BARKLEY SAYS SPENDING BILL SURE TO PASS

RESTRICTIONS VOTED DOWN AT WISH OF PRESIDENT

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Senate leaders failed tonight to bring the administration relief bill to a vote, but predicted certain approval of the $3,422,000,000 measure tomorrow.

Senator Barkley (D-Ky) the majority leader, abruptly ended the chamber's second night session on the bill at mid-evening when it became apparent that debate might continue for hours.

No Strings on PWA Just previously, Barkley won a two-vote victory in a fight against an amendment by Senator Hatch (D-NM) restricting political activity by WPA administrative employees.

The Hatch proposal offered as an amendment to the spending-lending bill, was defeated, 39 to 37. Barkley vigorously opposed it, contending it would do nothing to prevent political activity by state employees.

Earlier, the chamber rejected by a voice vote an amendment forbidding the use of PWA funds for the construction of utility plants which would duplicate existing privately-owned systems.

Allotment Increased It acted after Barkley had reported President Roosevelt opposed the restriction. Barkley said, however, that Mr. Roosevelt would allot no PWA funds for utility construction until municipalities had "in good faith" made a reasonable offer to buy out existing plants.

Earlier, the chamber overrode recommendations of its appropriations committee to voted an appropriation of $25,000,000 for the PWA.

While announcing the president's opposition to the proposed restriction, Barkley tempered it with a statement that Mr. Roosevelt would not allot funds for utility construction until municipalities had made "reasonable" offers in "good faith" to buy existing private plants.

President Is Judge Barkley said, under questioning, that Mr. Roosevelt would judge whether offers were reasonable and whether they had been advanced in good faith.

The proposed restriction was recommended by the appropriations committee as an amendment to the administration's spending-lending bill. Prior to the vote which killed the proposal, the senate rejected, 46 to 30, a compromise advanced by Senator Maloney (D-Conn).

The Maloney amendment provided a system of compulsory arbitration under which cities and utilities would agree on prices at which cities could buy existing privately-owned plants.

The two proposals came to a vote after five hours debate which found Barkley and other administration stalwarts lining up against them.

CHINESE BOTTLE UP JAP FORCES

Relief Column Crosses Yellow River Trying to Make Rescue

Shanghai, June 3 (Friday) (AP)—Under cover of artillery fire, a Japanese relief column today began crossing the Yellow river at Chengliukow Ford north of Lanfeng in an effort to rescue the beleaguered forces of Lieut. Gen. Kenjo Dohara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria."

Chinese, advancing from Lanfeng, reported their encircling columns were driving Dohara toward the banks of the Yellow river.

(A Peking dispatch quoted a Japanese army spokesman as admitting that Dohara was bottled up, but saying his troops were attacking the surrounding Chinese determinedly.)

"By no means can it be said that he is retreating," the spokesman asserted.

(He declared the approach of Japanese reinforcements from Kwetche, east of Lanfeng, was making the Chinese nervous and that they were beginning to withdraw to the west.)

(One Japanese column, the spokesman said, had reached Lihou, on the Lungshai railway, and a motorized unit was at Kun-chuehchung after brisk engagements with Chinese forces met en route. Both towns are about 40 miles east of Lanfeng.)

After 23 days and nights of battle, the exhausted armies in the Lanfeng sector carried on the fighting in a downpour of rain, still stalemated.

Sing Sing Convict Saved By Governor From Electrocution

Albany, N. Y., June 2 (AP)—Governor Lehman tonight commuted to life imprisonment the sentence of Fred J. Hull, 54, a few hours before his scheduled electrocution in Sing Sing prison for the murder of Samuel Drukman.

The governor explained the court of appeals had split, 5 to 2, in affirming Hull's first-degree murder conviction and said the two judges dissented because they believed the evidence failed to prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Hull won a reversal of a second-degree murder conviction arising from the slaying of Drukman in Brooklyn three years ago, was retried and then convicted of the more serious charge.

Meyer and Harry Luckman, who were arrested with Hull in a Brooklyn garage where police found Drukman's body in an automobile, were convicted of second degree murder through efforts of Hiram C. Todd, appointed special prosecutor in the case by Governor Lehman after a grand jury had refused to indict the trio.

The Luckmans did not appeal the conviction with Hull, who was accused by Todd of being the "paid slinger."

DIPLOMAS ARE GIVEN MIDDIES BY ROOSEVELT

GRADUATES ADVISED TO STUDY WORLD PROBLEMS

BY JOSEPH H. SHORT Annapolis, Md., June 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt, one of whose greatest loves is the navy, advised members of the Annapolis graduating class today to study world problems, then gave a diploma to each of the 435 men who had successfully finished their four years work.

The president ended the naval academy graduating exercises in the setting of flag and bunting draped Dahlgren Hall. Before him as he spoke were the white uniformed graduates, with their families and gaily dressed girl guests just behind. The remainder of the midshipmen regiment formed a bank of blue in tiers of seats around the walls of the hall.

Girls Get Laugh Introduced to the midshipmen by his ex-aid, Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, academy superintendent, the president said he had only one "friendly suggestion" to add to the advice given them during their school days—be "well rounded in your knowledge."

He added to his prepared text, however, just before presenting the bachelor of science degrees to the graduates by making one more suggestion.

"Do not place too much emphasis on the word bachelor," he said, as the midshipmen and their girls joined in resounding laughter.

The president said with emphasis "your commander-in-chief is proud of you," after telling of the importance of a well-rounded education.

He said that no matter what the graduates planned to do in life, "remember that you will never reach the top unless you are well-rounded in your knowledge of all the other factors in modern civilization that lie outside your own special profession."

Quadrant Presented The president said that knowledge would come best in two ways, "experiences of your daily life" and by taking advantage of "the opportunity constantly to widen your knowledge."

He told on himself won a big laugh. It was about a day when he was assistant secretary of the navy and fell asleep during graduation exercises here.

The president, who arrived at the academy to the boom of a 21-gun salute and the sounding "Hail to the Chief" by the academy band, shook hands with each of the graduates as he gave out the diplomas. He smiled and nodded to each, too, and it appeared that he spoke a word or two to some of those in the long white rank.

During the ceremony, he received from L. D. MacLaren, mayor of St. Johns, New Brunswick, Canada, the quadrant used by John Paul Jones, "father of the American navy." The presentation was made in the presence of Sir Herbert Morier, Canadian minister to Washington.

Mr. Roosevelt hailed the gift of the quadrant, a navigating instrument, as another evidence of Canadian-American good will in mid-afternoon the president motored back to the White House.

Big Oil Firms Fined $360,000 At Madison For Profit Fixing

Madison, Wis., June 2 (AP)—Thirteen major oil companies and 11 of their officials were fined a total of $360,000 and $25,000 costs by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone today on charges of illegally fixing the margin of profit for midwestern independent gasoline jobbers.

Accepting the defendants' pleas of nolo contendere — by which they were willing to receive penalties without standing trial—the court imposed fines of $15,000 on each company and individual.

The defendants are to split costs of $25,000.

Nine other companies and eight individuals refused to enter nolo contendere pleas and will go on trial here Sept. 26. Government prosecutors originally listed the companies as eight, instead of nine, but later added the name of the Deep Rock Oil corporation of Tulsa, Okla., to those who are

Blast At Scranton, Pa., Kills Ten, Injures Six

Scranton, Pa., June 2 (AP)—Ten men were killed and six injured today in an explosion of gas almost a mile down in the Volpe Coal company's mine. It was the second major mine disaster.

Rescue crews, wearing gas masks, worked down the slope in search of at least two other miners reported to have been in the mine at the time of the blast.

The dead were Alex Glanko and John Clark, both of Mooste; John Kowaleski, Martin Wozneski, and John Lukuta, John Phillips, Adam Mark, Gus Bostick and Michael Guzy, all of Dupont, and Sam Adonizio of Hightstown.

The injured were taken to the Pittston hospital, two miles from the mine.

Seriously injured were Peter Morgantini, of Pittston, and Joseph Waskiewicz, of Dupont. They were treated for skull fractures and burns.

Others hurt were Peter Daslak, of Wyoming; Warner Post, of Scranton; Peter Nardone of Pittston, and Joseph Musto.

Musto, whose ribs were fractured, was the last to come up from the mine. He walked out unaided.

Those who survived the blast said a rock fall preceded the explosion, shutting off the ventilation, and that accumulated gases were ignited either by the miners' lamps or sparks from motors. Governor George H. Earle, IV, to investigate the explosion. Young Earle joined the governor's staff as an assistant secretary this week. He left Harrisburg by airplane.

The blast was the second in eastern Pennsylvania in a little more than a month. Eight were killed and ten injured April 27 by an explosion in the St. Clair Coal company mine, near Pottsville, in the southern anthracite field.

MURPHY ASKING MORE U. S. HELP

Complete Shutdown of Automotive Plants Is Foreseen

Lansing, June 2 (AP)—Governor Murphy said tonight that he would bolster an appeal for additional federal unemployment aid for Michigan with a warning that automotive industries "are moving into a complete shutdown."

The governor said he would leave for Washington Sunday or Monday for a series of conferences with federal officials that will keep him in the east for four days or more. He is to be the commencement speaker at St. John's university, Brooklyn, on Tuesday.

Murphy said a complete shutdown of automotive industries, which would mean "several thousand" more unemployed in Michigan in the next month or two, combined with the fact that a speed-up had brought locally sponsored WPA projects in the state to virtual completion would impose a new burden upon state and community relief funds unless federal aid is forthcoming.

"I believe an adequate and complete works program would be the ideal method of meeting relief needs," the governor said. "But if supplemental grants should provide us with $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 a month more we'd be enormously helped in getting through the summer. Michigan is the state that needs the most help."

Murphy will receive his eighth honorary degree from St. John's university.

Two Michigan Air Tours Announced

Lansing, June 2 (AP)—Two separate air tours over Michigan were announced today by Wayne J. Sheldon, executive secretary of the Michigan Aeronautic association.

The first tour will be a speed contest for light planes of 50 horsepower or less and will start July 24 at Lansing. The wind-up will be at the capitol city August 2 after visits to most of the major cities in the state.

The second tour will be between August 20 and 27 and is for sportsmen-pilots. It will take them to an undesignated camp in northern Michigan, whence daily flights to beauty spots will be arranged.

Kettle Explosion In Detroit Plant Kills 2 Workers

Detroit, June 2 (AP)—Two men were fatally injured today in a steam kettle explosion at the Brick and Block Co. plant. Four others were injured, two of them critically.

George Haase, 60, plant superintendent, and George E. Schwark, 24, were the victims. Haase was thrown approximately 40 feet by the blast. Schwark died in a hospital tonight.

Plant officials said that the kettle had been tested Thursday morning and that they were unable to explain the explosion. The kettle is a kiln-like structure about 85 feet long and 12 feet wide used for curing wet bricks and blocks.

JAPAN AGREES TO GIVE BACK U.S. PROPERTY

STRONG NOTE GETS QUICK RESULTS IN CHINA

Washington, June 2 (AP)—With a swiftness astonishing in modern diplomacy, Japan gave in along most of the line today to United States demands for restitution of American property in China and return of American businessmen and missionaries to their former posts.

Japan began to act within a few hours after the receipt of the strong American note announced yesterday and delivered Tuesday.

Her first step, announced in a telegram from American Consul General Frank P. Lockhart at Shanghai, was to agree Tuesday to the return to Nanking of American missionaries formerly resident there. Lockhart said ten passes had been issued for this purpose.

Schools Restored The second step was the restoration Wednesday of the two high schools of the American Southern Baptist mission in the Chapel district of Shanghai.

These were formally turned back to the mission by Japanese authorities in the presence of the treasurer and two other representatives of the mission, and consular authorities, and a representative of the American consul general.

The property lies within the zone where the Chinese and Japanese battled during the initial hostilities in and around Shanghai. It was first occupied by Chinese forces; they were driven out by the Japanese, who took it over.

The third step, reported in a telegram from Ambassador Grew at Tokyo, was the announcement made today by the Japanese foreign office that Japan is sending an interdepartmental committee to visit the Japanese-controlled area in central China.

Must Pay Damages The purpose is "not only to investigate the situation relating to the occupancy of American property but also to formulate means for satisfactory adjustment of the situation."

This, according to the state department, refers particularly to the representations made by Ambassador Grew with regard to the $1,000,000 University of Shanghai, owned by the Northern and Southern Baptist mission boards and now occupied by Japanese troops.

The interdepartmental committee, composed of representatives of the foreign office, the army and the navy, is leaving for Shanghai by air.

It is assumed that this committee will proceed to settle points still at issue, which are:

The return of missionaries to points other than Nanking in the interior.

The actual turning back to the Baptist missions of the Shanghai university.

Payment for damages suffered by the university and other mission and business properties belonging to Americans in China.

The return of American businessmen to their former offices. It is hoped Japan will not seek to make a distinction between American missionaries and American businessmen. The suspicion is current here that Japan, although permitting her own civilian businessmen to enter the occupied areas, has been keeping out the American businessmen in hopes of capturing their trade.

Health Certificates Required For Dogs Taken On Vacations

Lansing, June 2 (AP)—Michigan citizens were warned today by State Agricultural Commissioner John B. Strange to obtain health certificates for their dogs if they intend taking them into other states.

He said this state would enforce a regulation requiring health certificates for dogs brought into Michigan in order to check a growing outbreak of rabies and that other states planned similar action.

Applicants for certificates should apply to Dr. C. H. Clark, Lansing, state veterinarian.

Berrien county today became the seventh in the state to be placed under dog quarantine, the regulation to exist until August 29.

Crime Victim

Led by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, an army of 2,000 men yesterday vainly searched woods and fields in the vicinity of Princeton, Fla., for a trace of little Jimmy Cash, 5, above, who was kidnapped from bed in his home. Indications were that federal agents had given up hope of finding him alive.

Many Questioned J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, who flew to Miami to take personal command, said he had no statement to make as he left FBI headquarters to go to dinner.

His eyes apparently were continuing to question a number of persons they thought might throw some light on the crime. The Miami Herald said they included Willard Campbell, Miami roadhouse proprietor; John Campbell, his brother, who operates a resort at Princeton; James Herndon, M. F. Braxton and his son-in-law, Ray Rayburn.

CUT IN SCHOOL AID PROTESTED

Governor Blames Flood of Letters and Wires to Press Group

Lansing, June 2 (AP)—A flood of telegrams protesting against proposed reductions in state aid to public schools was characterized by Governor Murphy today as inspired by pressure groups.

Commenting on more than 2,000 telegrams received in his office, Murphy said it was obvious "someone or some group by misinformation is agitating and lobbying among the school teachers. It looks as though some of this is political."

Murphy produced a circular which he said had been distributed among school teachers asking them to send the telegrams. He said the circular referred to "an announcement" that school aid would be reduced 40 per cent next year.

"I'm the governor and I haven't heard of any such cut," he said. He explained, however, that every agency of government will have to take its share of the retrenchment program. Murphy said many of the telegrams included objections to the fact that the highway department is receiving $1,750,000 a year from the general fund.

The governor promised that nothing would be done to harm the schools and the reduction in state aid would be "convincing."

The governor's views, however, were countered by Dr. A. J. Phillips, executive secretary of the Michigan Education Association. Phillips asserted "telegrams and letters from friends of schools to the offices of Governor Murphy as an indication of the alarm because of rumored further reductions in state-aid for schools next year. With school budgets running behind several million dollars this year, any further decreases in school funds would very seriously affect the operation of our schools."

Missouri Priest Killed By Robber

Centralia, Mo., June 2 (AP)—Father Charles Einig, a Catholic priest, was shot and killed tonight by one of two men who entered his home here.

City Marshal Irvin Kuhne said the men, apparently bent on robbery, slugged the priest's housekeeper with a blackjack.

Kuhne said the housekeeper was in a highly nervous state and unable to give a statement.

One of the men was white and wore a mask. Kuhne said he was told. The other was reported to be an unmasked negro.

They entered the priest's home without knocking. The housekeeper, Kuhne said, attempted to jerk the mask from the white man's face and one of the two slugged her as they fled to the door.

Father Einig followed them to the porch where he was shot.

FALL IS FATAL

Oxford, Mich., June 2 (AP)—Walter Williams, about 35, of Pontiac, was fatally injured late today when he fell between two railroad cars on a siding at the Ward Sand and Gravel Co. He had been engaged in loading the cars. He died shortly after admission to St. Joseph's hospital, Pontiac.

WILD COUNTRY IN FLORIDA IS COMBED OVER

REWARD IS POSTED FOR FINDERS OF RANSOM BILLS

Princeton, Fla., June 2 (AP)—Numerous reports of a "break" in the Jimmy Cash kidnaping case caused recurring flurries of excitement tonight in this south Florida village while some 2,000 men searched in vain for some trace of the five-year-old child over an area of 80 square miles.

The reports—all without confirmation—related that the youngster had been found dead, that federal agents in Miami had obtained a confession from one of the many persons they questioned, and that a man had been found whose fingerprints corresponded to those on notes demanding the $10,000 ransom which was paid by the boy's father.

Many Questioned J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal bureau of investigation, who flew to Miami to take personal command, said he had no statement to make as he left FBI headquarters to go to dinner.

His eyes apparently were continuing to question a number of persons they thought might throw some light on the crime. The Miami Herald said they included Willard Campbell, Miami roadhouse proprietor; John Campbell, his brother, who operates a resort at Princeton; James Herndon, M. F. Braxton and his son-in-law, Ray Rayburn.

John Manuel, negro at whose shack the kidnapers left a ransom note, shouting to him to deliver it to Jimmy Cash, Sr., was understood to have been questioned as to whether he could recognize the note.

The FBI posted a reward of double the face value for finders of the first 100 ransom bills, the serial numbers of which were distributed yesterday.

It also broadcast a description of the 5-year-old blond, blue-eyed youngster containing this poignant line after stating the height of 3 feet, 7 inches:

"Note: This height was obtained from a mark placed on a wall within the past several weeks by the father in measuring the actual height of the boy."

All indications were that the federal agents had given up hope of finding him alive. Whether the parents still cling to any hope was a secret they kept to themselves behind the locked door of their frame combination store and apartment building. Mrs. Cash was understood to have obtained some sleep after an anxious vigil which brought her near collapse.

Convict Clothes Found All Princeton was on edge. The crowds got out of hand when an exhausted member of the searching party fainted in the street. An ambulance clanged up and several hundred persons, brushing police aside, stamped to see whether it was the Cash boy.

Hoover held a press conference at Miami 25 miles north of here, but limited his comment to the observation that this farming region was the worst country in which his men ever hunted. He said all persons questioned so far had appeared voluntarily but declined to disclose how many there were or give their names.

The volunteer searchers turned in a number of articles culled from the woods and fields. Among them were two complete convict outfits, but Sheriff D. C. Coleman expressed doubt they had any connection with the kidnaping.

Divers and Boats Help Little Princeton, a village of 600, resembled an armed camp as the forces in khaki hunting togs and veterans uniforms, many wearing pistols, milled through the streets. The Red Cross set up field kitchens to feed them.

Barriers Are Down To Remove Foreign Troops From Spain

London, June 2 (AP)—Withdrawal of foreign fighters from the Spanish civil war drew nearer toward reality tonight after nearly two years of bickering among Europe's major powers.

If the plan works out, Great Britain will throw her diplomatic power into an effort to bring about a truce in Spain.

(In Paris, Jose Antonio Aguirre, former president of the Basque republic, admitted the possibility of mediation by outside powers in the Spanish war.)

(Aguirre said he expected to have a statement on the matter "within five or six days.")

Soviet Russia, at a meeting of the nine-nation non-intervention sub-committee, agreed to the proposal for sending commissions to Spain for removing 10,000 volunteers from each side as a sign of good will.

Remembering many previous disappointments in the efforts to obtain agreement on withdrawal, the British foreign office warned against undue optimism over today's development.

Armistice Proposed

But it admitted at the same time that the situation was "roster" than any time since the "hands-off Spain" committee held its first meeting Sept. 9, 1936.

While Russia agreed to the plan for sending commissions into Spain, her representative, Samuel Kagan, demanded strict enforcement of sea control of the country and refused to agree to contribute the assessment against Russia for financing the withdrawal.

The problems at issue between Russia and Britain—considered here not to be irreconcilable—are to be discussed at a meeting of the non-intervention sub-committee called for June 10.

The British foreign office again began studying the possibility of arranging an armistice between the belligerents in Spain.

It was none too hopeful, however, because the withdrawal of volunteers first must be arranged and because of the almost impossible task of getting the Spanish government and insurgents to agree.

Trouble In Corn Belt

How Farmers View Crop Control Measures

Application for Membership Corn Belt Liberty League

MACOMB, ILL.

For the Purpose of Fighting Compulsory Farm Control

Chief figures in the Corn Belt Liberty League are Tilden Burg, president, left, and Con James, secretary-treasurer, shown as they worked over papers of the organization in their modest office in Macomb, Ill. Above the heads of the men is superimposed a membership card of the League, plainly stating its purpose of "fighting compulsory farm control."

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Macomb, Ill.—Even before the new-planted corn crop has had time to germinate, the rich black soil of southwestern Illinois is sprouting the year's first political crop.

Macomb, a small town-island of 8000 people in the great surrounding sea of alternate green and black squares of rich land, is an appropriate seed-bed for the Corn Belt Liberty League, which started here and which is gradually trying to unite under a single organization widespread protests against the current farm program.

In one room above a local movie theater, with an improvised sign on the door, Tilden Burg, president; Con James, secretary and treasurer; and John P. Carley, corresponding secretary, are attempting to weld together farmers throughout the Corn Belt who believe that their acreage allotments are unjust, or who fear that present farm policies may lead on to "dictatorship over the farmer."

Despite widespread publicity suggesting a "1938 farm revolt," the beginnings of the Corn Belt Liberty League are comparatively modest. Thousands have attended organizing meetings in four states, but the number who have signed up with the League and paid their $2 membership is uncertain. Officers say they have not tabulated the cards.

MANY MEMBERSHIP CARDS BUT NO CONSTITUTION YET
But a good guess can be made. In McDonough County, where the movement started a month ago, a membership of about 1000 is claimed. The county has 3000 farms.

In all, 10,000 application cards have been distributed by mail or in organizational meetings. It is doubtful that as many as 2000 signed cards have been received, but more are coming in almost daily. By the end of May, based on meetings scheduled, organization should have been effected in about 20 counties of the 566 counties included in the commercial corn-growing area. Its constitution and by-laws are only now being written.

The movement had its origin in disappointment and indignation at the corn allotments made to farmers in this area—that is, the acreage each may plant to corn if he is to share later in soil conservation benefits and in the corn program itself. Meeting in front of a store, a group fell to comparing notes. Mutual dissatisfaction was evident.

Most emphatic was Tilden Burg, who lives on his own 160-acre corn farm near Sciota, and who rents and farms another 540 acres.

On his own quarter-section of 164 acres, he was allowed 103.3 acres in soil-depleting crops, of which 54.7 acres was allotted to corn. This was a reduction of between 10 and 20 per cent under his last year's corn acreage.

CONTENDS NEW FARM PROGRAM IS TOO RIGID
In the neat parlor of his well-kept white farmhouse, Burg tells what was in his mind:

"It's too rigid. They say I can plant only so much corn. They don't know my special need at any time. Maybe I have mortgage payments to meet. Maybe I've got sickness bills to meet. I need more corn in some particular year. But they say I can't plant it."

"If the program had stayed on a voluntary line this would never have happened. But farmers don't like to be told what they must plant and how much. 'Must' don't go with us."

Burg is paying no heed to his acreage quota and is putting in $200 worth of high-priced special seed corn.

WANTS TO KEEP THE LEAGUE BI-PARTISAN
Obviously in earnest, he denies the political aspect of his organization which is read into it by the local Democratic weekly.

"Our board in this county is three Democrats and three Republicans," he points out. "That is what we want all county organizations to do. Of course some of them may not do it, but we can't help that."

Burg receives no salary. He laughs at rumors that the U. S. Chamber of Commerce on the Chicago Board of Trade are subsidizing the organization.

"There is certainly not the slightest evidence in the simple setup of the Corn Belt Liberty League that outside influences, either financial or political, are taking a hand in its affairs. On the other hand, there is no doubt at all that local and state politicians are trying to get aboard it to help return the Corn Belt to its traditional Republicanism."

The future of the organization, political or as a simon-pure protest against "farm dictatorship," lies out in those broad black fields, where heavy spring rains are germinating the corn crop so fast that you can almost hear it thrusting upward.

If it should be another bumper crop, that would be one story. If the Corn Belt should burn out as in 1936, that would be another story. It is written in the sun, and the wind, and the clouds, and no one can read it yet.

New 3-Cent Stamp Comes Out July 15

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Postmaster General Farley authorized issuance today of a new three-cent postage stamp commemorating the 150th anniversary of establishment of civil government in the northwest territory under the ordinance of 1787.

The new stamp, which will depict a statue being raised at Marietta, Ohio, will be sold first July 15 at Marietta and elsewhere the next day.

The suggestion was put forward with the idea that the bill, as finally agreed upon, might provide for general standards higher than 25 cents, but might give a government agency power to exempt certain industries from these standards.

There was said to be strong sentiment in the committee to establish some bedrock figure below which such exemptions could not go. It was suggested that, besides the 25 cent an hour minimum, the committee agree upon 44 hours a week as the absolute standard beyond which exemptions could not be granted.

If such a compromise were reached, it would incorporate provisions of both the house and senate bills, committee members pointed out.

The house measure calls for a 25-cent minimum wage, increasing to 40 cents in three years, and a 44-hour week declining to 40 hours after two years. The senate bill sets 40 cents an hour and 40 hours a week as standard, but permits a board of five to excuse individual firms from complying.

One of the southern senators who has been active in the fight against wage-hour legislation, but who is not a member of the conference committee, said the southerners would agree to accept a 25-cent minimum wage if provisions were made extending the time over which it would be advanced to 40 cents.

FLOOD FUND APPROVED

Washington, June 2 (AP)—The senate completed congressional action tonight on the appropriation bill for non-military activities of the war department.

It approved a compromise version which had been accepted earlier in the day by the house. The measure, which now goes to the White House, would make $220,987,867 available for flood control, river and harbor work and related work.

The house also approved today a compromise draft of the $463,651,678 war department appropriation bill to finance the army for the next fiscal year.

The measure had been held up by a controversy over the senate's action adding more than $40,000,000 to the house total, mostly for anti-aircraft and seacoast defense equipment.

An agreement was reached yesterday to limit the increase to slightly more than $6,000,000. A $15,000,000 item for seacoast defenses was eliminated.

Among other changes, the compromise eliminated the appropriation of $68,000 for construction at Fort Wayne, Mich., which had been added to the bill by the senate.

Committee Studies Rehabilitation of Cut-Over Country

Madison, Wis., June 2 (AP)—The northern Great Lakes cut-over area committee met here today to formulate a set of objectives and procedural methods to facilitate study of economic problems facing northern counties of Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

The committee, composed of representatives of the three states and federal agencies, was called together by Alfred Bettman, chairman of region 4 of the national resources committee.

Rep. John Luecke (D-Mich.), who initiated action to help northern Michigan counties, did not arrive for the first session. In a request to President Roosevelt for aid, Luecke said abundant cheap power must be developed to furnish current needed to resume operations in abandoned iron mines.

Bettman said discussions here might lead to establishment of an "authority" similar to the TVA to supervise rehabilitation of the region.

Mississippi Seeks Aid For Poor Kin

Jackson, Miss. (AP)—The state government of Mississippi is like a rich man with poor relations.

Its treasury at Jackson bulges with a $5,000,000 cash surplus while a majority of the 82 Mississippi counties are hard put to raise enough money to keep going and pay interest on their indebtedness.

A retail sales tax, levied six years ago, pulled the state out of the same financial rut the counties are now in. The sales tax brings in about $12,500,000 biennially and is working so well the legislature is looking around for some way to give the counties a lift with their financial burdens.

Gov. Hugh White, after glancing at the treasury balance, said he believed the state could afford to do something to help out the counties. One proposal is to exempt homes of all county and municipal taxes except those levied to pay bonds.

Middies' 1938 Sweetheart

Gala June Week ceremonies at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., are featured by a presentation of colors by a pretty girl and 1938's selection was Miss Ruth Schiedinger of Monroe, Mich., shown above doing the honors by handing the flag to A. B. Yates, regimental color bearer, Midshipman Elton Knapp, between the two, named his home town girl as his choice after the company of which he is color commander won the year-long professional and athletic competition at the academy. Shortly after the scene pictured above, Knapp gave Miss Schiedinger a firm kiss while the middies cheered.

Good Provider Talks Herself Off Relief Roll

London (AP)—Mrs. Edward Yates, of Mile End, told a radio audience how she fed herself, her unemployed husband, and their two-year-old son on $2.55 a week. Now her East End neighbors won't speak to her—and her $4.50 relief allowance has been stopped.

Mrs. Yates sat next to Lord Horder, King George VI's physician, at a "five-penny luncheon" organized to prove that a nourishing meal could be provided at five pence (10 cents) a head.

Mrs. Yates told the guests how she and her family lived on the $9.50 relief she and her husband got between them.

Her speech was broadcast, entitled her to a fee of $15.75 from the British Broadcasting Corporation.

When she called at the labor exchange for her weekly "dole" she was told it was being withheld.

"Since my luncheon with Lord Horder, all our neighbors have avoided us as if we were lepers," Mrs. Yates said later. "They seemed to think I am trying to get the unemployed allowance reduced."

The lunch, which had minced-meat and rice as the piece de resistance, gave Mrs. Yates indignation.

Had Been Crippled With Rheumatism

"KruGon Did Just What Was Claimed For It," Said Mr. McLernon; Freed of Rheumatic Suffering

"It is a pleasure to publicly praise a medicine with such outstanding ability as KruGon has," said Mr. J. J. McLernon, 530 East Grand Ave., Beloit, Wisconsin.

"While working at my job I met with an accident some years ago and since that time a terrible case of rheumatism developed that really got the best of me. I could hardly get around my left leg was so crippled, could not do my work at all and finally the doctors throughout my system greatly disordered my stomach and bowels and the foods I ate simply would not digest properly. I tried most everything I heard of without results. . . and was to the place where I did not know where to turn next when friends persuaded me to try KruGon."

"My only regret is that I did not know of KruGon years ago," continued Mr. McLernon. "I am thoroughly convinced my suffering of all these years was needless had I but had some KruGon capsules to take. I am in better health in every way, walk with ease and free from that awful suffering. My stomach has been regulated, dizzy spells corrected, gas and bloating have left me and I really enjoy life as others in good health now. No wonder so many praise this new remedy, its abilities seem limitless."

private ships, including one piloted by Ishmael Cash, cousin of the kidnaped child, flew low over the region.

Reports came from many parts of the country of suspicious automobiles carrying children believed to resemble the Cash youngster. At Oneida, N. Maryland police hunted a Florida car containing two men and a screaming child seen near Bethesda. At Lakeland, Fla., authorities tried to find a man and woman with a small boy traveling in an old coupe who aroused suspicions.

Alcatraz Prisoners Formally Charged With Killing Guard

San Francisco, June 2 (AP)—A coroner's jury today placed formal blame on three Alcatraz inmates for the death of a guard at the island prison May 23.

The jury found that R. C. Cline, custodial officer, "was murdered by prisoners Thomas R. Limerick, James C. Lucas, and Rufus Franklin." He was beaten fatally with a hammer.

Limerick was shot to death by a lower guard and Lucas and Franklin were captured.

United States attorneys said they would ask the federal grand jury Tuesday night to indict the two for first degree murder.

Tiny San Marino Honors Lincoln

TWICE in its history has the smallest republic in the world, San Marino, in northern Italy, chosen to honor Abraham Lincoln.

In March 1861 the tiny state named the Civil War President as an "honorary citizen." In thanks, Lincoln wrote to San Marino: "Although your dominion is small your State is nevertheless one of the most honored in all history."

Now San Marino has honored the memory of Lincoln, issuing two souvenir stamp sheets. The stamp, one of which appears below, is printed in a different color for each sheet, 3-lire blue and 5-lire scarlet. The Lincoln letter of 1861 is reproduced on the stamp below an engraving of a statue recently dedicated to him. Thus for the first time in history Lincoln appears on a foreign stamp.

Only 32 square miles in area, with scarcely 13,000 population, San Marino exports wine, stone and postage stamps. It finds a fruitful source of revenue in the frequent change of its stamps, first issued in 1877 and divided into two classes in 1899, one for foreign and one for domestic use.

FIRE HAZARDS NOT VERY HIGH

Permits Needed to Burn Brush, However; Rain Helps

An above normal precipitation during the month of May has contributed much to the peace of mind to the fire fighting crews of the state conservation department and the United States forest service these days.

Clara Farwell, district supervisor of the conservation department, said yesterday that ground cover is pretty well protected by recent, well distributed rains and there apparently is no immediate danger of fires unless there are several bright, warm days in a row to dry out the cover.

At the present time, the state conservation department has been called on only about half as many fires as last year at a similar period. Thus far this year, 26 fires have burned over 230 acres while last year at this time 50 fires had consumed about 400 acres.

In spite of the present favorable conditions, burning permits are required of all persons expecting to burn grass lands and brush. Permits are required until snow has covered the ground.

Kibby Adds Cabin To Seagull Craft

Fred Kibby, skipper of the first Seagull type small sailing craft in Escanaba, has added a cabin to his "Carefree" which was launched at the local yacht basin last Sunday. He constructed the cabin during the winter months, and members of the waterfront carpenters association were loud in their praises of the job.

Kibby plans on sailing the "Carefree" in the Escanaba yacht club's fleet racing cruise to Ephraim and Menominee early next month.

Railroad Clerk Named New City Councilman

Charles Gallagher, clerk in the accounting offices of the Chicago and North Western railroad here, was named a member of the city council, succeeding the late Richard B. Stack, at a meeting of the council last night. The vote was 3-1. Councilman Harold Gasman voting for Juel Lee.

Gallagher was graduated from Escanaba high school in 1925 and has resided here all his life. He is married, has a daughter, and resides at 218 North 13th street.

There was a bit of fireworks at the nomination. Gallagher was nominated by Councilman Carl Richter, who spoke in glowing terms of his qualifications. Councilman Gasman immediately offered the name of Juel Lee, who ran a close third to Richter in the last election. Gasman pointed out that it has been the custom in the past on filling vacancies to appoint the highest defeated candidate at the last election.

Followed Precedent
"The only reason I voted for Richter when he was appointed was on the theory that he was next highest, thereby being next in preference of the voters," Gasman said. "I know Mr. Lee to be a fine businessman and believe he would be a good addition to this council."

Councilman Carl E. Johnson then seconded Richter's nomination of Gallagher, ignoring Gasman's reference to precedence and praising Gallagher.

On the question of balloting, Gasman said:

"What's the use of bothering with a closed ballot on this thing. It's easy to see it is a cut and dried proposition and no one is being fooled by a secret ballot."

However, upon the motion of Councilman Johnson for a secret ballot, Gasman withdrew his motion of an open vote. Announcement of the results in favor of Gallagher drew a round of applause from the small audience, which was composed largely of members of the Labor Voting League. Gallagher was given the oath of office by City Clerk Carl E. Anderson and immediately assumed his duties.

Consultants Named
After a lengthy discussion as to the relative merits of five firms, the council approved Burns and MacDonald, consulting engineers of Kansas City, for making a survey of the proposed new water plant. The firm had agreed to make the survey for $1,500 with the stipulation that, if the council decides to build, the company would be given the general contract at five percent of the cost, the $1,500 to be part of that five percent.

A request for an ad in the Pioneer Tribune of Manistique for the Manistique homecoming was tabled.

No action was taken on the request for the city's purchase of the McMonagle property on the Old State Road. Several citizens had asked that the property be purchased and rented to relief clients.

First reading was given to a proposed minor change in the gas rate, which would give users of refrigerators and automatic heaters an 80c rate for anything over 2,000 cubic feet instead of the present 3,000 cubic feet.

The city manager was instructed to prepare plans for WPA projects for paving of North 18th and North 15th avenues and Second avenue north between 19th and 20th streets. Approval was given for the laying of water mains in the southwest part of the city. Dance permits for mechanical devices were approved for the Sherman Hotel and the Willows.

The month of May which just closed was above normal both in temperature and precipitation, according to the regular monthly meteorological report given yesterday by W. T. Lathrop, local meteorologist.

The daily departure since January 1 being a plus 3.3. The thermometer reached 73 on the 29th, the warmest day thus far this year.

Light frosts were recorded on the 11th, 13th and 18th with thunderstorms on the 2nd, 3rd and 27th.

Only three days were clear, 12 partly cloudy and 16 cloudy with measurable precipitation on 13 days.

U. P. Briefs
Sault Ste. Marie.—Two New York men, one a writer and explorer and the other a sculptor, were in the Sault yesterday, on their way to Nome, Alaska, by canoe.

The men, Mark Richelsen, writer and explorer, and Robert Fuller, sculptor, slept in sleeping bags below the Sault locks. They arrived Tuesday from St. Ignace. They came as far as the Straits of Mackinac on a lake freighter. Strong east winds made it impossible to paddle to St. Marys river, and they came to the Sault by truck.

Richelsen, whose home is in Buffalo, for several years was an associate in anthropology on the staff of the Buffalo Museum of Science. Fuller is a sculptor of the Whitney Art Institute of New York and the Corcoran Art Institute of Washington.

Purpose of the trip is to study and photograph the native tribes near the mouth of the McKenize river on the border of the Arctic Ocean. The men will cover 3,000 miles of waterways on the trip.

Richelsen said that they hope to reach Nome by November. They expect to leave for Fort William on the steamer Laketon.

Fish Fly Tying Is Called Good Study
Billings, Mont. (AP) — For a "perfect" study course at a normal school, C. V. Ridgely of the Eastern Montana normal faculty, recommends fish fly tying.

Ridgely started such a course and found it led him and his students into certain phases of geography, zoology, entomology and ornithology.

"And of course it gave them a lively interest in a grand outdoors sport, trout fishing," Ridgely said.

The flies were made of silks, wool, plant fibers, furs, hairs and feathers.

Farmers Seeking Increased Farm Income By Union

Bark River, June 2 (Special)—"We farmers are going to increase farm income if we have to organize the market ourselves," said Eugene Derocher, president of Local 302, Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union, after a meeting here tonight at which the marketing of farm products was discussed.

The local is sponsoring a series of discussions dealing with farm income problems, of which this was the second. A number of farmers took part in the discussion and offered their ideas about what should be done with these perplexing problems. The local will have a special meeting on Thursday, June 9, at which action will be taken on the problems brought out in the discussion. Educational Director Royvalden of the Co-operative Federation opened the discussion with comments on the current agricultural situation as reflected by press releases of the United States Department of Agriculture. "Farmers themselves are going to have to find the answer in co-operative action," he pointed out in explaining the problems of marketing.

Frank Brander, Rock farmer, pointed out that farm co-operatives usually begin with a small amount of capital and do not have a fluctuating value on the capital stock. "The co-operative at Rock started business with a little over $100 and has a net worth of more than $125,000 now," he remarked. "It is not for sale," he responded to an inquiry of what figure it could be bought at.

Manager Jorgenson of Delta Made briefly explained the part Delta Made takes in the establishment of a milk and fat price in this territory. He said the volume of Delta Made was increasing to the point where in some departments it had been necessary to add more equipment.

The next meeting of this series will be held on June 15 at the Bark River Community hall. Members are especially urged to attend the business meeting on June 9.

Cut-Over Land Problem

WHILE the land zoning movement was somewhat of a novelty much public attention was attracted toward the problem of the cut-over areas of Northern Michigan.

Interest languished during the past year, however, but it is being revived this week-end with the holding of a tri-state conference at Madison to discuss a program for the rehabilitation of the denuded timber areas.

Aid For The Farmer

DEBT on American farms has declined approximately five per cent in the past two years. The present mortgage farm debt of more than seven and a quarter million dollars is the smallest in seventeen years.

The peak of farm debt of the United States was reached in 1930, not having before or since reached such proportions. Farm debt reduction since 1930 has been largely the result of liquidation by foreclosure during the depression and of adjustments by public and private agencies.

Not So Important

and published statements in newspapers over who will get the most votes in Wayne county.

Off With Their Hats

IT remained for Supreme Court Justice Abram Zoller of New York state to get 10 women to remove their hats at the same time. True, the action was achieved by a stern court decree, but it was brave just the same.

Presiding at the trial of a damage suit in White Plains, N. Y., the justice announced that hats could not be worn in the jury box in his courtroom—not even by women. There were 10 women jurors.

PLANNING THE LESS ABUNDANT LIFE (Nation's Business)

A government official sends out letters under frank to 9,500 lawyers who are on salary or fee basis with his department, soliciting their business for a private lawyer, on the ground that he has an "intimate knowledge of the government departments, bureaus and agencies."

The private citizen—the few of him who are left of a rapidly declining race—feels his gorgo rise at the spectacle of a public servant appropriating stamps and stationery and the time of employees hired by the citizen for other purposes.

But there is a graver concern. When it is thus brought clearly to view that one of the 150-odd federal bureaus employs the services in whole or part of 9,500 lawyers, the citizen begins to wonder how many of the 175,000 lawyers in the United States are receiving federal pay.

In reality there are two governments in Washington. One is the regular constitutional establishment in which the law-making function is assigned to Congress. The other is the rapidly growing jungle of bureaus and commissions, boards and authorities which exercise all three governmental functions—the legislative, executive and judicial.

The Secretary of Agriculture, the man, may pay more for land conservation to the farmers of Iowa than he chooses to pay the farmers of New York, and only recently announced that, in his own good time, he would decrease the penalties of fine and imprisonment upon those who violated the crop regulations.

What a spectacle for America! Formerly the law was on the books where all might read; today it is carried around under the hats of men in government offices. Here may be found one answer to our continuing depression, to the continuing stagnation of business activity, and to continuing unemployment. We have put leaders into straitjackets of unwritten law. The citizen can no longer remain at home, study the statutes and decide what course of action is legal.

World Affairs Reviewed

A flash-in-the-pan fascist revolt in Brazil has turned North American thoughts again to the "ism" threat in Latin America. But most people may not realize that the nations below the Rio Grande have their own unsung "ism"—older than either fascism or communism in their modern varieties.

In this article, Edmund A. Chester, an informed observer, names it and explains it.

By EDMUND A. CHESTER Executive Director, AP Latin American Department

The strong men of Latin America have one thing in common—they are men of exceptional personalities. Charming, forceful, they draw people to them, at the same time they demand and receive respect.

That is true of Getulio Vargas of Brazil, Fulgencio Batista of Cuba, Rafael Trujillo of the Dominican Republic, Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua, Jorge Ubico of Guatemala, Alberto Enriquez of Ecuador, Oscar Benavides of Peru and others.

Writers and students of international politics have tried to put labels on these leaders, and, apparently because most of them are military men, the "fascism" tag has been applied freely. Others have been classified as communists.

But the real "ism" of Latin America is neither communism nor fascism. It's "personalism" is simply the intelligent and opportune employment of a strong personality to lead a people.

—HOW IT WORKED—

Batista of Cuba was labeled "fascist" back in 1933, when, as an army sergeant, he ousted the 700 commissioned officers of the army, overthrew the civilian government and took things in charge. But Batista has followed a policy of "taking a little from those who have much and giving it to those who have little." That doesn't sound like fascism.

Just when Enriquez of Ecuador had been placed on the "communist" side of the fence, he issued a decree expelling all Jews from Ecuador. That doesn't sound like communism.

Personalism in Latin America is older than fascism or communism in Europe. The late President Gomez of Venezuela knew nothing of communism or fascism when he set up his dictatorship 20 years ago. But he knew how to use the strong personality that was one of his assets.

Gerardo Machado, who ruled Cuba with an iron hand for many years, knew nothing of fascism or communism. He had an exceptional personality and he played it for what it was worth. Somoza of Nicaragua is another of those charming personalities who knows how to use his charms and it would be difficult to know Trujillo of the Dominican Republic and not admire his personality.

—UP FROM POVERTY—

But personality is not the only qualification of the strong men. All of them, even their enemies admit, are smart, quick-thinking men who know how to sway people. Most of them came from poverty and obscurity to positions of power and they had to have ability, plus an unusual personality. Their policies may be open to debate, their methods may be questionable, but no one denies their ability to use their personalities.

Personalism is not a fixed doctrine. It varies with the individual leader. It may be political wisdom to expel Jews from Ecuador—and political suicide to do the same thing in some other country. Personalism has its good points and its bad points. When a government makes a popular move, the strong personality behind the government gets the credit. When it makes an unpopular move, condemnation is heaped upon the head of the strong personality.

In Latin American politics it is always the personality and never the party that attracts voters. Strong men reach the top, not because of campaign promises or because they were carried there by some party platform, but because they had the sort of personalities that won the confidence and support of the people.

—ACTS AND THE MAN—

In nations where strong men rule, no official act is ever taken without the injection of the personality of the leader. The whole national life becomes tied up in one personality. Whenever a problem of national import arises, the people always look to the strong man. "What does Batista think of it?" or "What does Vargas think of it?" Those are the questions asked by the people.

Communism in Latin America? Yes, here and there a little band carries on for the cause of Lenin. Fascism? Probably a little more of it than communism because of the large number of Italians and Germans living in Latin America. But communism and fascism, in almost all cases, are confined to the people; they have not yet reached officialdom. Fascism is spreading in Latin America because people of wealth see it as their only weapon against the spread of communism.

chains—the tragic spectacle of planning the less abundant life—the tragic spectacle of demoting the general welfare, of lowering our standards of living to those of other bureaucracy-ridden countries of the world, America, this way out!

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—We often have been among the joy-riding passengers of that ill-fated and once delightful boat, the S. S. Mandalay, which was rammed to the bottom of New York's waters the other misty night.

She was an unprepossessing vessel, but she knew how to make friends and influence people. Those who embarked upon her daytime or moonlight sails, felt her hospitality was not strained by the severity of her discipline and decor. Banjoists, mandolinists and their deck-chair swains shagged to the tiny band below and felt they were in the swank salon of the Normandie; the decks were wide open—and there were enough benches to go around for everybody. And on a warmish evening, a brief excursion to the Mandalay in the sea breeze was equivalent to a tropic cruise.

We often saw the good captain, Philip Curran, on the bridge of the Mandalay, from which they had to take him by force—that luckless night his boat was sinking rapidly under him. The captain was an unprepossessing and as amiable as the boat in his command. Heaven knows how many times he guided the Mandalay along her limited course; and certainly his log must have read uneventfully.

That the Mandalay should have been hurled to a briny grave and his passengers endangered must have been the most remote fear in the captain's heart after long years of maritime ennui. No one, as we thankfully read, was even seriously hurt in that fatal crash. But Captain Curran would not of his own will forsake his bridge, after the last passenger was safely rescued.

More than most gags uttered by the Rialto's wisecrackers, we like the line spoken by Henry Youngman, the comic who represents the cohorts of Broadwayites who are in and out of work. "Some days," says Henny, "it doesn't even pay me to wake up." Missed Again!

We wish we had the legendary good fortune of some newspapermen who always happen to be on the scene of an important happening.

The other Sunday we motored up toward Pelham and spent the Sabbath peacefully, frolicking by the shore of Glen Island near the Long Island Sound. And covered a great deal of ground, too, by energetic hiking. Altogether, a serene afternoon and evening, for it was a holiday picnic, with no paragraphs to fill, no facts to ferret out and no personalities to visit.

So, snugly satisfied with ourselves and the world, we finally returned to New York and bought a morning paper before retiring. There headlines splashed the news that the dismembered corpse of the kidnapped Levine boy had been discovered—in the vicinity of Glen Island—a few hours previously!

First we must reforge a united national soul for Frenchmen. This moment resume your mental habits of World War soldiers.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington, June 2.—More and more, the major policies of the New Deal are shaped and perfected in the back rooms of the White House. In periods of uncertainty, the President charts his course after general consultation with other high officials. At the moment, however, in spite of deepening economic depression, the President is self-confident. And in periods of self-confidence he withdraws into his circle of private advisers.

This was strikingly illustrated by the President's lecture to the school children of Arthurdale. Before Arthurdale high school's goggle-eyed graduating class, the President sharply criticized the new tax bill. He gave his reasons for letting the bill become law without his signature. He described the kind of substitute he would demand next year. And he drove the last and largest nail into the coffin of government-business collusion.

Since tax revision was first contemplated, the President has made no more important pronouncement on this vitally important topic. Yet the proposed tenor of the Arthurdale address was never discussed in the cabinet. No disclosure of the text was ever made to Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., or Undersecretary Roswell Magill, or any of the Treasury tax experts. And the leaders of congress were allowed, as usual, to remain in a state of unilluminated ignorance.

USEFUL NEWSPAPERS

Herman Oliphant, general counsel of the Treasury and a left-wing cuckoo in the conservative Morgenthau nest, supplied the bulk of the material for the Arthurdale speech. After the President had edited the material to suit his own inclinations, it was turned over to his favorite left-wing advisers and amanuenses. They prepared the early drafts, and these were whipped into final shape by the President himself.

Secretary Morgenthau and Undersecretary Magill were allowed to voice their opinions, to be sure. But once they had spoken their pieces, their only notion of how the wind blew was derived from requests for statistical information from the drafters of the speech. Until they read it in the papers, neither secretary nor undersecretary was entirely sure of what the speech contained.

NEW FIELDS TO CONQUER

The singular history of the Arthurdale speech discloses a basic fact—in spite of occasional set-backs, the influence of the New Deal left wing is expanding daily into new fields.

The youthful liberal-radical lawyers and economists who comprise the left-wing tended at first to restrict their operations. Utilities policy, securities regulation, relief—these were their favored provinces. But in the last year or so, they have all but taken over the Justice Department, and made its anti-trust law division particularly their own. They have emerged as practical political advisers, urging such maneuvers as the President's aggressive fight for New Dealers in the primaries. Because they are advocates of spending, they have increasingly concerned themselves with fiscal and financial policy.

And now they have taken over tax policy. The undistributed profits tax was invented by them, more as a social weapon than as an income producer. Their influence prevailed when the President decided to fight for the "principle of the tax" in spite of bitter opposition in congress and the country. They hope now to write into the tax laws next year a distinction between "speculative" and "productive" investment, which would heavily favor the latter at the expense of stock market trading.

EMPLOYMENT AGENTS

Nor do they confine their efforts to the palace politics of the White House. They are constantly alert for opportunities to put their friends in key positions.

For example, Undersecretary Magill will soon leave the Treasury. SEC Commissioner John W. Hanes is slated to succeed him. Simultaneously, an assistant secretaryship will fall vacant. And as Hanes is no tax expert, the left-wingers plan to make their own man, O. John Rogge, both assistant secretary and tax expert-in-chief.

Rogge, a graduate of the Harvard law school who is now special counsel for the SEC, is at the Treasury for a two weeks trial. Unfortunately, Secretary Morgenthau has heard of Rogge's real sponsors are. He has taken alarm, and the chances are that Rogge will be returned to the SEC. But Rogge or no Rogge, the watchword is still "Leftward Ho."

A school in California now instructs drivers of laundry trucks in the art of pick-up and delivery. It's the first school that ever offered to teach a man how to get the sack.

A lecturer announces that America suffers from too much vagueness. It suffers more from too many vague people telling it what it suffers from.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

I DON'T KNOW

When all the talkin' has been done, There always is one fellow, one, And usually the one about, The oldest, one the rest leave out, Who's never in the middle, see, And smokes a pipe, not cigarettes, Who says, and says it ruther slow, When they git through, "Well, I don't know."

You been so sure, from what you read, You'd lick a man who disagreed, You're so convinced, by what you heard, You think that that's the final word, Then that old fellow knocks you flat, Though all he ever says is that, You think that what you said is so, It likely is—but I don't know.

ernor Frank Murphy contemplates cutting the $28,000,000 state aid by 30 per cent next year threatens to present the local school system with a deficit of $41,000 next year unless other measures are formulated to compensate for the loss of revenues.

This year's deficit was due to the loss of two mills appropriation, approximately $16,000, which was allocated to the county. The schools saved approximately $1,500 through purchase of coal, electricity and water from the city at about cost.

A meeting of the county tax allocation commission, the city council and the board of education will be held at the courthouse this evening to discuss the situation.

Following is a table showing what the schools would have received this year on 100 per cent collection, what they did receive and what they expect to receive next year:

OUTBOARD MOTORS (Part 1)

By CAL JOHNSON The manufacturer of outboard motors has contributed a world of comfort, enjoyment and convenience for the fisherman. Long cruises into deep wilderness regions via the water route are today an experience of real pleasure and the opportunity to fish rarely visited waters is presented to the vacationist who loves to explore new country and cast his bait and fly upon waters that are many miles from the hum-drum of civilization. Rowing and paddling are eliminated by the lightweight power plants, created purposefully to propel your boat or canoe safely and quickly through calm or storm.

The modern outboard motor has been designed to follow the trend of style and mechanism. Streamlining and ease of operation have been incorporated in the general make-up of the new motors, and the light-weight and compact method of totting presents an aquatic power plant for the fisherman that few sportsmen visualized possible to build only a few years ago. But such has been the evolution of the outboard motor.

A wide assortment of sizes and styles of outboard motors are now offered to the sportsman, many of which are particularly adapted for certain phases of fishing. First we will discuss the lightest weight motors. It is possible to purchase outboard motors that weigh between fourteen and twenty pounds that will give excellent service and develop over one horse-power, which is sufficient for average fishing conditions on most inland waters. A motor in this class is ideal for carrying in the trunk compartment of the lightest automobile and is a boon companion for those who find it real joy to me when angling in waters of Canada where we were called upon to portage and carry extra gasoline. However, I still prefer the twin cylinder type for average fishing as a motor of this kind answers every demand of the fisherman. The more powerful plant will always take you safely through heavy seas and with greater speed than the very lightest outboard motors. Naturally the plant with horsepower rated anywhere from 2.5 to 4.5 will handle heavier boats and under any condition that can be classed as normal.

DUNCKEL SAYS TOY IS WRONG

Wayne County Election Figures Subject of Argument

Iron Mountain, Mich., June 2 (Special)—Miller Dunckel of Three Rivers, who is touring the Upper Peninsula in the interest of the candidacy of Frank D. Fitzgerald for the Republican nomination for governor, stated at Iron Mountain today that he was very much surprised to read Judge Toy's contradiction of Dunckel's prediction that Fitzgerald would carry Wayne county by a majority of at least 25,000 votes.

"Surely," said Dunckel, "Judge Toy could not have understood my prediction as pertaining to the primary, or else he deliberately refuses to recall Fitzgerald's strength in Wayne county, for fear of directing the attention of the voters to the fact that the results of past elections unmistakably point to Frank Fitzgerald as the one man who can lead the Republican party to victory in Michigan this year.

Shuns Personalities
"I do not wish to enter into any argument with Judge Toy personally," continued Dunckel, "nor into any dispute with anyone, dealing in personalities. I believe the judge is of a similar mind, but that he may inadvertently be misleading the voters, by the manner in which he has tried to contradict my prediction. I very definitely stated, and now repeat, that it was my belief that Fitzgerald would have a majority of more than 25,000 votes in Wayne county, over Judge Toy in the primary, for the Republican nomination for governor. In his answer in the Escanaba Daily Press of Thursday, Toy speaks only of Fitzgerald's records in general, mentioning the results of his own candidacy in Wayne county or the state at large. I believe the voters are interested in nominating the man whose record indicates that he is the strongest vote-getting Republican in Michigan.

"Judge Toy was a candidate for election to the supreme court in 1935, on the same ballot with Governor Fitzgerald. Toy received 785,000 votes, and Fitzgerald received $43,000, or $8,000 more than Toy throughout the state.

"In Wayne county, Mr. Toy's home, Mr. Fitzgerald received 7,077 more votes, mind you, than Mr. Toy, who had long been in Wayne county politics exclusively. And the ultimate criterion of Fitzgerald's strength is to be found in the fact that in that same year of the Roosevelt landslide, over a quarter of a million Michigan voters marked their ballots for Roosevelt and then came over to the Republican ticket and voted for Fitzgerald. In so doing, they didn't all vote for the rest of the Republican candidates either, for Governor Fitzgerald received all the way from 37,000 to 129,000 more votes than any other Republican on the ticket. I am confident that these figures mean Fitzgerald majorities all over the state, in the primary this year, and I do not expect Wayne county. We are having an off year election this year, when the Democratic party in the state will have to struggle along without a national ticket to carry them for a free ride; in the last such election, in 1934, Fitzgerald was elected governor and he received 175,000 more votes than any Michigan governor had ever before received in an off year.

Sweet Adeline's Co-Father Is Still Going Like Sixty at 60

Harry Armstrong and two fair members of his traveling troupe are pictured above as they demonstrated how "Sweet Adeline," for which he wrote the music, should be sung.

By NEA Service
Cleveland, O.—Though the harmony of "Sweet Adeline" is still flooding theaters, bars, and ordinary living rooms after years of popularity, it is a dream girl of male quartets is no more robust than her co-father, Harry Armstrong, 60-year-old composer and showman, who dropped in here the other day to stage an entertainment for a national convention.

"Song writing is a game for a young man with dreams and imagination," says Harry. And it was as a youngster of 15 that Armstrong wrote the music for the "Sweet Adeline" chorus under the title "My Old New England Home."

The boys up in Medford, Mass., had organized an amateur quartet and the piece served as the star tune of their gas light repertoire. In intervals between singing engagements, Harry pitched leather in the boxing ring until a broken nose convinced him that composing might be a better profession to follow.

In the New York offices of M. Whitmark, music publisher, Harry got an $18-a-week job. There he met many song writers including a college kid named Jimmy Walker who was paying his way through school by writing vaudeville parodies and later became mayor of New York.

Though he'd always had faith in his prize melody, Harry hadn't been able to peddle it until he met Richard H. Gerard who worked in the city postoffice. After hearing the chorus, Gerard returned two weeks later with new words and a new title, "Sweet Rosalie." But still rebuffs continued. The old-fashioned publishers said:

"The young men changed the heroine's name to 'Adeline' and tried it again. And M. Whitmark, who had turned the identical song down under the 'Rosalie' name, bought it!

Even so, "Adeline" almost became "Adelene." The publishers claimed that they had never heard

Church Events

Christian Science Churches "God the Only Cause and Creator" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, June 5.

The Golden Text, (Rev. 4:11), is "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."

Among the Bible citations in this passage (Ps. 104:24): "O Lord, how manifold are thy works: in wisdom hast thou made them all: the earth is full of thy riches."

Correlative passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, include the following (p. 331): "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. He is divine Principle, Love, the universal cause, the only creator, and there is no other self-existence. He is all-inclusive, and is reflected by all that is real and eternal and by nothing else."

Calvary Baptist Church The Girls' Junior League of the Calvary Baptist church will meet at the church parlors Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. On Saturday morning the League members will go on a hike. All members are requested to meet at the Andrew Johnson home, 1009 Fifth avenue south, at 9:30 a. m.

Before adding batter to an ungreased cake pan rub the pan well with a cloth—to make the surface smooth. That will make it much easier to remove the cake.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

How to meet a man and marry him is still the great question for most of the girls in the country whether they are 16 or 26.

It was the great question when newspapers first hired women to answer letters signed "Blue Eyes"—and it is still in the front of most girls' minds.

In small towns they think the answer is a city. If they could only live a year or two in New York or Chicago, then they would have a chance to meet interesting men.

And in a city the girls moan because there is no way to meet them—interesting, or otherwise. One of the New York papers the other day carried a story about two girls who were giving up good jobs in New York to go West, where "there is a chance to meet men."

And there are girls in the West right now who are scheming and planning to go East "where there is a chance to meet men."

So what is the answer? Well, we hold with what on first thought may sound like a hard, even callous, theory. If you can't find a man one place, you won't find him somewhere else.

Changing your locale will do nothing to change your technique, and it is usually the latter that is responsible for a marked scarcity of men.

Instead of trying your luck in a different part of the country, or sitting around wishing you could, it would be more sensible to carefully study the girl who doesn't seem to have difficulty meeting men. Say quite frankly "What has she got that I haven't got?"—and then watch her until you can answer the question.

You'll probably find that it isn't brains, money (unless she has a lot of it), or even beauty.

Soldenski. Mrs. George Nettleton is ill at her home here.

Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Powers spent several days here visiting friends.

Certainly, one thing you'll notice, is that she has self-confidence. And you'll probably see, too, that she has a quality of aliveness. Don't be surprised if she laughs easily (that doesn't mean giggles self-consciously). Or if she is fundamentally, though lightly, kind in her manner toward everyone. Or that she has a knack of making people like themselves.

Girls aren't born knowing how to meet men. It is an art, and one that can be acquired at home as well as it can in some far part of the country. The quickest way to learn it is to watch an expert—in action.

Examination of Confirmation of Class Tonight

A confirmation class of twenty-one boys and girls will be heard in an oral examination this evening at the Bethany Lutheran church, Rev. C. Albert Lund, pastor, beginning at 7:30 p. m. The examination will cover fundamentals of the Christian faith and the teachings of the Lutheran church. The class has met on Saturdays of each week since the beginning of last September for religious instruction.

Confirmation of the class will take place next Sunday morning at 10:00 a. m. An event of this kind is one of the outstanding festivities of the year in the Lutheran church. As such it is always attended by a large number of members and non-members.

For the first time in the history of the Bethany church the confirmation class will this year be arrayed in white robes, an innovation which is becoming very general within Lutheran churches. This arrangement makes for uniformity of dress within the class, doing away with the always present dissimilarity between the well-to-do and the poor. It is also reminiscent of the practice of the early Christian church, when candidates for baptism and church membership appeared in white robes.

Immediately following the confirmation service next Sunday morning, a photograph will be taken of the Bethany congregation, provided weather conditions are favorable. The congregation and friends worshipping with it will assemble round about the main entrance for this purpose. Picture taken will be used in an anniversary booklet which will be published next winter in connection with the observance of the 60th anniversary of the Bethany Lutheran church. Similar photographs for the same purpose will also be taken later of the many various organizations and departments of the church.

Copyright, 1938, by William J. Miller Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

No Isolation, Says Secretary Hull

The United States has definitely aligned itself with the British Empire in an effort to prevent a European war over Czechoslovakia.

Twice within a month this country has gone out of its way to back Britain's peace efforts. In response to a personal request from the British Prime Minister, President Roosevelt gave his blessing to the Anglo-Italian Pact. On Saturday, Secretary Hull called attention to "the critical situation in Central Europe" and expressed our "most earnest desire that peace be maintained."

President Roosevelt's recent gesture aroused adverse comment. To some observers it seemed unnecessary. Many Americans share the belief of ex-Foreign Minister Eden that the Anglo-Italian agreement is not a constructive peace step. It remains for the future to justify Premier Chamberlain's policy. But the very fact that an American President was willing to endorse this Chamberlain effort indicates our grave concern with European developments.

Secretary Hull's reminder to Germany that she has joined with us and 61 other countries in a treaty which abjures war is further evidence of that concern. It is intended to emphasize our interest in preventing war. "Any outbreak of hostilities," says Mr. Hull, "is liable to inflict upon all nations incalculable and permanent injuries."

That is why we dislike warmakers and co-operate with peace-makers. If the German Government reads between the lines of this simple proclamation it will realize that in a European war an aggressor nation will have to count on our active sympathy with the victim of aggression. And if Germany remembers recent history she will recall that America can be drawn into a war against a real or supposed aggressor in spite of herself.

European War Would Involve Us. Perhaps that is what Secretary Hull had in mind when he wrote that war anywhere "injects into world affairs a factor of general disturbance the ultimate consequences of which no man can foresee." We certainly did not foresee them in 1914. Perhaps if war comes now we will foresee them and act both more promptly and more successfully to forestall disaster.

Americans need to realize that a general European war will almost certainly involve us. Unless all signs fall it will be a war between fascism and democracy. In such a struggle we could not afford to see fascism win. If Germany strikes at Czechoslovakia America sympathies would be on the side of the republic. Assistant Secretary of State Welles may tell us that if the Nazis want to persecute Jews, Catholics and Protestants it is none of our business. Perhaps not, but we cannot help feeling antagonistic toward a regime that violates those principles of freedom and fair play in which we believe. We do have the right to glorify those principles and to condemn those who oppose them.

Nor is the Individual American who condemns Fascist aggression doing anything more than his own government has done repeatedly. When Italy marched into Ethiopia the Secretary of State invoked the Briand-Kellogg Pact and condemned aggression. When Japan made aggressive war on China we condemned her action. Both Italy and Japan have been named as aggressor nations by the United States Government. We did not pillory Germany's seizure of Austria because both the Austrian people and government failed to resist the invasion.

American Arms Play Decisive Part

At this very moment we are deeply involved in every war and threat of war that is current in the world. In the Far East we are selling essential war materials to both Japan and China in the hope that our policy will be helpful to the victim of aggression. If Japan ever blockades the South China coast and cuts off our supplies from China public opinion will insist that the President invoke our unilateral neutrality act and stop sales to Japan. That explains why Japan has permitted our way supplies to reach the Chinese army.

In Europe we followed a contrary policy by maintaining an embargo against both sides in Spain. We thought all Europe would enforce the same kind of "non-intervention." Instead Britain has developed a non-intervention policy which hampers the loyalists while Italy and Germany continue to send men and materials to the rebels.

American arms and materials can play a decisive part in any war. Our decision to send them or withhold them may determine who wins or loses. Whether we like it or not that happens to be the fact. It is wiser to face this responsibility than to pretend to ignore it.

American isolation is a pretense. It had no reality in the two general European wars that have occurred since we became a nation. It will have none in the war that may come tomorrow. Our

CAST OF CHARACTERS

JOE MURRAY—like a new place, new jobs, new girls.

HELEN—fell in love—hard—once.

TERRY MALLOW—found love—and kept it!

Yesterday: Life goes on beautifully for Joe and Helen. But this is not the usual love story. Something hangs in the balance.

CHAPTER III

What happened was this: It was a June day, an early June day, three weeks from the wedding. Joe had broken the news back home, and was receiving hopeful, apprehensive demands for more information. Home seemed very far away this day; it was a day for adventure and courage and happy living, with little thought for tomorrow. Joe's gang was working on the roadbed, replacing cross ties and leveling the ballast with an eye to perfection in the job of which the Pullman passenger riding smoothly overhead never dreams. It was a pretty good, steady job, and there were even better jobs with the railroad for a man of family and substance.

At noontime, Helen was due with the lunch, as usual. She appeared out on the tracks generally about half a mile from the point where they worked today. There were scattered houses along the double tracks and clumps of small trees; it was outside the town.

Joe watched for her. They all kept an eye out for her, looking on her with a kind of gruff proprietary affection and pride, almost timing themselves by her appearance as they timed themselves by the western express that blew by with a roar at the exact point at seven minutes to noon.

It was about 10 minutes to 12 when Helen stepped into sight this day. She waved from the distance and walked up on the westbound tracks, stepping along with the broken stride of a track-walker on the ties. She wore a cheap but clean gingham dress, a blue gingham dress that she had just put on a few minutes before.

Joe heard, they all heard, the whistle of the westbound and the singing of the rails as it came. She could hear that too. But in addition they heard, and what's more they saw, suddenly and nervously, an unscheduled train traveling at express speed on the eastbound tracks. It was coming behind Helen's back, on the adjoining track. And with the scheduled daily westbound in her ears and on her mind, she was plainly unaware of the train behind her.

Joe swore once and dropped his heavy hammer and walked several steps down the track and stopped. The others watched. Joe waved his arms in warning.

Helen waved back, signifying that she was well aware of the approaching westbound and in no danger, and to prove it to him stepped from the westbound tracks over to the other—in the path of the roaring unscheduled eastbound.

"It's a special," said one of the gang. "President's special."

They all abandoned the job, to stand there making signals at the girl. Helen waved back and continued as she was. Joe shouted, cursed, raved, trying desperately to make her understand—as if anybody could hear a word even 50 yards away, with two expresses thundering together on adjoining tracks.

The westbound went walling past the gang on a blast of wind; the engineer was holding down the whistle cord. You could see in the distance that Helen was puzzled and scared and trying to understand and staying right where she was in the safety she thought she was in.

She never did understand. Unless in one single flashing instant. The eastbound came on, whistle shrieking in the din, brakes screaming. Nothing could stop the massive momentum of that special. Nothing did.

The two trains came together, passed each other on adjoining tracks, thundering and screaming, and the earth shook with them. Somewhere in the thunder and screaming was Joe's Helen, with Joe's warm lunch and her gingham dress that she'd just put on clean a few minutes before.

That was what happened at noon that June day, three weeks before the wedding. I've got to go on. This is not a love story, but a story about love. The death of the girl Helen and what happened to Joe after that are only the true materials of my story. I warned you ahead of time. If I think I'm making this up, you're terribly wrong. I couldn't make up a thing like those trains rushing together and Joe going out of his mind looking on. What Joe suffered needn't be gone into either. You will know without the telling. He went out of his mind, literally. He cursed his Maker and did a lot of things nobody paid any attention to, because if you stopped to think about it, it almost seemed he was right. What pulled him together—not altogether, but enough—was the fact that the old people drew him to them, as if he were part of her and they needed him to endure it. I guess they did. As Government knows this and our people ought to know it. President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull are performing a much-needed service by their patient persistent efforts to teach us that we live in an integrated world.

he needed them. They were all three close together for a little time in life in the terrible loneliness of death.

Joe hung around for a couple of weeks after the funeral. He didn't go back on the job. He wanted no further sight of railroad tracks. He just hung around quietly, like a man knocked on the head and slow to get over it, none too clearly aware of what's going on around him. Then one day he packed his bag without a word and blew the town, getting a lift on a truck trundling hundreds of miles to northward.

It was the start of a long, long journey. That town never saw him again.

Once more the Murrays at home heard from their Joe from all parts of the nation. He never showed up at home, but he always wrote every little while. His letters were different from the old ones, as you might expect; yet not different in the smart, glib tone of them, or in the genial razzing for his brothers and sisters, and all news from home, but rather in the underlying meanings that Mrs. Murray in her shrewdness could clearly read. Only once had Joe dropped his wisecracking style with which a man covers his feelings; when he told them simply of Helen's death. That finished all Mrs. Murray's worry. She leaving only a deep, abiding pity. She was rarely caustic about him after that; her son was of cocky and headstrong boyhood; he was a man, subject to sore hurt even as a baby, and so close to her now, it is not only philosophers who reason out those things.

"He's in Duluth," she told the family. She missed him. Or perhaps it was Detroit or Dallas. "He's working in a sheet metal shop again there. He says it's a good job with plenty of work and nice fellows and his boarding house is clean and cheap. He likes it and he thinks he'll stay a while."

But he never stayed. Soon would come a letter from another town where he'd flown on sudden impulse. The journey was resumed. He had blown again, alone, always alone.

"He got too restless," Mrs. Murray would explain. "He couldn't stand it. He likes this new place; it's a busy place and wide open, he says, and plenty to do." "He's lonesome," but stubborn. "I wish he'd come home."

Joe was not stubborn, really. If anyone had taken him by the hand and brought him home he'd most likely have gone without a word. He was merely blown by a wind, a wind that never ceased, and against which he could not prevail. He had grown up too suddenly, much faster than nature ever intended, and the bones of his being, you might say, were soft from the forcing. He was indifferently and he was lonesome, and nothing caught his interest nor any person any more.

He fell into the way of taking a job at sheet metal work because that was the last thing he had done, and he could not help being good in that line because his hands were quick and sure, and metal and the machines that work metal gave him a certain pleasure. He liked the air and atmosphere of those shops by a kind of instinctive inclination; he liked the clean crisp sound of metal shearing in the bite of the big knife, the exciting roar of the coke hearth or a blow torch, the acid smells of hot lead and tin and iron, each different in its way, the sweet smell of virgin metal waiting to be cut and bent and twisted and beguiled into all manner of useful and lovely shapes by the hands of an adept at the art. He went from helper to journeyman to mechanic with no special effort, because good men were appreciated in a shop that year and work was plentiful. Yet he just blew like a tumbleweed, out of one job into another, out of one town into the next.

"What's the difference?" he wrote his remonstrating mother. "I can always find a job. What's to hold me any place if I get tired of it? I get tired of it that's all, and I blow and you cares? I haven't met the boarding house next one I shove into." Then he might close with, "No, I'm not saving my money and I wouldn't know what to do with it if I did. Here's ten bucks for yourself, and for Pete's sake stop the worrying. I'll turn out right side up as always. I'll write from Albuquerque next week after I get a chance to look the place over."

Way Is Paved for Construction of Big Station Here

The United States Coast Guard Service has been provided a deed to the waterfront property they desired in Manistique and is prepared to go forward with immediate construction of a $200,000 coast guard station here, City Manager P. H. Beauvais explained yesterday.

Deaths in Green Bay

The time which would be necessary in calling for a referendum of the people, as well as the expense incurred, made this action impractical, particularly when it was apparent that the construction of a coast guard station here would be overwhelmingly endorsed by the citizenry.

3 NEW SCHOOL TEACHERS HIRED

Changes in Personnel of Public Schools Are Announced

Only three new teachers will join the teaching staff of the Manistique public schools next fall, Supt. A. F. Hall has reported, but several other changes are planned in the school system by switching some of the present teachers to different classes.

The new teachers are Miss Helen Eklund, of Ishpeming, who will succeed Mrs. Preston Tait in the home economics department of the high school; Miss Adeline Schneider, of Milwaukee, who will succeed Mrs. Olmsted at the Lincoln school, and Miss Angelina Anna Magnino, of Calumet, who will succeed Mrs. War, at the Riverside school.

Miss Eklund is a graduate of Northern State Teachers College. Miss Schneider is a graduate of Milwaukee State Teachers College, and Miss Magnino is a graduate of Northern State Teachers College. Miss Schneider will teach the third grade at the Lincoln school, and Miss Magnino will teach the combined first, second and third grades at Riverside.

Changes Announced
Two new teachers were hired for the second semester of the present school term, and they will be on the staff again next fall. They are Ruth Richman, who took charge of an extra room at the Lakeside school, and Margaret Lewis, who succeeded Ruth Rytkenen at the Lincoln school.

Miss Dorothy Carpenter has accepted a position in the Junior high classes at Lansing. The English classes she now teaches in the junior high school will be taught next fall by Miss Rose Greene, who at present is teaching the fifth and sixth grades of the Central school.

Because a drastic cut in state school aid is anticipated for next year, the board of education has decided not to hire a teacher to succeed Miss Greene for the fifth and sixth grades of the Central school. Instead, several changes are planned to take care of the situation.

Miss Helen Bierma who has been teaching the third and fourth grades at the Lakeside school will be transferred to the Central school to teach the fifth and sixth grades.

There will be no third and fourth grade classes at the Central school next fall, and Miss Bessie Jachor, who is now teaching the Central school third and fourth grade class will be transferred to Lakeside school, where she will teach a third grade class. WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks dark.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

UTILITIES HAVE BELATED RUNUP

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES table with columns for Net change, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago, 1938 high, 1938 low, 1937 high, 1937 low.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER New York, June 2 (AP)—Utilities furnished the principal bright spot in today's stock market.

After a day of attempting to ward off profit selling, many of yesterday's climbing leaders were under water until the final hour when the power shares and brought mild support for other departments.

The belated run-up in the utility group came in the wake of Senator Barkley's assurances to the senate that the president would not use pump-priming funds for the construction of municipal electric plants in competition with private corporations unless a fair offer had been made for the purchase of existing company properties.

Closing prices were well under the tops, with an assortment of industrials moderately in arrears. The power stocks finished fractionally higher all around and a handful of specialties was up 1 to 3.

Dealings were frequently at a standstill throughout the session, although volume expanded a trifle on the last lap. Transfers totalled 475,530 shares against 537,510 yesterday. The Associated Press yesterday of 60 issues was unchanged at 38.1. The utility committee was ahead 4 of a point.

News from trade sources offered scant encouragement. The magazine "Iron Age" painted a disconsolate picture of the steel outlook. Dividend cuts and omissions were again plentiful. Weekly bank clearings were below a year ago for the 29th consecutive time.

Commodities shifted uneasily at the start but grains pushed up briskly after noon. Wheat at Chicago was ahead 3-8 to 3/4 of a cent a bushel and corn gained 1/4 to 1-7-8 cents a bushel. Cotton yielded 20 to 25 cents a bale.

Utility and industrial bonds did fairly well, but rail loans gave ground. Strength returned to U. S. government securities when Secretary Morgenthau disclosed the treasury would borrow no new cash in its June 15 financing.

The rather unwieldy position of the copper producers was stressed by announcement of Kennecott was slanting down all domestic mines for at least a month. Anaconda and others had already taken steps toward curtailment. At the same time foreign demand for the red metal was heartening. Prices for both scrap copper and the export staple were boosted.

The move toward lightning supplies was further exemplified by the international tin committee at Paris which decreed a cut of the export quota of this commodity to from 55 to 45 percent, the same as that lately set by the international rubber regulations committee at London.

On the cheerful side of the day's happenings was the favorable reception given the U. S. Steel $100,000,000 debenture offering. The new 3 3/4's, to run for 10 years, were quoted at a premium over the selling price of 100 established by the underwriters.

NEWS STIRS UP BOND ACTIVITY

BOND MARKET AVERAGES

Table of bond market averages with columns for Net change, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago, etc.

New York, June 2 (AP)—Buying activities in the bond market today were stimulated by reports of an eager demand for United States Steel corporation's new offering of $100,000,000 3 3/4 percent debentures, and Secretary Morgenthau's announcement that the treasury June financing would not involve any offering of securities for cash.

Both developments worked mostly in favor of low yield issues. Governments derived a lift from the treasury announcement. On a considerable increase in activity they recorded the best gains in several weeks, closing 2-32 to 18-32 higher. Nine issues of federal and government guaranteed issues touched tops since date of issue.

Recent hesitancy of the treasury issues had been ascribed to belief in some quarters the June operation might call for the offering of a long term issue to boost treasury money on hand.

Second grade bonds tended to improve until the appearance of some fairly heavy offerings in late trading. A number of early gains were surrendered, but at the close the list was no worse than mixed. A few rails scored sharp gains.

The foreign list got a little help from Japanese 6 1/2 and 5 1/2, Milin 6 1/2, and German 7 1/2, up from 1 1/4. Poland 6 1/2 gave up 2 to 1/2 light turnover. Transactions totalled $4,668,925, par value, against $5,182,350 yesterday.

SENIORS HEAR FINE ADDRESS

Prof. W. D. Henderson of Michigan U Is Speaker

Honesty, truthfulness, self-reliance, self-respect, courage, courtesy and charity are the seven stones in the arch of character. Prof. W. D. Henderson, head of the University of Michigan Extension division, told seniors of Gladstone high school in an inspiring and uplifting commencement address last evening.

"My subject, — character — is old, hackneyed and more or less trite, never-the-less I venture to introduce the subject on this commencement occasion," said the speaker, "because in these days of economic and social storm and stress the questions of individual and national character are daily becoming more vital. If Democracy fails in the days that are just ahead of us, it will be in no small measure due to a failure of individual and national traits of character."

"Personality and character are in one sense closely related, and in another sense, they are quite different. Your personality is determined by the way in which you react with other persons. Character, on the other hand, is what you are. A man, so far as his character is concerned, may be honest and truthful, he may possess self-reliance and self-respect, and yet be extremely disagreeable. And so far as personality is concerned, he may "smile and smile and be a villain still". In this address I am concerned with a few fundamental qualities of character. My subject might well be entitled, "The Seven Stones of the Arch of Character."

The foundation stones of the arch are honesty and truthfulness. All modern business and commercial relations are based on the assumption that a man's word is as good as his bond that he is fundamentally truthful. A liar is not only an abomination unto the Lord, as the Book tells us, but he is sand upon which character cannot be built.

The next related stones of the arch are self-reliance and self-respect. Self-reliance is about seventy percent inherited and about thirty percent acquired. When it comes to self respect, these figures are just reversed. Self-reliance is about thirty percent inherited and seventy percent acquired. Since the quality of self-reliance may be and is an acquired trait, its significance in education is paramount. Whenever a child does anything well that meets the approval of his group, he stands a little more erect — he has taken a step along the path of self-reliance.

The third pair of stones to be erected on the columns of the arch are courage and courtesy. Courage may be both physical and moral in its nature. Of all the characters of our history, George Washington is perhaps the outstanding exemplar of courage — physical and moral. But to courage we must add the quality of courtesy. Courtesy is a castle; courtesy is the guest chamber in the castle. Courtesy is a knight who rides forth with a shield upon his arm; courtesy is the crest upon the shield. Courtesy is the ring of gold upon his finger; courtesy is the gem that adorns the ring. Courtesy is the oil that lubricates the machinery of life.

And now we come to the key-stone — the "binding stone" — of the arch. This is the divine quality of charity. Man is a curious blend of strength and weakness, of good and bad. Charity suffereth long and is kind; vaunteth not herself, is not puffed up; thinketh no evil, and I might add to Saint Paul's list, speaketh no evil. Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels and have not charity I am as a sounding brass and a tinkling symbol.

PACKERS SIGN GIANT TACKLE

Buford Ray, Vanderbilt, Scheduled To Play for Green Bay

Green Bay, Wis., June 2—Buford Ray, one of the greatest tackles who ever gripped a cleat in southern collegiate football, will play with the Green Bay Packers this year. The outstanding Vanderbilt lineman is the 14th member of the 1938 squad to be announced by Coach E. L. Lambeau. The towering Ray stands six feet, seven inches and weighs 280 pounds in fighting trim. Ends around the National Football league will probably run into a lot of trouble when they try to brush him out of the way.

The Packer recruit is a product of the Ray Morrison football school. Down in Dixie, the Vanderbilt mentor is considered one of the greatest gridiron experts in the good old U. S. A. In a letter to Lambeau, Morrison predicted that Ray would be an outstanding star in his freshman year of post-graduate football.

Ray, who is 22 years old, played his scholastic football at Nashville, Tenn., before entering Vanderbilt. He was a three-year varsity teammate of Carl Hinkle, all-American center in 1937. Buford also had two years of football with Dick Plasman, stellar end who made the grade with the Chicago Bears last fall. According to Dame Rumor, Plasman urged George Halas, the Bear owner, to sign Ray but Lambeau had the inside track on the Vanderbilt ace.

The new tackle has been under contract to Green Bay for several months but no announcement was made as he was captain of the track team at Vanderbilt, and any mention of his professional hook-up would have cut short his collegiate athletic activities. Ray is one of the southern conference crack weight men.

Vanderbilt has played a "five man" line for several seasons and the behemoth was used double duty as end or tackle on the defensive. His savage smashing would clear the way for Carl Hinkle to make the tackles in the open. This tended to boost the center's stock as an all-American.

Other Packers now under contract are: Fred Borak, Creighton end; Phil Ragazzo, Western Reserve; Leo Katalinas, Catholic U.; and Martin Schreyer, Purdue, tackle; Tom Jones, Bucknell; Nick Miketnac, St. Norbert and Pete Tinsley, Georgia, guards; Gil Kuhn, U. S. C.; Zeke Hunt, Bratley Tech, and Leroy Schoeman, Marquette, centers; Dick Weisgerber, Williamette; Cecil Isbell, Purdue and John Lock, Fordham, backs.

Coach Lambeau is sold on Ray. The big fellow seems to have caught the Packer spirit and in recent letters to the Packer mentor, he has tipped off several players who may be seen in action here.

Giant Panda Tied With Dizzy Dean

Chicago, June 2 (AP)—The Chicago Federated Advertising club's referendum to determine "the city's outstanding attraction for 1938" ended today in a tie—between Dizzy Dean and Mei Mei, the only giant panda in captivity in the United States. Each polled 112 votes—Dean pitches for the Chicago Cubs. Mei Mei catches peanuts at the Brookfield zoo.

Some Korea millers still grind grain by the ancient "seesaw" method. Put a stone basin beneath a wood club attached to a long plank, the grain is pulverized when the miller stands on the other end of the plank, which is fulcrumed on an axle, and leaps into the air by grasping a rope.

MANY RECORDS ARE REPLACED

Michigan Athletes Have Good Year Breaking Old Marks

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 31.—(Special)—The seasons of 1937-38 have been rough ones on Michigan individual performance records. An even dozen have fallen this year to the onslaughts of Wolverine team members who also won the national intercollegiate swimming title, tied for the Big Ten hockey title and won indoor and outdoor conference track championships.

John Townsend climaxed three years of play as an all-conference basketball center by setting a new three-year scoring mark of 364 points and a new one-year record of 135, displacing Bennie Oosterbaan's mark of 129.

As he led Michigan to a thrilling win of the national collegiate, Captain Ed Kirar swam 50 yards in 23.0 seconds, a national as well as Michigan record.

Ed "Smack" Allen established a new hockey scoring mark for 15 games with 23 goals and 13 assists. Don Smick in baseball hit 20 consecutive games to better his 1937 record of 13 games.

Track furnished a deluge of new marks. Elmer Gedeon indoors tied best-lasted American marks in the 60-yard, 70-yard and 75-yard high hurdles. Bill Watson set a Michigan mark of 52 feet, 10 1/2 inches in the shot put and Wes Allen jumped 6 feet 6 inches for a new mark. Jim Kingsley's 13 feet 8 inches in the pole vault was a record, as was Ralph Schwartzkopf's 9:11 two-mile.

Other entries are Wesley Allen in the high jump, James Kingsley in the pole vault, Stanley Kelley in the hurdles, Walter Stone in the two-mile run, and Ralph Schwartzkopf in the mile run.

One qualification of voters in some boroughs of 18th century England was that they be pot-walloppers, or own a separate fireplace at which to cook their meals. Some non-householders, it is said, qualified by boiling pots on improvised open fireplaces, thus dodging the law.

MANY RECORDS ARE REPLACED

Michigan Athletes Have Good Year Breaking Old Marks

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 31.—(Special)—The seasons of 1937-38 have been rough ones on Michigan individual performance records. An even dozen have fallen this year to the onslaughts of Wolverine team members who also won the national intercollegiate swimming title, tied for the Big Ten hockey title and won indoor and outdoor conference track championships.

John Townsend climaxed three years of play as an all-conference basketball center by setting a new three-year scoring mark of 364 points and a new one-year record of 135, displacing Bennie Oosterbaan's mark of 129.

As he led Michigan to a thrilling win of the national collegiate, Captain Ed Kirar swam 50 yards in 23.0 seconds, a national as well as Michigan record.

Ed "Smack" Allen established a new hockey scoring mark for 15 games with 23 goals and 13 assists. Don Smick in baseball hit 20 consecutive games to better his 1937 record of 13 games.

Track furnished a deluge of new marks. Elmer Gedeon indoors tied best-lasted American marks in the 60-yard, 70-yard and 75-yard high hurdles. Bill Watson set a Michigan mark of 52 feet, 10 1/2 inches in the shot put and Wes Allen jumped 6 feet 6 inches for a new mark. Jim Kingsley's 13 feet 8 inches in the pole vault was a record, as was Ralph Schwartzkopf's 9:11 two-mile.

A life insurance policy based on the life of a man in Delaware is regarded as the largest in the world. He is insured for $5,000,000.

HOMER BARRAGE HALTS BENGALS

Chandler and Pearson Star for New York in Double Bill

New York, June 2 (AP)—Behind home run barrage and two splendid pitching performances by Chadler and Monte Pearson, the New York Yankees quelled the drive of the Detroit Tigers today by sweeping a doubleheader, 5 to 4 and 5 to 2 before a noisy crowd of 34,826 cash customers.

Six of the ten runs scored by the world champions were driven in by homers by Tom Henrich, Bill Knickerbocker and Red Rolfe. Rolfe's drive scored three runs in the first game that was a thriller from start to finish. Henrich's low was good for two and Knickerbocker's worth one in the ninth which was a Yankee run away behind Pearson's five hit pitching.

Steady in Pinches

Chandler allowed six hits in the opener. He was in constant danger but he tightened in the clutch. In the ninth, he walked Rudy York, pinch hitter for Pitcher "Boots" Poffenberger but forced Rogell, Walker and Gehring to hit ground balls for easy outs. The Yanks clinched the game in the eighth when Henrich doubled and scored on Myrl Hoak's single.

Pearson displayed his best stuff of the season in the windup. He struck out nine batters, three of them in the ninth, and Hank Greenberg twice with Gehring on base. But for a fumble by Joe DiMaggio in the second inning, Monte would have been touched for only one run.

Below .500 Again

DiMaggio juggled the ball after Pete Fox's single and the Tiger made second. Tony Piet promptly scored him with a single.

The Yanks belted Poffenberger for eleven hits in the opener and Eldon Auker for ten in the second.

The double defeat again dropped Detroit below the .500 mark in the league standings.

Manager Mickey Cochrane again kept Rudy York on the bench to avoid possible fielding difficulties in the "sun field" of Yankee Stadium. York went to the plate as a pinch-hitter in each game, and each time the New York pitchers walked him.

Chet Laabs, who replaced York, batted in one run in the first game, although he struck out once with the bases loaded, and went hitless in the second. Cochrane made another shakeup in the second game sending Tony Piet, obtained from Chicago in the Kennedy-Walker trade, to third in place of Don Ross.

The Tigers grabbed the lead in the fourth inning of the opener with a two-run rally but couldn't hold it. Walker and Gehring singled, and Chandler hit Greenberg with a pitched ball, filling the bases. Fox scored two runs with a single.

Tied Up In Third

Singles by Hoag, Chandler and Crosetti had scored one Yankee run in the fifth before Rolfe's home run cleared the sacks and put the New Yorkers two runs ahead.

The Tigers tied it up in the eighth when Walker walked and scored as DiMaggio let Gehring's single go through him. Laabs' single scored Gehring who reached third on the error.

Poffenberger couldn't hold back the Yankee attack, which punched the winning run over in their half of the eighth on Henrich's double and Hoag's single.

Detroit was first to score in the second game, also, Fox getting

Pop-Off Poffenberger Big Chuckle Of Tiges

BY PAUL MICKELSON

New York, June 2 (AP)—An up to date report on Mr. Cistus Mary-wood Poffenberger of the Maryland, West Virginia, Iowa and Detroit Tigers:

His pals on the Detroit Tiger ball club call their eccentric rookie pitcher everything from "Boots" to "Baron" to just "Pop-off Poff." Like Manager Mickey Cochrane, they think he's as delightful as a raise in salary. His escapades so far have been as harmless, funny and jammed with as many chuckles as the best pleasuring comedy.

Because this is the Baron's first full season with the Tigers, you won't find him in the current edition of Who's Who in baseball but you can find him occasionally in the nearest tavern. There are numerous times when you can't find the Baron at all because he has a habit of making strange disappearances. He's a big, chunky guy but he is always dressed in jet black clothes, which makes it all the harder for Mickey Cochrane and his scouts to locate him.

Cochrane thinks the Baron is refreshing because he has a great sense of humor. He's a great talker, and he's a great pitcher.

"I always tell Mickey I don't want to pitch against clubs like Philadelphia, St. Louis and Washington," says the Baron. "Beating those guys don't mean anything. Nobody ever gives you credit for it. I want to beat those good clubs like the Yankees and Indians 'cause that means something."

The Baron, a very aristocratic gent with piercing black eyes and dark hair, was born almost 23 years ago at Williamsport, Maryland, but he honors many communities with his residence. He is married. The Baron isn't exactly sure where he says it was at "Bad News, Michigan."

"We Poffenbergers are restless folks," he says. "We're divided up into either preachers or wanderers. I'm the wandering type but I sure hope I stay with Detroit for a spell because we're going to win some pennants."

Like most strong young athletes, the Baron is a great comical fellow. He's a great comical fellow. He's a great comical fellow. He's a great comical fellow.

"Just charge 'em," replied the Baron. "That's the only way you get 'em. Let 'em have all you got but charge 'em."

Until last fall, Cochrane was puzzled over the Baron's habit of disappearing. Then, one day at Cleveland, Mickey decided the Baron had inherited his fault from his father. It was the Baron's turn to pitch that afternoon so he got his father up to Cleveland and bought him a ticket for the game. But when noon came, the Baron hunted up Cochrane and asked where he could get his money back for the ticket.

"Pop has disappeared," the Baron explained.

SCHOOLBOY OUT OF THE MAJORS

Big Detroit Hurler Is Sent to Beaumont On Option

New York, June 2 (AP)—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe was dropped out of the major leagues today.

The big right-hander, who skyrocketed out of Beaumont back in 1933 and was the pitching spearhead of the championship Detroit Tiger outfit of '34 and '35, was sent back to Beaumont on option.

The Tigers can get him back on 24-hour notice, under the customary agreement.

His hurling collapse from an all-time arm, ever since the early weeks of the 1937 season, constitutes one of the major league's recent tragedies. Well-liked throughout the game, the 26-year-old pitcher from down Arkansas way tried his mightiest this season to come back, but his salary wing just didn't have it any more.

His definite failure to regain the form that enabled him to win 16 straight in 1934, and show records of 24 games won in '34, and 19 each in '35 and '36, makes it all the more doubtful that Mickey Cochrane's Tigers will prove any too powerful a threat in this year's American League wars.

Wing Won't Click

Since early last season, the Schoolboy has been seeing specialists and physicians in an effort to get his arm back in shape. At times this season he looked as if he might click again, but six innings in any one ball game appeared his limit. He started three times, but was belted out on each occasion the last time by the Yankees on May 26.

As a result, he hasn't won a game yet, and has been defeated twice. Last year, he won one and lost four. That's a far cry from his five-year "career" percentage of .642 on 70 victories and 39 losses.

Rowe started his career in organized baseball with a year of minor league seasoning at Beaumont and was promptly elevated to the Tigers the following season, where he has been ever since.

He appeared in both the '34 and '35 series, winning one and losing one against the Cardinals in the former year, and coming through with one victory against two setbacks in the Tigers' world championship drive against the Cubs in '35.

In Detroit, the Schoolboy predicted that he would climb back into the major leagues.

"I hope to be back up here soon, after the warm weather down south has done its work," Rowe said.

"The Detroit baseball club has always treated me squarely. I do not believe this release means the end of my baseball career."

Bonura's Slugging Gives Senators 7-1 Win Over White Sox

Washington, June 2 (AP)—Dutch Leonard pitched 6-hit ball today. Zeke Bonura went on a batting rampage and the Senators wiped the White Sox 7 to 1.

Bonura—traded to Washington by the Sox this spring—cleaned the bases with a double in the first inning. In the fourth he lined a homer into the center field bleachers, and in the 7th he singled and went to second when Kreevich fumbled his hit.

The Senators jumped on pitcher Frank Gabler for 5 runs in the first inning. The Sox's only run off Leonard came in the fourth when Stelbacher doubled and scored on Kreevich's two-base blow.

Chicago—000 100 000—1 6 2 Wash'ton—500 010 10x—7 11 0 Gabler, Rigney and Schleuter; Leonard and R. Ferrell.

They pounded crooner Joe Casarella to the showers under a six-hit, four-run barrage in the fourth and went on from there against three others, while big Max Hatcher turned in an eight-hit performance for his third win of the year. The first three runs off Butcher were due to an error.

Score by innings: Brooklyn—000 401 222—11 18 3 Cincinnati 300 000 200—5 8 2 Butcher and Phelps; Casarella, Hollingsworth, Bengo, Grissom and Lombardi.

Football In Golden Era, Says Stag, Vet Mentor

BY EARL HILLIGAN

Chicago, June 2 (AP)—Football's "grand old man of the mid-way," Amos Alonzo Stagg, looked back over nearly a half-century of coaching service today and declared the sport never was healthier.

The famous gridiron mentor, who will be 76 next Aug. 16, is visiting the University of Chicago campus. For 41 years he coached the Chicago Maroons, turning out some of the finest teams and individual stars the collegiate gridiron game ever has known. He still is coaching—at the College of the Pacific in California—and his love for football is no greater than his confidence in the sport which has been his life's work.

"Football is in fine shape," he said. "I don't think there is need for any further rules changes. The game has improved steadily for both the boys and the spectators and right now, I believe, is a finer sport in all respects than it ever has been. It's a grand game and I love it."

Describing Stagg as almost 76 years "old" doesn't seem correct. Watching him move spritely around a room, feeling his bright, sharp eye under a hat, and his sharp recite facts and figures and game dates, one feels the phrase 76 years "young" is justified.

"Seems good to be back," he smiled, running a tanned hand over his wavy, gray hair. "But I can't see any changes after being gone five years. For that matter, I can see where I've changed much, or that football has either, so far as rules go."

"Back in 1906 we adopted the forward pass rule and (with a broad grin) I'll never forget how we used the pass that year to beat Illinois 63 to 0. But there haven't been many important changes in the game since then. Coaching has improved and more high school boys are playing. There are so many good high school coaches now there isn't room for them in the college field."

Stagg, whose College of the Pacific team will play Chicago next Nov. 12, will officiate at the national collegiate track and field championships at Minneapolis June 17-18 and then attend the 50th anniversary of his graduation from Yale in 1888. Didn't he get tired from so much train travel?

"Oh, we didn't come on a train," said the man who hopes to still be coaching when he's 100. "Mrs. Stagg and I, taking turns at the wheel, drove from California. Touring is a lot of fun."

FISHMAN HAS GREAT FINISH

Allows One Unearned Run in Winning Closing 4 Ball Games

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 2 (Special)—Herman Fishman, Michigan's stocky left-handed pitcher, wound up his varsity career in perfect fashion as he won his four closing games without allowing an earned run. He defeated Ohio State, Notre Dame, Wisconsin and Michigan State in order, Wisconsin scoring the only run in the four games and that on an error.

Fishman's finish was paralleled by the Michigan team which won ten of its last 15 games after a shaky start, and climaxed its season by handing the University of California an 8 to 6 defeat here Tuesday, the Bears' first defeat in eleven games in the east and their fifth of the season.

St. Louis, June 2 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals made free with the offerings of three Philadelphia hurlers today to win their second straight game from the Phillies 12 to 5.

Rookie Enos Slaughter and veteran Joe Medwick teamed to lead the 17-hit attack. Slaughter collected his fourth homer of the season and a double, while Medwick blasted three successive doubles and a single out of five times at bat.

Southpaw Roy Henshaw, optioned to Rochester by the Cardinals but ordered retained by Commissioner K. M. Landis, allowed thr. Phillies 13 hits.

Score by innings: Philadelphia—001 210 010—5 13 1 St. Louis—222 310 11x—12 17 1 Walters, Johnson, Lamaster and Atwood; Henshaw and Owen.

BUSY BEES ARE ON WAY TO TOP

Bostonians Now Within 4 Games of Giants for First Place

Chicago, June 2 (AP)—Those surprising Boston Bees moved within a game and a half of second place and within four games of the National League leading New York Giants today by defeating the Chicago Cubs 6 to 2. The victory was the Bees' 12th in their last 15 games.

Boston won behind the able relief pitching of Johnny Lanning after the Cubs had driven Mitt Shoffner from the box in the second inning. Lanning yielded only five hits in the remaining innings after Shoffner had been touched for that many in the first two. It was Lanning's first victory of the season.

The Bees collected 13 hits off three Chicago hurlers. Clay Bryant, who started, succumbed to the Boston assault in the fifth after stringing up six hits and walking that many more. Jark Russell and Charlie Root completed the pitching chores.

Rookie Jim Bagby Chalks Up Third Win For Red Sox

Boston, June 2 (AP)—Jim Bagby, Jr., pitching in mastery fashion, chalked up his third win of the season for the Red Sox today when his teammates pounded three St. Louis pitchers for 15 hits and a 6-1 verdict.

Bagby faltered just once during the game, feeding Beau Bell a home-run ball when that right fielder opened St. Louis' side of the fourth inning and accounted for its only run. The Boston rookie, however, made up for that slip in Boston's side of that frame, when he clinched the game by scoring the Soxers' first two runs with a mighty single.

Nogales, Ariz. (AP)—The Arizona Small Mine Operators association has demanded changes in practices under the gold regulation act, charging that it has destroyed the market for their gold.

Assayers and others who formerly purchased small quantities of the metal declare the new statute is so confusing they are afraid to risk prosecution by handling gold. Small miners and prospectors say that to profit on their bullion they now have to take it into Mexico and sell it for $16 an ounce, as against the American price of $35.

They pounded crooner Joe Casarella to the showers under a six-hit, four-run barrage in the fourth and went on from there against three others, while big Max Hatcher turned in an eight-hit performance for his third win of the year. The first three runs off Butcher were due to an error.

FAIR PROJECT RECEIVES O.K.

To Improve Grandstand To Give Spectators More Visibility

President Roosevelt has signed a WPA project, providing an allotment of $10,168 for the improvement of the grandstand in the Upper Peninsula State Fairgrounds.

In a telegram to the Press, Congressman John Luecke said that final confirmation by the comptroller general is expected at an early date. The project calls for the removal of the wooden supports in the grandstand and the substitution of steel posts so as to improve visibility.

An application is also being made for a labor project to complete the pistol range at the fairgrounds. Excavation work for the range is already completed.

The president also has signed a WPA project, carrying an allotment of $28,761 for the improvement of roads throughout Schoolcraft county.

The artificial ice industry's largest item of expense is neither labor nor materials, but the cost of the coal used to produce the steam that runs the compressor ice machine.

Interesting Items of Day Picked Up Around Town

Local people depending on the Chicago and North Western railway's one o'clock whistle to end their noon hour found their daily schedule disrupted yesterday when it blew at 12:45 instead of one.

The whistle was blown to call the wrecker crew together to go to Peshtigo, as train No. 21 was delayed there due to a broken journal on the engine. The wrecker call was cancelled before the "big hook" left town, however, and the crippled engine was temporarily repaired at Peshtigo and pushed to Marinette.

The damage was done, however, and little children arrived at school fifteen minutes ahead of time and wondered what sort of a trick had been played on them.

NO FAVORITISM SHOWN

In a discussion over the possibility of extending water mains to serve residents in the southwest portion of the city last night at the council meeting, Mayor Peter Logan said:

"I approve of the idea. After all, we should give service to the living." City Attorney Herbert J. Rushton laughingly replied: "Yes, last year we gave it to the dead!", remembering the extension of the water mains to the St. Joseph cemetery.

HORSE STOPS TRAIN

Kenosha, Wis. (AP)—It might have been common thirty or fifty years ago but it happened just the other day—

Victor Sienkowski's horse fell on a railroad crossing. The whistle of an approaching train spurred Victor's futile efforts to get the animal to its feet.

The watchman ran down the tracks and flagged the train to a stop just short of the crossing. A red cross safety squad and several spectators finally got the horse to its feet.

To protect their horses from the files, South American farmers put trousers on them.

Escanaba Woman's Sister Injured In Milwaukee Blast

Mrs. Axel Sandell, of 1003 North 21st street, Milwaukee, a former resident of Hermansville, who was injured in an explosion caused by gas seeping from a main line into her home, earlier in the week, is a sister of Mrs. Erick Froberg of 1217 Eighth avenue south, this city, it was learned yesterday.

The explosion, according to descriptions in the Milwaukee paper, completely wrecked furnishings of the home, and caused the outer walls to bulge out over the foundations.

Mrs. Sandell was alone in the house and smelled gas. She hurried to a nearby station and notified the gas company and returned to the home with firemen. The explosion occurred soon after they entered the home. Firemen said that the explosion might have been caused by a spark from a light switch. She fortunately escaped with only injuries to her arm. A fireman was severely burned and is still in the hospital.

There were fifty canaries in the house at the time and all came through the blast unharmed, although three escaped and were later captured.

London Puts Lid On Vice Rackets

London (AP)—Scotland Yard has launched a vigorous campaign against "flat farmers"—the English name for landlords of apartments who are growing wealthy on the profits of West End vice.

The flat farmers have a neat system for circumventing the police. Many of them never visit their flats but employ shady agents who ask no questions, require no references. This leaves the owners clear to disclaim all knowledge of the tenants' morals.

No rent book is issued, no documents are available, in the event of a raid, to link the landlord with the premises. And although the women often know who their landlord is, they usually are unwilling to name him—either through fear or some curious sense of loyalty.

It's a profitable business. Rooms worth only a few shillings a week bring in five to ten times that much.

Ambergris, used in perfumery, is a secretion formed in the intestine of the whale, and found floating on the sea.

Owing to the warm North Atlantic drift, the climate of Spitsbergen is less severe than in the corresponding latitudes of Greenland.
