GUNS TRAINED ON NEW DEAL BY OPPONENTS

Washington, June 18 (AP)—Congressional campaigns, a six-month session of political sparring behind them, came out of their corners with a burst of oratorical slugging today to signify that the training period was over.

WAGE-HOUR BILL IS CONDEMNED AS 'UNCERTAIN'

Representative Snell of New York, leader of the Republicans in the house, said in a radio talk the new deal was responsible for the business recession. He said it had been brought about by "the blighting hand of the reckless new deal experimenter, Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

Defends Debt Increases

More moderate in words was Senator Barkley, the Democratic leader, who opened his campaign for renomination in Kentucky with a thorough-going defense of the new deal. He contended that the net increase in the nation's debt during his administration had been only five billion dollars, not the 15 billion dollars cited by Roosevelt opponents.

YOUNGEST SON OF PRESIDENT GETS MARRIED

Nahant, Mass., June 18. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Roosevelt, for the moment at least the nation's top-ranking newlyweds, tonight slipped away for an unannounced honeymoon destination after a society wedding that combined solemnity and smiles, noise, color and pomp.

The bride and groom started their journey by automobile, with a police escort discouraging pursuit. Heading northward, they hinted by their actions that a private home in New Hampshire, or Campobello, the Roosevelt summer home in New Brunswick, might be their destination. A sea trip, with Canada a point of embarkation, probably will follow.

Green River, Utah, June 18 (AP)—When six intrepid scientists—including two women—push their sturly boats into Green river tomorrow in search of adventure and scientific data the rivermen along the turbulent Colorado will be "pulling" for them.

For two things stand out in the latest of Colorado river expeditions:

1. Botanists Elzada Clover and Lois Jetter of the University of Michigan will be riding the boats—the first time women have joined an expedition down the rumbling river.

HORSES BOOKED FOR ESCANABA

Lehr and Fry Report on Stables Coming to Fair Races

Detroit, June 18. (AP)—Clarence E. Lehr, president of the Detroit Racing association, and Edward J. Fry, Michigan racing commissioner, announced today that they have received assurances from a number of stables that they will ship horses to Escanaba for running races to be held in connection with the Upper Peninsula State Fair August 9 to 14.

Lehr, a former Escanaba resident, said that Charles T. Fisher's Dixiana stable, Louis J. Leppner's Motor City stable and Henry Dattner's string were already pledged for the long trip to the north.

A meeting was held here Friday night at which Judge Joseph A. Murphy, presiding steward and racing director at the fairgrounds, explained a plan which will enable many turfmen to ship to Escanaba. Several large stables, which will be sending their main strength to large tracks, will turn over two or three of their horses to a trainer who will handle divisions of several stables. Under this plan four or five designated trainers may take north 10 or 15 horses apiece, most of them belonging to different stables.

Fry said the rule that forbids one trainer to have more than one horse in a race would be waived at Escanaba in an effort to bolster the cards there.

Big Rural Electric Plant Is Dedicated Near Ubyly, Michigan

Ubyly, Mich., June 18. (AP)—John A. Carmody, national administrator of the rural electrification administration, and Gov. Frank Murphy participated today in the dedication of the $2,000,000 Thumb Electric Co-operative.

The ceremony took place at the co-operative's $288,000 generating plant at the northern edge of Ubyly. Five thousand persons attended.

"The REA," said Carmody, "is a matter of progress versus reaction. Private utilities have said for years that rural electric lines didn't pay. Our goal is good service to the farmers at the lowest possible cost."

"We could have left the development of rural areas to the public utilities," declared Gov. Murphy, "and let the people wait 50 or 60 years. The utilities would have grown richer and kept prices up. The public utilities have speeded up their expansion program since the REA was started."

The daughters of Frank Wilson, of Ubyly, president of the co-operative, Ruth, 11, and Wanda, 6, threw the switch which started the generators. Carmody and the governor pressed buttons which turned on the first lights.

Naval Pilot Lands Without His Wheels

Kansas City, June 18. (AP)—Naval Pilot Robert Slye, whose scout bomber carrying one passenger was "marooned" over an airport for nearly four hours with a jammed landing gear, landed his craft safely today without injury to either occupant.

The plane, both wheels pulled up out of the way, skidded along on the grass at Fairfax airport, then as it lost speed turned up slightly on its nose and came to a stop without serious damage.

Pilot Slye previously had dropped overboard an auxiliary gasoline tank.

The plane circled above the airport from shortly after noon until nearly 4 o'clock.

Washington, June 18. (AP)—The Social Security board said today unemployment benefit programs would be operative in 28 states beginning July 1.

The board said about 16,744,000 workers were covered by unemployment insurance in 25 states and estimated about 2,000,000 more would be added by the three new states.

Not until mid-afternoon did the young couple dress for their "escapes" in an upstairs room of the club. Anne donned a two piece traveling dress of blue crepe and a small blue hat before they slipped away.

Apartment Picked
John and Anne already have selected a Brookline apartment to which to return after their wedding trip. Choosing to let his Harvard diploma chase after him next week as best it can, John has arranged to enter the advertising business. But, to quote him, there will be a leavening of public service activities—although no pursuit of elective office. Anne, a Boston debutante, will keep house.

And the new home of John and Anne already has been blessed, for Mr. Peabody, after concluding the wedding service, prayed that "their house may be a haven of blessing and peace."

From the wedding ceremony, 10-year-old Joan Clark, little sister of the bride, who served as flower girl, emerged as one of the stars. Showing the poise of an adult, with only a slight tremor of the hands displaying her emotion, Joan walked through her part with eyes turned heavenward, drawing many an eye after her.

Two other children were only a bit less prominent. "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, grandson and granddaughter of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, and the children of Mrs. Anna Roosevelt Dall Boettiger, sat wide-eyed and well-behaved, with only "Sistie's" whispered, "How much longer now, please," betraying that she found society weddings not quite so much fun as she had thought.

PLAYLET AT CHURCH

They have heard of Jesus teaching on a hillside not far away and they seek to find him. The climax comes at the end of the day when Amon finds Jesus. He realizes that this is a great adventure and, the quest ended, he leads the children to Jesus. The cast of the playlet is:

In looking back upon the day as a whole, expert witnesses of many a wedding event, were almost at loss to find a flaw. But there was one.

John forgot to kiss the bride—at least he forgot while at the altar.

There was more Farley talk later, when, at the reception he retired to a corner with two other prominent Democrats, Edward J. Flynn, New York secretary of state, and Frank C. Walker, former director of the National Emergency Council.

Among the toasts at the wedding reception was one proposed by John to Mr. Peabody "because today is the fifty-third wedding anniversary of the man who married Anne and I."

debt from 23 billions to 35 billions but 10 billions will be repaid and is being repaid by the countless industries which have borrowed it and by countless communities which have taken advantage of an opportunity never before afforded to secure needed improvements in the enjoyments of their local lives.

Near Depression Bottom
"The net increase of the debt of the United States treasury brought about by this administration, therefore, amounts to but little more than five billion dollars. But during these five years we have doubled the income of agriculture, we have added 20 billion dollars a year to the net income of the American people."

"The net increase in national debt can be paid today with one fourth of the net increase in the income of the American people in the year 1937."

Snell, enlarging on a statement he previously had issued jointly with Senator McNary of Oregon, the senate Republican leader, said unemployment had reached 13,000,000, with another 5,000,000 persons working part time. Business indices, he said, have dropped below those of May, 1933, and are only 11 points above the spot where they lay on the depression's bottom in 1932.

The railroads face financial collapse, "yet the president has permitted congress to adjourn without lifting a finger to ease this grave situation," he said.

Roosevelt Experiment
"Reasons for what has happened in the United States are not hard to find," Snell declared.

"These things have been caused by the blighting hand of the reckless new deal experiment, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. He who in the days of improvement said 'we planned it this way—don't let anybody tell you differently' cannot now shirk the responsibility."

"This depression springs from political, not economic causes. It can be cured only by political action—by taking away from the throat of business the strangling hand of government bureaucracy, punitive taxation and unnecessary, harmful restrictions."

Snell said he feared the "anti-monopoly" investigation ordered by congress "will be made an instrument of further unjustified attacks on legitimate business to divert attention from the failure of the new deal."

Charges of politics in relief appeared certain to claim a major share of attention from the senate campaign expenditures committee.

The committee, Chairman Sheppard said, will give "equal vigorous and thorough investigation" to every complaint it receives about the use of public money for political purposes.

It will go into any state where such a complaint appears to be justified and hold hearings, later recommending prosecution if necessary, but in any event compiling information that will be turned over to the senate for its use if the victor's right to a seat in that body is challenged.

MEASURE NOT CLEAR
Washington, June 18. (AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today many uncertainties characterized the wage-hour bill.

In a special number of its Washington Review, the chamber said the measure now awaiting presidential signature was so largely rewritten in conference "that earlier committee reports and proceedings do not serve to give much clarification."

"Before the provisions of the measure become effective, in the latter part of October, there may be some attempt through regulations or official administrative interpretations to remove some of the uncertainties," it said.

The review said one feature of the bill was its failure to confer express powers to make regulations in any general form.

Questions of "great practical importance," it said, are left to administrative decision. The survey said that "obviously" there was to be much official activity immediately. "for an appropriation of half a million dollars for administrative expenses has already been made, with assurances that enough will be provided in the winter to carry the amount during the first year well over a million dollars."

"In fact, the amount for the first year may go up into the millions."

Child Labor Ban Easy
At least one government bureau figured, however, that a part of the bill would be fairly simple to enforce.

Miss Beatrice McConnell, chief of the industrial division of the children's bureau in the labor department, said enforcement of the child labor ban would be a relatively easier job than it was twenty years ago when the federal government made a brief attempt at it.

The wage-hour law prohibits and penalizes the movement in interstate commerce of goods produced under "oppressive child labor conditions."

Congress passed a child labor law in 1916. The children's bureau administered it for ten months until the supreme court ruled it unconstitutional.

Miss McConnell said many state child labor laws had been enacted since then and that public opinion and the attitude of employers had become more favorable toward governmental regulation of employment for minors.

The children's bureau will set up machinery to administer the child labor section of the wage-hour law during the 120 days be-

Kansas Stockyards Case May Be Back In Supreme Court

Washington, June 18. (AP)—The Kansas City stockyards rate case—litigation which recently involved Secretary Wallace and Chief Justice Hughes in a legal feud—may find itself back in the lap of the supreme court.

A three-judge federal district court at Kansas City refused today to grant a government motion designed to prevent distribution to commission men of approximately $600,000 in fees impounded in the case.

Immediately, Martin G. White, the agriculture department solicitor, announced that the government planned to appeal again to the high tribunal. This would be the third time the case has been before that court.

The case centers around reduced commission rates Secretary Wallace ordered into effect at the livestock market in 1933. The supreme court recently declared the rate order invalid on the ground that commission men had not been given an opportunity to make exceptions to and rebut a trial examiner's report recommending the rate reduction.

Congress Awards Compensation To Escanaba Woman
As a result of a bill passed in congress June 14, Mrs. Mary Way of Escanaba will be compensated by the government for injuries received three years ago when her automobile was struck by a CCC truck.

The bill appropriating benefits for Mrs. Way was sponsored by Senator Prentiss Brown of St. Ignace and Congressman John Lucke of Escanaba.

Barnstorming Ship Crashes; Two Killed

Fort Wayne, Ind., June 18. (AP)—Two youths were killed at Hoagland, near here, today in the crash of a barnstorming airplane.

The dead are John Kraft, 18, and William Koenemann, 17, both of Hoagland, passengers in the plane. Ralph Davis, 26, of Fort Wayne, the pilot, suffered critical head injuries.

Witnesses said Davis had been flying passengers throughout the day. The accident occurred about a mile from the pasture which he was using for a landing field. He turned into a steep right bank and the plane suddenly went out of control and fell 500 feet to the ground. Edgar Doerhman of Hoagland, a passing motorist, said the falling plane barely missed his automobile.

Chinese Children Die As Japs Bomb American Mission

Peiping, China, June 18. (AP)—Reliable advices received here today said two Japanese planes bombed the American Southern Baptist mission at Pingtu, in eastern Shantung province, last Friday, killing an undetermined number of Chinese women and children.

The seven Americans attached to the mission were said to have escaped unhurt.

Pingtu is about 50 miles northwest of Tsingtao, Shantung province of the Yellow Sea which the Japanese took on January 10.

The compound of the bombed American mission was marked with six American flags. The weather in the vicinity Friday was clear and visibility was good.

NIMS TELLS OF RELIEF PURGE

Those Earning More Than Average Are Dropped From WPA Lists

Elimination from the WPA project personnel in the state of those individuals who, by spare time work other than WPA, are earning more per month, on the average, than the so-called monthly security wage, was stressed by Louis M. Nims, state WPA director, in his talk to about 135 delegates to the third annual upper peninsula conference of the Michigan Municipal League, at Iron Mountain.

Commenting at the outset, on the consideration by congress of the $50,000,000 "discretionary fund" for relief administration, he said that indications are the allotment to the states for WPA purposes, may make possible an increase of from $5 to $7 per man month for labor on WPA projects.

For instance, where a municipality or any sponsoring unit is granted a WPA project, it is entitled—under present regulations—to an amount of $5 for every man month of relief labor involved (in addition to the security wage) to apply on materials, rentals, etc. After July 1, Nims said, this allowance may be increased to $7, and he added he would not be surprised if the figure is eventually raised to $9.

Must Report On Income

As to the checkup on income of WPA personnel outside of WPA labor, Nims said, a quarterly statement is now required of every individual on WPA in an effort to eliminate those who do not actually need the relief labor.

The objective, he said, is "to discourage the application for WPA on the part of those who don't need it," so that available funds may be distributed over a greater proportion of actual need.

"That isn't as easy as it sounds," Nims said. "We now have about 190,000 people on WPA in Michigan. You can imagine the job to try to get 190,000 people to turn in quarterly reports on how much money they are making outside of WPA. Nevertheless, the state WPA is charged with a checkup of these people every three months. We hope, through this method, to cut down the rolls."

Nims stressed that it is the function of the federal government to "put men to work and not to take care of direct relief cases." That, he said, is properly the responsibility of local and state authorities. "And the care of direct relief has always been—and will always be, as far as I am concerned—a local responsibility."

Michigan Hard Hit

Michigan, the director said, has been the hardest hit, industrially, of any state in the union. The automobile industry, with all its allied activities, has been seriously affected, he said. And that situation, he added, is reflected in every community in the state.

Again, he said, Michigan has come into some prominence as a tourist center—yet, with the movement of new automobiles retarded, that, too, leaves its mark upon the state. There will not, he predicted, be an influx of tourist visitors in the volume of other years, and that considerable source of seasonal income will be greatly reduced.

Going back to relief legislation pending in congress, Nims called attention to a phrase repeatedly stressed therein—the term "needy unemployed." "The act," he said, "carefully avoids any reference to the person 'on relief.' That person is now one of the 'needy unemployed,' and, in the terms of the act, he does not have to first accept direct relief in order to be eligible for WPA."

Definition of Need

This, the director said, places with the state responsibility for determining what, actually, constitutes need. "My definition of need," Nims said, "is the case where the total family income from all sources will not permit a decent living."

However, Nims went on, there is a "great deal of confusion" throughout the state as to what actually constitutes need in the various sections. There are, in fact, he said, as many different conceptions of need as there are counties in the state, all governed and prompted by economic conditions within the respective areas.

Nims said he believes the outlook is "brightening." Automobile dealers are reporting a more liberal schedule of acceptances on used cars, he said. Factories are postponing previously predicted shutdowns. "These, at least," he said, "are the reports which reach me, and all I can do is to depend upon these predictions."

Anne Clark told the photographers she was glad to see them. And then she and John Roosevelt said they would do anything the photographers asked—if it was within reason. And they let the photographers give the orders for four hours in the glaring sun.

Nothing except the fact that they were graciously received and that the young couple appreciated their job and point of view enough to cooperate graciously. GAS UTILITY SERVICE

Of all the advantages of gas for cooking, there is one that is so much taken for granted few people ever give a thought to it. It is the day-in and day-out dependability of your Gas Utility service. For one thing, the supply of this perfect fuel is so constant that few people can remember an occasion when it was not ready to respond with its instant heat at any hour of the day or night.

All gas appliances sold today are so modern in design and so sturdy in construction, that their service without repairs or attention is normally reckoned in years. Yet, there is always this comforting thought — no matter whether your equipment is old or new, your Gas Utility stands back of it just as solidly as in the case of the fuel they supply you. Crews of trained service men are ready to respond to your call day or night. And seldom, if ever, is there any charge except for replacement parts for this minute-man service.

So remember this. Your Gas Utility is sincerely anxious to help you get the greatest possible satisfaction and economy from your gas equipment. If, for any reason, you believe your range, water heater, refrigerator, or house-heating equipment needs adjustment — call your Gas Utility.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

News photographers—not easily impressed—are singing the praises of a young couple who good-naturedly did as they were told for four hours and a thousand pictures.

The couple is the about-to-be-married John Roosevelt and Anne Lindsay Clark. It's interesting to consider what it was that made the photographers leave the Clark home saying that taking these pre-wedding pictures was fun. That Anne Clark was the most "charming, gracious, considerate and agreeable" (a large order) subject they ever told to smile. And that both young people were "swell" and "regular."

It is interesting because all this praise was for nothing more than good manners—though not the kind of good manners that most young people are concerned about acquiring. As a general thing boys and girls of high school and college are desperately afraid of making themselves conspicuous by little mistakes—and not at all concerned with the real courtesy of considering other people's comfort.

So they may be surprised to find out that what really impresses even the hard-to-impress is real, honest to goodness consideration.

Anne Clark told the photographers she was glad to see them. And then she and John Roosevelt said they would do anything the photographers asked—if it was within reason. And they let the photographers give the orders for four hours in the glaring sun.

When it was all over they said they had gotten a kick out of it all, wished the men luck, and shook hands all the way around.

Theatres

AT THE DELFT

Of all the preliminary training required of a skilled actor, one would suspect that osteopathy would be of the least aid to a career before the cameras. Yet Alan Hale found his knowledge of the subject of vital importance to 20th Century-Fox studios, where he won a prominent role in "Four Men and a Prayer," romantic adventure film.

Loretta Young heads the featured cast, with Richard Greene, sensational new star-discovery, in the male romantic lead. George Sanders, David Niven and C. Aubrey Smith have important roles in the Darryl F. Zanuck production, opening today at the Delft Theatre.

AT THE MICHIGAN

Acclaimed by aviation experts the most authentic aviation story ever filmed, "Test Pilot," starring Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy comes to the Michigan Theatre today.

Based on an original story by Lieutenant - Commander Frank Wead, the story is steeped in colorful traditions of the men who are building the future of aviation, test pilots who try new ships before they are approved.

War on Marihuana

GROWING concern over the spread of the use of marihuana among young people of the state is being expressed by police and other public officials.

The Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police recently launched a crusade against this narcotic evil, and urges officers and the general public to be on the lookout for the marihuana weed, which thrives in Michigan climate.

Smoking marihuana causes varying reactions in different individuals but in all cases it causes moral decay and character degeneration.

Capital and Employment

A RULE which cannot be hailed as a new discovery, but which has been given added authority by the developments of the last few years, is that it takes capital to create employment.

This rule is at the base of any understanding of what is meant by confidence. Public spokesmen, writers, even the newspaper caricaturists recently have harped on the idea of confidence with a capital C.

There has been an alarming shrinkage of capital invested in the important industries of the Nation in the years since the Great Depression began in the last quarter of 1929.

One of the oldest observations of the business world is that money begets money. Even the Parable of the Talents was used to point that tale and the man who did not employ his talent but buried it was rebuked.

The conclusion which many students have reached is that the surest method of increasing employment and bringing about a fresh forward surge toward recovery is to release the springs of capital.

Another important element in the situation was that private businessmen had difficulty in borrowing money at the banks. The banks had not recovered from the stage fright they had suffered at the time of the general collapse which followed the financial difficulties in Europe.

Confidence is an intangible thing. As an illustration, while the market value of securities on the exchange has declined more than 20 per cent in approximately the last year, the national income has declined only about 8 per cent.

income still is there, while the confidence value, the stock market value has slumped badly. The general feeling is that the most effective move toward re-employment and recovery now is a loosening of the purse-strings of investors.

Greatness in the Ranks

BECAUSE all men seem to be born with some mechanism which periodically produces an impulse to guide others, words directed to "followers" rarely find any listeners.

Consequently the chances are that recent remarks of the president of an eastern college died in his listeners' minds before the echoes died on the air.

Obviously, there are no leaders without followers. The leader is powerless without allegiance, and he is at every follower's mercy.

There is little individual glory for the follower, and this is a pity in these times of spectacular leaders. Man thrives on dreams of glory, and if every man could be made to recognize the power that is his simply as a follower, and every leader's and follower's dependence upon him, more great leaders would rise and there would be more following done in the right direction.

"To have great poets," Walt Whitman reminded, "we must have great audiences, too."

Sohlberg Recognized

GOVERNOR MURPHY has increased the size of the Michigan Swedish Tercentenary Commission in order to pay recognition to A. Theodore Sohlberg of Gladstone for his many years of work in the field of Swedish-American history.

Mr. Sohlberg will serve as a delegate to the Swedish Tercentenary celebration at Wilmington, Del., along with the other members of the commission, which also includes Dr. C. Albert Lund of Escanaba.

The Gladstone man has been active in various Swedish organizations, and has been spent much time in the study of the activities and achievements of Swedish-Americans in this country.

Heart-to-Heart

WHAT the world needs is more public officials with the exuberance and devotion to duty and public displayed by Joseph F. Gallagher, postmaster of Philadelphia.

Postmaster Gallagher, a go-getter with a poet's soul, has mailed to all his customers an extraordinary missive of his own composition. "June, the month of romance and graduations," it begins.

Gallagher brightens the Philadelphia scene considerably, and at the same time makes the citizen feel a lot more chummy with his government than he feels in most communities. Other officials in other towns could spread a lot of sunshine these days by following his example.

WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

Governor Murphy, Senator Brown and the Michigan members of the house canvassed the Michigan political situation at Washington last week, with results apparently satisfactory to all concerned.

With this Washington conference as a cue and the dismountment of State Chairman Fry by the elective state officials, it may be expected that there will in future be less audible fault finding with the governor.

If the recent flare up by the state chairman and other evidence that the governor is something less than 100 per cent popular with the party leaders led by his welfare were not at stake the President would be less likely to make this visit.

World Affairs Reviewed

The recent visit of King Vittorio Emanuele to Libya to attend Italian war games—coupled with maneuvers on the other side of the border in French Tunisia—shifted the beam of world interest again toward north Africa.

The Italian dependency of Libya, points out a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society, faces southern Europe across the Mediterranean, a little off-center on that strategic sea lane, from the Strait of Gibraltar to the Suez Canal.

Like successive acts in a perennial drama civilizations have risen and waned along these shores for more than 3,000 years. A round-dozen centuries before Christ, seagoing Phoenicians built the trading post of Utica, in what is now Tunisia.

Carthage came of age in power and wealth, till Rome, in 146 B. C., reduced it by fire and sword to a blackened corpse. On the ruins of Carthage rose a Roman city, with typical Forum, baths, theater, shops and temples.

This period lasted some 400 years. Then the Visigoths sacked Rome, and the African governor, in an attempt to secure a powerful ally, appealed to the Vandals.

In time, armies from the East conquerors, and a Byzantine order held away for a century or so, only to be supplanted in turn by hordes of invading Moslem Arabs. Destroyed in 698 by these Mohammedans, Carthage never recovered.

Slave trade and piracy, in addition to conquest and invasion, long added their sinister note to the turbulent history of north Africa. For centuries the English, Dutch, French, Sardinians, and Americans took turns attacking pirate strongholds in this part of the world.

—AMERICAN FLAG ONCE RAISED— Slave trade and piracy, in addition to conquest and invasion, long added their sinister note to the turbulent history of north Africa.

Today, across the top of Africa from west to east, float the flags of four European nations—if one counts the British emblem in Egypt which only in 1936 saw the end of military occupation as such.

Divided politically, these territories cover Morocco, under French and Spanish protectorate, the Spanish portion being a mere slice of land extending from Gibraltar; Algeria, a French colony; Tunisia, under French protectorate; Libya, Italian dependency; and the Kingdom of Egypt, the British protectorate over which expired in February, 1922, the Sultan becoming King two weeks later.

From the Atlantic Ocean to the Red Sea, north Africa unrolls a continental panorama that ranges from snow-tipped peaks of the Atlas Mountains in the northwest, to salty, sandy deserts of the interior, on to Egypt's lush valley of the Nile.

Even more striking are contrasts found among humanity itself. Here are white men and brown; Mohammedans, Jews, and Christians.

Through arched passages, jammed with shops, foreign business men in sack suits brush against turbaned Arabs in white burnoose, and Semitic merchants in neat black skull-caps.

In open-air cafes, Moorish officers in vivid costumes sip their drinks, along with languid colonists tanned by plantation life. Human interest slithers by in the person of a barefoot beggar, pleading for a coin from the rich tourist; while next in the procession may be a slim Arab girl, wearing a fortune in gaudy silver jewelry.

Crowded bazaars, native quarters, and mosques and minarets outlined against the sky, remind the visitor that many of Africa's old ways persist.

The situation in Europe seems to be permanently tense. What you might call past, present, and a terrible future tense.

A traffic expert urges pedestrians to wear white clothing after dark. Something appropriate—like a winding sheet.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—For the past forty-one weeks, Helen Hayes has been barnstorming the United States and Canada as the piquant queen in "Victoria Regina," and she is about to quit for a well-deserved rest.

She has put in a great deal of mileage; 13,335 miles to be exact, and they have been traversed by train, plane, auto and ship. She doesn't include among these miles the week-end distances she journeyed for hurried visits with her infant daughter, Mary, at her estate in Nyack, N. Y.

And the glamorous itinerant has kept a day-by-day file of impressions. After getting around to 47 American and Canadian cities, Miss Hayes is willing to be quoted by the Chamber of Commerce of Salt Lake City, Utah, that this is the most picturesque and beautiful community she visited. San Francisco may be saddened to hear that it runs a close second in Miss Hayes' estimation. Oregon, says the diminutive star, was the most scenic state along her travels.

As a dyed-in-the-wool trouper, she can expertly testify that the most attractive, comfortable and pleasant theater played anywhere on the American circuit is the Hartman Theater, Columbus, O.

Hayes This and That

She remembers these figures: The longest railroad jump she has made since setting out in September of last year were the 1079 miles between Salt Lake City and Seattle. The most memorable cash receipts for a single performance—the $9452 that the citizens of Des Moines, Ia., paid one evening to see her; and the $33,267 for a week in Philadelphia.

Here are other travel mementoes from Helen Hayes' notebook: The most breathtaking outdoor sights she saw were the Bouchard Gardens of Victoria, B. C., the Columbia River Highway in Oregon and the Bonneville Dam in the same state. On the industrial side, her greatest thrill came during a visit to the Ford motor plant in Detroit. Horticulturally, she stands by the Bluebonnets, state flower of Texas, as her favorites.

The city she anticipated most on the 41-week hop was New Orleans and it did not disappoint her.

Here are the "best food" tips she has jotted down: (1) the fried chicken and hot biscuits at the Claridge Hotel in Memphis, (2) the oysters Rockefeller and pompano at Antoine's in New Orleans, and (3) any dinner menu at the Blue Lantern tea room in Philadelphia.

Quotations

One new-style 98-cent collar for which a desire is created among women all over the country would, in the aggregate of sales do more to restore business than a hundred million dollars dumped into the railroads.

Chemical warfare, as evidenced by World War statistics, is the most effective method of using force yet devised by man, with relatively light destruction of life and property and the minimum of human suffering and after effects.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington, June 19.—This summer the United States will be overrun with congressmen seeking re-election. From Passamaquoddy to Pasadena, the fellows whom Ambrose Bierce once described as "members of the Lower House in this world, with small hope of promotion in the next" will be following, sweating, baby-kissing and generally behaving in a noisy and unsightly fashion.

For the sake of the public peace and the serenity of their own minds, it's too bad that other congressmen don't learn the system of the honorable George Holden Tinkham, representative of the tenth Massachusetts district for the past-twenty-four years. This summer, Tinkham will make no speeches, buss no babies. He will go abroad, perhaps to England, to study the perfidy of Ailbion; perhaps to Africa, to slaughter lions; perhaps to Ispahan, to purchase Persian rugs. And he will return only to see the count of his own large majority.

George Tinkham is one of the sights and mysteries of the capital. His long gray beard, his beady eye, the constant disarray of his dress—these give him an aspect of amiable eccentricity, which is only increased by his habit of consuming three tenderloin steaks at a sitting, and leading the hotel orchestra with his fork between mouthfuls. But these are the obvious Tinkham peculiarities.

What everyone wants to know about Tinkham is, how does he do it? How does he, a Republican, carry a normally Democratic district, carry it by an increasing majority at each election, and without visiting it, shaking hands in it or speaking in it?

TINKHAM SATISFIES

The answer to this puzzling question is to be found in the Tinkham system, summed up in the Tinkham motto, "Tinkham and Service." Other New Englanders have been ingenious. The late Representative Augustus Peabody Garner for example constituted himself chief mourner of Essex county endorsing himself to his voters by attending their relatives' funerals. But the Tinkham system is the principal monument of Yankee ingenuity.

It has its headquarters in an inconspicuous office in the Tinkham district in Boston, where Miss Gertrude Ryan, a kindly, pleasant-mannered Irish woman, presides over a corps of stenographers and file-clerks. To this central office of the system come from sixty to a hundred people a day, all to see Miss Ryan.

All of them want something—a job, a favor, information, help with a pension of simply friendly advice. All of them get what they want, or a full and polite explanation of why they can't get it. Jobs are hard to get these days, for a Republican like Tinkham. But Miss Ryan understands the anti-patronage game, which consists in sending job-seekers to your already harassed opponents, with expressions of the most mournful regret at your inability to be helpful.

Miss Ryan has been with Tinkham thirty years and she knows how to send the voters away satisfied. The name of each satisfied voter is inscribed on a "favor list," and, shortly before election, a postcard is sent to every person on the list. The postcard merely says, "we have tried to serve you. If you are satisfied, please help us by getting out the vote for Tinkham." This is all there is to the Tinkham system, but it works so well that in 1936 the Tinkham majority was the biggest ever.

HOW TO BE HAPPY

In the old days, there were more refinements to the Tinkham system. Many Irish like in the Tinkham district and when he was less sure of himself he used to please his Irish voters by hauling Bishop Cannon over the coals. For their sakes, he still does make a speech or so at each session, twisting the British lion's tail until it hurts.

But, with the help of an efficient Washington branch office, the Tinkham system really runs itself. Its owner and inventor is left to his own happy devices. He can sit all day in the corridor of the House, looking a little like the ancient Mariner who stoppeth one in three, tossing his beard in energetic denunciation of the New Deal. He can eat his steak and drink his burgundy every evening and retire at last to sleep among his trophies, with nothing to trouble his mind.

He loves his apartment and clings to it obstinately although the hotel in which it's situated now houses a government agency. He is proud of his terrifying collection of the skins of large carnivorous animals. He enjoys his daily round of duties. Altogether his life is a splendid demonstration of how to be happy—though a congressman.

THE MEDICINE FOR TROUBLE I've been feeling pretty blue; Have you ever had 'em? Well, I guess they're nothing new, Bothered even Adam— But I found a medicine For my troubles, neighbor— I sat down and buckled in With my daily labor.

Try it sometime when you've got Feelings that are dizzy; Buckle in, no matter what, Just so you are busy. All the devils of despair In the shadow lurking Seldom bother you with care If they find you working.

Improved Landing Fields Needed, Says Col. Evans

That the state's airport construction program, in progress during the past several years, is "only started," and that "it is necessary that our landing facilities be improved continually in order to keep up with the facilities in other tourist and resort states," was the statement of Col. Floyd Evans, director of Michigan's aeronautical department, at the conference session of the Michigan Municipal League in Iron Mountain.

Carl Hanke, mayor of Hancock and candidate on the Republican ticket for auditor general, was chairman of the gathering.

Colonel Evans stressed, first, that the portion of any statewide program that is of vital interest to municipalities is, of course, the cost and maintenance.

"There has been in progress during the past eight years," he said, "an extensive aviation program sponsored by the state aeronautics department. The cost of this program to local communities has been relatively small, however, when the fact is considered that airports are in but very few cases self-supporting. Even a small investment, with financial conditions as they have been during the past several years, is a serious problem."

By far the greater portion of funds invested in airports construction in the state, he said, has been from federal sources, mainly through the several relief organizations. Airport construction lends itself admirably to relief work, he added, since it is possible to utilize a large number of men in a relatively small area, thus simplifying the transportation and supervision problems.

60 Projects Active
The state department, Evans said, has received approval of 82 projects under WPA, 60 of which have been opened and the work completed, or still in progress. He also traced the part which the state must be provided and administration buildings and waiting rooms erected. Runways must be surfaced and navigational aids must be installed. All of this work, of course, cannot be done overnight, but steps should be taken to develop these necessary improvements progressively.

Work is now in progress on new and existing fields at Ironwood, Escanaba, Engadine, St. Ignace, Cheboygan, Rogers City, Harrisville, Northport, Houghton Lake, Mt. Pleasant, Ludington and Muskegon, in the northern part of the state, the director stated. "Our most urgent need at present, at existing airports," he added, "is the erection of hangar facilities. Airplanes are costly and deteriorate rapidly out of doors. Owners hesitate to go into areas where there are no housing facilities."

Evans asked the cooperation of all local officials in encouraging the provision of added facilities. He cited that while the aviation industry in the United States is "a very small one," the 1937 business was 50 per cent over the preceding year and totaled more than $115,000,000. The air transport business last year, he added, broke all existing records, the carriers accommodating 1,270,000 passengers, 9,000,000 pounds of express and 13,000,000 pound miles of mail.

Today, he said, there are about 18,000 licensed pilots in the United States and about 40,000 student pilots. It is estimated this number will be increased by one-third at the end of this year.

"There is a good possibility," he said, "that some federal aid for the construction and maintenance of airports will be forthcoming, similar to the aid that has long been provided by the federal government for the construction of highways in cooperation with state highway departments."

Sees More Business
"These services," he stated, "are sure to bring more business into our state, but our landing facilities are not yet entirely satisfactory for this type of equipment. Our airports must be enlarged to accommodate these larger planes; more hangar facilities

Forest Service To Simplify Keeping Of Its Cost Accounts

Escanaba, the headquarters of the Hiawatha and Marquette National forests has been chosen for the site of an effort to simplify the service's cost accounting system. Beginning July 1 the accounting for the two forests will be centralized here. The new system will be on an experimental basis at first.

Shelley E. Schoonover, fiscal agent, and Herbert A. Edd, auditor, both of the regional office at Milwaukee are in Escanaba now working out ways and means of setting up the system. In the past, the cost records for each forest have been kept separately and the new system is designed to eliminate duplication where possible as well as provide more ready access to the records by centralization.

Willard G. Jones, in charge of nurseries, has been in this district during the past week making a check of the Wyman nursery at Manistique.

P. A. Wohlen, forest supervisor here, has announced that Carl E. Noesner, junior forester in charge of fire control planning for the past year has been transferred to Duluth where he will be in charge of the same kind of work on the Superior National forest.

QUALITY RUGS

Long wearing wool rugs should have a minimum of sizing on the back, relying on tightness of weave and quality for body and firmness; the pile should be thick and of flexible live wool; the colors deep and clear. American Orientals derive their sheen from a chemical process and should be cleaned only by a reliable rug cleaner.

The Romans noted the folly of growing the same crops on the same land for several consecutive years, but attention first was called to the value of crop rotation by Dickson, of Edinburgh, in 1777.

The body of Mrs. James Duffus was shipped last evening from the Allo funeral home in this city to the Hoffman funeral home in Milwaukee. Services will be held at Kneeland, Wis., and burial will be made there.

Wisconsin Fox Breeders Hold Conference at Milwaukee

Frank W. Andrew of the Delta Fox Farm at Groos is attending the conference of the Wisconsin Fox and Fur Breeder's association which is being held at the Schroeder Hotel in Milwaukee this week. As speakers referred to circular charts and graphs to bolster facts and figures concerning methods of feeding and marketing fur bearers, ranchers sat amidst displays of meat grinders, aluminum feeding utensils, pen effects and horse meat preparations.

Dr. J. E. Hunter, Fort Wayne, Ind., pleaded with breeders to watch the diets for their animals. He cautioned them to adhere to scientific feeding schedules supplied by commercial firms to prevent mineral and vitamin deficiencies.

Prices Drop Explained
Reasons for a slump in this year's market price of mink and fox pelts were explained by Joseph S. Sterling, Lake Placid, N. Y. He attributed the low price to the fact that too many pelts were "dumped" on the market early in the season. He advocated a distributive marketing plan.

Prof. E. G. Hastings, chairman of the department of bacteriology, University of Wisconsin, discussed benefits to ranchers from research in the field of fur bearing animals.

Officers Re-elected
The national association re-elected its officers. They are Dr. L. J. O'Reilly, Merrill, Wis., president; Haven Sawyer, Bangor, Me., Dr. S. C. Moore, Cadillac, Mich., and Arthur Patrick, Torrington, Wyo., vice presidents; Joseph Sterling, Lake Placid, N. Y., treasurer, and Miss Opal Rux, Wausau, Wis., secretary.

New directors chosen include Harley Wittig, Green Bay, Wis., and H. O. McKim, Burlington, Ia. J. J. Chastek, Glencoe, Minn., Moore and Sawyer were renamed members of the executive committee.

This Man, Joe Murray

BY WILLIAM CORCORAN

Copyright, 1938, by William Corcoran; NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOE MURRAY—lived new places, new jobs, new girls.
HELEN—fell in love—hard—once.
TERRY MALLOW—found love—and kept it!

Yesterday: One crisis follows another when Terry is laid off and then Joe is out as the ship yards close. It looks like the sun is going down forever.

CHAPTER XVII
Terry sent him money out of what had been saved instantly she heard from him. It was rail-road fare, in case he lacked it. Come home! Come home, come home this minute to Terry!

He went around with the money in his pocket, thinking, not answering. What he was thinking you might know without being told. Sinister thoughts, dangerous thoughts. Both of them jobless. Their home, finished. He back home again, back to the old home, a burden and a drain on them. She returning to her home, to the grim servitude it was. He would "call on her," visit her in that hostile, triumphant household, while they begrudged him the air he breathed there.

No! He would not! Once that had a meaning. Once he came bringing something; he had a strength and he shared it. There was a danger, and he averted it. There was a small gay needful one, and he had willingly enough done for her what there was to do. There was no more any meaning in it, unless it be the measure of his uselessness and his vain conceit.

There was a boiling and a bursting in Joe Murray. A berserk surging of the bonds of impotence. Be he wrong, be right, he could not go back. There was no clear duty to guide him, no sure responsibility to hold him. He did not scorn Terry's pleading, but he had no means to grant her wish, to keep her at all. Life had taken her from him. If, in the ultimate shuffle and final deal, she was lost to him... it were better for her. Even to Tommy Withers, who had money and substance, and whom Terry, now that she was a woman firmly on her feet, could surely and adequately handle. Even unto Tommy Withers...

Joe put the money, excepting five dollars, into an envelope with a note saying he was heading west to no known destination, and he wrote Terry's name and address on the envelope and mailed it. Then he went down to the railroad yards in the dusk and waited. He waited an hour, and swung aboard an empty box car pulling out in a freight train heading west.

It was that night Terry arrived at his boarding house, to find him gone...

And yet another time the Murrys at home were to hear from their Joe from all parts of the nation. Infrequently, meagerly, word came from him, rarely with any real news, never with an address to reply to. He wrote merely well, still going, dutifully. He never made mention of Terry. How he lived no man can tell, even those who have done it themselves.

It is one of those small miracles of existence. He found a vast company over the land performing the miracle daily, even as he. He learned from them quickly what little he did not know.

The way of the yards and jungles: a tiny fire in a gully or under a culvert in the rain with a battered pot boiling... scraps of food garnered and begged and pilfered... the company of castoffs of every degree through the night, huddled, with newspapers stuffed in the clothes, close to the blaze. In the morning a slow freight trundling through, or a long tree on the highway, or a few speeding motorists risking a lift. It hasted were any matter, you might not wait till morning; you might take the desperate and dying instantly, of capture and a beating and a sentence, by riding the blind on a passenger train flying on express schedule through the night. The yard bulls ignored the empties on a freight, but they were death on passenger trains. And then when you arrived, hopping off as the limited slowed down approaching the yard, all the chance was pointless, because the new town was no different from the last.

The way of the cities: the charities, bitter as gall to the man who had walked where he killed in his strength, and was weak now with hunger... the streets, where hard faces rebuffed so awkward a plea for a cigaret, a meal... the agencies, where spiders revealed in the dust and not even a pick and shovel stiff could take any more for as much as a dollar a day. And then the cities and towns where they accosted you and asked questions and spotted you by the way you talked, and grew grimly hostile, as if you were a foreigner and an enemy, and gave you one hour to get out of town back yonder where you came from. The towns where they asked no questions at all, but hauled you in on sight, with a poke and a clip, and jammed through hearing and sentence, and put you to work for punishment with foul food and no pay... when all a man wanted was work, honest work, and a chance to keep body and soul together.

It was not easy to keep body and soul together, with the cards stacked against you. Once on the national highway in a central state Joe approached a roadside gas station and lunch stand just about dusk. He had pulled out of the city behind him early in the afternoon; it was an important city, and the dusk was a grayness streaked with the streaming light of incessant traffic, cars that whirled upon one blindly and were gone in a blow of wind and fumes and humming tires on concrete.

The city had been cold to him; it did not matter. No place mattered. The country was cold to a man too, but a man could try. Rebuffs did not matter; they bounced off, and a man went on. Joe braced the restaurant keeper for something to eat. It was a woman, an elderly woman, gray-haired and busy and thin, with the look of one who has raised her children and seen them go.

and now bids her time with her patient husband. They were farming people; they ran the stand and the station between tending the fields and the stock.

Joe stood in the doorway of the tiny shack housing the restaurant and spoke his ritual, and he was surprised at its reception. The woman straightened up from the stove, the old pot-bellied stove on which was lavished for mere heat lengths of beautiful native oak and hickory. She looked at Joe quickly, almost guiltily in all seeming, and she told him to come in, to sit down, near the heat, to wait and she'd find something for him.

Joe sat down. He was oddly embarrassed. More oddly, the woman seemed embarrassed. She was brusque, slashing around the little place, talking about the weather and poor conditions, rattling dishes. There was a feeling in the room... a curious feeling like a presence that you could not place.

"There!" the old woman told him, slapping down a deep dish of stew savory and full of nourishment. "I guess you can make out on that."

"I guess I can," said Joe in a certain tone. "I'm mighty grateful."

She made an indefinite sound, and he fell to eating without delay. She sat down in a rocking chair near the fire and watched him. He looked at her once or twice, and was again embarrassed. She watched him eat. There was something, and he did not know what it was.

"I suppose you have a lot of fellows asking for a meal?" Joe said by way both of appreciation and conversation.

"Fellows?" she said, and her breath kind of caught. "Yes. And girls too." Her eyes looked away and she stared at the glowing stove with a certain bleakness.

"They're always coming, and I've fed so many of them. I can't feed them all. It ain't humanly possible. They come and I turn them away. I harden my heart and I turn them away."

Joe looked at her, wondering. She got up without saying anything more and went into the other room to her cook stove, where she shook down the fire vigorously and put on coal and shoveled ashes.

He sat there in the warmth, thinking, watching the gray mist. The old woman came back presently and asked him if he'd have more, but he said no, he'd had plenty and was grateful. She gave him a sack of tobacco and cigaret papers, and she smiled. He thanked her, wishing he could say something more. Then he went on. He saw her watching him from the window as he went up the road.

He went on, alone.

KITCHEN TAKES ON NEW IMPORT

Smartly Decorated Kitchens Stress Order and Harmony

Most people now regard the kitchen as important decoratively as any room in the house. Into it the family brings their after-theatre guests for a midnight raid on the ice-box, and at the cocktail party or informal buffet supper it often becomes a popular center of attraction.

Smartly decorated kitchens stress order and harmony as well as picturesque attractiveness. If the room is small, it is often advisable to paint walls, cabinet and wood work the same color, which gives a unified effect and adds to the apparent size. White—not a dead white, but one with a hint of yellow or rose—makes an excellent setting for gay curtains, shining pots and pans, colorful pottery, and the red tomatoes, yellow carrots and green lettuce which may be piled upon sink or vegetable rack. Favorite wall colors, also, are pale spring green, bright yellow and light orange.

It is well to think of the floor covering in choosing a color for the walls. A light green wall is effective with deep green linoleum, and salmon-tinted walls are good with terra cotta floor coverings. Painted floors, often found in old-fashioned kitchens, are now more practical than ever, because with modern fillers, paints and waterproof varnish, a smooth and quickly cleaned surface is possible. The baseboard may be painted to agree with the floor rather than the walls; then discolorations from cleaning the floor are less apparent. In painting old kitchen walls it is always necessary first to thoroughly clean off the grease film caused by cooking vapors. This is done by washing them with a strong solution of washing soda or by the use of a special powder obtainable at paint stores for cleaning paint. A good grade of glossy paint or waterproof varnish is advisable, for kitchen walls need more frequent cleaning than those of other rooms.

Use of Mirror Makes Garden Look Larger

The small garden enclosed by a brick or stone wall may be given the appearance of spaciousness through the use of mirrors. Glass panels will give the appearance of a garden beyond. Careful installation and tightly leaded rims will protect the mirrors against winter storms.

WIDE CORNICES
If your house has a wide cornice or a wide overhanging roof, it would probably be a good thing to reduce the overhang. These wide cornices or overhangs were often put on small houses during the past several years and many are out of scale with the size of the building. They are really too heavy a feature to put into small houses. This particularly applies to houses of English or Colonial tradition, where the close cornice is a part of the design.

PLASTER BASEMENT
By plastering the ceiling of his basement on metal lath, the home owner secures a certain benefit and resistance to the spread of fire from that portion of the house. In addition, it will greatly improve the appearance of the basement.

INSULATION
If you do not use your attic space, place your insulation on the ceiling of the rooms below or between the joists there. If placed on the roof joists, there will be loss of heat in winter by the necessity of warming the air in the attic space.

Corner Cabinet

The Early American treatment of pine paneled walls in a room often allows of unusual, practical and interesting book shelves or corner cabinets. In this dining room a tall corner cabinet was built from pine boards to match the walls. There is a cupboard below with two doors.

Plumbing Systems Are Divided Into Three Important Parts

A plumbing system is divided into three parts, all of approximately equal importance. To the layman the fixtures are better known and are items that come in for first consideration when building a house or when contemplating the modernization of an existing house. But even the finest of fixtures cannot render the service they are capable of unless the supply and waste piping are correctly installed and adequate for the needs of the system.

Defects in supply piping frequently will result in an inadequate supply of water at fixtures, and defective waste piping will often cause a stoppage at the fixtures.

In designing a plumbing system for a new house the plumber will first total the water consumption for all fixtures. The capacity of piping should be sufficient to allow the use of all fixtures simultaneously, otherwise some of the faucets will give off only a discouraging dribble when heavy use is being made of water. To guard against this, pipe capacity should exceed the all-fixture-use volume.

Hidden piping should be of highest grade, as it is costly to replace or repair. In the usual two-story house there is approximately 300 feet of such piping concealed in walls and under flooring. Obviously it pays to have this concealed part of the plumbing system, of the best available quality.

Piping and other plumbing modernization can be financed with the proceeds from an FHA Property Improvement loan.

WHY PAINT PEELS
There are various reasons why paint peels. One is that it is applied over wet woodwork or, if the wall is dry when painted, it may have moisture coming through from the back.

COLOR SCHEME FROM RUG
In harmony with its rust colored rug is the color scheme of a very pleasing dining room. The walls are finished in canary yellow flat wall paint. The ceiling is peach and the woodwork is enameled stone gray.

COLORS FOR THE BEDROOM
In a bedroom recently decorated, a deep grape colored carpet provides an excellent setting for the peach colored walls. The woodwork is enameled ivory, while the ceiling is finished in orchid flat paint.

Always plan a wall in the living room where piano, davenport and desk may be placed. Chairs, radio and cabinets should next be considered.

Hidden piping should be of highest grade, as it is costly to replace or repair. In the usual two-story house there is approximately 300 feet of such piping concealed in walls and under flooring. Obviously it pays to have this concealed part of the plumbing system, of the best available quality.

WINDOWS

Two Types for New Home

The question of windows for the new house should be given careful study, as the development of these important features has been quite extensive in recent years. Of course, the first thing to determine is whether double-hung sash or casements are to be used. In the historic types of Colonial houses double-hung windows are the more appropriate, although in the very early types which are really more English cottage than Colonial casements are in keeping.

The box type of double-hung windows should be well made, and the frames should be carefully flashed when they are set or they may permit considerable air leakage. Weights are used with this type of window, and the quality of the sash cord should be of the best. Cheap cords will not last long, and a broken cord means a messy job to repair, particularly if the windows have metal weatherstrips. There are numerous new devices to take the place of weights that have some advantages, and they should be considered before any decision is reached as to what will be used.

A recent development, stimulated by the trend toward prefabrication, is a "package window," which is completely built and assembled at the factory, including frame, sash, weatherstripping, and screens ready to set into the wall.

In the old house, poorly fitting sash may be replaced; weatherstrips may be installed; balances may be put in to replace inadequate weights; sash that have large single or double lights of glass may be removed and sash with 12 or 16 lights substituted.

A lavatory in the garage is more necessary than in the laundry, and should be installed in a convenient location.

NEW FEATURE IN BATHTUBS

And It's Adaptable to Modernization Plans

Perhaps you have seen a four-foot square neo-angel bathtub which has many unique features. It is particularly adaptable to many modernization plans where space is limited and because of its novel design makes a splendid shower and tub combination. One of the many unusual features of this tub is an integral shower seat at the rear, useful for in this tub you may take a comfortable sitting down shower and when not used as a shower seat it becomes a handy shelf for bathing accessories when one is taking a tub bath.

The diagonal bathing recess is the same size as the standard five and one-half foot tub, so a complete reclining bath may be had. As a new fixture, this tub will be found to require a narrower space than an ordinary five foot six tub, and so, when modernization of the old home is undertaken, it might be well to consider this equipment.

UNUSUAL WINDOW TREATMENT

An unusual window treatment recently observed makes use of lemon yellow taffeta curtains tied back with brown rope. The narrow wooden valance is enameled in the same color as the curtains, with a fringe-edging the color of the tie-backs rope. Venetian blinds are finished in two shades of cocoa color enamel.

Exterior Lighting May Be Indirect System

The outside of a house may be illuminated successfully with indirect lighting.

Illuminated panels at the side of a doorway, or directly over it, will display the house number advantageously and light the path and steps. A light so situated that it illuminates the walk between house and garage is particularly useful.

LARGE CLASS IS GRADUATED

Education Does Not End With Diploma, Ruthven Declares

Ann Arbor, Mich., June 18 (AP)—President Alexander Grant Ruthven told the University of Michigan's graduating class in a commencement address today that education does not cease "with acquisition of a diploma."

"One must remember," he said, "that a college training alone cannot be blamed for a poor life if an individual fails after his college years to try to grow in wisdom and in the favor of God and man."

"Some failures may be the result of faulty college training, but many are the consequence of later attitudes and influences." Degrees were conferred on 2,082 graduates and diplomas awarded six nurses. Twelve others, including five alumni, distinguished in science, law and letters, received honorary degrees.

Three of those cited for meritorious service were born in Michigan. They were Charles Rufus Morey, a native of Hastings and now Professor of Art and Archaeology at Princeton university, who was awarded the degree of Doctor of Letters. The others were Col. Oliver Lyman Spaulding, formerly of St. Johns, chief of the historical section of the Army war college, and James Francis Cooke, noted music critic and composer and president of the Presser Foundation, Philadelphia, who was born in Bay City. Both received Doctor of Law degrees.

In his address, President Ruthven urged graduates "to give not only all that you are but also all that you can be to the service of your fellow men" if "you expect security from society."

"It is pure effrontery to ask God or your neighbors for your daily bread if you do not try to deserve it," he said.

He asserted that while there has been "much talk" of social security there is very little understanding of the term.

"In fact, most persons seem to consider it to be synonymous with economic security rather than a name for the conservation of human resources," he commented.

"To the careless thinker it is the securing, rather than the justification, of the financial safety of human beings.

"Surely economic security is in application little more than maudlin sentimentality unless the recipient of aid and protection is worth saving."

Iron River Gets Only Woman Supt. In Upper Michigan

Iron River, June 18.—The Iron River township board of education last night by unanimous vote engaged Miss Pearl Windsor as superintendent of the school system to succeed M. L. McCoy.

Miss Windsor, a native of this city, has been principal of the Iron River high school for the last 20 years. Appointment of her successor as principal was deferred until a later meeting of the board.

McCoy resigned his post Tuesday to accept the appointment as superintendent of schools at Big Rapids in the Lower Peninsula. He has headed the Iron River schools since 1935.

The board offered Miss Windsor a one-year contract at a salary of $3,500 with travel expenses of $100 and a one-month vacation which she accepted. Her present salary as principal is $3,000.

When Miss Windsor assumes her new duties on July 1, beginning of the school district's fiscal year, she will become the only woman superintendent of schools in the Upper Peninsula and one of only two or three in the entire state of Michigan.

Yockey's Nephew Is Law Partner

Milwaukee, June 18.—A junior partnership in a law firm, something the average graduate works years to achieve, was waiting for Edward J. Yockey Jr. when he and 36 other recent Marquette law school graduates appeared before the supreme court at Madison Thursday and were admitted to the practice of law.

Yockey, who is 24 and first saw the light of day here when his father was district attorney, will step Friday into the shoes of Yockey, Wiley and Yockey, made vacant Nov. 28, 1936, by the death of his uncle, Chauncey Yockey. His father now is an assistant district attorney. The junior partner lives with his parents at 3118 N. Summit ave.

The carriage purchased by Louis XVI and Marie Antoinette for their planned escape from the revolutionary mob's fury contained a clothes press, a wine cellar, a cupboard for foods and a silver dinner service, as well as accommodations for six members of the family and servants.

HOOK'S SPEECH IN MONUMENT

Settlement of Finns In America Recognized In Celebration

Chester, Pa., June 18.—The historical record of the settlement of points in the Delaware River Valley three hundred years ago by colonists from Finland, as described for posterity this week by being sealed in a copper box and set in solid cement in the base of the monument which the Republic of Finland is erecting here as a gift to the United States.

Mayor William Ward Jr. of Chester presided at the ceremony of depositing the box of records. Emil Hurja, of Crystal Falls, Michigan, Chairman of the Monument Committee, was the principal speaker. Among the items of historical interest contained in the box were an autographed photograph of President Roosevelt, a photograph of the President of Finland, one of Eero Järnefelt, Finnish Minister to the United States, and one of Representative Hook, who had been instrumental in having Congress extend the invitation to Finland to take part in the Delaware Tercentenary celebrations. Other enclosures were coins and stamps of the United States and Finland, including the commemorative stamps issued by each country and by Sweden for the Tercentenary, and a page from an old Finnish Bible. A recently published book about the Finns on the Delaware, by Prof. John H. Wuorinen of Columbia University, was also enclosed.

The monument itself, for which the base was placed this week, arrived in this country from Finland on June 16 and is being unloaded and moved to Chester for erection. It will be dedicated on June 29, when Rudolf Holsti, Minister for Foreign Affairs of Finland will make the speech of presentation and Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson the speech of acceptance for the United States. It is a great block of red Finnish granite, the sides carved in bas-relief by Vaino Aaltonen, famous Finnish sculptor, and the ends engraved with appropriate inscriptions.

TAXI INSURANCE IS HARD TO GET

Peninsula Drivers Are Victims, Iron River Men Declare

Iron River, June 18.—The Iron River city ordinance prescribing that only taxi lines protected with public liability insurance be permitted to operate within the city limits was last night described as "unfair and in restraint of trade" by Leslie and William VanWagner.

The brothers, who seek to establish a cab line here, approached the Iron River city commission to ask that the ordinance be rescinded.

They complained that because of a high accident rate throughout the Upper Peninsula, they are unable to induce insurance companies to extend public liability coverage to their cabs.

Cabs "Blacklisted"

It was reported that cab line owners in other Upper Peninsula cities are unable to obtain the public liability coverage for their vehicles and yet are operating their business.

"The Upper Peninsula cab lines have been blacklisted," VanWagner charged.

McDonough advised the commission that the only way in which the public could be protected without enforcement of the ordinance is to have the operator of each cab line personally stand responsible for injuries caused by his cab, a personal liability.

Iron River Gets Only Woman Supt. In Upper Michigan

Iron River, June 18.—The Iron River township board of education last night by unanimous vote engaged Miss Pearl Windsor as superintendent of the school system to succeed M. L. McCoy.

Miss Windsor, a native of this city, has been principal of the Iron River high school for the last 20 years. Appointment of her successor as principal was deferred until a later meeting of the board.

McCoy resigned his post Tuesday to accept the appointment as superintendent of schools at Big Rapids in the Lower Peninsula. He has headed the Iron River schools since 1935.

The board offered Miss Windsor a one-year contract at a salary of $3,500 with travel expenses of $100 and a one-month vacation which she accepted. Her present salary as principal is $3,000.

When Miss Windsor assumes her new duties on July 1, beginning of the school district's fiscal year, she will become the only woman superintendent of schools in the Upper Peninsula and one of only two or three in the entire state of Michigan.

Yockey's Nephew Is Law Partner

Milwaukee, June 18.—A junior partnership in a law firm, something the average graduate works years to achieve, was waiting for Edward J. Yockey Jr. when he and 36 other recent Marquette law school graduates appeared before the supreme court at Madison Thursday and were admitted to the practice of law.

Yockey, who is 24 and first saw the light of day here when his father was district attorney, will step Friday into the shoes of Yockey, Wiley and Yockey, made vacant Nov. 28, 1936, by the death of his uncle, Chauncey Yockey. His father now is an assistant district attorney. The junior partner lives with his parents at 3118 N. Summit ave.

Hook's Speech In Monument

Chester, Pa., June 18.—The historical record of the settlement of points in the Delaware River Valley three hundred years ago by colonists from Finland, as described for posterity this week by being sealed in a copper box and set in solid cement in the base of the monument which the Republic of Finland is erecting here as a gift to the United States.

Mayor William Ward Jr. of Chester presided at the ceremony of depositing the box of records. Emil Hurja, of Crystal Falls, Michigan, Chairman of the Monument Committee, was the principal speaker. Among the items of historical interest contained in the box were an autographed photograph of President Roosevelt, a photograph of the President of Finland, one of Eero Järnefelt, Finnish Minister to the United States, and one of Representative Hook, who had been instrumental in having Congress extend the invitation to Finland to take part in the Delaware Tercentenary celebrations. Other enclosures were coins and stamps of the United States and Finland, including the commemorative stamps issued by each country and by Sweden for the Tercentenary, and a page from an old Finnish Bible. A recently published book about the Finns on the Delaware, by Prof. John H. Wuorinen of Columbia University, was also enclosed.

'Balloon Barrage' Is London's Defense Against Bombers

Pictured in one of the first photos permitted by the British air ministry, the anti-air raid balloons are shown at left as they were lined up for a test at London. Below the bags are the heavy trucks, which send the balloons aloft on cables by means of lorry winches. The upper sketch, at right, shows that one of the new 150-foot bombing planes would have only a 50-50 chance of passing through the "fence" without striking one of the lethal cables, which are so thin that they are invisible, both day and night. Contact with one of the cables would mean destruction for the bomber, as depicted in the sketch at lower right.

Hoping to render London and its environs immune from air attacks during the next European war, Great Britain has devised a balloon barrage defense now being tested by the air ministry. The drawing above shows one possible defensive system—a line of 1100 balloons, attached to lethal cables, and moored at 100-yard intervals encircling the city at a 10-mile radius from the center. Another possibility is a "field sited" barrage, consisting of hundreds of balloons stationed at strategic points within the city limits.

By NEA Service
London—Enemy planes which seek to rain bombs on London during any future war are going to have to devise some means of beating what appears to be the most effective air raid defense ever thrown around a world capital.
Realizing that the sky will be one of the major battlegrounds of the next war, the British air ministry is perfecting an intricate and strategic system to keep death-dealing bombers away from London.
Fundamental unit in the defense plan is the military balloon—1100 of them, in fact, which will be strung aloft on lethal cables capable of destroying any airplane which comes in contact with them.
The air ministry intends to encircle London with these balloons—or spot them strategically over the city—thereby forming a death dealing "fence" of cables stretching upward possibly as high as 25,000 feet.
The balloons will be raised and lowered on winches mounted on huge army trucks, thereby making it possible to shift their position on short notice. The cables, attached to the balloons are so thin that they cannot be seen from an attacking airplane, even in broad daylight. Charged with electricity, they would be capable of disabling any plane that touches them.
A fence of such cables, 300 feet apart, would make it so risky to attempt to fly over the city that it is believed few enemy pilots would take the chance.
Consider, for instance the chances of piercing the fence with one of the modern bombing planes with a wing spread of 150 feet. Obviously, the nose of the plane could not come closer than 75 feet to any cable without the wings becoming entangled.
In the 300 feet between any two cables, therefore, there would be 150 feet in which a pilot could not put the nose of his plane. If he happened to hit the middle 150 feet he would go through unscathed. His chances, therefore, would be only fifty-fifty. And if he managed to get through the fence and drop his bombs over London, he still would have to go back the same way and his odds

Damaging of Trees Also Warned Against by Police

Damaging of trees in the city by youths who grab and break limbs in demonstrating how high they can jump will not be tolerated any longer, according to the warning given yesterday by Chief of Police Torval Kallerson.

Playing ball on the streets and highways and also on private lots where permission has not been gained is also taboo, the chief stated. The latter form of amusement constitutes a definite traffic hazard and numerous complaints have been turned in recently by motorists.

Besides constituting a traffic hazard the practice of playing ball in the streets is highly dangerous to the youngsters who participate, it is pointed out, and likely to result in injury or death to some one.

Cooperation of the parents is requested in putting an end to both practices.

MARKET SLOW; PRICES HIGHER

BY FREDERICK GARDNER New York, June 18 (AP)—With stocks showing the way, leading coppers edged forward today in the slowest market session for nearly 20 years.

The list started off slightly higher and then shifted over a narrow range during the remainder of the proceedings. There was an assortment of negligible losers at the close, with a few weak spots in evidence.

Transfers totaled only 104,530 shares, the smallest turnover since August 3, 1918. The week's volume of 1,792,000 shares was also the smallest in 20 years. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up 1/4 of a point at 38.7, but on the week was off 4.

The apathy of the session was shown by the fact only 359 individual stocks were traded. Of these 121 advanced, 108 declined and 130 were unchanged. A little more cheerfulness was reflected in the coppers which benefitted from the latest foreign curtailment agreement reached in London and was in line with the recent suspensions of important domestic mines for the purpose of bringing output closer to export consumption. A lift in copper prices was also helpful.

Major stocks managed to emerge a trifle higher, although they were sluggish the greater part of the time on forecasts further cuts in quotations for steel products were likely.

Most gold mines lost their buoyancy of the early part of the week as dollar devaluation talk waned.

Commodities generally provided the brightest market picture of the week, most finishing well ahead. Today wheat yielded 1/2 to 2-3 cents a bushel of its previous advances and corn was 1-8 up to 3-8 lower. Cotton was 3/5 to 4/5 cents a bale higher.

Stocks emerging with modest gains in the 2-hour session included Anaconda at 24, Kennecott 29 3/4, Cerro De Pasco 34 1/2, Westinghouse 74 7/8, Allied Chemical 14 1/2, Santa Fe 24 3/4, Southern Pacific 10 3/4, Douglas Aircraft 43 1/2, Standard Oil of N. J. 48 1/2, U. S. Rubber 26 1/2 and Sears Roebuck 56 1-8.

Goodrich preferred weakened on the omission of the dividend on this issue, closing off 5 points at 32, a new low for the year. The common was off 5-8 at 11 1/2. International Harvester slipped 1/4 at 50 on reports of plant shut-downs for this company in July to offset declining sales.

Those who had expected the adjournment of congress to be celebrated with a run-up in share prices were disappointed. Failure of the lawmakers to pass a relief measure for the railroads more than offset this development.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Recalling Ecuador's Twelve Constitutions

CENTURIES of conquest, discord and exploitation lay behind Ecuador when a small band of revolutionaries finally struck the first blow for independence in Quito, Aug. 10, 1809. But even after Bolivar established the republic and Ecuador withdrew from a confederacy with Venezuela and Colombia, a constitution was not adopted until 1830.

So as Ecuador began its career as a nation the law of the land faced a rocky road. President after president of Ecuador was forced to arms to maintain power and in the battle the constitution underwent sweeping changes. In all, Ecuador has rewritten its constitution 12 times since 1830, may rewrite it again in the face of new social forces at work in South America.

But Ecuador clings tenaciously to the republican ideal and on the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the U. S. Constitution has issued a set of seven airmail stamps, multi-colored, honoring the American document. One value is shown below. The design features the American eagle clutching the U. S. and Ecuadorian flags, a portrait of George Washington and the Ecuadorian coat of arms.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to take this means of expressing my sincere appreciation of the wonderful acts of kindness shown me by neighbors and friends at the time of the death of my wife, Agnes Pollack. Especially do I wish to thank those who sent flowers, mass cards, those who donated the use of their cars, those who served as pallbearers and all others who aided me in so many ways. The memory of these acts of kindness will always remain with me. Signed: ALBERT POLLACK 4990-170-11

A touch of hat sophistication for the younger set. This model by Jean Patou is made entirely of the palest pink and white blossoms veiled in navy tulle. It is worn with a closely-molding, high-necked, long-sleeved dinner gown of navy net.

MODEL TOWN DOING WELL

Westacres Near Pontiac Was Established By Couzens Fund

Pontiac, Mich., June 18 (AP)—In a community built by the millions of the late senator and philanthropist, James A. Couzens, 150 families are demonstrating how a carefully-planned homestead project may be successful.

The community is Westacres, nine miles west of Pontiac. It came into existence through a $550,000 gift from Senator Couzens and a $300,000 grant from the federal government.

"Only time will prove the merits of a project of this type," Barton F. Jenks, its manager, said today, but he added, "so far Westacres had fulfilled the expectations of its backers in every way."

Jenks, who has served successfully as consulting architect, building director and resident manager, credits Westacres' success largely to careful selection of families and to the fact that "complete authority was vested in a single person here."

Prospective home purchasers must be 21 to 40 years old, have good financial rating and employment record, a farming background, and average income of from $1,200 to $1,600 annually. All the houses are filled and there are more than 500 applications on file.

The families are principally those of low income factory workers.

Their homes, with one-acre plots, cost $4,400 each. On a 30-year purchase contract they pay $18.57 a month; on a 20-year plan, $24.42.

To cover taxes, water and 3 per cent interest on principal and administration, $7.33 monthly is added.

Gardening is an important activity of Westacres residents, who now number 525. Estimates on value of fruits and vegetables raised on their acre plots last year ranged from $100 to $300.

A community store, owned by the residents and returning periodic rebates, supplies other food needs.

Community sewing clubs and softball leagues knit the interests of the residents of Westacres closer together. Younger children attend a nearby grade school; the older ones are transported to the Walled Lake consolidated school.

Business depression has made itself felt at Westacres, but so far no one has been ordered to vacate. Jenks said collections had dropped from 100 per cent in January to 65 per cent in May.

Seven residents are employed on WPA jobs.

Jenks was unconvinced that a project of the Westacres type would be successful in some other sections of the country.

"For example," said Jenks, a native of Boston, "I am sure the New Englander would not be happy living in Westacres because at heart he is an individualist."

Pre-School Clinic To Be At Kipling

A pre-school clinic will be held at the Kipling school Thursday, June 23, at one o'clock.

The clinic is being sponsored by the Delta county health department and examinations will be conducted by Dr. Roelof Lantagne, director, and Mrs. Christensen, county health nurse. Vaccine and toxin-antitoxin shots will also be given to children from six months of age to five years. All mothers are urged to bring their children.

The Quality of a Concrete Burial Vault

Spring and summer rains penetrating the soft earth . . . winter snow and frost swelling and twisting the ground . . . What assurance is there that these natural forces are not intruding upon the long sleep of a departed loved one? There is comfort and assurance in a concrete burial vault whose strong, tight walls resist water pressure and chemical action within the soil.

Rigid specifications for manufacturing concrete vaults were developed to make vaults waterproof—even damp proof. Protection you demand may be found in concrete vaults whose strong, nonporous construction withstands water pressure.

Insist on a concrete burial vault. This you can do to assure undisturbed rest for one departed.

This beautiful concrete water tower occupies a prominent position in Washburn Park, Minneapolis.

It holds a constant supply of water up to 1,250,000 gallons. Although this water exerts great pressure against the walls of the tower, the concrete will not let it leak or seep through.

Concrete must be waterproof or it could not be used to hold water under great pressure and exposure.

Concrete vaults are set and sealed at the grave by the manufacturer. This service is performed quietly and respectfully. Vaults are sealed so tightly that water cannot penetrate.
