Rev. Ward Re-elected as Secretary of Standing Committee

Marquette, May 26.—Following business meetings of clergymen and laymen attending the forty-third annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of northern Michigan, which was concluded with a convention dinner in St. Paul's cathedral last night, the Rev. Carl G. Ziegler, convention secretary, announced the results of election of officers and appointment of delegates to the Provincial Synod at Flint in October.

With the exception of the diocese council, on which C. P. Frel, of Marquette, was elected to replace the late Fred J. Schultheis, and the Rev. G. C. Welsler, of Iron Mountain, to replace the Rev. Stanley L. Welsh, of Calumet, there were no changes among officers and committees.

Ward, of Escanaba, secretary; the Rev. G. A. Blackburn, of Sault Ste. Marie; the Rev. C. C. Reimer, of Houghton; Peter W. Phelps, of Marquette; F. C. Stanford, of Ishpeming, and J. W. Creighton Speaks
The church that will fulfill its position in society in the present age, marked by social and political conflict, must be a church that will serve both as a moral and spiritual guide, the Rt. Rev. Frank Creighton, S.T.D., bishop-coadjutor of the diocese of Michigan, told more than 100 delegates and guests of the forty-third annual conference of the Episcopal diocese of northern Michigan at its concluding dinner in the Guild hall here last night.

Speaking on the "Condition of the Church in its Present Environment—Its Present Age," Bishop Creighton, in his stirring address, asserted that "the church in society today must be ever tolerant, because a stiff-necked ecclesiastical organization is an anachronism in this age," and predicted that the way to greater harmony and unity in society.

Is Church Meeting Conditions?
"Are we entirely satisfied with the position of the church in the modern world?" Creighton asked in opening his talk. "Is she meeting the situation? Is she assuming the position of leadership or is she becoming an anachronism? Or is she becoming contemptuous because in some countries her leaders are being humiliated? If so, why?"

Pointing out that "we must also analyze the church in our own minds," Bishop Creighton raised the question of whether the church is being considered a "romantic institution" for the emotional experiences of Easter and Christmas, or whether by "zeal and courage we are making the Lord's words live—making a living church?"

"We know the church is divine. We know that the head is to the body just as Christ is to the church," Bishop Creighton said. "But this being so, why is it that there are no great mass movements toward Christianity here as there are in India. Why?"

Pointing out that there is much in the church today to revolt modern man and youth, the speaker said: "We may as well face it." "There is loyalty to Christ and the apostles, but we are looking back to the early Christian fellowship—the feeling that we would like to get back to the historic Christ."

PAINE, WEBBER FRAUD CLAIMED

Big Stock Exchange Firm Restrained by Court Order in New York

New York, May 27 (AP)—State Attorney General John J. Bennett Jr., today took court action against 41 individuals and corporations, including the big stock exchange firm of Paine, Webber & Co., and its partners, charging an attempt, with international ramifications, to fraudulently drain a group of investment trusts of their marketable assets.

Bennett asked, in a bill of complaint containing 64 allegations, and supported by 60 pages of affidavits by Assistant Attorney General John R. O'Hanlon, that all the defendants be barred permanently from dealing in securities in New York state.

The Paine, Webber firm, along with members of the firm of Prentice & Brady, former members of the stock exchange, who withdrew from membership early in the several-month-old preliminary investigation by Bennett, were restrained, pending the scheduled hearing, from:

1. Advancing funds to finance transfer of control of any investment trust; or

2. Purchasing or selling securities from the portfolio of any investment trust, without formal consent of all interested parties.

BAD FEATURES FOUND IN NEW PROFIT LEVIES

system, state, local and federal, can and must be greatly improved in the coming year.

"The second is that we in this country are getting more practical results in the way of bettering the social conditions of the nation out of our taxes than ever before in our history."

The bill of which the president spoke was designed by congress to meet the repeated objections of business that the tax on undistributed corporate profits was preventing the expansion of business enterprises and retarding recovery. Mr. Roosevelt himself recommended that its application be eased where small businesses were concerned. Business had also levelled many complaints at the tax on capital gains.

Under the measure as it became law, corporations doing an annual business of $25,000 are exempted from the undistributed profits tax, and pay a corporation income tax ranging from 12 1/2 to 16 per cent. Above the $25,000 dividing line a modification of the undistributed profits tax applies. Companies disbursing all their profits as dividends pay 16 1/2 per cent. Companies retaining all their profits pay 19 per cent, and the levy is graduated between those figures for a partial disbursement of profits.

SPEECH HALTED AT JERSEY CITY

Foe of Mayor Hague Is Taken Into Custody of Policemen

Jersey City, N. J., May 27 (AP)—Representative Jerry O'Connell, (D-Mont), bitter foe of Mayor Frank Hague, made a brief appearance at Pershing field tonight, but was whisked away by police before he could deliver a prepared speech assailing the state democratic leader.

Taken by automobile to a police station two blocks from the stadium, he was closeted for a few minutes with high police officials and then taken to the Journal Square station of the Hudson and Manhattan railroad. The Montana democrat had planned to defy the city ordinance prohibiting public speeches and meetings without permits. He appeared at police-guarded Pershing field shortly after 7 p. m. (E.S.T.) A crowd estimated by police at between 10,000 and 15,000 was there and some quickly recognized him.

Some yelled to him to make his speech. Others shouted "kill him," "throw him out." The crowd surged toward him and fists flew. Police rushed in, grabbed O'Connell and sped him to a waiting car. It was all over in a few minutes.

Asked later if anyone had hit him, O'Connell said, "nope, not a soul."

Quintuplets, 4, May Be Shielded From Curious

Callander, Ontario, May 27. (Canadian Press)—The Dionno quintuplets will be four years old tomorrow and there were signs tonight they soon may be shielded from the wonder that never has ceased since their birth.

The four-year mark in their lives has brought renewed consideration by their guardians of whether it would be wise to withdraw the little girls from their public and give them a chance to grow up as other youngsters of their age do.

Keith Munro, their business manager, said today the new Dionno home would be built near the Dufos nursery, about two and a half miles from Callander, far from the road and well shielded from the curious.

Dionne has 150 acres of property, much of it woodland. With liberal use of the quint's funds, an estate remote enough to assure privacy could be built. A private road guarded at the main highway already planned.

Inland Official Warns Of Mine Tax Increase

Marquette, Mich., May 27 (AP)—Pointing to the increased competition which northern Michigan iron ores are meeting in national and international markets, Clarence B. Randall, of Chicago, executive vice-president of the Inland Steel company, sounded a note of warning here today that unreasonable taxation and production costs would cripple the upper peninsula's mining industry by forcing steel companies to operate in other areas.

Heard by the members of the state tax commission, at the concluding session of the U. P. mine valuation hearings, and 45 mine executives and other interested persons, Randall explained that development of iron ore deposits in Missouri, Canada and elsewhere is making the marketing of iron ore increasingly competitive.

Questioned by John Fegan, chairman of the state tax commission, as to whether it was necessary to mix Michigan ore with ore coming from Minnesota mines in the production of steel, the Inland executive answered: "Emphatically no. We don't need one pound of it."

Asked why a price differential had favored Michigan ore as against Minnesota ore, Randall said: "The 15-cent price differential is essentially in promotion." He asserted that his company would not pay one cent more for Michigan ore than similar ores in Minnesota and other states.

NEW FORD TIRE PLANT STARTED

Finished Product Made in 4 Hours; 4,000 for Each Shift

Detroit, May 27 (AP)—A new tire plant in which Henry Ford expects to produce a finished automobile tire within four hours from the time crude rubber arrives from the East Indies is in operation in suburban Dearborn.

E. F. Wait, plant manager, said today the same process in many tire factories now requires a week. Automatic handling of materials in the $5,600,000 plant, which spreads over four and a half acres, is credited for the speed of production.

With the exception of rubber, Wait said, all ingredients that go into the tire are weighed or measured automatically and fed into the production process at the proper time.

"Before we are through we will be weighing and feeding the rubber automatically," he explained.

Wait said the plant is the first tire factory in which production has been routed straight through from the hold of the rubber-carrying freighters to the tire delivery truck. Materials are elevated or pumped to the top floor and fed down through the processing machinery. Twelve mixes, 100 yards long and 40 feet high, face a row of 20 pressure mills, each mounting two rollers 84 inches long and 28 inches in diameter. Pressures run as high as 300,000 pounds.

The plant now produces about 4,000 tires for each eight-hour shift. Wait said that when fully completed, the factory will send 6,000 tires each eight hours to the production lines of the Ford Motor company.

Not A Bad Idea

ANNOUNCEMENT by Louis M. Nims, a state WPA administrator, that $76,056 has been allotted to finance the training of guides is of much interest to the northern Michigan tourist industry.

In the Upper Peninsula, Iron River, Escanaba, Watersmeet, Marquette and Newberry have been selected as the sites for training schools. The course will include such subjects as building overnight shelters, fly-tying, rod-repairing, use of compass, camp cooking living off the land in an emergency and minor gun repairs.

Memorial Day

MEMORIAL day observance this year should take on a new meaning and have as its leading thought the futility of war and the establishment of a permanent peace.

During the years of the immediate past, Memorial day has been for some people an opportunity for having a hilarious time without any sincere thought of what Memorial day was meant to observe.

War has always been futile. Of course there has been progress made because of wars. But where there has been progress in science, there has been retrogression in morals and human relationships so that much of this scientific progress has been directed toward extermination of fellow man.

Even within our own nation there are elements at work digging from within in an effort to tear down. A new spirit should be unfurled throughout the nation on this Memorial day.

Plan to End Strife

WE would be a pretty fine people if we could live up to our professed principles. We talk very sensibly indeed, but there usually is a pretty big gap between the way we talk and the way we act.

For a sample, there is the capital-and-labor business. We are very fond of saying that there is no real, basic conflict between capital and labor, that their interests are in the long run identical and that the sensible thing is to recognize that fact and behave accordingly.

Yet so rarely do representative leaders of capital and labor act on that theory that when they do it becomes front page news. A good deal of attention has been drawn to the fact that in San Francisco on June 3, leaders of the business community and of the C. I. O. are going to hold a big mass meeting to see if some peaceable and mutually profitable way of getting along together cannot be found.

The background of that meeting is interesting. The last four years of San Francisco's "labor history" have been more than a little stormy; so this spring a group of industrial leaders appointed a committee to study industrial relations and work out a program to restore and preserve peace.

This committee, after a good deal of preliminary work, invited the labor leaders to join in creating a "parliament of public opinion" to minimize bitterness and strife. At first the labor people were suspicious; but after a time the suspicion disappeared and now we have the unusual and highly gratifying spectacle of C. I. O. bigwigs sitting down with industrial bigwigs to work out some plan by which capital and labor can get along and prosper together.

What will come of this meeting is, of course, open to speculation. Maybe the whole plan will fall through, and San Francisco's valiant effort to obtain a fair peace will come to nothing. But the important thing is that the effort is at least being made.

Yet it is strange, when you stop to think about it, that the fact that this effort is being made should be news.

These San Franciscans, after all, are doing nothing more than acting on a principle that we all give lip-service to—the principle that capital and labor are going in the same direction and can help each other get there.

If that principle is true, as we all say it is, why aren't there more movements like this one on the west coast?

Wouldn't our national future be immeasurably brighter if we could just live up to our principle instead of merely talking about them?

Hollywood Tightens Belt

WHEN the Independent Theatre Owners' Association published a display advertisement on the Pacific Coast registering a protest against the payment of fabulous salaries to motion picture stars the action was interpreted in some quarters as reflecting an affair between certain producers and their stars. As a matter of fact, that announcement was the first public notice that Hollywood is tightening its belt and that the day of super-colossal spectacles in the movies is over, for the present at least.

Platinum-plated Hollywood, diamond-studded Hollywood has at last decided to retrench and the action is believed to be at the behest of big business men not distant from Wall Street who think that there has been a deal too much wastefulness.

Solid information from the West Coast is to the effect that every producer is engaged in a campaign of saving and that there is to be an end to the fabulous salaries paid stars and also to the many other lavish expenses. From its foundation the Hollywood motion picture industry has been the wonder of the world so far as money expenditure is concerned. There seemed to be no limits to which producers would not go to manufacture great extravaganzas.

Many and many a tale has come from the Coast about the reckless waste of money. Producing companies, for instance, have employed writers who have made names for themselves in the field of literature at high salaries and then forgotten about them. A part of the game was to bind a writer to a contract to make sure that no competing company would obtain his services, but another part was pure waste and neglect and bad management. The best informed sources declare that not infrequently a writer under contract would cool his heels month after month without being given anything to do.

In such a mushroom industry where profits were enormous in the good days, an odd million of cost here and there seemed to make no difference. The tide of money which swept into the theatre box offices all over the country and finally found its way into the coffers of the producers was too strong to admit of any impulse toward economy.

This does not mean the high level of movie production will fall far. Workmanlike, artistic shows will be produced without a doubt but they will be simpler and, it is possible, more entertaining. It seems quite possible that the theatre-going public will welcome less flamboyant shows. Also, it is said, less reliance is to be placed on great names. Some shows of little theatrical merit in themselves have been expensively produced merely as vehicles for great names. The name of a star in glittering lights on a theatre marquee has been expected to carry the box office. Some lessons have been learned in this connection and, it is predicted stars will not shine so bright as the result of artificial illumination.

WHAT COOPERATION WILL DO (Marquette Mining Journal)

Heavy rains throughout the upper peninsula interrupted to some extent air-mail week, but if not a single letter had been moved the airmail promotion scheme would have been a complete success.

Nothing in recent months has caused such wide-spread interest in the upper peninsula or brought it more or better publicity. The extent of interest is indicated by the fact that between 40,000 and 50,000 pieces of mail were set to leave the peninsula, the volume exceeding the best hopes of the committee which organized the campaign. The publicity value of the flights is illustrated by the large number of inquiries from almost every state and several foreign countries for special airmail cachets printed by many of the U. P. cities.

The success of the airmail promotion is a further example of how upper peninsula communities can cooperate effectively to reach a common objective, and if the same spirit prevails in the development of the tourist business and the fight for better highways, without jealousy or factionalism, the future of the U. P. is bright.

While it is difficult to estimate the volume of airmail that normally would flow from the upper peninsula, the poundage accumulated for the special flights indicates that it would be sufficient to justify further extension of airmail service into the district. It cannot be doubted that because of its comparative geographical isolation, the peninsula is definitely airmail minded and will go out of its way to support any service tending to speed up transportation and communication.

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent London — "Seventy-one and going strong!"

That will be the unspoken thought of millions of Britons on May 26, for on that day Queen Mary had passed another milestone in her life's pilgrimage.

Now, in her widowhood, the dowager Queen rests secure in the consciousness that today she is more popular than ever before in her long life. Britons remember her as the model wife and mother; as the woman who, with her husband, King George V, kept the cleanest court in the history of Britain; as the sovereign who tried to interest herself in the doings of all classes of her subjects.

Some years ago, when she christened the great steamship "Queen Mary" at Glasgow, she was unaware of the delicate "hearing" of the broadcasting microphone. Therefore, millions of Britons heard her say: "What do I do now? And a few minutes later: "Did I do it all right?"

Those two queries seem to embody her whole life. She has always been keen to do her duty and equally as keen to know that it has been done fully and properly.

The British people honor her, too, because of her bravery. In 1936 she suffered two staggering blows. On January 20, after nearly 43 years of happy married life, her husband, King George V, died. Her mother's pride in seeing her eldest-born mount the throne soon was shattered, when King Edward VIII insisted upon marrying Mrs. Ernest Simpson. There were ten anxious days that shook the foundations of the British Empire, culminating in Edward's abdication December 10.

Once more Queen Mary rose to the occasion. She began going about to link up the national affections with the royal house of Windsor. When she felt sure that all was well and that her son, King George VI, was winning his own way with the people, she withdrew as much as possible from public functions.

She has begun to live her own life and do the things she likes to do.

Her period of mourning over, she has gone to the opera, to first nights of plays and films, and she tours London—without pomp and procession—in the company of her granddaughters, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose.

She visits old friends in their country houses and has old cronies come to tea in Marlborough House in which she lived 28 years ago, when she was Princess of Wales, and which is once again her own home, with many of the old curtains, carpets and pictures that are so familiar to her.

Her release from the more formal duties of Queen Consort has given her a better opportunity to show the human side of her personality. Last April she unexpectedly visited the stricken areas of South Wales. Now usually, when royalty goes to the homes-of-the-humble, the folk are carefully picked out and forewarned, so they can be all scrubbed up and arrayed in their best bibs and tuckers. But Queen Mary fooled her guides. She motored to Pontypridd, rode through some mean, narrow, poverty-stricken streets and paid a surprise visit to a club-of-the-unemployed, housed in an old granary.

J. J. Watkins, coatless, collarless and with his sleeves rolled up, was busy sawing wood out of which he makes canes. He showed her around and she followed him up a rickety staircase to the loft where the billiard tables are installed.

And when she came out, there was another unheeded incident. She saw Mrs. Johanna Pleton carrying her fifteen-month old baby in her shawl in a way Welsh women have.

"I am glad to see you doing that," said the Queen. "I always carried my children that way when they were babies."

It was a human touch that hit center in Wales.

This line will be of great benefit to the eastern end of the peninsula, but will not entirely solve the problem. Because the greatest volume of business in the central and western counties of the U. P. gravitates to Milwaukee and Chicago, instead of across the Straits to Detroit, there will be need for extension of the Milwaukee airmail route into the peninsula via Green Bay and Menominee.

It is to be presumed that if the U. P. gets airmail service, it will get it gradually. There will be gradual extension of existing services to include territory not now being served, if it can be shown that the volume of mail warrants it. The day is far in the future when the peninsula will be criss-crossed with airmail routes, but service to key points which will clear all airmail from this region, will not be long delayed if the present trend continues.

Much enthusiasm has been shown over the special airmail flights. It is to be hoped that this enthusiasm will persist in the same spirit that has characterized this work, and not in a manner to develop regional disputes over where and when airmail service is to be extended. This matter will take care of itself, the volume of mail to be moved by plane dictating future routes.

"PROFIT SYSTEM" (Syracuse Post-Standard)

When we speak of "the profit system" in this country, we generally think of the profits of firms and corporations. But it really refers to the individual, as well.

The profit system deals fully as much with the funds over and above living costs which the family is able to invest in securities or a larger amount of necessities, as it does with the money over and above costs made by the corporation.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER Washington, May 25.—The American congress has been unappreciative of the Nazis' glories. The senators and representatives have been sadly obtuse in their understanding of the wisdom, high statesmanship and humanitarian purposes of Herr Hitler and his followers. It is refreshing, therefore, to know that the light of truth has penetrated even the murky halls of the capitol; that the German racial program has been warmly indorsed on the senate floor, by one vested with all the dignities and powers of a senator of the United States.

Somehow or other, when it was made a day or so ago, this important pronouncement escaped the attention it deserved. It is reproduced here in proof of the intelligence to which democracy can sometimes rise.

As preserved in the official record, it runs in part: "Race consciousness is developing in all parts of the world. For example, consider Italy, consider Germany. It is beginning to be recognized by the thoughtful minds of the age that the conservation of racial values is the only hope for future civilization. It will be recalled that Hitler, in his speech on April 9 at Vienna, gave as the basis of his program to unite Austria with Germany, 'German blood ties.' The Germans appreciate the importance of race values. They understand that racial improvement is the greatest assets that any country can have. . . . "It is to the scientific inventiveness of the German people that their great leaders look in these troublous times for means to preserve their political future. They know, as few other nations have yet realized, that the impoverishment of race values contributes more to the impairment and destruction of civilization than any other agency. Hence it comes about that, in every extremity with which they are faced, they strive to stir up the feeling of race consciousness and race pride. . . .

FITTING FRIEND Herr Hitler's gratification at the utterance of such elevating words in the United States senate should be increased by the fact that the utterer is a member of the party in power, a statesman whose faculties are widely admired, a fellow justly celebrated under the simple title of "the Man." It was fitting, indeed, that this indorsement of the principles of Nazism should have come from the lips of the Hon. Theodore Gilman Bilbo, junior senator from Mississippi.

The Bilbo speech, which consumed most of last Tuesday afternoon, was an appropriate setting for its most important pronouncement. It was a plea for the use of part of the new pump-priming fund to transport up to 12,000,000 American negroes to Africa, there to enjoy the peaceful plenty on another Liberia. Its theme was ingenious, its manner, grand. Senator Bilbo brings to his oratory all the impressiveness of a side-show Barker, all the rick intellect of an assistant Kleable.

The senate chamber, to be sure, has the shabby colorlessness natural to democracies. Yet, if Herr Hitler had been in the gallery last Tuesday afternoon, he might have shut his eyes and been convinced that he was listening to Goebbels. In case Ambassadors-Kieckhoff-seeds information in Bilbo to cable to his master, he may be well to supply some. Bilbo, Herr Hitler will feel at home to hear, is the apothosis of the poor white politician. He has once been in jail, as Herr Hitler was himself. And he has often been the victim of just such misapprehensions, as to his motives and purposes, as have made the world estimate of the Fuehrer so unjustly low.

Fortunately, the record shows that Bilbo is a leader of the people of the greatest ingenuity and highest statesmanship. Did he not once suggest that all Mississippi's roads be paved with bricks of Mississippi clay, thus winning the votes of all Mississippi's back country farmers, who expected their infertile acres to be transformed into profitable clay mines? Was not that scheme worthy of comparison with some promises made by the Fuehrer himself?

Even the Bilboian talent for invective recalls the Fuehrer. He once described a Mississippi penitentiary warden as "the offspring of a byena and a mongrel, begotten in a graveyard at midnight, suckled by a sow and educated by a damned fool." A kinsman of the warden's caught up with him in a Mississippi day coach, and, after a long pursuit, succeeded in wounding him seriously on the brow.

Here again, Bilbo showed himself worthy of his position as the Fuehrer's friend. The wound was sedulously preserved for exhibition to the people, with the help, some unkind persons suspected, of occasional applications of water-color paint. It used to be displayed by Bilbo as proof that he had "suffered for the poor people of Mississippi," and in Bilboian perorations it was compared (once more the authentic Hitler note) to the wounds inflicted by the crown of thorns.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Mallett ENOUGH CAN HAPPEN Enough can happen on this earth On which we dwell to make us fret. Surely a deed has little worth That makes it even darker yet. Let's leave unsaid the angry word, Let's leave undone the act unkind. Enough can happen to be heard, Enough be felt to fret the mind. Enough can happen at the best, It needs not us to make it so. Enough of grief to grieve the rest, Without some grief that we bestow. Let's gently judge another's deeds, Not add another load to his, For care is something no one needs— Enough can happen as it is.

The Fine Arts Bill

Dorothy Thompson

The evolution of the Pepper-Coffey bill which has been recommended for revision to a subcommittee is interesting and important. This bill is called the Fine Arts Act, and its object is to provide for the continuation and modification of the Federal Arts Projects, originally started by the WPA in the course of the hearings in a very early stage of the administration. It has been heard from the groups of people who will be affected by it; and it has undergone great amendment. Nor has it yet reached a final form.

Several modifications are cheering. The preamble, or Declaration of Policy in the original bill, said, apropos the Federal Arts Projects: "During the entire history of the nation and up to the time of the creation of these projects, the arts were the jealously guarded possessions of the few and were not made available to the majority. Works of art were confined to privately incorporated museums, difficult to visit and to the completely inaccessible and private collections of wealthy patrons. Great music was played only by a few orchestras in the largest cities, at prices prohibitive to the average person etc. etc. etc."

This, and most of the rest of the preamble, was a rang appeal to demagogues and the most ardent nonsense. As far as music is concerned the people of the United States have access to more good and more great music than any other people on earth.

The American radio system furnishes superb orchestral programs at almost any hour of the day, seven days a week, to anybody who has a radio—and that is an incredibly large proportion of the people—for no price whatsoever, in contrast to many countries which levy taxes on individual radios.

In almost any sizable city of the country there are symphony orchestras which give free concerts on certain days of the week. The soul hungry for music in this country need not feed on the fat of heart despoise.

With very few exceptions our treasure houses of painting are open to the public free some of the time, and this holds for private as well as public collections. The American theater is too concentrated (almost wholly in New York) and too expensive for people of low incomes. That is due to many causes, and they are not comprehended in the criticism that, unlike the theater of some European countries, the stage was never publicly subsidized until the Federal Theater Project came along.

The theater in America has remained in the realm of highly speculative business adventure, never properly organized, and almost a racket.

The high price of a theater ticket is chiefly due to this fact—that the producer has a good chance to lose his shirt, and therefore hopes to clean up big on successful plays—and to the reactionary and monopolistic policies of the theater unions, particularly the technical unions.

The new bill spares us a Marxist lecture. It also eliminates the proposal of its predecessor to confine the administration of projects to include the theater, music, literature, the graphic and plastic arts, and the dance, to panels selected by the trade unions—in other words to turn the administration of the taxpayers' money over to the unions.

TRIAL FLIGHT

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES COPYRIGHT, 1934, BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS JACKIE DUNN—heroine; she wanted to fly. ROGER BRECKNER—hero; he wanted to test the stratosphere. BERYL MELROSE—wealthy widow; she wanted Roger. EVELYN LA FARGE—Jackie's mother; she wanted a son-in-law.

Yesterday, convinced of Roger's love, Jackie returns to him while Beryl leaves for New York, on a secret mission.

CHAPTER XXIII

It seemed to Jackie, going back to Roger, that the cab would never reach the hospital. Oh, what if Beryl had not come after her, kept her from leaving? Then she would never have known the truth about Roger, never would have known that he loved her.

This last thought was so tremendous that Jackie's heart beat faster than the spinning wheels. Beryl had said that it had been Jackie's name that Roger had called out in his delirium, that his belief that Beryl was Jackie had saved his life. Roger had not been merely acting then during their trial engagement. He had loved Jackie all the time, as she had loved him.

The cab pulled up in front of the hospital. In her excitement Jackie nearly forgot to pay the driver. She did forget her bag, so that the driver had to run up the steps with it after her.

"You sure are in a hurry, lady!" he said. "You may want your baggage, you know."

Jackie thanked him, accepting than I have to being a locomotive engineer.

Anyone who can write a sentence, not necessarily a grammatically correct one, can call himself a writer. Anybody who has ever walked on in a high school performance of The Royal Family can call himself an actor. Anyone who can do finger smears with water colors can call himself a painter.

This bill provides that the present lucky incumbents of jobs with federal relief projects are to be blanketed into the new projects at a minimum wage of $30 a week, regardless!

As for the "writer's project"—I cannot, to save my life, see how a writer's project can even be imagined in terms that make sense. The state can foster the arts in fields where the product can be collectively consumed. It can subsidize the decoration of public buildings; it can subsidize state theaters; it can organize and subsidize public orchestras.

But when it begins subsidizing writers, it is treading on extremely dangerous ground. Because the writer deals in ideas, to subsidize the expression of ideas will almost certainly lead, in the long run, to subsidizing the expression of the "right" ideas—if the project ever gets out of the guidebook stage. (And all guidebooks have nothing to do with writing. They are compilations.—A guidebook project should be called a spade and not a writer's project.)

The writer is in complete possession of the means of production. If he is a writer, that is to say, if his work has any relation to literature, to art, then he enjoys a natural monopoly. He has a market as free as can be imagined. There are 10,000 books published a year in this country. There are 13,000 newspapers and nearly 6,000 magazines.

All of them are looking, of course, for "names," but all of them, also, are looking for talent. I do not believe that there are any undiscovered major literary talents. I spend too much time with publishers. If any one can discover me a major talent I think I can find him a publisher.

The writer needs paper, pencils, a roof over his head and an adequate amount of food. If he is really a writer, and has these primary needs supplied, then nothing on earth can keep him from writing. For writing is, to the writer, a terrible whip and a form of somewhat excruciating relief, but he doesn't need a "project" and if he really has anything to say, he will shun a project as he would the plague.

The late George Horace Lorimer of "The Saturday Evening Post" was one of the greatest designers of writing projects that this country ever saw, and the minimum wage was princely, but even Mr. Lorimer lost many of his most talented people to insecurity and self-expression.

And if you should elevate "The New Masses" to the role of "The Saturday Evening Post" (by fiat) there would be the same experience with writers.

Besides, since when has writing been a "profession," a "job" except in these lamentable times? Walt Whitman earned his living as a government clerk, the late A. E. Housman as a Cambridge don; Archibald McLeish writes articles for "Fortune," to earn his living, and poetry to earn fame, Thornton Wilder was a schoolmaster and can become one again. Arthur Schnitzler, Alfred Doebelin, Somerset Maugham, A. E. Cronin and lots of other famous writers were or are physicians. Joseph Conrad was a ship's officer. The recent winner of the Finnish prize for the best novel of the year was a New York immigrant housemaid. Projects! For writers!

the bag. Before she opened the hospital door, she set it down a moment. She opened her purse and took out Roger's flying pin. With fingers that trembled she fastened it on the lapel over her heart. With head held high, cheeks flushed, golden fires dancing in her eyes, she hurried down the long silent corridor to the closed door at the far end.

As long as she lived Jackie knew she would never forget the light that sprang into Roger's eyes, that illuminated his whole face when that she had come back to him. It was a beautiful light. It told her, more eloquently than any words, that Roger loved her.

"You missed your train!" Roger said. His tone was gay. He tried to be casual but his face still glowed.

The nurse murmured something then about an errand she would attend, closing the door quietly as she slipped out of the room, proving that she had a feminine and an understanding heart hidden beneath the stiff starchiness of her crisp white uniform.

"Yes, I missed it," Jackie said. "On purpose."

"Of course." She crossed over to the bed, drew a chair up close beside it. She snatched off her hat, tossing it aside, so that once again the sunshine streaming in through the window made a brilliant halo of her golden hair.

"I decided I didn't want to go, Roger, after all. I decided I was wrong—about everything. That's why I came back."

"What made you decide that?" Roger asked. His glance was searching, questioning.

Jackie's gaze did not waver before it. "Because I love you, Roger," she said simply, honestly, the light that came into her eyes made her very lovely. So lovely that Roger had to turn away a moment before he could answer her.

"You love me? You don't mean that," he said. His tone still was gay and casual, except for an under-current of eagerness that no effort could suppress.

"I never meant anything so much in all my life," she went on. "I've been an awful little fool, Roger. Pretending I didn't want anything to do with love, building such wild, impossible day-dreams of what I would do with my life. Putting on an act, make-believe. I know now that nothing matters—except love. I love you, Roger—and I'm not ashamed to say it. I came back to tell you. I'd like to tell everyone—the whole world—that!"

"But you just told me—only a short while ago—that you had been putting on an act," Roger said. He would not look at her; he had managed to suppress all eagerness now, Jackie. In fact this was just another one, Jackie. In fact I'm sure of it. You only think I'm sure of it. You only think you love me—or at least you're only saying it. Because you feel sorry for me, because I cracked-up, because I'm not much good any more."

"Don't say that!" She got to her feet, bent over to silence him with a finger held against his lips. Oh, he was so dear—so near to her. She would have liked to have drawn his head down against her breast, liked to have shut out that look of pain in his blue eyes, holding him close against her heart. "It's not that. I'm not sorry for you. Why should I be? Soon you'll be just as you always were, we'll forget all about all this... your crack-up, the hospital."

"You don't know what you're saying!" His voice was harsh. "Hitt's akin to love, you know. Hasn't Beryl told you—the truth about me?" He looked at her now, into her eyes—a look that would not let her glance away. (To Be Continued)

SWISS VISITS PLANT Menominee—The magnitude of industrial plants in the United States and the friendliness of Americans are chief impressions gained by Anton Loreh, Zurich, Switzerland, patent finder and furniture manufacturer, now in Menominee conferring with Lloyd Manufacturing company officials on his first visit to this country.

Loreh arrived in Menominee Tuesday morning and will leave tomorrow for Gardner, Mass., home of the Heywood-Wakefield company. He is in the United States to acquaint himself with American manufacturing methods, and has, by reason of U. S. patents owned by him, over which the Heywood-Wakefield company holds exclusive license, been associated with the H-W company for two years.

UNIT CHANGE PROTESTED Iron Mountain—Organized in February of last year, after an exhaustive inquiry by members of the board of supervisors, and established after almost a year of negotiation between the county and the state department of health, the Dickinson county health unit is threatened with an abrupt end, according to developments here yesterday.

Members of the county health committee, meeting at the unit's offices last night with a similar delegation from Iron county—likewise threatened—were unanimously indignant and, after the conference, filed messages of protest to Dr. Don W. Gudakunst, state health commissioner.

Denmark has the most highly organized agricultural industry in the world.

VOGEL GIVES TALK

Marquette—"Tourist travel has become the greatest upper peninsula industry," said A. R. Vogel, of Escanaba, upper peninsula director of the state highway department, on a talk which he gave at the meeting of the Marquette Garden club held Tuesday night in the assembly room of the Peter White public library.

"The combined earnings of eating establishments, gas stations, resorts, hotels and other public agencies, while small when measured as individual units, would dwarf our earnings from other businesses."

"To continue and increase the revenue from this source requires intelligent foresight. If we destroy the features that attract vacationists, we also destroy tourist interest. Stump lands, unattractive wastes and shorelines covered with shacks will not attract people though we provide concrete roads for every foot of travel. When new scenic roads are built, destructive factors follow in their wake. We must turn to landscaping to protect these highways."

Clinics Planned For Children Of Pre-School Age

BY DR. E. J. BRENNER
Director, Local Health Unit.

With the closing of the schools in the very near future, plans must be made for the preparation of youngsters that are being entered into school next fall, for the first time. Although up to the present, the child may have been free from attacks of communicable disease, that freedom will no longer be as possible due to the contact with so many more children.

It is the duty of every parent to take advantage of every possible means available to prevent disease. At the same time all defects that may tend to hinder the advancement of the child in school should be corrected before the child begins school. With these thoughts in mind the local Parent-Teachers organizations in co-operation with the Alger-Schoolcraft Health Department are sponsoring several pre-school and infant clinics in Manistique in June.

At these clinics all children will be given a thorough physical examination and the parents informed of any defects found and advised to take the child to their family physician for the correction of the defect. At the same time, the child will be vaccinated against smallpox and immunized against diphtheria if the parent so wishes. All those desiring to be tuberculin tested will also be able to have this done. All parents are urged to bring their children to the clinics which will be held in the various schools of the city. Further information may be obtained by calling the Health Department. The first clinic will be held at Lincoln school, Thursday, June 2, 1938.

ROBBERS ENTER PEOPLES STORE

Entrance Is Gained by Forcing Window on Second Story

Burglars broke into the Peoples Store building here during the night Thursday, by gaining entrance through a second story window, escaped with some wearing apparel, at least part of which was recovered, and $4.93 in cash.

Bars which were on the outside of the windows were sprung apart to permit the burglar, or burglars, to enter after a window lock was sprung open, probably with a pick axe which was found near the building. It is believed the robber used a ladder to gain access to the second story window, although it would not be impossible to climb to the second story window by using the lower window bars for steps.

The cash which was missing was taken from a drawer in the office. All other cash had either been banked, or locked in the vault.

Clothing which had been moved included some women's dresses, six pairs of women's hose, a woman's traveling bag, six men's jackets and a Gladstone bag. The dresses and women's hose, however, were found in the traveling bag thrown between two buildings on Oak street, and the men's jackets were found in the Gladstone bag within the store.

Apparently the burglars had become frightened after leaving the store, and had disposed of the traveling bag containing the dresses and women's hose.

Why the burglar wrapped six jackets in the Gladstone bag and failed to take it with him when he left is another problem which officials are wondering about.

Either in entering or leaving the building, the burglar knocked a telephone receiver off its base. The telephone operator on duty reported that the light signal, which remained on all night, flashed at the exchange between 11 p. m. and midnight.

Law enforcement officials are conducting an examination in the case.

Michigan In Washington

By Esther Van Wagoner Tufty Only two Michigan Republicans—Albert J. Engel, of Muskegon, and George A. Dondero, of Royal Oak—voted for the House Wage-Hour bill.

Anyone who expected a demonstration of joy to follow the passage of the House Wage-Hour bill was disappointed last Tuesday night. Probably everyone was a little dissatisfied with it. Besides the most ardent supporter was weary, hungry, and adjournment-restless.

The reactions of the Michigan delegation were typical. The Democratic bloc voted solidly for it—but even some of them would have preferred the original labor bill, which was re-committed, to this frank compromise measure.

Pittsburgh, May 27 (AP)—Bill Lee's right arm and Gabby Hartnett's big bat sank the revamped Pirates, 5 to 0, today and carried Chicago's Cubs to within two games of first place in the National League.

Lee hurled a six-hitter and allowed only two runners to get past second base, and Hartnett hammered a three-run homer and pair of singles to stretch the Cubs' winning streak to four straight.

CHARLEY YATES IN GOLF FINALS

Troon, Scotland Match Won on 19th Hole As 10,000 Watch

BY SCOTTY RESTON Troon, Scotland, May 27 (AP)—One hundred yards from the sea and nine feet from glory, Charley Yates of Atlanta stood on the nineteenth green of the old Troon course this evening and made golfing history as 10,000 Scots surrounded him.

When the ball vanished into the cup, Yates took off his cap. One American let out the southern rebel yell. Charley looked around and smiled. He was in the final round of the British amateur—the first American ever to get there without previous competitive experience in the gusting, veering winds of these sea-side links.

Tomorrow in the 36-hole final he meets Cecil Ewing, conqueror of U. S. Walker Cup Captain Francis Outimet on Wednesday and of C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of Canada, 2 up, in the other semi-final this afternoon. The gigantic Irish insurance agent, one of the longest hitters in the game, is determined and, for this week at least, a lucky golfer. But he is given only a 1 to 2 chance of beating the Atlantan.

CAR OF VICTIM IS FOUND HERE

Black Sedan Discovered Near South Park Was Used in Crime

A dust-covered black sedan which Escanaba police found abandoned near the local tourist park on Friday, May 20, has been identified as the automobile of the Rev. M. N. Berger of Racine, Wis., in which he was kidnapped last week by two armed men. The pastor, who is in charge of the First Evangelical church of Racine, was unharmed in the six-hour abduction, during which his captors robbed a Rochester, Wis., tavern of $50.

License plates had been removed from the car, and it was identified through the factory serial number on the motor. It was found on a dump near the edge of the water, its top barely visible from the highway. The doors were locked, as was the ignition switch. The car was towed to a local garage, to be held in storage pending the arrival of insurance adjusters.

No clues were found in the black sedan, which was covered with dust and mud. A thorough inspection of its interior showed nothing that had been left behind by the kidnap pair.

Local Fair Missing

On the same day, Friday, May 20, an automobile was reported stolen by Ray DeGrand, North 18th street. Chief Michael Ettenhoffer of the local police department stated yesterday that he did not believe the theft of the local car was connected with the abandonment of the pastor's sedan, as the latter was a late-model car and that reported stolen by DeGrand was 10 years old.

The car belonging to the Racine pastor appeared to be in running order when found. All tires were hard, there was gasoline in the tank and oil in the motor. Chief Ettenhoffer stated that he did not believe that the fugitives would abandon a car in such good condition for an old one, though he pointed out that they may have abandoned the black sedan first and then been unable to get anything better than the 10-year-old auto.

Senior Issue Of Escanaban Given To Public Friday

The Senior Issue of the local high school paper, the Escanaban, was distributed Friday morning. This special edition takes the place of a school annual.

For sixteen years, the Escanaban has been the medium through which the community could learn of school life. After three weeks work the nineteenth issue for this year is ready for distribution. The 1938 senior class is the largest to be graduated in the history of the school, the paper containing 215 pictures of the graduates and articles written by them.

The eighteen page paper was made up and printed under the direction of Miss Nina Ley and George Grab, assembled by the staff, and contributed to by the senior English classes and the journalism students.

During 1935, England produced 17,000 books. This is equivalent to two volumes every hour, day and night, for the year.

also be planned. Details will be worked out at the meeting to be held next Wednesday evening.

Four Students At Municipal Airport Get Solo Licenses

The four are Lilian Nelson, Carl Arntzen, William Thorin and Jack Whitney, a fifth student, Marian Stratton, is qualified to receive a solo license but was out of the city when the district inspector visited the local field yesterday.

The solo license permits the pilot to fly a ship alone, at the local field or cross-country, but does not permit carrying passengers.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT
"Blondes at Work," another of those exciting and amusing film stories about "Torchy Blue," the girl reporter, had its first local showing yesterday at the Delft Theatre.

This is the fourth in the series of the adventures of the fast-talking, wise-cracking and somewhat hard-boiled female journalist—played imitatively by Glenda Farrell.

And, as in the previous "Torchy" yarns, her boy friend, Police Lieutenant Steve McBride, is portrayed by big, burly Barton MacLane.

The story of a vitriolic Broadway columnist and stage star, "Love Is a Headache," at the Delft Theatre, offers Gladys George and Franchot Tone in a delightful mélange of romance and comedy.

"Love Is a Headache" concerns Miss George as a beautiful stage star involved in a mix-up over some orphaned children.

AT THE MICHIGAN
A mystery within a mystery in which a crook chases a killer to prove his innocence provides a basis for one of the season's most thrilling adventure dramas in "Arsene Lupin Returns," which opened Friday at the Michigan Theatre.

Melvyn Douglas, who has climbed into public favor recently scores with a vigorous performance as Arsene Lupin, international adventurer.

Would-be Lucky Teeler Crashes; Stand Is Empty

No salvos of applause marked the sensational debut of Freddie Saykly, Escanaba's would-be Lucky Teeler of the famed Hell Drivers who appeared at the Upper Peninsula fair last fall.

Freddie received no applause in spite of the fact that he went through all the dangerous maneuvers of the intrepid Lucky Teeler, even to tipping the car over right in front of the grandstands at the fairgrounds. The applause wasn't there, largely because there wasn't a person in the grandstand.

According to city police, Saykly, with two companions, was spinning around the fairgrounds track Thursday night, enjoying the good, hard track and nice banked turns. Coming out of the turn at one end, however, Saykly lost control of the car, it swerved several times, caught a frog and turned turtle directly in front of the stands.

Slightly injured, the three occupants of the car, which was badly damaged, emerged from the bottom end and were taken to a local physician by members of the American Legion drum and bugle corps, who were holding drill practice in the infield.

Pistol Tourney To Be New Feature Of Annual State Fair

The Michigan conservation department, state police and other law enforcement agencies of the Upper Peninsula will cooperate in staging a pistol shooting tournament at the state fair here August 9 to 14, it was announced yesterday.

Sergeants Ralph Sheahan and Charles Engle of the state police post at Marquette, Robert McLaughlin of Marquette, educational supervisor of the conservation department, and Timothy Hurley, Marquette county member of the fair board, were here yesterday to locate a site for the pistol range. It will be located along the west fence of the fairgrounds, back of the grandstand.

Excavation work for the range will be started today. The erection of a concrete wall, 21 feet high, to serve as a barrier will be launched later.

Members of the state police, conservation department, local police and sheriff's departments, private pistol clubs and other shooting enthusiasts will compete in the tournament. Suitable medals will be awarded to winners. The meet will be conducted under the supervision of the National Rifle association.

All shiny and new and full of pep it started its work of carrying Fair Store customers up and down, from floor to floor, thirty-five years ago. During that time "Old Faithful" made 8,881,000 trips . . . traveled almost 35,140 miles.

But its day is over. Tomorrow it meets its doom at the hands of the wreckers . . . and another shiny new elevator takes over its work.

We say goodbye to "Old Faithful" with a touch of regret. We'll miss its creaks and groans, its trembles and jerks. Its many friends (and the enemies it acquired on the days when it wore a sign "Out of Order, Please Take The Stairs") will have their last ride on "Old Faithful" today.
