

BIG DOUBLE CELEBRATION HERE TODAY

WRITER TELLS HOW GERMAN CREATES JOBS

Editor's Note: When the Hitler regime announced this week a new decree enabling the government to draft anyone in the country for labor purposes because of a "labor shortage," most readers asked whether Germany's unemployment problem really had been solved and if so how it was done. In the following story, the chief of The Associated Press bureau in Berlin tells what has happened and the price paid for the results.

NAZI GOVERNMENT IN BUSINESS ON BIG SCALE

Berlin, June 25 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, during a period of world-wide depression, has worked a seeming economic miracle in the labor field. Not only has unemployment been reduced from 6,000,000 at the time of his assumption of power in January, 1933, to 338,000 today, but his administration has embarked upon such gigantic public works schemes that there is a shortage of skilled workers.

State Comes First

How did Hitler do it? This question is often asked by visiting foreigners. Briefly, the situation may be summarized as follows: Hitler, realizing his regime was to stand or fall on the solution of the unemployment problem, laid aside all considerations for personal liberty, private preferences, regard for foreign countries and individual savings, and subordinated these to the needs of the state.

NATIONAL LOOP RACE IS UPSET

Lavagetto Dives Out of Big Ten Entirely; Lombardi Tops

New York, June 25 (AP)—The National League batting race underwent its biggest upheaval of the season last week, and in the confusion Ernie Lombardi found himself at the head of the parade.

While Cookie Lavagetto of Brooklyn nose-dived all the way from first place down and out of the first ten, the Cincinnati Reds' "Schnozzola" went to work on his pitching cousins, clubbed out 14 hits in 30 times at bat, boosted his average 21 points to .367, and climbed from third place to the No. 1 spot in the averages up to and including Friday's games.

He wasn't alone in the upward march, for Herschel Martin, the Phillies' sophomore fly-chaser, also found friends among his hurling rivals, traveled at a .500 clip in 20 chances at the plate to raise his mark of 16 points to .358 and take second place from Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals. Ducky dropped to third with .348.

Goodman Upsets Cart

The upheaval wasn't confined to the batting race alone. Every one of the individual departments of play saw a change among its leaders.

Ival Goodman, the Reds' long-range cannon, was responsible for most of these. In addition to deadlocking Mel Ott of the Giants for the home run leadership at 18 each, "Ival the Terrible" took over the lead in triples with seven, to six for his teammate Lew Riggs, Johnny Mize of the Pirates, and Gus Suhr of the Pirates, and went into second place in both run-scoring and runs-batted-in. Ott held his leadership in both of these departments, with 53 runs scored and 61 driven in, while Goodman's second place totals were 52 and 51, respectively.

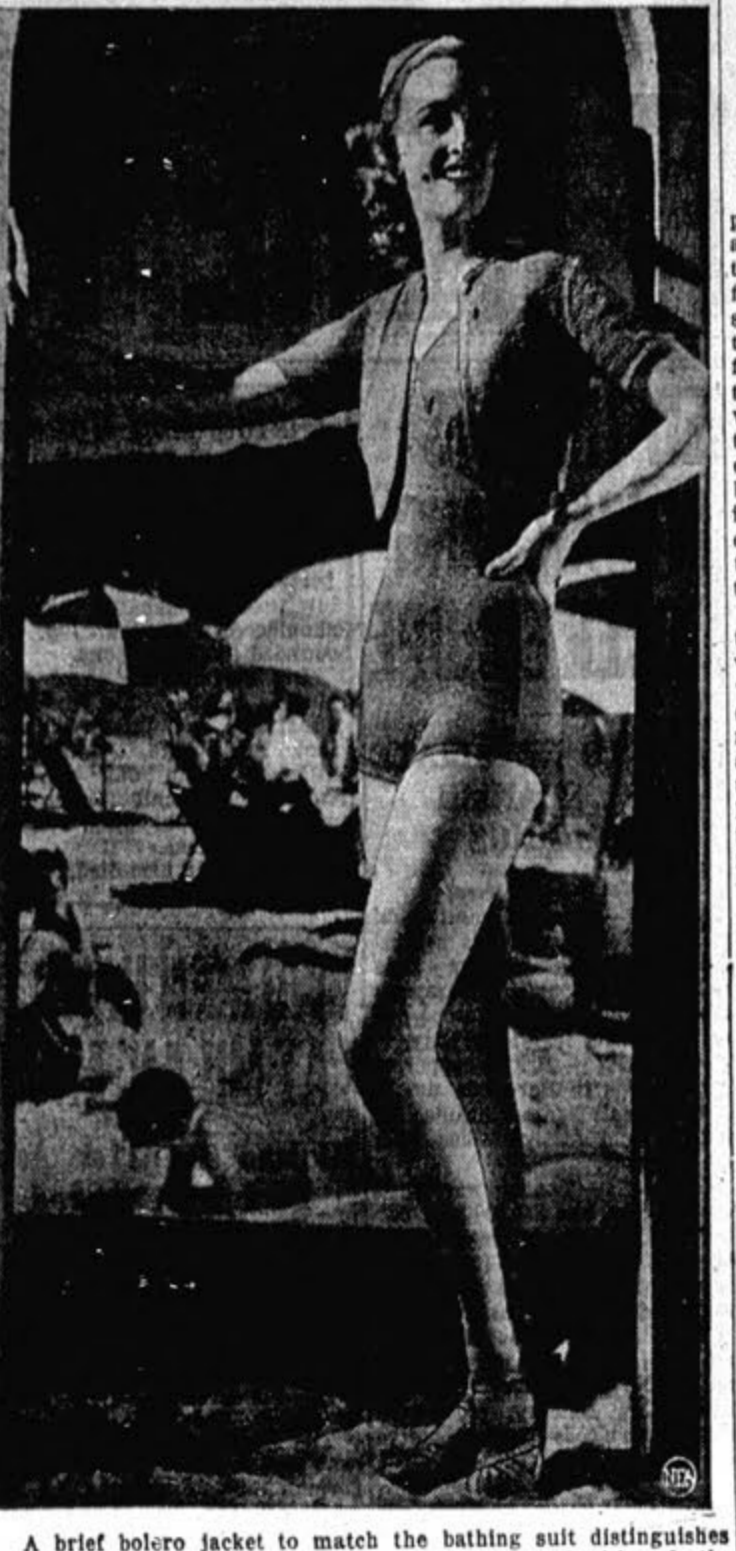

Vander Meer Second

Goodman also had his big bat at work in the hitting race. In 18th place a week ago, he collected 12 hits in 30 chances during the seven-day span to raise his average 11 points to .326, for seventh place. Others in the league's first ten were his teammate, Buck McCormick, fourth with .336; Brooklyn's Babe Phelps, fifth with .331; Gus Suhr of the Pirates, sixth with .328; Ott and Debs Garms of the Boston Bees, tied for eighth with .317, and Stan Hack of the Cubs, tenth with .316.

McCormick took the lead in base hits from Jo Jo Moore of the Giants, with a total of 83 to 76. Herschel Martin climbed into sole possession of first place in hitting doubles, with 20 two-baggers to 19 for McCormick, and Ernie Koy of Brooklyn passed Stan Hack of the Cubs in base stealing, with eight for the season to seven for Hack.

Bob Klinger, Pittsburgh rookie, remained the league's leading pitcher, with five wins and one setback. Johnny Vander Meer, the Reds' sensation, pulled up to a second place tie with Mace Brown, Pirates' relief hurler, each showing nine wins and two defeats.

Bass Are Wary But Surface Lure Will Usually Take Them

BY OZARK RIPLEY

The advice to keep as much as possible out of sight of the quarry and create no disturbance is about the best that can be given bass fishermen. Sometimes bass are in such avid striking mood that disturbances which could easily frighten them at other times seem to have no effect on them. They will hit almost any lure offered on these occasions no matter how clumsily presented by the fly or bait caster. This is the exception instead of the rule. The careful, quick caster or live bait fisherman throughout the season can show the best worth while score.

The bass fly rod fisherman certainly has great success fishing with the modern cork-bodied bugs when bass are striking on the surface. When they are in this mood, it is sometimes exceedingly amazing from what great depths they will come for the fly. In hot weather very early in the morning and late in the evening are best for floating bug technique.

Strategy Needed

When all attempts fail with the fly rod to lure bass to the surface, underwater flies are the ones which are pretty near certain to bring good response. The underwater feather minnow with its outrig wing arrangement of streamers tempts many a fine bass into striking. Once while at Lake Penaga, the writer had tried most everything. Bass would not respond. Something urged me to try a Babcock feather minnow. It brought the limit in a short time.

The old eyed feather flies attached to spinners produce well when bass are feeding deep. After a strip of pork rind is added as an extra enticement. Most all of the modern underwater fly rod lures tempt the bronze-backs.

Watching where bass are feeding, whether on the surface or down deep, helps bait casters a lot and actually develops bass strategy. Most of the plugs land just a foot or so beneath the surface and are mighty attractive in their various colorations and shapes. Those who do not have good success with plugs can trace it to reeling where no bass ever stays. Then there are many who lost good chances to catch bass by creating disturbances or giving the fish a sight of them. Bass can't be made to come to a lure when they see a man at the same time. Depend upon finding bass down deep when the weather is exceedingly cool or in warm weather when the sun is shining brightly and around mid-day.

Surface Lures Good

When fish are active only in fairly deep water, often the old-fashioned spinner or the shoe-horn shape wobbling type of metal lures are the best. Most of the old fashioned spoons or spinners are equipped with bucktail or feather flags. The pork rind is a great bait when attached to either single or tandem spoons. The old type of underwater minnow with a spinner at the head and tail is still quite popular bait with bass fishermen.

Surface lures are used very effectively in hot weather, early in the morning, late in the evening or at night. There are many types and shapes of modern lures for this purpose. There is one of light wood and with light spinners in front and rear. These spinners produce a commotion on top of the water which tempts bass. There are other modern lures for surface fishing which are not equipped with spinners but are shaped to create a fuss on the surface when reeled.

The best method to use with the surface lure is to cast far, reel slowly and then stop every ten seconds. Bass must think they are some sort of aquatic creature which is exceedingly desirable.

In line with the Anglo-French fears the Spanish conflict might quickly burst its borders if Barcelona should carry out its threats, Italy tonight notified France, Italian air force would wipe Spanish government cities off the map if Italian cities were bombed.

Officials here were silent on the Spanish threat, but France was understood to have used her greater influence in behalf of Britain as well as herself in counselling Barcelona against the threatened course.

Replies By Cannon

In Rome, Virginia Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, wrote in his important II Giornale D'Italia that Italy and Germany would reply to any such bombings "not with diplomatic notes of protest, but with cannon."

London meanwhile increased efforts to influence Generalissimo Francisco Franco, insurgent leader, to cease air attacks on British shipping and on open cities in government Spain.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain disclosed in the house of commons Thursday that Sir Robert M. Hodgson, British commercial representative at Burgos, seat of the Spanish insurgent government, had been called home.

The purpose, Chamberlain announced in the house of commons Thursday, was to bring Franco's explanation for the repeated bombing of British ships in Spanish government ports.

Some saw it also as a veiled threat to withdraw Sir Robert entirely as an agent in Franco's territory unless the attacks cease.

Chamberlain's determination to remove the civil war as an obstacle to his broad peace plans, however, led to the belief in some quarters that Sir Robert also was instructed to explore the possibilities of truce before leaving Burgos.

elsewhere as the campaigning progresses. It can leave new deal dissenters in Democratic ranks little doubt as to what to expect from the administration either this year or in 1940.

Mr. Roosevelt's belligerent attitude, his direct appeal to voters of all parties for help in carrying out his redeclared program of reforms, again raises the question whether the only logical outcome of his renewed drive must not be his own third-term candidacy in 1940. That probably is a question the president himself has set aside for future consideration although his most intimate official family associates doubt that he desires another term.

Yet the challenge he has flung again at his opponents within his own party, including now even his new classification of "yes, but—" Democrats who favor his objectives but oppose his efforts to attain them, has set in full motion forces tending toward some broadly based political regrouping by 1940.

Old Parties Passe

Mr. Roosevelt has caught up and re-echoed the cry of the La Follette sponsors of the new national Progressive party movement that the old major party alignment means little.

"An election cannot give a country a firm sense of direction if it has two or more national parties which merely have different names but are as alike in their principles and aims as peas in the same pod," he said.

That was voiced as a plea to voters in all parties to turn out in the primaries and favor liberal as against conservative candidates current exchange rates equals approximately $28,280,000,000. With this economic set-up, Hitler went after the personal and human side-of unemployment by equally rigorous measures.

Women Yield Jobs

Universal labor service became compulsory. Conscription for military service was decreed.

When man and wife both were wage earners, the woman was compelled to yield her place to an unemployed male.

Elements considered anti-social were put to work in concentration camps. Thereby taking them off the unemployed rolls.

Employers and employees were compelled to set up a common German labor front with a membership of more than 25,000,000.

Rearmament was pushed at a speed and extent perhaps unparalleled in history. Almost overnight airports, military barracks, and buildings for the various next party formations were greatly increased. Peccolant secret service groups began to sprout.

Execution of the government's numerous projects the army of government employees rose from about 3,700,000 officials, not including laborers, in 1933 to a reliably estimated 8,000,000 today.

The Hitler regime conceived a gigantic four-year plan for economic self-sufficiency which entailed building vast plants for ersatz (substitute goods) manufacture, such as gasoline from coal, wool from timber and rubber by a synthetic process.

Just as capital was virtually conscripted for setting these projects in motion, so also were land and soil.

It is admitted generally by forestry experts for instance, that timber cutting proceeds much faster than reforestation.

The munitions and armament industry became one of the most important economic factors, especially when its ramifications are taken into account.

Gambles on Future

These ramifications include a gigantic road building program, a tremendous increase in German automobile construction, an amazing stimulus to the clothing industry especially in uniform manufacture, and the biggest airplane building increase in German history.

Competent American observers who have been associated with or consulted in these developments, some of them resident in Germany for ten or 15 years, agree any nation might put into effect a similar program providing its citizens were willing to pay the price.

That price consists of these things:

- Gambling boldly on the future.
- Complete renunciation of personal liberty and abandonment of belief in private property.
- An about-face on the traditional policy of keeping frontiers open.
- Minutely regulating and severely restricting conditions under which money may be taken into or out of the country.
- Establishment of a vast government machinery for supervising the private life of every individual.
- Suppression of free speech, the free press and the free public assembly.
- Introduction of conscription of every able-bodied male for both labor and military service.
- Virtual conscription of capital.
- Subordination of all individualism to the needs of the state as these needs are interpreted by whatever administration is in charge.

This is the price Germany has been paying since 1933. It has bought her, from the German viewpoint, a solution of the unemployment problem and along with it other gains of which Nazi leaders are proud.

Scout Camporee Is Postponed; Grounds Soaked

Wet grounds and rain caused the postponement of the Scout Camp-O-Ree scheduled for Pioneer Trail Park on Saturday and this morning. Chief Takes Race, Stagehand Second New York, June 25 (P)—The Chief and Stagehand, three-year olds owned by Maxwell Howard and trained by Earl Sande, ran one, two in the mile and eighth of the $20,000 Brooklyn handicap at Aqueduct today. Parker Corning's Unfalling was third as J. H. Loucheim's highly regarded Pompoon finished out of the money for the first time this year. The Chief, ridden by Johnny Longden, stepped the distance in the fast time of 1:48 2-5. The same time he made in winning the Dwyer stakes last Saturday and only one-fifth of a second off Discovery's track record. Stagehand trailed by five lengths. Pompoon, winner of the Dixie handicap and second to Snark in the fast-run suburban, never was a serious contender. He finished sixth in the ten-horse field. JOBLESS ASKED TO REGISTER

Must Sign to Receive Compensation Act Benefits

Unemployed workers who are likely to receive benefits under the provisions of the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Act should register immediately at the Michigan State Employment Service office, located at 612 Ludington, according to word received here today from Frederic S. Schouman, state director of the Service.

"While the law does not permit workers actually to file their claims until July 1," Mr. Schouman said, "this procedure will be speeded greatly if all potential claimants comply with the requirement that they be registered with the Employment Service."

The 12 minutes or more required for taking a claim from an individual will be cut to five minutes in the cases of workers who already are registered with the employment office by July 1, Mr. Schouman pointed out.

The Employment Service director also stressed the fact that all claimants must have their Social Security account number cards in order. Those having more than one Social Security number or those who have lost their cards should have this corrected immediately to avoid delays after July 1. The staff of the Escanaba office is now prepared to assist potential claimants in getting their Social Security cards in order. On and after July 1 it will be necessary for all claimants to display their Social Security cards at the time the claim is filed. Otherwise the claim will be held up until the Social Security card has been inspected, Schouman said.

Plans are now being completed by the Escanaba office to handle the crowds of claimants during the first few days of July at an emergency appointment station. Claims will be dated as of the date of the appointment, it was explained.

Only totally unemployed workers, who previously were engaged by employers affected by the Unemployment Compensation Act, will be eligible for benefits. Farm laborers, domestic servants, federal, state, county or city employees, maritime workers and employees of religious, charitable, scientific, literary and educational organizations not operated for profit are not eligible for benefits. The amount of wages earned by a worker released from subject employment will govern the amount and duration of his benefits.

Fur, Fin and Feather

With June 25, marking the opening day for all kinds of fishing in the Upper Peninsula, all roads are leading to the bass lakes and to bluegill waters. The season on sunfish, less widely distributed than any other panfish in peninsula lakes, opened on that date also.

Veteran guides, of course, always like to seek the out-of-the-way lakes in search of the gamey black bass and they find them generally at the end of the wilderness roads, which usually are not in very bad shape when dry, as Jim Ostrander, veteran Curtis guide and resorter has often demonstrated.

We asked Jim for a real, honest-to-goodness steer to a real bass lake or two where we could tell people to go fishing and really catch fish.

"You'll find a fisherman's paradise worth a little trouble and bumping over rough roads north of McMullan. A fairly dry dirt road winds its way for ten or more miles directly north into the wilderness, a wilderness, where you're as likely to as not see a deer bound in front of your car around most any bend in the road."

"After you get into the big timber, you'll hit roads built by the CCC and they really are fine roads that wind through forested lanes which take you to good camping grounds on any of a number of good lakes. Bass, Belle, Peanut, Murray, they are all worth a trial."

"Bait? Well, you know any old time guide will always recommend live bait. Of course many good fish are taken on artificial baits and plugs but when I head for a bass lake I always like to have a good supply of frogs, the little green kind—and a big pail of shiner minnows along. I've found, time after time, and I've had a life time to experiment and study fish in, that the live bait is the lure that brings in the biggest catches consistently."

So there you have it, the where to go and what to do when you get there to which Jim adds that veteran guides often find that the deep down trolled lures get 'em

PET SQUIRREL

Frances Clifton and her three brothers, children of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clifton of Kate's Bay, have a red squirrel which they picked up during the butterfat harvest last year. It is kept in a cage and appears to be enjoying it as much as the children. It answers to the name of Squeaky and is always alert for the tidbits with which it is frequently tempted. Nuts and apples form its main diet. It is very partial to the citrus fruits, eats tomato ravenously but scorns rhubarb. It can be induced to lie on its back and revel in a rubbing. At night it rolls in a small piece of a woolen blanket, much as a person would do it.

Can There Be Peace Between Us and the Nazis?

If the British Government had discovered that a German spy ring as has now been exposed in the United States the news would have been kept secret.

Publication of the indictment tells foreign spies where they made their mistakes and thus helps them avoid similar errors. In Europe, which is passing from one war scare to another...

Certainly Mr. Chamberlain could not hope to develop his pro-German policy after revelations such as we have had this week. And because Nazi spy activities here were linked to those in England there will in any case be repercussions on British public opinion. Sooner or later the Chamberlain Government will be asked to answer embarrassing questions about German spy activities in England.

The most important aspect of these revelations is their effect on German-American relations. The indictment of 18 individuals, all active spies for a supposedly friendly government, is almost unprecedented in time of peace.

It indicates once more the cynicism with which the Nazi Government regards the deceencies of international intercourse. It reveals a far-flung attempt to corrupt officers of the American Army and Navy. It indicates the extent to which every German citizen living in the United States is a potential secret agent of his Government. It shows how Nazi leaders with an utter absence of conscience use the human beings under their control as pawns in whatever game they wish to play.

What It Does to Mr. Average Man

Hereafter no patriotic American who, like the writer, has repeatedly enjoyed traveling on the magnificent German liners Bremen and Europa can have the same friendly feeling toward those ships. He knows now that they have carried German spies as members of their crews. He knows that they have carried key witnesses in the spy inquiry out of the jurisdiction of the United States. He knows that the secret agents of the Nazi Government, whose business it is to steal our military secrets, are regular passengers on these vessels. Under such circumstances how can any patriotic American feel at ease in spending a week of leisure and relaxation in such company?

These revelations of dirty spy intrigue come as the climax to five years of unhappy relations between the Nazi Government and the people of the United States. In every possible way Nazi proclamations and actions have done violence to the feelings and beliefs of our people. Perhaps, as Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles has told us, it is none of our business when the Nazis persecute their own people, but the simple truth is that a government which defies human decencies at home behaves in the same way when it sends its agents overseas. In international relations democracies and dictatorships do not speak the same language.

We have the evidence in these spy indictments. The United States does not deliberately charge crimes against specific prominent officials of a supposedly friendly government unless it has incontrovertible evidence of their guilt. The controlled German press can deny these allegations all it pleases. We know that its hirelings are told what to print by those who do the dirty work which the German press is asked to deny.

Outlook for Friendship Bleak

Any one who continues to be optimistic about the possibility of good relations between dictatorships and democracies should study the German-American record of the last five years. There has not been a month since the Nazis came to power when the Hitler regime has not done something to offend American opinion. And yet, despite years of constant irritation, the American Congress voted to provide German dirigibles with the helium which would assure safety for their operation.

Nothing better proves our good-natured indifference to insult and injury. Germany would have had our helium but for the stubborn opposition of a single key man—Secretary of the Interior Ickes.

We can all be grateful that Germany has refused to participate in the New York World's Fair. After the revelations we have had this week Nazi participation in such a friendly international demonstration would have been a hollow mockery.

Whenever we look the Hitler regime defies the decent instincts of all good Americans. It continues its persecution of Catholics, Protestants and Jews. Its planes continue to kill Spanish civilians primarily for practice purposes. The Nazi Minister of Economics tells us that Germany may seize Austria's gold, but she repudiates Austria's debts. She proclaims her right to confiscate the property of Americans who

HOLDUP HONEYMOON

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JOSEPH SANDHAM—hero; he thought he was on top of the world until he smacked into KELLY ARCHER—heroine; she thought she was headed for the altar until she smacked into ED, the WEASEL—gangster; he thought he was headed somewhere, too, but affairs somehow got mixed up.

Yesterday, immediately Joe lays down the ultimatum that Kelly is to marry him. Eating, he comments, "This guy Gilbert would have lived high if I hadn't come along."

CHAPTER III
"Conceited thing," said Kelly. "Your coming has nothing whatever to do with Gilbert or how high he'll live. More cream?"

"Sure. And it isn't a question of conceit. I'm a stickler for facts, that's all. And I repeat..."

"Skip it," said Kelly. "How does your head feel?"

"I haven't known I had a head for the last half hour."

"In that case," Kelly said, "we're starting for Boston right after breakfast." She stopped and regarded him. "Anything against shaving?" You look like a neglected grave.

"My razor was out in the car," mumbled Joe, through the last of the eggs. "I'll get a shave in the first town."

"All right," said Kelly. "And while you're doing that, I'll wire Gilbert to meet us at the Copley Plaza. I should have telegraphed him earlier, but I haven't had time."

"Too busy nursing me?" Joe grinned.

"Yes, unfortunately." He spread his hands. "Well, there you have it. You can't go against Fate. Directly you met me, I made you forget all about Gilbert."

"You," said Kelly, "are fast establishing a new all-time record for self-confidence. Finish your coffee."

The sun fell on Connecticut even as stars are wont to fall on Alabama. The result was a honey of a day, very green-and-gold, very warm. Kelly came out of the house carrying a suitcase.

"I had the presence of mind to get this out of my own car last night," she said. "What I laughingly call my trousseau is in it."

Joe took the suitcase and parked it in the back of the Ford among the confections.

"What about your car?" he inquired.

She waved her hand. "I asked Simmons to see to it. He will. He's very reliable."

"Okay," said Joe. "Hop in, Boston or bust."

They stopped in a village a mile from Tyler Archer's house. Their paths diverged, temporarily. Joe sought a barber shop. Kelly was calmly smoking a cigar and reading a New York paper.

"Wanted to see if the family had kicked up any dust yet," she explained.

"Expect a dust storm?" said Joe.

"And how. My family are probably raising the roof. You see, I walked out cold."

"Then they don't know that you were going to the arms of this wastrel?"

"They don't know anything. Because I told them exactly nothing. Therefore I am picturing consternation, the colossal kind, in the old Archer household."

"But won't they get in touch with this twerp Gilbert?"

Kelly pursed her lips. Evidently that possibility had not occurred to her. She reached for Joe's arm and dragged him into the car.

"That's a thought," she said. "And it makes it all the more important to get to Boston quickly. Come on, James. In and drive."

"Fool," said Kelly. "Would I suggest lunch unless there was food? While you were getting shaved I bought some sandwiches and two quarts of milk. We can practically gormandize."

"Whoops," said Joe, and aimed the Ford at a lane that ran off from the main road.

Kelly found a likely-looking glade in no time. They got out, sat with their backs against the same tree and began consuming the sandwiches and milk. Then, as the sandwiches diminished, it developed that Kelly had brought an extra one for Joe. The discovery smote his sense of justice.

"Nothing doing," he said vehemently. "Life is a 50-50 proposition. There is such a thing as 'even Stephen.' Marriage should be on a share-and-share basis..."

"Shut up," interrupted Kelly. "We're not married. Eat the sandwich."

"I flatly refuse. Unless you'll eat half of it."

"I will not eat half of it. You're bigger than I am. You need more."

Joe grabbed the sandwich, a thing of ham and pickles.

"Never shall it be said," he proclaimed, "that Joseph Herendeen Sandham outwits his women. Since we have arrived at an impasse, we will toss this sandwich to the beasts of the field and the birds of prey. We will..." And right there Mr. Joseph Herendeen Sandham stopped talking, very, very suddenly.

"Save that sangwidge," commanded a rasping voice from behind a bystanding thicket, "for me."

If people can jump a foot in the air from sitting positions, Kelly and Joe jumped it. Their heads went up simultaneously. Then it was that they perceived that which would have given pause to Attila the Hun.

Half-hidden by the thicket stood an individual with elephantine shoulders and a jaw like the facade of the Chrysler Building. The jaw and the granite chin that seemed to go free with it were a tasteful shade of blue. And two grapping-hook hands, thrust out of the foliage, trained twin automatics upon Kelly Archer and Joseph Sandham. The automatics gleamed wickedly in the noonday light.

As Kelly and Joe stared aghast the presence came all the way out of the thicket. The full effect was horrifying in the extreme. And yet the sinister mien of the behemoth was mitigated somewhat by a pair of weak watery-blue eyes. Judging from his eyes alone he looked like the kind of a guy who might drill his aged maiden aunt full of holes and then weep hysterically over a slushy movie.

Mr. Joseph Sandham had been brought up in the tradition of the Light Brigade. He knew that you had to make a pass of some kind when cannon were in front of you.

"Wh—who are y—you?" he stut-tered.

The behemoth attended to the inner man before pampering curiously.

"Pass me dat dere sangwidge," he ordered in his beautifully-toned voice. At the same time he wigged the right-hand gun.

It was Kelly who passed the sandwich. The colossus thrust one of the guns into his coat pocket, pounced upon the viand and wolfed it at a gulp. Then he wiped his mouth with the back of his hand.

"Got any more?" he inquired.

"Sorry," said Kelly, who seemed to have recovered her poise in miraculous fashion. "There's a lot of milk, though, for mamma's little boy."

Joe glanced at her admiringly out of the corner of one eye. What presence of mind! What nerve! Generally speaking, what a woman!

The behemoth seemed gifted with a subtle sense of humor. He grinned from ear to ear, a sickening sight.

"Haw, haw," he said. "Milk, huh? Gim melt!"

Kelly offered a bottle half full. The gentleman of the shoulders raised it to his lips and produced a sound as of a dredge sluicing away at a river bed. A second later the bottle of milk was just a bottle, nothing more. The gun-minded man tossed it away.

"Ha," he said, with satisfaction. "I feel better. I ain't et since dis mornin'."

Joe thought it was time that he got in a word. He tried again along the same lines.

"Who are you?" he demanded. The behemoth reached in his vest pocket and set to work on the left upper molars in the back of the house.

"Me?" he said, looking at Joe sternly. Evidently he wished to get things straight.

"You," confirmed Joe. An expression of pride seemed to cross the weak blue eyes of the behemoth.

Landscape Cost Not Prohibitive
Small Lot Planting Charge Low

No matter how small the lot or how small the house, a home may be made more attractive by landscaping.

A small house occupying a lot 50 by 100 feet can be effectively beautified in most sections of the country by the expenditure of about $100 invested in shrubs, trees, and the creation of a good lawn.

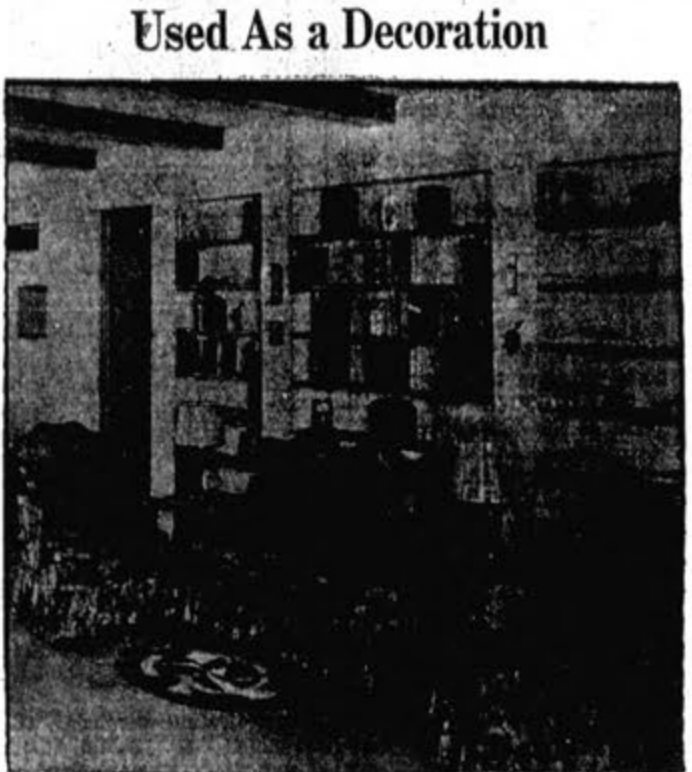

It is somewhat difficult to estimate the exact expense of a lawn due to the differences in soil conditions in various sections. If a basement has been constructed and a good top soil found, this should be saved and spread over the entire lot, as far as possible. Almost any lawn will have permanent value if a certain amount of fertilizer is added to the soil. Often it is best to first seed with clover or some other rough legume and then spade this under when the growth has become heavy so as to lighten the soil. This may delay seeding the lawn for a year, but the roughage will keep dust and mud from being tracked into the house.

Neighbors should be consulted, as they can give pointers garnered from past experience. When the soil is good only a small sum would be necessary for labor and materials needed to finish, grade, and seed a lot 50 by 100 feet.

A sizeable shade tree can be had at reasonable cost. This should be obtained from a reliable nursery. Such a tree will add materially to the appearance of the yard. Pick out a specimen that has a good fibrous root system.

Four fruit trees planted at the rear of the house will afford shade, beauty, and in season, additions to the family larder. Nurseries generally include in the sales price of trees delivery, planting, and proper soil for the trees to thrive.

Used As a Decoration

This interior of a home in St. Paul, Minn., illustrates how successfully a recessed bookcase in the wall of a room may be used as a decorative treatment. The plaster returns in and over the backs of the recesses with wood shelves stained a dark brown.

Electricity

The basic requirements of any electrification system is to provide artificial lighting or service to the point in the home where it is needed. An ample number of double convenience outlets is often recommended so that movable lamps and appliances may be utilized rather than permanently placed fixtures. This permits a system of great flexibility.

The life, safety and adequacy of a wiring system is largely dependent upon proper design to insure a sufficient number of branch circuits to prevent overloading, upon the use of quality materials of the proper type and upon quality workmanship in the installation.

In houses where electrical cooking facilities or similar heavy loading may occur, care should be taken that the service entrance wires are of a suitable size and a special service of suitable capacity must be run to the range or other appliances.

BASEMENT ENTRANCE

Basements today are focal points of adult and child play activity and yet few have adequate provision for ready exit in case of fire. Most basement rooms can be reached only through the house.

There are ready cut steel and other type material hatchways that lead into the basement from the yard. These may be purchased and installed at a surprisingly low cost. They may be financed with the proceeds of a Property Improvement Credit Plan loan insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

HINTS FOR EXTERIOR COLOR HARMONY

It is not always necessary to paint a chimney a conventional red. A white chimney adds a note of distinction. Or paint it some soft shade in harmony with roof and trim. Consider a house from every angle before final colors are selected.

A new use of colors is to paint the wall spaces under porches, roofs and archways a different color than the rest of the house.

PLAN # B
FLICKER or WOODPECKER

Quaint, colorful birdhouses are a means of enhancing your home gardens. Here are two rustic birdhouses, made from hollowed-out logs and slabs of wood. One is suitable for bluebirds and the other for flickers or woodpeckers.

Woodpecker or flicker houses are best located against the trunk of a large tree. Be sure to put some leaves or sawdust in the bottom of the houses, as these birds do not build nests.

The woodpecker requires a house with a floor area of 4"x4" and eight to 10 inches deep. The height of the entrance above the floor should be about eight inches and one and one-eighth inches in diameter.

Flickers need a larger house with a floor space of 7"x7" and a depth of 16 to 18 inches. The height of the entrance above the floor should be about 15 inches, and the entrance two and one-half inches in diameter.

Bluebirds like a house with a floor size of 5"x5" and eight inches deep. The entrance should be six inches above the floor and the diameter one and one-half inches.

as remodeled ones are given a unique color treatment. The side which faces the garden is painted a different shade than other wall surfaces.

The Story of OD and AD

OD and AD wanted to go into business for themselves. They decided to open retail stores. But they had different ideas as to how they should get customers. This is the story of what happened.

and the 2 STORES

How OD and AD Opened their Stores

OD believed that the way to get customers was to sell at low prices, and that the way to sell at low prices was to keep his expenses down. So he spent as little as possible in fixing up his store. He said he was not going to "waste" money on "trick lighting" and a "fancy front." He bought large quantities of a few lines of merchandise, because that way he got them cheaper.

Then he put an assortment of his goods into the windows, but because he had done so little to make his store attractive, few people noticed that it was a new store, and few came in to buy.

AD decided that the first thing he must do was to make his store attractive to customers. So he had it painted throughout in cheerful colors. He completely changed the windows and front, and he put in fixtures that flooded the whole store with light.

He chose merchandise well-known by name to the public, and bought smaller quantities of many lines, thus giving customers a greater selection. He arranged his stock in the store to make shopping convenient. He put in window displays of his most interesting merchandise—and changed them frequently.

Because his windows and his store were so attractive, many people stopped to look, and enough people came in to buy so that AD's goods sold quickly and he was soon ordering more of many items.

How OD and AD went after Customers

OD soon found that he could not get the customers he needed from those who passed by his store. So he had circulars printed and hired boys to distribute them from house to house. Sometimes they put them under the door or into the mail box, but often they threw them on the porch or into the yard, and many were blown away. Also, OD found it was a slow and costly way to tell his story, as in a whole day a boy could cover only a few hundred homes.

OD was disappointed to find that after all this work and expense, only a few more people came to his store.

AD decided that the more people he could tell about his merchandise, the more people would come to his store. So he put advertisements into newspapers read by many thousands of people every day. He knew that people were eager to get their newspapers to read the news. Therefore, his advertising was more likely to be seen in a paper people wanted to read. Also, the newspapers were delivered all over the city as soon as they were printed.

AD found that the more he advertised, the more people came to his store and the more goods he sold and the less it cost him to handle each sale. So he passed on the greater part of these savings in lower prices and better values to all his customers.

How OD Failed and AD Succeeded

OD found that so few people came to his store that his goods moved very slowly. He could buy very little new stock because his money was tied up. So he decided to have a sale.

He had big signs painted for the front of his store. He had circulars printed and sent boys out to put them into parked cars and distribute them at homes. But the people who came saw so little they wanted that his sale was a failure. At last, he disposed of all his remaining stock to an out-of-town bargain store at less than half what he had paid for it.

OD had had a very unhappy experience, but because he had never advertised in the newspapers, few people in all the city ever knew that his store had opened or that it had closed.

AD found that with more and more people now coming to his store, his stocks moved very quickly. As a result, he was constantly able to have fresh, new merchandise for his customers. He concluded that since people bought newspapers to read the news, he should tell them the news about his merchandise and his store. As a result, AD's advertisements were read as eagerly as any other part of the newspaper. Soon every one in town knew that AD had the newest things.

AD did not make exaggerated statements in his advertising. He just made the truth interesting. Repeatedly AD had to enlarge his store, and employ more people to take care of his increasing business. And, although his expenses were now very much greater, he sold so much merchandise and turned his stocks so rapidly that his store was very successful and was known far and wide for the values it gave its customers.

AD Tells OD How Advertising Serves the Store and Its Customers

ONE DAY OD came to AD and applied for a position. He asked AD how he had built such a fine business and obtained so many customers.

AD said, "First, by making the store an attractive and convenient place to shop, and second, by having the merchandise customers want.

"But these are not sufficient without Advertising to tell the people about them. So we continuously publish interesting, informative, truthful news about our service and our merchandise. And we tell it in the way that reaches the largest possible number of people quickly—through newspaper advertising."

FLYROD MAKES PANFISH FUN

Perch, Bluegills, Others Afford Great Sport on Lighter Tackle

BY CAL JOHNSON

There was a time when adult fishermen looked upon sunfish, crappies, perch, rock bass and other species of so-called panfish as kid's fish—and not to be meddled with.

Cal Johnson was known to inhabit and much to his surprise the fun turned out to be real

Today we find plenty of fly fishermen elbowing their way through a path of youngsters who are "worming" for panfish off the dock, and the result is that the little fly-rod is seen swishing a line over waters that heretofore were dominated by cane poles held in the hands of youngsters.

The lighter the fly fishing outfit the better the sport when fishing for panfish. As the saying goes, "all fish are big fish when captured on a fly-rod"

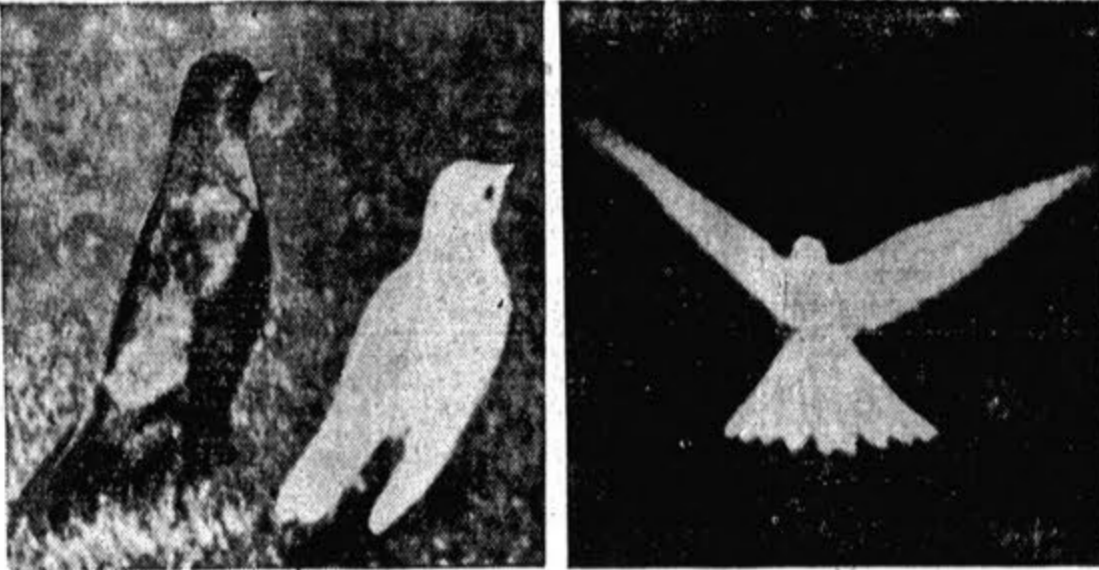

Cast Close to Weeds Cast the fly well out from shore, or, if fishing from a boat, cast the lure close to the weed beds and into the open pockets among the lily pads.

Winter Fishing Not Harmful, Few Fish Taken Through Ice

Ann Arbor—Winter fishing is not generally harmful to summer fishing, the Institute of Fisheries Research of the University of Michigan and the State Department of Conservation reports.

A closed period in "pike lakes" such as Houghton Lake, the Institute suggests, protects the Great Northern Pike during the spawning season and seems more reasonable than eliminating the sport of winter fishing which some warm weather anglers have urged.

Found and Photographed at Last—A Perfect Albino Robin Specimen

A white (albino) robin is a rarity in the world of birds, but pictures of one are even more rare. Here are pictures of a perfect specimen discovered by Albert Dixon Simmons, Cleveland naturalist, the only one he has ever been able to photograph in years of close study of birds.

Inlander Converted To Ardent Big Lake Trout At One Try

The thrills of trolling for trout on the Great Lakes have won another enthusiast. He is an inlander, Gilbert Colberg, of Stambaugh, chief linotypist at The Iron River Reporter.

William E. Hansen, advertising manager at The Reporter, was in Ironwood with Colberg. He considered the lake fishing expedition with apprehension and decided to play golf with Allender instead.

The fishermen headed straight out into the lake and edged eastward. At two and one-half miles from shore, they paused to look around. Colberg spotted a beautiful butterfly fluttering about as if he were flying over a field of daisies.

Farmers have better than a 50-50 interest in the land in which we live. Their importance to the sportsman and other lovers of the outdoors is emphasized by the fact that the total farm acreage in the United States is two and one-half times as large as all the land under public control and the total farm acreage is more than half of all the land in the country.

INSECTS KEPT IN CHECK BY BIRDS The fantastic theory that insects might some day dominate the world, sometimes advanced by imaginative scientists, would become a reality if it were not for birds, according to the American Wildlife Institute.

Musky Regarded As King Of The Fresh Water's Game Fish

BY CAL JOHNSON

The king of fresh waters, the muskellunge, will soon be the subject of hundreds of American anglers. This great game fish has long been respected by veteran fishermen and each new season sees more and more anglers trekking to the lakes and rivers of the north in hopes of subduing one of these vicious scorpions.

There are several ways of catching 'lunge'—trotting, still-fishing and bait-casting. The latter method is judged the most thrilling and by far the most skillful way of fighting these long-nosed citizens of North America's clear waters.

Never stand on a rock in the middle of the river or in an open place on a high bank. Every fish within casting distance can see you in such a position.

PLAYING POSSUM is one of the characteristics of the muskellunge. On many occasions the fish will suddenly give up the fight and roll over onto its dark back and permit the angler to reel him along side the boat.

BASS FESTIVAL NEXT SUNDAY

Crystal Falls to Stage Annual Event On July 3

Crystal Falls—Members of the general committee put the finishing touches on the plans for the Third Annual Bass Festival this week and everything is in readiness for one of the biggest events ever held in Crystal Falls.

Everyone planning to attend the Festival is asked to register with Clark. An early registration will insure adequate facilities for the fishermen when they begin their trips down the river.

As a special Bass Festival feature, the Casagranda brothers will stage several horse races on their track on route 141 between Amasa and this city.

Entertainment will include a casting exhibition by the LaPlante twins, Muriel and Merle. Clarence Bryan, nationally known bait-caster, may also appear on the program.

Illegal Frogs Are Rather High Priced Flint—Seventy-one frogs brought a record price of 48 cents each here the other day, yet there was no sale involved in the transaction.

A Lot of Fish

Harry Sedgewick, Toronto, Canada, sportsman, went afishing in the Panuco river, near Tampico, Mexico, and this is what he landed. A world record, no less.

The cottontail rabbit's nest is placed in a shallow hollow and arranged so that the top is even with the surface of the ground. The nest is lined with soft hair which the mother tears from her own breast. The mother visits the nest only during darkness.

Tea has been cultivated in China for more than 2,000 years.

Bear Cubs

Entertain Highway Crews

Iron River—A couple of comical cubs have captured the curiosity of highway workers on M-95 at Silver Lake about 10 miles north of Channing.

The tiny bears wrestle playfully over chunks of bread thrown them by Leo "Porky" Sandri, Iron River trucker. But Porky does not go too near the frisky cubs.

The cubs amble in to the road each morning to pay a visit to the highway crew. None attempt to pet the cubs and they know they will not be charged by the mother bear as long as they do not touch her cubs.

Planes Fly Away, Geese Fly Back

Winnipeg (AP)—Transport airplanes of the government-owned Trans-Canada Air lines buzzed around the Grant's Lake area on training flights while sportsmen and wild life conservationists grumbled.

The planes, they complained, were scaring away the geese from the lake, spring stopping point on the northward migration.

D. B. Colyer, T. C. A.'s technical chief, ordered his pilots to avoid the lake. The geese came back.

A LATE CATCH Harbor Springs, Mich.—Yes, it was a big one and it got away from Charley Gleason while he was fishing through the ice last winter.

In North America, north of the Rio Grande, 800 distinct species of birds have been recorded.

MURPHY RAPPED BY FITZGERALD

Fiscal and Labor Policies Are Assailed In Address

Detroit, June 25 (AP)—Former Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald blasted at Governor's fiscal and labor policies in an address here tonight in his campaign for the Republican nomination for governor.

Fitzgerald charged that "we have been pushed to the brink of a precipice by an incompetent government." He asserted the automobile strikes last winter and the labor "holiday" in Lansing were principal factors in the return of depression to Michigan.

Referring to the general strike in Lansing a year ago, which the United Automobile Workers Union characterized as a holiday, Fitzgerald continued:

"From that day on, you can trace the growing paralysis that crept over productive enterprise in the state of Michigan and in the United States. Businessmen, big and little, citizens with a few hundred dollars laid aside to invest in homes or modest commercial undertakings; workers that planned to buy a new car or a new radio or a new baby crib—all drew back with fear and foreboding, and kept their dollars in hiding."

"The fact that their state government had winked an eye at an open defiance of a court order, that irresponsible radical leaders were in control, that the interests of a minority were considered more sacred than the interests of the people at large—these were considerations which drove them to cover."

"And the result? You see it about you today."

Fitzgerald accused the Democratic administration of having attempted to place undue emphasis on the welfare reorganization plan and civil service, to divert attention from its labor policies.

"Here we are," he said, "facing the question of whether people earn their way and live as independent, self-sustaining Americans, or whether they shall be reduced to the status of chronic dependents upon government dole. And this administration, to hide its own sins, would have you believe it more important to argue about the details of administrative methods."

Fitzgerald told his audience he went out of office two years ago, leaving a balance of $8,775,000 in the state treasury, after having wiped out a $5,370,000 deficit that the previous administration had left behind.

"In spite of this, the state of Michigan is now headed toward a $36,000,000 deficit," he asserted. "The old cry is heard again, 'x x x' 'we are going into debt!' They tell you, 'because we have got to feed the poor.'"

"They are not going into debt because they must feed the poor. The poor have always been fed, and always will be fed so long as humanity survives. They are going into debt for one reason—because they added $8,000,000 to the state payrolls to take care of deserving party workers. They are going into debt because slipshod methods have taken the place of efficient, economic administration."

He offered a warning that "the poor cannot be fed out of an empty treasury."

Fitzgerald said factionalism followed the winter's labor difficulties.

"The feeling among the majority of our citizens that their state government neglected their interests, so that it might serve minorities to which it was indebted, drove them to organize in self-defense," he asserted. "The Flint strike and the subsequent rebellion at the state capital in Lansing were countenanced and condoned by the new state government in payment of a cash political debt owed to the irresponsible leaders of those insurrections by the government then in power."

Dreaming of $200 a Month

The comical hats perched on their heads contrasting with the expressions of earnestness and hopefulness on their faces, these typical elderly delegates to the third annual Townsend Plan convention in Los Angeles are pictured as they listened to Congressman Ralph Brewster of Maine. He told them that the Townsend plan not only was sound, but would balance the budget, whereupon the delegates cheered loudly.

CITY HALL TO BE USED SOON

Unemployment Commission To Hold Office In Council Rooms

The council chambers in the City Hall of the City of Escanaba, Michigan will be used by the Michigan unemployment compensation Commission to schedule appointments for the unemployed workers of Escanaba and this area who may wish to file their claims for job insurance benefits on or after July 1.

All workers are asked to make their first contact with the commission at the City Hall. Here they will be given appointment cards directing them to appear at a designated time on a particular day at the nearest office of the Michigan State Employment Service.

At the employment service office they will register for work, if they have not already done so, and will file their claim for unemployment compensation benefits.

H. W. Fitzpatrick, manager of the Escanaba office, emphasized that no claimants will be handled at the employment office unless they possess appointment cards obtainable at the City Hall.

The three week waiting period required by law before benefit payment may begin will start the day the eligible, unemployed worker appears at City Hall for his appointment card. Thus the workers will not lose any time despite the possibility that his appointment card may bring him to the employment office four or five days after he appeared at the City Hall.

Fitzpatrick pointed out that 7390 men and women in the Escanaba area may be eligible to apply for unemployment compensation benefits if they are totally employed on or after July 1st.

He also explained that the weekly benefit rates will be determined according to wages earned between April 1, 1937 and June 30, 1938. Benefits may not exceed $16.00 a week and may not be received for more than 16 weeks in any one 52 week period.

To be eligible for benefits, workers must have earned at least $50 in each of three out of the five calendar quarters beginning April 1, 1937, or a total of $250 in any one, two or three of such quarters.

Workers who are considered to be employed, will not be eligible for benefits so long as they are employed on WPA projects, according to a commission ruling. Likewise, workers who do not meet the earning requirements will not be eligible for benefits.

Workers are warned by the Commission to be sure to take their Social Security account numbers with them when they appear for their first appointment card.

"These account numbers are essential Mr. Fitzpatrick said and must be had by every worker who wishes to file a claim for benefits."

The first benefit payments probably will be made during the first week in August, after completion of the regular three week waiting period, plus a fourth week in which the worker's final eligibility is determined.

The first check will compensate the unemployed worker for his unemployment during the fourth week of waiting.

INDIGESTION, GAS ELIMINATED; KruGon ACTION IS AMAZING

Ft. Wayne Lady Now Relieved of Life of Suffering; Sharp, Stabbing Pains Eliminated, Entire System Toned

"Constipation and indigestion had made a 'wreck' of me for years before I knew of KruGon," said Mrs. Ada Danfee, 2531 John St., Ft. Wayne, Indiana. "Since childhood I had been bothered in this way. I could not sit down to my meals and enjoy them for I knew I was almost certain to suffer with severe attacks of indigestion, gas and bloating afterwards. Then to make me even more miserable rheumatic pains settled over my body and often they were terrible. My health was a great hindrance to me. I could not rest or sleep and a tired and worn-out feeling was quite frequent. It was terribly discouraging and I did not know where to turn next until I was persuaded to give KruGon a trial."

"Little did I realize a medicine with KruGon's ability existed," continued Mrs. Danfee. "By the time I had taken my first box I was feeling like a new person. Now my stomach and bowels are regulated and those poisonous accumulations of years have been entirely eliminated. The rheumatic pains have been driven from my body and I am really feeling like my former self again. It is such a pleasure to be so well again, new strength and energy seems to have been given me and life is so different feeling as I do since I gave KruGon the opportunity of helping me."

DURABILITY*

the Assurance of a Concrete Burial Vault

Time tempers sorrow and grief, but memories endure, grow stronger as the years go by. There is great comfort in the realization that departed loved ones rest securely in time-defying concrete vaults whose strong walls protect them. Concrete—like memories—grows stronger with age. Properly constructed according to rigid specifications, concrete vaults will give burial protection for centuries. The reasonable cost of concrete vaults makes them available for simple as well as elaborate burials. Insist on concrete vaults for durability.

* The Castle of St. Angelo in Rome was built in the year 35 A. D. as a tomb for Emperor Hadrian. Its massive foundations and walls were constructed of Pozzuolama concrete, a natural cement. Eighteen centuries of war and pillage have stripped St. Angelo of its marble casings and fine statuary. Remaining are the concrete walls and foundations, all in excellent condition. It is still an imposing building, a landmark for visitors in Rome. Modern, scientifically made concrete is infinitely more strong and durable than Roman concrete which has endured 2,000 years.

Concrete vaults are set and sealed at the grave by the manufacturer. This service is performed quietly and respectfully.
