ACTION AIMED AT STATE GAS TAX DEFEATED

STUDY COMMISSION TAKES VOTE ON EARMARKING

Lansing, June 22 (AP)—The governor's tax study commission refused by a narrow margin today a proposal to oppose the earmarking by constitutional amendment of any state funds for specific purposes—a measure aimed at a referendum to pre-empt gas and weight tax monies for highway purposes only.

The proposal was advanced by Kenneth J. McArren, Detroit City assessor and was opposed by Senator George P. McCallum, of Ann Arbor. None of the committee supported the earmarking plan but some believed it was without the jurisdiction of the committee.

Changes Recommended The action followed a report by John H. Witherspoon, of Detroit, chairman of the taxation committee of the Michigan Municipal League and the special tax committee of the municipal finance officers association.

The committee recommended long range alterations in the state's tax structure. These included:

A specific tax of at least one-half of one per cent on the market value of net intangible property;

To remove of all exemptions under the sales tax law and to make the sales tax lien superior to all other private liens on property;

To create a county board of review or equalization to supersede township boards and with the power to alter assessments on specific property;

To simplify the form of tax bills;

To prohibit the "vicious" solicitation of tax reductions on a contingent basis;

Delinquency Rates Revised To extend the power to levy municipalities to levy excise and license taxes beyond the regulatory stage and into the taxing-for-revenue stage;

To define the filing of falsely sworn tax statements as perjury and not as a misdemeanor as at present;

To lift the roof from the franchise tax on corporations so that large corporations could be taxed more than $50,000;

To amend the state law to provide purchases of tax delinquent property at the state tax sale shall buy the property subject to the unpaid tax interest in municipalities collecting their own delinquent taxes;

To eliminate the 30-day period in which owners may meet a private bid on tax delinquent property up for sale by the state and the 10-year period allowed to pay for the redeemed property;

To authorize taxing units to bid for tax delinquent property in which they have an interest in order to insure a fair price;

To eliminate private buyers from state tax sales;

To compel probate courts to pay taxes and assessments from the estates of deceased person;

To make tax claims a prior lien.

Dimstore Heiress Splits With Husband, Fears Son's Kidnaping

London, June 22.—American born Countess Barbara Hutton Haugwitz-Reventlow entertained a large house party behind the steel shutters of her massive home today after obtaining a secret court order believed intended to protect her baby son, Lance.

The surprise court move came along with mounting rumors that she and her Danish nobleman husband, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, were estranged. The Count was conspicuously absent from tonight's party.

The London Daily Mail quoted the Count as saying British police want to question him in connection with his wife's kidnap precautions, but he declared at his Paris hotel that he had made no threat to use force in gaining custody of his son.

The paper said it understood Barbara had been granted temporary custody of the child pending "subsequent litigation" and quoted the Danish Count as saying "sharp differences" had arisen between himself and his wife over future education of their son.

The big gates of the Woolworth heiress' estate in Midsloth opened and clicked shut after each guest was allowed to enter. Private guards questioned them carefully and scanned their credentials.

The Countess, who was said to have received a letter threatening the safety of her baby, disclosed she had taken "certain precautions" to guard him.

Chubby, two-year-old Count Lance Haugwitz-Reventlow slept in an air-conditioned, five room nursery suite behind steel gridded windows.

The heiress who once declared "I am afraid of American kidnapers" relied on the strength of her mansion and private guards to keep her son safe.

Rumors of the rift between the Haugwitz-Reventlow, who who were married three years ago after the Woolworth heiress and the late Prince Alexis Mdivani were divorced, have been current from time to time.

It was believed the Countess in her sudden visit to Bow street court this afternoon, either had obtained a summons against the alleged author of a threatening letter or had applied for British citizenship.

It was pointed out that in the event of a marital rift she could forestall legal complications over custody of the baby if she were British. The Countess renounced her United States citizenship last December 16 and adopted her husband's Danish nationality.

Her attorney, Sir Patrick Hastings, accompanied her to the private court hearing. He said a statement on nature of the court order was "impossible now because of legal reasons."

Rail Issues Come Back Strong; Prospects for Recovery Brighter

New York, June 22 (AP)—Wall Street's rebound from the blues brought further brisk bidding for securities today, lifting stock prices on the average to the best prices since mid-March.

Leading stocks rose 1/2 to 1/4, in the most active trading since March 29, marking the third successive day of active buying. Advances for the entire three-day period ran in many instances from 33 to 10.

In the bond market, railroad issues again came back strongly, several rising 3/8 to 3/4 per 1,000 bond. The average price of twenty issues was up 1/4, the most for any day since October, and wiping out the losses of the past fortnight.

Trading in stocks continued to expand, with a turnover of 1,713,050 shares, compared with 1,457,030 Tuesday, 1,087,050 Monday.

Brokers said that buying once more reflected indications that the forces of depression were receding, and prospects for business recovery brightening.

Shirley Romps With Two Boys And A Pup

Lagrange, Ind., June 22 (AP)—Two boys and a pup had a romp with Shirley Temple as the child movie star made a brief stop here today while motoring east with her parents.

The boys were Tommy Keenan, whose mother operates a filling station where Shirley's party stopped for gasoline, and David Fisher, son of Lieut. Ray Fisher of the state police.

The boys were unaware of the identity of their playmate until told by her father, George Temple, as he drove away.

Bank Robbery

Flushing, Mich., June 22 (AP)—State and local police searched today for three armed bandits who robbed the First State Bank of Flushing of $4,250 today and escaped after slugging a bank employe and a customer.

The robbery took place at 12:30 p. m., at a time when Michael Paytas, 25, assistant cashier, was alone in the bank.

Paytas said one of the men walked to his cage and asked for change of a bill while the other two stood in the bank lobby. As Paytas made the change, the bandit drew a revolver and announced: "This is a stickup."

The men in the lobby then drew guns and the bandit climbed behind the cage. He forced Paytas to open the safe, scooped out the money, then motioned Paytas to the floor.

As the assistant cashier was complying, the bandit struck him with the butt of the revolver, inflicting a severe head wound.

Meanwhile, Fred Russell, 35, a bus driver, entered the bank. The two on guard motioned him inside and slugged him. The three bandits then fled eastward in an automobile which had been parked outside the bank.

Paytas said one man was about 30 years old, five feet 11 inches tall, and wore a light sport jacket and gray trousers. Another was from 30 to 35 years old, six feet tall, and weighed about 180 pounds. He wore a sandy gray suit and felt hat.

Bank officials said it was the first holdup in the bank's history.

State Republicans Pick Grand Rapids For Rally On Oct. 3

Lansing, June 22 (AP)—The Republican state central committee this afternoon chose Grand Rapids and Monday, October 3, as the place and date for the state nominating convention this year.

The committee set county conventions for September 21.

The number of votes to be cast in the state convention was increased from about 1,400 to approximately 1,600 when the state committee voted to allow one delegate for each 500 votes cast for the Republican candidate for secretary of state in the last election.

County delegations will be permitted to choose more delegates than they have votes, under a ruling that they may assign fractional votes to delegates.

Puzzle Faced By Roosevelt In New York

Washington, June 22 (AP)—A critical question of political strategy is posed for President Roosevelt in his own state of New York. It arises from the announced candidacy of Governor Herbert H. Lehman for a nomination to succeed the late Senator Cope land, and the drive of Attorney General John J. Bennett, Jr., to succeed Lehman as governor.

As Washington observers see it, the New York party fight is certain to center around the nomination for governor rather than senator. And the Bennett announcement serves notice on the White House that there is likely to be violent party strife in New York if an effort is made to fit a 100 per cent new deal advocate into Lehman's shoes.

Who'll Be Picked Governor Lehman's impressive popular vote in his three gubernatorial campaigns raises a question whether the administration may not be prepared to accept his senatorial aspirations unchallenged, despite his share in defeat of the supreme court reorganization bill.

Postmaster General Farley indicated before the death of Cope land his hope that Lehman would seek a fourth term as the strongest candidate the party could name.

The Lehman announcement about that door. It also is regarded as certain that Senator Wagner will seek renomination for the senate rather than the nomination for governor.

Assuming the administration does not take an attitude of "re-primis" toward Governor Lehman, two of the major Democratic nominations to be made by party convention in New York in September, Wagner and Lehman for senator would seem to be already set. But that assumption still leaves wide open a question of possibly greater importance to President Roosevelt and new deal enthusiasts in Washington, which is, who will be picked for governor?

Thinking of 1940 Administration strategists who have been using Democratic primaries in other states as testing ground for new deal loyalty, have appeared to be thinking primarily of the national convention in 1940. It is there rather than in this year's state and congressional campaigns that the question of continuing new deal policies and picking a presidential ticket to carry them out will come up. And it is governors and party nominees for governor who exercise most influence over convention delegations.

Attorney General Bennett is suspect in inner new deal circles of something less than lukewarmers toward much of the new deal. He also is much of the new deal, hailing from Brooklyn. That there will develop, even without

Detroit Store Bombers Miss

Detroit, June 22 (AP)—Police questioned and released six unionists today after five Kroger Grocery and Baking company stores were bombed early this morning.

A strike at Kroger stores was called June 14 by the Bakery and Confectionary Workers Union (AFL); the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Steamfitters and Helpers (AFL), and the United Bakery and Food Handlers Union (CIO).

The five questioned were Bernard Brennan, business agent for the teamsters' union; Alan Strachan, state secretary of Labor's Non-Partisan League; Richard T. Leonard, president of the teamsters' union; M. A. McDonald, business agent of the United Bakery and Food Handlers' union; and Frank O'Flaherty, business agent of the A.L.F. Bakery Workers' Union.

After their release Leonard and Strachan announced they would sue Police Commissioner Heinrich Pickert and Mayor Richard Reading for "false arrest."

The bombs were thrown within 15 minutes of each other. In two instances the bombers apparently missed their mark and adjoining property was damaged.

Reports Are Heard Of Peace Moves In Sino-Japanese War

Shanghai, June 23 (Thursday) (AP)—New peace moves to halt the spreading China-Japanese war were reported under way today.

The reports came as Japanese warplanes struck three times at the South China port of Swatow, threatening large-scale invasion of South China, and new Japanese-American friction cropped up at Nanking and Shanghai.

Emissaries of the Japanese-sponsored north China provisional government were said to be holding preliminary negotiations with representatives of the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

The German transoceanic news agency quoted Wang Chung-Hui, Chinese foreign minister, as "emphasizing the usefulness of mediation by a third party, since China and Japan desire to terminate hostilities but neither is willing to take the initiative for reasons of prestige."

Wang also was quoted as declaring Japan must make the first overtures.

It was recalled that the North China government last Saturday issued a plea for peace, apparently with the approval of the Japanese army mission at Peiping.

In Shanghai, a Japanese embassy spokesman declared that Japan would "discuss peace with any Chinese government except that of the Kuomintang (Chiang's regime)."

While Japanese massed planes and ships off Swatow the U. S. gunboat Asheville stood by to protect Americans there. Sixty-nine American men, women and children were reported to be in the Swatow consular district.

The British destroyer Thracian was on its way from Hongkong to guard British interests.

Drive On Jews Is Boomerang

Anti-Semitic Campaign Hard on Nazi Store Employees

Berlin, June 22 (AP)—Evidence began to accumulate tonight that the violent anti-Semitic manifestations of the past week were proving a boomerang.

Many Aryan shop-keepers and Aryan employes in Jewish stores say they are economic victims of the Jew-baiters, quite as much as the Jews themselves.

Movie houses in districts where raids have been the order of the day complain of half-empty houses. Not only are Jews staying away, but many Aryans who dislike having the show interrupted and being subjected to inquiry.

In Jewish-owned department stores, an overwhelming majority of employes was Aryan or had become such since 1933. These people walk about with long faces, as they see either bankruptcy ahead for their firms or already hold notices in their hands.

Dissatisfaction with the new anti-Semitic drive extends far into the ranks of the Nazi party members, as numerous conversations with individual Nazis show.

PWA Loans Moving

Senator Hatch (D-N.M.) also predicting much better business by fall, meanwhile got behind the frequently heard proposal that the government keep always ready a program of public works to be put into operation whenever unemployment begins to lag.

The proposal will be given detailed consideration when the senate commerce committee meets in the fall, Hatch said.

Only a few hours after the $3,753,000,000 spending-lending bill was signed by President Roosevelt, PWA announced today the first of a series of allotments for construction work. Loans and grants totaling $77,814,628 were made for 530 projects, estimated to cost a total of $148,795,895, counting local contributions.

Between now and Saturday, PWA expects to allot $173,000,000 more. Later, still further loans and grants will be made. PWA has $965,000,000 for this purpose.

Allotments announced today were most small—for small-town school buildings, sewage systems, road improvements, bridges and the like, although a few ran into the millions, involving highway bridges and harbor developments and schools, sewage systems and buildings for larger towns.

Roper's report of decreased inventories was obviously destined to be cheerfully received by business. Unduly large inventories, or stocks of unsold goods, have been a major characteristic of the depression which began last fall.

Spanish Insurgents Massed For Attack Against Barcelona

Hendaye, France (At the Spanish Frontier) June 22 (AP)—Spanish insurgents massed new munitions and warplanes behind the Catalan front today, for a renewed offensive against Barcelona.

The stronghold of government power, considered by insurgents to be the "key to victory" in the civil war, was raided eight times today by 15 bombers. There were at least ten deaths.

Additional government resistance on the southern front before Valencia was believed by military observers to have inspired the insurgents to turn once again into Catalonia.

The new plan of campaign was kept secret, but it was confirmed that heavy reinforcements of men and materials had been moved in to the northern front.

Intense heat halted action elsewhere.

Michigan Relief Load Is Growing

Lansing, June 22 (AP)—George Granger, acting emergency relief administrator, said the relief load June 17 was 106,200 cases as compared with 104,224 the previous week.

He attributed the increase in cases of dependent children and the blind who receive direct relief.

Workers Find 38 Bodies In Olympian; 4 Names Added to Missing

Miles City, Mont., June 22 (AP)—Milwaukee railroad officials indicated a belief tonight that the final toll of the crash of the line's Olympian Sunday would be 46.

A force of 100 workers still was cutting into the twisted and silt-filled wreckage of sleeper B, submerged nearly 36 hours in Custer creek's "flash flood" after the train plunged through a flood-weakened trestle early Sunday.

Three bodies were taken from the sleeper last night but no more were reached so far today.

A missing passenger identified at first as a Miss Conway of Seattle was disclosed by railroad officials to be Miss Valeria M. Conway of Omaha, a comptometer operator for the Union Pacific railroad.

Mother Free After Serving Term For Slaying Daughter

Lansing, June 22 (AP)—The parole board announced today it had authorized the release of Mrs. Sarah C. Arnold, 52, serving a 20 to 30 years sentence in the Detroit House of Correction for the murder of her daughter in an insurance-collection conspiracy.

Richard Arnold, her husband and stepfather of the slain girl, Florence Rieux, also was convicted of the murder, and is serving 30 to 40 years in the state prison of Southern Michigan.

The couple was convicted of having beaten the 21-year-old girl to death on lonely lovers lane near Rodgers City on May 27, 1927. The late Judge Frank Emerick, before whom the case was tried without jury in the Presque Isle county circuit court, convicted them of second degree murder and pronounced sentence Nov. 28, 1927.

The parole board said Mrs. Arnold would leave the house of correction July 3, and had obtained a position at Grand Marais. She will live with her two sons, brothers of the slain girl.

Drowning was formerly a method of capital punishment.

A clue to President Roosevelt's attitude may come when upstate rivals for Bennett step into the picture. Names of new dealers like Representative Mead of Buffalo have already been mentioned in that connection. Mayor Thacher of Albany also has been an active seeker of promotion in previous campaigns.

Any show of administration favor, however indirect, for an upstate new deal loyalist who might be a contender against Bennett will be interpreted instantly as a gesture of White House intervention. That it will lead to a counter attack by Bennett followers and a party clash rivaling that in Pennsylvania is a possibility facing President Roosevelt and his political aides in determining a course to follow.

Yet the new deal stake in the outcome both of the Democratic nominations and in the following elections is greater in New York than elsewhere on the national political front. It is the president's own state, the foster-mother at least of modern presidential candidacies. An out-right new deal defeat in party ticket-making this year would damage Roosevelt prestige. Loss of the state in November due to party strife would be a serious blow to Democratic hopes for 1940. That is the situation the president faces and there is no hint yet what line of action he will take.

Louis Bout Causes Riot In Cleveland; Man Shot, May Die

Cleveland, June 22 (AP)—In a near-riot of celebration in Cleveland's negro section tonight a man was shot, probably fatally, a street car was stoned, passengers were hurt, a policeman was felled and sirens screamed at many false fire alarms.

There was only momentary silence when Joe Louis knocked out Max Schmeling. Then a din burst loose that could be heard many blocks from the celebration center. Old men and women did the Big Apple in the streets with the youngsters. Thousands were attracted by the general jamboree and hundreds of police rushed to the district.

Police Break Camp For Bill Ashmun, 14

Detroit, June 22 (AP)—Police, who had sought him since Tuesday, today broke up 12-year-old Bill Ashmun's camp on Belle Isle, Detroit's mid-river playground.

Found in Bill's camp were: His mother's lace curtains (mosquitoes); a small hammer and some tacks (to build a cabin); his father's fishing tackle (he was going to live on fish and herbs); four Sunday school lesson books; some red ink (for a diary); and a hunting knife ("What if I had to kill a bear?" Bill asked.)

Mother Of British Queen Is Stricken

London, June 23 (Thursday) (AP)—The Countess of Strathmore, mother of Queen Elizabeth, died early today at her London home. She was 78.

Wife of the Scottish Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne, the countess had been gravely ill for some time. Both King George VI and the queen were at her bedside when death came.

Born Nina Cavendish-Bentlock, the countess was the daughter of the late Rev. William Cavendish-Bentlock, a member of the Ducal House of Portland.

She was married in 1881 to the heir to the ancient Scottish earldom which one day was to produce the first commoner queen of Britain since the days of Henri VIII. When the engagement of their daughter, Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, was announced to the then Duke of York, the earl remarked it was "a true love match" since the Strathmores never had aspired to court circles.

Selfridge Field's Missing Gin Found

Mt. Clemens, Mich., June 22 (AP)—Prosecutor Vincent L. Fitzgerald said tonight that the disappearance of 10 cases of gin consigned to the officers' mess of Selfridge Field had been traced to the action of the local agent of the Grand Trunk railway, who, Fitzgerald said, was acting on the instructions of his superiors.

Fitzgerald said Robert Snyder, the railway agent, had been instructed not to deliver liquor to Selfridge Field without permission of the state liquor control commission, and that the missing consignment had been turned over to the commission in Detroit.

The prosecutor added that the action apparently was based on the commission's announcement early this year that it would maintain jurisdiction over liquor sold at the army post, despite an opinion of the attorney general that it had no power to do so.

Empty Whisky Keg Still Packs 'Kick'

Fennville, Mich., June 21 (AP)—A whisky keg retained a lot of "kick" today even though it was empty.

Edward Felker, 30, mill worker, pulled the bung and lighted a match to inspect the keg, which had been lying for hours in the sunlight.

The keg thereafter exploded, hurling Felker ten feet away. Felker's left ankle was broken and he was burned severely about the face, arms and chest.

measure of accumulated stocks in the hands of business," Roper said, "these figures clearly indicate that excess inventories, as one cause of the present depression, have been largely removed."

In predicting a summer, or early fall, upturn, Roper based his conclusions upon the general business situation as disclosed by statistics collected by the department. The lending-spending program should prove a very helpful factor, Roper said, and the improvement in business should be encouraged also by the wage-hour bill, the tax revision bill and the adjournment of congress.

When congress departed, he added, many legislative uncertainties which had caused hesitancy among business men were removed.

Cut-Over Areas of Wisconsin Presents Problem

Madison, Wis.—The new Great Lakes Cut-Over Area committee will hold a second meeting in Madison within a few weeks to give further study to the increasingly serious social, economic and political problems presented by Wisconsin's largest "problem area."

According to its leaders, the committee is to point "out the way by which the natural wealth of the region can be made to contribute more to the support of the present and future generations on a permanent basis and on the highest standard of living attainable under Democratic institutions."

At the first meeting arrangements were completed for the selection of state committees which will study special aspects of the general problem and whose reports will be integrated into general survey to be prepared by the central executive group.

Lead Is Stretched By Giants In 6-4 Win Over The Reds

New York, June 22 (AP)—The Giants finally caught up with the Cincinnati Reds today, exploded a five-run barrage in the seventh and eighth innings and came through with a 6 to 4 victory to stretch their National league lead to 2-2 games.

Paul Derringer pitched shut-out ball until Alex Kampouris tagged him for a homer in the sixth. Bill Terry's troupe then clubbed Derringer to the showers with a four-hit, two-run barrage in the seventh to tie the score and then won at the expense of Bucky Walters in the eighth.

Victory and the thundering advance of Generalissimo Franco's forces, George Leiviska, Atlantic Mine young man who turned "soldier of fortune" and sought out adventure in the Spanish civil war, believes the Republican army will triumph . . . after the smoke is gone.

Leiviska, 27, square-jawed and stalwart, departed from the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leiviska, a year ago in April—"destination unknown." He didn't tell his mother where he was going; he wanted to spare her the worry and debate he knew was inevitable. After he took his leave there was a period of silence—then a letter from New York announcing that George Leiviska had enlisted in the famous "Washington Brigade" to fight the insurgents in Spain.

Former Packer Is Seeking Office

Marinette, June 22—The name of Richard P. Murray, district attorney and mayor of Marinette, was placed in nomination for attorney general in the Republican primary for next fall at the eighth district Republican rally and conference held in Green Bay Saturday afternoon, according to news dispatches.

Murray's candidacy was suggested by Frederick W. Gleese, salesman and former Outagamie county sheriff. Murray was promised the full support of the eighth district should he decide to run for the office. He was non-committal today, and stated he would reserve his decision until some time later.

Roy H. Sengstock, of this city, eighth district chairman of the Young Republican group, was unanimously elected eighth district secretary.

Marinette was represented at the meeting by Murray, Sengstock and Assemblyman C. A. Budlong.

The speaker's main speaker was Alexander Wiley, Republican nominee for governor in 1936 and Republican candidate for the United States senate nomination, who declared his belief that nation will act against "the false postures."

Says "KruGon Is Just Wonderful"

Had Used Most Every Known Remedy Without Results; KruGon First to Reach Her Awful Case of Inflammatory Rheumatism

"KruGon is the only medicine I have ever taken that did exactly as it advertised," said Mrs. Adriana Keding, 410 4th Ave., Wisconsin Rapids, Wisconsin. "It seemed to be made for my stubborn case of inflammatory rheumatism which had bothered me continually for ten years. The pains were over my entire body and I was kept in constant misery. I was badly constipated too and my system so clogged with impurities that my kidneys began to give me trouble. I was up at all hours of the night and was annoyed with dizzy spells and headaches. All medicines I got did me no good and I don't know what I would have done if I had not learned of KruGon when I did."

"This new laxative-ionic formula went directly to the source of my health troubles," continued Mrs. Keding. "My system has been cleansed of its impurities now so I am feeling like my former self again. Those rheumatic pains have been relieved, stomach and kidneys are regulated and that stubborn case of constipation corrected. I can eat and enjoy my meals, sleep good and really enjoy living. No wonder everyone seems to be 'talking KruGon' for it is a medicine of unusual merit."

KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ladington St., this city.

Candidates also will be nominated to fill the vacancies in the office of circuit judge in the seventh, seventeenth and thirty-second judicial circuits. These latter provisions apply to candidates for governor and lieutenant governor only. Commission Rules WPA Work Is Job

"The Michigan Unemployment Compensation commission has ruled that persons employed by the WPA are, within the meaning of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Act, employed and, if earning $3.00 or more per week, not entitled to receive benefits for total unemployment," reads a statement received at the Escanaba office of the Michigan State Employment service from Frederic S. Schouman, state director of the service.

"Therefore," the statement continues, "every effort should be made by employees of this department both prior to, on and subsequent to July 1st to acquaint the public with this fact."

Persons employed on WPA and earning $3.00 or more per week, cannot receive benefits under the act and if they insist upon filing claims for benefits will only add to the work of the department and delay benefits to those who are entitled to benefits.

Betty B Making Daily Trips To Tahquamenon Falls

The large cruising launch Betty B, is now in daily service on the Tahquamenon river run from Soo Junction to Tahquamenon Falls, leaving the junction via the Toonerville Trolley at 10 a. m., and returning about 6:30 p. m. Approximately three hours are allowed for sightseeing at the falls.

The new Diesel-operated "Tahquamenon," built especially for the Tahquamenon Boat Service, will go on the falls run shortly after July 1. Built to order by the American Steel Bridge company at Fort Wayne, Ind., the plates and superstructure are now being assembled at Hunter's Mill below Soo Junction. A double-decker with cafeteria and large observation bridge, the Tahquamenon will have capacity for 300 passengers, about three times that of former years. Six rides to the Tahquamenon Falls will be awarded as prizes at the Fishermen's Party to be held at the Upper Peninsula State Fairgrounds in Escanaba 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 26.

Here and There

SCENIC attractions along US-2 in the Upper Peninsula are receiving much valuable publicity from the series of articles, written by Arthur W. Stace...

The city of Manistique is going ahead with plans to stage a bang-up Fourth of July celebration. When Manistique citizens get the notion to put on a festival of some kind, they go to work with unequalled enthusiasm.

When there is talk of aviation up in this country, the usual remark is that the industry is just in its infancy year. More than a decade ago, G. Harold Wescoat, an aviation enthusiast, started an airport and flying school here, only to find that he was too far ahead of his time.

John R. Merrifield, secretary of the Sault Ste. Marie Chamber of Commerce, and Stanley D. Newton, publicity director of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, are rejoicing at Sault Ste. Marie over the announcement by Governor Murphy and Senator Prentiss M. Brown that federal funds will be allotted for the Straits of Mackinac bridge project.

Planning Board Named

GOVERNOR MURPHY has finally completed the task of appointing a state planning commission, which will make a study of various state problems.

The personnel of the body indicates that the governor is mostly interested in seeking a solution of the problems of labor relations and industrial management. Nationally known industrialists, including Abner Larned of Detroit, Charles F. Kettering of General Motors, and William Hale of the Dow Chemical company, have been given appointments.

The state planning commission originated back in the days when Rexford G. Tugwell's Resettlement Administration was launched for his short-lived career. The group was appointed with the idea of making a study of the proper use of the land, especially the cut-over areas of Northern Michigan.

Asikainen in Race

WE knew it all the time, but our hats are off to Andrew Asikainen, general auditor of the unemployment compensation commission, who has finally announced that he is definitely in the race for the Democratic nomination for congressman from the Twelfth district.

Andy did a fine job of getting a lot of publicity long before he threw his hat in the ring. He used many of the old gas, but they worked.

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent London—Heinie Schmidt gets up these summer mornings, washes his face with coal, shaves with coal, socks his feet with straw, and clothes himself with wood or milk.

Hence the sub rosa joke: "My suit's ruined. Wood-worms got in." Of course the above is not literally true, but basically is so, because Nazi Germany, with its four-year plan aimed at making the country sufficient unto itself in case of war, has outdone itself in the discovery and manufacture of "ersatz" substitutes.

In the closing days of the last world war, when England's naval blockade was causing Germans to go hungry, almost everything was, "ersatz." Even after the war for a time this was so. This writer tackled beautiful-looking layer cake in Munich. In appearance it was made of proper flour, milk and eggs with a rich cream topping. One portion made you feel stuffed. You walked 100 feet and then—puff!—the "ersatz" had collapsed and you felt hollow again.

—GARBAGE, A TREASURE— But under the command of General Goering in charge of the four-year plan, Germany is achieving bigger and better "ersatz." Clever German chemists, in their laboratories are every day finding new things they can produce. And nothing is wasted. For instance, town garbage used to go to dumps. Now every day in every town a special organization goes around to houses and flats and collects the garbage—potato peel, scrapings from dinner plates, fruits cores, vegetable, inedible stalks. The stuff is taken to the country where it is fed to the hogs—Germany's principal source of meat supply.

Old newspapers are saved and converted into new wrapping paper. Old empty tubes, which contained shaving creams, lotions, tooth paste, as well as metal around old bottles, are collected, melted and used.

Artificial wool is being made from wood and from the casein content of milk. Wood also furnishes the basis for fuel for motor lorries, for wood alcohol and for a form of sugar. What is left is used to burn in grates and stoves. The soya bean is being increasingly cultivated for the oil which can be used in the manufacture of oleomargarine and soap.

German magicians treat ordinary coal and lo! there is shaving cream. Again they take coal and lime and from their factories issues "buna"—artificial rubber which they claim is better than the rubber nature produces. Once more, they take coal and lignite and distill gasoline. As Germany is the third coal country of the world, it is claimed it is possible to produce ultimately 500,000 tons of gasoline yearly. This would assure Germany being able to fuel its airplanes, tanks and armored cars as well as the motor lorries which will carry troops on the splendid new roads in case of war.

—PHONEY "COFFEE" AND "CAKE"— Germans love coffee and coffee costs a lot of money and consumes foreign exchange. So much "coffee" is now made of roasted barley to which is added roasted acorns. It tastes something like coffee, but it has not the real coffee kick. To make the wheat and rye crop do, much flour has added to it corn meal and potato flour. Fruit preserves are eked out with carrots and other vegetables. When real coffee is used, the grounds are collected and out of them factories make shoe blacking.

The "white of an egg" for cakemaking is often albumen manufactured from fish. A certain kind of sausage is made of fish. To save leather, pocketbooks are often made of fish skins.

In length and with beams that left only a few inches to spare between the boats and the locks. Moonshine is still being made in the Peninsula, we are reminded by the arrest of a father and his son at Iron Mountain last week. They will be tried in federal court at Marquette in October, at which time they will doubtless be impressed with the seriousness of their offense. Arrest of a youth who had bought a quart of moonshine for 75 cents led to their arrest, and that won't help their case any.

Down in Menominee the city authorities are pondering whether they should proceed with plans to build a municipal power and light plant or ask for federal funds to build a sewage disposal plant. The latter must be given serious consideration because state health authorities threaten to close the beaches to swimmers if the polluting of the waters of Green Bay continues. Menominee continues to empty sewage into the same body of water from which it gets its supply of drinking water.

Marquette is one of the most prosperous counties of the Peninsula, if there is such a thing as being prosperous these days. That is borne out by the fact that more than 5,000 automobiles have been licensed to date in the county by the Marquette branch of the state automobile license bureau. By way of contrast, one of the Upper Peninsula counties has an automobile registration this year that is slightly less than 50 per cent of the total for last year.

Believe it or not, a carnival at Negaunee last week was the first in many years to play there with its concession stands closed. No games of chance were operated on the grounds. That may be attributed to the fact that Prosecutor Voelker has not retreated from his position of last year when he said the anti-gambling laws of the state would be enforced in his county. That is more than can be said for some of the other counties of the Peninsula.

Sweden Gets Along

PLACIDLY indifferent to the zealous who howl that we must take either Communism or Fascism day after tomorrow, and like it, the people of Sweden go about the creation of their own design for living.

That it is a good one is attested by the celebration in Stockholm of the 50th birthday of King Gustaf V. More than a million of his subjects contributed to a gift of a million-dollar check which was presented to the king. He immediately passed it on to a fund for fighting infantile paralysis and rheumatic disease.

Half a million jammed the streets of the capital to cheer the king. They shouted for "Mr. G." the incognito under which the king used to play tennis, and by which title he is popularly known.

The king himself paid the highest honor to his position, when in a speech he referred to himself as "the premier citizen of a free country." It was a true description of his status, far more accurate than "king." No more noble political title has yet been conceived by the mind of man.

Even to his Socialist ministers, King Gustaf is known as "a good fellow," and the left-wing papers in nothing the anniversary were united in proclaiming that even to radicals, a good monarchy is better than a bad republic. For they know that Sweden has approached more nearly than any other country to a condition where there are few who are very rich, and few who are very poor, and where all are free.

This picture of a great country paying a largely spontaneous tribute to its ruler, and doing it in a dignified, decent manner without needing the populace with nationalistic hokum or herding it into synthetic huzzas, is like a light in a world of strife and turmoil, of bitterness and hatred.

This is no plea for monarchy. The combination of circumstances that makes monarchy a success in Sweden probably does not exist in the same degree anywhere else in the world.

But the Swedish celebration does point strongly to the fact that actuality is what counts in government. If it works, if it makes people reasonably happy and secure, if it keeps them free, the name by which a governmental system is called means nothing.

A glance around the world shows that it is possible to have oppression and suppression under governments called "people's governments." It is possible to have tyranny and brute force under a system of elections that is in name republican. The substance is the thing, not the label.

AROUND THE PENINSULA (Ironwood Globe)

Last week was an event of special significance to American Legion posts of the Peninsula. They sent 120 boys to the campus of Michigan State college at East Lansing, there to enter the Wolverine Boy's State. They will enjoy a program for future citizens of America, the purpose of the camp being to develop the responsibility of leadership, the advantages of citizenship and the art of clean sportsmanship. It is a great contribution to these boys and the Legion posts can be proud of it.

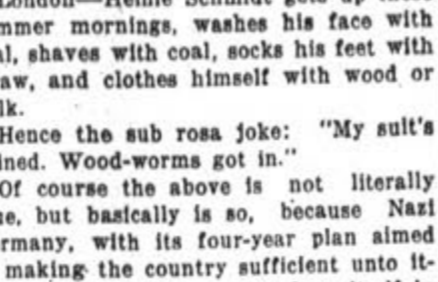

The Rev. Erasmus Dooley, pastor of St. Patrick's church at Hancock, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his ordination into the priesthood at appropriate ceremonies last week. It was of more than passing interest to many ex-servicemen of the Peninsula, for Father Dooley was a chaplain in the American forces during the World War. He was in the Soisson sector and in the St. Mihiel and the Argonne drives and served with the army of occupation in the Rhineland. Father Dooley today is serving a parish within a few miles of his birthplace. He is a native of Calumet.

Miss Pearl Windsor, principal of Iron River high school and a life-long resident of the city, has been named superintendent of the Iron River schools to succeed M. L. McCoy, resigned. When she assumes her new duties July 1, she will be the only woman superintendent of schools in the Peninsula. Her services as principal date back to 1918, ranking in length of time with those of Miss Frances Radford, who has been principal of Menominee high school for many years.

This is one of those years when there is a decided lull in the activities at the locks in Sault Ste. Marie. A class of seniors, making a tour of the eastern end of the Peninsula, had to wait a considerable period before they could see a steamer pass through the locks. Last year they could have seen ore boats, upbound and downbound, at almost any time of the day or night, some of them more than 500 feet

For many years it has stood in the Rotunda of the Capitol in Washington. Lincoln sat every day for approximately five months to the young sculptor, who had had little instruction. At the time she had a Government position. Miss Ream was permitted to absent herself from her work on condition that her assignment not be affected by her art work in connection with the execution of the President's statue.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—Once again the rural rialto is beginning to hum. Suburban impresarios are trimming show-lawns around the summer show-shop circuit, dispossessing the bovine tenants from the barns, rigging up footlights in the manger and slapping new paint on the hardwood chairs.

Broadway managers have already begun to assemble timetables in advance of their annual jaunts to look over the summer's crop of potential stars and scripts. New England-bound ingenues are busy stocking up with supplies of suburban lotion. And Broadway slowly but surely is slipping into its summertime slits.

Author Lewis Becomes an Actor One of the features of this year's hot-weather drama will be the appearance of novelist Sinclair Lewis as an actor in the footlight version of his own "It Can't Happen Here," at Cohasset, Mass. He has re-written some portions of the play for the event. If the notices are good it may be that Mr. Lewis will join the ranks of the Broadway acting gentry next season. At Cohasset he'll take the part of the play's editor.

At Kennebunkport, Me., the main attraction of the season will be the arrival of Booth Tarkington, who has announced his intention of joining the Garrick Players there for the two-week "Booth Tarkington Drama Festival" in August. The creator of "Penrod," however, isn't seeking to emulate the acting antics of his confrere, Mr. Lewis. He's going to remain on the sidelines. But the presence of Mr. Tarkington at this tiny fishing village for the purpose of supervising and staging the productions of "Seventeen" and "Clarence" is bound to cause a heavy influx of drama-fans and critics alike.

Sally Rand is set for acting three roles in the cowhide-chataqua this summer at the swanky Westport, Conn., and Mt. Kisco, N. Y., playhouses. Sally's appearances will be in Sidney Howard's and Rachel Crothers' opuses.

Serious Drama Lures Phil Baker If someone told you that it was the desire of Phil Baker, the ethereal-comic, to follow in the footsteps of Alfred Lunt in "Idiot's Delight," the chances are that you'd dismiss it as a careless rumor. But such are the vagaries of the hill-and-dale drama. For Phil Baker's ambition to play the lead in the Robert E. Sherwood drama will become fact no fancy on July 25, at Raymond Moore's luxurious country playhouse at Dennis, Mass., on Cape Cod.

And so the delirium continues. America's No. 1 radio heart-throb, Rudy Vallee, has announced to all and sundry that he plans to play the lead in Elmer Rice's "Counselor at Law," before the fall at some summer theater. That is a bulletin which must have caused Elmer Rice's carotid-hued locks to turn even a deeper shade of red. And Benay Venuta, another recruit from radio, is listed among the legitimate theater attractions for the month of July at a Long Island playhouse.

The old-fashioned type of affection must go. —Margot Grahame, English actress.

I guess I'm just quilt-crazy. —Mrs. Eleanor Stech, of Cleveland, who has made a quilt of pieces from the 48 states.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington, June 22.—Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, majority leader of the United States senate, is an amiable, pompous, rather middle-headed person, with a taste for barbershop song and an engaging habit of telephoning Jimmy when in doubt. Yet, although his capacities are limited and his record is unimpressive, he has a talent for bringing home the bacon.

In the recent session of congress, the senate obtained two prime pieces of pork for Kentucky—a $112,000,000 TVA dam at Gilbertsville and $132,700,000 worth of flood control projects. Under his beneficent influence, the emergency agencies—WPA, PWA, CCC and the U. S. Housing Authority—plan to spend around $60,000,000 in Kentucky in the next twelve months.

New Kentucky postoffices will come to $1,500,000. Kentucky farm benefit checks are unpredictable but sure to be handsome. And Kentucky's share in the ordinary expenses of government cannot be calculated.

The wildernesses of Federal Finance are hard to penetrate, but with the important exceptions already, a fair estimate of the value of federal bacon brought home by the senator is $206,000,000. As that comes to $107 for every man, woman and child in Kentucky, it must be admitted that the senator has done well.

THE VOTE AUCTION These dry and somewhat forbidding figures are worth recording at the moment, because the senator is now engaged in a primary contest with Governor A. B. "Happy" Chandler. As the senator is the hand-picked representative of the White House, the whole prestige of the New Deal depends on his victory.

The choice confronting the Kentucky voters is not an appetizing one. On the one hand is the senator—not a man to get excited about at the best of times. And on the other is the governor, a hard-bolled, loud mouthed, glad-handing politician, in the brash and loquacious tradition of southern demagogues. The voters of Kentucky are not to be blamed if they choose the candidate who bids the highest.

The governor has got his state machine. He has the spending of certain federal moneys, such as the road appropriations and social security benefits. And he is reported to enjoy heavy backing from Big-Business, both Republican and Democratic, both in Kentucky and out. No wonder, then, that the New Deal has been lavish with the senator.

The Gilbertsville dam, for example, was killed in the House, and then authorized at the last moment in the Senate, after the proper people had passed the proper word. And as for the flood control projects, more than a third of those authorized for the entire country in the last congress are Kentucky projects. The real issue in the Kentucky primary will, of course, be the New Deal, but Kentucky voters are to be forgiven if they think of the New Deal as the new bacon.

MORAL LOGIC Under the circumstances, it's worth recalling an old story of Speaker Longworth's in his Ohio district, there were many Negro voters, and not all their leaders were above the temptations of the dollar. He used to tell of one negro precinct captain to whom he gave $100 to carry his precinct. When the votes were counted, he found, to his surprise, that the precinct had gone Democratic. He called in the captain and asked for an explanation.

"Why Mr. Longworth, sir," said the captain, "you see the Democrats gave me $50 too."

"But I gave you $100," said Longworth. "Why didn't you carry the precinct for me?"

"Well, sir," said the precinct captain, "I'm a good church-goer and a religious man. And after I'd took your money, I got to thinking you and the Democrats had corrupted me and led me into sin. The Democrats corrupted me least, so I gave them the votes."

It's improbable that the Kentucky voters will apply the moral logic of the Longworth captain. Reports come from Kentucky that the betting is about five to four on Barkley. But if Chandler should win, the Kentuckians at least have disproved the memorable dictum of Speaker Longworth's old enemy, John Nance Garner. "You can't beat a billion dollars" will no longer be a dependable rule.

Disclosure that the navy is considering two-man submarines suggests that warfare of the future may be acceptable to militarists and pacifists alike. Crewless battleships, pilotless planes, and armies without soldiers.

Apparently the movies are starting to guard against future suits of actors against their parents. They hired an actor the other day who swore he was 112 years old.

An Italian volcano exploded the other day, but the natives went right on about their business. Probably thought it was the Crechs up north holding their elections.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

SIGNS You didn't dare to twirl a chair Or walk beneath a ladder. To kill a cat, a black one, that Mean soon you would be sadder. And to return, if you should learn You'd something left, and find it, And start again, was certain then To bring bad luck behind it.

In these new years it now appears That we are much more clever. We're not naive, we don't believe In any signs whatever. That day is past. We live so fast You'd think that there were no signs. We don't obey the signs today. Not even Stop and Go signs.

MAYORS VISIT WITH MURPHY

Governor Promises Vets Hospital and Higher Wages on WPA

Mayors Peter Logan of this city and Joseph LaFramboise of Gladstone have just returned from Lansing where they held a private conference with Governor Frank Murphy at the latter's home on the Michigan State college campus. Logan said the governor advised them the veteran's hospital at Gladstone had been approved and it is one of the first three projects to be started under the new program. Everything now depends on the city of Gladstone, he said. The governor also promised, Logan said, that WPA wages will be raised above the present standard of $44 per month. Logan told the governor that local WPA crews were unable to live on that figure especially during the winter months in view of the high cost of fuel and clothing. The two mayors made the trip with C. P. Titus, county commissioner of schools. Nebraska is an Indian name meaning "water valley." The only sound a quail can hear is the buzzing of its mate.

Miss D'Amour Is Bride in Lovely June Ceremony

The charm and dignity of simplicity marked the wedding ceremony of Wednesday morning at which Miss Mary Marjorie D'Amour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. D'Amour of 813 Fourth avenue south, became the bride of Garrard W. Belanger, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Belanger.

The marriage service was read by Rev. F. Nolan McKeever at a high mass at nine o'clock at St. Patrick's church. Roses of deep pink shade were arranged with the altar candles and tall baskets of iris and huckleberry were at either side of the entrance to the sanctuary.

Cape Model in Chartreuse The bride wore a becoming street length cape model of chartreuse sheer woolen with black calf skin applique, the contrasting note on the cape, and with it a hat of rough straw and harmonizing accessories.

The professional of tradition "Bridal Chorus" from Wagner's "Lohengrin," was played by Mrs. William Ramspeck, organist, and Mendelssohn's Wedding March was the recessional. The music of the mass was sung by St. Patrick's choir, directed by Mrs. Walter O'Connell, with solos of the mass by Mrs. George Walker. At the offertory, Roswig's "Ave Maria" was sung by Mrs. John Kress.

Wedding Breakfast A wedding breakfast for immediate members of the two families, was served at the D'Amour home following the ceremony. A low bowl of blush pink roses with ivory tapers graced the table and the bride's cake, iced in white, was topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Belanger are motoring through Canada on their honeymoon trip. They will be at home, following their return, at 318 1/2 Lake Shore Drive.

BEHIND THE SCENES

By Rodney Dutcher

Washington—No one has yet offered any worthwhile estimate of the number of workers whose pay is likely to be raised under the wage-hour act. Those closest to available facts, however, think the number will be much larger than most guessers and commentators have supposed.

Labor leaders who at first snorted in contempt when an initial 25-cent minimum wage was proposed began to look into it and were surprised at indications of widespread effectiveness. The fact that minimum wages may be set at anywhere from 40 cents an hour in individual industries might conceivably add one or two millions to the number of workers benefiting.

Garment industries have many "beginners" working for as little as $2 or $3 a week. Arkansas is the only southern state with a minimum wage law and its minimum wage of $1.25 a day compares with the minimum of $2 for an eight-hour day under the federal act.

SOME EXAMPLES OF LOW WAGES

Surveys in recent years have shown 43 per cent of women in Florida factories to be getting less than 20 cents an hour and about half the men in the same factories less than $1.30 a week, 10 per cent of factory workers in Tennessee making less than 20 cents, and one-third of women and one-fifth of men in the seamless hosiery industry earning less than $10 a week.

Wages lower than the federal minimum aren't peculiar to the south. About half of Delaware's factory workers were found earning less than $10 a week, about half of Connecticut's knickerbockers factory workers less than 30 cents an hour and about 28 per cent of District of Columbia working women less than $10 a week. These are only random samples. But they seem significant.

POLITICS IN MARYLAND

Congressman David J. Lewis, seeking to unseat the aristocratic and socially impeccable Senator Millard Tydings in Maryland, went to work in the coal mines at the age of 9.

"But that was an improvement in our family," says Lewis. "My father was put in the mines when he was only 9."

Lewis is possibly the only senatorial candidate this year who actually was born in a log cabin—in Center County, Pa. He educated himself and eventually made higher mathematics his hobby, reveling in problems of geometry and trigonometry. He has fathered, wholly or partly, parcel post, the Guffey Coal Act, the Social Security Act and the original New Deal federal relief bill.

"I don't remember a time when I couldn't read," Lewis—now 69—says. "But the first writing I ever did was when I was 17 and had run away from home and wanted to tell the folks where I was. I got an old speller which had the script letters and printed letters side by side and carefully worked it out."

This Man, Joe Murray

BY WILLIAM CORCORAN

Copyright, 1938, by William Corcoran; NEA Service, Inc.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOE MURRAY—liked new places, new jobs, new girls.
HELEN—fell in love—hard—once.
TERRY MALLOU—found love—and kept it!

CHAPTER XX
Companionship . . . comradeship!

A stark thought came to Joe Murray. It came inevitably. It came often, clearer and clearer. It came and abided with him, unbidden. It had been with him a long time, he suddenly saw, unrecognized.

These stings, these rankling stabs . . . they were alive! They were not, they never could be, happiness and peace, the visions; they were passionless and dead and unattainable. They were a drug and a delusion for a starving man, who was sick for the days of his strength and his plenty.

It was not Helen he yearned for any more. It was the past. Helen was dead, gone into limitless time; his love for her had not died, but was part of him; he would always love her and remember her in beauty, through all the years. Helen was not of the earth, she was beyond all passion; she was not real, she was a vision.

It was a vision he dreamed with, but it was Terry he lived with daily!

Realization rushed upon him, cataclysmic. It was Terry he wanted and hungered for. Terry—pestering, worrying, begging and beguiling. Terry, with her dainty fine web spinning always about him. Terry, who would conceivably ride in a box car with him blandly and gaily, and walk on the highways and sleep in the fields of a nation, did he ask her. So long as they traveled together.

It was the starker a thought for the clarity of its conclusion, which went back to the very beginning, it was Terry he wanted, yes, but it was Terry he had lost. It was Terry he had torn from his hands. He had not failed himself; he had not been able to keep her, losing her to forces far beyond his humble command. But to realize that he had possessed this and lost it . . . and that it was this and nothing else in the world that he wanted . . . it was stark, stark—and a man must face it forever!

He went a little berserk. He had a remnant of money, a few meager dollars from the tiny fund sent him by the Murrys. He put the money in an envelope and mailed it back to them, saying he was gone again, not to worry, he'd keep going and come out right side up—he had to keep going, and he could not come home.

He felt this interval of lingering dependence to be a shame on him, a recollection that must be wiped out. He had his manhood. He knew the ways of the road. He could make his way, wanting nothing from any man. He'd come right side up. There would be work. There would be need of more automobile bodies sometime, somewhere; there would be work and forgetfulness. Work and forgetfulness.

Not peace! He rebelled at peace, shattering the seductive visions. There was no peace—not in life. Life goes on, and the greatest struggle always, and the greatest torment, the greatest loss, is to be out of the struggle, out of the stream of it.

Neither life nor love have peace in them, though they both have surpassing beauty: the beauty of change, the beauty of growth, the beauty of a continuity, inscrutable and unending.

And this was Joe's groping avowal. He who had been out of the stream of it, out of the running . . . he was plunging back. This man, Joe Murray.

Joe Murray went foraging. When he found what he wanted, he brought it home to the hotel with him: a piece of cast-off leather, light and fairly pliable. It was treasure trove. He borrowed a pocket knife from the hotelman at the desk and went to work in his room.

He took off his shoes; they were in no state for the road, with holes large as quarters in the soles. He cut a piece of paper to pattern and trimmed it till it slid inside one of the shoes easily and neatly. Then he laid the pattern on the strip of leather and hacked out a most practical inner sock.

He was at work on the other shoe when there came a knock on the door. He had occasional visits from room neighbors; he called an invitation to come right in. The door opened, and he glanced up. Slowly, numbly, he dropped the shoe, the leather, the knife.

"Terry!"

She came into the room, closing the door behind her. She was looking at him with the big brown eyes . . . looking at him. She was thin; there were big circles under the eyes; her shoulders drooped beneath a cheap red coat.

"Joe," she said, and stopped.

He looked scared, looked like a man who does not know what to do. She did it for him. She walked to him and sat down on his lap, sliding her arms around his neck and laying her head on his shoulder.

"Terry," he said. "God . . . Terry!" His voice would not function. He did not know what was happening to him, what was racking him.

She knew. She said, "Joe—once, and suddenly began to cry, weakly, surrendering wholly. And she cried with her, because he couldn't help it. He was weak. He was unmanned.

It was some time before they were calm, with a kind of exhaustion. Slowly they got around to looking at each other, to letting go each of the other even to that extent. In the eyes of each of them there was a pain and a pity at what they saw. They were so thin, both of them, so older, so different from other days.

"Terry," said Joe huskily, "you floored me that time. You clipped me one. Right on the button."

"I'm glad," she told him. "I'm glad to know that I could."

"How did you get here?"

"I came in an airplane."

"Airplane?" bewildered.

"I flew all the way. I haven't slept in almost two whole days. We flew all last night. I couldn't sleep anyway, coming to you."

"That costs money, Terry!"

"I know it. So I got it."

"How did you get it?"

"Stole it."

He was utterly silenced by that. She looked weary and said, "Oh, what does it matter, darling? I got here. I was afraid you'd be gone. Your mother told me. My father had a lot of money he won betting the races and I stole it. My own mother gave him more long ago than I'll ever see. I've waited months. If I knew where you were I'd have crawled there. If anybody could have told me, I'd have paid them a million dollars."

"Terry . . . but why? I'm broke, I'm in trouble, I haven't earned a dollar in too long to remember."

"What does all that matter?" she cried fiercely, exultantly.

"You're alive, I'm alive. We can be alive together. I only want to be dead if I'm away from you. I don't care if we starve—we can starve together. I don't care what happens if it happens to us together."

He bowed his head. He was blinded by a light; he was full of an awareness. He buried his face on her soft shoulder, out of sight. He was remembering . . . her small and intense persistence, her holding on like grim death with her small insinuating hands when she wanted something badly, very badly.

"Why, Terry?" he insisted.

"Because I love you, darling."

He was silent, holding her.

She added, "And because you love me."

There it was. It was so! And Joe said, "What are we going to do, baby?"

And Terry told him, "Anything you say! We can do anything. Anything . . ."

And they sat there, together. And nothing mattered. Nothing. What could matter now? They could do anything. They could go home. They could go anywhere over a nation. They could find shelter in a field, love in the stars, strength in the wind. They could find work. They could live. They could do anything. Life was going on.

They were together. They were in love.

That is what this story is about. It is about love.

And that is where I come to an end. But the story does not. The story goes on, with a Terry and a Joe, and then another Joe, and beyond and beyond, another . . . forever.

Doings About Capitol

Lansing—What's wrong with our small towns?

A recent effort by a newspaper syndicate house to interest editors in radio propaganda, as a means of "reviving Main Street", prompted us to give some thought this week to Michigan economic and social trends.

Trends are like a trade wind—a steady force that keeps blowing whether you like it or not.

You who live in small towns or on the rural routes and you city cousins who came from rural sections or occasionally visit there will be interested in these facts:

Seventy-three per cent of all Michigan small towns—1,000 to 2,500 population—enjoyed an increase in population from 1920 to 1930. The depression's back-to-the-land movement has accelerated the trend, as a tour of inspection of these bustling villages will prove. New homes are being built. Vacant dwellings are scarce.

Hamlets on Wane

According to studies made by Prof. J. F. Thaden, Michigan State College sociologist, it is the small hamlet—the one with 500 population or under—that has suffered the most in the past two decades. Two-fifths of these villages suffered declines.

Population trends away from the town are apt to increase in proportion to the distance from industrial cities. Development of good roads and the rapid increase in the use of high-speed automobiles has extended the commuting suburban zone out many miles into the rural territory around the larger cities.

For example, Macomb, Oakland, Monroe and most of the other counties in southern Michigan witnessed steady population growth of cities and villages alike. In northern Michigan, Antrim county, all four of the incorporated population centers—Central Lake, Bellaire, Manelona and Elk Rapids—experienced losses in population. Yet this northern region, favored by legions of tourists, entertains an increasing summer population each year as good roads are built.

Nearly 18 per cent of the state's population comprises people born in other states. These are, for the most part, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, Kentucky and Tennessee.

Nearly one-fourth of the population, according to the 1930 census, was foreign-born.

Since the World War, tens of thousands of Negroes have settled in Michigan industrial centers.

The urban population increased 47.3 per cent from 1920 to 1930, at the same time when the rural population declined 8.2 per cent.

No Exodus to Cities

What are the small town trends nationally?

In 1920, the percentage of the country's population living in small towns was 18.9 per cent. By 1930 this proportion had grown to 19.2 per cent.

The small towns are more than holding their own in population, as the figures show for both Michigan and the nation as a whole. The high birth rate and migration from the farms enables the communities to show steady growth, even although many of their own young people go to the cities to find jobs.

It is significant that the rate of growth of America's small towns exceeded that of the country as a whole.

More Retail Stores

What has been happening to Main Street's business life during this period?

The most interesting development of small town business is the steady increase in the number of retail trade outlets per town.

A recent survey (1936) places the average at 52.5 stores per community. In 1910 the average stood at 27.7; in 1920 at 32.1; and in 1930 at 39.6. The jump from 27 to 52 represents a 90 per cent increase in 25 years!

In place of the old-time general store is the specialized retail business. These facts disprove again the popular misconception that small-town merchants are losing their trade to the city stores and mail-order houses. It seems to indicate that adjustments have been made to hold the country and small-town trade.

Cities have the trading edge in fields of ready-to-wear, dry goods, furniture and entertainment, but the small towns still are prominent in serving the rural trade with groceries, drugs, hardware, farm machines, automobiles and auto accessories, work clothes, bank service, restaurant service, and ordinary forms of recreation.

Decentralization Trend

Small towns with low-priced real estate, moderate taxes and good living conditions at low cost, have been attracting the factories that have previously clustered together in industrial centers.

Plymouth, a suburban community of Detroit, 25 miles out from the traffic rush, has been selected as the site of a factory now located inside Detroit.

Henry Ford, pioneer of the decentralizing idea for industry, has been building scores of model factories amid the quiet atmosphere of Michigan small towns. And it has found it to be good business.

The Dow Chemical Company at Midland is an example of big business that operates successfully in a small city. It's only 15 minutes from the office to the country club, and your next door resident is your neighbor. How much is it worth?

32 Per cent Growth

While Michigan has grown in population at a faster rate than the rest of the country—the increase being 32 per cent between 1920 and 1930 alone—yet it cannot be said truthfully that the development has been at the cost of Michigan small towns, most of which have continued to thrive.

Nearly 18 per cent of the state's population comprises people born in other states. These are, for the most part, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New York, Wisconsin, Kentucky and Tennessee.
