SPENDING AND LENDING BILL IS MADE LAW

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IMPROVED, SAYS PRESIDENT

BY JOSEPH H. SHORT
Hyde Park, N. Y., June 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed the $3,750,000,000 lending and spending bill today and asserted that business is not and has not been as bad as a lot of people believed it to be.

The president, at a press conference packed with news developments, gave as backing for his statement on business a department of commerce estimate that the national income for this year would be slightly above $60,000,000,000. Earlier government estimates were $55,000,000,000.

Dirt Flies Soon

The president, wearing a white shirt, collar open and no tie, unbuttoned his trousers and lounging in a chair behind his flat top mahogany desk, was waiting for the newsmen when they came in.

He had a sheaf of papers in his hand.

With those papers as notes, he announced:

(1)—That dirt would begin to fly on $350,000,000 of public works administration projects within sixty days, now that the big $3,750,000,000 bill has been signed.

(2)—That the prospect for business during 1938, based on national income figures for the first three months of the year, was definitely improved. The president added that his assertion that business is not as bad as some people believed applied both to industry and agriculture.

(3)—That he had signed 45 bills and vetoed seven since coming to his Hyde Park home and would act on ten more before going to bed tonight, but still would save 337 to pass upon after that.

Talks With Ambassador

Mr. Roosevelt also took occasion to say that references to the last congress as a "ridiculous view of the fact that a large portion of the money appropriated was for loans which the government would be repaid."

Moreover, he added, the sum under discussion represented in part appropriations for which no appropriations had been made.

Then, answering questions, the chief executive touched briefly on international affairs.

After asserting that he could say no more than that he had talks of general international affairs with Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to London who visited him today, Mr. Roosevelt was asked whether Kennedy's call made him cheerful.

The president replied that it made him feel the same way he had felt for the last two or three years. The general international picture, he said, was not particularly a bright one, that all we could do is hope for the best.

Mr. Roosevelt's very busy day, which was topped off by his driving his car over country roads, included receipt of a $1,010,000 check for use of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Motive In Kent County Triple Shooting Sought

Rockford, Mich., June 21 (AP)—Disjointed accounts of a triple shooting on a northern Kent county farm were pieced together by officers tonight as they attempted to determine the motives for the slaying of a 62-year-old woman and the critical wounding of two elderly men.

The dead woman was Mrs. Elizabeth McGowen. Her husband, George, 54, and her brother, James Bradley, 71, are in a Grand Rapids hospital.

Capt. A. A. Downing, of the Rockford state police post, said information obtained by his officers indicated that McGowen shot his wife and Bradley, then turned the gun on himself.

Capt. Downing said McGowen was so stupefied by liquor that he could not give a coherent statement.

JAPS WILL TRY NEW OBJECTIVE

Invading Army Shifted for Drive Against City of Hankow

Shanghai, June 22 (Wednesday) (AP)—Japan's flood-ruined campaign for quick conquest of central China is being reshaped to heavy cost to challenge steadily growing Chinese strength.

Blocked by Yellow river inundation along the Lunghai railroad, the Japanese army has been forced to put most of its strength into a cross country drive against Hankow, China's provision capital.

Troops and equipment are being shifted from the Lunghai zone, where only two weeks ago Japanese were on the verge of capturing Changchow, which they had planned to use as a base for a drive 300 miles south along the Peiping-Hankow railway against Hankow.

Hankow reports said Japanese troops had reached a point 130 miles east of Hankow, around which 60 new Chinese divisions numbering 500,000 men were reported taking up positions for the coming battle for the city. Chinese also said they were receiving new shipments of planes and Soviet Russian tanks and guns.

In the flood area itself, clearing weather conditions brought hope of subsiding waters. All foreigners at flood-marooned Chengchow were safe, according to a telegram received at Hankow from one of them.

Friction over use of mission properties in Japanese-occupied territories increased. Thirty American doctors and nurses filed with the United States consul general, Frank P. Lockhart, a petition asking that the American government protest to Tokyo against "continued unnecessary and purposeful interference with foreign rights and interests in the Japanese-occupied central China area."

POWERS AGREE ON PEACE PLAN

Prospects Brighten for Curbing Bloody Civil War in Spain

BY JOHN H. MARTIN
London, June 21 (AP)—The prospect of curbing or even ending Spain's destructive civil war became more promising tonight than at any time since the first shot was fired July 18, 1936.

Nine European powers, ending a long deadlock, agreed at a non-intervention subcommittee meeting on steps to remove foreign fighters from the conflict.

Friday the subcommittee will meet again to discuss the cost of the nonintervention plan and a full session of the 27-nation group is to be held shortly to approve the complete scheme.

Britain sought the aid of France and Italy, whose sympathies are with opposite sides in the conflict, to obtain a lull in hostilities while evacuation commissions could operate.

In the house of commons British Prime Minister Chamberlain indicated an armistice was the only practical way to end international difficulties which had arisen from the war.

He declared Britain would try "from time to time" to see whether there were favorable prospects of success and "when the time comes we shall be only too glad to offer our services, either alone or in conjunction with others, in bringing this lamentable conflict to an end."

Ready for the Bell Tonight

Joe Louis Max Schmeling
One of the greatest heavyweight boxing rivalries in history will be climaxed tonight at the Yankee Stadium, New York, when Joe Louis, 24-year-old American negro holder of the world championship, and Max Schmeling, 32-year-old German challenger, climb into the ring to resume their personal debate with the gloves. The fight, for which each will collect their share of almost a million dollars, is scheduled to start at 9 p. m. (EST).

DRUMMOND ISLAND CARETAKER DROWNS

Sault Ste. Marie (AP)—The body of Ryland Carrier, caretaker of a cottage on Drummond Island, was found floating near the capsize of a sailboat Monday afternoon. He had been the object of a state police and department of conservation search launched when neighbors noticed that he had not been at the cottage for several days. He came to the island from Detroit in May.

OUT WITH JEW, GOEBBELS SAYS

Propaganda Chief Rouses Crowd of 120,000 in Berlin Talk

Berlin, June 21 (AP)—Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels tonight put the stamp of official approval on the new wave of anti-Semitism and roused a crowd of 120,000 Berliners to hysterical cries of "out with the Jews—out with the Jews."

Speaking at the annual summer solstice exercises at Olympic Stadium Goebbels demanded, however, that the state party rather than "the street"—meaning mobs—attend to solution of the Jewish problem.

He said that though he had "a full understanding of the fact that the Berlin population is taking measures for its defense, I do not approve of the method."

"But it is a good thing we now know what concerns are Jewish," declared the small propaganda minister referring to the recent smearing of store-fronts with "Jew" in red paint.

"We will see to it that legal measures are taken so that soon Jews will have gone altogether."

"As far as those remaining are concerned let them remember to keep out of the public view. They are beginning to be a nuisance."

GOVERNOR LEHMAN WILL ACCEPT BID TO SUCCEED SEN. COPELAND

Albany, N. Y., June 21 (AP)—New York's Democratic governor Herbert H. Lehman announced tonight he would accept the nomination to succeed the late United States Senator Royal S. Copeland "if my party desires me to be a candidate."

The stocky chief executive referred to by President Roosevelt as "my good right arm" when they both were in the state service, has shown a coolness toward the president in recent months. This first became apparent when he opposed Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization bill.

Lehman came to the governorship in 1933 as successor to the newly-elected President Roosevelt, and accepted nomination for his third term two years ago on the president's insistence, and as a result of a draft movement by national party leaders.

LEHMAN IS NOW REGARDED AS ONE OF THE CONSERVATIVES IN THE STATE DEMOCRATIC ORGANIZATION, AS WAS THE LATE SENATOR COPELAND.

The surprise announcement clears the way for a possible wide open scramble among numerous already mentioned Democratic possibilities for New York's first four-year governorship and at the same time clarifies the gubernatorial picture for Republican state leaders.

BENNETT STEPS IN

New York, June 21 (AP)—Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., tonight announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor of New York soon after Gov. Herbert Lehman made known his availability as a candidate for the senatorial post vacated by the death of Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

BRIDGE OVER STRAITS SURE, SAYS SENATOR

MURPHY AND BROWN CLAIM BACKING OF PRESIDENT

Marquette, Mich., June 21 (AP)—The Straits of Mackinac bridge project is much nearer final federal approval than it has been for some time, Senator Prentiss M. Murphy today told a representative of the Associated Press in a telephone conversation from his home in St. Ignace.

Michigan's junior senator said that President Roosevelt has expressed approval of the project, but insists an adequate engineering survey be made as a necessary preliminary before any other action is taken. A survey, Senator Murphy said, would cost about $150,000.

Bill Not Blocked

Questioned about the congressional status of the bridge project, Senator Brown stated that reports that it had been blocked in congress were misleading. He said the bill was held up in the house, but that it has not been blocked. He predicted that it would be passed easily, with approval of the president, in the next session of congress.

Congressional action on the Mackinac project, the Senator said, is necessary only for the passage of a bill, under the general bridge law, authorizing the erection of a span across a navigable stream in such a manner as not to interfere with vessel traffic in that stream.

The senate has twice passed the bill, the senator said, but it failed in the house when put on the unanimous consent calendar. "One or two lower Michigan members voted against it," the senator said, "and that is why it was held up."

TRAFFIC SURVEY ORDERED

Lansing, June 21 (AP)—Governor Murphy claimed presidential endorsement of the proposed bridge across the straits of Mackinac as he announced plans today for a state-sponsored program to enlist public support for the project.

"One of the reasons the president is coming to Michigan this summer is to learn about it," Murphy asserted. He added the president might inspect the proposed site of the bridge.

The governor said he has discussed the proposed bridge with Roosevelt on three occasions and found "he was an enthusiast about it."

Murphy said a survey would get under way within a few days to determine possible traffic volume to justify the bridge, and means of financing it.

The governor pointed out that a bridge such as that contemplated would involve what he described as one of the greatest engineering feats in the world, thus providing an additional tourist attraction as well as an accommodation.

Murphy said he felt a bridge across the straits would go far toward unifying the interests of Michigan's two peninsulas, and obliterate the feeling in some circles that the western Upper Peninsula is more closely allied with Wisconsin's interests than those of Michigan.

ASIKAINEN IS FREED OF POLITICS CHARGE AS HOOK'S OPPONENT

Lansing, June 21 (AP)—William Brownrigg, state personnel director, reported to the civil service commission today that investigation indicated Andrew Asikainen, of Marquette, had not "indulged in political activity during office hours."

The investigation was ordered on complaint of Rep. Frank E. Hook, Ironwood Democrat, who claimed Asikainen, a candidate opposing him in the primaries, was violating civil service regulations by participating in political campaigning at state expense. Asikainen is an auditor for the unemployment compensation commission. The matter is still in the attorney general's hands.

SLEEPER LOSES LEGS ON RAILROAD TRACK

Detroit, (AP)—Both legs were lost by Frank Zduzcyk, 29, of Wyandotte, Tuesday when he was struck by a freight train while dozing on the Michigan Central railroad tracks. He told officers that he sat down on a rail to rest and fell asleep.

ROAD PAYS DEBTS

Cleveland, June 21 (AP)—Pere Marquette railroad directors announced today the road would pay $1,035,000 in bond interest due July 1, as well as $122,000 in equipment trust principal.

AIRLINER AIDS GIRL TO REACH DETROIT FOR EYE OPERATION

Los Angeles, June 21 (AP)—Officials of an airline joined today in a race against time to save Ruth Singer, 17, of Los Angeles, from total blindness.

The sight of one eye already lost, the girl discovered that a sympathetic infection threatened the other. With $2 in her purse, she boarded a bus for Detroit, to be operated upon by Dr. Ralph H. Pono.

Learning of her plight, (American) Airlines officials had the bus stopped at Indio, Calif., and offered her free transportation to Detroit. She will board a plane tonight, reaching Detroit tomorrow morning.

HIGHER WAGES ASKED ON WPA

Upper Peninsula Workers Should Get More, Murphy Thinks

Lansing, June 21 (AP)—Governor Murphy offered further hope to financially distressed municipalities that they might be relieved of sponsors' obligations for WPA projects, as he headed tonight for New York and Washington in quest of further assistance for Michigan's unemployed.

The governor announced, also, an increase of 5,000 in the allotment of WPA jobs to this state, bringing the quota to 205,000. He predicted it would be filled by July 15.

He disclosed plans, at the same time, for revitalizing the CCC program, announcing a representative of federal relief agencies would visit Michigan Monday to press welfare work among young men and women under the age of 25.

In Washington, he said, he will request more projects under the new Public Works program, most of them in Grand Rapids and other western Michigan municipalities, and ask the Works Progress Administration to pay more generous wages in upper peninsula counties. He said he felt the present allowance of approximately $44 a month in northern counties was inadequate in view of the long, cold winters and their demands for fuel and warm clothing.

WRECK VICTIMS NOW TOTAL 42

Floodlights and Boats Aid in Search for 'Olympian' Dead

Miles City, Mont., June 21 (AP)—A coroner's jury returned a verdict tonight holding no one to blame for the wreck of the Milwaukee railroad's "Olympian" train while weary searchers hacked their way through the twisted steel of a silt-filled sleeper in their hunt for additional victims of a tragedy that has listed 42 known dead or missing.

The body of another victim was found today floating in the Yellowstone river at Sidney, Mont., more than 130 miles downstream from Custer creek into which the train plunged through a flood-battered bridge early Sunday.

Railroad officials identified this body as that of P. F. Schultz, 63, of Ladd, Ill., a Milwaukee engineer riding as a passenger on the train.

Sheriff Edgar Taylor at Miles City reported a short time later that the bodies of an unidentified man and a woman were found tonight in the Yellowstone river at Fallon, 47 miles east of Miles City.

With the three bodies recovered tonight, railroad officials listed 26 identified and 34 known victims. They named 18 as missing but said some of these probably were among the unidentified dead.

James S. Griffith, chief fuel supervisor of the road, one of the six witnesses called by Coroner Stanley Buy before the jury estimated the train was traveling between 45 and 50 miles an hour when its engine plunged through the bridge into 20 feet of water.

Louis Goplen of Calypso, Mont., section foreman, testified he inspected the bridge little more than two hours before the wreck and noted but four feet of water in Custer creek's channel at that time.

REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE MEETS

Lansing, June 21 (AP)—The Republican state central committee said today it expected Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Grand Rapids, would attend a committee luncheon and meeting here tomorrow, called to fix the time and place for the party's nominating state convention.

Detroit, Flint and Grand Rapids have entered strong bids for the convention, which will be held in late September.

ALLEGED NAZI PLOT WILL BE TRACED DOWN

ARREST OF GERMAN SUSPECTS BARES MAZE OF DATA

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor
New York, June 21—Foreign spies, trying to filch secrets from American warplane factories, want to know how this country proposed to launch planes of the future without propellers.

They would like to find out the extent of our laboratory work in launching tomorrow's warplanes, weighing several hundred thousand pounds, by catapult.

They risk, their lives to steal the designs for our aircraft bomb sights, which enable army and navy airmen to reach a target unerringly from an altitude of four miles.

Just the Beginning
When 18 persons were indicted yesterday on charges of espionage, it was learned from confidential sources today, it marked only the beginning of a drive against more than one foreign spy ring.

The ramifications of the work of foreign secret intelligence agents, intensified by the international situation and the world rearmament race, are known only to picked government agents. Working with the army and navy, the treasury and other departments of the civil government are protecting devices for national defense with which warplanes may not be equipped for another five years.

Among the secret projects undergoing experiment is one whereby planes may be driven by jets of air of explosive gases, like rockets.

American warplanes of the future, capable of bearing huge loads of explosives 2,500 miles, dumping them, and returning to their bases without landing, probably will have to be shot into the air mechanically to insure safe takeoff. The armed services are preparing for it.

They Want It All
But the information coveted by spies is not all of the future. Every American warplane launched, often at the cost of $1,000,000 for research by manufacturers and the government, embodies dozens of secret instruments and pieces of equipment—ammunition racks, electrically operated bomb releases, power-operated machine gun turrets, and devices to insure the accuracy of bombers diving on—instead of flying over—targets.

The spies want that data too. One of the most jealous guardians of American military secrets at present is a design for an aircraft engine producing as much power as a steam passenger locomotive.

A comic aspect of the current investigation is the fact that air attaches of the various foreign embassies in Washington have access to much of the data the spies have been trying to obtain. Superceded by developments, the information is free for the asking.

NO TURNING BACK

New York, June 21 (AP)—Federal prosecutors today declared there would be no turning back from the maze of international intrigue which they uncovered with the indictment of 18 German spy suspects.

While frankly asserting they did not know where their quest would take them, they said their investigation of an alleged Nazi plot to steal American defense secrets would be continued after a "breathing spell."

"We are going to continue the investigation, but I don't know what will develop as a result," said United States Attorney Lamar Hardy.

TRAFFIC TOLL

Traverse City, (AP)—Injuries suffered in a collision Sunday between two automobiles resulted in the death in Munson hospital Monday night of William Mikowski, 63, a Cedar farmer. Mikowski's wife is in a critical condition at the hospital. Mikowski was riding in a car driven by his son, Clarence, when it collided with an automobile driven by Tony Gatzke, also of Cedar.

Sault Ste. Marie, (AP)—A severed jugular vein suffered when struck by an automobile Monday afternoon proved fatal Tuesday to Helen Caron, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Caron. The child was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Wilfred Paineau, police said. Archie Lee Stobie, 3, was slightly injured in the mishap.

STATE PLANNING BOARD CREATED

Commission Will Hunt Solutions for Many State Problems

Lansing, June 21. (AP)—A state planning commission came into being today, instructed by Governor Murphy to seek solutions for a variety of problems, including labor relations and industrial management.

The governor appointed Abner Larned, Detroit manufacturer, as the commission's chairman. He chose as other members State Budget Director Harold D. Smith; Dr. William Haber, of Ann Arbor, former emergency relief administrator for Michigan; Charles F. Kettering, of Detroit, vice president of the General Motors Corp.; William Hale, of Midland, scientist and engineer for the Dow Chemical Co.; Arthur E. Erickson, superintendent of public schools in Ironwood; Dr. Eugene E. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction; Ernest L. Anthony, dean of agriculture at Michigan State college, and Frank N. Isbey, of Detroit, manager of the Michigan State Fair and chairman of the governor's public works study commission.

The state highway commissioner and conservation director are ex-officio members.

Reo Motor Car Co. Changes Managers

Lansing, Mich., June 21. (AP)—Donald E. Bates resigned today as president of the Reo Motor Car Co. and Col. Fred Glover, of Detroit, was elected president and general manager.

The action was taken by the board of directors, which announced that Col. Glover "will have a free hand, entirely independent of any group or faction, to operate the business for the best interests of the company and the stockholders." The new manager was elected to the board of directors. He will take over his new duties immediately.

Col. Glover is vice president and a director of the United Specialties Co., of Detroit. Formerly he was vice president and general manager of the Timken-Detroit Axle Co., of Detroit. During the World War, he was chief of the motor transport service in the United States army.

Absolute Majority Won By De Valera

Dublin, June 21. (AP)—Triumphant Prime Minister Eamon De Valera matched his 1932 record of 77 seats in the Dail Eireann (house of representatives) today on final election figures which gave him an absolute majority of 16.

Final returns of the June 17 balloting gave the following distribution of seats: De Valera's Fianna Fail party, 77; W. T. Cosgrave's Fine Gael party, 45; Labor, 9; Independent, 7.

De Valera called the result "most heartening" and said that with a government majority it now is "possible to pursue a steady course."

BODY SOUGHT

Grand Rapids (AP)—The body of Dale Ward, 18, of Grand Rapids, was sought by deputies who dragged Big Pine Island lake Tuesday. Robert Anderson, 17, also of Grand Rapids, told officers that Ward failed to appear after diving from a rowboat 50 feet from shore.

Marble from Vermont Makes Capitol for Oregon

The modernistic capitol in Salem, Ore., a $2,500,000 structure almost ready for occupancy, has been constructed of pure white marble from the quarries of Vermont across the continent. Above is a view of the building with the famous statue of the Methodist circuit rider in the foreground. The new building replaces the one destroyed by fire in 1935. PWA contributed half of the cost of the structure, which boasts 131,750 square feet of usable space.

Fur, Fin and Feather

By George Rintamaki

BY GEORGE RINTAMAKI

The seeker of far wilderness lakes and good fishing has still many remote corners of little-known back country to explore in the upper peninsula. Back-country which is dotted with lakes hardly even thought of by the average fisherman who has neither the hardy spirit nor the desire to rough it off the beaten path.

If you are one who enjoys going off the beaten path for your fishing, you'll find an ample reward beyond the hard trails and rutty old wagon roads. To a lot of us the mere feel of untrodden ground and virgin "god's country" is reward a-plenty for hours spent on the trail. A week-end or even a day spent on a wilderness lake fishing or just loafing provides a kind of relaxation not available along the beaten path of civilization.

The various conveniences and often many of the necessities of civilization of course, are missing. On many of the "off the beaten path" lakes in the peninsula there are no boats nor even rafts. Fishing under such circumstances is often difficult and the only method is to fish from shore using a casting outfit.

A borrowed page from the old time fisherman's book brings to light a simple stunt which was the forerunner of the casting rod and with which it is possible to do a trick or two not within the scope of the casting outfit, a stunt which does much to solve the problem of fishing on these remote lakes where because of necessity, fishing must be done from shore.

Both trolling or still-fishing is possible. An ordinary trolling line or strong silk line is used, though the heavy trolling line is to be preferred. Simply because it is not so apt to snarl and get tangled up and is therefore easier to handle.

From fifty to seventy five yards of the line is needed. The old practice was to stand a stout stake about six feet long upright in the sand on the lake shore. A stick four feet or so long was fastened near the top of this pole, the end pointing in the direction of the cast, or toward the middle of the lake. The length of line was hung in long loose coils on this arm, the baited hook with a suitable size sniker then being swung around the head a few times out into the lake. The lure was retrieved hand over hand, the line being coiled back onto the arm. For still fishing, the practice was to attach a cork or wood bobber on the line and leave it out. It used to get results, too, old timers say. Countless bass, pike and pickerel used to fall victim to this method of boatless fishing.

A trial will prove it a surprisingly simple and interesting method of fishing with amazing great distance available on casts with the added dexterity of a little practice.

Fire service maps, available from the department of conservation at a nominal charge are an invaluable aid to the fisherman who likes to roam after bigger and better fish off the beaten path.

Drugging Claimed By Detroit Girl, Found On Highway

Care, Mich., June 21. (AP)—Two men who were accused by Miss Evelyn Bader, 22, of Detroit, of drugging her and tossing her from an automobile near Cass City last night were sought by sheriff's officers today.

The girl was found unconscious at the side of a road one mile east of Cass City. At Cass City hospital, Dr. H. T. Donahue said the girl had been drugged.

She told officers she left Detroit yesterday with two men and another woman and expressed the belief the drug was administered in a soft drink she had at Grindstone City.

Scrap Steel Sales Activity Increased

Pittsburgh, June 21. (AP)—Activity in Pittsburgh's steel scrap market quickened its pace this week, with dealers quoting as high as $12 a ton for No. 1 heavy melting.

The quoted price had been as low as $10.75 with mills buying in very small amounts. The Post-Gazette said there had been large sales of scrap for export in the east at $10 a ton and that it heard the dealers were having difficulty in covering against these sales at a profit. The newspaper reported, too, that one district mill which had not been in the market for months suddenly released orders for scrap which had been purchased at higher prices and the market stiffened. The highest price paid so far was $11.50, however.

Peninsula Projects To Get WPA Grants

Lansing, June 21. (AP)—Included in federal grants of $128,405 for work-creating projects in Michigan today was $82,527 to the state department of conservation for a survey of attendance and uses at state parks to provide a basis for a park and recreational plan in the state. The project will employ needy white-collar workers.

Other projects approved today were: Chippewa county: $8,082 to improve U. S. Army rifle range at Rexford. Schoolcraft county: Partial allotment of $9,700 to improve roads. Luce county: $1,511 to improve township park at McMillan.

DEMPESEY MIXED UP IN BALLYHOO

Manassa Mauler Picks Both Ways, So He Can't Lose

BY PAUL MICKELSON
New York, June 21. (AP)—Strangest of all by-plays mixed up in the Max Schmeling-Joe Louis ballyhoo has a somewhat dizzy Jack Dempsey in the leading role. So dizzy is the old Manassa Mauler, in truth, that he'd like to be somewhere east of Suez today instead of in his restaurant trying to explain whom he picks to win the big brawl.

So far, Jack's predictions have sounded like the old fashioned parlor game of "button, button, who's got the button." He's picked Schmeling to knock out Louis and he's picked Louis to knock out Schmeling. He can't possibly miss unless the fight turns out to be a tie game with Promoter Michael Jacobs the only winner.

Jack's troubles—and they are troubles because they've got him boiling mad—are chargeable to a couple of ghost writers who saw a chance to turn an extra dollar. The ghost writers decided it would be a swell idea to write a magazine story under Jack's name telling the public who would win the fight—and how. Given to understand by the ex-champ that he liked Schmeling, they went to work, wrote a very swell analytical story and sold it for some $450 to a magazine of national circulation. The story appeared last Sunday.

"He's An Old Man" Meanwhile, a tireless sports writer, digging hard for a few angles on the fight, did the natural thing in a clutch. He would get Mr. Dempsey's version of the fight. But as he reached Dempsey's restaurant, pad and pencil in hand, he met one of the ghosts who told him almost all he wanted to know—how Jack had picked Schmeling and why. Just to be on the safe side, however, he phoned Dempsey.

"I picked Schmeling?" Dempsey yelled over the phone. "Who said I did? Think I'm crazy? Why, I can't pick him. Not that guy. Why, he's an old man. He hasn't got a chance."

The sports writer's boss thought his man was getting a bit tetchy in the head when he ordered the headline changed from "Dempsey Picks Schmeling" to "Dempsey Picks Louis" but the reporter finally convinced him he wasn't daffy or drunk. So, the story went out and soon the magazine, which circulates many newspapers throughout the land, had orders for cancellations.

"What goes on?" wired one newspaper. "Dempsey picks Schmeling for you and Louis in the newspapers today."

Helps The Restaurant Experting long has been a bigger pain to Mr. Dempsey than the smash on the chin he got from Luis Firpo. Since he first gained enough fame to be asked for his predictions, he's never guessed the winner of a big fight, except his own. The only fighter who didn't make him look like the rest of the experts was Jack Dempsey. But there wasn't much fame in that. Every fighter picks himself to win—even Max Baer.

As the big, noisy fight mob crowded into New York today, Jack was busy explaining whom he liked but a quick check-up of the experts yielded almost a 50-50 return of Louis and Schmeling votes by the champ. But there's a silver lining. So many experts are flocking to his restaurant to get the low-down from him first hand that business is rushing.

Under the present setup, the field will be divided into flights of sixteen. The personnel of the flights will be determined by the scores of the first 36 holes of qualifying play.

Five prizes will be awarded in each flight. Additional awards will be made in the senior flight which is open only to those fifty years or older. The five-man team trophy will be awarded to the lowest total score of any five-man team. Escanaba carried away this trophy last year.

Because of the crowded facilities of the Sault Country club the Country club of Sault, Ontario, also will be used by tournament players.

First Lady Meets American Youth

4-H CLUB CAMP

ALLEGED NAZI PLOT WILL BE TRACED DOWN

In protective custody in the tower of the federal building, Hardy said he would make every effort to expedite the arraignment of the four defendants who are the only ones under arrest.

The other defendants, including two officers of the German war ministry, were in Germany, outside of American jurisdiction.

Beyond saying they were "heavily guarded," Prosecutor Hardy declined to discuss the status of the two women witnesses who spent many hours before the special grand jury.

They were Mrs. Kate Moog Busch, described as a confidante of Dr. Fritz Griebel, the former leader of American nazis who fled to Germany when the investigation started, and Miss Santa de Wanger, who operated a liquor store in the vicinity of Roosevelt and Mitchell fields, Long Island.

It was considered unlikely that they would appear at the arraignment, which may take place tomorrow, of the four defendants in custody. These are: Johanna Hoffmann, former hairdresser on the German liner Europa; Guenther Gustave Rumrich, former U. S. army sergeant; Private Erich Glaser, of the army air corps, Mitchell Field, and Otto Hermann Voss, expert airplane mechanic.

Dr. Griebel was among those indicted, the grand jury describing him as one of the more important intermediaries between the field agents in this country and the directing heads in Germany. His wife was seized and held in $5,000 bail as a material witness as she was preparing to follow him to Germany.

The spy inquiry will continue despite the loss of the services of Leon G. Turrou, who resigned today as a special agent of the bureau of investigation. Turrou, who worked night and day for several months on the case, said his strength had been taxed. He plans to take up writing.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull passed through the city on his way to Washington today but declined to comment on the indictments. He said the troubled foreign situation had led him to cancel all plans for a summer vacation.

The funeral cars drove them about five miles to Mahwah, N. J., where the body was buried in the Copeland family plot in a 200-year-old cemetery in the sight of the Ramapo mountains.

For some 45 minutes before the funeral the mourners passed one-by-one through the small parlor in which the senator's body lay beside great banks of red carnations—the flower he had worn every day as long as his friends could remember.

Up the winding gravel drive, marched Knights Templar in uniform, their ceremonial swords bare, to form a guard of honor. Gerald Griffin, a young Irish tenor, sang but two hymns—"Lord Lift Me Up and Let Me Stand" and "In the Garden." Amplifiers carried his voice to hundreds outside.

The Rev. Charles P. Bispham, an Episcopal rector, said a prayer and delivered a eulogy.

Senator Copeland died last Friday night in Washington.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts! The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, or rich foods or when you are nervous, worried, or over-fatigued, your stomach may not digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over. Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes these little black tablets called Bi-Lax for indigestion to make the stomach stomach itself harmonize, relieve distress in 5 minutes, and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bi-Lax for Indigestion.

PISTOL SHOOT PLANNED HERE

Contests Will Be Held During State Fair Aug. 9 to 14

Plans are underway for holding an upper peninsula championship pistol shooting tournament at the state fair which will be held in Escanaba Aug. 9-14. It will be the first time this kind of an event has been a feature of the fair.

The shoot will be sponsored by the state department of conservation and the Michigan state police. The state highway department is also cooperating in the construction of the range which will be built on the fair grounds.

Present plans call for a 100-foot barricade at the end of the range with runways extending back to the shooting line and marked off at various distances for the location of targets.

Police and sheriff's teams and private gun club members are expected to participate in the meet. Competition will be held for both teams and individual sharpshooters. There are now about six gun clubs in the upper peninsula. The plan is to make the pistol shoot an annual feature of the fair.

Michigan Gas and Oil Lands Leased Take Another Jump

Lansing—With more than 59,000 acres bid in since the first of this year, Michigan now has approximately 279,800 acres of state-owned land under lease for gas and oil development.

More than 33,000 acres were leased this month and 18,948 acres were bid in at two previous 1938 sales, one held in January and the other in April.

On the first day of the June sale, which required two days, 9,692 acres in wildcat territory in Montmorency, Crawford, Otsego, Osceola and Midland counties, in sections where there has been little development, were bid off.

For 23,381 acres leased on the second day of the June sale, a total bid of $7,352 was received. This land is located in Roscommon county in an area where a number of wildcat tests have been drilled. Bids at the January and April sales totalled $50,753 bringing to slightly more than $58,000 the amount the state has received in bonuses on lands leased this year.

In addition to the bonus revenue received on the bids, the state also collects 50 cents a year per acre for land leased, for the first year under lease. For the second year and each succeeding year thereafter for the term of the lease, the state receives one dollar per acre leased unless a well is drilled, in the event of which the rental drops back to the 50 cent annual acreage rate.

Last year the state took in approximately $690,000 in oil and gas bonuses, rental and royalties, the largest revenue from this source on record. These receipts go into the general fund of the state, the department of conservation merely administering the land.

least to see that our bills are not pigeon-holed without hearings," Mr. Gilbert stated.

Leaves for Sweden

Peter J. Olson, 1115 Lake Shore Drive of this city, will leave for Philadelphia, Pa., June 23, to attend the Tercentenary celebration June 26 and 28 of the first Swedes, who landed 300 years ago in Delaware.

Olson has been appointed as delegate to that memorial celebration by the city council to represent this city. Later, Olson will go to New York, and board the Swedish American line motorship Gripsholm, July 1, with Sweden as his destination.

Olson has been employed by the C. & N. W. railroad as a carpenter for over 40 years, and received his pension last year. It is his intention to visit relatives and friends in Gothenburg for several days, and then go to Sunne in the province of Varmland, where he has been born, and where he has relatives living. Varmland is a wonderful country with its venerable little white churches lifting their gabled towers above the trees in every town and hamlet, and on the hill-crests old burial-mounds guard the ashes of the of the present day Varmlanningers, men and women who tilled the same rich earth thousands of years ago.

Sunday afternoon about forty of Mr. Olson's intimate friends held a farewell picnic for Olson at Skogquist's summer cottage, situated between Gladstone and Brampton. Olson received a valuable present, which he will use on his voyage to Sweden. He will remain there a year or more.

Keweenaw Peninsula Ideal Vacation Area

Thousands of tourists from virtually every state in the union this year will visit Keweenaw Peninsula, the attractive peninsula at the northernmost tip of Michigan, and in so doing will help to establish this scenic district as one of the leading summer vacation lands in the country.

Started several years ago when Michigan's Copper Country was in the grip of its worst depression as a means of affording this section an augmented revenue aside from the copper industry, the tourist program has grown so rapidly that it has become an industry in itself, holding excellent promise of a great future.

Development of Keweenaw's scenic and vacationing resources has been extensive and today this spot affords facilities to accommodate every type of tourist. Amusement facilities have been developed, including a nine hole golf course near Copper Harbor that ranks with the best in the Midwest. Every individual spot, however, has its advantageous and special highlights that not only entice the tourist but serve to lure him back again year after year—the final test of a vacation ground's popularity.

The cool, clean breezes of Lake Superior and the natural beauty of the Lake Superior shoreline are outstanding advantages that attract thousands of persons who desire to find refuge from the torrid heat of more southerly areas. The mean temperature of this Keweenaw region is 70 degrees.

IDEAL VACATION LAND

From the tourists' point of view, Keweenaw is ideal for vacationing. Modern hotels, paved roads, tourist camps, golf courses, tennis courts, bathing beaches, bridge paths, boating, canoeing and attractive night clubs, help to add zest to the days and pleasure to the nights.

Perhaps outstanding in picturesque qualities in Keweenaw is the famous Brockway Mountain Drive. This drive, which is 9 1/2 miles long, overlooking the cool, blue waters of Lake Superior, is the highest above-sea-level drive between the Rockies and the Alleghenies. Over a length of four miles the road is between 500 and 742 feet above Lake Superior. The east end overlooks Copper Harbor, historic Fort Wilkins and Lake Superior, Fanny Hoe and Manganese.

After driving west from Copper Harbor along the Brockway Mountain Drive for four miles the visitor reaches West bluff, the highest point on the drive. Here it is 1,345 feet above sea level. From this point one can see Lakes Medora, Upton and Bailey, also Agate Harbor and Eagle Harbor. From this point, too, one can look west as far as atmospheric conditions will permit. Isle Royale, 50 miles out in Lake Superior, can be seen easily on a clear day.

In addition to the Brockway Mountain Drive and closer to the northern shore of the Keweenaw peninsula, between Copper Harbor and Eagle Harbor, is the beautiful Lake Shore Drive. This new section of highway runs through a rocky section of country, but one with good alignment. The new road is free from sharp curves, the only curve of any size being one at Agate Harbor.

Another outstanding drive gaining rapidly in popularity is the Sand Dunes Drive which runs from Eagle Harbor to Eagle River. This unusual route offers something new in scenic attractions and promises to become one of the chief attractions in Keweenaw. These sand dunes are said to rival the famous dunes of Indiana.

A week-end vacation at the Pontiac resort at Copper Harbor, owned and operated by C. Harold Wescoat, formerly of Escanaba, will be one of the prizes to be given at the Fishermen's Party to be held at the Upper Peninsula State Fairgrounds in Escanaba 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 26.

Alert, youthfully vigorous King Gustaf V of Sweden, seen above in his latest picture, stepped out on the royal palace balcony in Stockholm to be spotlighted in the massed searchlights of warships and to hear cheering congratulations of 100,000 subjects on his 80th birthday. A nationwide celebration, with dancing and singing in garlanded streets, testified to the esteem the Swedes have for their monarch.

GOLF TOUR PRO IS APPOINTED

Charles Carr, Formerly of Sault, to Ride Weekly Train

Charles Carr, former professional at the Sault Ste. Marie Country club, has been appointed professional in charge of the weekly golf tours to be run to the Upper Peninsula golf courses, beginning July 9.

Carr was appointed by J. Stuart Rotchford, president of Happiness Tours, Inc., which is conducting the golf tours to the Upper Peninsula. He won the Upper Peninsula golf championship while serving at the Sault. In recent years, he has been working at golf courses in the Chicago area.

As a publicity stunt for the tours, Carr presented a Paul Bunyan golf club to Johnny Revolta, professional at the Escanaba Golf club, on Saturday. Revolta formerly was professional at the Riverside Country club at Menominee.

Newspaper and radio advertising of the golf tours has been started. Fifty thousand folders also will be distributed in the near future.

McCormick-Deering Mowers

Have Always Been Good

and the

No. 7 Enclosed Gear Mower

Is the Best Yet

Come in and see the entire mower. You'll agree that you have never seen anything like it.

WE ARE anxious to have all our friends see the McCormick-Deering No. 7 Enclosed-Gear Mower. We think it is one of the finest pieces of farm equipment we have ever sold!

For example: The entire operating mechanism, including drive gears, differential, and countershafts, is assembled compactly in an oiltight gear housing and runs in a bath of oil. There are ten high-grade roller bearings, six on the main axle and four on the countershaft. Operation is so smooth and noiseless that you can scarcely hear the light hum of the sickle!

Special oil seals at the ends of the main axle and flywheel shaft, and the oiltight gear box prevent leakage and protect all working parts against the entrance of dirt and other abrasive materials. Floating action of cutter bar provides ample play without disturbing knife registration.

This compact nest of enclosed gears runs in a bath of oil—a full gallon. The cover, B, makes the gear case dust-proof and oil-tight. Clutch is thrown in and out by lever, A.

Bridge Friends Cheered

WHILE inspecting the Blue Water International Bridge at Port Huron, Governor Murphy predicted confidently that the bridge linking the two peninsulas at the Straits of Mackinac would be built. He indicated that money from the new pump-priming fund would be made available for this huge project, the cost of which is estimated at $30,000,000.

The assurance came from Governor Murphy just at the time when the Straits of Mackinac bridge boosters were dejected over the failure of Congress to consider the project before adjournment. Just how the funds will be made available is not known, but the governor has promised a statement that will explain the entire plan, probably today.

If the bridge project is launched, it will require about seven or eight years to complete. It is true the gigantic construction project will in itself be a tourist magnet in the same way as the Golden Gate Bridge attracted many sightseers. In the meantime, Straits of Mackinac ferry fleet, which will be augmented next week by the "City of Munising", will be taking care of transportation needs at the straits. The new addition to the fleet should do much to relieve the congestion that existed during the rush travel season last year.

Elements of Democracy

THERE is one thing that marks democracy off from other systems of government, it is this: In democracy, minorities are assured that certain rights common to all may not be taken away from them, even by a majority.

Thus democracy is greater than mere "majority rule." It means that all individual men have certain rights which can not be taken from them whether they happen to agree or not with the majority at any given time and place. It means that all the force of the public power shall be used to see that they get those rights, even at times and under circumstances when at a given time and place a local majority may oppose it.

It is because this principle lies close to the core and heart of democracy, that the row now going on in Newark and Jersey City over Mayor Frank Hague is more important than a mere local affair. It is important that people understand the principles involved.

Hague's defense in the failure to protect Norman Thomas from a mob which egged him was simply that people were against Thomas and the police could not prevent his being attacked—that they did well to get him out with his life.

That is scarcely enough to satisfy anyone with any faith in democracy. People who didn't care for Thomas' principles, and didn't wish to hear him speak could very well stay away. To allow them to assemble and violently assault a man exercising a commonly recognized right to make a speech, is something else again.

Note how closely other rights are tied in with this simple principle of guaranteeing to individuals their rights even though they may be in a minority. Mayor Hague is a Catholic—a religion whose followers are a minority in the United States. Would Hague agree that in a community where there were few Catholics, it would be all right for a local majority to stone worshippers from the church door, with police displaying no interest more than to get them out of town alive? Probably he wouldn't. He would say "that's different."

But that is just what has happened repeatedly in Mexico. In small towns where anti-church feeling was strong, such people would gather and assault church-goers. Public authority, noting that the anti-church faction appeared to be in a majority, would stand aside.

You might argue that that is majority rule, but it is not democracy. For democracy assumes that men have certain rights as men and as citizens which even a majority can not and must not take away.

Sounding Out Sentiment

TWO leaders of the dry cause in the state, Dr. D. L. McBride, superintendent, and M. D. Gilbert, field secretary of the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, visited Sault Ste. Marie and Chippewa county this week to sound out dry sentiment.

The Anti-Saloon League is pursuing the same line of strategy that was used so effectively about a score years ago. They are calling upon candidates for the legislature to secure commitments concerning their attitude on legislation.

It is going to be a slow, uphill fight for the Anti-Saloon League, however. The people have had prohibition, and were not satisfied with it. They then turned to repeal, and while admittedly conditions are not as rosy as the wets predicted they will be the majority of the voters would be still opposed to a return to prohibition.

Very likely, the Anti-Saloon League realizes this, and is concentrating its efforts upon improving conditions that exist under a legalized liquor traffic. And everyone will admit that there is room for improvement. More young people are frequenting liquor places now than in the days of the old-time, much abused saloon. More persons are driving automobiles on our highways and streets while in an intoxicated condition, and more fatalities and injuries are being caused by such traffic accidents than ever before.

If the Anti-Saloon League succeeds in eliminating some of the evils that exist under the present system, they will be doing the liquor industry a real favor. For nothing will bring the industry in disrepute quicker than a continuance of those conditions which eventually will cause public opinion to rebel against them.

State Cars and Trucks

THE Grand Rapids Herald, in a recently published editorial, points to the large number of state-owned automobiles and trucks that are burning gas and oil over Michigan highways as one of the reasons why state expenditures are mounting.

Harold D. Smith, state budget director, recently announced that an investigation is to be made to find out how many passenger cars and trucks are bought and paid for by the state for the use of its employees and departments, and he has further announced that the investigation will take a year, the Herald comments.

Both those statements are thoroughly astonishing. In any business concern the proper authority would pull out a card and tell immediately how many cars the concern purchased, for whose use, and all the detail connected with them, the make of cars, engine numbers, license numbers and all other information. And furthermore, that concern would have in its possession the titles to these cars.

It appears first that the State and nobody connected with the State knows how many cars the taxpayers have paid for, who drives them or who holds the titles to them. Plainly, the State doesn't hold the titles. Worse than this, Mr. Smith says there "may be about 1,200 cars and trucks" which have been paid for out of the State Treasury but that no accurate record is kept of them. The Secretary of State who issues the licenses says that he has issued 1,997 licenses for cars and trucks but that some duplications "seem possible. Then he throws up his hands and says he has no way of knowing how many motor vehicles the State has bought or who has them.

Mr. Smith comes to bat again to say that some of these cars "carry no mark distinguishing them from privately owned vehicles." And then nobody seems to know how many cars purchased by the State may have been "diverted in whole or in part to private use" which, in plain English means cars that in effect have been stolen by those who use them.

Practice has been, it seems, for the head of a department to buy a car for himself or place his OK on an order for somebody in his department to buy one. That man has bought it in his own name, sent the bill to the State and the State, on the OK of the department head, has paid it. The purchaser has kept the title and used the car as his own. The State knows nothing of what has become of it.

Cars cost a lot of money. Trucks cost more money. Many department heads and others in positions of authority of course wouldn't be satisfied to drive one of the lower priced cars. It would be beneath the dignity of the offices they hold. Suppose, therefore, that the approximately 2,000 cars and trucks licensed cost an average of $1,000, which would be very low indeed, then the State has invested in motor vehicles the tidy sum of $2,000,000 and doesn't know what has become of the motor vehicles thus purchased. If this is the system in motor vehicles, isn't it likely the same system prevails in the purchase of a great many other things. But what of it? The taxpayers have to dig up. But is there any wonder in view of these circumstances that the expenditures of State Government are tremendous and that taxes are unutterably high?

BROWN'S DEFENSE

Senator Brown says he is "for the principle" of excluding politics from WPA. He then explains he voted against the Hatch amendment, applying the principle in spending the enlarged federal relief fund soon to be made available by the splendid recovery bill, for "two reasons."

One reason he gives it that the horde on the department of agriculture payroll ought also to be kept out of politics. He is "convinced there will be legislation brought in to cover the whole field and when it is I shall vote for it."

His second reason is that he believed the amendment was unfairly a slap at Democratic Senate Leader Barkley. In his campaign against Governor Chandler for reappointment. This factor, Brown says, "really was responsible for defeating the amendment."

However unfairly Barkley may be under attack in Kentucky, for "an alleged use of WPA," the issue of keeping WPA out of politics—in the United States, in Kentucky, in Michigan—was drawn by the Hatch amendment. Informed observers of how things are done in congress know that advances toward enforcing principles of political purity can be made only as opportunities arise.

Yes, the AAA thousands ought also to be under the same ban on undue political activity. But the outcome is that not only they but the WPA thousands also escape the ban, at least until after this year's primaries and elections. And that is added to past showings which make the prospects of covering the entire field, after the election, dubious indeed!

World Affairs Reviewed

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—Of all the wars of history the Carthaginian Wars are probably as well known as any others. They extended over a thousand years involving the Greeks, the Romans, and the Vandals, all as foemen of the people of Carthage. They were sanguinary in the extreme and, even after so many centuries, bring a shudder to the historian or student of military history.

Today it appears that not a few observers of European and African affairs would not be surprised to see another Carthaginian War. This would not be a war against Carthage because Carthage is no more. It would be another fresh war of conquest on the part of the legions of Rome, but it would be commanded by Benito Mussolini, First Marshal of Italy, and would, in effect, be against France because France now holds as a colonial appanage the North African region of Tunisia and this same Tunisia occupies the land which once was tributary to imperial Carthage.

There has been much discussion as to the value of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia. The cost of that war was, it is known, tremendous. It has placed the Italian people under a pressing burden of taxation and debt. Yet it is known that Ethiopia is rich in many natural resources and it is by no means out of the question that such wealth in base and precious metals, in water power, timber, and other resources might come out of the ancient empire of the Conquering Lions of Judah, that Italy would be more than repaid.

It is usual to think of North Africa in terms of desert and, it is true, wide expanses of the land are given over to the drifting sands, to an aridity only sparsely relieved by infrequent oases. Yet it must be remembered that the country involved was not always in this condition. Indeed, ancient Carthage, the land that now is Tunis, was, in the days of the Carthaginian and Roman Empire extremely rich. Indeed, even before the rise of Rome, the Greeks used to depend upon the general region for their supplies of grain, cattle, and other produce.

POTENTIALITIES OF WARFARE

There have been changes in the character of the surface of North Africa and the desert has encroached, yet some modern engineers have not thought it out of the question that North Africa's productiveness might be restored. Certainly it would seem many of the same elements of soil and climate which made North Africa the garden spot of the Mediterranean world still be present. In Algeria the French have already worked wonders in restoring through irrigation and other engineering works some of the resourcefulness of that region. The same might well be accomplished in Tunisia.

Italy already holds Libya, another stretch of desert which lies immediately to the eastward of Tunisia and to the westward of Egypt. Egypt is now, of course, an independent kingdom but still is closely allied with Great Britain. The latter country cannot afford to have too large a territory alongside Egypt on the North African coast held by at least a semi-hostile state and that Italy is considered by many to be in spite of the recent conversations which have taken place between the Court of the Quirinal and the Court of St. James.

Marshal Balbo, who became well known to Americans when he made his historic flight with a whole squadron of airplanes to the Century of Progress World's Fair at Chicago, is Governor of Libya. He has fortified it. He has built barbed wire fences deep into the desert and these are patrolled on the one side against British and Egyptians and on the other against the French. Marshal Balbo has 40,000 white troops in Libya together with unnumbered thousands of Askaris and other black but well trained and armed troops.

It has been interesting from the theoretical point of view to watch Mussolini's tactics of late in connection with these North African possessions. After the conquest of Carthage, Rome built great cities on that coast herself and the ruins of them are of domineering magnificence. Mussolini has spread the eagles, fasces, and other symbols of Roman power over the Libyan land and has, himself, taken part in extraordinary ceremonies such as marked the instatement of proconsuls of the early Roman days. There has been a deliberate and intensely theatrical attempt to bring back the splendor of old Rome as an African suzerain.

Only last summer during the Italian naval maneuvers, the Italian fleet stretched a barrage of submarines all the way across the Mediterranean from Italian territory on the north to Tunis on the south. Moreover, from the Italian territory of Sicily it is possible to fly bombers to Tunisia in less than half an hour.

lars out of the community at a time when the community can least afford to lose the money. It will appeal to a considerable extent to persons of the low income group who can least afford to throw away money—and it amounts to nothing more than throwing it away when it goes to a carnival. It will take from the merchants money that ought to be directed into legitimate channels. In short, there isn't a sound argument in favor of allowing a carnival to come here.

The old contention that "if we don't allow a carnival to come here, Menominee will do it" doesn't hold water. That's just like saying two wrongs make a right.

A reader can get the answer to any question of fact by writing The Escanaba Daily Press Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C. Please enclose three (3) cents for reply.

Q. Are there any Pullman cars named for living men? W. J. H. A. The Pullman Company says there are but three cars in this category, namely Colonel Lindbergh, Amos G. Carter, and General W. C. Brown. All are operated on the Pennsylvania Railroad between New York and St. Louis.

Q. On what island do the inhabitants talk by whistling? H. M. G. A. In Gomera, Canary Islands, the natives communicate with each other by means of whistling. This language originated from the fact that this volcanic island is crisscrossed by impassable gorges and as whistling carries farther than speaking, it was the most convenient form of address.

Q. What is a walk-over race? J. S. W. A. It is a stake race in which all horses entered except one have been withdrawn, leaving that horse to walk over the distance and be credited with a win.

Q. Have punctuation marks long been in use? G. F. C. A. Simple punctuation is found as early as 354 B. C., but it was not until the Fifteenth Century that a system was used.

Q. Who is Luther Adler who is playing in Golden Boy? W. H. A. He is the son of Jacob Adler, one of the greatest actors who ever performed with the Yiddish Art Theatre. Young Adler made his first professional appearance at the age of ten in the Yiddish Theatre. He later appeared with Laurette Taylor in Humoresque and with Margaret Anglin in Iphigenia. He has performed with the Provincetown Players, toured with many road companies, and played with the Theatre Guild.

Q. Please give directions for making artificial sea water for an aquarium. J. H. G. A. One recipe is as follows: Chloride of sodium (common table salt) 81 parts; chloride of potassium, 2 parts; chloride of magnesium, 10 parts; sulphate of magnesium (Epsom salts), 7 parts; total 100 parts. A pound of this mixture is sufficient to make about 3 gallons of artificial sea water. This should be filtered before use in the aquarium. Fresh water must be added to replace loss by evaporation. The addition of sea water would eventually cause the salinity to become too great, inasmuch as the salts do not evaporate.

Q. How many people in the United States are unemployed? R. H. F. A. It is estimated that from 12,000,000 to 12,500,000 workers were unemployed in March, 1938.

Q. How is distance below sea level measured? D. S. A. The U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey says that the first step is, of course, to establish sea level for the general vicinity where the measurements are desired. The mean sea level at any place is the average level of any surface of the sea at that place and is determined by averaging the hourly heights of the sea over a period of a year or more. Automatic tide gages are used for this purpose. These tide gages draw a continuous curve of the fluctuating surface of the sea. Distances below sea level, or below sea level elevations, can then be determined as follows: In land areas below sea level, such as Death Valley, California, by spirit leveling connected to bench marks on the coast whose relation to sea level has been established. In areas covered by the sea, by making measurements by any of the accurate methods of sounding, including echo sounding. In the method of echo sounding, the depth of the bottom below sea level is determined by making use of the knowledge of the velocity of sound in sea water.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington, June 21.—The millennium, when the lion and the lamb shall die down together, is very far from being at hand. But, although business and government have never been more unfriendly, the time is not yet past when Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, and Thurman W. Arnold, official trust-buster of the New Deal, can take a cocktail off the same tray.

The meeting was a significant one — less because the New Dealers present assured the business men that the one-come anti-monopoly inquiry would be fair and reasonable, than because it was part of a new and more promising effort to bring government and business together.

The get-together was arranged by Prentiss Cooney, a tall, sandy-haired, pleasant mannered partner of Paul Shields, the powerful broker who is Wall Street's chief contact with the White House. At the suggestion of W. Averill Harriman, chairman of the Board of the Union Pacific Railroad and another White House friend, Cooney moved to Washington a month or so ago to promote better business-government relations.

With a desk in the business advisory council offices at the Commerce Department and a handsome house in Georgetown, Cooney has been hard at work. Last Thursday evening, when Stettinius and Arnold dined with him, was a sample effort.

EVENING PARTY

The other men present were SEC Commissioner Jerome N. Frank; Leon Henderson, the WPA economist; Thomas G. Corcoran; Clarence Francis, president of General Foods; George Sloan, of the Cotton Textile Institute, and Blackwell Smith, a Washington lawyer.

The party was not only distinguished; it was agreeable. Before and during dinner, shop-talk was outlawed. And then, after coffee and cigars, there was a round table. Since the New Dealers were all men deeply interested in the anti-monopoly inquiry, while the business men were all potential victims, it was, rather naturally, the principal subject.

The voluble and entertaining Arnold assured the business men that the chief object of the inquiry would be to obtain facts. Yet with his delight in upsetting others, he could not refrain from predicting, from time to time, that the inquiry would not lack for exciting moments. Frank went further, stating that "witch-hunting" be avoided, that the inquiry be modeled on a British royal commission. And Henderson supported Frank, pointing out that if business men could defend "restrictive" price policies, the inquiry would give them a forum.

The gathering was friendly. And while the differences in the New Deal and the business definitions of "witch-hunting" probably prevented any important results, at least the party broke up with each side better able to understand the other.

STILL BUGABOOS

Since he first came to Washington, Cooney has held a series of similar meetings. His effort was suggested by Averill Harriman after the President's now long-forgotten fireside chat offering the olive branch to business. And although the olive branch seemed to be promptly withdrawn, Cooney has gone hopefully on, mixing bank presidents and left-wing economists, large industrialists and White House advisers.

It might be added that the real significance of the Cooney effort is to be found in its failure to produce real results. In the period since his meetings began, the relations between business and government have steadily worsened. The pump-priming bill, which would once have produced temporary business confidence, has only aroused more fear. The White House purge of the Democratic Party is looked upon with excitable suspicion. And the anti-monopoly inquiry, in spite of all the assurances, remains a terrifying bugaboo, even for the men who dined with Cooney.

And all this is so although Cooney and many other influential men have tried in different ways to cure the situation. The answer would appear to be that the interests of the New Deal and of business are too contradictory to permit peace between them.

Indeed, the chances now are that the warfare between business and the New Deal will grow steadily more violent. The President is seeking a political realignment, in which all conservatives will be herded into one camp, and all liberals and radicals into another. If he is to win elections as the chieftain of the left-wing liberal forces, he must make aggressive war on his enemies. Realignment is not the mother of compromise.

"Slavish Equality in Reich Seen," reads a news headline. The story turns out to be about Slavs.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

MAN LOOKS FOR WEALTH Man looks for wealth, and wealth he finds, But there is wealth of many kinds, And he may learn the wealth he sought At first is not the wealth he thought. Though man may pile it very high, There is but little it will buy.

But, even as he labors long, He looks a little for a song; And when a highway he must wend, He looks about him for a friend; Confronted by some rocky slope, He even searches for a hope.

And when the journey's near the close Their wealth is not what men suppose. They do not talk about their gold But turn again to friends of old, And little then the coin they clutch, But song and hope are very much.

We in China need substantial and unshamed humility. —Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of China's generalissimo.

Where Scores Drowned as Train Plunged Into Stream

The scene of indescribable horror and confusion resulting when the Milwaukee railroad's crack "Olympian" plunged through a bridge near Miles City, Mont., causing an appalling toll of more than two score deaths, is graphically depicted in the above aerial photograph. Almost entirely submerged beside one of the concrete bridge piers is one of the cars (No. 1) in which many died. Rescue workers were forced to cut this car open with acetylene torches before being able to reach the bodies inside. Still standing despite the tremendous force of the "flash flood" which swept down Custer creek are the two concrete piers (No. 2) which supported the bridge. From cars from which some passengers were able to escape are shown (No. 3), piled up on the banks of the creek. No. 4 shows the train's locomotive which succeeded in crossing the bridge, but was overturned and wrecked when the cars behind broke through the structure. The wrecking engine, which pulled the cars from the water with a crane, is shown near the overturned locomotive.

FERRY TO USE LOCAL SCENES

City of Munising Lounge Will Carry Murals of Alger District

Munising, June 21—The remodeled railway car ferry, the Pere Marquette No. 20, will be christened the "City of Munising" next Sunday in Escanaba and Munising residents are making preparations for the event.

The boat has been in the Manitowoc shipyards where it underwent remodeling and will go into service at the Straits of Mackinac plying between St. Ignace and Mackinaw City for the state highway department.

The craft is valued at $425,000 by the United States Salvage association. It was purchased by the state for ferry use at the cost of $60,000 and since that time the remodeling expenditures have cost $123,000.

The vessel has been painted white, the official color of all state boats at the Straits, gangways have been cut into the sides to permit side-loading as well as end-loading, overhead machinery installed, the boilers have been reconditioned, railroad tracks removed, a passenger cabin constructed and crew quarters rebuilt.

The "City of Munising," has a cruising speed of 12 miles an hour, two miles faster than the average for the other state-owned boats. It will handle a load of 120 vehicles, compared to the 85 which the "City of Cheboygan," second largest ship in the state fleet, can handle.

Scenic attractions in the Munising area will be glorified by a novel design arrangement in the "City of Munising" lounge. The state highway department has asked city and civic authorities to submit photos of resort and scenic attractions of the region and photographs or else actual paintings will be worked out from those submitted.

Highway department artists will do the work. G. Donald Kennedy, deputy state highway commissioner pointed out that no definite plans have been worked out but that "we want this boat to bring to the attention of tourists in the most forceful and attractive way possible the attractions of the Munising area."

my foods properly and I was nervous, tired and worn-out most all of the time. I had been bothered considerably too with bowel troubles and sick headaches. These ailments all began about fifteen years ago and I had suffered since. It seemed impossible for me to eat anything and escape those terrible attacks of indigestion afterwards. I could not get a good night's sleep and really lacked the strength and energy to get about as I should. I had about decided there was nothing to help me when I finally learned of KruGon... it was different."

"The very first box of KruGon I took corrected my stomach troubles," continued Mrs. Charles Wilson, "and I can now eat and enjoy my meals without any bad effects afterwards. Even my nerves have been quieted now and I am free of those awful sick headaches. My aches and pains are practically gone, bowels regulated and I sleep soundly the entire nights through. No wonder so many people praise this new laxative-ionic for it is the first medicine I have ever found that did not disappoint."

Death came at 7:40 p. m. Tuesday to claim August Boman, 1115 Second avenue north, who passed away suddenly after a heart attack, following a month's illness.

He was born April 3, 1856, in Varmland, Sweden, and came to the United States in 1873, settling at Escanaba. In 1905 he retired from active work due to an accident. He was a member of the Bethany Lutheran church.

The survivors include: two daughters, Mrs. Daniel Erickson and Miss Jennie Boman of Escanaba; and one granddaughter, Mr. Boman's wife died six years ago.

The body was taken to the Anderson funeral home, where arrangements for the last rites will be completed today.

Yachtsmen Hold Class B Regatta Sunday, June 26

According to its summer program, the Escanaba Yacht Club will hold its class B regatta Sunday afternoon, June 26, on the north shore.

This race will be around a three mile triangular course with start and finish buoys located just north of the city dock. Local boats participating will be the Onaway, Charliann, and Vagabond and it is expected that there may be two more entries, namely, the Sea Hag and Betty Ann from Gladstone.

In the 1937 Autumn Regatta, Anthony's Vagabond ran away from both the Onaway and the Charliann and the skippers of the last two named have been waiting for an opportunity to get revenge.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

COMMENCEMENT TALK DODGES MATRIMONY Men Graduates Get Advice on Business Career—Never on Important Job of Choosing a Wife.

In all the advice that was handed to men graduated from college, along with their diplomas, there didn't seem to be any comment on the kind of girl a young man should marry.

And yet marriage is probably the most important step those young men will take in the next ten years—it not in a lifetime. Contrary to popular belief, a man's choice of a marriage partner is just as important as a woman's choice.

For hard, practical reasons, a young man should know that if he marries a woman that other women instinctively dislike, his social life will suffer—and probably his business career.

For women rule the social world. They decide who will be taken into a group and who won't. In no time at all, a genial young man whose wife has never learned to get along with other women will find that invitations are few and far between. He probably will never learn that he didn't get a certain promotion because the wife of the man who controlled it held a grudge against his wife.

Not pretty business—but the kind of thing that happens over and over again. And a young man should know that fundamental honesty is an important quality in a life partner. That a good disposition wears better than glamor or uncertainty.

Someone should open his eyes to the inevitable defeat of the man who marries a "mama's girl."

Also we hope he knows enough to run as fast as he can if he finds himself about to marry a girl simply because she and her mother seem to take it for granted, not because he thinks it's a good idea. Girls are given all kinds of advice, about men. But most young men are never taught there is any difference in girls—except in charm and physical attractiveness.

Muriel LaHaie, Wausau, Bride in Ceremony June 18

Of interest to many residents of Escanaba is the marriage of Miss Muriel LaHaie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward LaHaie, of Wausau, Wis., and David Pospychalla, also of Wausau, which took place on Saturday, June 18.

The LaHaies formerly lived in Escanaba, moving to Wausau ten years ago, and Muriel attended grade school here.

The account of the wedding in the Daily Record-Herald of Wausau is as follows:

"One of the pretty weddings solemnized in the city today was that of Miss Muriel LaHaie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward LaHaie, 609 First street, and David Pospychalla, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Pospychalla, 706 S. Third avenue.

"The nuptial mass was celebrated at 8 o'clock by the Rev. Father T. E. O'Shaughnessy before the altar of St. James' church, which was decorated with palms and cut flowers. Russell Theisen and his sisters, Miss Edith Theisen, sang an 'Ave Maria' and 'On This Day, O Beautiful Mother,' being accompanied by the organ by Mrs. F. B. Conway, who also played the wedding marches.

"The bride, who was presented in marriage by her father, wore a lovely gown of white silk marquisette over satin. It was designed with a very full skirt and fitted bodice with tiny puffed sleeves. Gardenias held her finger-tip veil in place, and gardenias and sweet peas were combined in the bouquet which she carried with her white prayer book.

"Her sister, Jean, the bride's only attendant, was identically attired in peach silk marquisette. She wore a peach hat with a short, daring veil and carried a round Colonial bouquet of roses and bachelor buttons. Norbert Britten attended as best man.

"The bride's mother wore a navy-blue lace dress with hat to match, and the bridegroom's mother was attired in a navy-blue ensemble with figured jacket of blue and white. Both wore shoulder bouquets of mixed flowers.

"A wedding breakfast, with covers laid for 25, followed at the Wausau Country club. Tables were attractively decorated with white candles, low bowls of peonies and the wedding cakes.

"Mr. and Mrs. Pospychalla have departed on a wedding trip through northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. For traveling, the bride chose a turquoise-blue cape ensemble, trimmed in British-tan, and is wearing a hat and accessories of British-tan and white.

"After July 1 they will be at home to friends at 527 N. Third avenue.

"The bridegroom is a salesman for a wholesale house. Mrs. Pospychalla before her marriage was in the Employers Mutuals' local office."

Scenes Along Highway US-2 Are Described

(By Arthur W. Stace.)

One section of US-2 around the northern end of Lake Michigan from St. Ignace to Escanaba on Little Bay de Noc has not been relocated and paved. This is the gravel stretch from the end of the shore road concrete west of Brevort to the vicinity of Blaney park, a distance of approximately 50 miles.

Some day when the state highway department has funds for the purpose a direct paved road closer to the big lake doubtless will be constructed. The present gravel highway goes far inland to carry travel through the more settled strip along the Soo Line railroad. This swing of the road takes the northernmost sweep of Lake Michigan, which is in the vicinity of Naubinway bay.

Just at the point where US-2 swings to the north away from the shore, about seven miles from Brevort, a mile-long county road leads down a steep hill to Epoufette upon a little bay sheltered from the west by Point Epoufette. The name means in French "place of rest," and the spot was so designated, according to the federal writers project, Michigan guide, because it was believed Fr. Marquette used the harbor for his first rest stop on his trips westward from St. Ignace. Log cabins set amidst cedars give a quaint aspect to the old fishing village.

Old Sawmill Towns

Along the old gravel road are villages that once were thriving sawmill towns—Rexton, Garnet, Gilchrist.

From east of Brevort to west of Gilchrist US-2 runs through the 90,000-acre area embraced in the Mackinac State forest. It is a region of woods, cutovers, lakes and streams. According to the federal writers guide deer average about 25 to the square mile. They rarely are seen on the main road.

One mile west of Garnet is the junction with M48, which runs north to M28, from which a local road runs to Soo Junction, point of departure for Tahquamenon falls by way of the Toonerville trolley and river boats.

West of Gilchrist a county road leads to Naubinway, a quaint fishing village on a rocky bay of Lake Michigan. The bay is Lake Michigan's "farthest north."

Blaney Park Is Unique

Five miles west of Gilchrist is the 40,000-acre tract of the Hiawatha Sportsman's club, which extends as far as Lake Michigan. Millecoquin or Thousand Heavens lake, as interpreted, 1,000 acres, is glimpsed from US-2.

Milakokia (Thousand She-Devils) lake, 1,500 acres, lies south of US-2 west of Gould City.

Unique among Michigan resorts is Blaney park. Here a lumbering tract of 22,000 acres has been converted into a great outing area with trails, hunting grounds, game refuges, lakes, a swimming pool, a golf course, bridge paths and the like, with 10,000 additional acres a short distance away on Lake Michigan. The former model lumber town, established in 1902 by the Wisconsin Land & Lumber Co., has been converted into accommodations for guests, with lodges, cottages, and a central dining "inn." Wild life is abundant, including deer.

Great limestone quarries operated by the Inland Steel Co. lie on the Lake Michigan shore near Seul Choix point. Here a limestone plant and shipping port have been built to which come large boats to carry the limestone to distant steel mills. Port Inland is reached by M99 from a point near Gulliver. The road passes McDonald lake, 220 acres. From Port Inland the nearest islands of the Beaver group are only 16 miles distant. From US2 glimpses are caught of Gulliver lake, 380 acres.

Approaching Manistique, US2 tops a sand ridge and comes to the Lake Michigan beach. The view is striking and refreshing after many miles of inland travel. The road runs along the beach and amidst low dunes. Where until recently was a deserted shore, tourist cabins have sprung up. The road turns inland near the mouth of Manistique river, passes the public tourist camp, and enters Manistique. Once a lumbering town of major importance, Manistique now has a diversity of industries, the largest being the Manistique Pulp & Paper Co.

Bridge Floor Below Water

Into Manistique harbor come Ann Arbor Railroad car ferries, carrying freight cars and automobiles back and forth across the upper reaches of Lake Michigan between Frankfort and the north shore. Here, too, centers an extensive fishing industry.

From the Manistique lakes northeast of Blaney the Manistique river meanders down through the Cusino State game area to Lake Michigan, picking up the waters of numerous tributaries on the way. US2 crosses the river—here confined in a concrete power race—by a unique bridge, the floor of which actually is below the water level on either side.

Department Plans Inland Lake Patrol Again This Year

Lansing—With the approach of the 1938 lake fishing season, plans are about completed for resumption of the inland water patrol which last year was extended over the majority of large lakes in the northern part of the state and to a more limited degree on southern Michigan waters.

An additional number of boats have been obtained this year which will permit an extension of the patrol in the southern part of the state.

The patrol was found especially effective in enforcing the fishing regulations because the use of boats enabled conservation officers to go out on the water for an inspection of catches instead of waiting until the fishermen came to shore.

Fires in District Are Less Than Last Year, Records Show

Should present conditions exist throughout the summer months, last year's all time record for the lack of forest and grass fires in this district will be broken, according to a check of statistics at the district headquarters of the conservation department.

Until June 21 of this year, only 28 fires had been reported, covering 233 acres. This is an average of less than 10 acres per fire.

Last year on the same date, 39 fires had consumed 370 acres while in 1936, 454 acres were burned by 38 fires.

Conditions for suppression of fires have been almost ideal thus far this year, conservation officers report, many well spaced rains keeping the foliage and ground cover well saturated. They pointed out, however, that with three or four more days like yesterday, the hazards will rise rapidly.

Two Floods Are Threatening Unhappy China

In the midst of valiant efforts to defend their country against Japanese invaders the unhappy Chinese people are threatened by two dangerous floods. Both are traditional and both wreck human lives.

One is the flood of opinion which Japanese attack is importing into China under the protection of Japan's military forces. The other menace is the all-time traditional Summer overflow of the Yellow River, whose popular name — China's Scourge, the Ungovernable, the Scourge of the Sons of Han — indicates its unhappy relation to the Chinese people.

The Hwang-Ho is the most northerly of China's great rivers. For 2,500 miles it rolls through China's central and northern plains and gorges, finding its source far to the north in Mongolia. Its name derives from the yellow earth which it carries in suspension and which is lifting the river bottom at the rate of one foot each century.

For thousands of years the Chinese have vainly endeavored to regulate its flow by dike construction. Even at low water the river surface is often 15 feet above the level of the surrounding plain and at high water rises 30 feet above it.

The dikes are far apart and often broken. This changes the river's course, enabling it to create fresh havoc along its meandering way. During a flood in 1852 the mouth of the river was shifted 250 miles to the north. Years ago the International Famine Relief Commission proposed to straighten the river channel to prevent floods and reclaim agricultural land. The project was begun but never completed.

Japan Aggression Halted Work

More recently Japanese aggression has impoverished the Nanking Government and kept it from continuing work on the dikes. For the past year practically nothing has been done. The dikes have deteriorated, and with more than average rainfall, disastrous floods were inevitable. Already hundreds of thousands are reported drowned and homeless, and the disaster has just begun. It comes at a moment when sympathetic Americans are uniting in a nation-wide effort to bring some measure of relief to the stricken Chinese people.

The flood has held up Japan's military drive toward Hankow from the north. It has brought heavy losses in men and material to the Japanese Army. But the drive through Honan Province is a relatively minor feature of Japan's campaign and delay here will not prove a vital factor in the general situation. That depends much more on the success of the combined effort of Japan's army and navy to reach Hankow by way of the Yangtze.

The flood of opium which Japanese authorities are allowing to pour into China was called to the world's attention in Geneva this week. Stewart J. Fuller, United States delegate on the League of Nations Opium Advisory Committee, declared that the Japanese Army in China now is importing and distributing many tons of raw opium. He said that a single gang operating in the Japanese concession in Tientsin has sent $10,000,000 worth of heroin to the United States in the last 15 months. His well-documented charges suggest that the United States has more than a humanitarian interest in taking vigorous steps to check this flagrant violation of international agreements on the drug trade.

Strikes Across Frontiers

This is not the first time that the world has heard similar charges against the Japanese. Wherever Japan has seized control in Chinese territory the illicit drug traffic thrives. The efforts of Eiji Amu, the Japanese member of the Opium Advisory Committee, to shift the blame for the opium flood on the provisional governments in Manchuria and North China is an unworthy subterfuge. Every one knows that these dummy authorities were established by Japan and represent no one but Japan.

Here are two examples of how the breakdown in normal controls can bring suffering and desolation. The sums which China has expended in resisting invasion might have gone far to help her people overcome the scourge of Yellow River floods. Our own work on the Mississippi shows how much can be done in this direction. If Chiang Kai-shek's government had been permitted to continue its vigorous efforts for the complete suppression of opium smoking it might, by this time, have gone a long way to save the Chinese people from this age-old menace.

Like many other attacks on decent rules of international conduct, this Japanese-directed drug danger strikes across frontiers. The cheap heroin cigarettes now making their appearance in Shanghai will soon come to the United States and other countries. The menace is real and we must face it.

The integrated world in which we live makes it more and more essential that those nations which

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOE MURRAY—lived new places, new jobs, new girls.
HELEN—fell in love—hard—once.
TERRY MALLOW—found love—and kept it!

Yesterday, Joe takes part in a gas station holdup, is struck sick at his act, flees the little town that night on a passenger train . . . alone.

CHAPTER XIX
That was how Joe at long last came to let them know at home his whereabouts. He was forced to stop. He never saw Red again after that quick farewell at the mouth of the alley. He travelled far that night, and he saw nothing in the newspapers in another state about the shooting. What finally happened, he never learned. But he knew that the police of the nation were informed, and that the jungles, the camps, the highways and the yards, were being searched and dragged and watched for a thousand miles around.

Joe made up a presentable bundle out of canvas stuffed with rags and papers and tied with rope, all secured at a city dump, and registered in a cheap hotel on the strength of his baggage, and then wrote by air mail, telling the Murrys where he was, that he was in trouble and must lay low, and that he needed money to keep up the front. He gave no details; he said that he dared not travel or frequent the places of his kind until a storm blew over, and that they need only help him a little while. And they must not talk.

After the letter was dispatched, he spent four days in his room, going out only at night to scour the back ways of the city for a scrap of food.

Money arrived on the fifth day. The letter was a quick scrawl, to lose no time. Most everything was as he had left it at home. Terry had given her flat and moved back to her home. They did not see so much of her now. Dad was fine, working steady, but less money. Irene was still looking Tommy Withers was the lucky one; an expert now, in charge of maintenance, and well off. Here was a little money, all that was at hand. More would follow. Did he want his carfare home? They could manage somehow. Wouldn't he be best at home, safest? He must write immediately, and good luck.

It was a Spartan letter, without rebuke or tear; that was Mrs. Murray writing.
Joe wrote, thanking them all, but he stayed where he was. Joe's reasons were vague, not well defined, but valid. Going home was a sentimental thought, but useless. Going home was quiet up. God knows, there was little to give up, but that little was too closely identified with his manhood, somehow. He could bring himself to ask for their aid in trouble, but not for his daily keep. Maybe he'd find work; it was some time now since he had settled down and looked for it, to exhaustion.

And so a new way of life was launched. The hotel was an ancient institution on a downtown street in a city that you would know very well indeed if I named it. The hotel had long had its day, to the extent that Joe's room cost him two and a half per week. Another dollar or two kept him in food, with a little skrimishing around to help out. The weather was coming warmer, and he was comfortable, if quickly and thoroughly disillusioned about work. Day after day, and the cops did not molest him—nor, he was to find, would they ever.

What he missed those days was companionship. The city left him utterly alone. He found why the jungles were thronged and the yards and highways overrun. To be working and alone was bad; to be idle and alone was worse, and unnecessary. You could have companionship for the asking by taking to the road; the worse off you were, the closer the bond with your myriad fellows. It was a huddling together of the doomed, but it was companionship.

Joe was alone again, and a prisoner this time. He saw many of his kind—you always did, in the cities: lone ones wandering endless sidewalks, unable to break away. There was a low street in this town, a street you may never have heard of, but which is unique in the nation, cheap, sordid, starving, but crowded, garish, noisy with hawkers, pitchmen, medicine shows, dime restaurants, dime burlesques, nickel theatres . . . with people, all kinds and conditions. Old women with fixed staring eyes and bundles, old men, moaning by, hung with scarecrow garments; young girls with bright eyes and unwashed necks, and young men strutting in patent leather shoes. Busy men and hard men and soft men and thieves.

Here the lone one came, to listen to voices and to brush elbows and to be accosted, cajoled, appealed to, harried—hungry for it. Most everyone here was hungry, for food, for home, for money, for women . . . starved for women, and staring empty at pictures of burlesque beauties till the barker gave them an eye to move on. The street tantalized and fascinated them.

Joe walked this street and he sat in his room. He looked for work, and he found none; he looked and looked, and he found none. So he walked this street and sat in his room. He walked still believe in law act together against those nations which continue to defy it.

by sunset or by dawn, indifferently, hoping only to earn a respite of sleep. He was living out all likelihood of danger from that gruesome night; he could not stay here much longer, not belonging, with his roots not into this place; soon he must pick up and travel—but he lingered. There was at times an opiate. He lay long hours in the tiny room, while the city was quiet and while the city slept, and his closed eyes were filled with visions.

Visions . . . almost hallucinations. It was hard any more to distinguish. Was peace, which a man once had known, a true vision or a vain delusion? Where familiar faces which came to mind, realities or phantoms? Was memory true or was it a mad thing? It was hard to know. Was he, this man, Joe Murray, the same man, the selfsame man?

Memory was serving him well in those hours. Terry was there, not exactly, not in those visions, which was a good thing, if a peculiar thing for he did not wish to see the big brown eyes accusing him. He had fallen her so utterly. He had been a reliance, and unaccountably become a drag . . . He was not lonesome for Terry. He shut her from his mind. Grimly.

She was better off. For Terry he had charity and affection, high hopes and his best wishes. She would forget quickly; it was her way. She would go far in life, above and beyond him, with her smarts and intense persistence, her ambitions, and her beguiling winning ways. It was not Terry; he shut her from his mind.

It was Helen who was like a drug on his mind, a torment and then an ecstasy. In the silences her voice spoke; in the darkness she moved, shining; in the cool night she was a perfume, close, peace and all comfort. She was the perfection that a man should not know too soon, because there is nothing left afterward.

With her he lived another life, lost and again recovered. He walked with her in the warm loamy spring, and there was neither loneliness nor poverty nor despair. They talked, and it was of hopes, high hopes, so certain of fulfillment. They listened to music, and were in a mood . . . and it was not brutal and tender, with a wildness and an anguish . . . It was all beauty, all peace, all comfort.

Polack! . . . Oh, Polack! . . . In silence of the night, he moaned softly. This man, Joe Murray.

Visions . . . hallucinations. But that was by night, in the quiet when life is suspended. There was a ranking and a restlessness. He shut his mind, grimly, and the big brown eyes, accusing, came anyway. He walked on the street, and he saw a cheap little pink hat, worn just so, familiarly, bobbing just ahead of him, and his heart gave a small leap, a painful leap, and then the big brown eyes were accusing, yet were not there. He stood on the street, and in the crowd came a small familiar walk, and they were never there when he looked. He looked, while his heart raced and was in trepidation at what he might find.

These were no visions; these were no peace; these were reminders, little stabs of reminders, evoking a poignant failure and a loss. A small gay laugh in a crowd, the very special set of a crowd, small pair of shoulders across the street, a flicker of small, boyish ankles on a stairs, the scent of a certain cheap cosmetic . . . these were no peace any time, but a rebuke and a ranking, always.

This Joe Murray had reached a time. He knew it himself, that a time had come. He must hit the road again, be gone in the nation, lost in the hard preoccupation of hourly existence, with the company of his kind, with companionship. . . .

The colonel, a brother of Gen.

Daniel Boone

Daniel Boone, sixth lineal descendant of the famous frontiersman, and his brother Wade, have literally forged their way to fame as creators of wrought iron house hardware. Today's Daniel Boone is shown above at the Boone Forge which he and his brother conduct at Spruce Pine, N. C. They decry attempts to dub them "artists," each preferring to be known as a "good blacksmith" as was their pioneer ancestor.

"CLOISTERED" AMAZING FILM

Guild Benefit Pictures Life of Sisters in Convent

"Cloistered," a new and amazing film which comes to the Rialto Theatre today for a two-day run, is the true story of convent life, the first and probably the last of its kind ever to be filmed. It is showing under the auspices of the Guild of All Saints' Catholic church.

Before the making of "Cloistered," its producer, Robert Alexander, spent several years persuading Vatican authorities to allow him to make the picture at the Convent of the Good Shepherd.

Perhaps one of the most interesting pieces of knowledge to be gleaned from the picture deals with the kindness and prudence of this religious order.

For, when a young girl declares her intentions of joining the convent, she enters upon her two years of novitiate. At the end of this period, she may either stay at the convent or abandon her desire for the sisterhood.

Should she decide to continue her calling, she remains at the convent for three and one-half years longer at which time she may either take her final vows which break her last contact with the outside world, or else once again is privileged to choose a worldly life and leave the Cloister.

Thus the Convent of the Good Shepherd watches over its newcomers and to such an extent does it distrust human weaknesses.

Film-goers are privileged to watch the complete daily routine of the sisters in the scenes which follow taking of final vows.

MARKET AGAIN FEELS UPTURN

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES. Compiled by The Associated Press. 30 15 10 5

BY FREDERICK GARDNER. New York, June 21 (AP)—Stocks bounded over profit seeking barriers in today's market and posted further recoveries running to 3 points generally and from 5 to 9 in a few instances.

The list apparently enjoyed the continued stimulation of signs the lengthy recession in business and industry may be nearing an end. Prompted by the outlook for huge government pump-priming and a better brand of speculative psychology, bidding for favored issues was spirited throughout the session.

Prices eased from top marks in the final hour, but offerings were not far from their peaks at the close.

The pace was fast on the advance and relatively slow in retreating intervals. Transfers of 1,457,130 shares compared with 1,087,050 yesterday and was the largest volume for any day since March 30.

Trading attained its liveliest clip in the forenoon. During the second hour the ticker tape fell a minute behind for a while.

Steele, motors, coppers, and oils and a wide assortment of specialties were favored from the start. Even rails and utilities were in moderate demand, although these were up less than industrials.

Gold mining shares were exceptions to the run-up elsewhere, these were coming on official Washington denials of rumors that the dollar would be further devalued.

Additional advances in steel scrap at Pittsburgh and the ability of mill operations to expand for the third consecutive week provided buying fuel for shares in this group.

Coppers were buoyed by hoisting of the export price for the metal to above 9 cents a pound for the first time in a month. Heavy foreign buying of copper was seen as a prime recovery omen. Scrap copper was also lifted.

Motors had the benefit of advances from automotive manufacturing centers that inventories there were at a low point for five months, with current sales of new cars in excess of output. Early forecasts of 8-week summer shutdowns for some makers were cut in half.

Larger purchasing orders for American stocks came from Europe. Covering by nervous shorts who were uncomfortably surprised by the upward market reversal Monday was seen as an important bolstering influence.

Another burst of strength in carrier bonds was comforting to those who have watched the long slide in these loans. Other bonds did well.

Commodities, on the whole, leaned upward, but grains gave ground. Wheat at Chicago was off 5-8 to 1-8 cents a bushel and corn down 1-8 to 1/2. Cotton closed up 40 to 50 cents a bale. Sterling dropped 1/2 to 3-16 cents to $4.95 3/8. The French franc yielded 90-9 1/2 of a cent at 2 7/8 cents.

Strength was well diversified in the curb market.

On a turnover of 191,000 shares against 141,000 yesterday, outstanding gains were posted for Aluminum of America at 89 1/2, Sherwin Williams 88 1/2, Pittsburgh Plate Glass 79 1/2, Humble Oil 64, Jones & Laughlin 29 1/2, Peppercell 63 and N. J. Zinc 55 1/2.

NEWS CHEERFUL FOR RAIL LIENS

New York, June 21 (AP)—Spurred by encouraging news of an increase of impending government financial aid for needy carriers, rail liens generally showed substantial strength in the bond market today.

Gains of two points or more were fairly common, especially in the medium and lower priced groups. The Associated Press rail bond index was up 1.4 points.

Some industrials also showed strength although the industrial bond average held unchanged.

Utilities moved upward as a group. The low yield bond average was about the same.

The foreign dollar list was off slightly.

Trading was brisk, the day's total of $7,055,825, face value, being the highest since May 1, compared with yesterday's $5,900,400.

U. S. treasuries were somewhat irregular at the close, with nearer maturities giving ground in favor of longer term issues in light turnover.

A firm underlying tone was evidenced, however, by the swift subscription of the entire issue of $41,500,000 Federal Home Loan Banks one-year 1 percent consolidated debentures offered this morning at 109-9/16 to yield about 4.035 percent.

Treasury changes ranged from a 4-3/4 of a point gain to 2-3/4 decline.

In the foreign list, German 5 1/2 of '65 were down 1/4 at 244 and Italy 7 of '47 at 77 1/2. Rome 6 were up a point at 70 1/2.

Louis And Schmeling Fight Return Match Tonight

BOUT TO BEGIN AT 9 P.M., EST

Million Dollar Setting Promised for Show In Yank Stadium

BY ALAN GOULD

New York, June 21 (AP)—The greatest, gaudiest and, all things considered, the greatest heavyweight boxing rivalry in a decade reaches its climax tomorrow night in what promises to be a balmy, million-dollar setting at the Yankee stadium.

The 16-round return match between Joe Louis, 24-year-old American negro holder of the world championship, and Max Schmeling, 32-year-old German challenger, may not crack any fistie records. Nevertheless it has whipped the fight city. He will join Louis at noon (E. S. T.) tomorrow at Madison Square Garden for the official weighing-in. The champion will leave his training quarters at Pompton Lakes, N. J., just in time to make connections on the scales.

Few, if any signs of weakening were manifest among those who think that (a) Schmeling will prove his knock-out or (b) Louis will prove his first defeat was just a fistie accident. Three out of five newspaper experts, as well as betting men, prefer Louis, but offered no eleventh-hour argument calculated to change the minds of those who favor Schmeling.

Schmeling still has the weapons, as well as the pole, confidence and craftsmanship that carried him to stunning triumph in 1936. He's two years older, but no less impressive, physically, and no less fortified, mentally. Max is imbued with a burning ambition to do what no other ex-champion ever did, among them Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries and Jack Dempsey.

BOTH CONFIDENT
New York, June 21 (AP)—Just before the battle statements of Max Schmeling and Joe Louis: Schmeling... "I am, of course, confident. I know I have attained rare condition for this second meeting with Joe Louis. I believe I am at the peak of my career. The bouts at my camp showed me that all the power in both hands is still with me. Seventeen days of boxing for a total of 109 rounds effected just the proper training I needed. I should produce my greatest fight and reach my great incentive of becoming the first man to regain the heavyweight championship. I have planned no special style for Louis."

Louis... "I'll knock him out in two rounds, no less. I'm coming out fighting. Got to or else there will be no fight. Last time I met him I was not an experienced fighter. I had been winning all my fights just with my strength. Since then I have learned to fight. They say I haven't looked good in training. Okay, but did anyone ever win a title against spar mates? I never under-estimate any fighter and I don't Schmeling. But I've been waiting for this return match two whole years and I am ready."

Newark, N. J., June 21 (AP)—Max Schmeling arrived at 7:42 p. m. (EST) at Newark airport tonight in a chartered transport plane piloted by Dick Merrill, trans-Atlantic flier, and then drove off in a private limousine to an unannounced destination.

The German heavyweight challenger had little to say about his little boxing bout tomorrow night with Joe Louis.

Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, said the German would "go away into hiding tonight and go right to bed."

HARDBALL LOOP TO BE STARTED
Juvenile and Junior Boys Eligible to Enter New League

A meeting of all juvenile and junior hardball players interested in forming a city league will be held at the city recreation center, South Fourteenth street and Third avenue, Thursday night beginning at 7:30.

If there are enough teams a junior and a juvenile league will be conducted by the recreation department with the cooperation of big-time players who are interested in seeing an increase in activity in the national game in Escanaba.

Tentative plans are not only for the two leagues, but also for instruction in fundamentals and strategy that make baseball the highly skilled game that it is.

HIGGINS MAKES HALL OF FAME

Boston Veteran Cracks 12th Hit In Row; Tigers Split

Detroit, June 21 (AP)—Frank (Pinky) Higgins, veteran Boston Red Sox third baseman enjoying a sensational hitting streak, marched into baseball's hall of fame today by cracking out his 12th consecutive safe hit while the Sox and Detroit Tigers split a doubleheader.

Even two home runs with which Rudy York, Tiger slugger, entered a tie with Jimmy Foxx of Boston for the American League leadership at 19 each fell into the background as Higgins, collecting eight hits, broke Tris Speaker's 13-year-old major league record. The Sox won the first game, 8 to 3, and Detroit the second, 5 to 4.

Perfect Day at Bat
Before a tense crowd of 26,400, Higgins banged out the big hit—his seventh single of the day, over second base just out of Charley Gehring's reach—in the eighth inning of the second game. It gave him a perfect day at bat and left him a chance to extend the streak tomorrow.

The Sox third sacker propelled three singles and a double in the first game and four singles in the second, tying Speaker's record of 11 straight hits in 1920 with a sixth inning single in the nightcap. Higgins began his streak with a double, three singles, and a walk in a double header at Chicago Sunday. The Sox were idle yesterday. Higgins walked once in the first game today.

The split pushed Boston into second place in the American League ahead of the New York Yankees, who were beaten by Cleveland.

Pinky's record-breaking blow in the second game figured in a Red Sox rally which, but for Boots Poffenberger's good relief pitching, might have cost Detroit both games.

Until then Roxie Lawson had got along agreeably, with a 5 to 3 lead, and when singles by Cronin and Higgins and Doerr's walk filled the bases with none out, Poffenberger came to the rescue.

Grove Opposes Kennedy
Boots retired the next three men in order, two runs scoring on infield outs. The Sox tied in one, two, three order in the ninth.

The homer which lifted York into the league leadership tie with Foxx—the first time in his brief American League career that Rudy has reached that point—was important, too.

Driven into the left field pavilion, York's No. 19 came with Dixie Walker on first base in the first inning. The Sox tied the score in the third, 2-2, but Rookie Charley Wagner's wildness opened the way for three Tiger runs in their half.

In the opener with Higgins leading the assault, Boston thumped Tommy Bridges and capitalized on a loose Tiger defense as well. Fritz Ostermueller, relieving Jack Wilson in the second, held the Tigers in check.

The teams play again tomorrow with Lefty Grove opposing Vern Kennedy.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

In order that the big fight can go off as scheduled, Inkslinger the Great today comes forth with his views on the subject... quite naturally, no such a sporting event can be sanctioned unless Ye Olde Scribe puts his stamp of approval on it... hay, what... perhaps if this column's two faithful readers can hang out that long, they may find at the end of this epistle the name of the winner... and, if they want to lay any money on the line, all they have to do is to bet on the one Inkslinger picks to lose... it never fails!

Seriously speaking though, it does seem good to see a heavyweight championship fight which shows some genuine interest on the part of the fans again... for too many years, the fight game has been in the doldrums and it is fortunate that the Schmeling-Louis natural should pop up at this time to inject a bit of interest in the game... advance ticket sales indicate the crowd will be the largest in many moons... there has been some talk that the anti-German element in New York will boycott the fight because of Schmeling... but don't kid yourself, American fight fans are the squarest in the world and they'll not let a little international difficulty mar the fight.

Because so many of them crawled out on the limb the last time and had it sawed off behind them, the so-called fight experts are a bit reticent about sticking out their individual and collective necks this time... but the consensus of opinion still favors the Brown Bomber... Escanaba's own fight expert, Art Sundling, says, for the sake of the game, Schmeling will win... and Art should know for he hasn't failed to pick the winner of a fight since Nero was a pup... in spite of the fact that everything points against it, Inkslinger crawls out on the Joe Louis limb this time... and hopes to goah that Schmeling stays away from the tree.

COOKS DEFEATS BAY VIEWS, 5-1

Strengthen Lead Over Other Loop Teams By Victory

Cooks, June 21—Cooks strengthened its league leadership in the Delta-Schoolcraft League Sunday by defeating the Garden Bay Views 5-1. This was Cooks' second win from the Bay Views and their fifth win in six starts.

Garden scored their run in the first inning, on a walk, an error, and B. Cousineau's single. Cooks scored their first two runs in the second inning on three consecutive hits by Roberts, C. Lund and H. Carley. They scored their remaining three runs in the eighth inning when R. Lund reached first on an error, advanced on Deloria's hit and scored when L. Cousineau threw late to the plate on C. Lund's ground ball. F. Hartman then singled to right, scoring Deloria and C. Lund.

Deloria, Cooks' hurler, held the Bay Views to four scattered hits while his teammates garnered nine out of the offerings of Truckey.

Cooks will travel to Fairport next Sunday where they will meet the Improved Fairport team in another league game.

RED-HOT REDS WALLOP GIANTS

King Hubbell Is Clouted for Three Runs In 4th and 7th

New York, June 21 (AP)—Even King Carl Hubbell couldn't cool off these red-hot Reds from Cincinnati today, and they trounced the Giants 6 to 2 to climb within a game and a half of the National League leaders.

Given a one-run edge on Harry Danning's homer in the first inning, King Carl retired the first two men in order, but then was knocked loose from the lead on homers by Ival Goodman and Ernie Lombardi in the fourth, and finally was clouted for another three run rally in the seventh which put the game beyond recall.

It was the Reds ninth win in their last 11 starts, and marked the third time in a row Hubbell made a valiant bid for his 20th major league pitching victory. Previously, the Cardinals and Pirates had each stopped him from reaching that goal.

Big Jim Weaver, who opposed the Hub at the start, gave up only three hits and two runs through the first six frames. With one out in the seventh, however, he lost control. After he had loaded the bases, Bucky Walters was rushing in and put out the fire by fusing Mei Ott to ground into a double play.

St. Louis, June 21 (AP)—Oral Hildebrand gave up only five hits and struck out seven today as the St. Louis Browns won the first of their three-game series with the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 2.

Billy Sullivan, subbing for the injured George McQuinn at first base for the Browns, hit for the circuit in the lead. In the fourth Tommy Heath blasted one of Ross' offerings into the left field bleachers.

Sam Chapman, A's left fielder, got a circuit blow off Hildebrand in the seventh for the Philadelphia score. A triple by Lodigiani and E. Smith's grounder produced the other a few moments later.

Al Simmons, hitting his season's seventh homer and two singles, led the 10 hit attack against three Chicago pitchers. Simmons drove in four runs.

Root Relieves Epperly and Bears Down in Tight Spots

Philadelphia, June 21 (AP)—Charley Root's relief pitching today gave the Chicago Cubs a 4 to 3 victory over the Phillies.

Root relieved Rookie Paul Epperly in sixth after the Phils had scored two runs on Morrie Aronovich's home run with Phil Weintraub on base. He yielded only two hits in the last four innings. The Phils put the tying run on base in the seventh and eighth, but Root bore down when a hit meant a run.

The Cubs scored twice in the fourth on Epperly's long drive to center off Claude Passeau. Martin misjudged the ball and it went for a double. In the sixth Herman scored the winning run when Passeau, after having tagged Herman out at the plate, dropped the ball.

Cleveland, June 21 (AP)—Though Bob Feller was wild and gave nine bases on balls, the league-leading Indians backed up their young right-hander with a 14-hit attack today to swamp the Yankees, 10 to 5.

The Indians got all their hits off Charley Ruffing, who finally was driven to the showers in the seventh. Cleveland got six runs in that inning on singles by Hale and Keltner, two bases on balls, and doubles by Lary, Averill and Hemsley, the latter with the bases loaded.

State Political Gossip

Politicians Turn Their Attention to Internal Battles of UAW

(BY GUY H. JENKINS)
(Grand Rapids Press)
Lansing.—Internal trouble within the United Automobile Workers union is holding the attention of the politicians who are trying to figure out just what influence a real old-fashioned scrap within CIO's biggest union will have on the coming primary and election. Gov. Murphy, while apparently concerned about the future of the organization, feels that politically the trouble will not detract from his labor support. Leaders of both factions are pals of his and for that reason he is satisfied the votes will be forthcoming.

This, however, is not the Republican view of the situation. All concede Murphy will have the receding left wingers. They know he had the endorsement of the Communists at their recent New York convention. But some are predicting a large share of the rank and file of the UAW will become so disgusted with the internal trouble they will ignore the political leadership of both Homer Martin, international president, and the former assistant president, Richard T. Frankenstein, and desert Murphy.

Things are becoming so hot in the UAW that persons close to the union are predicting that if it is to be saved, a new president will succeed Martin, but it will not be Frankenstein.

REPORT FITZGERALD HAS TOY WORRIED
Frank D. Fitzgerald and Harry S. Toy continue to be top flight candidates for the gubernatorial nomination. Some of the political wise ones insist Fitzgerald's campaign has Toy worried so much that the former supreme court justice is planning a reorganization of his campaign committee.

Many Republicans are expecting O. L. Smith to announce he will not be a candidate for the governorship. If he does, it is almost certain Smith will be a candidate for attorney general.

While the GOP is looking for clearer political skies, some of the Democrats are predicting storm clouds. It has been noted about the capitol that Louis Ward of Royal Oak is threatening to run for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Ward, it will be remembered, gave Prentiss M. Brown the scare of his life in 1936 when he opposed him for the senatorial nomination. After a hard primary fight, Brown was nominated and went on to win easily.

Democratic county chairman in some instances are kicking up a fuss about Gov. Murphy. They would like to see him promoted upstairs through some federal appointment. They are certain the party cannot win with him heading the ticket.

SADOWSKI IS FIRST TO GRAB COATTAIL
Representative George G. Sadowski, Democrat of Detroit, is the first of the 1938 crop of coattail candidates. Sadowski has thumbed himself a place on the Roosevelt band wagon to parade through his district next fall in quest of votes.

Sadowski represents the First district in the lower house of congress. Being the best job he has ever had, he intends to keep it just as long as possible.

Recently he was quoted as saying: "I wish that congress would stay in session every day of the year so long as Roosevelt is president so we could complete as much as possible of the New Deal program before 1940."

"In this coming election I want the people to know that I shall continue to support Roosevelt and the humane and social program of the New Deal."

Now that Sadowski has blazed the way for the 1938 campaign watch the others wanting to stay on or get on the public pay roll follow the congressman from the First.

OLD POLITICAL TRICK IS PULLED OUT OF HAT
While new political tricks are being developed as the occasion arises, a moth-eaten bunny was pulled out of the hat in East Lansing this week to influence an election.

The city council of this rapidly growing college town decided the 31-year-old charter needed to be replaced. After considerable study it was decided to submit the question of charter revision to the people.

At the same time the people were asked to select nine charter commissioners from a list of fifteen who had qualified as nominees.

The election was Wednesday and the voters by a small margin decided the old charter was good enough. Here is the rub. The present charter carries a clause making the community bone dry. The opposition saw the chance to take advantage of the situation. A letter was prepared pointing out that if the charter was changed that would allow the sale of beer, wine and other alcoholic beverages.

NO TIME REMAINED FOR COUNTER-ATTACK
The letter urging a favorable vote for charter revision went to strong prohibitionists who mobilized to keep "demon rum" out of East Lansing.

The trick was discovered by the city council too late for a counter-attack. Mayor L. L. Frimodig and other city officers have known since 1934 the prohibition section in the charter was worthless.

"When the subject of liquor licenses came up in 1934, I discussed the situation with Frank A. Picard, liquor commission chairman," the mayor said. "I told him the people generally were opposed to sale of alcoholic beverages in East Lansing and we wanted no change. He told me the prohibition provision in the charter was no good because the state liquor control act had repealed it."

ANYTHING TO RECEIVE PUBLICITY IN PAPERS
No one knows better than a politician the value of publicity, especially if it is favorable.

For that reason, and that reason alone, primary candidates whose districts comprise more than one county are coming to Lansing to have the forms of their nomination petitions approved by Leon D. Case, secretary of state.

This is a new stunt. Nominating petitions are furnished by county clerks to candidates who want them. Some prefer to have their own printed. The heading on the petition is very simple and anyone who seeks to represent his district in the state legislature, congress or be lieutenant governor or governor should not require the services of the secretary of state to tell him the form is OK. He need only look in the statute book or copy the heading of a petition used in the last primary.

It's a way to get one's name in the newspapers, especially the home town daily, and to carry it a little farther, the candidate then tells the reporter: "Some of my friends want me to run. I have not made up my mind as yet. When they took the petitions to Lansing that was the first I knew about it."

The interview ends with "see me in a day or two."

Well that gets the candidate's name in the paper again. Next Tuesday he still is in doubt. In fact, on Friday, he is beginning to waver. His business or profession, or what have you, seems to be too important to give up for public office.

THEN COMES THE MEETING WHERE HE IS "DRAFTED"
In the meantime, the chances are 10 to 1 the candidate is organizing the old draft movement. Yes, sir, he gets hold of two of three of the boys. Plans are made at a quiet little meeting.

Then some one drops a hint to the reporter that "we are going to insist that Joe run."

So the demand is out in the open. Joe consents to allow his name to be used as a candidate but will make no campaign for the office. The office must seek him. If elected, of course he will "stay up nights working for the dear peepul, bla, bla, bla."

No sooner does the "draft" meeting adjourn than Joe goes to work with more pep than he has shown his business, job or profession since the Cleveland panic of 1893.

ANYHOW SOMEONE WAS DUE TO GIVE TALK
Detroit this week probably produced the finest bit of political hocus-pocus in many a day.

The Detroit Democratic club celebrated its tenth anniversary at Belle Isle. The public address system was in excellent working order. As the meeting got under way, some gentleman, probably a politician, took charge of the microphone.

Looking over the sea of faces, he announced that before long they would be listening to an address by that "great statesman, Senator Capper."

A smarter fellow hastened over and whispered something in the announcer's ear. He probably suggested that Republican Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas was not the expected guest.

Then the announcer made known he had made a slight error. "It is Senator Cooper who is going to address us." But that was no nearer the truth than the Capper announcement. Some thought it might be Senator Copeland or maybe Senator Connally. There was more whispering.

AH! IT WAS PEPPER BUT HE DIDN'T APPEAR
Then he got it.

"The statesman who is going to speak to us is Senator Claude Pepper of Florida."

The announcer was getting closer all the time. Senator Pepper had been asked to make the address but many Detroiters knew long before the crowd had gathered that the senator from Florida was unable to be present and had sent his regrets. Even that failed to dampen the enthusiasm of some of the Detroit Democratic club. Their newspaper, the Wayne County Democrat, appeared two days later with liberal quotes from Senator Pepper's speech. Pepper, it appears, spoke in "ringing tones" and his was "a fighting spee ch."

And for the defenseless public, election day is not until Nov. 3.

TO DEVELOP PULP SUPPLY

Wisconsin Conservation Body and Industry Joins Hands

Madison, Wis.—An idea which has been germinating in the minds of foresighted Wisconsin manufacturers, particularly paper manufacturers and lumbermen, for many months blossomed this week with the announcement by the state conservation commission that it will work with those manufacturers on a cooperative program to develop a future supply of native grown pulpwood.

Working with a committee of state industrialists representing the Wisconsin Manufacturers association and headed by J. D. Mylrea of Rhinelander, chairman R. B. Goodman of the conservation commission at a meeting in Oshkosh this week obtained approval of a plan through which Conservation Director H. W. McKenzie will take active steps for the formation of a coordinated pulpwood forestry program with interested business and manufacturing elements.

40 Years for Crop
Further meetings between state conservation officials and paper manufacturers, including officers of the Fox River valley mills who are especially interested in the project, will be held this summer, the conservation department and the Madison office of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' association reported yesterday.

State paper manufacturers, finding themselves each year farther removed from the source of supply of their raw materials, burdened by steeper freight hauling rates and the competition of low-overhead mills in the southern and west coast states, have long been ruminating on means to strengthen their relative position in the industry.

Feeling now, according to available reports, is that the industry and the state government should combine their energies toward the development, through a long-time program, of a future, source of supply near the paper manufacturing centers, particularly the Fox and Wisconsin river valleys.

That such a program must be a long-range one is obvious from the fact that it requires from 40 to 50 years to grow a crop of spruce or pine, the two most desirable species of pulpwood.

Mills Show Interest
The Nekoosa-Edwards Paper company is one of those most active in the encouragement of a pulpwood forestry program. Recently its officers urged a county forestry project before the Wood county board of supervisors.

F. E. Sensenbrenner, of the Kimberly-Clark Corporation, has also displayed an interest in the proposed pulpwood project. He is a member of the special committee of the manufacturers' association which is studying means of bringing such a program about.

SAWMILL TO OPEN
Sault Ste. Marie.—The sawmill of the Cadillac-Soo Lumber company plant will resume operations on July 6, it was announced today by Clyde A. Saunders, manager of the company here.

Opening of the plant will mean the reemployment of about 250 men in woods and sawmill operations. The mill will operate at least six months, clearing up an accumulation of logs in the woods. Operations will continue longer if a turn in business conditions brings on an improved demand for lumber, Mr. Saunders said.
