth Donnelly, "Roaring Timber," spectacular action drama of the big timber country, arrived at the Rialto Theatre yesterday and scored a solid hit.

It is replete with good performance, moves at a thrill-a-minute pace, and thanks to the hilarious antics of Hatton and Miss Donnelly, who are two of Hollywood's ablest comics, wins a resounding volume of laughs.

Holt is cast as a logging boss, the hardest-driving superintendent in the whole north woods, who faces the job of getting out an enormous volume of timber in record time in order to fulfill a contract.

"Paradise Express," the second feature, is a provocative picture of the stirring competition going on in this country today between the railroads and truck lines.

MUST OBSERVE PLUMBING CODE

State Inspector Calls Attention to Rules

Rules and regulations of the state plumbing code must be observed and will be rigidly enforced, it was stated here yesterday by John Obermeyer, Iron Mountain, deputy state inspector.

In communities without local plumbing inspectors of which Gladstone is one, all applications for plumbing permits must be made through the state board in Lansing unless the work is being done by a licensed plumber in which case he procures the permit, it was pointed out.

"There has been much confusion lately about this procedure," Obermeyer said. "In Iron Mountain where we have a local inspector permits may be obtained, but in upper peninsula cities that have no inspector on duty, all those who desire permits must get them from Lansing."

Minor Repairs Oked

The state plumbing rules and regulations signify that "where no local board or office to supervise plumbing, drainage and sewerage is provided, permits for the construction, installation and the maintenance of plumbing must be requested from and granted by the state plumbing board. Requests for permits shall be in writing."

"It is important to point out for the benefit of home owners that no permits are necessary for minor repair work," Obermeyer said.

As stipulated by the state plumbing board in its book of rules and regulations, "No permit will be necessary for the repair of leaks, non-stopping of sewers or waste pipes, replacing of broken fixtures, installing water coolers or refrigerators where no connection to sewer is required."

Obermeyer said that there was considerable confusion about plumbing installation and that it should be straightened out before some one gets into difficulty.

Penalty For Violation

"There is nothing to prevent a bona fide home owner from installing his own plumbing equipment, providing he is living in the house at the time, is capable of installing the equipment properly and has obtained a state permit to do so," Obermeyer said.

When the permit is procured

Welshman Is Soundly Drubbed By Max Baer

New York, March 11 (AP)—Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, took long strides along the fist comeback trail tonight by giving Tommy Farr, British tiltheolder, a thorough drubbing in a sizzling 15-round bout before a near capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden. Baer weighed 212 and Farr 208 1/2.

Only the Welshman's gameness and a jaw that must have been made of cast iron enabled him to go the distance. He was a badly whipped fighter as he left the ring after 15 rounds of bruising, savage milling.

The former California playboy, down to serious business for the first time since his days on the throne, had the man who stayed 15 rounds with Joe Louis on the floor three times.

Baer won 11 rounds on the As-Sociated Press score card. Farr was given three and one was called even.

Already licked by Louis and James J. Braddock, another former champion, the defeat tonight virtually eliminates the Britisher from the championship picture and puts Baer in a commanding position to demand first shot at the winner of next June's battle between Louis and Max Schmeling.

Displaying most of his old time punching ability, Baer sent Tommy to the deck for a count of one with a stinging left to the jaw in the second round, then just to show he is a versatile mauler repeated in the third, three, had the man who stayed 15 rounds with Joe Louis on the floor three times.

Baer won 11 rounds on the As-

ESKYMOS UPSET IN CLOSE GAME

Manistique, Rock and Nahma Defeated in Second Round

Coach George Mason's Iron Mountain high school cagers threw a bombshell into the tournament proceedings at the junior high school last night by upsetting the favored Eskymos, 18-15, in a wild battle, giving them the right to meet their old rivals, Kingsford, who conquered Manistique by 30-14. In the class B finals tonight at 9 o'clock.

Favored teams in class D advanced as per schedule. Trenary eliminating Rock by 38-21 and Cooks nosing out Nahma by 27-24. Trenary will meet Cooks in the first championship game this evening at 8 o'clock.

There was plenty of excitement in the Escanaba-Iron Mountain game and not more than three points separated the two teams at any time. Iron Mountain, physically an unimpressive looking crew, kept the Eskymos at bay by judicious monopolizing of the ball. They led 3-0 at quarter time but the Eskymos tied it up at seven all at half time. Both teams made three points in the third quarter and late in the fourth quarter it was tied up at 14 all. At this juncture, the slippery little Izzo, Mountaineer guard, dribbled off to the side and slid in a beauty. Olsen, Eskymo guard, made a free throw on Izzo's foul but missed his second one and an opportunity to knot the count but it didn't make any difference because Doney added a field goal for Iron Mountain to give them their 18-15 lead. With a half minute left, a technical foul was called on Iron Mountain for delaying the game but Abrahamson missed the free throw and Iron Mountain gained possession of the ball, freezing it.

Game Is Slow

The second class B game, that between Kingsford and Manistique, was the most uninteresting of the evening. Kingsford, which won 30-14, was entirely too classy for the Emeralds, leading 26-2 at half time. Coach Vic Wojcickowski shoved in a flock of substitutes throughout the second half and Manistique scored 12 points, mostly on free throws. The second half was sloppy throughout.

The evening's program opened with the highly favored Trenary team trouncing Rock by 38-21, as expected, after the Little Giants had outplayed their larger opponents throughout most of the first half. In the second half, the high powered Trenary machine, led by L. Latvala, one of the classiest players on the floor, slipped into high gear, crushing the Rock boys in their wake. Latvala scored 17 points to lead his mates. The Rock boys plainly showed the effects of their Thursday's game in the second half but the outcome probably wouldn't have been any different had they not played because Trenary clearly was the superior team of the two.

Braining Battle

The most spectacular and exciting game of the evening was the Cooks-Nahma game, which Cooks won by 27-24 after a knock-down and drag-out affair. Nahma got off to an 11-5 lead at quarter time and was on top by 16-12 at half time. Cooks, led by Haindl, came back in the third quarter to lead 21-19 and went on to win in the final frame. The game was fast and bruising throughout and there never was a dull minute.

MISSING NOMAD OF GOLF FOUND

Hagen Turns Up in India After Illness With Dread Malaria

Detroit, March 11 (AP)—Walter Hagen, until today golf's missing nomad, has been found and is just scored what he termed "the greatest victory of my life."

The triumph was registered over the dreaded malaria, contracted by Sir Walter during a Tiger hunt in India.

Accompanied by Joe Kirkwood, the trick-shot artist, Hagen left here 15 months ago on what was billed as a world tour. Until a letter arrived from the "Hals" today, officials of the golf equipment concern bearing the Hagen name were in the dark as to his whereabouts. In the 15 months they had not had so much as a line from the veteran linksman. The last news of Hagen came from Gene Sarazen, who reported visiting Walter in Ceylon.

In his most recent letter Hagen reveals that both he and Kirkwood have been victims of misadventure. The letter was mailed from Calcutta, India, February 24.

"After winning 41 major championships, I have just scored the greatest victory of my life over malaria," Hagen writes. "I had 10 days of it and believe me I really suffered."

"I picked it up on a Tiger hunt back in the interior. Both Joe Kirkwood and I have had quite a time of it here."

"In our first match Joe broke a bone in his right shoulder and that finished him for a time. I carried on with the snow, first playing 18 holes and then giving a trick shot exhibition."

Hagen wrote that both he and Kirkwood were fit again and ready for matches on the way home.

PRODIGAL BACK AMONG GIANTS

Kidnaped Rookie Nowak Is Greeted With Open Arms

Baton Rouge, La., March 11 (AP)—The rookie prodigal, Bill Nowak, found no spunking awaiting him here today at the New York Giants training camp.

Rather the Giants greeted him with open arms, fed and bedded him and prepared to send the 20-year-old sandlot second-baseman to their farm club, Jersey City.

"Nowak hasn't volunteered any reason for leaving us," said Jack Schwarz, secretary of Manager Bill Terry. "We haven't asked for any."

"We're satisfied that he is back and wants to play ball for us."

Terry protested earlier this week when Nowak suddenly left the Giants camp here for New Orleans and began working out with the Cleveland Indians.

Terry charged Cleveland club officials lured Nowak away but C. C. Slapnicka, Cleveland's general manager, said the boy reported to the Indians on his own accord.

Judge William Braham, minor league baseball czar, settled the question of Nowak's allegiance last night by ordering him back to Jersey City.

It seemed that both New York and Cleveland made some sort of agreements with Nowak, the Giants through their Jersey City connection and the Indians through their Springfield, O., club. But only New York fulfilled the requirement of filing copies of the negotiations with March 1 with Bramham.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

Quite in contrast to the opening round, last night's tournament games, with but one exception, were fast and exciting and gave the crowd plenty to yell about . . . all indications point to some wild and woolly basketball tonight when two honored rivals, Iron Mountain and Kingsford, tangle in the class B final and Trenary and Cooks, two husky outfits, meet in the class D affair . . . all four teams looked alert and aggressive last night and it looks like we'll see plenty of action at the junior high school this evening . . . needless to say, ninety-nine and forty-four hundredths of Dickinson county will be on hand for the all Dickinson county finale . . . and Trenary and Cooks will have large delegations here, too.

Escanaba fans, of course, were stunned at the outcome of last night's game and many wondered just what happened . . . personally, it was just one of those nights in which the boys looked as though they had lead in their feet . . . it seemed everything they did was wrong and they lived to see Iron Mountain take advantage of their misdeeds . . . to us, the big trouble with the Eskymos was

TIGERS STRONG ON DEFENSIVE

Vacant Third Base Job Wide Open; Batting to Tell Story

Lakeland, Fla., March 11 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers passed up a practice game at their spring training camp here today as they went through one of the hardest workouts of the current campaign.

Among the developments in the Bengal fair today were:

1. Roy Cullenbine, recruit outfielder, became the first casualty of the season when he cut himself on the instep of the right foot during sliding practice.

2. Manager Mickey Cochrane said he was convinced Detroit would boast a strong defensive club this season.

3. Cochrane also said the fight for the vacant third base job was "wide-open" and that Mark Christian, Donald Ross and Billy Rogell all would get thorough trials.

4. Jo-Jo White continued to surprise camp critics with his improved batting, indicating he is very much in the battle for the outfield job between Pete Fox and Fred Walker.

Cullenbine's injury was treated by Trainer Denny Carroll, who said he did not regard it as serious.

Only 4 Missing

Cochrane's boast of the Tiger defensive strength came at the end of a long workout in which the pitchers, catchers and infielders worked for more than an hour to check the double steal. Outfielder Chester Laabs, who worked out for the first time, got a long session chasing fly balls.

Discussing the third base problem, Cochrane indicated that in the end batting ability would probably determine Marvin Owen's successor.

"Nobody has clinched that job yet," he said. "We'll just let the boys fight it out."

Meanwhile gossip that Rogell would be shifted to the hot corner from his old position at shortstop continued. Rogell reported in superb condition. He has indicated he wants to wind up his big league career as a third sacker but the shift appears to depend on how much ability Frank Croucher, recruit from Toronto, shows at shortstop.

Only four Tigers, Charley Gehring, Hank Greenberg, Tony Piet, and Ross were missing from today's workout. They are expected in camp by Sunday.

Cochrane indicated the training games would be resumed tomorrow in order to get Detroit in shape for the first spring practice game against Washington here March 20.

Bad Rollie Hemsley To Rejoin Indians

New Orleans, March 11 (AP)—The Cleveland Indians understood today that Rollie Hemsley, playboy catcher who was banished to his Missouri farm this week for breaking training, would rejoin the Tribe early next week.

Manager Oscar Vitt wasn't announcing a definite date for Hemsley's return, but almost every one on the team seemed to think he had set the time when Hemsley left.

Irish Beat Detroit, 45-31, To End Season

Detroit, March 11 (AP)—Notre Dame closed its basketball season tonight by winning a rough and fast game from the University of Detroit, 45-31.

The victory was Notre Dame's twentieth in 23 games and it was Detroit's fourth loss in 20 contests. The Irish were ahead 21-18 at the halfway.

Notre Dame trailed by five points at one point in the first period but pulled ahead and finally built up its final 14-point margin.

Johnny Molr, Notre Dame's star forward, registered 10 points, all from field goals, to raise his three-year collegiate total to 750 points. Bob Callihan, Detroit center, shared the night's scoring honors by getting 10 points.

Cunningham Tries 'Iron Man' Stunt

New York, March 11 (AP)—Glenn Cunningham, world's fastest miler, will attempt an iron man stunt tomorrow night when the Knights of Columbus games bring the metropolitan indoor track and field season to a close at Madison Square Garden.

The Kansas veteran, unbeaten at his favorite distance in this, the greatest season of his long career, will go after his sixth straight triumph in the classic Columbian mile and 65 minutes later will oppose an all-star field in the 600-yard run.

WHISKER BOYS TRAINING HARD

House of David Manager Pleased With Class of His Stars

BY PAUL MICKELSON

Leesburg, Fla., March 11 (AP)—It is a happy duty to report to all the men who detest razors and barber chairs that the House of David club ball is cutting up in a big way at its spring training base in this peaceful inland city of some 5,000 souls. The shrubbery champs promise to do everything but to come from behind their whiskers.

Louis Murphy, their Irish commander, is so elated with prospects he ordered his men out of a hotel into rooms for tourist homes here so they can have more space for their rapidly growing beards and tresses: Manager Murphy, himself, is a clean-shaven man, but to encourage his rookies he's scraping his face only once a week until the workout season ends.

Manager Murphy discussed his stars, which included a 50-year-old pitcher named "Moose" Swaney, a left-handed catcher known as Pepper Ray and some rookies he was positive would make the grade because of their ability to grow hay on their faces almost overnight.

"We've got 15 players in camp," boasted Murphy. "None of them are members of the House of David, but you don't have to write that."

Pepper Ray turned into a southpaw catcher when his right wrist bad. Formerly with Minneapolis and Nashville, Pepper refuses to be stopped because he loves baseball and whiskers. He also coaches.

Manager Murphy has only two rules for his boys to follow. They are: 1. Thou shalt not shave, and 2. Thou shalt not have any truck with barbers. The players are allowed to do as they please as long as they follow these orders. Anyone caught talking to a barber is apt to get fined $25 which is big money because it takes a star to make $200 a month with the club.

This year they expect to play around 200 ball games. Their biggest game was 18,000 for a game with the Brooklyn Bushwicks but many times their rates don't pay the payroll. They have only one major league exhibition game—against St. Louis Cardinals next Tuesday.

First Money Goes To Byron Nelson In Hollywood Open

Hollywood, Fla., March 11 (AP)—Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., won the $2,000 Hollywood open golf tournament today with a 72-hole score of 275, a stroke in front of Horton Smith of Chicago and Frank Moore of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Nelson, who started the day eight strokes behind Smith, finished with a four-under-par 67 after a morning round of 69 to capture the top prize of $700.

Smith frittered away his lead with a morning 75 and finished with a 70 as Moore wound up with a pair of 69's. They collected $400 each.

Frank Walsh of Chicago duplicated Nelson's last two rounds for a 278, where he was even with Denny Shute, P. G. champion who had a 70 and a 69 today.</

Courthouse Comish Meets: Supervisor Gives His Opinion

Members of the Delta county courthouse committee met yesterday noon with Derrick Hubert, Menominee architect, to go over plans for the proposed courthouse to be built at Escanaba.

A statement with regard to the proposed courthouse building program was issued yesterday by Clyde J. Burns, chairman of the Delta county board of supervisors. The statement follows:

"One of the first questions that would ordinarily be asked throughout the cities and townships of Delta county in regard to the proposal made by the county board of supervisors to erect a new courthouse is 'Can we afford it?'"

"The answer to this would be that Delta county has been free of bonded indebtedness since 1930 and at the present time and for some time past has been free of bank loans. This is an enviable position for any county in the state of Michigan to be in from a financial standpoint all during the depression, and it would add to our financial obligations considering our total county but very little to levy the additional mill and a quarter proposed for the erection of the new courthouse over a period of five years."

"The second question that would be most generally asked is 'Do we need it?' The voters and taxpayers of this county must remember that the present courthouse was erected in 1882 at a total expense of $27,000, which included $4,000 for the lot and $1,000 for equipment, placing the actual building cost of the present building at $22,000."

"The records, which are contained in the courthouse are very vital to practically every class of our citizens as they include birth, marriage and death records, as well as warranty deeds to property, real estate mortgages, chattel mortgages, land contracts, etc. It must be remembered that our $22,000 courthouse built in 1882, is today nothing but a shell, which it is practically impossible to repair or improve in any modern way and in the event of a fire, all of these valuable records heretofore mentioned would be destroyed and it would entail years of litigation and vast sums of money expended on the part of our citizens to re-establish properly title to their homes, personal property, etc., which are housed in the vaults of the courthouse."

"Another reason why at the present time it is deemed expedient to erect a new courthouse is that as a WPA project it would furnish work for a number of our citizens for a period of one year and while Delta county is sponsoring the building would have to contribute approximately $100,000, it must be remembered that we are now in a position to secure financial assistance from the federal government to the extent of $110,000 or $115,000 which some time in future years we might not be able to secure and the whole burden of erecting a new building would fall on the shoulders of the children today, who are now in their teens as it is an almost certain fact that the present building by no stretch of the imagination can be used efficiently for more than ten years."

"In regard to the additional cost to the average taxpayer, it has been estimated that it will cost each year for a period of five years to the average home owner of Escanaba or Gladstone from $1.75 to $2 per year and to the average farmer in each of our fourteen townships from 75 cents to $1.25 per year."

"The proposal to build a new courthouse will be submitted to the voters at the April 4 election on two separate ballots. The first ballot will call for an increase in the mill tax of 1 1/4 mills and every qualified registered voter of Delta county who has attained the age

Bird House Building Starts

Boys and girls of Escanaba and the rest of the county are getting busy at building bird houses to enter the contest being sponsored by the Escanaba Kiwanis club. The municipal department of recreation, school manual training departments, 4-H clubs and WPA recreational divisions are cooperating in the endeavor.

of 21 years is eligible to vote on this issue. Under our state laws it is necessary that this amendment be passed by a two-thirds vote of the electorate."

"The second ballot provides for bonding Delta county for approximately $100,000, and the only electors qualified to vote on this amendment are those who own property and pay taxes. Under the law this amendment must pass by a bare majority."

"It is well for all voters to keep in mind that in order to build a new courthouse it is necessary that both amendments carry by the majority prescribed by law, because if one or the other fails to be favorably acted upon by the voters the project will have to be abandoned as the resolution of the county board of supervisors provides that the increase in mill tax can only be used for the erection of a new courthouse building and as said before if one or the other fails to be acted upon favorably by the voters no portion of the present 15 mill limitation tax can be used for this much needed building project."

"In passing, I would also mention that this courthouse would be a wonderful civic improvement for the citizens of Delta county and when you stop to consider that at the present time more than half the money for the erection of the building can be procured as a direct grant from the federal government for the civic improvement of Delta county, we should weigh the proposition very carefully before allowing this opportunity to get out of our grasp."

Pep Session Held By School Students

A clever skit was presented by a group of seniors under Miss Florence Langley at the senior high school Friday.

The Little Red Riding Hood story was changed into a musical with Beatrice Morton as Red Riding Hood, Robert Moreau as the father, and Robert Amundsen as grandma. The whole skit, symbolizing Red Riding Hood as the coveted cup for championship in the basketball tournament, the father as the Eskymo team, and grandma as the big bad wolf, tournament opponents, was unique. Cheerleaders presented new yells and Robert Moreau led the student body in the victory and fight songs. Mae Bergman was the announcer.

NORTH WESTERN CAPITAL PARED Commission Recommends Reduction of Railway's Assets

Washington (AP)—The interstate commerce commission's bureau of finance recommended today a capitalization of $468,000,000 for the Chicago and North Western Railway company, now in reorganization under Section 77 of the bankruptcy act.

This compares with capital assets of $597,449,127 as of December 31, 1936.

The debtor's (railroads) plan of reorganization proposed a capitalization of $470,776,288, and a life insurance committee which also offered a reorganization plan, proposed $449,505,000.

The bureau of finance said the "substantial properties of the debtor, its diversity of traffic, its long run of good earnings, and its long-range possibilities of future service and earnings" justify a finding that the present stockholders have an equity in the property which should be recognized in shaping a new capital structure.

The bureau said securities in the new company should be so arranged that fixed requirements would not exceed $3,500,000 a year.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLET

Every normal woman wants to be a "Man's woman." But a great many of them aren't sure of just what it takes. Well, sex-appeal is only a part of it. Not the whole story by a long shot, because a man marries a "man's woman."

And when a man marries, he is usually smart enough to pick a wife who has some other good points besides sex-appeal. He is likely to remember that his wife is also the woman who meets his friends, does his entertaining, is known by his name, and is largely responsible for the kind of persons his sons and daughters will be some day.

So, contrary to propaganda, most men judge a girl by more than her physical assets. For instance, her attitude toward other people—and the attitude of other people toward her. If she can get along with all kinds of people, and make strangers "take to her" that is a point in her favor.

So is the fact that she is not struck dumb by any happening out of the ordinary. But is able to adjust herself to most situations.

He is always pleased if she likes his friends—and they like her. It makes the world seem a well-managed and understandable place.

P. C. Emblem Is Selected After Much Discussion

The dept. of Parks and Recreation has announced that, after a lengthy consideration of designs submitted, a P. C. emblem has been selected and will soon be ready for distribution.

Several weeks ago it was announced that a contest would be held to select an emblem design. Many fine pieces of work were submitted, but none was, in the opinion of the dept. and the judges, exactly what was desired. This no doubt was due to the fact that contest rules were very general in order to get as many original ideas as possible.

The design which was drawn up by Mrs. Victor Powers, chief judge of the contest, was a combination of ideas submitted by B. V. Thorin and Robert Coan. It is to be a six pointed star within a circle, with letters P. C. Club. The star is symbolic as winners of the emblem are stars in Recreational activities. In addition to the large star, small stars will be included for each emblem won. A first emblem containing one small star is awarded for fifty points earned according to the standard point chart. Fifty additional points receives another emblem of the same basic design but with two stars. Emblems and stars, thereafter, are awarded for each one hundred additional points. The designs submitted in the contest were so good that the first three places in two divisions were selected by Mrs. Powers. The basis for selection was practicability, legibility of lettering and original design. On this basis first place was awarded B. V. Thorin, second to Robert Coan and third was tie between Mary Ellen Wilson and M. K. Geartits of the Senior High school students. In the Junior High division first place was awarded to Helen Ann Louis, second to Marcella Provo, and third to Thelma Flink. Honorable mention was given Ray Fillet, Roy Taocet, Leroy Monson, Darrol Sundquist, Tom Corbett, and 2 others with no name.

The bureau said securities in the new company should be so arranged that fixed requirements would not exceed $3,500,000 a year.

The bureau suggested that preferred and common stock not exceeding $344,500,000 be issued with preferred dividends at 4 1/2 per cent annually. Common stock would be treated as having a $100 value.

"It is suggested that not less than one share of new common stock be issued for each five shares of existing preferred stock and that not less than one share of new common stock be issued for each ten shares of existing common stock, in recognition of the existing equity of the holders of those classes of common stock in the property," the bureau said.

sense of protectiveness. He is likely to feel toward the woman who feeds a stray cat, rather than the one who says, "Get that dirty looking thing away from me."

Men aren't as unaware as women tell each other they are over a bridge table or a cup of tea. Believe they are dumb if you like, and think they are interested in nothing but superficial attractiveness. But don't be surprised if you never are spoken of as a "man's woman."

then began, "I have repeatedly but unsuccessfully endeavored to secure the president's adequate consideration of grave conditions within the TVA." As he went on, Mr. Roosevelt cut him short, "Wait a minute," he said, "I don't want opinions. I have asked you a question about the Berry marble case, and I want you to confine your answers not to opinions but to facts."

"I wish to complete my statement, which will take about a minute longer."

"I don't want you in any statements, to talk about opinions. I want you to confine yourself to facts."

"I am giving my reasons for not answering you directly, and I think I must do it."

"Are you planning to answer the direct question?" the president persisted.

"Not a Participant" Morgan went on: "Since the congress has now taken up the matter, I believe that any report by me should, under the terms of the TVA act, be filed with the president and with the congress. It is my studied judgment that the people are entitled to accurate information and appraisal of the program, policies, administration and activities of the authority."

While Harcourt Morgan and L. H. Latham testified, President Roosevelt repeatedly asked Chairman Morgan if he wished to ask questions or to comment. Morgan said he was "an observer and not a participant in this alleged process of fact finding," adding: "When the president requested me to attend this conference, he did not give me any hint of its purpose. On my declining to attend, he gave me no motive for the purpose of the meeting. In contrast, I was advised the other board members were fully advised of the purpose of the meeting. They gave you prepared documents and briefs and had a large staff of assistants available."

The president said all three directors were given exactly the same information about the meeting. Meteorology is world-wide in its scope. A storm occurring on one continent will affect the weather on another.
