WHEAT PRICES ON SKYROCKET

Chicago Pit Is Flooded With Buying Orders; Bumper Crop

Chicago, June 11 (AP)—The excited wheat pit was flooded today with buying orders that skyrocketed prices almost five cents a bushel. Prices rose to 80 cents, the highest in five weeks. Trading rules prohibit a jump or decline of more than five cents in one session.

Claiming by its sharpest spurt of the year the attention of farmers, grain dealers and shippers throughout the world, the sensitive market mirrored highly important trade developments, especially in the domestic grain belt affecting the value of the principal bread grain.

Combines lumbering through golden fields of the southwest in the past few days have brought to light evidence of startling crop damage done a month or two ago by frost and cold weather. Ravages of rust also have been based on examinations of kernels flowing through the harvesting machinery. Excessive rainfall has slowed the harvest and lodged wheat.

Europe Buys More
Widespread reports of these perils indicated decidedly less optimistic prospects for a bumper winter wheat yield.

In addition, Europe bought more American wheat than it has purchased in weeks. Export sales were estimated at almost 1,000,000 bushels, mostly old and new hard winter wheat, and a little Canadian grain.

The official government crop report for June, released after the wheat market closed yesterday, forecast the biggest domestic production in history. The government's winter wheat forecast was 160,623,000. This was 50,000,000 less than private forecasts, to which the recent price slump was largely attributed, and was only 6,500,000 larger than the May 1 official forecast.

Prices at Kansas City, the principal winter market, jumped the five cents daily limit at one stage and Minneapolis quotations showed a corresponding rise.

The government's forecast of a record crop was followed today by an order from President Roosevelt for a federal survey of world wheat supply conditions.

Hot air is a slightly better conductor of sound than cold air.

MARTIN CLAN IN UAW WILL FACE REVOLT

Under some circumstances, absent members may vote by telephone at board meetings. It was problematical if Reuther would be allowed to vote at tomorrow's meeting in Washington. Martin and Frankenstein exchanged acrimonious statements on the eve of the special meeting. Frankenstein commiserated the international president for "seeing his majority dwindle to a minority." Martin accused the Frankenstein-led coalition of "extreme bad faith" in failing to abide by a 20-point program adopted at the last regular board meeting in an attempt to end factionalism.

Shortly before he left for Washington, Frankenstein expressed confidence that "the will of the membership to abolish factionalism will assert itself" and that "matters will be straightened out at our meeting."

Urges Political Activity
The executive board's finance committee, headed by Fred C. Pieper, was the focal point of Frankenstein's attack.

"Hardly had the ink dried on the (harmony) program adopted at the last meeting," he said, "when unauthorized committees in direct violation of the board's decisions, assumed power in the international office over the international officers and took over functions vested only in the officers and board members. . . . I refer to the so-called finance committee. . . . Continuation of such actions cannot be tolerated."

Frankenstein called for unification of efforts to meet such problems as obtaining jobs and relief for members; resisting wage cuts, overcoming encroachments on union agreements; organizing competitive plants and the Ford Motor Co. Rouge plant, and gathering of forces for successful political action in the fall.

Martin already was in Washington. Tomorrow's meeting will be a continuation of a special meeting called for last Wednesday at Detroit to consider a finance committee proposal for group insurance. Revival of the revolt against Martin came to light when limitation of the agenda to the insurance proposal, as desired by Martin, lost on a test vote.

Enough of Martin's supporters remained away from subsequent board meetings to prevent a quorum from being in attendance, and Martin transferred the meeting to Washington.

The anti-Martin coalition seeks to add to the agenda a proposal for the removal of Miss Eve Stone and Mrs. J. J. Kennedy as directors of the UAW Women's Auxiliary and the substitution of an international director, as an economy move.

A spokesman for Martin said the opposition coalition also advocated abolition of the finance committee and the Women's Auxiliary, the cessation of organization activities among WPA workers, and reorganization of the Ford organization campaign.

Frankenstein denied his group had such intentions. He said, however, that it would seek to limit activities of the finance committee and charged that William Taylor, director of the WPA campaign, had violated instructions of the board on the manner in which dues were to be collected in Detroit.

Big Baseball Pool Raided In Detroit; Five Offices Used

Detroit, June 11 (AP)—What was described by police as the largest gambling raid in the history of the Detroit police department occurred here today when a vice squad detail raided headquarters of an alleged baseball pool. Three truck loads of pool tickets were confiscated.

Clarence Hamer, 35, accused of being the owner of the establishment, was charged with possession of gambling equipment and released to appear at police headquarters Monday. Police Lieut. Kennedy Lawrence said the establishment occupied five offices and that 10 girls were employed to send pool tickets to all parts of the country. Lawrence said a list of 500 distributors was seized.

Receivership Asked For Hupp Motor Co.

Detroit, June 11 (AP)—A suppressed petition for a receivership for the Hupp Motor Car company, reorganized last year, was revealed today when Circuit Judge Allan Campbell ordered a hearing to open Monday.

The petitioner was said to be one of the concern's largest stockholders.

A. W. Semplicher, attorney for the company, requested an adjournment, saying the firm was negotiating for a large loan, but counsel for creditors objected, and the court ordered the hearing to proceed next week.

GULDAHL KEEPS GOLFING CROWN

Pro from New Jersey Wins American Open for Second Year

BY ALAN GOULD
Denver, June 11 (AP)—Ralph Gulda, burly Texas-born professional from the Braidburn club of Madison, N. J., today won the American open golf championship for the second straight year with a smashing last-round comeback. He spread-eagled the field with a final 69, two under Cherry Hills' par for a 72-hole total of 284 to become the first repeater since Bob Jones did it in 1930.

Gulda, trailing handsome Dick Metz of Chicago by four full strokes at the close of the third round this morning, came from behind with an electrifying finish. His victorious total, comprising successive rounds of 74, 70, 71 and 69, was three strokes short of the world record set for major open championships in capturing the title at Oakland Hills for the first time with 281, but he won today by a much more impressive margin—six strokes.

This was the biggest winning margin in 17 years of U. S. open championship history or since 1921, when Long Jim Barnes finished nine strokes in front of Walter Hagen at the Columbia club, Chase, Md.

Metz, who looked like the winner when he led Gulda, 211 to 216 at the 64 hole mark, participated in a general blowup that blasted the chances of all but the defending champion. Metz finished second as he staggered to the finish with a last round 79 for a total of 290.

Mystery Of Missing Melvindale Persons Investigated Again

Detroit, June 11 (AP)—Prosecutor Duncan C. McCreia ordered reopening today of an investigation into the disappearance last Oct. 15 of three Melvindale persons.

The three, Mrs. Sylvester Mable, 43; her friend, Mrs. Margaret Reddon, 25, and Thomas Lorimer, 24, vanished in Lorimer's automobile after the young man had met the women at a beer garden in the downriver suburb.

No trace of them has been found and no explanation for their disappearance has been advanced. Bernard E. McGrath, chief deputy sheriff of Wayne county, and Harry Colburn, chief investigator for the prosecutor's office, discussed the mystery with Ernest L. Pitt, Melvindale police chief, today.

McCreia said there had been much talk in the suburb about "who killed the missing trio?" and added that "we are either going to prove the gossip is true or end all this talk by finding what did happen to the three."

Lorimer has a wife and a four-year-old daughter. Mrs. Sylvester was married, and Mrs. Reddon was separated from her husband, James.

of the 75,000,000 Germans in the reach of Adolf Hitler. It is a blow in the face of a great, proud nation."

In Praha, an appeal signed by approximately 100 Czech and Slovak organizations was issued for voluntary contributions to a $35,000,000 defense fund.

The Sudeten German party refused to associate itself with the appeal.

The situation in Czechoslovakia admittedly was potentially dangerous but it was believed not nearly as menacing as it was three weeks ago when Britain threw her whole diplomatic weight in the path of what many believed to be a Hitler plan to march into Czechoslovakia.

France Woods Turkey
That crisis came with the slaying of two Sudeten Germans by Czechoslovak guards, the movement of German troops toward the frontier and the Czechoslovak government's calling to the colors of a class of reserves and manning of the border.

France, pledged in a mutual assistance pact to aid Czechoslovakia if she were invaded, sought to achieve a master stroke—a military alliance with Turkey.

Indications grew in London that the British government was not planning any decisive step to halt the almost daily series of Spanish insurgent raids on British ships carrying food and other supplies to Spanish government ports.

Politicians and newspapers sympathetic toward insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco repeatedly have pointed out ships have been warned they go to Spain at their own risk.

Nine foreign vessels have been bombed or machine-gunned in Spanish ports or off the coast since last Monday. Seven of them were British, one was French and one was from the Netherlands.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax were expected to return to London tomorrow to prepare for a cabinet meeting Monday and the reopening of parliament Tuesday.

German Advisors Leave China Soon

Hankow, June 11 (AP)—China at the end of the month will lose the services of German advisors, headed by General Alexander von Falkenhausen, who aided Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in whipping together his national army.

After nearly three weeks of uncertainty since Berlin asked for the release of the men under contract as military advisors and instructors, German authorities said today Von Falkenhausen and all of the regular members of his mission would leave, enroute to Germany, by July 1.

Von Falkenhausen came to China more than three years ago, picked by Chiang as his advisor. With a staff of 60 German assistants, he aided in the gradual development of a peace-time program of military organization, training and modernization.

WIGHTMAN CUP STAYS IN U.S.A.

Helen Wills Moody Sets Kay Stammers Down 6-3, 3-6, 6-3

BY SCOTTY RESTON
Wimbledon, England, June 11 (AP)—The United States exerted its monopoly on the Wightman cup for the eighth consecutive year today, when merciless Helen Wills Moody froze out Kay Stammers in the deciding match of the two-day international tennis series, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. The final score was 5 to 2. But after Mrs. Sarah Paulrey Fabyan of Boston had defeated Margot Lumb, 5-7, 6-2, 6-8, and Helen had beaten Miss Stammers, the last two matches merely were exhibitions.

In the third singles match Alice Marble whipped Peggy Scriven, 6-3, 3-6, 6-0, and in the concluding doubles Joan Ingram and Evelyn Dearman won from Mrs. Moody and Dorothy May Bundy, 6-2, 7-5.

High spot of the day was Miss Stammers' fight against Mrs. Moody. This was a battle of Mrs. Moody's style and experience against the courage and tactics of the petite English southpaw.

Helen took the first game on Kay's service, lost the second, then ran away with the set at 6-3.

In the second set Kay kept Helen racing in after these tricky, spinning teasers and she managed to break up the rhythm of Mrs. Moody's game.

Miss Stammers broke through in the sixth game, then kept thumping forehand drives back at the American veteran and won the set, 6-3. Helen got a long rest because of the rain before the final set and won the set, 6-3, and the match.

Thus, in her first cup competition since 1932, the 33-year-old Californian gained two of the four U. S. singles points.

"Another feature of the long afternoon was Mrs. Fabyan's fight to overcome the courageous Miss Lumb after losing the first set. Here, too, it was a game of tactics, with the Boston girl resorting to a mixture of lobs and drop shots to wear out Miss Lumb.

Miss Marble, after her disappointing showing against Miss Stammers yesterday, came back to something like her old form to beat Miss Scriven. She lapsed in the second set, only to recover and

Trans-Miss Honors Go To Patty Berg

Tulsa, Okla., June 11 (AP)—Little Patty Berg of Minneapolis has her championship at last. The red-headed stylist, often a runner-up, played her smartest golf today to defeat the veteran Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, in the 36-hole final of the trans-Mississippi tourney, six and five.

The first eighteen ended with Miss Berg one up. In the afternoon Patty kept her skill on the fairways and found her putting touch while Mrs. Hill showed the strain. They came to the thirteenth with Patty five up.

Both made the slanting green in three. Mrs. Hill's putt from 15 feet barely missed and Patty's ball nearly was stymied. Patty firmly stroked in her 10 footer for a par four, winning the hole, the match and the championship.

Mrs. Hill had held the trans-Miss championship four times.

Husband Ruins Dog; Wife Asks Divorce

Detroit, June 11 (AP)—Mrs. Catherine Pohorsky, alleging that her husband is contributing to the delinquency of her three-year-old terrier by taking him to beer gardens, is seeking a divorce from Bohumil Pohorsky.

Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson granted Mrs. Pohorsky's request for custody of the dog pending settlement of the divorce action, filed a month ago. The Pohorsky's are separated.

"The dog is being ruined by those beer garden trips," the woman told the court. "He is getting so he snaps at all the customers. I think I am entitled to his companionship, and I don't ask alimony for his support."

Munising News

BAY FURNACE, HISTORIC SITE

Preservation of Early Landmark Urged By Munising Group

Munising, June 11—There are many points in the Upper Peninsula of historic interest, and in numerous cases, nearby communities have taken steps to preserve, or have properly marked, such spots. There are not many sites in Alger County of such interest, but there is one which should be preserved from further despoliation. The Bay Furnace site is the one referred to. A portion of the old furnace building still stands, but in the last two or three years a great deal of the material has been hauled away, probably by unthinking people. An effort is about to be made to prevent further interference with these old ruins.

The history of Bay Furnace is very probably unknown to many of the present residents of Munising and the surrounding territory. Few people know that there was at one time a town at this site, named Onota, and that the population was better than 500; that there was a church, a store and many private dwellings; and that the entire location was destroyed by fire, as a result of spontaneous combustion in a wagonload of charcoal, on a hot, dry, windy, summer day.

Munising people should be interested in preserving what is left of the old furnace, as its history antedates, by a number of years, that of Munising, itself. The passing of the furnace from operation, and the destruction of the town, mark a turning point in the development of the iron business in this country. In the early days, an attempt was made to manufacture pig iron by the charcoal process, as near as possible to the mines, and where a supply of hardwood could be had. Then it was discovered that it would be cheaper to transport the ore to lower lake ports, where coke was available for smelting purposes, and to fabricate the pig iron near, or in fact, at the big iron and steel mills. Thus was lost to Northern Michigan a thriving business.

All of the above is sufficient to show the value of the old Bay Furnace location, historically; that it should be preserved; that is, that which is left of it, and that no more material of which it was erected should be hauled away by thoughtless people for any purpose whatsoever.

Look Into The Future!

THE Daily Press is devoting a full page in today's issue to a word and picture description of the long-range program for the development of Escanaba's south shore.

For years, the Press has advocated the improvement of Ludington park and beach, believing that here is an asset that could be capitalized with great benefit to the community.

Sees Building Boom

SPEAKING at a meeting of bankers, contractors and building supply dealers here Friday evening, Raymond M. Foley, state director of the Federal Housing Administration, predicted that the amended housing act would stimulate much building this season.

There is no denying that there is a need in Escanaba and elsewhere for the building of modern residential structures.

There are many ideal sites for the building of up-to-date tourist cabins and there are many people who seem to be anxious to get into this new and growing business.

Seasonal Bonanza

ONE of America's biggest industries is a thing which is seldom looked on as an industry at all. It is the business of supplying, feeding and bedding the summer automobile tourist as he wanders up and down the country.

This summer, according to estimates prepared by the American Petroleum Institute, the motor tourist is going to spend rather more than $4,000,000,000— which is big money, any way you look at it, especially in a time of deep economic depression.

Some of this money is going to go for the new clothes, the beach pajamas, the fishing outfits and the golf clubs which the motorist and his wife take with them when they go touring.

Any way, it all adds up to a huge sum, and indicates that we have turned the summer vacation into the biggest kind of big business.

One interesting fact about this huge expenditure is that until recently a good slice of the sum was going to Europe instead of being spent at home.

the fact that this tourist trade has been a life-saver, economically, for thousands upon thousands of individuals.

For a great part of this $4,000,000,000 goes, not to established big-business agencies, but to little fellows who saw their chance and took it—proprietors of roadside stands, home-owners who set aside a couple of rooms for tourists' use, canny farmers who turned a pleasant strip of river or lake frontage into a tourist camp, people who started a restaurant or filling station on a shoe string.

In a very real way, this vast vacation spending spree has cushioned the depression. It has given many and many a family the chance to start a little business; it has brought to many more enough of an added income to tide over the depression period.

And so, when you wheel the old bus out of the garage this summer and start your little trip, you can comfort yourself with the thought that you are at least a corporate big industry, if not a regular captain.

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent The recent years of King Gustaf V's reign over Sweden have been serene; sunset years—marred by only one terrifying episode.

There was that dreadful day of disillusionment in 1932 when Ivar Kreuger, Swedish "match king of the world," died by his own hand, a hopeless bankrupt.

It was a staggering blow to Sweden. Coming on top of the universal economic depression, it seemed to write fins for the country. But Swedish determination and a comforting Swedish king won a great victory, and by 1936 the country was well out of the doldrums, its business and finance as firm as any nation's.

Only such a catastrophe can disturb King Gustaf's orderly life.

He rises early, eats a plain breakfast of coffee, rolls and fruit, and reads the leading Swedish newspapers. The rest of the morning he devotes to receiving callers, ranging from the Premier to humble peasants with petitions.

Late winter and spring usually find him living in the Palace in Stockholm. In June, he goes to the historic castle at Tuul-garn where he enjoys a month's hunting and fishing. He usually spends July at Saro or Bostad, Swedish spas. In August, he goes to Soliden for wild duck shooting. Early fall finds him further north hunting elk. After a month of this, he returns to Sweden's Versailles, Drottningholm.

Generally, he spends the severest part of Sweden's winter in Nice. There tennis fills much of his day. Some of the best human interest stories concerning him have come from his tennis experiences. On one occasion he approached an American girl and asked her to play.

Much to her astonishment, the tall, white-bearded gentleman beat her handily. Just as the game ended, a Spanish net star ran up, breathlessly saying: "Oh, Your Majesty, I am so sorry I am late." "Are you a king?" the American girl asked.

"Yes," said Gustaf, smiling behind his beard. "Oh, I am so sorry I was so informal," the girl apologized. "I didn't know." "My dear, it is quite all right," Gustaf said. "I am glad you did not know. For the first time I am sure of having won without any favors extended."

Another time while coaching Gustaf, a famous tennis expert said: "A little more to the left, Your Majesty, a little more to the left." "That reminds me of home," said the King. "My Socialist Premier is always saying the same thing."

Once he was incognito at a Swiss mountain hotel when the guests got to discussing republics and kingdoms. Gustaf remained silent until he was asked which form of government he favored.

"For many reasons," Gustaf replied. "I favor the monarchy and, perhaps, the chief selfish reason is that under a republic I would lose my job." "What is your job?" "I am," said Gustaf, "in the king business myself."

His early love for the army and navy hasn't diminished. One day in reading his mail he was astounded to see the following: "Darling: Monday at 6 p. m. I expect you at Odine Place. I shall wait until 7. But then you must be sure to come. Your Ester."

Examining the envelope, the King saw that the letter was intended for a sailor, whose name was obliterated, on the H. M. S. Gustaf. The "H. M. S." was blotted. So the King sent the letter at once to the ship with a message to the captain to give Ester's sweetheart a holiday on Monday.

Another time, wandering around an army camp, Gustaf came upon a group of soldiers playing cards. They leaped to their feet and stood at attention—all but one. He remained hunched over, studying his cards glumly.

The soldiers were sure their companion was in for a scathing lecture. But Gustaf just put a paternal hand on the soldier's shoulder and said: "My poor lad, you will never make it with that rotten hand of clubs."

Gustaf's kindly, generous nature has made him a most beloved monarch. When his people wanted to take up a collection to buy one gigantic present for his 70th birthday, Gustaf, deeply touched, in turn touched the hearts of his people by announcing that he wanted the gift to take the form of a fund for the foundation of a great cancer hospital. They responded by raising $1,400,000.

Despite his increasing age, Gustaf more and more has had an influence on the policy of his country. His hand can be seen in many of the domestic moves and most of the foreign moves Sweden has made in recent years.

New York Column

New York—We were under the impression that such miracles are wrought only in Deanna Durbin pictures, but we were mistaken.

This miracle came to be wrought in the Grand Lounge in the Roxy Theater where a little lady of eight years or thereabout began playing selections from Bach, Handel and Mendelssohn.

It grew so large that it was safe to venture there were as many folk listening to the piano prodigy as there were in the auditorium. The manager came along after a while to investigate the lobby distraction and, to make the story briefer, has invited the young lady to come back and play often.

On the edge of the crowd stood the girl's mother, who explained everything. Her daughter Eleanor, it seemed, played proficiently, but unfortunately the installment man had come around to the apartment and removed the piano and Eleanor couldn't practice.

But they did have a pass to the Roxy and there was a piano in the Grand Lounge and it seemed as good a place as any to brush upon Eleanor's music lessons.

15 Minutes From Broadway We took temporary escape from the town's tumult the other night at Ben Riley's Arrowhead Inn which nestles in a clearing of a hilly woodland. Quick escape it is, too, from the canyons of steel and iron and grime, because the new Hendrik Hudson Parkway permits direct passage into the country, without mingling in city traffic.

A vast, palatial institution, Ben Riley's public manse has been on the site for two and a half decades, a long time in any restaurant's life. And for a record of its distinguished guests, one has only to scan the walls of the wide corridors, where more than a thousand signed photographs of notables in every walk of life are crammed side by side.

The Riley cuisine is famous and not the least of the place's distinctive features are the broad wicker chairs that allow for a leisurely, lounging posture at the dinner or supper table. We relax in the unfringed atmosphere and though a quarter hour away from the hurly-burly, it could well be hours off, for the view outside is bucolic, the environs are equally vernal—and Manhattan can wait a while.

Banana-Stricken The dance maestro at Riley's, incidentally, is Irving Conn, a name that may not mean much to the growing generation, because Leader Coni has led a shy and retiring career at the Arrowhead for almost a score of years.

To the gay blades of the early 1920's, though, the name of Conn may invoke the memory of "Yes, We Have No Bananas." Yes, Conn wrote it and he has spent the better part of the last ten years living down the memory of that hapless tune which grew to plague him by endless repetition.

It has left a spiritual scar on the man. For he once set out seriously to be a songsmith and no one would take him seriously after the banana incident.

All the old ways to measure human distress are inadequate. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., speaking on China.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER Washington, June 12—The key to the present political course of James Aloysius Farley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee of New York, chairman of the National Committee and Postmaster General of the United States, is to be found in his suite at the Postoffice Department.

The purpose of the Hoover-imperial style of architecture, of which the post office is an outstanding specimen, was to make bureaucrats look as much as possible like bank presidents. The Rogers and the Cummingses, the Perkinses and the Farleys are enshrined in opulent wildernesses of columns and ornament which suggest only that they cost a great deal of money. In all Washington, more over, the Farley chambers are by far the most magnificent. The First National Bank of New York and the Cathedral of St. Paul appear to have been the architect's twin inspirations.

The son of an obscure Irish business man in Haverstraw, N. Y., Big Jim is essentially a simple fellow. When he is not traveling cross-country, dedicating post-offices and talking things over with the boys in the local organizations, he sits among his splendors and remembers what a long way he has come.

He remembers the glorious moment twenty-nine years ago, when he became a member of the Rockland County Democratic committee. He remembers his first political job, as town clerk of Stony Point. He remembers his appointment to the New York State Athletic Commission, his remarkable capture of the chairmanship, and all the subsequent thousands of Annie Oakleys for the ringside which he passed out to visiting bigwigs. He remembers the days when he was an Elk on a tour, corralling delegates for Roosevelt.

He remembers his first great triumph in 1932. And when he returns from his trips down memory lane, his heart is always full of gratitude to the Democratic party, which he regards as the real maker of his fortunes.

"After my country and my church," he says, "my party come first with me."

NO HUNTSMAN, HE Part loyalty is the explanation of the fundamental disagreement on policy dividing the big general, astute postmaster general from the President. Big Jim pooh-poohs the whole business, but the disagreement is there all the same. The President has gone heresy-hunting, and Big Jim is not a heresy Hunter.

To be sure, the defeat of Senator Millard F. Tydings, of Maryland, would give him some pleasure, and he would not weep to see "Cotton Ed" Smith beaten in South Carolina. But he undoubtedly deplores the President's use of the primaries in Oregon and Iowa, and still opposes the forays against Senator Walter F. George in Georgia and Senator Alva B. Adams in Colorado. To friends on Capitol Hill, he has described them as sadly and uselessly disruptive of party unity.

Thus far, the President has been content to go his own way and let Big Jim go his. There has never yet been an unpleasant word between them. Since Farley and Secretary Wallace tacitly opposed his candidate in Iowa, however, the President is said to have decided to make all his subordinates sing a single tune.

It's fortunate, therefore, that a long-planned and needed vacation in Alaska and the Northwest will keep Big Jim out of Washington in primary time. Thus, unpleasant words will be avoided, and he can return to pick up the pieces and put over the Democratic candidates, whoever they may be. These tasks are more congenial to him than any others. He's rather make peace between factions to elect a Democratic dog-catcher than win a thousand bets on the races.

TOWARD 1940 Big Jim is just the sort of fellow his name suggests. A large, pink-faced man of pleasant aspect and manners, he is a natural idol for rank and file party workers. Alone among the eminent officials of the New Deal, he knows the local party politicians, their habits, appetencies and first names. For this reason, some men around the President fear him and his influence.

He lives simply, does not drink or smoke, and goes out little. His days are dedicated to his party. Unhappily, his devotion to his party is likely to cause his disagreement with the President to recur after the fall elections. Then it will be time to think of 1940, and each man thinks in a very different way. Big Jim would hold all the elements in the democracy together with a middle-of-the-road candidate. The President would purge the party, bring in New and more radical blood, and unite it on an aggressively New Dealish platform with an aggressively New Dealish leader.

The two men have been a team for many years. They are still a team, but, unless one or the other changes his mind, the time must come when the team will suffer the fate of most teams.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch TAXES Risk, and the risk is yours, But win, and we shall take it. We'll take the fortune that endures And hate you while you make it. Profit, but if you do, You cannot keep it, neighbor: We want it for a friend or two Who do not care to labor. Fail, and you fall alone, Succeed, and hand it over; For we possess failures of our own To pasture in your clover. But don't you dare to quit, And don't you think of slowing; For, if you didn't do your bit, Then how could we keep going?

The hours are 9:00 - 12:00, 1:00 - 5:00, and 6:00 - 9:00 from Monday to Friday and from 1:00 - 5:00 on Saturdays.

All playgrounds are under the supervision of the city department of parks and recreation and will be directed by WPA recreational leaders. North Escanaba will be directed by Leo Moreau and Harley Coplan; Jr. High by Clifford Anderson, Glenn Wellman, Fritz Fredrickson, and Marie Schuster, So. 19th street by Claude Fisher and Maurice Periot, and Ludington Park by Mrs. Bernice Anderson and Doris Costley.

A program of low and high organized games, athletics, arts and crafts, drama, music, and quiet activities will be conducted at all the grounds. In addition several special events have been included in the summer program such as the Pet Show, circus, doll parade, baseball field day, mass meet, girls' play day, and many others.

Each playground is to be equipped with a limited amount of equipment and facilities including softballs for boys' and girls' leagues and pick up ball games, bats, basketball, volleyball, croquet, bean bags and board, ring toss board, washer horseshoe, horseshoes, and several other small pieces of equipment. The public is invited to attend the playgrounds and make use of the facilities provided for them.

PAPERS BOOST TOURIST DRIVE

Much Space Devoted to Recreational Assets of Michigan

Ironwood, June 11—Newspapers of Michigan are ready to pledge $100,000 additional space annually in an extensive program to acquaint residents of the state with the tourist, industrial and agricultural resources of the Upper and Lower peninsulas, Chester M. Howell, Chesaning, president of the Michigan Press association, declared here today.

Howell addressed the Upper Peninsula Development bureau during its annual sessions.

Displaying a huge scrapbook of newspaper articles about Michigan which appeared last year in daily and weekly papers from Maine to California, Howell said: "Last July the newspapers were host to a tour of the National Editorial association, financed in part by a $10,000 appropriation from the State of Michigan. More than 300 editors from nearly 35 states were taken on an escorted trip from Detroit to Mackinac Island. The General Motors company offered an automobile to the outstate editor who wrote the best account of Michigan."

"We had the opportunity to display the results of all these newspaper articles, bound in a permanent super-scrapbook," to Governor Frank Murphy last October. And it was our privilege to present to him a check for more than $2,600—a voluntary 25 per cent refund to the State of Michigan by the daily and weekly newspaper publishers who directed this advertising enterprise.

"We know from experience what newspaper advertising can do for Michigan. We stand ready to offer $100,000 worth of space free to the tourist industry in a co-operative good will program whereby every section of Michigan would be publicized in pictures and brief articles. The cost for preparation of photographs, news articles, mats and postage would approximate $10,000 a year—and not one dime of this would go to a newspaper. It is a 10-1 offer. And if there is any refund possible, you can be sure that the newspapers will make one."

"Newspapers of Michigan have faith in the future of the tourist industry. We realize that what is good for Michigan is good for us. With building of good roads and adequate airports and the conserving of its priceless natural resources, Michigan has only begun to realize the potentialities of its tourist business. And in this development you can bet your last dollar: Newspapers of Michigan will give far more than they receive. We are not going to sell Michigan short."

At the Delft
 The first story of English undergraduate life to be filmed in England with a cast of American stars sent abroad to act in authentic locales comes to the Delft screen starting today with the showing of "A Yank at Oxford," with Robert Taylor playing the title role and with such American and English film favorites as Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Vivien Leigh, Edmund Gwenn and Griffith Jones filling prominent supporting roles.

Taylor as the American college boy who wins a scholarship to Oxford and becomes stroke of the Oxford crew, is said to eclipse anything he has done before in the new role of the Yank.

"A Yank at Oxford" offers the American filmgoer an unusual insight into the traditions and colorful life of English undergraduate life.

At the Michigan
 Fanny Brice, veteran singer and inimitable dialectician of stage and radio, returns to the screen in "Everybody Sings," which opens a 3 day showing today at the Michigan theatre.

The beloved comedienne portrays a maid in the picture, which features Allan Jones, Judy Garland, Reginald Owen, Billie Burke, Reginald Gardiner and Lynne Carver.

For 16 years with the "Zeligfeld Polles," Miss Brice recently ended a long engagement with the show's latest edition and was signed for the "Everybody Sing" role.

BRANCH 'LAB' AT PINECREST

Bacteria Tests and Serum Service To Be Hastened

The state department of health will establish a branch laboratory at Pinecrest sanatorium in Powers sometime in August to serve the needs of the medical profession and the public in this section of the Upper Peninsula. It was announced yesterday by Dr. John W. Towey, medical superintendent.

Dr. C. C. Younk, director of state laboratories, was in Powers recently to meet with the board of trustees of the sanatorium to make arrangements for the branch laboratory. Powers was selected because of its central location and because of the facilities available at the tuberculosis hospital.

The laboratory will be staffed by three technicians, two bacteriologists and one serologist, who will provide service seven days out of the week. At the present time, there are only two other laboratories, one at Houghton and the other at Grand Rapids. Establishment of a laboratory at Powers will speed up the bacteriological and serological service to the physicians of this district, all of which is important from the standpoint of public health.

Serums manufactured by the state laboratories and distributed free of charge also will be available at Powers.

The common lilac, state flower of New Hampshire, is a native of eastern Europe.

Initiation Night Of KC Postponed

Due to unforeseen circumstances, the Knights of Columbus initiation ceremonies, which were to have been held today, have been postponed until Sunday, June 19. It is expected that at least 50 candidates will be installed at that time.

A fine program has been arranged which will attract many Knights from other councils in the Upper Peninsula.

On Tuesday evening, June 14, a special meeting of the council will be held in the council chambers. Grand Knight John Bartella urges all members to be present. Rev. Fr. Eugene Rousseau, O. F. M., who has been stationed at James, N. M., will be present to tell of his experiences, which will be of interest to all Knights.

Household Hardware Is Part of Decoration

Remember the old-fashioned door knobs, those unsightly brown and white balls? If a house still contains these relics, they can be replaced with truly decorative fixtures at little cost. Household hardware now comes in many attractive designs. Replacement of outmoded and worn fixtures can be financed through the Property Improvement Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Home Ownership Easy Under FHA Financing Plan

Pamphlet Available Giving Steps Necessary to Possession

The simplicity of achieving home ownership under the FHA plan is emphasized in a new pamphlet just issued by the Federal Housing Administration.

The first step in building or buying a home under the plan, the pamphlet points out, is for the borrower to decide how much he can afford to invest. Generally speaking, his income should be at least four or five times the amount of the monthly loan payment. In other words, the total home investment should not be more than two or two and one-half times the borrower's annual income.

The next step is to decide on the type of home best suited to his needs, including the number of rooms, locations, etc. The Administration suggests the borrower talk things over with a local architect, builder, or real estate firm. In this manner he will receive practical suggestions that will help clarify his ideas.

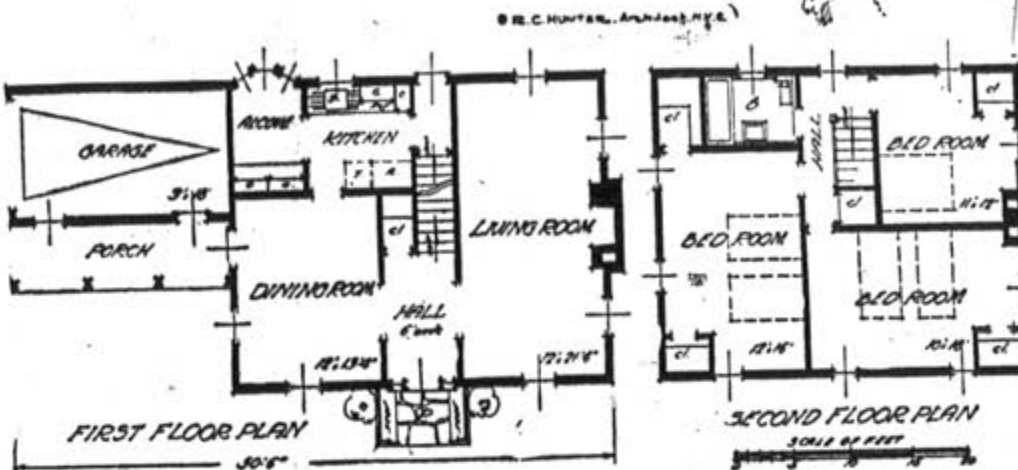

Procedure
When the rough plan and a tentative estimate is prepared, the borrower should then apply for a Federal Housing Administration insured mortgage at any approved lending institution. In this connection the Administration advises that the lender should be taken fully into the borrower's confidence and apprised of the amount of his income and his current expenses. It is necessary for the lender to have this information. It is pointed out, so that he can arrange payments within the borrower's means.

The amount of the loan, repayment period, charges, and other specific details of the transaction are matters to be arranged between the borrower and lender, but the lender must be guided by Federal Housing Administration limits—that is, up to 80 or 90 per cent of the appraised value of the property and up to 20 or in some cases 25 years for repayment, with top interest charges of 5 per cent plus one-fourth or one-half of 1 per cent for mortgage-insurance premium.

The down payment does not necessarily have to be met in cash. A building lot may be accepted as all or part of the down payment.

At the time the loan is made the borrower will be asked to provide money for the first year's taxes, assessments, and fire insurance. This is somewhat sooner than in the case of an ordinary loan, but the borrower gains the satisfaction of knowing that all bills in connection with the property are paid up to date and insurance written for at least a year in advance when actual payments begin on the Federal Housing Administration insured loan.

Conventional Design

This house requires a wide lot. It has certain New England characteristics—for example, the central hall between the living room and the dining room. It is interesting to note how the alcove off the kitchen which is used for dining has been treated. It gets away from the routine breakfast nook. The porch is used as a passage way from the garage to the dining room door, as well as a porch for general purposes. Three bedrooms and a bath are on the second floor. R. C. Hunter, architect, New York City.

SEVEN DECORATIVE SCHEMES IN LEAD

Treatment of interiors, if not ever-changing, at least is hardly ever static. Moods and periods are embraced, and then after a short time or a longer interval they become outmoded and are discarded. Quite often the new is but a re-adaptation of some scheme of decoration that has previously enjoyed popularity.

Today leading motifs for decorating the interiors of homes are: Regency, Swedish Modern, Exposition Modern, Colonial, Victorian, Eighteenth Century French, and Eighteenth Century English.

Funds for carrying out redecoration, such as paneling, papering, or painting, can be obtained from institutions operating under the Federal Housing Administration's Property Improvement Credit Plan.

The common viper is England's only poisonous snake.

CLOSET RACK

Umbrellas, canes and sticks are in the way in most coat closets; they are always falling over, getting tangled up in the outer garments, and sometimes becoming damaged. Here is a suggestion for that difficulty.

Take the inside of any closet door and attach a bottom shelf with front and side pieces and a top bar as shown in the illustration. This will provide space for several walking sticks and umbrellas.

Kitchen Doors

The use of flush-surfaced doors on kitchen cabinets and cupboards will expedite the housewife's job of keeping the room spick and span. The old type of paneled door frequently gathered dirt and dust and was harder to clean.

Kitchen Cabinets

The Federal Housing Administration, in response to many inquiries from approved lending institutions, has issued a clarification of eligibility rules for kitchen cabinets.

Under the provisions of the reinstated Title I of the National Housing Act the following types of built-in cabinets are eligible for financing from the proceeds of an insured loan: A cabinet that is a part of the sink and upon which the sink rests; cabinets that are permanently affixed to the structure by bolts, screws driven into, or imbedded in, rafters and beams so as to become an integral part of the building.

Cabinets merely set on the floor and nailed to wall to keep rigid are ineligible. Also cabinets that are hung on the wall.

City Council Okehs Long-Range Beach Development Program

Yacht Harbor Fill Immediate Object

A 15-year beach and park improvement program designed to give Escanaba yachting and general recreational facilities which will be equal to those of most cities of this size in the country was approved by members of the city council at a meeting held at the city hall.

The planning and drawings were made by Elmer Krieger, Milwaukee city planner who spent a week end here studying local facilities.

A continuation of filling in the yacht harbor which has been under way for the past two years is the immediate object.

In presenting his conception of the long range program, Krieger issued a report in which he made numerous suggestions of importance to the success of the venture. Krieger's report follows:

The Yacht Harbor

The proposed yacht harbor is 2200 feet in extreme length, and 350 feet in width at its widest point. It covers approximately 36 acres. It is designed to give adequate moorings and maximum protection from prevailing southwest winds.

The plan shows no provision for mooring at the docks, believing that danger from heavy blows from the east, coming through the existing gap would jeopardize such moorings. It is suggested therefore that the boats swing free and that dinghy landings be provided near the club house.

The club house is the center of the yachting activities and also serves as quarters for the rental of canoes and boats for picnic trips to Sand Island and to the Lagoon.

A walk, beginning at a point about 400 feet southwest of the Club House and extending along the dock-line past the Club House and Pumping Station to the yacht harbor entrance should be provided. A substantial railing, occasional benches, and a built-in bench at the east harbor entrance are suggested in connection with this walk.

More than adequate boat storage for the winter months is provided as shown. However, if this is not enough area, further space can be provided south-west of the Club House. The marine railway can be located in this area wherever convenient.

The Yacht Harbor will not only be an ideal mooring place for yachts but will be an excellent setting for water carnivals, Venetian Nights, races, and other marine recreational activities which can attract many visitors to Escanaba.

Lagoon and Pumping Station
Shortage of fill makes the lagoon a necessity. The lagoon is 1850 feet long and 950 feet wide at its widest point. Its area is about 30 acres.

The inlets and outlets should be made sufficiently wide; those shown are 50 feet in width. For fresh water this is probably a minimum allowable distance.

Two islands are suggested. One of them is connected to the mainland by a footbridge which gives access to a band shell to be built on the island. The sound of the music will travel over the water to the audience seated upon an open knoll.

The principle utilities of the lagoon are ice-skating in winter and canoeing in summer. For skating the area is large enough for races, hockey, and other games with space to spare.

A new site is proposed for the existing lagoon.

The building is located and oriented as shown and can be built in this general location to house pumps, water purification equipment, and if desired, all-year-round swimming tank facilities. A gymnasium might also be included in connection with the swimming tank, the only danger being that a too large and sprawling building may result. Interference with the light-house is another factor which obviously must not be overlooked.

Roadways May Be Changed

The total length of the roadways in the Park and in the Yacht Harbor area is about two miles. The width of the roadways is suggested to be 30 feet if parking is prohibited at all times. The prohibition of parking on the roadways, except where recessions are provided for angle parking, is feasible because ample, well-located parking areas are to be provided.

The two existing roadways now serving as entrances to the Park just back of the existing bath house are followed in this plan. If these existing roadways can be made to conform with the new roadways originating from the two proposed entrances at 7th Avenue South and South 3rd Street a saving in construction can be effected. However, if the old roadways and the proposed roadways cannot at all be made to conform to easy flowing curves as shown on the plan, it may be best to scrap the old road-beds.

The new roadways are designed to give easy access to the Park and the Yacht Harbor and to provide a scenic park drive. In the final coordination of the grading, planting, and roadway plans, attractive vistas from the roadway toward the lagoon and the bay should be created.

The lagoon is completely encircled by a roadway. During the skating season it is proposed to close the roadway from the south to permit temporary erection of facilities necessary for skaters to reach the lagoon from the combination shelter house (in winter) and bath house (in summer). This is suggested in lieu of erecting two separate buildings.

Bandshell on Island

Filling in is proposed to contour 91 which is the edge of the existing weed beds. It is proposed to develop the city's bathing beach along this newly formed shore. The bath house is centrally located and ample parking space is conveniently provided.

The band shell is located on the larger island. The open knoll for the audience should be graded to afford an easy view of the stage, and if carefully handled can be made to have considerable charm. Four tennis courts are added to the existing two at each of existing location. The existing comfort station can be used as a field house for the play area. If necessary the present quarters can be enlarged to accommodate field house activities.

FROM THE WEST a recent aerial view of the yacht basin project shows the series of sand bars and weed beds at water level which will require little filling in to convert them into the arm of land that is to encircle the park lagoon for boating, canoeing and skating. These sand bars are to be built up with sand dredged from the yacht harbor basin and the lagoon in the center of the peninsula.

In making a detailed plan for the area to be developed as a playground the following should be provided: Tennis courts (as noted above); shuffleboard courts; a minimum of safe play apparatus for small children; basketball and volleyball courts; and two softball diamonds.

During the winter season a low sled-slide or toboggan slide or both might prove popular in this area.

Parking Areas Outlined
Separate parking areas are provided for the yachtsmen, for those using the bathing beach, and for those attending the concerts. In addition, wherever needed, angle parking is provided along the roadway by setting in the grass curb.

The proposed size of the parking areas are made to scale and are more than large enough. If, however, it is felt that they are either too large or too small their size may be altered. There is plenty of room for expansion.

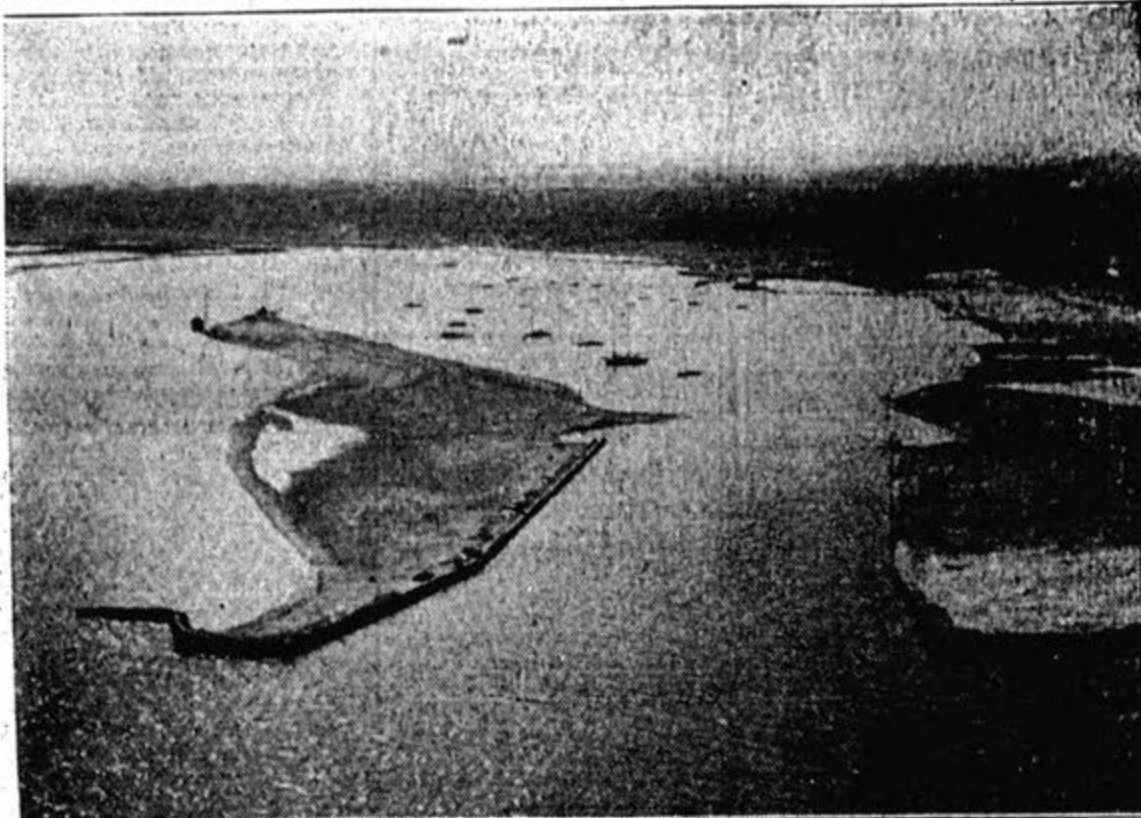

It is important to provide for convenient parking areas. This has often been overlooked in the building of parks resulting in inefficiency and disappointing functioning of those parks. Parking areas allow prohibition of parking along the roadways, keeping a free view of landscaped vistas for the passing motorist.

Planting
The planting indicated upon the drawing shows the general location of the trees and shrubs necessary to the plan. In the main the planting scheme is informal and should be as natural-like in effect as it is possible to attain. Only where the trees are shown regularly spaced should formal treatment of the planting be located. It is important that a planting plan be drafted when the work has progressed to that point. Pleasant vistas should be left open and pleasingly framed, and proper plant materials should be carefully selected.

A service yard with a maintenance building is provided in a central location. Here maintenance equipment, materials, lumber, etc. can be stored. This is another function often overlooked in park design, but for the proper operation of the park this space is essential.

Feathers are made of a material unlike anything else in nature; it is neither bone nor flesh, membrane nor tendon.

TRENARY GIRLS GOING TO CAMP

Home Economics Leaders to Attend Course at Michigamme

Trenary, Mich. — The Misses Susan Gregg and Gertrude Johnson will represent Mathias Township schools at the Home Economics Camp at Michigamme, on August 14-20, because of their good work on home economics projects.

In order to select these two girls for the honor, each class picked two candidates. The alternates are Signe Aho of home economics I and Grace Trenary of home economics II. These two girls will attend camp at Ruth Freearg, state supervisor of home economics education says there is enough room. Everett Stenbach principal and Marian Erwin, home economics teacher, make the final selection, basing their choice on projects, class work, personality, and leadership. Miss Erwin sends three projects which are representative of the kind of work being done on home projects, to Ruth Freearg. She has selected Susan Gregg's "Baking Project", Grace Trenary's "Buying My Winter Coat", and Signe Aho's "Supper-time Frolic". Each girl taking home economics carries two school year projects and two summer projects, making a total of eight for two years of class work.

In the fall, the two home economics classes are undertaking a larger canning project. Miss Erwin suggests that the girls can the surplus food in the community.

Rather than paying cash, Miss Erwin suggests that credit be given to apply on the hot lunches served during the winter. In the past, the classes have done canning for individuals, claiming a third of the product for their own. So if you will have any surplus fruits or vegetables, or want any canning done, get in touch with Miss Erwin.

DIPLOMAS GIVEN TO 42 SENIORS

Bishop Ablewhite Speaks at Commencement in Newberry

Newberry, Mich., June 11. — Bishop H. S. Ablewhite of Marquette was the commencement speaker on Friday night when 42 graduates of the Newberry high school received their diplomas from the hands of Mr. Herman Kunert, president of the board of education.

The bishop spoke on the subject "Life Self-Disciplined or Regimented." He started by telling his young listeners that the happiest years of their lives were ahead, when they would find their self-success in attempting to solve the problems of the world of nations and of this nation. The development of an inward character is the first essential. No planned economy, no constitution nor institution will work unless there is that in the minds and hearts of the people of the nation and the world which will make it work.

The bishop stated. All of our present troubles or unemployment and economic uncertainty are due to the fact that the people have grown fat and flabby in character. Doing right for the sake of right and not because of any reward brings the greatest happiness and will eventually prepare a nation who can live happily.

safely, and in prosperity together, the speaker believes. The speaker is not hopeless of the future. He pointed out that all great periods in the world's history have been times of stress and strain. Out of the conflict comes the great things and the young people, now leaving the schools and colleges, will be the generation who will see results. You must show the world that democracy can be made to work. Only the youthful minds and hearts can do this. And all of the control and attempts at control which have come out of Washington during the past few years have come because the people themselves were lacking.

Herman Kunert, president of the board of education, talked on "The Past, the Present, and the future." A member of the board for the past 15 years, this much respected gentleman told of the fellow members who, with him, bore the brunt of the program of building schools in the community. He read portions of letters from prominent men protesting the construction of the present high school and read also a notation from the president of one of the big companies paying taxes in the township advising him to "do the thing you believe is right." On Friday night Mr. Kunert advised the large audience that the last of the school bonds, totaling $300,000 had been retired, three years before they came due. The present institution is thus presented to the taxpayers free of all debt. During the years Mr. Kunert has served he has seen 557 students graduate, among them two of his own daughters.

Tom Gormely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verold Gormely of Lansing, sang a fine bass solo. In announcing this number Superintendent C. L. Bystrom commented on the fact that there has been a member of the Gormely family in the schools for the past 47 years. Tom is the last one remaining here with his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Ann Gormely. Twin sons of the Gormelys attend schools in Lansing. The invocation and benediction were spoken by Rev. R. A. Garrison of the Presbyterian church.

BEHIND THE SCENES

By Rodney Dutcher

Washington—A nice, eight-point program for the Republican party appears to be one of the current needs in politics. The G. O. P. has been going in for numerology in a big way, but no one has yet considered the possible magic in the number eight. Here's what has been presented to the country thus far:

Five-point program of principles to guide the nation, offered by Herbert Hoover last December. Six-point program to restore confidence and prosperity, offered by Congressman Hamilton Fish of New York.

Seven deadly sores, of the present economic situation, offered by New York's Congressman Bruce Barton as subjects for congressional investigation. BUT EIGHT IS SKIPPED

Nine-point party program offered by Governor Aiken of Vermont as basis for attack on the New Deal.

Ten basic headaches—bad spots in the New Deal which the Republican Committee on Program promises to explore and analyze.

Eleven-point program, suggested by Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan in a magazine interview.

Twelve-point program for saving the country, proposed by Herbert Hoover on his return last month from Europe.

Thirteen-point "rescue plan," devised by G. O. P. National Committee and congressmen in minority report on administration's recovery-relief bill.

Most popular points have included: no more pump-priming; revision of taxes and the Wagner act; lower relief costs and investigation or elimination of WPA, eliminate government competition with and attacks on business.

GOVERNMENT IN THE MOVIES The administration now expects to set up a motion picture production agency under the National Emergency Council, co-ordinating the more ambitious plans of various New Deal agencies which have experimented or hoped to enter that field.

POLITICS IN MINNESOTA Diligent digging by correspondents has failed to produce proof that the administration is actively intervening in the Minnesota gubernatorial primaries June 20, although its interest in the results are considerable.

Farmer-Labor Gov. Elmer Benson seeks re-nomination by his party and is opposed by former Lieut.-Gov. H. Jalmer Petersen, who has conservative support. Benson has consistently supported Roosevelt and the President is supposed to favor his re-election.

Harry Hopkins recently visited State WPA Administrator Victor Christgau on the ground that he couldn't get along with others—notably farmer-labor officials—although WPA officials in Washington also had complained of Christgau's handling of WPA labor troubles.

Previously Jim Farley had told United States District Attorney Victor Anderson to file in the Democratic primary. Anderson has publicly protested removal of Christgau, whose friends insist he was efficient and non-partisan and that he was ousted—after being offered a Washington job—as a political move to help Benson.

Tom Gallagher, young lawyer, is reported likely to beat Anderson and four other candidates for the Democratic nomination. Roosevelt, asked point-blank at a press conference whether he wanted a Democratic governor in Minnesota, evaded the question. But he wants a pro-administration Minnesota delegation at the next Democratic national convention.

Martin Nelson, Republican candidate for governor in a previous election, is likely to be the G. O. P. nominee again, although Harold E. Stassen and Mayor George E. Leah of Minneapolis are strong contenders.

This Man, Joe Murray

BY WILLIAM CORCORAN

Copyright, 1938, by William Corcoran; NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS JOE MURRAY—liked new places, new jobs, new girls.

HELEN—fell in love—hard—once.

TERRY MALLOW—found love—and kept it!

Yesterday: The climax comes when Terry defies her relatives at home, tells them she and Joe are going to be married. Joe is shocked! But it is too late.

CHAPTER XI

He moistened his lips, rocking a little on the seat, looking at her. She watched his face, fascinated. He did not say anything.

"Joe!" she said suddenly.

"Let's get out of here!" he snapped, and got up abruptly.

She followed him outside the shop. She stood in uncertainty on the sidewalk beside him while he looked up the street and down the street, rocking a little, ominously rocking, his face unreadable.

Then he heard her make a queer sound, and he looked at her sharply. She was crying as she stood there, quietly, almost soundlessly crying. He did not make a move, staring at her. She did not look at him, but she slowly turned and walked off down the street, alone.

He had never seen her cry. She looked forlorn and alone to an intensity of loneliness such as he had never seen either. He knew what loneliness was. He knew what happiness was. He knew what it was to have happiness snatched from your grasp, wantonly, by heedless life.

Loneliness was creeping over him as he stood there and she drew farther and farther away, not looking back. Once he would not have recognized it; now he knew it all too well, clammy and cold. The anger drained out of him, down through his very feet into the insensate earth.

He set out after her at a quick pace. When he caught up with her and fell into stride he gripped her hand hard. "Cut it!" he told her. "Stop that."

Obediently, abruptly, the sobbing ceased. She walked by his side, very still. He went on, holding the hand hard. "All right," he said. "I think you're nuts and I'm no better, I'll take it on."

The small hand in his gave a convulsive start and gripped him hard in return. "You mean you'll marry me?"

"I think we're out of our heads. So we might as well get married."

And there was a sudden quivering, breathless radiance in the dusk beside him.

They walked together a long time. Neither one went home. They walked through the dusk into the darkness of the night. They stopped at a lunch wagon and propped on stools and ate hamburger sandwiches while a tenor voice came over the radio singing a song that shook them strangely and that they would always associate with just that moment. The announcer said it was the "Barcarolle" from "The Tales of Hoffman."

It was not with difficulty that Joe was shaken; his entire being and four other candidates for the Democratic nomination. Roosevelt, asked point-blank at a press conference whether he wanted a Democratic governor in Minnesota, evaded the question.

But he wants a pro-administration Minnesota delegation at the next Democratic national convention.

trampled with a tension. He was afraid, mightily afraid; he was haunted by a poignancy, by the ghosts of an old passion that trooped invisibly around. And he was humbled. He was humbled by the clear, calm abiding joy that he had unwittingly called into being, that walked and sat and dreamed beside him, wanting nothing more forever.

That happiness was so cruel! He was responsible for it, and it mastered him, and its mastery was like a clutching of his flesh with barbs. He had known happiness, and he had known grief and desolation, and they had unmanned him, so that the only desire left was peace. Peace, if he could find it... and there is no peace in abiding with an ecstasy he could never share.

He was humbled, haunted, tormented; he was seized by the terror of life. And when human creatures come to a certain point in life suddenly, a point where the prospect is appalling and overwhelming for mortals to look upon, nature provides for them, that life may never halt. Life cannot halt. Nature makes them a little drunk, drunk with too much sensation, so that they no longer mind, being without volition while life sweeps them on into an unknown.

They walked together in the night, the two of them, and they talked little. They made no plans. Terry needed none; Joe had spoken, and that was all that mattered. When she addressed him it was about things quite irrelevant and trivial: the gay song someone was singing inside an open window, the look on a girl's face as she talked in a doorway with a boy, the frantic friendliness of a puppy that came stumbling and galloping up to greet them, the majesty of an airway beacon in the night sky. The night was full of many things, and she walked among them together with her man.

It was late when they arrived at her home. All was dark and quiet, and they entered the front room stealthily. They listened, and there was no sound; Joe broodingly, Terry inscrutably. Terry lighted the lamp, and then she extinguished the lamp. They sat together in the stillness, listening. Terry put her hand in the darkness. And then abruptly and darkly and hungrily, they turned to one another and swept into each other's arms. Joe was drunk with sensation and Terry with ecstasy, and they listened no longer, for there was a roaring as of a mighty and omniscient surf on an endless ocean, and it drowned out all the world.

They were married in the chapel of the municipal building downtown by the city clerk at 10 o'clock in the morning. Now do you think for a minute that disposes of Terry and Joe and my story about love. Marriage is an incident in life, and life goes on. It goes weaving and winding, deviously hiding and wantonly flaunting its always inscrutable purpose, undaunted even by death. Terrible and beautiful it goes, spitting all plans and provisions, constant to one thing only: the certainty of change. The very magnificence of life is its completely sublime disdain.

There was something wanton and disdainful about this marriage of Joe and Terry. No inevitability was in it at all, but much chance and fortuity. Precarious indeed is any marriage, but here was a marriage with no fore-ordained compulsion about it, with no fond benediction of families and friends, with nothing, practically, but that small and intense persistence of Terry Mallow. And she was young, knowing neither life nor the world sufficiently, where Joe knew both all too well.

They told no one about their intentions when they met early and went downtown together. They got busy immediately afterward and selected a small flat, a four-room box flat three stories up on a side street in their own neighborhood.

Joe drew his money from the bank and let Terry select a bed, a table, utensils, furnishings. They bought with frugal care, having none too much money for their wholesale needs, and they bought right in the neighborhood, so that the things might be delivered and installed that very day. Long past any proper meal time Terry prepared their first meal together that night in their own home.

Terry went about all that day in a kind of calm, bated entrancement, full of wonder and joy and yet unquestioningly sure of herself. She had no experience to guide her, and was at no time daunted by the demands of the day. It was as if she selected, ordered, instructed things and people out of unwavering instinct. Terry possessed a rare directness of mind: she knew always without confusion what she most wanted, and her energies went wholly and solely into the acquiring of it.

"I feel good," she told Joe spontaneously in the midst of the confusion that was their home. She smiled. "So good! Feel it! In here where my heart is? Do you feel the same thing I do?"

He felt the sturdy, steady beating of her heart, and he smiled. He looked at her a long moment, while sober thought played in the pupils of his brown eyes, and then he said with a shade of huskiness in the tone, a touch of difficulty. "Baby... I guess I do love you."

It was the first time. (To Be Continued)

SOCIAL

Denio-Braun

The faint gleam of tall white tapers casting their soft radiance on a church beautifully decorated with white lilies, bridal wreath, fern and pink honeysuckle formed the setting for the marriage of Miss Irene Denio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Denio, city, and William F. Braun, Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, last evening at 7:45 o'clock in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Elder Allen Schreur, Gaylord, Mich., performed the ceremony.

A program of bridal music by Mrs. Alma King, a sister of the bride, and Donald Swan was played as the guests were assembling, and two numbers, "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly" were sung by Lawrence VanHorn, a cousin of the bride.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white satin with a "V" uplift effect, logoman sleeves, with tiny white buttons from elbow to back of the hand, and a lace yoke with white calla lily buds trimming both front and back. Her net veil, cast effect, fell to the floor in graceful folds. She carried an arm bouquet of white and pink snapdragons, fever-few and pink roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Denio, a sister, was attired in a floor-length pink chiffon gown with self-colored satin stripes and with it she wore a contrasting blue satin sash. Her head band was of silver leaves and tiny blue and pink flowers. She carried a shower bouquet of white and pink snapdragons, fever-few and pink snapdragons.

The two flower girls, Elaine Stowe and Betty King, a niece of the bride, wore dainty blue dotted white organdy frocks with blue sashes and blue bows in their hair. Each carried white baskets filled with lilies and tied with big tulle bows.

The groom was attended by James Denio, a brother of the bride.

Ushers were Ray Denio, a brother-in-law.

Mrs. Jesse Denio, the bride's mother, was attired in navy blue crepe with a matching shoulder corsage of white and pink snapdragons and fever-few.

A reception and light luncheon for immediate relatives was held at the bride's parental home following the wedding.

For her going away costume, the bride selected a gray wool crepe swager suit and with it wore navy blue accessories.

The bride is a graduate of Gladstone high school, class of '27, and for the past three years has been cadet at the kindergarten. Prior to that she was assistant librarian.

The groom attended a technical school at the Sault.

The couple will make their home in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., making their residence at 142 Chestnut street.

DEATH DRIVER EXONERATED

Unavoidable Accident Caused Death of Isaac Smith

A coroner's jury sitting on an inquest into the death of Isaac Smith, 58, city, who was killed about 1:45 a. m. Saturday morning when struck at Delta and Ninth by an auto driven by Clifford Kinnie exonerated Kinnie of blame in the accident.

The verdict declared the accident to have been unavoidable and caused through no negligence on the part of the driver.

Composing the jury were A. D. Harris, Soren Johnson, C. A. LaFave, Cliff Murker, John Schmitt and Clarence White. Dr. O. S. Hult, county coroner, presided. Prosecuting Attorney Wm. Miller assisted in the questioning. Kinnie was represented by Atty H. J. Rushton.

Police Officer Frank Quinn, who witnessed the accident from a short distance, declared Smith, with head down, walked directly into the path of the auto. He said he had met Smith shortly before and there was evidence that the man had been drinking.

Other witnesses were Dagmar Carlson, Chicago, who was with Kinnie at the time of the accident. Mrs. Ted Erickson, Carl Hillman, Ed Gordon, Dr. Herman Kasen, Clifford Kinnie and Dr. O. S. Hult.

Questioning of Pros. Atty. Miller leaned towards the possibility of suicide. One witness testified that Thursday evening, Smith asked him if he would serve as a pallbearer for him while about six hours before the accident. Smith appeared at a local home and asked if a member of the family would sing at his funeral services.

While testimony generally was to the effect that Smith had been drinking, one witness testified he had been at a WPA party at the Labor hall on Friday evening and was in good spirits. The same witness, however, said he had been worried of late over the possibility of losing his job.

Everything that is really great and inspiring is created by the individual who can labor in freedom.

Ticket Sale for Ladies' Minstrel Begun by Bethel

The first all-ladies minstrel to be offered local play-goers is to be presented on the evening of Friday, July 1, at the high school auditorium under the auspices of the Gladstone Bethel of Job's Daughters.

The play is a benefit performance and proceeds will be placed in a fund for use in purchase of robes for Bethel members.

The type of vehicle to be used in the presentation was chosen by the Guardian Council only after examination of a number of meritorious plays.

Advance ticket sale is now under way and tickets may be procured from various members of the Bethel.

Full rehearsal is to be held on Monday at 2 o'clock at the auditorium.

Conan E. Fisher, who is directing the production, is very optimistic regarding the outcome. He reports the membership of the Bethel offers a wealth of material for a capable cast and the rehearsals held to date have revealed progress that is highly encouraging.

Assisting Mr. Fisher are Mrs. C. E. Fisher and Freeman Empson. Mrs. Fisher has taken charge of the music and dance routines. A chorus of 30 ladies' voices is now being formed. Mr. Empson is ably assisting as piano accompanist for the entertainment.

LAND PROBLEMS

Don't "Hurry" Fish If You Want To Be Sure Of Landing It

BY GEORGE RINTAMAKI One of the biggest false illusions the novice plug caster...

After I had lost the largest walleye of the day, as subsequent catches proved...

When the fish hit the little river-runt floater it felt exactly as if I had drawn the lure into a submerged snag...

Jack duplicated the same blunder on almost the next cast. Like rank novices, we got our lines crossed partly due to a strong wind...

At that moment another fighting walleye struck, this time at Jack's plug. He was on and then the fun began.

I permitted my line to hang comparatively slack as Jack drew the fish in. As it neared the boat, we could see the fish...

Then, just as Jack prepared to give it a final flip into the boat, the bronzed fish seemed to find another unlimited reserve of fighting energy.

We both agreed that the fish was one of the strongest fighters we had ever encountered amongst the finny tribe...

As far as the big fish went that day, that was the end of them. Some lesser walleyes were caught, also a nice northern pike by Jack...

Slowly the mad rushes of the fish began to tell on it and eventually the tired fish lay on the wet bottom of the boat.

Four Pounds of Fighting Bass!

This scrappy small-mouth black bass was hooked and subdued on a pike fishing trip at Manistiquette lake.

Fishermen to Receive Fine Awards at Party

Many dollar's worth of vacations and fishing tackle will be awarded to those good fishermen, who attend the Escanaba-Gladstone Fishermen's Party...

Both events are sponsored by Lions clubs of Escanaba and Gladstone, who are now selling tickets for the Fishermen's Party.

The headliners in the prize list announced thus far are: Thompson rowboat, two Evinrude Motors, vacations to Blaney Park, Pontiac Resort, Minor's Resort, Stevens Resort and other famous fishing spots...

Splendid entertainment also is on the Fishermen's Party program. Clare Bryan, Chicago, world champion trick caster, will give a demonstration of his skill.

The day's program will be as follows: 10:15 a. m.—Baseball game, Crystal Falls vs. Escanaba. 12:00 noon—Resort Owners Luncheon, Delta Hotel.

2:30 p. m.—Fishermen's Party at Fairgrounds. 5:00 p. m.—Fishing Rodeo and Bait Casting Tournament at Masonville.

8:30 p. m.—Rowing Race to Shore by Rodeo Contestants.

Statistics Blast Hunters' Alibis

Hunters often alibi their misses on waterfowl by claiming the birds were traveling 75, 100, or even 150 miles an hour.

Later on in the year pike are in some waters get that "pike" smell to which some people object, and they will not be as firm as they are now, but in many sections where game fish are scarce they are highly prized at any time of the year.

Beavers Build Dam In Sight of Highway

Leonidas—Beavers inhabiting Bear creek near here have obligingly built a dam close enough to a road to give all passersby a good, close-up view.

The dam is located under the edge of the road bridge which spans the creek. Because of the unusual opportunity to see a beaver works so close, the place has become the gathering place for dozens of human spectators, many persons driving daily to the site, especially on Sundays.

There were no ponies in the Pony Express; they were horses.

At times, bucktail is hard to obtain. The tails of woodchucks make a very satisfactory substitute.

Due to heavy silt, which causes constant shifting of main channels, steamship travel on the Yangtze River is possible only during the dry season.

Seaweeds have no roots in a general sense, only "holdfasts," or anchors. They absorb air, water and salts through the surface of their fronds.

FISHING RODEO IN GOOD PLACE

Head of Bay de Noc Is One of Finest Spots in Peninsula

The head of Little Bay de Noc, where the Escanaba-Gladstone Fishing Rodeo will be held Sunday evening, June 26, is one of the finest fishing areas to be found anywhere in the Upper Peninsula, according to widely traveled expert fishermen.

The fishing rodeo will start at 5 p. m. and will last about three hours. A bomb will be discharged as a signal for all the fishing boats to row out to the fishing waters.

Prizes will be awarded to fishermen scoring the most number of points. There also will be awards to anglers getting the largest fish in each species.

Mr. Nelson has conducted a boat livery at Masonville for a number of years, and won a host of friends among fishermen because of his courteous service.

The rental of six boats for a day's fishing will be offered as prizes to be given away at the Lions Fishermen's Party at the U. P. State Fairgrounds in Escanaba at 2:30 p. m. Sunday, June 26.

Fish Law Violations Total 600 Already

Lansing, June 11—More than 600 persons have been arrested this spring for violating the state's fishing laws and have paid more than $6,000 in fines and costs.

Beginning in late February, fishing law violations have gradually increased, and last month jumped from 235 in March to 363. The latter constituted more than 82 percent of the total number of arrests made during April for all types of game law violations.

Taking or attempting to take fish by illegal methods resulted in the arrest of 141 persons while 123 were taken into custody for fishing without licenses. Fifty-seven more were charged with taking or attempting to take game fish during a closed season, nine with possession of undersized fish, 16 with violations of the commercial fishing laws and seven others with miscellaneous fish law violations.

Fines assessed during the month totalled $2,178 and costs amounted to $2,514. Jail sentences totalled 84 days.

Fauns Sighted Now Are Not Abandoned

Lansing—If you happen to be in the wooded north these days and if you are favored by destiny, you might happen to discover by accident a small spotted creature tucked away in some thicket.

If you do, leave it alone. Its mother knows where it is and has hidden it there purposely while she is away feeding or watering. Thousands of fauns are now making their debut, others have been around long enough to run a pretty good race, the season extending from the latter part of May into the first part of June.

For many of the does, this period means the arrival of twins. Triplets are not uncommon but quadruplets are rare.

The usual procedure of the doe is to select a likely spot in some thickets on the edge of a clearing, the clearing giving her visibility and a clear space for any breeze that might come along and blow the bugs away.

The fawn is ordinarily able to get onto its feet within a couple of hours after birth. Within less than a week it is strong enough to outrun a man.

Muskies Are Found In West Virginia

The muskie, generally regarded as a "lake fish" to be found only in Wisconsin, Michigan and other northern states, is also a native of West Virginia where he makes his home in several of the larger streams.

Stone Mountain, near Atlanta, Ga., contains more than $120,000,000 worth of radium, but the rock contains too low grade an ore to be worth working.

The kangaroo rat, found in the southwest, is neither a kangaroo nor a rat, but a close relative of the mouse.

A Brule "Brown"

A 22 inch Brown trout from the famous Brule river is one of the latest entrants in the Daily Press big fish contest.

It was fishing the tail end of a deep pool on the Brule river when I had a hard strike, which almost took the rod from my hands. I finally got squared around—and the battle was on!

"Brown trout seem to be 'under-water' fighters; he kept boring for the bottom—nothing like the 'rainbow.' First he made a dash down stream and as there were some old logs to the left of me, I put quite a strain on the fly rod to check him before he got under those logs.

Hook Bill Would Spur Selective Logging in U. P.

Lansing, June 11—A congressional measure known as the hook bill, which the state conservation commission has endorsed, provides for the application of the principles of selective logging as a means of saving remaining stands of virgin timber in the upper peninsula from destruction.

The bill, introduced in congress by Rep. Frank Hook, calls for an appropriation of $10,000,000 with which to acquire lands in Baraga, Gogebic, Houghton, Iron, and Ontonagon counties. Three million dollars would be made available in 1939, an equal amount in 1940 and four million in 1941, under the terms of the bill.

Through public ownership and selective logging, the bill is aimed at preventing indiscriminate private cutting of the timber, and achieving preservation of the forests for continuous lumbering. Under the plan, only a certain percentage of trees would be cut each year, thus assuring stock for each succeeding year.

Fir Tree Becomes Private Gold Mine

Hoquiam, Wash. (AP)—J. H. Matheson, a mill Sawyer, noticed pitch running out of fir logs. Hating the waste, he tried attaching spouts to trees, which as maple sap spouts are attached. From one fir alone he took 53 gallons of pitch and sold it at 50 cents a gallon.

Anglers Can Use Lady's Pocketbook

A handy pocket for carrying flies, leaders, sinkers and other odds and ends of fishing may be made from a woman's leather pocketbook. Those with zipper openings are preferable.

Simply punch holes along the top of the pocketbook and wire it to the front of the reel, outside, where it will be easily reached. A good-looking pocketbook will add to the appearance of the reel.

BUILT-LIKE TRICYCLE

Walton, N. S. (AP)—Freak honors in this Hants County village go to a chicken with three legs, arranged tricycle fashion. The chick uses all three and can run, walk or scratch equally as well as her normal sisters.

BUCKTAIL SUBSTITUTE

At times, bucktail is hard to obtain. The tails of woodchucks make a very satisfactory substitute. In fact, if you can obtain the color you wish, you will find that it makes a better fly than deer hair.

EWES HAS QUADRUPLETS

At the farm of Daniel Grant, here, a Shropshire ewe gave birth to four lambs, three males and one female. All are doing well.

Bryan Gives Helpful Tips To Bait Caster

By CLARE BRYAN So much has been written about rods and lures for the fly flickers, I think it is high time to give a little information for the benefit of the lowly bait caster.

Let's take the bait caster from the time he buys his first rod and reel. The shop windows are full of fishing tackle, he walks by, stops and looks, takes a few more steps and looks over his shoulder at the very same thing he has been looking at for several minutes.

In so many of our larger stores, the tackle salesman is so interested in making sales, he gives very little thought to selling properly balanced equipment.

In business the customer is always right, so the tackle dealer sell whatever the fisherman asks for, whether or not that fellow comes back from his vacation with tears in his eyes.

When buying a rod, too many fishermen are inclined to buy a rod so short, they never get beyond the throwing stage. The rod should do all the work, and to do this, there must be enough action to cast the lure with only the wrist, in place of the entire arm.

Well-Balanced Rod

The six foot rod not only balances with the light lures, but comes in handy in other ways, for instance, most of our casters make the cast and allow the line to sag on the water, never realizing that a wet line on the reel prevents that line from playing out freely.

After making the cast, the rod tip should be lifted gradually, at the same time making the shift to the other hand ready to start the retrieve. By the time the rod is lifted to an angle of about six degrees, the retrieve should be started, never varying the speed from the time the lure is dropped on the water.

The tension on the line will keep all but a very few feet above the water. With the line taut as mentioned, many more of the strikes will mean fish landed, because the hook can be set the moment the fish strikes.

Speaking of reels, the time has come when the manufacturers are making them with the light aluminum spools. This has been a Godsend, for the light spools take so little effort to start it in motion that there is no more reason for that full arm stroke of the rod.

The light whippy rod will balance perfectly with this reel, permitting the cast to be made with the same wrist action as the tournament caster uses. This form of casting is not only less tiresome, but permits greater accuracy in hitting that open spot between the lily pads.

CCC Manpower Is Ready For Fighting State Forest Fires

Lansing, June 11—Reinforcements for the state's forest fire army are now ready for emergency call as a result of organization work which has been completed at CCC camps throughout the state.

CCC enrollees have been given instructions in fire regulations, use of equipment and in the various methods employed by the field administration division of the department of conservation in fighting forest fires.

When needed on fires requiring considerable man-power in addition to such equipment units as tractors and pumps

I've seen hundreds that size," Al sneered. "I've seen them caught and I've removed them from the stomachs of other fish. They're so common off the southeast Florida coast we think nothing of them."

ALL OF FAMILY LIKE WALL-EYES

"Dory" Is Fish Everyone Can Enjoy Fishing for and Catching

By O. WARREN SMITH Dad Jones got up with a grouch. It was a perfect day too, when days are at their longest and best.

Well, if you are an angler, you know what happened. In less than twenty minutes the four Joneses were piled into the "Fishing Flyer," together with duffie, for in that wise family the tackle and good sport awaiting you without leaving your city limits.

Well, I have eaten with them. They Do Fight! By the time the lake was reached, the family was sitting on fish-hooks, so eager were they to set out.

Meanwhile Mom and Jenny had baited up, thrusting the hooks through the mouths and out the gills, for wall-eyes have the mean habit sometimes of biting short. They let their baited hooks down, well down, and kept them in motion by raising and lowering the tips of their fly rods.

Sharp-Tailed Male Is Fancy Dancer In State's Grouse Set

Lansing—Although he may not know much about "the big apple" the male of the sharp-tailed grouse is a pretty fancy dancer in his own rights and even has his own dancing grounds.

The dancing grounds are usually elevated areas of perhaps a quarter of an acre in some meadow or other open space. It is the habit of the grouse to return to these areas year after year to stage frequent and fantastic dances which game bird observers believe are calculated to impress the females which congregate around the edge of the dancing grounds.

By inflating the sacks on the sides of his neck and then letting the air out he can create a booming noise which ornithologists also believe is a bid for female appreciation. This trick is basis for the definition of dancing grounds as "booming grounds."

The ruffed grouse follows a somewhat different technique. He usually selects a log to which he returns day after day to stand and beat his wings in the air making a sound similar to the "roll of drums." But again the object is to arouse favorable attention from the females of his species.

Many song birds pursue the practice of setting up territories or "crowing areas," as they are sometimes called, around a nest where their mates have laid the eggs, or around a spot to which they hope to attract mates for the purpose of nest building and egg laying. The red-wing blackbird, for instance, arrives from two to three weeks ahead of the female, picks out its territory and then, while waiting for a mate to show up, busies itself fighting off all trespassers.

Wassberg Named Athletic Director at Manistique

JEHLE IS NEW GRID MENTOR

Reque Will Have Charge of Basketball; New Program Started

Manistique, Mich., June 11.—As the result of extensive changes made in the athletic department, Manistique high school will operate under a dual coaching system next year, according to an announcement made here today by Supt. of Schools A. F. Hall.

Oscar Wassberg, who has been head football and basketball coach for the past several years, will be athletic director, having charge of a general athletic program designed to cover a much larger amount of territory than is now covered.

Takes Football
Frank J. Jehle, who has been assistant football coach, will assume head coaching duties next fall and T. H. Reque, who has been assistant in basketball, has been elevated to head coach in that department.

Under the new arrangement, much emphasis will be placed on intramural work in developing athletics to include boys not playing on varsity squads. Bill Cook and John Kelly, former Emerald head coaches, will cooperate in the movement.

Coached 7 Years
Wassberg leaves active coaching field after seven years. He began coaching at Manistique in 1930 immediately after graduating from Northern State Teachers College, where he was an all-around star, earning letters in football, basketball and track under Coach C. B. Hedgecock. He was graduated from Negaunee high school in 1924. In his tenure here, Wassberg has produced many strong teams both in basketball and football. One of his outstanding football teams was that of 1936 in which seven games were won and one lost.

Jehle came to Manistique in 1937 after having taught in Detroit schools. He gained a wide background in football as a member of the varsity of Notre Dame University, where he won his letter as an end.

Reque came to Manistique in the same year after a very successful coaching career at LaSalle high school at St. Ignace. He is a mathematics teacher.

COW TESTING HITS RECORD

Dairy Herd Improvement Associations Total 74 in State

Dairy herd improvement associations in Michigan now number 74, largest number ever on record in the state.

Reports of the activities of the associations compiled by E. C. Scheidtmann, extension dairyman at Michigan State College, indicate farmers are increasingly anxious that their herds earn their keep.

What are these associations doing? In April alone members reported they removed 537 head from their herds.

Two more trends in the dairy industry in the state are found in the association reports. Building of bull pens is one activity to promote safety and permit keeping valuable bulls that seem to have too much spirit and aggressiveness.

Commenting on the local situation, E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, said: "In Delta County there are only 14 farmers having their herds on test, with 265 animals included in these herds.

"No one can guess the production of a dairy cow. Heavy production for a few months does not necessarily mean a high producing cow.

will never be an asset to a farmer's herd will cost the owner many times what it would to find these low producers first by testing and raise only calves from the better cows.

"Improper feeding is another point that a cow tester can give much assistance to a dairy farmer on. An over fed cow will not produce any more milk than if she were properly fed.
