

LEWIS GOING RED; SAYS AFL HEAD

LATE JUSTICE IS PRAISED BY CHIEF HUGHES

CARDOZO LAUDED AS SUPREME COURT TERM OPENS

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Chief Justice Hughes started a new term of the supreme court today by eulogizing the late liberal associate justice, Benjamin N. Cardozo.

Manifesting deep emotion, the chief justice said the court had "suffered an irreparable loss" when Cardozo died last July.

"His contributions to the development of our jurisprudence made his judicial career one of the most illustrious in American annals," Hughes added.

Justice Cardozo, white-haired, gentle and learned, died after a long illness of heart disease. No successor has been appointed, and the belief is widespread that President Roosevelt will wait until congress convenes next January to send a nomination to the senate.

McReynolds Absent The eulogy was delivered immediately after the chief justice and six of his colleagues had filed into the chamber at noon for the first session since last May 31.

Justice McReynolds, who frequently does not attend when there is no business requiring his presence, was absent.

The court adjourned after admitting attorneys to practice and receiving motions.

Then Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson announced that arguments before the tribunal on the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley Authority act had been postponed from October 17 to November 14.

In a formal statement he said this postponement had been approved by the court, with the consent of all parties, on account of the selection of one of the government's counsel, John Lord O'Brian, to a Republican nominee for senator in New York.

Drafted By G. O. P. Jackson asserted that O'Brian "was not assigned to the argument because of political considerations and would not be believed because of political considerations."

"I have asked Mr. O'Brian to continue his assignment to participate in argument of this case," the solicitor general continued, adding: "We are not unappreciative of the compliment implied when the Republican convention finds its best man for this high office on the legal staff of this administration."

The court agreed last spring to review a challenge of TVA's legality by a group of private power companies.

The justices will announce next Monday whether they will review approximately 350 cases filed during the summer recess.

Some of the requests for review expected to be acted upon then involve interpretation of the National Labor Relations Act and efforts to free Thomas J. Mooney from San Quentin penitentiary. He is serving a life sentence for complicity in the 1916 Preparedness day bombing in San Francisco.

Germans Threaten 500 Czech Soldiers With Machine Guns

By ROY PORTER Falkenau, Oct. 3 (AP)—More than 50 Czechoslovak soldiers and gendarmes were surprised and surrounded by an advance guard of Adolf Hitler's SS men here today and held for three hours while they were threatened with death from machine gun bullets.

When finally freed the Czechoslovaks were deprived of their motor equipment and arms. Excitement in surrounding garrisons was caused by the incident. The Carlsbad garrison detailed two squads of machine-guns to guard the spa where the German entrance is not expected until tomorrow, and side-roads were barricaded.

Czechoslovaks said the incident occurred when the advance German guard moved in six hours ahead of the schedule of the international military commission regulating occupation of the Western Sudeten zone.

The SS commander gave the Czechoslovaks ten minutes to clear the town.

CLUBS ARE WET IN DRY REGIONS

Ruling of Supreme Court Allows Liquor Permits to Private Bars

Lansing, Oct. 3 (AP)—The supreme court held today that private clubs located in "dry" communities are entitled to licenses to sell liquor by the glass to their members.

The decision was in friendly litigation instituted by the liquor control commission and the Flint Aerobics Club.

The high court, affirming the decision of the Genesee county circuit court, pointed out that the house of representatives defeated an amendment which specifically would have declared that a club could obtain a license to serve liquor only if it were located in a municipality which permitted the sale of liquor by the glass in public drinking houses.

Instead, the legislature adopted a provision which held that the applicant's place of business must be located in a so-called "wet" community to qualify for a license to serve hard drinks. The supreme court pointed out that a private club is not a business.

Pending completion of the test case, the liquor commission has permitted clubs in dry communities to continue to serve liquor to their members on a month-to-month basis.

Strike Leader In Losing Battle On Illegal Picketing

Lansing, Oct. 3 (AP)—Lester W. Washburn, Generalissimo of Lansing's famous "labor holiday" or general strike of 1937, lost in the supreme court today his fight against conviction for illegal picketing.

The high court rejected without comment his petition for a rehearing of his previous action in affirming his lower court conviction here. He is under sentence to pay a fine and costs totaling $250.

Washburn was convicted of having "interfered with a workman in lawful pursuit of his avocation." The conviction grew out of his activities on the picket line during a strike at the capitol city wrecking company plant here.

It was the arrest of other picketers, including Mrs. Washburn, on similar charges that led to the general strike. Washburn was not arrested until later.

CREDIT GIVEN TO 4 MEN FOR SAVING WORLD

DISMAY AND RAGE GREET TALK BY CHAMBERLAIN

BY FRED VANDERBILT HMIDT London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain drove home to the somber house of commons today his blunt belief that four men at Munich—Hitler, Mussolini, Daladier and himself—saved civilization as "we have known it."

He steadfastly backed all he had done. Voices of dismay, humiliation and rage preceded and followed his 55-minute address explaining and justifying the accord at Munich which dismembered Czechoslovakia.

Price of Peace Rankles Alfred Duff Cooper, the man who until Saturday was Chamberlain's first lord of the admiralty, sobbed as he cried out that the price of peace at Munich "stuck in my throat."

But Chamberlain replied: "I have nothing to be ashamed of. Those who have may hang their heads."

He praised President Roosevelt and the contributions of Daladier, Mussolini and Hitler in saying: Of Roosevelt—"The messages of President Roosevelt so fairly and yet so persuasively made showed how the voice of the most powerful nation in the world could make itself heard across 3,000 miles of ocean and sway the minds of men in Europe."

Fuehrer Did His Part Of Daladier—"His courage, his readiness to take responsibility, his persistence and his unflinching good humor were unvarying and invaluable."

Of Mussolini—"His contribution to the Munich agreement 'was perhaps decisive.' "It was on his suggestion that mobilization in Germany was postponed for 24 hours to give an opportunity of discussion and during the conference he and Count Ciano, his foreign secretary, were most helpful."

Of Hitler—"Hard things have been said about the German chancellor today and in the past but I do feel that the house ought to recognize x x x that in consenting, even though it were only at the last minute, to discuss with the representatives of other powers those things which he had declared he had already decided once and for all, was a real contribution to the Munich pact."

Czechs Loaned $0 Million Chamberlain announced a quick $10,000,000 ($50,000,000) loan for Czechoslovakia. He said the republic's request for an additional $20,000,000 ($100,000,000) loan would be taken up later.

He declared that "while we must renew our determination to build up the deficiencies that remain in our armaments x x x I do see fresh opportunities to approach disarmament opening up before us."

Rank on rank of Chamberlain's supporters stood ready to back him with their votes when the debate is ended in two or three days but today there was no air of cheering a conquering hero.

The house recessed at 11:10 p. m. until tomorrow. A government motion was placed on the table late tonight declaring "that this house approves the policy of his majesty's government by which war was averted in the recent crisis and supports their efforts to securing lasting peace."

The motion will be moved on Wednesday when the debate ends. It was signed by Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, the chancellor of the exchequer, and Malcolm MacDonald, minister of colonies.

The effect would be to forestall a possible opposition motion for a vote of non-confidence. Duff Cooper's bitter denunciation chilled all. For the most part the packed little house heard the former minister, who followed the prime minister, in silence.

Cheers of conservatives were substantial but not uproarious. Only when labor-taunters cried out "shame!" did the ministerial members rise to back up Chamberlain to a man.

Sudetenland Is Claimed For Germany By Hitler

BY MELVIN WHITELEATHER With the German Army of Occupation in Sudetenland, Oct. 3 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler victoriously into the Sudetenland today and proclaimed the pledge that "never again will this land be torn away from the Reich."

He entered the Sudetenland with his soldiers, airplanes, armored cars and artillery. The populace, cheering wildly, strewed his path with flowers and shouted "we thank our fuehrer!"

The chancellor rode in triumph for 40 miles through zone three of the newly-acquired territory, completing the procession at dusk, returning to Germany.

Tonight he went to Hof, not far west of Eger, to sleep in his special train. Tomorrow he will return to the Sudetenland to visit Gera, Leititz, Falkenau and Koenigsberg.

Hitler began the procession at 11:16 a. m. (5:15 a. m., E.S.T.), at Wildenau, half a mile from the town of Eger.

The Reichsfuehrer looked straight ahead, unsmiling, his hand outstretched in Nazi salute to acknowledge the cheers. He drove directly to the market place of Eger and mounted a large tribune which had been erected over night.

SLATE IS ALL FITZGERALD IN GRAND RAPIDS

THOMAS READ WINS FOR ATTORNEY GENERAL

BY T. H. PECK Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—Michigan Republicans went "down the line" today in their state convention for their 1938 standard bearer, former Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald.

Without exception, they nominated a handpicked slate of candidates which bore Fitzgerald's endorsement. Only one contest reached the floor, a four-way fight for the nomination for attorney general, and the former governor's leadership withstood that lone challenge.

Campaign Manager Chosen The party's candidates next November will be: For secretary of state: Harry Kelly of Detroit, Fitzgerald's Wayne county campaign manager. Kelly is a World War veteran. For state treasurer: Miller Dunckel of Three Rivers, a member of the state senate. For attorney general: Thomas Read of Shelby, twice lieutenant governor and runner-up to Loren D. Dickinson of Charlotte for that nomination in last September's primary election.

ATTENDED MEETING Among those who attended the Republican state convention at Grand Rapids from Delta county were: Harry D. Brackett, Gene Raymond, Ralph Carroll, George E. Harvey, Edward K. Ryan, Edgar Anderson, Gilbert Byrns, Charles Byrns, John Bennett, Ole Thorsen, Harlan Yelland, Carl O. Peterson, John P. Norton, Mrs. Joseph Shipman, Jack Floyd, William McClelland, H. J. Rush-ton, Mrs. John Weigand, and Jean Lucas, Escanaba; Robert J. Riley, C. A. Clark, Joseph A. Sturgeon, Mrs. Charles Norton, Gladstone; George Sharkey, Lathrop; Matt Malnor, Rapid River.

For auditor general: Vernon J. Brown, Mason publisher, who is completing his fifth term as a member of the house of representatives. Fight Carried to Floor Wide-open opposition for every member of the Fitzgerald slate but Read withered before the one-day convention opened under a cross-fire from the Wayne county forces of Edward N. Barnard and the out-state following of former State Treasurer Frank D. McKay.

O. L. Smith of Detroit carried his fight against Read to the convention floor. Prosecutor John R. Deismers of Ottawa county, a Young Republican, and James F. Shepherd of Detroit, other aspirants for the nomination for attorney general, followed suit.

The solid strength of the Fitzgerald slate in Wayne and Kent counties enabled Read to win, but only after a bitter battle. For a time it appeared he could not gain a clear majority necessary for nomination, but changed votes in Wayne, Saginaw and Jackson counties, which first cast substantial blocks for other candidates, led a parade into the Read column which made victory certain.

Motion Howled Down Defeated Smith sought to persuade the convention to make its

Negroes Arrested For 1915 Slaying By Detroit Officer

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—Two negroes were under arrest here today in connection with a 1915 Louisiana slaying because of a volunteer nine year hunt waged by Police Sergeant Earl Anderson.

Nine years ago Anderson spent much of his time visiting police stations and talking with officers. The chief of police at Monroe, La., told him that two negro brothers, named Woods, had been sought for killing a white youth in 1915 and that he believed they were in Detroit. Ever since that time Anderson has questioned every negro named Woods arrested in Detroit.

His hunt apparently bore fruit Sunday and Ellis and James Woods, brothers, were questioned by Anderson after having been detained on a minor charge. They were indicted 23 years ago at Monroe, La., under the name "Moy" for killing a white youth. They claimed the youth attacked them with an axe.

Monroe authorities were reported on their way here to question the prisoners.

Reorganization Bill May Be Brought Up For Congress Again

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—Senator Bulkley (D-Ohio) raised the touchy question of government reorganization today with a statement that congress should consider such legislation against next session.

Meanwhile, Senator Burke (D-Neb.) asserted that if a measure similar to that which the house pigeon-holed last year should be offered it "wouldn't even pass the senate."

The discussion recalled a statement made by President Roosevelt last week that he had been canvassing the need for reorganization, in the interest of more efficient and business like government, with members of the committee which drew up his original proposals. He declined to say what his plans were, however.

Bulkley, an administration supporter to the extent that Mr. Roosevelt backed him for re-nomination recently, voted for the reorganization bill last year, after voting also for an amendment offered by the bill's critics.

Last year's battle centered principally on a proposed broad delegation of authority to the president to make changes in the administrative setup. Bulkley supported an amendment to give congress a veto power over the president's changes. He voted, also, to send the bill back to committee for revision.

Today, he said that in his opinion the departments of the executive branch of the government "definitely need" reorganization.

BIG MACHINERY BOOM FORESEEN

Aftermath of European War Crisis to Boost American Exports

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—John H. Van Deventer, editor of Iron Age, foresaw tonight a demand from France, England and Russia for American production machinery in coming months "that will keep our makers of such equipment working overtime."

Predicting as well a continuing rise in steel production from domestic demand, Van Deventer told the society of automotive engineers, Detroit section, that the aftermath of Europe's crisis will include a stimulant for American exports of machinery and mechanical products.

"Neither France, nor England, nor Russia are as well prepared for war today as is Germany," Van Deventer said. "If they had been, do you think that they would have capitulated to Hitler's demands?"

"Having experienced the humiliation of such a capitulation, do you believe that France, England and Russia will leave a stone unturned to put themselves in shape for the inevitable showdown two, three or perhaps five years from now?"

"Unless I am much mistaken, you are going to see a demand from these countries for American production machinery in the coming months that will keep our makers of such equipment working overtime."

LABOR BOARD CALLED ALLY OF CIO CHIEF

FEDERAL DICTATION OF WORKING MAN CONDEMNED

Houston, Tex., Oct. 3 (AP)—William Green shook his fist today and caustically accused John L. Lewis of leading an industrial union movement that Lewis labeled 14 years ago as "one of the objectives of the Communist international."

The president of the American Federation of Labor, opening its national convention, couched his keynote speech in biting-terms as he attacked the C. I. O. chairman.

Green shouted that Lewis in 1924 gave a senate committee a statement charging Communists were attempting to gain control of the American Federation of Labor to reach an objective of "one big union."

"Belongs in Bull Ring" "He is now engaged in leading a movement which has that very thing for its objective," Green said, amid the shouts of the delegates, assembled in Houston's coliseum.

Green produced a newspaper clipping describing a speech Lewis delivered last month at the Latin-American trade union congress in Mexico City. Green pictured Lewis addressing a throng of "denim clad workers" waving red flags in a bull ring in Mexico City. He termed the bull ring a "fitting and appropriate place" for the speech.

Green turned to labor legislation and thundered: "American labor will not tolerate governmental control—governmental dictation."

He branded the National Labor Relations Board "an ally of the C. I. O." and added "we won't stand for that."

Top Wages Urged He asserted the federation would ask congress to amend the Wagner labor act and then urged American employers to accept the doctrine of the American Federation of Labor. He asked employers to accord labor collective bargaining rights and urged them to pay wages as high as industry can bear.

Before stepping down from the rostrum, President Green read what he said was the words of Lewis before the senate committee in 1924.

"Let me quote," said President Green. "Imported revolution is knocking at the door of the United Mine Workers of America and of the American people. The seizure of this union is being attempted as the first step in the realization of a thoroughly organized program of the Communist international at Moscow for the conquest of the American continent, the overthrow and destruction of this government with the establishment of an absolutely arbitrary dictatorship and the elimination of all forms of popular voice in governmental affairs is being attempted on a more gigantic scale with more resolute purpose and with more crafty design than at any time in the history of this nation."

Objective Unchanged "These words are included in this statement prepared by the chairman of the Committee for

MINISTER GAINS IN VOTE COUNT

Markings Discovered on Secret Ballots; Starr Asked for Ruling

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—The possibility that the nomination of the Rev. James W. Hallwood as the Democratic candidate for congress in the fifth Michigan district may hinge on a ruling by Attorney General Raymond W. Starr developed late today as the recount of the primary ballots cast in 51 Kent county precincts reached the half-way mark.

Hallwood scored a net gain of three votes over Tunia Johnson, with whom he tied, in today's counting. Discovery of certain markings on 20 ballots cast in precinct three of Paris township resulted in an appeal to Starr for a ruling as to the legality of the ballots. Hallwood received 22 votes to Johnson's eight in this precinct.

Recount officials said that the ballots in question bore not only the initials of the election board but also the numbers of the ballot on the reverse side thereby making it possible to identify any voter by looking up the corresponding ballot number in the poll book. This, they said, destroyed the secrecy of the ballot.

ADAMICK PUT IN OXYGEN COVER

Injured Boxer Is Given Transfusion to Gain Strength

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—Jimmy Adamick, young Midland, Mich., boxer who was seriously injured in a bout with Roscoe Toles, Detroit negro heavyweight, here last Friday was given a blood transfusion and then placed in an oxygen tent Sunday at Henry Ford hospital, it became known tonight.

Jimmy Brady, manager of Adamick, said the doctors at the hospital had told him the transfusion had been given to speed the recovery of the young boxer. Adamick was unconscious for more than eleven hours after being knocked out by Toles in the second round. Brady said the oxygen tent was placed around Adamick as a precaution against pneumonia.

Dr. Albert Crawford, who has attended Adamick since he was taken to the hospital, said the youth was "slightly improved." Brady said he had talked briefly with Adamick. Adamick suffered a cerebral concussion in the bout.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea continued his investigation today of charges that Adamick was suffering from a sinus infection the night of the bout, questioning Promoter Jack Kearns and other fight figures. He said he had learned that Toles had also been suffering from a sinus ailment before the battle.

Kearns, Brady and Dr. Harry Grekin, physician for the Michigan athletic board of control, said they were of the opinion that Adamick had been in excellent condition to fight.

Salvation Army's Work Depicted In Lions Club Movie

Some of the numerous welfare activities of the Salvation Army were depicted in a motion picture, "He Profits Most," shown at the Escanaba Lions club meeting last night by Major Frits Nelson, of the local Salvation Army headquarters. Major Nelson was one of the actors in the picture, produced by the Chicago headquarters of the Army.

Roy Starrin announced that plans were completed for a Halloween dance to be sponsored by the Lions club. The dance will be Oct. 23 at the Delta. Mr. Starrin was presented with a Lions International key member award last night in recognition of his activity in the club. The presentation was made by A. J. Goulais, former district governor.

Doctor And Bride Cross Pacific In Old Chinese Junk

San Pedro, Calif., Oct. 3 (AP)—Dr. E. Allen Petersen, 37, Los Angeles osteopathic physician, and his pretty Japanese bride, Tane, completed their conquest of the Pacific today in a rickety Chinese fishing junk.

They started from Shanghai and set foot on land for the first time in 85 days.

The glint of the sea was in Dr. Petersen's eyes as he told of the 5,000-mile journey by sail alone, of stormy weather, 50-mile winds and mountainous seas which threatened to capsize the 36-foot, camphorwood boat. Two Russian youths comprised the crew.

"We were never shy of food," he said. "We ate rice and canned meat. The Swedish tanker Sveaborg gave us fresh water, meat and vegetables in mid-Pacific last Sept. 2."

The fishing junk, purchased for $250, has small bamboo masts and 800 square feet of canvas, draws only 30 inches of water and has no auxiliary engine, no radio.

Navigation was accomplished solely with the aid of the stars and a compass.

Conspiracy Charges Against 10 Oil Men May Be Reinstated

Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP)—Steps to reinstate charges against 10 individuals and one corporation freed by Judge Patrick T. Stone in the oil conspiracy trial in Madison, Wis., last July were taken by the government today.

A motion was filed with the United States circuit court of appeals for an order to vacate the order of dismissal and to reinstate the indictments.

The appeals court entered an order directing Judge Stone to show cause on Oct. 24 why this action should not be taken.

Judge Evan A. Evans issued the order on a petition of W. P. Crawford of Superior, Wis., a special assistant United States attorney.

The petition set forth Judge Stone improperly dismissed the charges for insufficient evidence. Eighteen defendants were granted new trials by Judge Stone. Seventeen of the 46 defendants in the 111-day trial were convicted and fined a total of $65,000.

LABOR BOARD CALLED ALLY OF CIO CHIEF

Industrial Organization, the dual movement established in America for the purpose of destroying the American Federation of Labor," Green continued. "Now in this statement there is set forth nine objectives of this Communist conspiracy formed by this revolutionary movement. Time forbids me reading all, but I will read two: The seventh is: 'Seizure of the American Federation of Labor, with the ouster of its officials and through such seizure gaining control of all its affiliated unions and trade unions.'

"That is a specific objective," Green continued, "here is another: Conservation of all craft trade unions into single units of workers within an industry known as industrial unions."

"That was the objective, we were told, of the Communists. You understand that, don't you?" the federation president asked. "What is the C. I. O. trying to do now? That very thing, realize that very objective as set forth in this document, penned and prepared by the chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization."

Hurricane Warnings To Be Improved As Result Of Disaster

Washington, Oct. 3 (AP)—A better system of hurricane warnings may grow out of the storm which struck New England last month with unexpected fury.

Weather bureau officials sent a special report on "the storm" to Secretary Wallace today and, although details were not disclosed immediately, Chief Forecaster C. L. Mitchell indicated that an improved method of obtaining reports from vessels at sea was recommended.

Mitchell, a forecaster on duty at the weather bureau at the time of the hurricane, pointed out that no reports were received from vessels after the disturbance passed 100 miles east of Cape Hatteras, N. C. early September 21.

"We had nothing to indicate its intensity above Hatteras," Mitchell said. "We considered the storm dangerous at all times but we didn't realize its strength."

Had there been frequent ship reports as there were when the storm was in southern waters, the forecaster continued, the bureau probably would have had more knowledge of the hurricane's velocity and its course and more time to warn New England.

Mitchell pointed out that weather observers aboard vessels were not paid, the government defraying only the cost of transmitting their messages.

He suggested that a system of paying these observers, as some nations do, might have a beneficial effect.

vote for Read unanimous and both he and Dethmers pledged their loyalty to the Shelby voters' candidacy and to the party's entire ticket. Smith's motion was howled down, however, in a chorus of no's.

The revolt began with a minor skirmish over the order of business. Smith supporters submitted a minority report demanding that the nomination of a candidate for attorney general precede the nomination for secretary of state. They believed their campaign would draw stronger support were Wayne not previously assured the most important nomination for secretary of state.

The counties of Ingham, Kalamazoo, Jackson, Allegan, Monroe, Oakland and Washtenaw led the incipient rebellion but solid strength in populous Wayne, Kent and Genesee more than offset that vote and the minority report lost, 990 1/2 to 324 1/2.

The convention proceeded to nominations for secretary of state, and Kelly was unopposed on the floor. The battle royal for the attorney general nomination followed. Eventually, Read received 1065 1/2 of the convention's 1,615 votes, but it was an uphill struggle.

Youngsters Rebel

James C. Quinlan of Grand Rapids drew the delegates' displeasure in a seconding speech for Read. He pleaded with delegates to "do as we're told to do" and "go down the line" for Fitzgerald and Read. Fitzgerald half rose from his seat on the platform, shook his head vehemently and his lips framed unmistakably the word "no."

George C. Averill, Birmingham publisher, challenged Quinlan in seconding Smith's nomination. He said young Republicans "rebelled" at being forced to accept a "hand-picked" slate.

When the roll of counties was called, Chairman Barnard announced a Wayne vote of 404 for Read and 50 for Smith. Questioned, he said he had polled delegates of Smith's home district, the sixteenth congressional, found 24 votes and "doubled it for good measure."

A poll of the Wayne delegation was demanded, but after 100 members of the group had answered the roll the motion was withdrawn and the vote stood as announced until it was made unanimous for Read. Outmaneuvered, Smith climbed to the platform for a parting shot. "I do not understand," he said, "how we can condemn a rubber-stamp congress if we are to come to our own convention and find a bowl of porridge is all made up and we are expected to swallow it."

He then made his pledge of loyalty to the party and its candidates and submitted his unsuccessful motion that Read's nomination be unanimous.

That fight over, the convention coasted swiftly to a conclusion. Both Dunckel and Brown were nominated by acclamation, under suspension of the rules, without the formality of a roll call for other nominations. Resolutions that will constitute the party's platform were adopted, unread.

Planks included:

1. A three-point labor program, which includes provision for tribunals for the settlement of labor disputes, correction of "inequities" in industrial disease and workmen's compensation acts, and a campaign against child labor.
2. A pledge to aid organized labor in ridding itself of the influence of "Communist agitators" and assurance that the party opposes injunctive or court interference with labor organizations in the "lawful" pursuit of their objectives.
3. Restriction of state medicine to governmental aid under the supervision of the medical profession.
4. A proposal for fair trade legislation.
5. An agreement to approval "any constructive plan" to bridge the Straits of Mackinac.
6. "Generous" administration and "adequate" support of old age assistance.
7. Increase aid for schools.
8. A sound system of financing adequate relief.
9. Condemnation of "cumbersome" practices of administering civil service and preference for war veterans.
10. An "honest administration of state affairs within the revenue of the treasury—a pay as you go policy in state management—the same as any reliable private individual conducts his business."

Convention oratory was provided by U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, keynote speaker, and former Governor Fitzgerald. Fitzgerald criticized the Democratic state administration as "wasteful and inefficient." He asserted that his rival, Governor Murphy, had the support of Communists while he was "proud" of their opposition.

He likewise charged Murphy, faced by Communist strikes, was content to "watch them grow and spread like a scourge across the nation."

SPARTANS LOOK AT GRID MOVIES

Bachman Admits State Could Have Shown More Drive

East Lansing, Oct. 3 (AP)—Coach Charley Bachman took his Michigan State college football team to a movie today—with instructive designs on them.

He showed the players motion pictures of the game with the University of Michigan last Saturday which ended in a 14-0 defeat for the Spartans.

The first two squads which bore the brunt of the Wolverine attack rested and did not expect to return to serious practice until Wednesday. All, however, were expected to study the movies for signs of weakness they all knew existed when the men of Michigan got through with them.

The secondary squads took up Bachman's attention, something they had not had too much of since he began preparing for the Michigan classic. He hoped to use many of the reserve players against Illinois Wesleyan here on Saturday.

Assistant Coach Tom King prepared to take apart his line to see what made it stick. Bachman admitted today "We could have had more drive" and he and King set out to see about getting some.

However, they were pleased with the individual performance of members of the line. Lyle Rokenbach, at guard, Ron Alling at center, Alex Ketzko at tackle, Mike Kinek and Ole Nelson at end, Ulf Haney at fullback and Myron Masny, reserve guard, all showed up well defensively, the coaches felt.

The Spartan supporters were confident the backfield had done all it could Saturday in the face of a line which seeped hard-charging Michigan players before a State play could gain momentum.

Football Pirates Beat Giants, 13-10

New York, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP)—The unheralded pitching a d catching battery of Frank Filchoch and Wilbur Sortet connected for two scores tonight to share the honors with the mighty Byron (Whizzer) White as the Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind to defeat the New York Giants 13-10 in a National pro league football contest before a crowd of 18,805 in the Polo Grounds.

Trailing 10-7 midway in the final period, the Pirates marched 45 yards to victory with Filchoch heaving a 13 yard pass to Sortet for the winning touchdown. The mighty Whizzer, who gained 75 yards on 18 attempts and ran back punts and kickoffs for 103 more yards, set up the scoring play by ripping off 35 yards in two tries.

Filchoch also set the stage for the invaders' first marker when he intercepted a heave by Tuffy Leemans on the Giants' 31-yard line. Two plays later the husky former University of Indiana star shot a 23-yard pass to Sortet who outraced Leemans to catch it in the end zone.

Orphanage Girl, 13, Gets Film Contract As Ward Of An Aunt

Los Angeles, Oct. 3 (AP)—Guardianship of 13-year-old Beverly Jane Stillwagon, singer, was awarded to her aunt, Mrs. Anna Catherine Stillwagon, today to clear the way for a film contract for the girl.

Her father and Mrs. Stillwagon's brother-in-law, George Washington Stillwagon, opposed the guardianship and charged Mrs. Stillwagon wanted to exploit the girl's talents. The charge was made in an affidavit received here last week from Detroit, Mich. He was not represented in court today, however.

Mrs. Stillwagon testified she took Beverly Jane nine years ago from an orphan asylum where her father had placed her. The girl herself told the court her father did not visit her during the first two years she was with Mrs. Stillwagon, did not contribute to her support and did not "so much as buy me an ice cream cone."

Film Producer Charles A. Rogers testified he wished to place Beverly Jane under contract, starting at $150 a week. He described her talents—which include singing, acting and piano playing—as exceptional.

Hot Springs Couple Sentenced To Death For Robbery Killing

Hot Springs, Ark., Oct. 3 (AP)—Joseph B. Anderson, 37, former Indiana convict, and his 33-year-old wife, Lucille, were convicted of first degree murder and their punishment fixed at death in the electric chair late tonight for the robbery slaying of Eldon Cooley, Hot Springs grocery-chain official, here Sept. 8.

A circuit court jury of ten business men and two farmers deliberated an hour and a half before fixing the extreme penalty for the couple. Neither displayed any emotion when the verdict was returned. Arkansas has never executed a woman.

Medicine Course Opens

Ann Arbor, (AP)—Sponsored by the University of Michigan, Wayne university and the Michigan State Medical Society, post graduate medical courses opened Monday for 1,200 physicians in six Michigan cities. Diagnosis and care of tubercular patients, mental hygiene and management of the child during illness will be stressed in the weekly classes.

Women as well as men served as jurors in the courts of the Middle Ages.

Big Ten Briefs About Football

Chicago, (AP)—Displeased because Chicago's Maroons failed to fulfill their assignments on offensive plays against Bradley Saturday Coach Carl Shaughnessy sent the squad through a long work-out Monday, emphasizing blocking and signal. Captain Lew Hamity, the Maroons' ace passer, injured his throwing hand Saturday but was expected to be available for this week's battle at Michigan.

Champaign, (AP)—Coach Bob Zupke indicated Monday he will send his Illinois eleven out to throw plenty of passes against Indiana in the Illini Big Ten opener Saturday, by sending the whole squad through an intensive aerial drill. Improved blocking and absence of fumbles by the Illini in their decisive victory over DePaul Saturday cheered Zupke.

Evanston, (AP)—Satisfied with the performance of his regulars and the passing attack that accounted for all three touchdowns against Kansas State, Coach Lynn Wildorf planned rigid blocking drills and plenty of work for his Northwestern reserves this week in preparation for Drake. The Wildcats held a light drill in the rain Monday.

Columbus, (AP)—Jimmy Sexton, whose pass was good for the game winning touchdown against Indiana Saturday, went through extensive passing drill Monday as Ohio State's Coach Francis A. Schmidt urged him to locate receivers quickly. Co-captain Mike Kabeala and Don Scott, who scored Saturday's touchdown, also came in for pass practice.

Madison, (AP)—Tony Gradinski, 154-pound Milwaukeean, was advanced to the regular left half-back berth on the Wisconsin varsity Monday as Coach Harry Stuhldreher began preparations for the Iowa City invasion next Saturday. Lynn Howland, left guard, will be out of scrimmages this week because of a kick in the side received in the Marquette game.

Iowa City, (AP)—Coach Irl Tubbs scrimmaged his University of Iowa football team against the freshmen here Monday, and it took the Hawkeyes just five plays to put over a touchdown after they had returned the kickoff to their own 35-yard-line.

Minneapolis, (AP)—Minnesota's regulars were given a vacation from heavy training Monday but weren't able to enjoy it fully as Coach Bernie Bierman and his staff criticized mistakes made in the Nebraska game and ran off moving pictures to illustrate the errors.

Bloomington, (AP)—Indiana university's Coach Bo McMillan, impressed at the defense Illinois put up in beating DePaul Saturday, drilled his football squad on blocking for the runner and passer Monday as the Hoosiers began practice for their game at Illinois Saturday.

LaFayette, (AP)—Coach Mal Elward of Purdue university, aiming for speed against powerful Minnesota next Saturday, used interchangeable backfields today as he sent his gridiron charges through a brisk scrimmage.

Dorais Will Retain Huddle For Present

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—The University of Detroit football team will use the huddle rather than have the quarterback shout signals from regular formation when Catholic university comes here for a game Friday night, Coach Charles E. (Gus) Dorais said today.

Earlier in the year Dorais had announced that he was banning the huddle.

"I still like the old way better," Dorais said, "but we haven't found the right type of signal caller yet. And until we do, our best bet is the huddle."

Detroit is not the only Michigan team to return to the huddle to spread the word of what the next play is to be. Michigan State tried having the quarterback shout signals in the early stages of last Saturday's game against Michigan but gave up and resumed the huddle when the roar of the crowd of 32,500 made it impossible for all of the linemen to hear the numbers.

Injured Men Recover

Newton, Mass., Oct. 3 (AP)—Boston college's two most recently injured players, Joe Zabliski, sophomore fullback, and Eddie Swenson, junior guard, are expected to recover in time to face Detroit university on Oct. 12, the coaching staff said tonight.

Zabliski bruised his shoulder last Friday night in the Northeastern game, won by B. C. 130-0, and Swenson injured an ankle. The fullback, however, played the full contest as two of Coach Gil Doble's other backs were benched.

Speed Drawback For Bob Feller

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 3 (AP)—Bob Feller, Cleveland Indians pitcher who set a new major league strikeout record Sunday, today found his speed a drawback—at least as far as Iowa City traffic is concerned.

Feller, and Rollie Hemley, Cleveland catcher, were stopped by Iowa City police this morning for speeding. Feller was permitted to continue with only a warning to "slow up" when he was recognized by officers who chased him through half of Iowa City.

Layden Plots Defense

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 3 (AP)—Notre Dame's football warriors went through a light workout today as Coach Elmer Layden began plotting a defense to use against Georgia Tech next Saturday. Ed Simonick filled in at second string halfback for Joe Theising, whose nose was broken in the Kansas game here Saturday. Layden said he would take three full teams to Atlanta.

Testimony Begins In Reuther Attack Trial At Detroit

Detroit, Oct. 3 (AP)—A recorder's court jury began hearing testimony today in the assault case against two men charged with an attack on Walter Reuther, president of the West Side (Detroit) Local of the United Automobile Workers.

Reuther took the stand to identify the defendants, Edward Percell and Willard Holt, as the men who threatened him at his apartment home the night of April 9 when the Reuthers were entertaining guests. Reuther said Holt attacked him with a blackjack while Percell held off the others with a gun.

George Edwards, a UAW organizer, also identified Percell and Holt.

Judge George Murphy denied a defense motion for a mistrial when Reuther accused Percell and Holt of sending him threatening letters. The jury, however, was instructed to ignore the remark.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.) told delegates to the Michigan Republican convention in the keynote address today that every indication points to a republican victory in November as a "preview of 1940."

"The plain people," he said, "the average, god-fearing, debt-paying, law-loving men and women who are the backbone of our citizenship are about to recapture sane, sound, solvent government. They are tired of promises that are never kept, of patent medicines that never cure, of pell-mell reformers who create more problems than they solve; of follies that fail, and of depressions that never end."

CHAMP CLARK IN LIMELIGHT

Son of Famous Speaker of House Mentioned for Presidency

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Washington—Twenty-six years ago a young Missourian struggled and suffered at a national party convention as his father's presidential hopes were shattered against the ancient Democratic two-thirds rule.

Two years ago Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, son of House Speaker Champ Clark who won a majority of delegates at Baltimore in 1912 but lost the nomination to Woodrow Wilson, personally swung the ax which killed that rule.

In 1940, Bennett Champ may win the Democratic nomination because the two-thirds rule is dead. There are factors in the party's internal situation which suggest the possibility.

Big, rosy-cheeked, round-faced Clark—an orator, relatively young and an orator of talent and force—is the outstanding presidential prospect among anti-New Deal Democrats from dominating the next convention.

A GARNER FAVORITE

He is a favorite of Vice President John Garner and an intimate friend of National Chairman James Farley—who between them may choose the next Democratic nominee. He has been boomed by Boss Tom Pendergast of Kansas City and his recent overwhelming primary victory leaves no doubt he is Missouri's favorite son.

Anathema to New Dealers after voting repeatedly against administration measures, Clark has scant hope of a Roosevelt blessing. He also is unpopular with organized labor. These handicaps make it easy to imagine a convention in which he might get a majority but not the two-thirds vote previously needed for nomination.

Often Clark has praised Roosevelt and the bulk of his policies. But he is a state's rights Democrat who seems to believe in "states' rights" as a principle rather than as a cloak for Toryism. War profiteering is a pet hate and he seeks laws against it. An isolationist, he wants neutrality laws strict enough to guarantee against American entry into any war. He was the most forceful, hard-hitting member of the Senate Munitions Committee.

GREW UP WITH PARTY

Clark has been at every Democratic convention since 1900. Born Jan. 8 (Andrew Jackson's birthday) in 1890, he soon found himself growing up in Washington as a congressman's son. He was campaigning at 14 and a precinct captain in Pike county at 16. Missouri and Columbia Universities taught him. He studied parliamentary law and became House parliamentarian under his father. A wartime officers' training school sent Clark out as a captain. He became the youngest colonel in the A. E. F., objecting vigorously to transfer from the firing line to general staff school. For a while he was national commander of the American Legion, which he helped to incorporate.

He practiced law, campaigned for Senator James Reed in 1922 and wrote a biography of John Quincy Adams.

When Pendergast refused to support him for senator in 1932, Clark ran anyway, and won as a wet over the straddling machine candidate who was a dry. Pendergast later made peace.

Early in the New Deal Clark began voting against grants of extraordinary powers to the President.

In 1936 Farley offered Clark either the temporary or permanent chairmanship of the Philadelphia convention. Clark preferred to become chairman of resolutions, so he could abolish the two-thirds rule—one of the great ambitions of his life.

Clark never has personally attacked the President and occasionally still pays him a handsome tribute. Bitter foe of the Court Plan, he was no party to the "filibuster" against it, preferring an immediate vote.

FOUGHT PENDERGAST

When Pendergast opposed reappointment of U. S. District Attorney Matrice Milligan, who had prosecuted Kansas City election fraud cases, Clark defied Pendergast publicly by demanding Milligan's reappointment.

Clark has offered an amendment to tax state and local securities, sponsored a war plebiscite amendment and plugged for the anti-lynching bill.

Clark voted for the Byrnes anti-sit-down strike amendment, 25 per cent state contribution to federal relief, confirmation of Justice Black, Wagner housing bill and the farm act. He voted against the naval appropriations act and the $112,000,000 Gilbertsville Dam.

When Pendergast urged him as a 1940 candidate two years ago, Clark commented by telling of a conversation between his father and Speaker Tom Reed, who was opposing McKinley in 1896.

"Mr. Speaker, are you going to get the nomination?" Champ Clark asked.

"Why Champ," Reed replied, "they might go farther and fare worse, and I think they will."

But in this case, many of Bennett's friends think "they" won't.

"The Pointer Went Past 3 Pounds"

MALLARD MUSINGS

By Harold Hollis
Hunter's Favorite

To gunners of the mid-west, the mallard is the most important waterfowl. His gorgeous plumage, his succulent flesh, and the keen intelligence that make him a worthy adversary entitle him to be ranked as one of our outstanding game creatures.

The mallard is a large duck about 24 inches long. The drake with his bright green head, white neck and brown and gray body is one of the most beautiful of all birds. The female is smaller and is a mottled brown color. Both sexes have the violet speculum or wing patch. The legs are yellow, becoming darker toward the feet, which are an orange color.

The mallard feeds in shallow water, wild rice being his favorite food. Because the shallows freeze over sooner than the deeper water the mallard is one of the first ducks to leave the north country.

Mallards and black ducks are often found in the same flock. Indeed it is said that the two species sometimes mate. Although the mallard is a wary and intelligent bird he lacks the astuteness of the black duck, but when he teams up with the black he gets the advantage of the latter's keener senses.

SHEAHAN TALKS TO KIWANIS TO KIWANIS

State Trooper Discusses Crime Problem at Club Meeting

Deficiencies in home and community life can be blamed for a large percentage of the juvenile delinquency in America today, Trooper Ralph Sheahan, member of the Michigan State Police post at Marquette, said in an inspiring luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Sherman hotel yesterday noon. Trooper Sheahan's topic was: "The Policeman and the Child."

Case studies of criminals reveal that most of them started on their law-breaking careers in their youth. Trooper Sheahan said. He added that 20 per cent of the criminals in the country today are not yet of voting age.

Society is still far behind in the solution of the crime problem, despite the valuable character-building work that is being done among the boys and girls by various organizations, he said. He emphasized that crime prevention measures must begin in the home, pointing out that lack of discipline, failure of parents to recognize their responsibilities, and also bad environment created by divorce and other family troubles are definitely bad influences upon youth. The community, he said, also has the responsibility of providing proper activities to occupy the leisure time of the boys and girls.

Trooper Sheahan cited statistics to show the high cost of crime. In 1937, crime cost the public more than fifteen billion dollars, and the number of criminals in prisons and at large was estimated at more than a million.

In closing, Trooper Sheahan urged that parents teach their children to consider the police officer as their friend and not as an enemy. He added that a wholesome respect for law can be created among youth by the development of the correct attitude toward the officers whose duty it is to enforce the law.

Amendments Are Important

AS THE November election approaches, the people of Michigan should bear in mind that a number of proposals to amend the state constitution are to be voted on and that these are just as important as the election of state officers.

One of the four public questions that will be on the ballot is Proposal No. 3, providing that the constitution be amended to guarantee that gasoline and motor vehicle license plate taxes paid by motorists be used for highways, roads and streets only.

In this proposal reposes the question as to whether or not taxes levied and collected from the motoring public shall be allowed to be diverted to other uses than road building and maintenance. What Michigan voters do with this proposition will be far-reaching in moral effect on every other state in the Union which does not at present have such a law.

Michigan needs such a guarantee to the tax-paying motoring public for the success of its greatest industry—the automobile—is dependent on road building and maintenance for its very existence. Without expansion of the nation's highway system there can be no expansion of automobile sales and without sales employment in the motor industry is restricted and retarded.

What Michigan does with this proposal will be watched by every other state for, it has been demonstrated, too many political divisions of state government are ever alert to dip into motor vehicle taxes for selfish purposes other than that of road building, the fundamental basis of all such taxation. If Michigan should refuse such a guarantee of proper use of such taxes it will, by example, open the doors to a general raid on motor taxes in other states.

Michigan should show the way in this amendment to the state constitution and it probably will if the voting public is properly aroused to its responsibilities in the matter.

The Upper Peninsula should be particularly interested in the passage of this proposal at the November election. The fifteen counties north of the Straits of Mackinac still need much new construction to have an adequate highway system.

Vote "Yes" on Proposal No. 3 at the polls on November 8.

Peace Prize Candidate

AWARD of the Nobel peace prize to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain is considered as a possibility in recognition of the important role played by the British leader in the bloodless settlement of the Sudetic dispute between Nazi Germany and Czechoslovakia.

While the liberal elements in Great Britain and France are criticizing Chamberlain for acceding to Adolf Hitler's demands, the consensus of the peace-loving world is that war and all its horrors were averted in the best possible way.

Some of the Nobel peace wards, however justified at the time, now seem a little ironical, it might be pointed out. One of these was the citation of Charles G. Dawes in 1925, for having worked out a solution of the problem of German reparations.

power and expansion of his empire? Or has the Chamberlain peace settlement merely delayed the coming of a more deadly and horrible conflict in the future?

Making Much Headway

THE many Escanaba residents, who almost daily either ride or walk to Ludington park, are greatly pleased and encouraged by the great progress that has been made during the past summer and spring with the south shore development project.

The yacht basin was able during the sailing season to accommodate boats of considerable draught, and the dockage room has been increased during the past few months by the installation of piling along the shore.

Work was started this season on the site of the new bathing beach, a project which is linked with the eventual utilization of the weed-covered wasteland for park and playground purposes. The progress that is being made is really beyond the expectations of the many citizens who have been actively interested in the south shore development.

Here is a project that is fundamental for the promotion of Escanaba as a resorting place. As it nears completion, it is quite certain that other facilities will be provided that will enable this community to offer what the vacationing public needs and wants.

Barriers to Prosperity

GOV. JAMES V. ALLRED of Texas spoke to the point when he warned the recent National Conference of State Governors that various state taxes are creating serious interstate trade barriers.

The states, remarked Governor Allred, are forbidden to erect tariff walls. Yet in many cases they are doing what amounts to the same thing by use of tax laws.

Some states levy sales taxes on materials manufactured in other states. Ports of entry at state boundaries have made their appearance. And these things, said the governor, "are liable to promote economic provincialism if they increase at their present rate."

The development of these restrictive laws is easy to understand. One state wants to develop its home industries. The products of a neighbor-state compete with these industries; perhaps the neighbor enjoys certain economic advantages which enable it to produce these things more cheaply.

Yet this trend will inevitably lead to economic disaster if it is not soon checked. We have been proud of the lofty "American standard of living" for many years. We have compared our lot with that of Europe and have preened ourselves on the better position which we enjoy.

Europe has great natural resources, too. Her people come from the same stocks that our people do and must have equal natural gifts. Her technicians and engineers do not need to take a back seat for ours.

And if we drap a network of tariff walls across our great domestic market we give American prosperity a blow from which it can hardly recover.

THE ISLE ROYALE PARK (By Ben East) (Grand Rapids Press)

Fishing is due to be one of the major attractions of the Isle Royale National park when the great Lake Superior island is thrown open to the public as one of the nation's official playground areas, possibly in the summer of 1939.

As a trout fishing center Isle Royale can scarcely be ranked of first importance. There is hardly a foot of good fly water on the island. The rivers are small and too choked with logs and brush to permit the use of flyrod equipment.

Farther upstream in the fast, cold trout water it is almost impossible to cast a fly. Many of the pools in which trout are found are no more than a dozen feet across, perhaps 20 feet long, and a dense tangle of brush and timber grows on both banks.

For the bait fisherman, however, these little pools offer grand possibilities. By seeking out an open place in the undergrowth where a rod can be poked through the brush and bait let down into the water some excellent bait fishing can be had.

London—Nazi newspapers, seeking to inspire at home confidence in Germany's might, proudly proclaim that Germany at last has surpassed the United States as a producer of unwrought steel and pig iron.

The boast was a perfect epilogue to Field Marshal Goering's famous address to hungry Germans in which he assured them: "Big guns are better than butter."

For those figures about unwrought steel and the other figures about pig iron tell a world that is longing for peace that Germany has been working day and night piling up its armaments faster than any other nation. The figures tell this story because there is a vast difference between the uses of steel and pig iron in America and in Germany.

Naziland has shown no justifying tremendous increase in exports of machinery, steel rails, raw pig iron and other things which mean increases in the iron trade. Naziland is not building skyscrapers which need steel frames nor vast bridges.

As a matter of fact, inside Germany, everything possible is being done to find substitutes for raw materials which Germany has had to import. And among those materials have been iron, ore, copper and other metals.

For the first half of 1938 Germany increased its unwrought steel production by 1,500,000 tons. The total was 11,316,000 against 11,125,000 for the United States. The only other country which showed a big increase in steel production was Russia, which gained 500,000 tons.

Russia, too, is doing a lot of construction where steel is needed. SIMILAR SITUATION IN PIG IRON STATISTICS

In most countries steel production suffered the decreases that would be expected in a period when world business showed a depression. Germany showed the opposite tendency mainly because of her vast expenditures on rearmament.

The same is true in the production of pig iron. Germany showed an increase in the first half of 1938 of 1,300,000 tons. Russia showed an increase of 200,000 tons. Poland, Italy and Sweden showed slight increases and England about held even.

New York — After holding court in Hollywood for a year, Prince Michael "Romanoff" has come back to Manhattan. And one of the first things that happened to him was to be barred from the Stork Club. Now this is no way to treat the Russian nobility and when we put it that way to the Stork's headwaiter, that worthy just said: "Prince or no Prince, Mike don't get in here!"

So the Prince is sulking in Jack & Charlie's "21" and muttering invective against the titular prejudices over at the Stork. He is at a loss to understand it. After all, the Prince was a social cog in the Hollywood whirl and no one questioned his kinship to the late Czar. What's more, no one dared to address him as Harry Gerguson which is the name Prince Mike was born with. As for the Stork, says the Prince, why, that's just a hangout for social climbers and pretenders of no importance.

In Hollywood, where we last ran into the bogus nobleman, the Prince was in great demand at parties, luncheons, midnight soirees and at the race track. He was the special pet of Daarryl Zanuck who gets a kick out of hobnobbing with royalty. Mr. Zanuck was so complimented by Prince Mike's companionship, as a matter of fact, that he kept him on the payroll. True, there wasn't much work around the shop and once they had to cancel the Prince out of a picture in which he was supposed to portray himself because the Prince didn't happen to photograph like Prince Mike Romanoff. But that was all right with Mr. Zanuck.

And now back in New York, his virtual St. Petersburg, the Prince is chagrined by a snub from a headwaiter. Who does these commoners think they are?

Change of Heart The fieriest Mexican, Lupe Velez, is hard to put down in the Broadway musical, "You Never Know!"

When the little lady from below the Rio Grande arrived by plane, it looked as though she had posed for news cameras because she suddenly noticed a run in her stocking. Newsmen who had observed the temperamental miss from around Tia Juana on previous occasions, thought it very Mexican spitfire had finally been calmed by the Tarsan yid.

But not at all. Lupe did not turn out to be the director's pet. Soon the story spread that Lupe was waging backstage battles with Libby Holman, and perhaps she is. In "You Never Know!" she has little respect for the script, because she moves around the stage by her own whim, and when something strikes her as particularly amusing, she pauses to laugh as hard as the audience.

When the show is over, and the little lady ventures into a cafe, her "Hello, dollink!" to some acquaintance can be heard well over the noise of the band. She no longer is shy about stockinging. She'll pose any time. It seems that Lupe made up her mind that dignity doesn't pay.

The Capital Parade

BY ALSOP AND KINTNER

Washington, Oct. 3.—The world may have forgotten the President's party purge, but he and the men around him have not. Before very long he will have to choose his post-purge course. And then, it may be stated, explosions are not impossible.

As usual, two completely divergent views are being pressed on the President. That of the anti-purge, like Postmaster General James A. Farley, is obvious enough. Jim Farley wants to soothe the wounded feelings of Senators Walter George, Cotton Ed Smith and the others; patch up the organization quarrels in their states; and restore the status quo. Jim is a peace-maker. His opponents in the White House councils are not.

The fact is that the same group of advisers who favored the first purge are now ready to urge the President to undertake a second. The first purge's failure has taught them a lesson—that, in an intra-party quarrel, control of the party organization is the great thing. They are determined that the President must have control of the party organization by 1940, if he has to dismiss every Democratic jobholder now fattening at the public trough.

ON THE SWANEE RIVER Georgia, where the federal office-holders warmly supported Senator George, may be taken as an example. Since their defeat, White House representatives who have managed the campaign of Lawrence W. Camp have occupied their leisure with a program of revenge. The knitters at the gullotine could not have done a more wholehearted job.

Among the men proscribed as George supporters and suspected George sympathizers are United States Marshal Charles Cox; collector of internal revenue Marion Allen, state director of the FIA R. E. Matheson; state director of the RFC Scott Candier; state director of the HOLC Frank A. Holden, and Lawrence Wood Robert, Jr., secretary-treasurer of the Democratic national committee. As you will observe, the second purge list includes virtually every high federal official in Georgia.

As some of these men have been appointed and confirmed for specific terms, tossing them out will be a pretty problem. If the President decides on a second purge, he can start with Cox, whose term expired eighteen months ago. As for the others, Senator George will surely leave unshrunk hell on the senate floor if they are attacked. "Chip" Robert is a rather special case. On the Pacific coast, at the end of his western trip last summer, the President is said to have given Robert definite orders to support Camp. While Robert did make some gestures in Camp's direction, it was clear until the primary campaign's close that he sympathized with George. Yet he is not even a federal appointee, being an elective official of the national committee, and not removable under ordinary circumstances.

A plan has been prepared to solve these difficult problems, however. First, it is proposed in each state to make a firm White House alliance with one outstanding politician, who would serve a local front man. In Georgia, the chosen man would be either Senator Richard Russell, Jr., or Governor E. D. Rivers, who remained neutral in the primary, but are susceptible of being won over.

Then as many high office-holders as possible would be dismissed, and all power would be taken from those who were not dismissable. Senator Joseph P. Guffey, of Pennsylvania, a master of patronage, has an old saying that "ten jobs at $1,200 a year are worth three times as much as one job at $10,000." On this principle, every federal agency's mob of underlings, who have no senate confirmation and may be thrown out tomorrow, would be compelled to swear allegiance to the White House or take the consequences.

Thus, the objective of the second purge would be slightly different from that of the first. The first was intended to capture control of existing party organizations. The second, if it is undertaken, will replace the existing organizations with new ones. Of course, in both first and second purges, there is the same ultimate goal—the liberalization of the Democratic party, and the nomination of a strong New Dealer in 1940. It may be added that, if the second purge is undertaken, it will not be limited to the followers of Senators already attacked. There are many other senators, like Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, who are unfriendly to the White House yet have vast amounts of federal patronage. Their appointees would go too.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

UNTIL YOU HAVE IT I've wished and wanted, you have wanted, for that thing and for this. For there is no one, high or low one, but something you will miss, and I've been tempted, you've been tempted, I know you understand, To buy some new things, quite a few things, without the cash in hand. But I've had trouble, you've had trouble, that came all unawares, and I was glad then I never had then debt added to my cares. This thing called money is rather funny—I've always found, my friend, Unless you have it, until you have it, it isn't wise to spend.

And here's the strangest thing, the strangest, and the best: That those who save for things they crave have things just like the rest. They wait a little, save a little, their wants however great, Yet have as many things as any who do not save and wait. Until they have it, have the money, they leave a thing alone. The thing they prayed for, bought and paid for, all things they're very own. With less of hurry, less of worry, they're happier in the end— Unless you have it, until you have it, it isn't wise to spend.

There is no international power of agreement which would have the right to take precedence over German right. —Adolf Hitler.

Nine Criminal Cases Listed On Docket Of Delta Circuit Court

A calendar of 21 criminal cases was whittled down to nine cases to be tried by jury at Delta county circuit court convened yesterday morning with Judge Frank A. Bell at the bench. Seven of the accused plead guilty when arraigned yesterday, and of the remaining cases one was returned to justice court, one was continued and two were dismissed.

First on the calendar, is the case of Mrs. Mildred Hannigan, charged with negligent homicide in connection with the death of Lois Hoffmann, 9, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Theophil Hoffmann of Gladstone, who died after being struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Hannigan in front of a fruit stand near the "Y" on highway US-2-41 between Escanaba and Gladstone. The crash occurred on August 14, when Mrs. Hannigan was driving south at about 9 o'clock in the evening. At a hearing in justice court, she stated she became confused by the lights of the Hoffmann car, which was parked off the road. She is being represented by Atty. Rushton.

Seven Plead Guilty
The seven accused who plead guilty were Harley Bingham and Josephine Gill, both of Nahma, who were charged with adultery; Henry Auger, charged with larceny by conversion; William J. Milecki, charged with drunken driving, second offense; Lloyd Cass, charged with unlawfully taking away an automobile; Elmer Hill, charged with driving away an automobile with intent to steal; and John Vanderlinden, charged with leaving the scene of an accident. They will be sentenced by Judge Bell later in the court term.

Cases which were disposed of at the opening session included that of Robert Jones, illegitimacy, which was reported by attorneys as settled out of court and in which prosecution was dropped; that of Joseph Casey, charged with displacing or loosening rails on the railroad with intent to endanger the safety of others, who has been committed to the state hospital at Newberry; that of Lyle Long, charged with breaking and entering in the night time, which was dropped, and that of Clayton Wright, charged with carrying a firearm, which was remitted to justice court.

Another early case on the calendar is that of Ambrose Beaver, who plead not guilty to a charge of negligent homicide upon arraignment yesterday. He was arrested following an accident on Indian Point road near St. Jacques in which a car he was driving struck Thomas Joseph Tarnum, 14, of St. Jacques, causing his death. John Moses, owner of the car, and Irene Merro of Manistique, who were with Beaver at the time of the accident, are expected to appear as witnesses. Atty. Alger W. Strom of Gladstone was appointed by the court to defend the Nahma Indian.

The case of Eusebe Beaudry, charged with breaking and entering, will also be heard near the start of the session. He plead not guilty when arraigned yesterday and Atty. T. J. Rushton was appointed to defend him.

The case of Eldridge Pfister, who plead not guilty to a charge of assault with intent to rape, is fourth on the calendar. He is defended by Harlan Yelland, appointed by the court. The fifth case to be heard will be that of Francis Feather, who plead not guilty when charged with taking indecent liberties and whose attorney is George Carr.

Other cases, to be heard later in the term, are that of Irving Anderson, charged with reckless driving; Delmar McIntyre, charged with assault with intent to commit murder; Charles Blazer, charged with fishing and using a set line with baited hooks, and Leslie Bloom, charged with breaking and entering.

In addition to the criminal cases above there are jury civil cases, non-jury civil cases and chancery cases to be heard later on in the term.

NEW RECORD IS SET AT STATE

5,759 Students Enrolled This Year; Building Program Begun

With the largest enrollment in its history—5,750 students—Michigan State college has opened classes for the 1938-39 school year. The enrollment represents an increase of 538 over the previous high registration of 5,212 students in the fall term of the 1937-38 school year.

New students at Michigan State college this fall, including both freshmen and transfers from other universities and colleges, total 2,186, nearly 200 more than last year's new student enrollment.

Besides starting the school year with this record, Michigan State college has inaugurated the largest building program of its history, with six buildings already scheduled for construction in 1938-39. The building program is financed largely by PWA and WPA grants and by self-liquidating bond issues.

Total cost to Michigan taxpayers for $6,000,000 in new buildings and other campus and experiment station improvements will be less than $125,000.

Most rapid enrollment growth at M. S. C. is seen in the liberal arts division, which now has 1,837 students. Other division enrollments follow: agriculture, 778; applied science, 899; engineering, 792; home economics, 837; veterinary science, 365; and the graduate school, 239.

M. S. C.'s enrollment increase followed rejection by college officials of more than 700 applications for admission. Applications were denied because of applicants' failure to meet the college's scholastic requirements.

muscles and joints so severe that I had to be assisted out of bed. My hands became so stiff and swollen until I could not straighten them out. The awful pain I endured in my legs and back at times were almost beyond endurance. BOT FLY WAR STARTS SOON

First Sign of Frost Is Time to Rid Horses of Parasites

Frost is the sign that will signal start of the annual war in the fall on bot fly eggs and subsequent treatment of horses to rid them of parasites.

Suggestion of B. J. Killham, extension specialist in animal pathology at Michigan State college, is that the first step in parasite control is the treatment of the bot fly eggs.

Farmers in Delta county, says Dr. Killham, can watch for the first killing frost and mark it down to start the work. Dividends will include healthier animals turning out useful energy rather than wasting feed on internal parasites.

Eggs deposited by the bot fly in summer and early fall are found attached to the hairs on various parts of the body. Chiefly these eggs cling to the forelegs, under the jaw and around nose and mouth of the horse.

A three per cent solution of good coaltar dip (carbolic acid, lysol or any good commercial dip) in warm water effectively checks further hatching of the eggs. One tablespoon of the dip in a pint of warm water makes a usable solution of three per cent. This solution should be applied thoroughly to the forelegs and other parts of the horse's body where bot flies are observed.

The internal treatment administered by a qualified veterinarian should follow any time after thirty days following the application of the coaltar dip solution. This internal treatment will remove round worms as well as bots. Early removal of the bots gets them when they are small and before they have had a chance to seriously injure the horse.

The offices will open Wednesday with Gerald J. Cleary, Escanaba, member of the Democratic state central committee in charge, and Robert Dansard of Lansing as executive assistant. Mr. Dansard, former chief clerk at the state highway department office in Escanaba, is taking a six weeks leave of absence from his present position in the state highway department office in Lansing to work at the local headquarters.

The headquarters here will direct the entire campaign for state offices in the 15 counties of the Upper Peninsula. Speaker itineraries will be arranged and also the distribution of advertising and publicity material will be handled from the Upper Peninsula headquarters.

Mr. Cleary said yesterday that Governor Frank Murphy would make a four days tour of the Upper Peninsula this month. Other state officers will speak before the Nov. 8 election.

affiliations, business or labor, we believe all persons have the right to their own opinions and therefore Mayor Logan is not necessarily obliged to jump on the bandwagon of any organization to which he has legitimate objections.

As Labor's Voting League of Escanaba sponsored Mr. Logan's reelection campaign we still feel our mayor is the epitome of Good Government—and that for all the people which we feel is the important thing.

U. of M. Forestry School Celebrates 35th Anniversary

Ann Arbor—Celebrating 35 years of forestry and conservation education at the University of Michigan, the Association of Michigan Foresters is holding its second reunion here this week.

Instruction in forestry at the University began in 1902. Later the work developed into the department of forestry in the literary college, and, in 1927, became the School of Forestry and Conservation. The school has played an important role in American forestry and, according to the rating of the Society of American Foresters, is one of the four distinguished forestry schools in the United States.

Observing the three day reunion, which begins today and lasts through Saturday, will be the convocation of the forestry school Friday morning in the main auditorium of the new Rackham building, at which President Alexander G. Ruthven will preside. Speakers at the convocation will be Dr. W. D. Henderson, director emeritus of the University Extension Service, and Walter Mulford, head of the Division of Forestry at the University of California.

Other events scheduled for Friday are a luncheon at the Michigan Union when the forestry alumni will be greeted by officers of the University Alumni Association, and a round-table conference on the provision of special facilities for instruction and conferences for returning forestry alumni. The Saturday session will consist of further discussions and tours of the University forest properties. The reunion will end with a luncheon at the Saginaw Forest and attendance at the Chicago-Michigan football game.

Enrollment Rises At U. of Michigan

Ann Arbor—Enrollment at the end of the second day of the new semester at the University of Michigan showed an increase of 458 students, or 4.5 per cent, over the same time in 1937. It was announced by statisticians in the office of the Registrar of the University.

Total enrollment so far this year stands at 10,708 students. Last year at the same time the total enrollment had reached 10,250. Indications are that the total enrollment for the first semester this year will top the record enrollment of 10,964 established last year.

The largest increases in enrollment this year have been in engineering, law, business administration, nursing, and the graduate school. Of the 10,708 students enrolled so far this year, 7,755 are men and 2,953 women.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

Perfect husbands are bodes. There's no doubt about it. Else why would young wives so often find them such dull marriage partners that they look around for someone more exciting?

It doesn't seem to be enough for a woman to be married to a man who makes a good living for her, stays reasonably sober, comes home every night on the dot, and lets her have her way—not even if he turns over his pay check to her intact, and brings her her breakfast in bed.

A woman can have all that in a husband—and still cast her eyes about for the missing ingredient—romance.

The usual end of the perfect-husband, bored-wife marriage is divorce, with the wife making a quick second try at marriage. When it turns into a triangle murder—as is the case of Rudolph Sikora, Margaret Sikora and Edward Solomon—it gets on to the front pages, and focuses attention on a not uncommon situation.

Rudolph Sikora was a "perfect husband." Both his wife and mother-in-law admitted that. But his wife wanted romance, and she met a man who read poetry to her. Her husband showed his love in more practical ways than the feminine mind has ever learned to appreciate. He gave her his pay check, did the heavy work around the house, and insisted that he get breakfast in the morning so that she could sleep late.

Women are suckers for romance—and Mrs. Sikora found such signs of devotion far less stirring than the poetry reading of Edward Solomon, whom the "perfect husband" is charged with having murdered. If there is any lesson for husbands to be gained from the story—and many similar stories that are told in divorce courts, instead of criminal courts—it is this:

Don't try to be a perfect husband. A woman will only find you dull. Don't assume all of her responsibilities. She'll only have time to wonder what is lacking in her life. Don't make a door-mat of yourself, giving in to her every notion. She'll lose all respect for you as a man. Don't assume that a woman stops thinking of herself as being desirable the minute she walks down the church aisle. She'll fool you.

Hunting Conditions Good In Luce Area

Newberry, Oct. 3rd.—Good hunting conditions for both ducks, mallards and blacks, were brought in from the marsh and lake countries. With the partridge mostly cocks were taken. Because of the wetness of the past summer there is plenty of partridge feed in the hardwoods and the birds are more often found this season on up-lands than in marshes and swamps. The frosty nights cause the birds to seek the warm runs of the roads and highways as soon as the sun is up and the best hunting has been reported along roads and along the brush by the side of highways.

Conservation officers Richard Beach and his son, Richard Jr., brought in a handsome bunch of 14 ducks, seven on each day of their hunting.

Prairie chickens were not hunted much by local sportsmen. The usual number of downstate hunters were on hand with their trained bird dogs but so far no large bags have been reported among them. The birds taken are fat and in excellent condition.

Marquette—Some trout and a few whitefish are the only catches being brought to port at the present time. These fish come from the vicinity of Washington Island.

The lack of other fish is due to smelt, which are clogging the nets in the vicinity of this port. The abundant smelt swim with mouths open and clog the nets. Several of the large fish boats have laid up because of the smelt menace.

The numerous smelt have just about ruined the fall fishing off this port, say fishermen, and to make it worse there is no market for the smelt.

Partridge Flies Through Window Pane At Hospital

While hunters were going through brush and over woods Sunday in search of birds, one of the highly prized partridges decided that town was the safest place for him.

He settled on the grounds of St. Francis hospital, very peacefully, but something alarmed him and he crashed through one of the lower panes of glass of the hospital entrance, and then out again through an upper pane.

Yesterday the hospital workmen were replacing the glass, without the consolation of a bird for dinner. The partridge after escaping from entrance, flew into a wooded area nearby and disappeared.

CHICAGO NEXT WOLVERINE FOE

Michigan Gridders Are Peppy; Get Work on Pass Defense

By GEORGE A. STAUTER Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 3 (AP)—Michigan's football team, which shows signs of going somewhere, began to get ready today for another foe on its rigorous schedule Chicago's Maroons.

The Wolverines, smiling and peppy after their 14 to 0 victory over Michigan State's Spartans, play the Maroons here Saturday in the first Western conference game for both teams.

There was no practice let-up as Coach Fritz Crisler, studying scout reports, learned that Chicago has a heavier team than Michigan both on the line and in the backfield and might cause trouble.

Last year Michigan defeated Chicago, 13 to 12, with a dramatic rally in the last four minutes of play after being hopelessly beaten.

Get Pass Defense Those who saw little service or did not play in last Saturday's game scrimmaged against the reserves while Crisler took his first and second-string teams to another part of the field to brush up on pass defense and execution of plays.

Michigan State, whose only major gains came through the air, completed 13 of 26 passes, although four interceptions, all in Michigan territory, nullified advantages.

Capt. Fred Janke, who suffered a knee injury in the game, was in uniform on the sidelines. He may not play against Chicago but is expected to be available for the Minnesota game a week hence.

Also on the casualty list, but with minor ailments, were halfback Norm Purrucker, fullback Wally Hook and end John Nicholson.

Paul Kromer, who scored both touchdowns Saturday, was at Jordan's post and Forrest Jordan, a guard, filled in for Janke. Tackle Roland Savilla, out for two weeks with a fractured cheek bone, was back at tackle on the second team along with Elmer Geodon, an end, who had been on the injured list since the first week of fall practice.

Upper Peninsula Geology Surveys Closed For Year

Two geological reconnaissance survey in the upper peninsula have been terminated for the year.

One survey party spent the summer working in Dickinson county examining iron ore open pits, outcrops and dumps, gathering data for defining and describing the geological formations in the vicinity of Norway, Iron Mountain and around Vulcan. The data will aid in bringing previous survey work in the territory up to date, the last United States geological survey monograph on that area having been recorded in 1904.

The other survey group worked about 25 miles southwest of Houghton running dip needle surveys, examining various formations, locating lava flows and gathering other information to picture the structural geology of the area and indicate the most likely places for the occurrence of copper.

On The RECORD

By Dorothy Thompson

"Perhaps the pacifist-humane idea is quite a good one in cases where the man at the top has first thoroughly conquered and subdued the world to the extent of making himself the sole master of it."—Adolf Hitler, in "Mein Kampf."

What happened on Friday is called "Peace." Actually it is an international fascist coup d'etat. The "Four-Power Accord" is not even a diplomatic document. It is certainly not a normal treaty. It is such a fantastic piece of paper that it is difficult to describe except as a hurriedly concocted armistice made in advance of a war to permit the occupation by German troops of a territory which by sheer threat and demonstration of force they have conquered by agreement.

All of the territory where there are more than 50 per cent of German-speaking peoples will be evacuated by the Czechoslovaks and occupied by the German Army within ten days, although there are hundreds of thousands of people in this territory who are either not German or are anti-Nazi and therefore constitute a racial and political minority.

This document provides no protection whatsoever for their lives, their properties or their existences.

Not a clause indicates that they are to be protected in any manner from this occupation.

Those of us who know and have seen what the Nazi authorities do to political minorities realize that this can only result in a panic flight into the interior of Czechoslovakia. It means the open establishment of terror.

No consideration is paid anywhere in this fantastic document to the reappointment of financial and industrial interests—banks and industries the ownership of which is not necessarily on the spot—and this in spite of the fact that the British and French governments know that in the occupation of Austria the property of political minorities, and in particular of Jews, was simply confiscated.

There is not the most elementary consideration of justice.

An international commission will determine further territories in which a plebiscite is to be held, and will fix the conditions.

This will give plebiscites in areas containing more than 50 per cent Czechs, although no plebiscites will be held in areas containing more than 50 per cent Germans.

The pressure of the Nazis in contiguous territories occupied by German troops, their immense and cunningly organized propaganda their house-by-house and name-by-name political organization; the ever-present threat that if the territories go German the political minorities will be exterminated, will assure the outcome of these plebiscites. One might just as well cede them to Germany in the first place.

Czechs and political minorities are given the right of option in and out of the ceded territories, but they must move within six months, and the conditions for exercising the option are left to a German-Czechoslovak commission, which simply means that they are left to the Germans, considering the relative power position.

Compared with this the Treaty of Versailles is a great humane document and a normal and reasonable treaty.

The Treaty of Versailles allowed German nationals incorporated in the new Czechoslovak state to opt for German nationality. They were given two years in which to make a decision and then twelve months in which to exercise it—three years in all—and the treaty guaranteed their right to retain ownership of their landed property in the territory of the state that they left, guaranteed their right to carry with them movable property of every description, and prohibited the imposition of any export or import duties to be made upon them in connection with the removal of such property.

We know that the political minorities in Austria since the Nazi occupation have not been allowed to move anything, and that the property left behind by those who fled was confiscated in the form of an "emigration tax," a treatment of property usually described as Bolshevism.

The Treaty of Versailles was made after five months of deliberations, into which scores of experts were called—as experts and not as partisans.

But on Friday Czechoslovakia was disposed of by four men who in four hours made a judgment of the case in which the defendant was not even allowed to present a brief or be heard.

The very basis and spirit of Anglo-Saxon law was violated. What ruled that conference was Nazi law. Not one of the four men who thus arbitrarily disposed of a nation had ever set foot in Czechoslovakia, nor did any of them understand the others' language—except Mussolini. They had a German interpreter. They decided on the primary basis of a report issued by a man who also until two months ago had never spent any time at all in Czechoslovakia.

Furthermore, Lord Runciman's report, though, recommends the ceding of the territories to Germany, categorically—desires that the Germans had ever been "terrorized," fixes the blame for

SERIAL STORY MURDER TO MUSIC

BY NARD JONES

CHAPTER I
It was Wednesday night in the Golden Bowl of the Pacific Plaza, the city's smartest hotel—and leading the Swingaters was Ludden Dombey. Ludden Dombey, acknowledged "tom of the swing cats."

Tall, slender, undeniably charming, Lud Dombey held his baton almost carelessly. His arm seemed to move but little, his wrist only a little more. And yet a rhythm emanated from the figure of Lud Dombey as surely as if he himself were an instrument.

He was leading The Swingaters in what he called "a warm-up number." Nobody was dancing—yet. The tables just below him were crowded with young people. Wednesday night was their night in the Golden Bowl. Wednesday night was when Lud Dombey cut loose with swing for those who appreciated it, when he added such touches as this "warm-up number" and let go of his best wisecracks.

No one watched the attractive Lud Dombey more closely than Myrna Rogers. To Myrna it wasn't just Wednesday night—it was her wedding night. And the man she was going to marry was Lud den Dombey!

To Myrna herself it was fantastic, almost unbelievable. How she asked herself for the hundredth time, had it happened? Here she was, a stenographer—"Miss Rogers" in the firm of Kelly, Clarke and Kelly. And there stood Dombey, idolized by thousands, at the crest of his fame, with looks and money and seemingly, everything. There were at least a dozen girls in the town who would give much more than Myrna Rogers had given to be Mrs. Ludden Dombey. They were girls of position and wealth who could have really helped him on his way—or retired him until the end of his days.

Yet Myrna believed in his love for her, and in her love for him. It had happened so swiftly, and so completely, that she was certain of its truth. She would never forget the night she sat at a table in the Golden Bowl, and Lud Dombey had looked down at her with that smile. It hadn't been his professional smile. It was a special smile; and Lud Dombey had done something no one had ever seen him do before. He had stepped down from the platform and asked a girl to dance with him. From that moment it was all over for Myrna.

"You're in love with his music," her friend, Anne Lester, had chided. "Like a million other girls. You're a dyed-in-the-wool jitterbug, that's what. When Lud and his outfit are in the groove, and you're shagging it down, it's his music—not Dombey—that gets you."

But Anne Lester loved Myrna too much not to hope it was the real thing. With Myrna's marriage she'd lose a roommate, and possibly a close friend, but she was all for Myrna's happiness. It was strange that tonight, as she sat at the table with Myrna, waiting to act as her maid of honor, she should have this feeling of something impending. Something queer and strange and awfully wrong.

Wisely, she kept her premonition from Myrna. She tried to stifle it within herself, afraid that somehow it might transfer itself to Myrna. Myrna was too happy sitting there watching Lud Dombey, and it shouldn't be spoiled.

Myrna had no living relatives but the jovial Lud had quickly solved the wedding problem. "We'll have it on a Wednesday night in the Blue Room at the Pacific-Plaza," he said. "That's the night when my best fans are in the Bowl. We can have the ceremony during the intermission—and then I'll introduce you as Mrs. Ludden Dombey!"

That was the way it was planned. That was the way things were when you were with Lud Dombey. You whirled along with him. You let him do it his way, even if it was your own wedding. And it happened smoothly, too, as everything happened where Lud Dombey was concerned. After a few introductory numbers, Lud turned The Swingaters over to "Torchy" Stephens and sat at the table with Myrna and Anne. When the intermission was near, the three slid unobtrusively to the Blue Room on the Pacific-Plaza's mezzanine.

It went off so quickly that Anne had to hold herself to keep from crying out. That terrible premonition was swelling larger in her breast. She stood trembling beside Myrna, watched through tear-glazed eyes as Harris Rogers, manager of The Swingaters found the ring and handed it to Dombey. As in a dream she heard Myrna's "I do" spoken softly and self-assured. Then the pleasured murmur in the room as the minister pronounced the final words which made Myrna and Ludden man and wife. . . .

They hurried back to the table almost as soon as the ceremony was over. "You girls stay here a moment with Harris," he whispered. "I'm going to have them turn the golden spot on you, darling."

"Oh, Lud—no!" "Sure thing, honey. They'll all want to see you!"

And then he was gone. Myrna watched him, striding toward his band. She felt Harris Rogers rise beside her. "Hello, there, Tait," he said. "Myrna, this is a friend of mine. Bob Tait. Think he's an expert newspaper photographer. He introduced Anne, invited the young man to sit down. 'Don't run away, Bob. You'll have a surprise.' 'I need one,' Tait said dolefully. 'The boss gave me the exit this morning. Thought I'd get over and get a few candid shots and maybe sell myself to him again.'"

Anne Lester smiled. "You're a cinch, Mr. Tait. You don't know it, but you're about to get a photographic scoop. Sit tight."

Genuinely intrigued, young Tait leaned toward the platform they were all watching. Between him and Lud Dombey there drifted entranced dancers, caught up in the tide of swing. The band was in the groove, all right. Old Lud was sending it out of the world to night. And were the boys and girls peeling the apple? Were they shagging it down? Tait unbraced his miniature camera, raised it to his cheek. But he did not snap the shutter. For just then Lud Dombey brought down his baton and the music cut into a silence more surprising than sound.

"Boys and girls," he said, smiling as only Lud Dombey could smile. "Don't move from where you are. The lights are going out for a moment—and then the golden spotlight of this Golden Bowl is going to shine on . . . Mrs. Ludden Dombey!"

The jitterbugs gasped, grew quiet. Even the hardened Tait found himself interested. He sat poised, his miniature camera ready to catch the girl who had won the great Dombey. Excitedly he imagined the shot. A beautiful goddess, bathed in a golden glow receiving the homage of all these lovers of swing. Because if Lud Dombey was a king of swing, then she would be queen.

The lights went out. Every last light in the glamorous Golden Bowl.

But instead of a golden spotlight, instead of a shaft of light, there was a sickening roar of sound. At the shot a woman screamed. A drunk let out a hilarious baffled yell. Then silence.

Tait stood up, straining, waiting. Suddenly every light in the Golden Bowl flashed on again. Lud Dombey lay face down in front of his swing band!

LETTER WEEK ENDS SATURDAY

Increase Is Expected In Volume of First Class Mail

National Letter Writing Week, which opened Sunday, October 2, will continue all this week, being concluded Saturday, October 8.

The slogan, "Write a Letter" has been adopted for this campaign, and postoffices throughout the country are prominently publicizing this slogan. The purpose of the campaign is to renew old friendships, thereby proving a distinct aid to the mail clients, and to increase the first class mail service of the postoffices of America.

A sharp increase in the volume of first class mail being handled through the Manistique postoffice is anticipated for the week of the campaign.

MARINES, BEARS PLAY 6-6 TIE

Manistique and Soo Grid Teams Put Up Real Scrap Sunday

The Manistique Marines and Soo Bears, independent football teams, battled to a 6 to 6 tie in a bruising battle which opened the season for both teams at the high school stadium here Sunday afternoon.

The Manistique team held a clear advantage in the first half, and made several scoring threats, but failed to push the ball into pay-off territory.

Early in the third period, a Soo pass, starting from the Bears' 40 yard line, caught the Marines unprepared, and the Soo receiver took the lobbing pass on the Manistique 35 yard stripe and raced to the goal line for a touchdown. A kick for the extra point failed.

Later in the period, Manistique recovered a Soo fumble deep in the Bears' territory. Ekdahl crashed over from the eight yard line on a neatly executed cutback for the tying touchdown. A smash at the line for the extra point was stopped inches short of the goal.

The Marines advanced into the Soo's territory again in the final period, but were thwarted within the 20-yard stripe, where it nestled in the closing minutes of the fray.

It was a grand game from the spectator's standpoint, however, with hard tackling and smashing line plays featuring the scrapping Ekdahl. Manistique back, was the individual star of the game, both offensively and defensively. He was in on virtually every tackle. A quarterback sneak, with Rogers carrying the ball, also worked effectively for Manistique and resulted in numerous first downs.

Wasberg, Roque and Jehle officiated.

Hunt Season Opens With Fine Weather

Unusually clear weather marked the first weekend of the hunting season Saturday and Sunday, and all sportsmen reported an enjoyable hunting trip. Bags of game, however, were spotty with some hunters reporting good kills and others being not so fortunate.

Most hunters agree that partridge are more numerous than in the past few years, but still are not plentiful. Duck hunters expect better results later in the season.

LEADERS GAIN 3 TO 4 POINTS

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES table with columns for 30, 15, 10, 5 days and Net change, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—The stock market put on its fifth successive advance today, with selected issues up fractions to a point and a few as much as 3 or 4 points.

While the European peace settlement tended to lessen as a market influence, buying forces were still sufficiently optimistic over the spiking of world war threats to bid for favorites. Business news was also constructive enough to maintain speculative and investment sentiment.

The list encountered profit taking at the opening. Support arrived, though, before much damage was done and small initial declines were soon replaced with advances. Top marks were reduced moderately at the close.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 4 of a point at 145.5. Transfers amounted to 1,462,030 shares compared with 1,897,860 last Friday.

A shade in arrears were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Western Union, International Nickel and International Telephone.

A good demand for metal and utility shares appeared in a generally higher curb market.

Turnover of 182,000 shares compared with 240,000 Friday. The debate in the British parliament over the Chamberlain pact with Hitler on the Czechoslovak Sudetenland dispute attached considerable attention in financial quarters, but was believed to have been a neutral market factor.

An officially estimated rise in this week's steel mill operations of 1.2 points to a new peak since last November was cheering, although falling to buoy steel shares to a great extent.

Building supply stocks had the benefit of reports that dealings in this field were comparing well with 1937.

That some were none too sure of future stock market activities was reflected, apparently, in the sale of a stock exchange seat for $68,000, of $12,000 from a transfer on August 16.

Foreign securities markets were irregular and stocks at London dipped as the opposition to the government in parliament grew more vociferous. The London gold price was lifted the equivalent of about 14 cents an ounce and sterling fell substantially in terms of the dollar. The French franc also weakened.

Secondary rail bonds on the New York market pointed higher, along with foreign dollar loans and those of domestic companies having important interests in Europe.

Industrial staples followed stocks, but grain futures were rather shaky. Wheat at Chicago was up 1-8 to 1/2 of a cent a bushel. Corn rose 3-8 to 3/4. Cotton advanced 55 to 65 cents a bale.

BONDS ADVANCE IN ALL GROUPS

BOND MARKET AVERAGES table with columns for 30, 15, 10, 5 days and Net change, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago.

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—The bond market today had one of its best sessions in months, with substantial gains in all groups.

Reflecting the improved state of feeling in the financial district, issues of domestic companies with foreign connections led the list of leaders. American and Foreign Power 5s closed 3/4 points higher at 57 1/2 and International Telephone 5s were up 3/8 at 74 5/8.

Foreign dollar loans also showed some wide advances. French 7 1/2% stamped, were up 4 at 107 1/2. Polish and Japanese issues generally were around 2 points higher and Italian loans continued strong.

The Associated Press average of 10 foreign issues at 64.6 was up .6 of a point.

U. S. government obligations were somewhat quieter although this group, too, was higher. Gains ranged from around 5/32 to 1/2 of a point in the more active treasury issues.

As a group, railroad bonds did better than any other, the average of 20 carrier loans at 67.2 being 1.4 higher.

Industrials and utilities fared well but their gains were narrower.

The most active corporate issue was the Commonwealth Edison 3 1/2% brought out a month ago. With a turnover of $491,000, face value, this issue gained 1/4 points to 107 1/2.

Total sales were $7,917,075, face value, compared with $9,963,000 Friday.

Cubs Bank On Lee To Take World Series Opener

PLAYERS GIVEN GREAT OVATION

Invite Criticism By Not Voting Share to Cholley Grimm

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP)—A roaring reception by thousands of cheering Chicagoans keyed Manager Gaby Hartnett and his Cubs today for their world series warfare against the New York Yankees opening Wednesday.

Fresh from their amazing drive to the National League championship, the team rode through the downtown district in a triumphant half-mile long parade.

Some 300,000 citizens declared an impromptu holiday and turned out to greet the idols of the hour as they were borne through blizzards of confetti in open cars.

Hartnett was, of course, the No. 1 hero to the cheering throng. A broad smile spread over his tomato-red face as he waved both hands to the people who shouted from the sidewalks and windows of skyscrapers in crowded LaSalle street at the city hall entrance, scene of the official reception.

Praised By Mayor
To every one who got close enough to pump his big hand Hartnett could only say: "Hell, this is swell."

When the procession through the crowd lined downtown street reached the city hall, players were led to an open platform to receive congratulations of Mayor Edward J. Kelly. Each of the Cub players was introduced and spoke to the crowd through microphones.

The Cubs, before motoring downtown to receive their official reception, met to decide upon the division of their world series spoils and passed up the man who managed them through 81 games this year and through five and one-half previous seasons—Charley Grimm. Twenty five full shares were voted and the 26th share was split three ways.

A purse of $4,090 was voted to be divided between nine rookie players and club house attaches.

With Hartnett following managerial custom and remaining outside the clubhouse, the 21 players who have been with the club all season argued in secret session for 55 minutes. Capt. Billy Herman was in charge.

None for Grimm
As the meeting broke up Herman read off the reward.

"How about the ex-manager," he was asked.

"It was voted on," he tactfully replied.

Why no share was voted to Grimm is certain to become a subject of controversy but those close to the players believe it was mainly due to the fact that he did not come down from his broadcaster's booth in St. Louis yesterday to congratulate them when they won the pennant.

Today, however, he sent a laudatory message to Hartnett. It was read at Mayor Kelly's welcoming reception.

Considerable argument must have preceded the voting, decided by simple majority, for the meeting was one of the longest of its kind.

By their failure to vote Grimm a share the Cubs put themselves open to criticism, as in 1932 when they failed to give anything from the post season pot of gold to Rogers Hornsby, who succeeded as manager by Grimm in midseason. At that time the Cubs also voted to give Mark Koenig, who was a vital factor in the flag drive, a half share. The Yankees made capital of this, giving the Bruins a sound verbal lacing, calling them "cheepakates" and "chislers" from the dugout.

Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, was surprised at the decision of the players to exclude Grimm.

"I believe it was a trifle short sighted on the part of the boys," he said. "However, it is strictly a question for them to decide. Grimm has done very well financially, the Cubs not only paid him for his time as manager but also up to the end of the year."

Woe's Stern Dizzy
With the cheers of the faithful still ringing in his ears, Hartnett retired to his plotting room to plan the strategy he will use against the Yankees in the opening game of the series at Wrigley Field Wednesday. He made one thing clear in advance—he did not figure in starting Jay Hanna "Dizzy" Dean in the first game. The fact he would not use Dean indicated conclusively he would choose the National League's ace, "General" Bill Lee, who won 22 games and virtually pitched the Cubs into the championship.

"I don't want to be mysterious," Hartnett exclaimed, "but it won't be Dizzy. Now you can do your own guessing until tomorrow. I'll announce my starting pitcher then."

Owner Wrigley would like to see Dizzy pitch at least one of the games in the series and he will probably get his wish, since he laid $185,000 on the line to acquire the great man.

"Actually we bought Dean for this series," Wrigley said. "Everybody laughed when I said that, but we wanted a stop-gap pitcher. Dean proved that when he stopped the Pirates and he will be a great pitcher for us in the years to come."

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKSLINGER

Football is a funny game . . . and the coaches who coach it, the players who play it, the officials who officiate it and the fans who pan it are the reasons for it being a funny game . . . the Gladstone-Manistique game Saturday was typical . . . as is the case in many games between the two schools, the game ended in a scoreless tie . . . then the howling started . . . the Manistique cohorts howled that they were victims of lousy officiating . . . and Gladstone claimed that they were the ones upon whom the one-eyed so-and-so has cast their evil spell . . . this all boils down to but one thing—the officiating must have been good . . . it's the same with sport reporting . . . first one side yells about partiality in a story . . . and then the other criticizes the same report the other way . . . as Abraham Lincoln once said: "You can please some of the people— . . . but you can't please everybody!"

Personalities Of Chicago Cubs

CLAY BRYANT

Husky 6-foot-2 Virginian who kept close to Bill Lee's dazzling pace as Cub ace through the busy season's vicissitudes, second only to Lee among Cub men-at-arms in innings pitched and games won. This is Clay's third year as a Cub but his first as a front-line regular game-starter, the bullpen claimer in 1931, then in Williamsport in 1931, then New Orleans, Burlington, Zanesville and back to New Orleans, whence the Cubs purchased him in mid-season, 1934. Farm-handed at Birmingham in 1935. . . Reported at training camp this year a week ahead of regular pitchers, pointing for a great year, dotted with masterpieces, such as his 3-hit shutout of the Giants June 25. . . Had a special penchant for beating Brooklyn. On June 19 rubbed it in by hitting a homer in the course of his 4-3 victory over Dodgers. They got partly even by ruining a great pitching job for him when the Cubs played their night game in Brooklyn July 27. Clay had the Dodgers blanked, 2-0, going into the ninth, but their 3-run last-ditch rally ended his streak of 4 straight victories over them. . . Was Cubs' first-choice ace-right pitcher. Won his other after-dinner game in Cincinnati July 1. . . July 14 his 3-hit shut-out of the Phils ended a 6-straight Cub losing streak. . . August 2 he blanked the Giants with 2 hits. . . September 1 he fanned 7 Bess pitching the Cubs into a tie for second place. . . Beat the Pirates September 6, allowing 6 hits. . . His 16th win on September 9 was the Cubs sixth straight. . . His 17th was against the Giants on the Cubs' last eastern trip.

Unable to touch the southpaw slants of the old timers, who pitched for Beaumont back in 1924, the exporters got only three onebase blows.

The Crackers, southern association champions, didn't drop a game in the series, winning four and tying yesterday's thriller in 12 innings.

NEWARK TRIMS KAYSEES, 7 TO 1

International Champs Take Little World Series Lead, 2-1

Newark, N. J., Oct. 3 (AP)—Behind the four-hit pitching of John Haley the Newark Bears, International League champions, defeated the Kansas City Blues of the American Association 7 to 1 tonight to take a 2 to 1 lead in games in the 1938 little world series.

The 21-year-old Haley who led the International League pitching brigade this season with 17 triumphs and two defeats was complete master of the situation throughout although he issued seven passes. His teammates meantime made good use of seven blows garnered off the combined offerings of Marvin Breuer and Frank Makosky, both right handers.

Les Scarsella, big first baseman who is owned by the Cincinnati Reds, was the big gun in the attack as he beat out two infield singles and laced a triple to right field in the fifth to score two runs for a perfect day at bat.

Canadiens Start Hockey Workouts

Montreal, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens began training for the 1938-39 National Hockey League season today when 26 players went through a heavy gymnasium workout to start a three-week period of indoor preparation.

Many of last year's regulars, including Babe Siebert and Red Goupille, the heavyweights of the squad, took part in the drill along with Des Smith, Herb Cain, Jimmy Ward and Cy Wentworth, former members of the disbanded Montreal Maroons.

Air Of Seriousness Hits Eskymos Camp

An air of seriousness pervaded the Eskymo football camp last night as Coach Carl Nordberg began a wholesale shake-up in preparation for the big Menominee game, which will be played at the state-line city next Saturday.

Nordberg did not conceal the fact that he was very much displeased at the work of the boys against Norway. He recognized the fact that Norway was a strong team but said he felt the boys were far below par last Saturday. Their blocking was off and they lacked spirit generally.

Henry To End
One of the major shifts being made this week by the Eskymo coach will be that of transferring big Bob Henry, who has been playing a bang-up game at center, to the right end post to strengthen that position. Henry, in spite of his 200 pounds, is one of the fastest men on the squad and his blocking is expected to add to the running attack. In the first three games of the season, the Eskymos have been handicapped by failure of offensive ends to take in their defensive tackles, jamming up attempts at running the tackles.

Massier, reserve center, has been moved up to take Henry's place. Meunier is not very heavy but is a scrapper and is expected to be able to take good care of himself.

Also in the line, Leonard, stocky reserve tackle, has been shifted to guard and is expected to see much action in place of Pepin, who was slightly injured against Norway.

The backfield is the spot for the wholesale shake-up. Not one of the boys will be at his original post if changes Nordberg is making remain permanent. Barron, who has failed to show up in the running attack as expected, partly because of lack of interference, has been shifted to the quarter-back post. Barron is a good blocker and passer and is invaluable on defense.

Potenbauer has been shifted to the left halfback post where his drive will be utilized to good advantage. "Slugg" Hansen, who has been playing at fullback, has been shifted to "floating Power's" right half post and Bender, who has been sharing fullback duties with Hansen, has been installed at that post. This will enable Nordberg to take advantage of Bender's good blocking.

SERIES MELON IN 26 SHARES

Winning Slice Expected To Be Worth Over $6,000 for Cubs

Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Chicago Cubs voted today to cut their world series melon into 26 full shares. The 21 players who have been with the club since before July 21 automatically get full shares. They are:

Manager Hartnett, Bob Garbark, Ken O'Dea, Rip Collins, Billy Herman, Tony Lazzeri, Billy Jurges, Stanley Hack, Frank Demaree, Phil Cavarretta, Ausie Galan, Carl Reynolds, Joe Marty, Bill Lee, Jim Asbell, Charley Ropt, Clay Bryant, Larry French, Tex Carlton, Larry Dean and Jack Russell.

Full shares also were voted to Coaches Joe Johnson and John Corriden, Trainer Andy Lotshaw and Bob Lewis, traveling secretary.

A half share was voted to Vance Page, rookie pitcher, who won five games after joining the club early in August, and a quarter share each was voted Pitcher Al Epperly and Joe Bernardi, chief clubhouse boy. Epperly was with the Cubs at the start and end of the season but was farmed to Indianapolis in the interim.

Clarence Kumulae, batting practice pitcher, was voted $1,300—an assessment of $50 per man. Pitcher Bob Logan, who was released to Indianapolis early in August, was voted $500. Rookies Kirby Higbe, Newel Kimball and Steve Messer, who have been with the team for only a few weeks drew $250 each.

Last year a full winning share was worth $6,471.11 and the losing share $4,359.96. Shares are expected to be similar this year, the anticipated increase in attendance offsetting the loss of $100,000 revenue in radio broadcasting rights in which the players shared.

Chicago Bears In Easy Victory Over Philadelphia Team

The Chicago Bears identified themselves once more as the team to beat in the National Professional Football league Sunday by swamping the Philadelphia Eagles, 23 to 6. The Bears scored once in the first period, twice in the second and once in the third while holding the Eagles scoreless until late in the game.

Brooklyn downed the Chicago Cardinals, 13 to 0, scoring twice in the second period.

In the upset of the day, the improved Cleveland Rams shoved across two touchdowns in the final quarter to down the Detroit Lions, 21 to 17.

Feller Strikes Out 18 Tigers To Create New World's Record

Cleveland, Ohio—Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians became strikeout champion of all time as he fanned 18 Detroit Tigers here Sunday in the first game of a double-header.

The Tigers won both games, however, 4 to 1 and 10 to 8.

Hank Greenberg failed to hit a home run, although he got four hits in the two games, and finished the season with 58, two short of Babe Ruth's record, made in 1927.

Mixing a blazing, darting fast ball with a sharp breaking curve, Feller pitched his way to heights never before attained by any pitcher since the game began.

Old Professor Sends For Smelling Salts

BY PAUL MICKELSON

Chicago, Oct. 3 (AP)—Gaby Hartnett and his wild-eyed Chicago Cubs tried to crush the Monday morning alibi and crying class for football coaches today by the cagey Old Professor, here for a bit of sport in the world series, chased them out, passed liberal doses of smelling salts to Jimmy Kitts of Rice and rapped for order.

Professor: The situation is getting worse. Already I'm getting hard of hearing. Well, well, look who's sniffing the salts! Our old pals from Nebraska, Rice, Yale, Stanford, Slippery Rock, Evansville and even good, old Spearfish. Jimmy, is it true what the papers have been saying about Rice?

Jimmy Kitts, Rice: Professor, sometimes literacy is a very bad thing. Newspapers and magazines pumped us too high. The boys did too much reading about how good they were! The licking did us good. Now we can forget about that Rose Bowl and get back into the Southwest Conference race, Oklahoma? They can handle themselves in my company.

Feels Like Gaby
Tom Stidham, Oklahoma: I feel just like Gaby Hartnett. Listen, Professor, I'll take that big nice tackle Jess Hines as one of the best.

Earnie Lahn, Rice star: Pardon my intrusion, Professor, but I'm looking for that Oklahoma end.

What's his name? Nobody could get him out.
Professor: Tut, tut, his name is Woody Young, but I'm worried about Minnesota and Pittsburgh. . .
Biff Jones, Nebraska: Don't worry about Minnesota, Professor. A great team—smart, too. They sure can put on the pressure.
Pop Warner, Temple: And don't worry about Pitt. Professor, Pitt has the best team I ever saw. I mean it, but if Sturges (Temple tackle) hadn't broken his leg, why . . .

Bernie Bierman, Minnesota: We played great that first half but we had to hang on for dear life. . .
Professor: Hey, that's Sutherland's private line. Tut, tut.
Jock Sutherland, Pittsburgh: Dick Cassiano showed great improvement. My team has a strong offense, but woe is me. I'm afraid the defense is a little weak.

SOS For Pitt!
Professor: Will somebody ship some football players to Pitt?
Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin: The heavens were still far from strong. We hope the heavens remain with us. . .
Paddy Driscoll, Marquette: Don't believe him, Professor. The Badgers are powerful and should go far. We'll improve—I hope.
Fritz Crisler, Michigan: I'm very proud of my team, Professor. Let me get the worst of it at close quarters.
It's Great Line
Charley Bachman, Michigan State: He should be. A great line there.
Ray Wolf, North Carolina: We beat a typical tough N. C. State team by staying awake all afternoon. Sleep is a bad thing Saturday afternoons.

Ducky Pond, Yale: Professor, that Sid Luckman of Columbia is a football player. He junked us. Why did he have to go to Columbia?
Lou Little, Columbia: I protest. Indeed, I protest. We were lucky, that's all. Luckman is some kid, eh?
Francis Schmidt, Ohio State: Don't get sore, Professor, but we were lucky, too, to beat Indiana. I'm glad they still pay off on touchdowns instead of first downs.

Dear Old Spearfish
Professor: Forgiven. You were a wee bit lucky at that. But how about Spearfish?
Ted Brikeland, Spearfish: Never did I see so many tough breaks. . .
Ted Slyker, Evansville: Professor, we're still trying to score our first point since 1936. Does Sutherland still want to swap that first team? My bargain this week is: My whole backfield for Cassiano.
Professor: My bargain is: A ten per cent rise in smelling salts. We're getting short again. Now git.

Carl Doesn't Forget
Art Felsch of Milwaukee has the No. 1 spot at Wrigley field's bleacher ticket office and has settled down for his long wait with camp chair and four blankets. . . Tony Lazzeri, Jack Russell and Carl Reynolds, all former American leaguers, form a special board of strategy against the Yanks. . . Reynolds, particularly, is looking forward to the Yank invasion. . . It was Bill Dickey of the Yanks who swung a roundhouse right that broke Carl's jaw back in 1932. . . and Carl hasn't forgotten. . .

The series probably will produce some of the hardest "jockeying" in history. . . with the Yankees certain to do their share of "riding" the Cubs both at field and on the bench. . . Back in 1932, when Mark Koenig almost carried the Cubs to the pennant with a furious hitting surge in the final month, the Cubs failed to award him a full share. . . and Babe Ruth and company rode the Chicagoans mercilessly. . . When the Cubs today failed to "cut" former Manager Charley Grimm in on their series pool, many rans predicted the Yank "bench attorneys" would lose little time in reminding the Bruins of their action.

FINN STOPPED BY LOU NOVA

Fight Ends In Seventh After Barlund Gets Bad Eye Cut

BY DREW MIDDLETON
Madison Square Garden, New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Lou Nova strode into the heavyweight picture tonight when he stopped Gunnar Barlund, the durable Finn in 1:43 of the seventh round of their 15 rounder on a technical knockout. Barlund's left eye was so badly cut by Referee Arthur Donovan refused to let him continue. The San Franciscoan weighed 197, Barlund 204.

The lanky youngster from the coast handed Barlund a bad beating in every round but the third when the Helsinki, Finland, fighter floored him for a count of two with a short left hook to the mouth.

Nova got up and in a moment had the 12,633 fans screaming with a two fistet rally that put Barlund on the defensive. Nova had taken the first two rounds on a series of jolting left jabs to the face. He won every round but the third on the Associated Press score card.

Nova's short rights opened up the cut in the fourth round after some furious milling in mid-ring. Barlund, aiming for Nova's body kept coming in under the latter's left and got the worst of it at close quarters.

Donovan took the fifth and sixth away from Barlund because of low blows but Nova would have won them anyway. He smashed Barlund with a two fistet attack around the head and had him bloody and bewildered by the finish of the fifth.

When his crouching tactics failed in the sixth, Barlund came after the Californian at long range and landed his last good punch of the fight, a steaming left to the head that shook Nova.

The youngster rallied and continued to shoot long lefts and short rights at Barlund's eye. It was cruelly mangled by the end of the round and, when it started to bleed under the same sort of a barrage in the seventh, Donovan walked between them and waved Barlund to his corner.

ONE QUICK KNOCKOUT
New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Clarence (Red) Burman, Jack Dempsey's heavyweight protege, scored a first round knockout, in 1:44 over Italo Colonnello of Italy in the eight round semi-final to the Gunnar Barlund-Lou Nova bout tonight. Burman weighed 192 1-2, Colonnello 198.

Jim Robinson, towering Philadelphia heavy weighing 206 1-4 scored the night's quickest knockout, when he finished Jar Johnson, 187 1-2, Oslo, Norway, in 43 seconds of the first round of a six round bout.

Tommy Tucker, 180 1-2, East Rockaway, L. I., outpointed Bud Mignault, 171 3-4, Brockton, Mass., in another six rounder.

Locals Defeat Rapid River In Last Two Games
In the final junior and juvenile diamondball games of the season, the Escanaba Shamrocks and the Maroons defeated two Rapid River teams.

In the first game between the juveniles, the Shamrocks nosed out the Rapid River juveniles by a score of 4-3 while in the nightcap the Maroons shut out the Rapid River crew by a score of 6-0.

Seven Men Signed Up With Cincinnati
Cincinnati, Oct. 3 (AP)—Outfielders Ival Goodman and Harry Craft signed their 1939 contracts with the Cincinnati Reds tonight before leaving for their homes. Gen. Manager Warren C. Giles did not disclose the salaries. Their signatures brought the number of players signed for next year to a total of seven.

Others who have signed are Paul Derringer, Johnny Vander Meer, Frank McCormick, Charley Barrett and Gene Schott.

Speakers Laud Gessner At Jubilee Breakfast

Tribute, not only to the founder of a successful business, but to a public spirited citizen, and a man in whose character is found all the elements of true greatness, was paid Herman Gessner, a leading figure in the life of his community for the past half century, at the Golden Jubilee breakfast, Monday morning at the Sherman hotel, the opening event of the observance of the fiftieth anniversary of the Fair Store.

The impressive program, an inspiration to the representatives of civic and governmental agencies of the city and to the seventy-two employees of the Fair Store, who were guests, had as its toastmaster, Harold B. Gessner, and as its principal speaker, John A. Lemmer, superintendent of the Escanaba public schools, and for many years a neighbor of Mr. Gessner and members of his family.

Lauded by Speakers
"Herman Gessner has reason to be proud and happy today," Mr. Lemmer declared, following his entertaining introduction, a word picture of Escanaba of fifty years ago, gleaned from the files of the old "Iron Port," the city's first newspaper. "He can be proud and happy because of his success in business. He can be proud and happy because he is known as 'Escanaba's Number One Booster.'"

"While we admire Herman Gessner, the business man," he continued, "we must admire Herman Gessner, the man, still more. His name is to be found in the yearbook, 'Who's Who in Jewish Life,' because he is one of the nation's leaders in the Combined Jewish Charities and in the Zionist Movement. The Sisters of St. Francis hospital remember him gratefully and so do hundreds of patients because of the weekly visits he made there. Above all, Herman Gessner is the father of crippled children's work in the upper peninsula and in northern Wisconsin, and many a physically perfect man and woman prays today for him, because it was his tireless enthusiasm and his open pocketbook that made a happy, normal youngster out of a crippled child."

"Herman Gessner is truly Escanaba's Number One Booster. He never cannonaded Escanaba; he always canonized it. He took off his coat and his collar and he worked for it. To him it was always the good old town. It was home. And happily and truthfully we can say to him, as we look back with him over the fifty years, in the words of the old Athenian oath, 'You helped to transmit this city not less but greater, better and more beautiful than it was transmitted to you.'"

Other speakers on the breakfast program were Fred J. Earle, president of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce, who spoke in appreciation of Mr. Gessner's active and undying interest in the welfare of that organization; Leslie French, who spoke of Mr. Gessner as a public spirited citizen and a generous, loyal, kindly neighbor, "prompt to do his part and offer more than his share"; and W. R. Smith, who in a clever manner presented entertaining anecdotes of business association with Mr. Gessner, and spoke of his success in business and of his success and happiness in his family.

A beautiful bronze plaque, the gift of the Fair Store staff, to the founder, was presented by John J. Bartella, who paid tribute to his character, as revealed in the close proximity of a business office, and Mr. Gessner's deeply touching and characteristic response, climaxed the program.

The invocation was delivered by Rev. D. E. Evans, of the First Methodist Episcopal church and president of the Delta Ministerial society, and Rev. Fr. Joseph E. Guertin, pastor of St. Ann's church, acting as representative of the Catholic clergy of Delta county, gave the benediction.

Breakfast appointments were in keeping with the occasion, roses and poms of golden shade, decorating the tables, while golden jubilee ribbons, to which were attached golden yellow flowers, were favors for the guests.
