Reward Of $10,000 Raised For Capture Of Cash Kidnapers

Princeton, Fla., June 8 (AP)—A drive was started today to raise a reward fund equal to the $10,000 ransom for apprehension of the kidnapers of James Bailey Cash, Jr.

A searching party which went to Cape Sable Monday with provisions for a week's stay to hunt for the body of the five-year-old kidnaping victim returned without that its quest was fruitless.

At Washington the house voted unanimously a $50,000 appropriation to finance the G-men's investigation of the case at the request of President Roosevelt.

The veteran dirt track driver died on his way to the hospital from the effects of a fractured skull and punctured lungs.

Striking the wall at the south turn, the car spun down the track, turned over three times in the air, and came to a halt upright on the track.

Truth About Recovery

Drifting Money Policy Fatal to Any Plan to Bring Back Prosperity, Says Flynn

Convinced that politicians, business men and the public are in no mood for a thorough overhauling of the nation's economic machinery, John T. Flynn ventures to suggest "the best realizable" program of business recovery. Today, in the second of three articles, this distinguished journalist-economist writes of the why and wherefores of depressions.

BY JOHN T. FLYNN (Copyright, 1938, NEA Service, New York.—The causes of economic depression are deeply rooted in the economic system. Nothing could be more superficial than to say, for instance, that this is an inventory depression.

This depression, like most depressions, is a perfectly natural phenomenon. It is part of the logical functioning of the economic system. I have already indicated that to make a real repair job on the system will require drastic measures. We will come to them one day. But it is certain that the people will not permit them now. It is certain that they want in what is euphemistically called "recovery"—another flight of better times. That, then, is the most that can be attempted now.

In this turn is due to the failure of long term credit mechanisms in society. Why long term credit—or investment—declines may be the result of various causes. Generally it is due to (a) rising prices in capital goods industries, which check capital expansion, (b) rising prices of consumer goods which cut purchasing power, (c) rising debt burdens which limit credit of those who invest in capital industries and (d) exhaustion of credit or investment opportunities.

Here then are three loads which weigh an economic system down when it begins to crack—debt, prices, exhaustion of immediate credit opportunities. If this is so, and I think there can be no doubt of it, the worst possible course a government can take is any effort to preserve the debt structure or keep up prices. Mr. Hoover started the policy of trying to save debts. Mr. Roosevelt continued it on a vaster scale and used the most violent methods to put prices up. Both were actually taking measures to prolong the depression.

The latest figure to achieve prominence in Washington is Mr. John W. Hanes, Wall Street broker, of the SEC. He has a plan to put the government in the business of lending money to merchants and manufacturers to enable them to hold their excessive inventories in order to keep prices up. Seemingly the President likes Mr. Hanes so much that he has made him assistant-secretary of the Treasury. At the end of so many years of failure of the policy of saving debts and prices, there is something tragic about this.

The first thing, therefore, in any plan of recovery is for the government to withdraw at once and completely from all schemes to keep alive private debts of all sorts—bonds, stock, mortgages. They should be allowed to go. Some will be hurt. Many will actually be helped by it. But the opposite policy is to hurt the whole nation.

The second thing is to take the government instantly out of every scheme for keeping prices up. And at the same time the government itself should use every instrumentality it has to prohibit private groups, combinations, trade associations from entering agreements to hold up prices or to limit production, directly or indirectly. This means things like the Guffey Bituminous Coal Commission should be scrapped, the Sherman anti-trust law and other trust laws like the Clayton Act should be vigorously and impartially enforced.

The same thing should be applied to agricultural prices. The Commodity Surplus Corporation should be demobilized and all attempts at pegging farm prices should be ended. The farm problem can be attacked from a different angle.

On the question of exhaustion of investment opportunities, there is nothing the government can do about that. That is a problem strictly for private business. It is supposed to create those opportunities. If it does not, then certain other adjustments will be necessary later.

Nothing could be more fatal than uncertainty in money policy. No man can make more than a guess now whether we are going to have deflation or inflation. We drift and all uncertainty arises out of that.

The government can remove this uncertainty. It can definitely decide upon a policy of inflation or deflation. It can announce it and announce its intention to adhere to that policy. It is not so important which policy it pursues as to have the policy settled on, adopted and ended.

Drifting deflation, drifting inflation are the two most destructive of forces. This, I think, should be the cornerstone of any program of recovery.

PLATES MOVE SLOWLY Lansing, June 8 (AP)—The state department told today of a lagging sale of 1938 motor vehicle license plates. The announcement said 1,478,096 sets of plates were sold as of May 31, compared with 1,498,964 on the same date in 1937.

limit inserted. Senator Pepper said at the close of the day's session that he would propose tomorrow a change in the compromise. Under the amendment the industrial boards would go into action immediately, with instructions to increase the wage to 40 cents as rapidly as possible. After seven years, the 40 cent scale would be mandatory, except where unemployment would result, as in the formula adopted today.

Barring a filibuster by Ellender and his colleagues—Ellender, himself, spoke nearly four days in last winter's filibuster against the anti-lynching bill—it was generally thought that adjournment would be reached by the middle, or latter part, of next week.

On the floors of congress, meanwhile, the senate debated and passed a $37,000,000 appropriation bill for rivers and harbors, and the house considered the $272,000,000 deficiency appropriation bill.

At the request of Senator Tydings (D-Mo.) the senate took from the appropriations committee and referred instead to the audit and control committee, his resolution, backed by nine other democratic senators, for an investigation of all charges of politics in the administration of relief. Tydings' purpose was to obtain speedier action. The democratic leadership made no objection.

NO PORK BARREL Washington, June 8 (AP)—The senate passed the rivers and harbors bill today after clarifying the war department's power to determine policies on waterway development.

One amendment by Senator Norris (Ind.-Neb.) eliminated language which, he contended, gave army engineers undue authority to decide national policy on power development and other water uses. Another asserted the war department's authority to acquire or exchange lands for water projects did not extend to lands held or acquired by the Tennessee valley authority.

The measure, which would authorize projects to cost $37,000,000, now goes back to the house for concurrence in the amendments.

Chairman Mansfield (D-Tex.) of the rivers and harbors committee said it was unlikely he would request a conference on the amendments, leaving only house concurrence to send the bill to the White House.

Senator Copeland (D-NY) chairman of the senate commerce committee said there were "no ulterior" motives behind the legislation and it was "no pork barrel measure."

The bill makes no appropriation but merely authorizes the projects as funds become available.

The senate added a number of surveys to those previously included in the bill. Among them was Kawakawin River, Mich., with a view to dredging the outlet for improvement of navigation and flood control.

ASKS RELIEF INCREASE

Washington, June 8 (AP)—President Roosevelt appealed to legislators today to add $175,000,000 to a pending appropriation for WPA relief. He based his plea on widespread unemployment.

Originally, he asked that congress appropriate $1,250,000,000 for the purpose in the spending-lending bill of more than $2,500,000,000. The house voted the sum, for the first seven months of the next fiscal year.

Later, the senate, with administration approval, increased the figure to $1,425,000,000. The president, in a letter to Speaker Bankhead, suggested today that the higher figure be approved also by house conferees who will begin tomorrow the task of reconciling differences with the senate on the big lending-spending measure.

NAVY FUND APPROVED Washington, June 8 (AP)—The house stamped its approval tonight on a $277,500,000 appropriation bill which includes funds to start the billion dollar "big navy" program.

The measure, a deficiency bill, now goes to the senate. It would permit the navy to begin work on two 35,000-ton battleships, two light cruisers, eight "mystery" ships and seven auxiliary vessels. It also contains $305,000 to

Chicago Diversion Increase Will Not Come Up In House

Washington, June 8 (AP)—Chances for congressional action at this session on Lake Michigan water diversion at Chicago diminished today when the house rivers and harbors committee held what was intended to be its final meeting and failed to make a recommendation.

Committee action was necessary before the house could consider a bill by Representative Parsons (D-Ill.), to authorize continuation of the present diversion of 5,000 cubic feet a second. The supreme court had directed a limit of 1,500 second feet, effective next December 31.

During hearings on the measure conflicting charges were made not only as to the merits of the bill but also the motives behind the proposal.

Foes of the bill asserted hydroelectric power was the compelling force behind the measure. Advocates, led by the Mississippi Valley association and William Hale (Big Bill) Thompson, former mayor of Chicago, contended transportation on the inland waterways system was the only reason for the proposal.

Prolonged hearings brought representatives here from New Orleans, La., the mid-west, and all lake port cities and states.

plan but refused to send out the letters. He said he told Dickinson to "go ahead himself."

"I can only speak for myself, of course," Fitzgerald said, "but I am a candidate for the nomination and am going to be the nominee and the next governor." Thus, Fitzgerald left the way open for other candidates to get behind him but implied his own refusal to get behind another contender.

Dickinson said the compromise plan had been adopted twenty years ago for both offices. That was the year other contestants withdrew and left an open field for former Governor Albert E. Sleeper and himself.

He made it clear that if the candidates did not unite he would run for lieutenant governor again, a help the G-men combat kidnaping and $3,975,000 to pay re-enlistment allowances in the army. The latter sum was added at the suggestion of Rep. Scott (D-Cal.)

In addition to the $16,050,000 for new ship construction, the bill carries $19,752,000 for improvements to navy yards and shore stations. These projects are designed to expedite the shipbuilding program.

The other major items in the bill are $94,285,404 to restore to $10,000,000 the capital of the Commodity Credit Corporation, impaired principally by government cotton loans, $50,000,000 for refunds of processing taxes and $40,561,886 to refund social security taxes to states which did not have unemployment compensation laws in effect on December 31, 1936.

Doings About Capitol

Lansing—Results of the Iowa democratic primary last Monday (June 6) were being studied this week at the Michigan capital city as a possible "straw in the wind" on how the federal government's new relief spending program will affect the Michigan election in November.

In the case of the Gillette-Wearin primary row, WPA administrator Harry Hopkins announced that if he were voting in the Iowa primary he would support Representative Wearin "on his record." The record consisted principally of the fact that Gillette voted against Roosevelt's court reorganization plan, while Wearin voted for it.

Arthur Krook, Pulitzer prize-winning Washington correspondent of the Democratic New York Times, interprets Hopkins' statement as openly putting "all the relief billions into Democrat party politics," and he points out further that during the 1936 campaign "there were many evidences that relief workers were shepherded by their State politician-bosses to vote the Democratic ticket solidly."

Mr. Krook continues: "Since the Administration has spent about $21,000,000,000 in various forms of relief—of which more than $14,000,000,000 has gone into non-recoverable items—and since millions of men and women look to Washington for continuation and favor on the rolls, the importance of the Hopkins revelation is clear."

Recent WPA-relief figures for Michigan disclosed that one of every four persons is dependent today on the government. In view of this fact, it is more and more apparent that the vast federal pump priming program, spending billions through WPA and direct relief, will be no insignificant factor in Michigan's 1938 general election regardless of what party leaders may have to say.

Getting Your Share

When the federal government has billions of dollars to hand out, whether for highways, parks, swimming pools or whatnot—you can find few voters who do not insist on getting their share. The same voters may disapprove of vast public spending, as a recent Gallup survey showed, but if it is to be done, local leaders rush to

Washington to make sure the home community will get its proportionate part of the cash. The psychology is this: "If you have to contribute by taxes to spending, get as much of the money as you can."

Scores of federal postoffices have been built in Michigan, largely due to this public pressure. Once you come to this conclusion, the next step is to favor the election, or re-election, of a representative who stands well with the White House and has a good chance of getting a slice of the pie.

More than one Republican voted for Murray D. Van Wagener, state highway commissioner, because he wanted local highway improvements and believed that "Pat" could get more federal road money than an anti-New Dealer. Vice-President Garner put it this way: "You can't beat an administration with billions of dollars to spend." It looks like Jack was right.

Fry Sounds Warning

In view of the possible implications of the vast federal relief spending, the recent utterances of State Treasurer Theodore I. Fry, an old-line, stalwart Democrat, are quite remarkable. Now serving his third term, Treasurer Fry warned that the WPA and PWA was tending to increase dependency upon government and that continuation of such paternalism over any length of time would inevitably result in a "millstone . . . of ever increasing taxation."

In view of the increased relief spending in Michigan, $14,500,000 of state money being expended since last July 1, Fry's declaration indicated that taxpayers might have to foot higher cost of welfare either directly in form of new or higher taxes or indirectly in form of higher commodity prices. He warned further that in England where a fourth of the population depends on a dole, citizens are taxed one fourth of their income. How about Michigan? Draw your own conclusion.

Swing to the Right

Frank Fitzgerald, republican candidate for governor, has indicated that economy and home-rule for relief may be his leading campaign issues, if he wins the party nomination next September. Harry Toy, rival candidate, has been emphasizing law and order.

With these statements in mind, observers here find it significant that the state administration has made definite "turns to the right" of which Fry's speech at Fremont was one. Budget Director Harold Smith, collaborating with Governor Murphy, announces he will institute so-called drastic economies for the next fiscal year, starting July 1. Department heads are urged to curtail expenditures or else run the risk of the state being unable to meet payrolls, now over $2,000,000 a month.

And to the Toy appeal for law and order, Governor Murphy told 5,000 members of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. at Saginaw that "unions must stop unauthorized strikes and the seizure of property." The reference to "property seizure" recalls the 1933 seizure of utility plants by the C. I. O. and the widespread sit-down epidemic of 1937.

Labor and Industry

Because of C. I. O.-Goodyear labor trouble at Akron, a representative of the Akron Chamber of Commerce recently told B. C. Forbes, Hearst financial writer, "It was useless to attempt to attract any new industry whatsoever to Akron."

Akron's ill fortune, however, has been the good fortune of one Michigan small city—situated far from the automobile belt—which has secured a Goodyear tire factory, employing 200 persons, and only recently received inside confirmation of the company's decision to double the plant facilities.

Reverse the order and you have a possible picture of what may happen in certain Michigan industrial centers.

Graduates at Communion Breakfast

216 Seniors Will Get Diplomas This Evening

Two hundred and sixteen seniors, the largest number of graduates in a single year in the history of Escanaba high school, will receive their diplomas at commencement exercises to be held at the William W. Oliver Memorial auditorium this evening, at 8:15 o'clock. Admission is by ticket only.

This year's program is based on a youth forum, entitled "The America We Want," in which several members of the class discuss various aspects of life as they would like to see it. The complete program will be as follows:

SCOUT LEADERS TO VISIT CAMP

Beautiful Campsite on Red Jack Lakes May Be Inspected

Scout leaders of the Red Buck Council, including district committee men, scoutmasters, assistants, and all others connected with the Scout organization are invited to attend an inspection of the campsite at the Red Jack Lakes in the National Forest where the new Scout camp will be located.

It has been suggested that it be made a family affair and that an afternoon be spent in this region. Many of the people will bring picnic suppers. It is planned to have the entire group meet at Camp Kentucky and drive together to the new campsite. The group will leave Camp Kentucky at 2:30 Sunday afternoon. This will be an opportunity for all people interested in the Scout program to become acquainted with leaders from other cities and to get a complete picture of what has been done regarding the council camp. Residents of Escanaba and Gladstone will find that by taking the road to Isabella on US-2, they will pass through beautiful sections of forest land on the way to Camp Kentucky. Follow the Uno Lake signs and the Camp Kentucky signs. The campsite is located about 25 miles from US-2 on a direct line between Nahma Junction and Manistig.

Halp! Halp!

Tables Are Turned As Police Seek Aid of General Public

People usually go to the police for help—but this time the tables are turned and the police are seeking help. The three things troubling the city police are: (1) lawns; (2) fireworks; and (3) stop light. The help of the public in remedying the situation is asked in all three cases.

"We used to have trouble," said Chief of Police M. F. Eitenhofer, "with dogs on newly made lawns and shrubbery—now it is people. It is difficult to understand why human beings do not have sense enough to avoid walking on growing lawns and shrubbery. We cannot appeal to the common sense of dogs but we can hope it will do some good by asking the cooperation of people in avoiding such unnecessary damage."

In connection with fireworks, parents are asked to remember the fate of the local youth who lost his eye last year while playing with firecrackers. The law specifically outlaws use of fireworks of any kind and parents are liable to arrest if their children are caught using them. Even if the law is no deterrent, danger to lives of the youngsters should be sufficient to cause parents to use strict methods in keeping their children from using fireworks.

Chief Eitenhofer yesterday called attention to the almost universal violation of the stop sign ordinance in connection with the stop sign at the corner of Ludington and Stephenson avenue. While it is permissible to make a right hand turn against the red light, it is absolutely necessary that the driver bring his car to a complete stop before making the turn. Within the next few days, after drivers have had sufficient chances to observe the rule, police will watch the corner

Bureau to Meet

THE Upper Peninsula Development Bureau will hold its annual meeting at Ironwood on Friday and Saturday, and advance announcements indicate that an interesting program will be presented.

The Bureau was founded in Menominee 27 years ago, and the organization has kept intact through alternating periods of prosperity and adversity.

While doing everything possible to promote the agricultural and industrial development of the Upper Peninsula, the Bureau has concentrated its efforts on building up the tourist business, which is recognized by everyone as having great possibilities.

be recalled that President Theodore Roosevelt was on the verge of sending in Federal troops to take over the mines at the time of the great anthracite miners' strike during his administration.

The Safety Movement

A STRIKING and unusual experiment in the interest of safety will be undertaken at New York University, beginning July 1.

According to announcement, the new project, which is the first of its kind in this country, will provide a comprehensive program of information, instruction and research in matters connected with accident control.

The motives underlying the new center were explained by the National Conservation Bureau, which pointed out that the stock casualty companies have been active since 1922 in the child safety education movement.

THE WATERWAY AGAIN

Efforts to restore the St. Lawrence waterway continue, with the backing of the administration in Washington.

It is this last part of the proposal that should be viewed with concern by residents of the Upper Peninsula for if the administration's plans are successful two important industries here, mining and lumbering, will be directly affected.

If the administration opens the Great Lakes to large foreign freighters it will be delivering a spear thrust to the mining and lumbering industries of the Upper Peninsula.

In 1932 the militia was called out against the farmers who were resisting mortgage foreclosures by the banks and insurance companies, and in 1934 the State of Georgia called out no less than 4000 militiamen to put down a strike of textile workers.

Reports that Spanish soldiers and refugees are fleeing across the Pyrenees into French border towns draw attention to the top of the Iberian peninsula, where one of the latest chapters in the Spanish war is being written.

Over wind-whipped, snow-packed passes of northeast Spain, still in Loyalist hands, have tramped battalions of trapped troops and hundreds of civilians, some carrying children in arms.

On a relief map of Europe, the Pyrenees march across the back door of Spain with an apparent monotonous regularity.

Bleak and barren, with only an occasional red-tiled village or a patch of valley green to relieve the stark rock masses, the Pyrenees are marked by several peculiarities.

Only at west and east extremities, where the Pyrenees stoop finally to the sea, do low passes occur to permit passage of the main highways and railways that link Spain with France.

Yet despite inaccessibility, these mountains have echoed with man's footsteps from time immemorial, and have seen drama as bizarre and variegated as their scenery.

Over their rugged sides swarmed Celtic tribes, long before Christ, to mix with the Iberians, and later with the trading peoples of the Mediterranean, in forming the population base of the country.

From the south, during the 8th-century conquest of the Moors and in the religious wars that followed, came a Mohammedan flood. Charlemagne, marching down from the north in 778, crossed these rocks with his great army.

There were other famous passages—though less romanticized in story and song, since they lacked a hero like Charlemagne's paladin, Roland.

La Seo, as the town is sometimes called, is a popular stop for visitors on their way to the odd little independence of Andorra, also famed for its spectacular mountain scenery.

A fishhook has been invented, which automatically withdraws itself from the clothing. What the average fisherman needs more is a fish which automatically withdraws itself from the water.

New York—Aurora is a shy little town in upper New York whose 389 inhabitants till their farms and are hardly aware that among them quietly lives one of the most colorful women of our times.

That she chose a convent at Aurora as a temporary home was a state secret, apparently, because when the most memorable "Peter Pan" of all time rode off from Hollywood, word went out that she was returning to Long Island.

Convents have been her home for over three decades. Miss Adams' absorption in the Concele Sisters, a Belgian teaching order, is intense.

Once, incidentally, a friend of Miss Adams undertook to explain this love of a meditative life amidst the sisters.

It has been said that Miss Adams surrendered to the cinema because she is in financial difficulties, but that statement is based upon the most outward appearance—her depleted wardrobe and her fervent avoidance of anything lavish.

Most of the money she earns goes to fill the coffers of the Long Island and Aurora convents. And what may be left over goes toward her important work in technical research.

For it is no secret that Miss Adams has been putting around with experiments in the realms of light and sound over a score of years.

Modern science is more adept at tearing down the world than unifying it.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington, June 8.—The partners of M. M. Warburg and Company, of Hamburg, have resigned. The 150-year-old banking house has been taken over by the German state.

The news sounds much like other news from the reich, in these last years. To be sure, Max Warburg and his brother, Fritz, are old men, 72 and close on 70. To be sure, their firm has always played a large and honorable part in the commercial life of Germany.

But they are Jews, Max and his brother, Fritz. It had been coming for a long time. Once before, a year or so ago, their resignation had been tentatively demanded.

Yet when the storm-troopers came, or the telephone from Berlin brought the resignation order, Max Warburg's mind must have flown sadly back, over the year, to the spring of 1919.

PRISONERS AT VERSAILLES

At Versailles, that spring of 1919, the crowds pressed hungrily around the Hotel Des Reservoirs. Guards marched to and fro along a makeshift iron fence, across the pavement, sun-flecked through the trees.

Within the hotel, among the raddled grandeurs of the tall rooms, the German delegates to the Versailles Peace Conference argued interminably. They might have been expected to disagree.

The subject of their discussion was simple. Would they sign the peace treaty? They had been brought under guard from Germany. They had learned the hard terms. They had rebelled.

And the man who stiffened their resistance was not Rantzen or Geisberg, Mueller or David. He was the dapper Jewish banker of Hamburg, Max Warburg.

Because of Max Warburg, a Government of the reich resigned, a new government was formed, before men could be found to sign the treaty, the paper foundation of the Nazi cause.

REICH MINISTER DILLINGER

The final destitution of the Warburgs is the sign that the masters of the reich have lost all shame in their anti-semitism. And it is only one sign among many.

There is nothing especially heroic, for example, in the Baron Louis de Rothschild. He was the head of the Kreditanstalt, the great Vienna bank which crashed so resoundingly a few years ago.

Yet there is something shameless in the Nazi effort to use Baron Louis to extract ransom from his family. Soon after the invasion of Austria, he was captured, a rich prize.

The amount named was too vast, even for the Rothschilds. And the masters of the reich, like Dillinger, whose tactics they have borrowed, are still clutching their prize.

A SHORT MORAL

Such stories as these, such stories as the ransom of the great Freud, should teach a lesson. Wherever prejudice shows itself, it must be stamped out, whether it be anti-Semitism, anti-Catholicism, or anti-Protestantism.

Thieves have stolen some of the hidden riches of Tibet's late Panchen Lama. They scooped up the cache and took it on the lama.

A truck smashed a hamburger stand in Peoria 4 hours after it opened for business. Fortunately, however, it was a quick lunch.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

YOUR WORD

Be slow to give, be sure to keep. That's all I can tell you, son. But when your father lies asleep, His work however poorly done, I hope at least this much is heard: "Well, anyway, he kept his word."

Be slow to give, for some who do Break in the giving, knowing well That they can never see it through. For it is better far to tell Them now, and even to offend, Than fool a stranger, fall a friend.

Be sure to keep. Whatever's lost, Whatever paid for anything, You will at least have learned the cost Of unconsidered promising. And this will also help a lot: "He kept his word, no matter what."

Singer Will Be Absent Because of Concert Here Friday

Richard Carlton, who will present a concert at the William W. Oliver Memorial Auditorium here Friday night under the auspices of the music department of Escanaba schools, will not be able to attend commencement exercises at the University of Illinois, from which he is graduating this year, because of the concert.

Carlton, who will be accompanied by Mrs. F. M. Fernstrom at the piano, will be assisted by the Escanaba high school a capella choir, which is one of the finest musical groups Director R. P. Bowers has ever produced.

Academic achievement for some 2,200 young men and women who have attended the University of Illinois will be climaxed within the next few days when the sixty-seventh annual commencement exercises and attendant ceremonies are held.

At 9 a. m. Monday, June 13, some 5,000 degrees, including about 250 for advanced work, will be conferred in the commencement exercises in George Huff gymnasium at Champaign. Dr. Ernest L. Bogart, retiring as head of the department of economics after 29 years of service with the University of Illinois, will speak.

At 10:30 a. m. Friday, June 10, approximately 200 degrees and certificates will be awarded to graduates of the Colleges of Medicine, Dentistry, and Pharmacy, which are located in Chicago. These ceremonies will be held in the Chicago Civic Opera house. Dean David J. Davis of the College of Medicine will speak.

Commencement will be the climax of busy activities at both places. In Chicago alumni reunions and class day exercises will be Thursday. Class day exercises at Urbana were Wednesday. Baccalaureate services will be in George Huff gymnasium at 4 p. m. Sunday, June 12, with the Rev. Robert Freeman of the Pasadena, Calif., Presbyterian church, speaking.

The baccalaureate and commencement exercises on the Urbana campus will be broadcast by the university's radio station, WILL.

Trouble In Corn Belt

How Farmers View Crop Control Measures

(Second of Two Stories)
BY WILLIAM THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Macomb, Ill.—Despite protests against corn acreage allotments and possible "farm dictatorship" by farmers joining the Corn Belt Liberty League, many farmers are going along with the government's plans in this section.

The truth is, neither those who are joining in the League's protest, nor those who follow the government lead, understand the plan very well. It is like the Einstein theory, a thousand people talk about it for every one who understands it.

"I've never heard the agricultural act or the ever-normal granary plan explained or discussed at any League meeting," says Andy Hodges. "There is a lot of arm-waving and talk about liberty and compulsion, but they never take up the plan itself."

"But it makes a lot of the farmers curious. They come in here and ask questions. And pretty near all of them agree with the plan after they've heard what it's about."

Hodges is president of the McDonough County Agricultural Conservation Association. There is such an association in every farm county.

THE PROS AND CONS OF FARM PROGRAM
"We're not working against the League, or paying or discussing at any League meeting," says Andy Hodges. "In fact, we agree with them that no compulsion can be used on American farmers. But we think this farm program is democratic in the way it works."

"Political parties have nothing to do with it. Those of us who believe in the plan and are working on it think it is bigger than parties, and that something like this will have to be carried on by whatever party is in."

Tilden Burg, head of the Corn Belt Liberty League, admits that the compulsory element in the present bill is diluted and remote. But he fears for the future.

"They get their foot in the door with the compulsory feature of this act, and next year it will be worse. Then the way is open for complete control over our farms by officials. That's what we want to head off right now," he says.

JUST WHERE IS THE COMPULSION?
So, compulsion being the issue, it is worth examining what degree and what kind of compulsion is provided by the act.

In the first place, no farmer need go along with the plans at all, but can plant whatever acreage he wishes.

If, when Aug. 15 rolls around, government estimates indicate a corn crop of 2,800,000,000 bushels

(that is 110 per cent of normal supply and well above normal domestic and export needs), then things begin to happen.

The secretary of agriculture decides how much of that corn can be put on the market without breaking the price unduly. And every farmer in the 566 counties of the commercial corn-growing area is notified what is his share of that.

But before these quotas are made effective, two-thirds of the commercial-area growers must vote for it. Once so voted, it is effective against participants and non-participants alike. There is no compulsion.

Corn which a farmer has raised above his quota, once it is voted, must be stored, and not sold or fed, whether he takes part in the plan or not.

FINES LEVIED FOR NON-COMPLIANCE
Corn marketed in excess of the quota draws a fine of 15 cents a bushel. To prevent hardship to farmers in having their capital tied up in the form of stored corn, the government will loan 25 cents a bushel on the corn. When the price rises to 75 per cent of parity (63 cents this year) the stored corn would be released to the market.

Backers of the present corn plan point out this: The 1938 crop burned out, causing a shortage. But last year's crop was so heavy that there is now a carryover of 1,987,678,000 bushels of unused, unshelled, unfermented corn in storage. A bumper crop this fall would knock the price back down around 30 cents unless control is effected.

But another thing that sticks in some corn belt farmers' craws is this: The allotment and quota limitations apply only to the 566 counties of the commercial area. Farmers outside that area can raise all the corn they like without being subject to limitation or penalty.

There is one specific possibility in the League which may be giving Secretary Wallace more worry than long-range political implications.

It is this: If a surplus looms in the fall, and marketing quotas are set, the League will be in a position, being organized, to oppose as a unit in the referendum the imposition of quotas. And since it takes two-thirds to ratify the quotas, the organized opposition of the League might be a vital factor.

POTATO SHOW MEETING HERE

Our Only Hope for Peace and Security

Those who guide our foreign affairs must constantly repeat the truth that this country cannot practice isolation. We are and always have been dependent upon imports from abroad, on exports of our soil products and manufactured goods, and on world conditions. Our history shows that whenever the world is at war the United States joins the fray. We have invested billions in foreign countries. When those investments are destroyed we suffer.

As the country which more than any other exports war materials, we are responsible for the use to which those materials are put. If we refuse to export the instruments of death to any country or group of countries, we may thereby decide the result of war. This involves a responsibility which we are not permitted to escape.

As a result of these self-evident facts the United States plays a predominant role in world affairs sometimes by what we do, sometimes by what we refuse to do. And since we cannot separate ourselves from the world we will continue to be a part of it economically, financially and politically.

Secretary of State Hull recognizes these facts and would like to guide American policy accordingly. He is hampered by American isolationists. These well-meaning individuals refuse to recognize that in the modern world no great power can practice isolation. The elimination of distance by modern science places the United States as close to Europe as the British Isles were a century ago when Napoleon vainly sought to isolate them from the Continent.

Threat of Retrogression of Man

Secretary Hull's address before the Tennessee Bar Association is an attempt to educate the world to the realities of the world in which we live. Three great powers—Germany, Italy and Japan—are engaged in destroying international law. They have violated solemn treaties; they are guilty of aggression against neighbor powers; they are exalting the doctrine of force as the ultimate ratio. If this continues and involves, as it must, the rest of the world in war, we will all be thrown back to the spirit and methods of the Dark Ages.

This threat is not imaginary. The unutterably cruel and futile bombardment of open cities in Spain and China is one evidence of the spirit which Secretary Hull condemns. Germany's inhuman persecution of the Jews is another example of this barbarous spirit. If the rest of the world continues to look on and do nothing, savagery will triumph over civilization.

As a contribution to a saner world the American Secretary of State proposes that the United States co-operate in a common effort to restore international law. He announces that "we are prepared to join with other nations in directing every effort for the restoration and strengthening of sound and constructive international economic relationships."

This means we are ready to join another world economic conference. He torpedoed the last one in 1933 after bringing it about. It is therefore our obvious duty to take the lead when the time is ripe for another meeting. Only we must be sure we are ready to join a common effort before we propose it.

International Creed

Mr. Hull's second proposal is that "we are prepared to join with other nations in moving resolutely toward bringing about an effective agreement on limitation and progressive reduction of armaments."

Practical reduction of armaments became a reality at the Washington Conference of 1921. It was torpedoed after a decade by Japan at London and by Germany at Geneva. Since then another futile race in armaments has begun. Before long it will bankrupt every power engaged in it. But it is probable that the process of bankruptcy must proceed a little further. In Japan, Germany and Italy before they will be ready to call a halt. In the meantime the only recourse of the peace-minded nations is to develop armaments that will be superior to those of the three major aggressor powers.

Mr. Hull's third proposal is to resume and carry forward the work begun at the Hague 20 years ago "of humanizing by common agreement the rules of practical warfare."

An appeal for such action was voiced in this column last week and has since been made by the foreign offices of France, Britain and the United States. Now is the time for concerted action to humanize aerial warfare to the extent that this may be possible. We cannot allow ourselves to become hardened and indifferent to such manifestations of savagery as are occurring in the crowded cities of Spain and China. The world must continue to protest against these things or lose its soul.

This Man, Joe Murray

BY WILLIAM CORCORAN

Copyright, 1938, by William Corcoran; NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOE MURRAY—11ked new places, new jobs, new girls.
HELEN—fell in love—hard—once.
TERRY MALLOW—found love—and kept it!

Yesterday, Joe eliminates Tommy Withers but in so doing he has drawn Terry closer. She now hangs on to him for dear life.

CHAPTER VIII

Joe saw, of course, the obvious little tricks she used to persuade him to make a second visit after that first one, a third after that, and a fourth—all the artless wiles she practiced to flatter him and interest him. But who could mind? They were so obvious. When any child piles you with artful tricks and phrases, you are tickled and flattered and you are tickled and flattered in their very transparency. He did not know the answer, and he watched her and wondered many, many times, and could never quite make her out entirely, for all her simple artlessness.

It was altogether unprecedented, and in no way resembling, in the least the terms of the bargain Joe thought he had made with Terry, but it was there, unanswerable. She needed him. He had taken a job on himself, assumed a responsibility. If it weren't so downright serious, he'd probably rebel, on principle. And paradoxically, if it weren't at the same time so pleasant and beguiling and amusing, watching her excited and thrilled and rapt and enjoying herself unbelievably over the triflingest pleasures, he'd probably have drifted soon in sheer weariness of responsibility. He did not. He did not want to.

"You crazy kid!" he told her in marvel as he beheld her incoherent delight at the rush and roar of the giant roller coaster out at Merlin Park. "Weren't you ever on one of those things? Where you been all these years? How's the lunch; settled? Come on, we'll take a ride."

And they rode . . . and imagine Joe Murray riding on a roller coaster, with a child of a woman alongside, frightened to ecstasy and hanging on to him, clutching him, trying frenziedly to get into his very pocket in the mad journey! Joe did that, and loved it. . . . and Joe himself couldn't imagine it for the life of him!

It was a queer, upsidown existence. But it was something to do, something with significance and meaning. How it would all come out he had no idea. They were two equally lonely souls who found it convenient to pretend a great importance to each other, to combine in partnership against the almost irresistible pressure of life, and the ending was of no consequence beside the peace of the moment.

They went to Merlin Park several times that spring. They went for Sunday excursions on the river boats. They went to moving pictures and to chop suey restaurants and saw the circus and heard a band concert in Graham Hall. They went to the dances at the political club to which the older Murrays cleaved. They rented a little car of nights and went out to Magnolia Gardens, which was a noisy little roadhouse of Fairmount Turnpike where the orchestra played St. Louis Blues at frequent intervals because it so suited their peculiar talents and the prevailing mood.

You will be curious to know how they did all these things in the face of the grim Mallow. Joe was curious himself. There had been a tussle at first. They had set their face against him rigidly, but he had ignored them, blandly and with frequent suppressions of temper, and worn them down. When he was out with Terry, he stepped into the parlor with her before leaving her there, to afford them opportunity to ask questions if they desired—and to give them a pleasant smile and a kind of cool, daunting eye if they thought to try.

They did not try, much. He was not a harum scarum boy; there was nothing sinister about him that they could object to; he had a mind of his own, and he was obviously playing square with their granddaughter, whatever they thought of her own reliability.

And then all at once they withdrew all opposition, scrutiny, even curiosity. They left the two of them alone when he came, even so far as to close the door deliberately between them. They made no comment of any kind in Terry's hearing when he had gone. They were not approving; they were simply holding off, waiting. It was not like them.

It came suddenly to Joe that they were furthering a marriage they thought they saw in the arrangement . . . even to the extent of leaving him in undisturbed privacy for hours at a time with their unreliable and wayward granddaughter, in hopes . . . in hopes!

It was an infuriating thought. The meanness of that! They would be rid of her, and in a way that would justify them utterly. It was against nature—and yet there it was!

It caused a reaction in Joe Murray. It set him to thinking. A man begins to go about with a girl, and pretty soon people smile and take matters for granted, and first thing you know they are married, whatever they may have thought in the beginning. That was right enough. But here he was going about with a girl, and her family were thinking of marriage in their own twisted way . . . other people probably drew their own conclusions as well.

His own people. He had long stopped talking about Terry at home. Terry had long stopped dropping in. There was a certain tension at home; they dared not broach personal questions, but they were thinking, and he could feel it. They were like any family anywhere, jealous and particular. They did not think so much of Terry as a wife for him. With that family the best the kid had, you couldn't blame them. They wanted a fine, proud, beautiful girl for him, somebody with substance and importance and cleverness, who would at the same time adore him madly and manage him coolly and expertly, saving him money and running his home and mothering his babies. His, mind you! How hopeless their dream!

He could never make the grade with a girl like that, even if so miraculous a person did happen to want him. He might try. But he would fail. She would be too much like Helen. When he thought of falling in love again, of choosing himself such a fine, proud, beautiful wife, he only thought of Helen, and the other faded to nothingness.

And what would they have made of Helen, if he had brought her to them? They called her "Polack." Not now, but once they had. "Polack!" They knew nothing of the pitiful endearment in that word. They knew nothing of the beauty he had almost, almost possessed. They knew nothing about the happiness, the suffering, the quality and power of his dream. They did not know anything about him. He was alone, among friends, among kin.

Except for Terry. That was a strange thing. He was not in love with Terry. She did not stir him; he never felt brutal and tender with her, darkly, hungrily, as he had with Helen. He had even, in the total absence of all emotion, told Terry all about Helen. He was not in love with Terry. Yet she understood him.

"You must have loved her terribly, Joe," she told him, sweetly and solemnly. Terry was not all effervescence and childishness. "I guess a man loves that way only once in his life—and only one man in a dozen even once, that way. It's something to be proud of and thankful for, even though it hurt you so. Because it's perfect and nothing can ever make the least mark on it. Don't you feel that?"

He did, in the end. But he had a thought, a difficult thought. Perfection was not for an everyday man in a workaday world. A man who has known perfection once is ready to die. There is nothing left. He told her that, gropingly.

"Oh, but there is!" she insisted. She seemed for an instant to lift her bright eyes up to an ever shining vision. "There's so much left. I've never had anything, but I always kept thinking of all I was going to have some day. Don't you ever think of homes all your own, where everybody and everything there is all yours and you can love them and nobody to stop you?" Babies all your own . . . "She looked at him. "Think of that!" she said.

He thought. Those things were lovely. But they were not real. They were only scenery on a stage from which a presence was gone and where a voice was stilled.

"I don't know," he said. "It'll all work out. But I quit thinking about things, any kind of things, a long time ago."

She laid her face close to his, her cheek touching his; her hand stroked his face gently. "Poor darling," she whispered to him. "No, he was not alone."

MARKET PLANNED

Menominee—Council last night took steps towards establishing a city market for farmers to dispense their products and at the same time set up plans to see that all foodstuffs and meats, sold in the city, meet state law and city ordinance requirements as to health and sanitation.

Attention of council was directed to this matter by Mayor Michael C. Olson, who told the aldermen that the Menominee Lions club was launching a market project here. The mayor emphasized the need for rigid enforcement of the sanitation laws to protect the health of local consumers.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

High school diploma in hand—and months until college. That is the lucky situation of thousands of young people right now.

Lucky because their education isn't ending yet. And lucky, too, because they have breathing space before they have to face the business of being a green freshman on a campus that is apt to look pretty large.

How can they best spend those three months? Well, one good way is by getting a part-time job.

Another thing the young person waiting for college might do is to brush up on his knowledge of "what is right" and "what is wrong" in the matter of manners.

It wouldn't hurt either to give the problem of "What to take?" a little consideration. The student who finds himself in the jam of enrollment is likely to take any subjects that anyone suggests—only to wonder why, in a few weeks.

Come to think of it, it wouldn't be a bad idea for high schools to offer a few summer courses to their graduates designed especially for turning a graduate into a happy freshman.

Perkins, Mich.—Mr. and Mrs. Jos. LaPointe of Gladstone called at the Furhman home Sunday.

Perkins, Mich.—Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Pilon, son Eugene Jr., and Miss Eileen Moreau of Green Bay, Wisconsin, spent Sunday and Monday at the Jos. Beauchamp and Wm. Moreau homes here.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Hughes, daughter, Kathleen of Escanaba, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shepeck of Iron River spent Sunday at the H. D. Gibbs home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Royer and family of Gladstone spent Sunday at the Clifford Morand home here.

Miss Eileen Gerou returned home this week to spend the summer months with her parents Mr. and Mrs. David Gerou after spending the last school year teaching in the Escanaba district.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kinnart and daughters Evelyn and Gloria left this week on a three weeks' motor trip through Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa.

Jos. Bettors and son Emil of Quinnesec, Michigan motored to Perkins Saturday to spend the week-end at the Emil Casimir home. They were accompanied here by Mr. and Mrs. J. Rousseau also of Quinnesec, who spent the week-end at the Ray LeClair home.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolore Bunno and two sons of Gladstone spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Morand.

Initiation banquet, Delta hotel; June 24, Frenchmen's Day program at Wm. Bonifas Auditorium; and June 26, Fishermen's Party at State Fairgrounds.

Lady Maccabees Of District Hold Convention Here; Mrs. Grimsley Named Commander

Mrs. Virginia Grimsley of Manistique was elected commander of the Lady Maccabees of District 1339 convention.

Watts, Iron Mountain, district deputy.

The one day convention opened with a morning meeting at 10 o'clock at the I. O. O. F. hall, headquarters, followed at noon by a dinner, served in the lodge hall dining room. Mixed flowers were used effectively in the attractive table appointments for the dinner.

The afternoon business session, which convened at two o'clock, was followed by an entertaining program including Hitch-Hikers dance by Barbara McCormick, accompanied by Mrs. Olive Lucas; vocal selections by Eileen Perrow, accompanied by Linus Belanger; tap dancing by Frank Skradski; saxophone numbers by Anna Marie Belanger, accompanied by Linus Belanger and an Irish jig by Mrs. Lucas.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, June 8 (AP)—A vacation mood tightened its hold on the stock market today and most shares barely moved in the second slowest trading session in sixteen years.

Minor changes on the upside predominated in extension of the creeping June rally. Speculators were doing little in the market place until they got a better glimpse of autumn business prospects. A widespread belief that trends would turn up in the second half of the year, stimulated by increased federal spending for works and relief, seemed to hold selling in check, despite falling figures in most of the major industrial groups.

Transactions on the "big board" totaled 278,410 shares compared with 371,980 yesterday. The figure was only a little above that for August 20, 1934, which had set a low record unmatched since 1922.

The market checked the energy to exhibit its usual interest in political developments. The reported conference agreement on the wage-hour standard bill differed little from what had been expected widely in financial quarters. What the lower primary results meant for autumn elections was much discussed without apparent effect on prices.

Girl Enjoys Life At Gas Station

Scottsbluff, Neb.—For five years, brunette Katherine Kay Kendall has worked in a gasoline station near the edge of Scottsbluff. She wouldn't trade her job and her snappy uniforms for any other work and "just plain old dresses."

"The best thing about this kind of work," she said, "is that there is always something doing."

As "something doing" she lists: Being robbed and kidnapped, seeing two serious automobile wrecks in her own front yard, meeting people from every state in the union, Canada, Mexico and Hawaii, and "just lot of funny little things."

In her spare time, Miss Kendall operates—and uses—a combination tennis court and ice skating rink behind the gas station.

BE PREPARED, SPEAKER URGES

Dr. Ward Advises Graduates to Get Permanent Job

"Prepare yourself for a job that a machine cannot take from you," was the advice given to the 1938 Manistique high school graduation class by Dr. Merle S. Ward, president of Ferris Institute, in the commencement address at the high school Tuesday evening.

"Too many commencement speakers tell the high school seniors that the world is waiting with open arms for them. I must be more frank. Today there are 15,000,000 people unemployed in America. Machines have taken the jobs of most of these people. Yet there are jobs that no machine can take away—the jobs of the doctors, lawyers, dentists and numerous others," the speaker declared.

Dr. Ward's address was presented to the 82 graduates of the 1938 Manistique high school class and to an audience that filled every available seat in the auditorium and numerous temporary seats as well.

The speaker declared that commencement night in any high school is the "red letter" night of the year in that community.

"Education in America is big business. Eight billion dollars are invested in educational institutions and equipment, and daily during the school season 30,000,000 students march to their classrooms in this country.

"Meaning of Commencement"
"If you include textbook manufacturers and others connected with the manufacture and distribution of school supplies, as well as teachers, two persons out of seven are directly connected with the business of education in America," Dr. Ward asserted.

The speaker revealed that the American educational system, which guarantees education for every boy and girl in the land, is the finest in the entire world.

"Our system of government is a democracy, which means that we must rule ourselves. Consequently, we must educate all the people so that we can maintain an intelligence that will provide an intelligent administration."

"The Meaning of Commencement" was the subject of Dr. Ward's address, and he explained, one by one, what commencement means to the teachers, the school boards, to the superintendents and principals, to the taxpayers, to the parents, and to the seniors themselves.

"It is an occasion of honor, of sacrifice and satisfaction to each of these groups," the speaker summarized.

"It has been estimated that if a mother was paid at market prices for her work in sending a child through school, she would have received $150,000 by the time her son or daughter graduated. Yet I know there is no mother here tonight who has accumulated such a fortune. That money is invested in the young boys and girls who will receive their diplomas upon this platform. For many of those mothers, it meant great sacrifices but their hearts are filled with joy."

The professional and recession-ally played by the high school orchestra. The invocation was by Rev. DeLloyd Huonink.

SERVICE CLUBS HEAR DR. WARD

Educator Gives Interesting Speech At Joint Meeting

Dr. Merle S. Ward, president of Ferris Institute, presented an interesting address to the Manistique Lions and Rotarians at a joint meeting held Tuesday evening at the Legion cottage, in which he described the value of service clubs to a community.

"Whether it is Lions, Rotarians, Kiwanis, or any other similar group, service clubs play an important part in the welfare of a community," Dr. Ward declared.

"Their particular projects may differ, but their principles are identical—service and cooperation."

The speaker explained that while countries have fallen and cities collapsed, man has never taken a backward step from the beginning of time. Each step in progress made by man remains as a foundation for future generations.

Dr. Ward outlined these important steps as follows: the development of speech and language, the discovery of fire, the domestication of animals, the development of agriculture, the acceptance of a moral code, the discoveries of science, the development of mechanics, the invention of printing and movable type, and finally, the expansion of education.

For the last step, education, Dr. Ward gave credit to modern civilization.

"Education certainly is one of the most important steps in the progress of man," Dr. Ward declared. "And yet it is a development that is in its infancy. The system which assures education for all of our people has been developed only within the last century."

Bridges Whips Athletics; Cubs Drop 2 To Giants

TIGERS HANDED 5 TO 1 VICTORY

Tip-Top Tommy Strikes Out 10; York Hits 12th Homer

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—Tommy Bridges was in tip-top shape today as he held the Athletics to five hits to pitch the Detroit Tigers to a 5-1 victory.

Bridges struck out ten and was particularly effective in the last three innings when the A's twice put two men on with only one out.

Rudy York's twelfth homer of the season with one on in the first gave Bridges a three-run lead. Fox's single scored another in the fourth while Chet Laabs' homer accounted for the last Tiger tally in the eighth. Bill Werber scored the A's in the seventh when he singled, went to second on Hayes' walk, to third on a passed ball and scored on Bob Johnson's long fly to center.

Lou Finney played first for the A's in place of the injured Dick Seibert. Earle Mack was banished from the game in the seventh for protesting a called third strike on Lodigian.

Kennedy Huris Finale
Vernon Kennedy will be out for his tenth consecutive victory tomorrow when he hurls for the Bengals in the series finale. Connie Mack nominated the left-handed Edgar Smith to toil for the A's.

The Tigers got down to business at the start of today's game and Bill Rogell started off with a single. Jo-Jo White fled to Johnson and then Rogell moved to third on a single by Charley Gehring. The Fire Chief scored when Hank Greenberg fled to Johnson.

York then came up with his four-bagger over the left field pavilion, scoring behind Gehring.

White opened the third with a single and went to second as Gehring grounded to Lodigian. Greenberg popped to Wayne Ambler. York walked and Pete Fox singled, sending White home. York died on base when Chet Laabs fanned for the final out.

After the Mackmen had made their lone run in the seventh the Tigers came back with one more in the eighth. York, first up, was called out on strikes and Fox fled to Johnson. Laabs ended the scoring by socking the ball in the lower center field stands for his homer. Ambler threw out Mark Christman to retire Detroit.

Ringside Fans Opine Louis Looks Terrible

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Pompton Lakes, N. J., June 8 (AP)—Presenting the quotable quotes of five of the nation's finest and most baffled fight experts, fervid patriots all, after they had watched Joe Louis go through a weak workout in preparation for Max Schmeling:

California expert: "That's the worst I ever saw Louis. He's fifty per cent worse than he was a year ago."

First New York expert: "Why don't they let the guy open up and forget all that daffy, fancy defense? If they don't let Dutchman will knock him out again. If Louis gets kicked this time I'm gonna go right into the dressing room after the fight and hit him over the head with a ball bat."

Tennessee expert: "If Louis loses, why, it's goodbye heavy-weight title. It'll take the Rainbow division to get Schmeling out of Germany to defend it."

Second New York expert: "Rainbow division? It'll take another World war. The worst of it is Schmeling'll defend the title a couple times against Walter Neusel and maybe George Godfrey over in Berlin or Hamburg and in two years boxing will die a natural death over here."

Chicago expert: "Louis is easier to hit than I am. Gosh, what a fighter he was a couple years ago before he put all that new fangled stuff in his dome. Boom! Boom! He just went out of his corner and slugged. He'd beat any fighter alive to the punch. He was plain murder. And now they're trying to make a society fighter out of him."

Tennessee expert: "It isn't Blackburn's (trainer Jack Blackburn) fault. He's trying to make a street brawler out of Joe again but he can't seem to do it. If he'd just weave..."

Second New York expert: "Hear what Henry Armstrong said? Henry watched Joe today and I asked him about him. He said: 'Joe punches good, but his head doesn't have the oh, I dunno how to say it. It doesn't have the co-ordination in it somehow.'"

Chicago expert: "Yeah but Braddock said Joe looked worse at Kenosha last summer than he does now but he had all his guns when he got into the ring to kayo him."

Tennessee expert: "How the hell did Braddock know how Joe looked? He just read it. Well,

WHITE SOX GET DOUBLE VERDICT

Yankees Are Defeated 11-10 and 10-6 on Home Field

New York, June 8 (AP)—The Chicago White Sox surprised 15,109 fans, the Yankees, and most of all themselves today by sweeping a double-header from the world champions and climbing back into sixth place in the American league.

Gerry Walker's three-run homer in the ninth and his single in the 13th enabled the Sox to come from way behind to take the long-distance opener 11-10. Bill Dietrich handcuffed the Yanks just long enough in the nightcap to have sufficient margin to finish with a 10 to 6 victory.

In the nightcap, Dietrich pitched shutout ball for seven innings but was tagged for homers by Lou Gehrig in the eighth and Joe Gordon in the ninth before Monte Stratton came in to halt the rally.

Gordin's was a pinch-hit.

PENNANT LEAD CHANGES AGAIN

Demaree Loses Hit In Sun, Allowing Two Men to Score

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
Chicago, June 8 (AP)—The New York Giants bounced back into first place by half a game in the National league pennant race today by whipping the Chicago Cubs, 4 to 2 and 4 to 1, in a double-header before 42,320, record crowd of the season for Wrigley Field. The first game went 10 innings.

The veteran Carl Hubbell, in his tenth season with the Giants, chalked up his 199th victory in conquering the Cubs back of sensational fielding, while Harry Gumbert did not allow a Cub to reach first base for six innings in the opening game.

The Giants opened up with a two run lead in the first inning of the second game when Frank Demaree, Cubs' right fielder, lost Leiber's hit in the sun and it dropped safely for three bases, scoring Moore and Ripple.

Bruins Start Strong
The Cubs started the first game as though they were going to knock Gumbert's ears off. They made six hits in the first three innings, but fashioned only two runs. The Chicagoans got off to a two run lead in the second inning. Marty singled to center, Collins walked and when Jurges singled to right, Marty scored and Collins reached third. French then worked the squeeze play and Collins scored on the sacrifice.

The Cubs' margin didn't last long, however. With two out in the third, Moore doubled to short left and scored when Ripple dropped another double into center. Ott then singled, scoring Ripple. In the fourth, Danning singled, stole second, took third on O'Dea's wild throw, but was caught trying to count, when Kampouris grounded to Hack.

Meanwhile, the Cubs attack dwindled. They failed to get a man on first base in six innings. Then came the tenth when with two out, Ott, swinging at the first pitch, drove the ball into the right field bleachers for his twelfth homer of the season, scoring Moore ahead of him.

ADAMICK FIGHT PURSE HELD UP

Midland Boxer Scores Kayo After Taking Count of Five

Chicago, June 8 (AP)—Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission, ordered both purses held up tonight after Jimmy Adamick, young Midland, Mich., heavyweight, arose from a five-count knockdown to knock out Jack Trammell, lanky negro from Youngstown, O., in the second round of a ten-round bout at Mills stadium.

Trammell, who weighed 185 pounds, eight less than the Michigan youngster, was belted all around the ring in the first round, but suddenly lashed out with a short right cross at the start of the second, knocking Adamick sprawling. Adamick appeared groggy and badly hurt, but Trammell, instead of pursuing his advantage, backed away and did not let fly with another punch until Referee Davey Miller waved him into action.

By the time Trammell resumed punching, Adamick had partly regained his senses. As he moved in close, Trammell again backed away.

With the negro in retreat, Adamick suddenly nailed him with a left hook to the chin, flooring him for the full count as 3,416 spectators booed.

Triner immediately instructed the promoter to withhold their purses, pending an investigation into why Trammell failed to pile into Adamick when the latter was hurt.

For the last 15 years the northern surface of the rings of Saturn have been visible, but for the next 15 years we will see the southern surface.

Boots Poffenberger Fined By Cochran; He Violated Curfew

Philadelphia, June 8 (AP)—With a $100 dent in his bankroll, Cleatus Elwood Poffenberger, young right handed pitcher of the Detroit Tigers, was awaiting word to return to Detroit tonight on a charge of breaking training.

The trouble developed last night, Manager Mickey Cochran said, when the new rule that requires the Tigers to be in bed by midnight went into effect. Cochran made the announcement yesterday, in a speech in which he told his athletes they could "start producing or else." In order to enforce the curfew rule, Mickey told the players they were to register with the hotel clerk every night before going to bed.

Last night Poffenberger violated the curfew and refused to register when he did come in, Cochran said, so the $100 fine was ordered as punishment. Poffenberger also failed to report for breakfast until 11 a. m. when a rule had been ordered that set 9:45 a. m. as the deadline for the morning meal.

Cochran said Poffenberger would leave for Detroit on the first train.

TOWNSEND GETS POST AS COACH

Big Basketball Forward Named as Assistant to Oosterbaan

Ann Arbor, June 8 (AP)—John Townsend, who thrilled thousands with his unceasing passing on the basketball floor, was appointed assistant basketball coach at the University of Michigan today.

The six-foot-four 200 pound forward, who plans to enter law school here next fall, was named by the board in control of physical education to assist head coach Bennie Oosterbaan.

Townsend, as a three-year member of the Michigan basketball squad and captain of the 1937-38 team, compiled an enviable record. He was thrice named on the All-Western conference team and was placed on the mythical All-American team this year.

His coaches considered him one of the greatest players they ever saw. He could pass in any direction without changing position. In three years he scored 364 points in 36 big ten games and last year set a Michigan record with 135 points in conference contests.

Townsend also won three monograms in track as a weight star. He will graduate this month with honors after serving also as a student member of the athletic board.

Townsend's home is in Indianapolis.

Jinx Gets Feller As Foxx Homeruns And Beats Indians

Boston, June 8 (AP)—Just when Bob Feller appeared to have his Boston jinx on the verge of a knockout today, Jimmy Foxx swung into home-run action and inspired the Red Sox to come from behind for a 7-6 victory over the league leading Cleveland Indians. Foxx poled out his 16th homer of the season and boosted his runs driven in total to 66.

Feller, who has never won a game at Fenway park, was given a five-run lead in the third, when Leo (Lefty) Rogers passed two, threw wild to second, gave Bruce Campbell a single and "Moose" Solters his first homer of the season, a drive over the left field screen with two on base. The sixth Cleveland run resulted from "Bad News" Hale's four-bagger off Emerson Dickman in the eighth. Cleveland — 005 000 010—6 310 Boston — 000 120 31x—7 101

Gabby Hartnett Hasn't Worked Day Since He Froze His Ears Back In 1921

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer
Chicago—Peace, it's wonderful," sighs Leo the Loud, otherwise known as Gabby—last name Hartnett.

"Do you know," he beams, "that I haven't worked since 1921? Since that day, in fact, when it was so cold that I froze my ears going down to the mill at 5 in the morning. It was right then and there that I decided I'd never work again as long as I lived."

This from a gent who at 37 is the oldest regular in the major leagues. A gent who has been with the Chicago Cubs every season since 1922. A gent who, if he works 100 games this year, will become the first receiver in baseball history to catch more than 100 games a season for 13 years.

There's someone besides Lou Gehrig who deserves an Iron Man label in the majors.

And Charles Leo Hartnett of the Florida face and boisterous manner says he quit working 16 years ago.

It is to laugh! Or maybe the Gabby One doesn't consider his diamond activities sordid enough to call it "work."

The ear-freezing episode to which he refers happened in Millville, Mass., his home town. As a youth he worked in a mill, where the hours were long—and tough. Young Leo was looking for an opportunity to get out of the "steel" business and when a 20-below temperature nipped his ears so painfully that was the last straw.

... There's little rest for the Cubs when Gabby opens up.

MAKES DEBUT IN EASTERN LEAGUE

That summer he sought a try-out with Worcester of the Eastern League . . . and got it and made good. In fact, made good to the extent of attracting scouts of the Chicago Cubs, who signed the youngster and shipped him westward to spring training camp at Catalina Island.

Bill Killifer managed the 1922 edition of the Bruins, and he was looking for a young catcher in the worst way. He thought he had one in a recruit named McMillin, but two weeks after camp had opened he discovered how much he was in error.

McMillin, under fire, couldn't hit, couldn't throw, and couldn't handle pitchers. In short, McMillin couldn't catch.

So the night before the Cubs' first exhibition game Killifer approached a kid by the name of Hartnett, who had been catching for the Yankigans, and said: "You're catching tomorrow, and I want you to run the game—understand?"

Leo Hartnett—it didn't become "Gabby" until a couple of years later—ran the game all right. He handled Grover Alexander perfectly, made two hits, and howled like a maniac through nine innings of play.

Hartnett has been the Cubs' regular backstop since, with the exception of most of the 1929 season when he was out with a sore arm.

HE'D STIR MUMMIES INTO ACTION

Gabby loves to play baseball. And if the Cubs do anything in a championship sort of way this season they'll probably thank Hartnett for his good fortune.

Lou Leo, with his clenched fist and raucous tones on the field, is a fighter and pepper-upper from the word go. His line of chatter on the diamond would make a bunch of mummies rip off their wrappings and execute a triple play.

When you're playing with Hartnett you're playing to win. The Cubs have found that out.

"Slowing up? Not me!" he snorts. There's a little matter of a record on which he has his eye. He already has surpassed Ray Schalk's 1721 games played in, but because of his injury in 1929 he still lacks approximately 125 games of eclipsing Schalk's mark of total games caught.

In his 17 years with the Cubs he has dropped only two foul flies. At present he leads the National League backstops in fielding and the Cubs in batting with a juicy mark that goes over .350.

Like a certain Mr. Gehrig, Leo the Loud just goes on . . . and on . . . and on. And nobody knows just when he'll fold up and call it quits.

Port Huron Bridge Worker Badly Hurt

Port Huron, Mich., June 7 (AP)—Donald S. Brown, 28, employed on the American plans of the Blue Water International bridge, was critically injured today when he fell eight feet from the side of the new customs building and was transfixed by two steel reinforcement rods.

Another Sufferer Shown Good Health

KruGon Conquers Sharp Stabbing Pains of Neuritis, Stomach and Bowels Functioning Properly; Given New Strength

"KruGon changed my life of suffering into one of good and glorious health," said Mr. Frank Bell, 1877 Wisconsin Ave., Beloit, Wisconsin. "Neuritis just about had the best of me for the terrible pains almost drove me crazy. I was unable to use my arms at all without intense pain. My stomach and bowels were also disordered and my system was filled with poisons. My food did not agree with me and rigid dieting failed to give me relief for after every meal gases would form and I would bloat so badly that I could hardly get into my clothes. I was unable to get my sleep and rest, lost my strength and energy and had practically given up hope of relief as so many medicines failed completely in giving me back my former health. I was induced to try KruGon and have not been made sorry for my decision. "This new laxative-ionic went right to the source of my trouble and did its work well," continued Mr. Bell. "My bowels are regulated and functioning normally. All those poisons have been driven from my system and I can now eat anything I wish without the distress of gas and bloating and the misery that always followed. Those neuritis pains are entirely gone and I get full nights of restful sleep. I attribute every bit of the praise to this wonderful KruGon." KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ludington St., this city.
