JAPS EXPECT HANKOW WILL FALL SHORTLY

DEFENSES CRUMBLE; CANTON DAMAGE IN MILLIONS

CHINA AT A GLANCE Shanghai—Japanese, within 20 miles of Hankow, expect fall of Chinese capital momentarily, say Chinese defenses are crumbling.

Shanghai, Oct. 25 (Tuesday) (AP)—A Japanese armored car unit from Hwanpael, 20 miles north of Hankow, reached the Peiping-Hankow railway today and, advancing down the railway, reached a position only four miles from the Chinese military capital's outer defense works.

Word of the advance was relayed from the front by Domei, Japanese news agency.

Chinese in Flight Spokesmen for the Japanese forces said they expected the fall of the former provisional capital at any moment.

(A Reuters British news agency, dispatch to London said explosions were rocking Hankow, and that M. Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the generalissimo, had left the former capital.)

Japanese dispatches said Hankow defense was crumbling and that the city was being evacuated on a huge scale as the Chinese virtually ceased opposition.

Japanese fliers reported Chinese troops in flight west of Hankow. Three Chinese warships, an estimated 2,000 junks and 200 motorboats, all packed with Chinese soldiers, were proceeding at full speed presumably toward Ichang, nearly 400 miles upstream from Hankow, the airmen said.

Navy Races Army Japanese army and naval units were racing to be the first to enter the city.

The army reported an advance both from east and north of Hankow by motorized units which reached Hwanpael, 20 miles north of the capital.

The naval forces continued up the Yangtze river, determined to keep pace with the army. They last were reported only 20 miles below Hankow.

The army said the advance of its motorized columns had proceeded swiftly without opposition. The columns were provided with

Secretary Accused Of 'Subterfuge' To Protect CIO Chief

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Ray E. Nimmo, American Legion attorney from Los Angeles, accused Secretary Perkins today of resorting to a "subterfuge to protect" Harry Bridges, west coast director for the CIO, from deportation as an alleged member of the communist party.

Either that must be the case, he told the house committee on un-American activities, or "possibly her ideals are the same as those of Bridges."

Throughout a day of testimony by Nimmo and by Harper Knowles, chairman of the radical research committee of the American Legion's California department, the committee hammered intermittently at Miss Perkins and the labor department for postponing deportation proceedings against Bridges.

Chairman Dies (D-Tex) repeatedly referred to the fact that Rep. Bonham, in charge of the Bridges case in the field, had objected to the postponement, had told his superiors that he had ample evidence to force Bridges' deportation on several counts in addition to that of communist party membership.

The department has said the case will be held in abeyance until the supreme court settles the Strecker case, which involves the question whether mere membership in the communist party is ground for deporting an alien.

Dies repeatedly asserted that since the department had other grounds for deportation action against Bridges than that of communist membership, the Strecker case had no bearing. The law, he said, required that the department proceed against Bridges.

Two young Tennessee housewives, Mrs. Beulah Honeycutt, top, and Mrs. Jean Brooks, lower, were convicted Monday of the murder of Felix Shannon, 58, at his Mount Erie, Ill., home last Aug. 21. Mrs. Honeycutt, 25-year-old buxom blonde, received the most severe penalty, 99 years in prison, and Mrs. Brooks, 23, was given 30 years. The women were accused of shooting Shannon to death the day after he had picked them up in his automobile while they were hitchhiking.

Company Expands The Ford company has produced approximately 462,000 units thus far in 1938. How far beyond that figure the company expects to go in 1939, Ford did not disclose.

He said, however, that, with the company's $34,000,000 expansion program nearly complete, "we are now in a position to make all the cars we can sell."

"A further increase in the capacity of some of the units involved in the expansion already is planned, he disclosed. He said the tire making plant, now equipped to produce 5,000 tires a day, would be expanded as rapidly as equipment and materials become available.

He also announced that a 150,000 horsepower engine is being added to the power plant at the Rouge factory. The installation will be completed in April, he said, at a cost of $1,600,000.

The occasion for the interview was a press preview of the new Ford models.

MURPHY SLAPS JUDGE GADOLA

Dies Committee Should Have Called Him, Governor Avers

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—In bitter words Governor Murphy today renewed his criticism of Circuit Judge Paul V. Gadola's reported testimony before the Dies committee and suggested himself and automobile corporation executives as the "right men" to testify before that body.

Governor Murphy, who delivered campaign speeches here before a University of Michigan student audience and a Democratic rally, said the committee had called the "wrong witnesses" in its investigation of Michigan's sit-down strikes.

"Why doesn't the committee call Mr. Knudsen, Mr. Chrysler, Capt. Laurence Lyon of the state police, or Frank Murphy," the governor said. "That committee didn't call the right men if it is facts it seeks."

William S. Kauffman is president of General Motors Corp. and Walter P. Chrysler head of Chrysler Corp.

Reviewing the tense period of the Flint sit-down in February, 1937, during which Judge Gadola issued his injunction ordering evacuation of the strikers from Flint plants, Murphy said.

"When Judge Gadola was asked to agree in not serving the writ as a conference seemed likely to bring a peaceable solution—and did bring that solution—he raged. 'To Hell with the governor!'

"I ask, was that wise; was it temperate, was it judicial to speak in that manner of the chief executive?"

Pyrenees Frontier Held By Insurgents

Hendaye, France (At The Spanish Frontier), Oct. 24 (AP)—Insurgent Spain tightened her control today over the Pyrenees frontier with France.

Such action has been taken frequently in the past to prevent leakage of military information on the eve of an important campaign.

Although the border is not closed, supervision of persons entering or leaving insurgent Spain was sharper and some travelers were searched.

Communiqués from both the Spanish government and insurgent sides continued to report only local actions on the battlefronts.

18 DIE IN CRASH Sydney, Australia, Oct. 25 (AP)—Eighteen persons—14 passengers and crew of 4—died today in the crash of an airliner against Mount Dandenong, 40 miles from Melbourne.

The plane was enroute from Adelaide to Melbourne. It was Australia's worst airplane disaster.

ROSY OUTLOOK FOR BUSINESS SEEN BY FORD

NEXT YEAR WILL BE ALL RIGHT, SAYS MOTOR MOGUL

BY DAVID J. WILKIE Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP)—Henry Ford painted a bright picture of the business outlook in an interview today, predicting a prosperous 1939 and expressing belief that there would be no major European war.

"The people have come to their senses and realize the futility of war," was the comment on threats of armed conflict in Europe.

Tired of "isms" Business, he said, already is on the upgrade and "distinctly better times are on the way."

"Next year," he said, "will be all right."

He cited "better feeling among the public generally" in support of his forecast.

"People are tired of the many 'isms' that have developed in the last few years," he said. "They are getting back to work, and work spells prosperity."

The Ford Motor company, he said, is preparing to meet increased demand with increased production.

"We plan to step up production of 1939 models well beyond the aggregate of 1938," he said, "because we know that sales generally are going to be much greater."

Company Expands The Ford company has produced approximately 462,000 units thus far in 1938. How far beyond that figure the company expects to go in 1939, Ford did not disclose.

He said, however, that, with the company's $34,000,000 expansion program nearly complete, "we are now in a position to make all the cars we can sell."

One Pleads Guilty To Federal Fraud Charge At Detroit

Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP)—Kenneth H. Hawkes, 30, former assistant secretary of the Ozark Corp. and one of nine defendants in a government stock fraud case, pleaded guilty in federal court today to conspiracy charges.

The other eight, among them Frederick J. Riker, former corporation president, and Harold M. Saddlemyre, former vice president, are awaiting trial on pleas of innocence to charges of violation of stock and mail statutes in promoting the corporation.

Judge Edward J. Molnet announced sentencing of Hawkes would be delayed until after the trial of the others. Hawkes' $2,000 bond was continued.

Mt. Clemens Widow Admits Asking $800 In Extortion Plot

Mt. Clemens, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—A 43-year-old widow admitted in circuit court today an extortion plot against a neighbor in which a "Detroit gang" demanded $800.

The widow, Mrs. Florence Doolin, said she had written two letters threatening Chris Fetter, 53, with "a ride" unless he "turned over $800, and wrote another to herself to divert suspicion. Sentence was deferred by Judge James E. Spier.

Prosecutor Vincent L. Fitzgerald said Mrs. Doolin confessed after her capture Saturday night by detectives as she came to an appointed spot where a "dummy" package of money was placed.

Federal Job Given To Michigan Negro

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—C. C. Schilling, aide to Senator Brown (D-Mich.), disclosed tonight Brown has recommended appointment of Harold E. Bledsoe, commissioner of the Michigan department of correction, as assistant to F. P. Hill, governor of the farm credit administration.

Bledsoe, a negro, is a former assistant attorney general. The recommendation was sent Hill and James A. Farley, national Democratic committee chairman.

NAZI GERMANY FINANCED SPY RING, IS CLAIM

U. S. ARMY DESERTER CREATES STIR IN FEDERAL TRIAL

BY ROGER GREENE New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Testimony that Nazi Germany allegedly financed spy plots in the United States with money from German winter relief funds created a stir today in the federal court trial of pretty, red-haired Johanna (Jenni) Hoffmann, 26, and two men co-defendants on espionage charges.

The witness, Guenther Gustav Rumrich, 32, U. S. Army deserter and confessed spy, said the information came to him from Karl Schlueter, the spy ring's alleged "contact man."

Wanted "Revenge" Rumrich said he never doubted he was in touch with authorized German agents during his siphoned career as a "mail order" spy for the third reich, but that he sometimes doubted Schlueter "because he told me things which were rather unusual for a German to mention."

He cited the alleged "borrowing" of winter relief funds as one of the things "a German would not mention."

Dipping ever deeper into his apparently inexhaustible supply of spyplot tales, Rumrich described a fantastic "20-years-after" scheme to avenge Germany against the United States for allied bombings during the World war.

In his sixth day as a key witness for the government, Rumrich testified Erich Glaser, 28, former U. S. Army private, one of the three defendants on trial, was motivated by boyhood terror in joining the conspiracy.

Japan implicated? He told me he had lived at Baden, near the French border, during the World war and had experienced severe bombings. He said this would be a fine chance to get even with America for those bombings and because America rang the death knell for us (in Germany) after years of fighting," the witness said.

Glaser, a dark-eyed, stolid-faced youth born in Germany, is a naturalized American. He was attached to the air force at Mitchell Field, Long Island, until arrested by federal agents last February.

He said Glaser acted "very agreeable" when told how much money could be made in the sale of U. S. military secrets to Germany.

The New York Post said U. S. Attorney Lamar Hardy has evidence that the espionage ring was directed in Berlin in cooperation with the Japanese government.

The newspaper said Hardy planned to expose the alleged role of Japan in the spy plot but was "shushed up" on orders by the state department.

In Washington, state department officials professed to have no such knowledge.

Convict Is Hunted By Detroit Police

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Officials of the state prison of southern Michigan today enlisted the aid of Detroit police in a search for Leon Pietrowski, inmate who joined John Klunka in fleeing prison. Klunka was apprehended at Kalamazoo and told officers that Pietrowski had said he intended to go to Detroit.

The men were trustees in the prison forestry department and escaped in a state-owned truck which was recovered at Battle Creek.

Vandenberg Booked For Bay City Talk

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich.), is scheduled to be the main speaker at a rally of the Tenth congressional district Republican club here Tuesday. Also on the program are Rep. Jesse P. Wojcik (R-Mich.), of Port Huron, and Rep. Roy O. Woodruff (R-Mich.), of Bay City.

LaGuardia Cancels Ann Arbor Speech

Ann Arbor, Oct. 24 (AP)—Kenneth Morgan, director of the University of Michigan Student Rotations association, said tonight Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York City would be unable to make a scheduled address at a youth conference here next Sunday.

Morgan said the conference, one of a series, is sponsored by the state study commission on social welfare relationships, would be postponed.

Kansas Powder Plant Blows Up In Prairie Fire; 50 Workers Safe

Columbus, Kas., Oct. 24 (AP)—A prairie fire touched off the Hercules powder plant near here today and demolished 12 buildings in a series of spectacular explosions, but the 50 workers had time to get out safely.

Schools here were closed as the blast approached the plant at Turck, four miles north, and roads were blocked for two miles around. Turck's whole population of 200 and farmers of the countryside were evacuated.

The deafening blasts rattled windows at Baxter Springs and Galena, more than 15 miles away, and shot flames 200 feet high.

The fire still burned tonight near 40,000 25-pound cans of black powder, but a southwest wind lessened the danger there.

J. M. Morris, who lives near the plant, said he saw the prairie flames just after a locomotive passed.

WEIRD ATTACK IS CONFESSED BY MAN, WIFE

DOLLAR BAY COUPLE HELD; USED POKER AND FLATIRON

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Religious fanaticism was blamed today for the weird slaying of a 20-year-old girl, but Prosecutor Frank C. Condon prepared to press murder charges against a couple who confessed, he said, that they beat her to death with a poker and flat iron.

The victim was Miss Marian Doyle, whose body, her skull crushed and her neck broken, was found Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Pichette, in nearby Dollar Bay, where she was employed as a housekeeper.

Called Self "Messiah" Prosecutor Condon said that Pichette, 35-year-old WPA worker, and his wife had made partially incoherent confessions that they killed the girl to "cast out a devil" that had invaded their home.

Pichette claimed supernatural powers as a "Messiah" but Prosecutor Condon said the self-styled "Son of Jehovah" was "more sane than he pretends to be." Mrs. Pichette, he said, appeared to be more rational than her husband.

Asserting that Pichette "knows what he's doing," the prosecutor disclosed any intention of seeking insanity inquiries for the couple. He said they probably would be arraigned tomorrow before Justice John McCarthy, who issued a warrant charging them jointly with murder. The prosecutor said tonight he is working to establish a motive for the crime other than religious fanaticism, stating he had a lead which he will try to develop on Tuesday.

Daughter, 7, Watched The confessions attributed to the Pichettes said Miss Doyle was killed Saturday night. Mrs. Pichette, first to confess, was quoted as saying her husband compelled her to beat the girl to death with a poker while he held her helpless on the floor.

A later confession, attributed to Pichette by the prosecutor, said that Pichette choked the girl—presumably accounting for her broken neck—and beat her with a flatiron, while Mrs. Pichette struck the victim with a poker. The Pichettes' seven-year-old daughter witnessed the slaying. She said her father told her that they were "casting out a devil." The child said that the helped her parents carry Miss Doyle's body to an upstairs room and lay it on a bed.

The Pichettes apparently retired Saturday night, arose Sunday morning and went to church at Calumet. Their incoherent mumblings about having "disposed of the devil," aroused the suspicions of the Rev. Ethelbert Harrington, who notified Laurium village police. The couple were subdued after a violent struggle in the rectory and lodged in the Laurium jail. Later, when Pichette gave evidence of regaining his composure, the couple were released, returning to their home in Dollar Bay.

At first, the Pichettes insisted that the girl was killed in their absence and that they found her body upon their return from an automobile ride.

Sheriff John G. Salmi, who questioned the couple after their arrest, said that Mrs. Pichette finally disclosed the strange story of her husband's supernatural delusions.

The sheriff said he learned that Pichette once paid $2,000 to some Gypsies for a mystic "power" that no other man possesses, "borrowing" the money from his mother-in-law, Mrs. Charles Marcotte.

Six months ago, the sheriff said, Mrs. Pichette left her husband and went to Newberry, where she was

Former Governor Praises Murphy, But Won't Quit Republicans for Him

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—An indictment naming 44 men and a woman as members of a liquor ring which defrauded the federal government of at least $15,000,000 in taxes was handed up to Federal Judge William Bondy today.

The ring, Assistant U. S. Attorney Raymond P. Whearty said, operated 11 stills ranging from 10,000 to 25,000 gallons capacity from time to time in upstate New York.

Between 1931 and 1937, it charged, the ring shipped liquor to Detroit, Boston, Buffalo, Newark, New York City and Canada.

"Conservative estimates," said Whearty, "convicted us this gang produced at least three and a half million gallons of 190-proof alcohol for illicit distribution."

Thirty-one persons were indicted last Tuesday by the same grand jury on charges of similar activity in Dutchess county, the government charging it was defrauded of $2,500,000.

Jury Calls Dodge Death Accidental Little Current, Ont., Oct. 24. (Canadian Press)—A coroner's jury of backwoodsmen took just 10 minutes today to add another chapter to the tragic death of Daniel George Dodge, heir to a $9,000,000 Detroit fortune.

After hearing Ann Laurine Dodge, widow of the 21-year-old motor car family seon and three other witnesses describe how Dodge was injured in a dynamite explosion, the jury found he drowned accidentally while being taken by speed boat to a hospital.

The drowning, the jury said, occurred August 15—the day of the explosion in a garage at the Dodge summer home 20 miles west of here.

The accident took place just 13 days after Dodge and his sweetheart, a former telephone operator, were married at the Dodge estate, Rochester, Mich.

Mrs. Dodge, in her brief appearance as a witness, said "Danny didn't think the dynamite would go off. It was too old."

Lindbergh Inspects Berlin Labor Setup

Berlin, Oct. 24 (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh spent three hours today inspecting German labor front's bureau for vocational education and business management.

He was described as having shown "great interest." The American flier had planned to leave Berlin this morning but deferred his departure for "probably several days."

(At Lannion, France, a special police inspector was appointed on permanent assignment, ostensibly to keep watch on the security of Col. Lindbergh and his family.

(The town is 12 miles from Port-Blanc, small port on France's northern coast where Lindbergh lands in commuting between the mainland and his home on Illiec Island.

(French authorities declined to say whether the special protection was requested or taken on their own initiative.)

Autumn's Sunshine Routs Early Winter

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Rising temperatures took the frost off the mid-west's pumpkins today.

Generally fair and warmer weather was forecast after a week-end marked by freezing conditions in many sections and snow in Wisconsin, Upper Michigan, and Minnesota.

STAGE STAR DEAD

Detroit (AP)—Mrs. Alice Whitney, who, as Althea York, was a musical comedy star in the early days of the present century, will be buried here Tuesday. She achieved her greatest success in "The Chocolate Soldier." Since the death of her husband, Bert C. Whitney, nine years ago, Mrs. Whitney had lived on Long Island and her death occurred Saturday at Flushing, L. I.

ARMY TO RULE OVER PALESTINE

British Troops Control Holy Land Traffic, Communications

Jerusalem, Oct. 24. (AP)—All traffic and communications in Palestine will be taken over by British military authorities Nov. 1 in a move believed preliminary to a plan of the British army to limit movements of the populace to urban areas.

This would keep civilians out of the way of troops moving about to fight the Arab revolt against British rule and Jewish migration in the Holy Land. Major General Robert H. Haining, commander of British forces in Palestine, issued warnings throughout the country requiring all travelers to secure special military passes.

In Jerusalem itself, the British continued to withdraw soldiers from the old city, although they kept strategic machinegun nests mounted on the quarter's ancient walls. The Coldstream guards left today, and British police took the places of the Northumberland fusiliers, who retired yesterday.

The curfew was relaxed slightly after the fighting between Arabs and British troops died down, but British authorities warned the curfew and "further military measures" would be reimposed "to maintain public security" if necessary.

Britain Will Name 2 New Ministers, Filling Vacancies

London, Oct. 24. (AP)—Authoritative sources said tonight two new ministers would be named to the cabinet this week.

They would fill vacancies left by the resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper, first lord of the admiralty, and the death of Lord Stanley, dominions secretary.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain returned to No. 10 Downing street today from Chequers, his official country residence, and presided at a cabinet committee session where the ministerial nominees were believed approved.

The prime minister also saw Sir Kingsley Wood, secretary for air, and War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha for discussion of the armaments question, one of the largest problems confronting the cabinet.

Malted Milk Will Contested; Undue Influence Claimed

Racine, Wis., Oct. 24. (AP)—William Horlick Sidley, adversely examined today by counsel for executors of the will of his mother, Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, testified the malted milk business was under undue influence of W. Perkins Bull, Toronto barrister, when she signed her will in the Bull home last April.

Sidley, 26, is objecting to probate of the will on grounds that it was not legally drawn and that his mother was of unsound mind at the time of signing. The will disposes of an estate estimated at $4,000,000. It leaves equal bequests of $250,000 and one-third shares of the residuary to Sidley and Bull.

Chile Will Elect President Today

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 24. (AP)—Chileans will choose tomorrow between a financier and an ex-school teacher for their next president.

The candidates are Gustavo Ross, a rightist with a background of business and financial success, and Pedro Aguirre Cerda, a leftist who left the classroom for a political career.

The winner will become Chile's 22nd constitutional president in succession to Arturo Alessandri Palma, a liberal who was elected to the presidency for a six-year term in 1932.

Optimism Expressed By Furniture Trade

Grand Rapids, Mich., Oct. 24. (AP)—With optimism the prevailing note, furniture manufacturers tonight awaited the opening of their annual fall market and exposition here Wednesday.

Encouragement for the industry was contained in a report issued by Seldman and Seldman, public accountants, which revealed that September shipments were 17 percent over the August total.

"Since May, 1938, when the industry was about 44 percent behind 1937, there has been a continuous improvement with each succeeding month showing better results than the same month one year ago," the report stated.

A 5 percent gain in employment in the industry was recorded, making the total rise 16 percent above the most recently low points.

Federal Railroad Has $200,000 Fire

Anchorage, Alaska, Oct. 24. (AP)—Col. Otto F. Ohlson, general manager of the Alaska railroad, estimated today $200,000 damage was caused by an all-night fire in the railroad's warehouse here.

Colonel Ohlson said the fire started in a workman on a siding of the government-owned railroad.

Varying Length Of Lenses Presents Aids And Problems To Photographer

What is the difference between a wide angle lens and a telephoto? This question does not concern the amateur in his everyday photographic activities, but sooner or later, as he progresses into the more difficult types of photographic tasks, he will find it valuable to know something of the focal length of his lens and how it affects the pictures made through it.

A standard lens, with which a camera is equipped when it leaves the factory, is generally of a focal length slightly greater than the diagonal of the film which it is to cover. This means that for the 2 1/4 x 3 1/4 camera a standard lens will be about 4 inches in focal length. For a 4 x 5 camera the focal length of the standard lens will be about 6 inches.

Lenses of this "standard" type have an angle of view of about 50 degrees. This means that, when the camera is pointed towards a scene, the lens will take in a 50-degree section of the view. In other words, the camera equipped with a standard focal length lens "sees" a little more than half of a right angle. The field which it records is a segment, roughly like a piece of pie, with the camera at its point.

Field Is Widened By employing a wide angle lens, the photographer is able to widen the field viewed by his camera. Instead of picturing only 50 degrees, a wide angle lens may take in 90 degrees or a whole right angle. This permits work in cramped quarters, where it is impossible to get far enough away to take in the desired scene with the standard lens.

A photographer attempting to picture a building at one side of a narrow street, for example, may be forced to resort to a wide angle lens to get his picture. The standard lens will only take in a portion of the building he wishes to picture, even if he backs up so that he is leaning against the front of the building across the street. By changing his standard lens for a wide angle lens, he broadens his camera's angle of view so that it takes in the whole of the building from the same spot.

The wide angle lens is especially useful in photographing the interiors of buildings, where there is rarely a place for the photographer to move far enough back into a corner to include more than one wall within the range of his camera. There is an extreme wide angle lens, produced experimentally, which has an angle of view of 180 degrees, and when it is placed on the floor in the center of the room it will photograph the ceiling and all four walls. The distortion produced in a picture of this sort is so great as to make it practically useless for most purposes, but nevertheless, it can be done.

Brings Objects Closer In contrast to the wide angle lens, the telephoto lens narrows the angle of view. Different types of telephoto lenses may reduce the field recorded by the camera from 38 degrees down to 3 or 4. These are the lenses which are used for "close up" shots that must be taken from far away. The telephoto lens acts like a telescope, bringing to the film an enlarged image of the subject.

Especially valuable in sports, such as football, the telephoto lens enables the photographer to get pictures which appear to have been made "close up," even though they may have been actually taken from a considerable distance. A familiar example is the shot of the yawning lion, in which the camera seems to be pointed down the beast's throat, but which was really made from a distance of about 20 feet and through the bars of a cage. Candid photographs are also best made with a telephoto lens, which permits the operator of the camera to work at a greater distance from his subject.

The difference between wide angle, standard and telephoto lenses is in their focal length. Determining the focal length of any lens is a simple problem, easily accomplished with no special equipment.

A good place for such an experiment is beside a window. The lens is held in the hand, pointing at the distant view outside the window, and a sheet of white cardboard is held behind it in about the same relative position which would be occupied by the film if the lens were in the camera. With the aperture of the lens wide open, an image of the scene outside the window is thrown on the white cardboard.

Move the cardboard back and forth until the scene appears in sharp focus upon it. Then measure the distance from the lens to the cardboard and you have the focal length of the lens. In lenses with more than one element, the measurement is taken from the center of the lens which is the point in which the diaphragm is ordinarily mounted.

It is the use to which a lens of a given focal length is put that determines whether it is wide angle or telephoto. A 3-inch lens, for example, would be a wide angle lens if used on a camera taking a picture 2 1/4 x 3 1/4, but would be a telephoto if used on a miniature camera using 35mm. film. A 6-inch lens, if used on a 2 1/4 x 3 1/4 camera, would be classed as a telephoto, while the same lens on an 8x10 view camera would be classed as a wide angle. Focal length alone means nothing with regard to this classification of lenses—it is important only in relation to the size of the film that is covered.

Care Is Needed The photo fans employing for the first time any lens other than the one which is standard for his camera must exercise caution if the result is to be as good as expected. In time he can accustom himself to the use of a variety of lenses, but at the start there are several rules which must be observed.

In using a telephoto lens, the camera must be held more firmly or mounted on a tripod. The long focus lens magnifies the image of the subject of the picture, and in like manner magnifies any motion there may be either on the part of the subject or of the camera. This calls for a secure tripod, or fast shutter speeds if the shot is to be made from the hand.

Focusing must be more accurate with the telephoto, as it is a principle of optics that the longer the focal length of a lens, the less depth of focus it will have at a given aperture. This means that, in using a telephoto lens, the operator must focus as accurately as possible and then stop down as much as possible to overcome errors in focus and bring more of the subject into focus on the film.

With the wide angle lens, focusing becomes less of a problem. The same law of optics that makes the telephoto lens one of short focal depth makes the wide angle lens one of great focal depth. Even at wide apertures, the short focus lens has great depth of focus. Motion of camera or subject is less important with the wide angle lens, which reduces the size of the subject on the film instead of enlarging it as does the telephoto. The motion is also reduced, hence slower speeds may be used with safety.

Distortion Is Problem In the use of the wide angle lens, however, there is another problem to be considered. This is distortion, which occurs when any lens is used with the camera too close to the subject. Simple examples of it occur in photos such as those you see made at the beach, with the subject reclining on the sand and his feet appearing gigantic as they loom in front of the lens. The use of a wide angle lens in itself does not produce distortion. It is the fact that the camera is too close to the subject that causes this phenomenon, but it is much more likely to occur in the use of a wide angle lens simply because this type of lens takes in such a wide angle of view that it is possible to fill the picture area with the subject without moving back very far.

Portraits are never taken with a wide angle lens because of this feature of distortion. They could be, but that would result in the image of the subject being too small on the film. Hence the telephoto is the most common lens for portraiture, because it can be used far enough away from the subject to avoid distortion and will still produce a large image of the subject on the film.

Have Many Uses There are many uses for lenses of varying focal length in photography. Aside from the fact that the telephoto is valuable because it makes possible a large image of a distant subject, free from distortion, there are other less obvious uses for the same type of lens.

In composing a picture, the telephoto may be desirable even though another lens could be used and still would provide a large enough image and would enable the photographer to get the image of the whole of his subject on the film. Suppose, for example, that a string of four horses are coming down a road towards the camera. Taken with the normal lens, the first horse will be large, the second smaller, and so on. The telephoto, on the other hand, minimizes this variation in size of the four horses so that all are of more nearly the same size as they are photographed on the film.

Again, if the photographer wishes to picture a person standing in front of a large building, the wide angle may be used if he wishes to include all of the buildings. On the other hand, if he wishes the subject to be the most important feature of the picture he can use a telephoto and have the person step nearer the camera and he will seem to eclipse the whole building.

Where distortion is desired, the wide angle lens is supreme. A classic picture of this deliberately distorted picture is a recent publicity shot of Jimmy (Schnozola) Durante. Made with a wide angle lens placed only one-fourth inch from the end of his mighty nose, the picture shows the famous beak distorted so that it fills nearly half the picture area.

Members of the Delta Camera club who participated in the group's photo trip on Sunday, October 9, will have an opportunity to compare the resulting pictures when they meet next Wednesday evening at the Delta county court-house. A wide variety of shots, from fall landscapes to baby pictures, were made by photo fans who joined for the trip to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nelson's camp on Forsyth lake.

In making prints of the negatives that were exposed on the outing, the photographers were faced with the problem of trying to do justice to the autumn coloring of the leaves in black and white. Some color was used on the excursion, but all members of the group shot some of the scenes in black and white and many restricted their work to the more common film.

The shutter snappers will have an opportunity to see a few shots they didn't know were taken when they get together with photographs made on the trip. Several members of the organization, cautiously sneaking up on their prey, made candid pictures of their fellow photographers or load-carrying cameras. It was not unusual, in fact, to discover a three-way candid picture. A member would be caught taking a candid picture of a member taking a candid picture—and so on.

Joan and Jimmie Stratton, most-photographed models on the trip, will probably be begging

Tourists Awake In Canopy Beds, Vow Rockefeller Has Changed Williamsburg

BY KEITH CAMPBELL Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 22.—What if someone invested $20,000,000 in your home town? That's about what John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has spent in the past ten years on restoring this historic community—population, 2,600 to 3,000.

Rockefeller's plan, now almost completed, was to make Williamsburg look as it did 200 years ago when it was the bustling capital of Virginia—and Virginia extended to what is now Wisconsin.

Public buildings, streets, stores, houses and gardens—all restored or reconstructed after painstaking research here and abroad—provide an eighteenth century atmosphere where it is easy to visualize men and events important in the making of America.

The 200,000 tourists who visited Williamsburg last year can bear witness to the changes—especially if they stayed in a restored hotel and slept under the canopy of an old four poster bed. But the byproduct of the restoration, Williamsburg people said today, has been a transformation in their daily lives.

Lives More Prosper The tempo is faster. The depression slipped by almost unnoticed. Business is better and the standard of living high than before. Few people are on relief.

Women who never had worked are employed—and it's hard to get up a bridge game. Even the gardeners and cooks talk glibly of early American history. But some residents said the golden avalanche has not been all benefits. Women who work or rent rooms to tourists, they remarked, are not as free to work in church organizations.

Colonial Williamsburg, Inc., bought and tore down the business buildings on the main thoroughfare and substituted two entire blocks of neat colonial shops which harmonize with the restored or reconstructed homes, taverns and greens along Duke of Gloucester street.

The town's leading business men rent their quarters, either at a flat rate or at a minimum plus a percentage of receipts. "Rents are plenty high," one druggist confided. "But I guess they're in line. We get more cash housekeeper for another man. Her mother prevailed upon her to return last week, because Pichette was acting strangely.

Fearful Bad Influence During Mrs. Pichette's absence, her husband engaged Miss Doyle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Doyle, Jr., of Hancock, to care for his child.

Sheriff Salmi said that, upon her return, her husband told her that Miss Doyle had "powers" which conflicted with those he believed he possessed. "Finally," the sheriff said, "Pichette became convinced that the girl was possessed of the devil, and they decided to kill her before she could exert her influence on the family."

Hysterically at times, Mrs. Pichette related details of the slaying. Pichette sullenly denied his wife's story for years before he, too, confessed. Mrs. Pichette, powerfully built, weighs 175 pounds, although she is only five feet tall. She is 35 years old. Her husband is of medium height and weight.

Miss Doyle had planned to quit her job with the Pichettes and return to her home at Hancock Sunday.

Appase Germany, Lithuania Warned Berlin, Oct. 24. (AP)—A Cologne newspaper in an apparently inspired article said today that Lithuania, in order to win the friendship of Germany, must end its twelve-year-old state of emergency in Memel.

The newspaper, Koelnische Zeitung, also said Lithuania must restore citizenship rights to German leaders and must cease its policy of "filling Memel up with Lithuanians and crowding Germans out of positions."

their parents to let them attend the session. They were photographed by almost every lensman present, and Mr. and Mrs. Stratton should have no trouble in collecting enough prints to make up a good album page showing the day's activities.

customers with the tourists pouring through and our old customers are better able to pay their bills."

Overhead Rises A restaurant owner said he charged higher prices now and did a greater volume of business, but he added that his overhead had gone up along with his sales.

"These new brick buildings are better than the old ones," he said, "but the fixtures have to be in keeping, the atmosphere more metropolitan—it would look funny not to have waitresses in trick uniforms in a store like this."

Although officials estimated that the population is about the same, the postmaster said postal receipts had increased from some $20,000 to more than $41,000. The assessed valuation of real property has almost doubled, according to the city treasurer.

The restoration was not given sole credit for the increased prosperity, although it is employing 650 persons, spending large sums, and attracting tourists in droves. The rebirth of William and Mary college, second oldest in the United States, started in 1918, nearly ten years before the restoration began. The two developments have grown together, affecting each other and the town.

College authorities praise the restoration, not only for the school buildings restored, but for the atmosphere of eighteenth century culture and customs created. Students, they said, unconsciously absorb a high regard for American tradition.

William and Mary students learn that they don't need an expensive car or steam yacht to be happy, said President John Stewart Bryan. "They're happy here, where there are no night clubs, no gambling places, no burlesque shows and no open bars. The most expensive thing they can do is to the inn and eat a $2 dinner."

Everybody Works The $2 dinners and $1 lunches in Williamsburg, residents said, are in line with high prices paid for foodstuffs in bulk by housewives. Rents, too, they said, are much higher than they used to be.

The restored houses rent for from $15 to $200 a month. There's a story current that one New Yorker set his own rent above the maximum when he stayed flatly: "I can't pay any more for this house than we do for our Park Avenue apartment. That's $3,250 a year."

"Everything has changed," laughed white-haired Mrs. E. M. Lee, a lifetime resident and wife of the assistant postmaster. "No-body worked before. Now everybody works. We used to play cards and go visiting with our immaculate white gloves. There were numerous small night parties."

"Now, hostesses give one or two big parties a year at the Inn, and hardly anybody goes calling," she said. Mrs. Lee is one of the 59 Williamsburg women who work for the restoration as hostesses or escorts.

The hostesses wear eighteenth century costumes, furnished by the restoration, and show visitors through the display buildings from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. Several said they average from 40 to 50 cents an hour and make from $60 to $90 a month. They are given training about details of the historical background of the buildings and their restoration.

"It's developed us all," one aristocratic-looking woman volunteered. "All of us can't go to the world, and here the world comes to us." "You have to love people, old furniture and old china," explained a dentist's wife, who formerly taught in the college.

"I couldn't find anybody free to go to Norfolk with me Thursday," a young doctor's wife observed. "I had to take my maid. Everybody was working."

Particularly happy about the restoration was Miss Emma Lou Barlow. Her house was about to be chawed up by termites, she said, when the restoration bought it from her, restored it, and gave her the right to live in it, rent-free, for her lifetime.

"I have a modern kitchen and enough shelves for a hotel," the little white-haired spinster smiled.

supplies dropped from airplanes. (Hankow dispatches said there was no indication of panic. The city was under martial law and the defense commissioner said its defenses still were strong.)

British Boat Bombed (Foreign consuls and shipping companies at Hankow were informed officially that the Yangtze would be closed to navigation above Hankow from 8 p. m. (7 a. m. EST) Tuesday.

(In London officials said Britain had protested to Tokyo against the bombing of the gunboat Sandpiper by Japanese warplanes at Changsha, 200 miles southwest of Hankow.)

(Huge fires which raged over much of Canton in the wake of Japanese occupation apparently were dying down Monday night after damage estimated at many millions of dollars.)

Prior to occupation of Hwangpai, the Japanese captured Liklat, 30 miles northeast of Hankow. In taking the two points, the Japanese said they had surrounded ten Chinese divisions near Macheng, 60 miles northeast of Hankow. The Japanese said their aircraft were bombing and machine-gunning these enemy.

Dead Cover Roads Japanese army spokesmen said the Chinese had lost heavily before their alleged cessation of resistance. The Japanese said their advancing forces found the countryside roadways covered with thousands of Chinese who had died before Japanese air and artillery attacks.

The Japanese also said they had made rapid strides south of the Yangtze, reaching a point close to the Hankow-Canton railway. The Chinese also were in retreat on the south bank, the Japanese said, and were being attacked by Japanese bombing planes.

United States Consul-General Clarence E. Gauss was understood to have referred to Washington a customs dispute in which the Japanese refused to clear the Dollar liner President Coolidge for San Francisco.

The American liner had a $4,000,000 cargo of silver which the Japanese-sponsored government apparently considered its property. The silver was consigned to the Chase National Bank of New York.

The Dollar line agreed to unload the silver and then permission was granted for the vessel to sail at 8 a. m. Tuesday (7 p. m. E.S.T. Monday). (In New York the Chase National Bank said the silver "had been returned to various Abghnai banks, Chinese and foreign," but declined to discuss further details.)

BY ANDRUE BERDING Washington, Oct. 24. (AP)—Some officials here express the belief that Japan's intention toward China may be summed up in the old Roman slogan of "divide and rule."

They think Japan will set up a puppet government at Canton which she occupied on Friday. She will then have three puppet governments in China—the so-called provisional government at Peking for north China, the "reformed" government at Nanking for central China, and the Canton government for south China.

Japan's program, it is thought here, is to make them separate governments and keep them apart, thus blocking the movement toward Chinese unity. Experts believe one of the causes of the present Sino-Japanese war was Japan's desire to stop the unification of China. She considered a united China a danger to her.

Officials consider the Japanese occupation of Hankow only a matter of a short time. Japan, they believe, will go a short distance farther and then consolidate her lines.

From then on, they think, Japan will let the Chinese decide whether there is to be further fighting. Japan will rest at that point and seek to draw the profits from her undertakings.

She will sternly wipe out any opposition by Chinese behind her lines. She will send out fast expeditions whenever necessary to cope with guerrilla fighters.

Officials think it extremely unlikely that Japan will relinquish China. They cite Manchukuo as an indication of what Japan has in mind for the portion of China she has taken over. It is predicted that she will maintain an army of about 1,000,000 men in the country for a long time.

FRED WHITEMORE DIES

Tawas City, Mich., Oct. 24. (AP)—Fred S. Whitmore, 77, first white child born in Tawas City, is dead at his home here. He was the grandson of Gideon O. Whitmore, founder of Tawas City.

The name "Australia" was first applied to a group of South Sea islands.

KruGon's Efficacy Was Soon Proven

Now Enjoys Best Health In Years; Eats What She Wants, Sour Stomach, Bloating Ended; Praises KruGon

"Before I began KruGon I was in a miserable condition," said Mrs. Harry Clanton, 313 Romig St., Lafayette, Indiana. "My left shoulder, neck and side was badly affected with such sharp, stabbing pains. When those attacks would come on me I would suffer unmercifully for three or four weeks and my face and neck would swell badly. Then too, the excess poison over my system soon disordered my stomach and it seemed I could not eat anything without severe suffering from sour stomach, bloating and distress after meals. But in spite of the failure of other medicines all of this was soon conquered once I gave KruGon the opportunity of helping me.

"It is almost unbelievable—but true—that I have not had a single touch of those awful pains since I began with KruGon," continued Mrs. Clanton. "I can now go as I please, do the things I want and suffer no ill effects. The awful pains have been driven entirely from my system, stomach is again regulated, eat and enjoy the foods I want, without distress afterwards, sleep good and really feel fine. No one need hesitate in trying KruGon—its merit is outstanding."

KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ludington St., this city.

DRUNKEN DRIVER PLEADS GUILTY

Several Accidents Are Reported to Police Over Week-End

Melvin Harwood, 408 South Tenth street, pleaded guilty in justice court yesterday to a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicants. He was given the alternative of paying a fine of $50 and costs or of spending 30 days in the county jail. His driver's license was automatically revoked.

Harwood was arrested by city police following an accident at the corner of Eighth and Ludington streets.

Stanley Janrock of Schaffer pleaded guilty in justice court to a charge of hit and run driving and was ordered to pay a fine of $5 and court costs. He admitted hitting a parked automobile owned by Clarence Wright of Wells.

Several minor accidents were

Welcome, Potato Growers

ESCANABA today extends a greeting to the potato growers of the upper peninsula, as they assemble here for the annual Upper Peninsula Potato Show.

More Light

WHILE citizens of Escanaba are enjoying the benefits of improved streets, improved and extended sewerage and water service and many general advantages that accrue from efficient city management, serious thought might well be given by city authorities, to moving the street lighting system in residence districts of the city.

Pick Your Figures

IMPARTIAL observers can draw their own mathematical conclusions as to the result of Michigan's gubernatorial election on Nov. 8. Two years ago, with the coat-tail advantage of President Roosevelt, Gov. Frank Murphy defeated former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald by about 39,000 votes, in round numbers. In that election Gov. Murphy carried Wayne county by 119,000 votes, which gave him his victory in the state.

Driving Reveals Manners

WHAT makes the ordinary, gentle person become a rip-roaring, selfish bully behind the wheel of a car? was a question put at the National Safety Council's recent congress. It is not clear that anything does. The man who becomes an out-and-out heel is probably one at heart, and ready to show it whenever the opportunity is provided.

Driving does not make manners, but it reveals them. It seems to us to be the true index of character, as accurate in appraising its other sides as in bringing out the bully in man. Take a common Sunday highway type, the slow cruiser along the main artery—not the one with an ancient jalopy incapable of speed, but the comfortable, middle-aged chump with a good machine. In the many narrows between here and Chicago, his presence ahead is signified by a procession of fuming travelers to the rear. The key to his character seems to be a grim righteousness, a conviction that 22 miles an hour is the maximum safe rate on the road, and that he may be one against the world and still be right.

Public Enemy Turns Useful

SCIENCE does a lot of wonderful things. Most are vigorously applauded but many minor achievements go unnoticed. From California comes news of a discovery that commands attention because it has taken a long-time enemy and made a useful citizen of him in an extremely short time.

No Blue Fire Wagons

THE average motorist, who is usually catching it in the neck from one kind of authority or another has won a notable victory in Berkeley, Calif. As a gesture to the University of California the city dads permitted painting the fire engines blue and gold instead of the traditional red.

CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS (Ironwood Globe)

Opening of the annual membership campaign of the Ironwood Association of Commerce and the taking of preliminary steps for the formation of a Junior Chamber of Commerce here serve to focus attention on the value of such civic organizations to a community.

Ironwood has had its Association of Commerce for many years; it is made up of business and professional men and others who are interested in making Ironwood a better city. The proposed Junior Chamber of Commerce is intended for the younger men of the city, to give them their own vehicle for working for civic betterment.

Hurley has its Chamber of Commerce, which is becoming increasingly active, Bessemer business and professional men have their Lions club and Wakefield residents have their Rotary club. These latter two are not strictly "commercial" groups, but they are service organizations dedicated to serve the community interest.

WHOSE OYSTERS? (Minneapolis Journal)

After nearly three hundred years, Delaware and New Jersey are quarreling over their boundary. If the Colonies had not formed "a more perfect union," these two states might be mobilizing today to decide the dispute by force of arms. As it is, there will be a peaceful solution by way of the supreme court.

The disputed area is no mountainous Sudeten land—it is all under water. It has no inhabitants, but the waters cover valuable oyster beds. Their revenues are coveted by both the states.

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

London—The grave illness of the redoubtable Kemal Ataturk has cast a shadow over preparations for the greatest celebration in the history of Turkey—the observance, on October 29, of the fiftieth birthday anniversary of the Turkish republic.

For the celebration has been planned as a gigantic tribute to Ataturk who, as President, had restored a nation once known as "the Sick Man of Europe" to enviable political and economic health.

In the old pre-World War days the Turkish empire, under the Sultans, was a ramshackle affair with some territory in Europe, the Asiatic Anatolian plain whence the Turks originated, Mesopotamia, Palestine, Syria and, nominally, most of Arabia. The empire always seemed on the point of falling to pieces or being torn to pieces by the big European powers.

The world war ended all that. Mesopotamia, now Iraq, was at first mandated to England and so was Palestine. Syria was mandated to France. Arabia fell under the rule of the warlike Ibn Saud. Asia Minor was invaded by the Greeks.

Then it was that Kemal Ataturk took charge, beat the Greeks back to the sea and began the reconstruction of his truncated country. In Europe he held on to the territory with the big cities of Istanbul and Adrianople. But he devoted his main efforts to the Anatolian plateau. He moved the capital from Istanbul to Ankara. In fifteen years he wrought miracles, Ankara has been changed from a sleepy, dirty, ancient Turkish town of 20,000 to a modernized capital of 140,000. A new Turkish army, splendidly trained and well-armed, has reached a figure of 200,000 regular troops.

Kemal has done wonders making Turkey self-supporting. Thousands of miles of railways have been built with Turkish money. New industries have sprung up, supported by Turkish private capital and state subsidies, thus preventing foreign powers from getting mortgages on the Turkish state. Furthermore, for the past ten years Turkey has balanced her budget!

Kemal not only abolished the Sultanate and set up a republic, but he separated the state from the Moslem faith. Religious schools were abolished. Religious laws sanctioning polygamy were abolished. The wearing of the fez and turban was forbidden. The Turkish women have been completely emancipated, having equal voting and civil rights with the men. Not only have schools and colleges been increased, but knowledge has been brought to the populace by 209 "Peoples Houses" where there are given lectures, theatrical performances, concerts and sporting events and where there is access to libraries. The Arabic script has been abolished and the ordinary western alphabet and method of writing and printing has been introduced.

Some of the greatest triumphs of the new Turkey have been in the diplomatic field. In 1922 it entered the League of Nations. In 1930 Kemal forgot the ancient wars between Turks and Greeks and signed a treaty of friendship and arbitration. In 1933 this was turned into a virtual treaty of alliance. In February, 1934, this was enlarged by the Balkan pact, having for its object Balkan peace and maintenance of Balkan independence. It was signed by Greece, Turkey, Rumania and Yugoslavia. Later Turkey signed an Asiatic pact of similar purport with Iraq, Iran and Afghanistan.

But the biggest diplomatic victory came with the Montreux conference. The convention of Lausanne in 1923 provided that the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles, with contiguous areas of the European and Asiatic mainland, should be demilitarized and internationalized. In the present perilous state of the world, this was a menace to Turkish neutrality. Turkey, therefore, instead of abrogating the treaty provisions as Hitler did about the demilitarized Rhineland, asked the powers to agree to let Turkey once more rearm and garrison the straits. This finally was peaceably agreed to and there were also drastic limitations on the number of foreign warships non-Black Sea powers are allowed to send through the Straits.

The Nazi Germans have made a play for Turkish friendship, but the British beat them to it by agreeing to a loan of $50,000,000. The new Turkey has proved a power whose friendship the largest nations are seeking.

James II when he was Duke of York. It is undisputed that Charles II granted New Jersey to his brother, giving him the Atlantic shore line from "Manhasset Island" to the "River of Dela Ware."

The strength of that, Delaware claims that the New Jersey title ends at the shore line of Delaware Bay. James, it seems, leased the grant to a couple of friends for "tenne shillings." But New Jersey now claims that James returned his patent to the king, and a hand writing expert is coming over from England to swear to James' signature to this alleged renunciation of the grant.

All this seems pretty technical and altogether too pantywaist for modern days when boundaries are fixed by ultimatums. At least can't we have an oyster picnic? As prospective platter adornments, the bivalves ought to have as much right to self-determination as the Czechs.

Two boys on the coast have built an up-to-date boat powered by a washing-machine motor. No more tubs for them.

Hall to the drive-in movie! It finally affords a safe occasion to sit behind a wheel and not think.

Q. Please give some information about a breed of dogs known as Welsh Corgi. H. F. G.

A. The Book of Dogs says: This Welsh breed is not very well known in the United States, but was recognized by the American Kennel Club in 1934. Corgis are the super-intelligent little shepherd dogs of Wales, where they are used to herd sheep, ponies, and even pigs. They are ideal watchdogs and pals. It has been said that they look like a fox, move like a Collie, and behave in the home like a human being. There are two varieties of Corgis, Cardigan Corgis have long bushy tails carried like those of foxes. They are about 12 inches high, weigh about 15 to 25 pounds, and may be in any color except white. The preferred colors are red, brindle, black-and-tan, black-and-white, and blue merle, with white markings. Pembroke Corgis are slightly smaller, may be any color except white, and have stub or docked tails.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—A major tragedy, it seems to us, is the case of Elise Winston. Elise is so pretty that she was chosen "Miss New York" in a state-wide contest prior to the recent Atlantic City beauty pageant. That she narrowly missed being Miss America was due only to the faulty vision of the judges, her friends maintain.

Anyway, you'd think that Miss New York would have no trouble wedging a way into a career in any of the lavish girl shows that are on view here. But two impresarios rejected her because she is two inches shorter than a show girl's standard height! And so the runner-up in the national beauty pageant now ekes out a precarious income as a hostess in a Broadway ballroom.

Ten Cents a Dance is the theme song, Maestro!

Cradle Song of Jazz

In a reminiscent mood the other night at the Waldorf, George Olsen pointed out to a few of us that jazz music is 20 years old in New York City. And Olsen was around when it happened.

The debut of jazz, he says, took place at Reisenweber's in 1918 with the Original Dixieland Band. According to Olsen, the new tempos completely baffled those present. No one ventured to dance and after a while, with the floor fully vacant for half an hour, every one fidgeted uneasily and called for their checks.

Finally a musician named Eddie Edwards laid down his trombone and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, this is jazz music. You're really supposed to dance to it."

The rest is history.

New 19th Hole

If a pugilist can be a restaurateur and a debutante an entertainer and a tennis champ a playboy, why can't an eminent golfer become the Caruso of the night clubs? That's what Tommy Goodwin, a fiend of an opponent on the fairways, asked himself, and he got an answer in the affirmative. He now is a singer with the band at La Conga, a popular Cuban oasis.

Strictly speaking, the handsome Tommy (he looks like Errol Flynn) was cajoled into this. All he wanted to do was sing for his own amusement and joy. But a smart little promoter was present and argued logically that it wouldn't hurt to get paid for singing publicly.

Tommy's father, by the way, is the well-known "Cap'n" Goodwin who operates the little sight-seeing boat that sails around the island of Manhattan. Runs it for a hobby, not a profession.

Irony

The most foreign sign in town, it seems to us, is that displayed before the Czech consulate in Manhattan.

"O M E T O B E A U T I F U L C E C H O S L O V A K I A," it beckons tourists, "TO CELEBRATE 20TH YEAR OF INDEPENDENCE."

As a matter of fact I am no more radical than a jack rabbit. —Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas.

There wasn't much we could do but wrestle with it. —Dave Hissong, airplane pilot who landed a flaming airplane and 11 passengers safely.

The average movie star is bogged down by glamor, self-indulgence—and a large dose of sugar-coated selfishness. —Merle Oberon, actress.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—When that shaggy-maned bull-wether of the Senate, William Edgar Borah, comes out for revision of the Neutrality Act, you can get a pretty good idea what Congress will do about it next session. Here is Borah's very positive comment:

"In the present state of the world, the cash and carry provisions, if continued, mean that Great Britain, Japan and Germany would be the chief beneficiaries of our Neutrality Act. I am emphatically opposed to that.

"If the policy of surrender established by Great Britain at Munich continues, the cash and carry provisions would favor no one but the militarist states."

Administration strategists are working on plans for neutrality revision, would like either to junk the entire act or else give the executive more discretion. Probably it will be the former.

—BRUCE BARTON— According to Royce Powell: "Bruce Barton may not be presidential timber, but he's certainly a splinter in the side of the Democrats."

—WAR TRAINING— It is not supposed to be known yet, but as a further answer to Hitler's armament, Harry Hopkins' WPA is about to tackle one of the most serious weaknesses of the national defense—lack of trained technicians and mechanics.

The plan results from a confidential report to the President by Assistant War Secretary Louis Johnson that the Army was short 20,000 mechanics, and needed a system of training technicians annually as reserves.

He pointed out that "squads right" and "shoulder arms" was not as important to the modern soldier as being able to repair a truck and unjam a machine gun.

As a result, WPA's National Youth Administration soon will begin the training of mechanics as Army reserves. The NYA already conducts mechanical schools for unemployed youths, and these will be expanded and developed.

Graduates of these schools will have the chance of enlisting in the Army as non-commissioned officers, or of entering private industry as Army reserve mechanics.

—GOPPOOR— GOPers are not saying anything about it publicly, but under the solace of a highball they will tell you that they are puzzled and disheartened at the difficulty of raising money for the national Republican war chest.

Lots of money is rolling into state and county campaigns, but getting the dough to meet the payroll at Republican National headquarters in Washington is like passing the hat among apple salesmen. GOP strategists give three reasons for this lack of lucre:

1. The money donors are not sold on Chairman John Hamilton, and a little dubious about the ideas of Brain Trust chief Glenn Frank.

2. They complain that "the National Committee has no other policy other than 'We are against Roosevelt.'" They want some new policies as well as new leadership.

3. They would rather place their money in key States where they are sure it will do some good, rather than have it eaten up by the lush salaries of Chairman Hamilton and publicity director Franklyn Whitman.

The last probably is the most important reason of all. Plenty of Republican money is evident in state fights. And many a wealthy Republican leader admits quite frankly that he is out to back Taft in Ohio, or Tolley in New Hampshire. In fact, some of them will even disclose how they dipped generously into their jeans to help Tydings in Maryland and George in Georgia.

In other words, if they see a chance of taking a good sock at the New Deal in a state campaign, the GOP moneyed boys will contribute and contribute heavily.

The excuses they give to avoid contributing to the National Committee are amusing, if not ingenious. One big Eastern industrialist, declining an invitation to give an little as $1,000, wrote:

"As you know, my daughter is a debutante and is coming out this month. Because of such large expenses, I must decline."

Some of the inner council strategists are urging the President to fire a blast at racial and religious intolerance in his November 4 campaign speech.

They are telling him that covert Republican attacks on Catholics, Jews and Negroes are being used to arouse opposition against New Deal candidates in a number of States, and that he could do much to scotch these vicious tactics by a redhot denunciation.

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

RICH OR POOR

Who's rich or poor? Well, I ain't sure What man's exactly which. The rich we see the poor may be. The poor may be the rich. We say he's got we don't know what. So rich we couldn't guess. But longin' for ten thousand more He's worth ten thousand less.

It ain't alone no wealth you own That makes you what you are. Just tramping! It more fun some git Than some who drive a car. I've studied them, and now and then I've even heard complaint, And some were sad, who some'n' had For somethin' that they ain't.

It isn't what a fellow's got That riches I would call. Or, turn about, what he's without That makes him poor at all. If what you strike is what you like, If what you got will do, You're richer than some richer man, Who's poorer than than you.

Iron Mountain Girl Bride Of Raymond Taylor

At a ceremony which took place Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Patrick's church, Miss Alice Hooper of Iron Mountain became the bride of Raymond Taylor of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Taylor, of 1712 Second avenue north.

The marriage service was read by Rev. Fr. Nolan McKeivitt. The young people's attendants were Miss Genevieve Hooper of Iron Mountain, sister of the bride, and Marvyl Trudell, of Florence, Wis.

The bride wore a fall dress of hunters' green with brown accessories, and her bridesmaid wore a frock of the same shade, with brown. Both had corsages of Tallman roses and pompons.

A wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony at the Taylor home. Autumn flowers and a large wedding cake formed the table centerpiece.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor left later on a honeymoon trip to Green Bay, St. Nazians, Racine and Milwaukee. They will make their home in Escanaba.

The bride is a graduate of Iron Mountain high school and Mr. Taylor, a graduate of Escanaba high school, class of 1933, is with the Bristol Insurance company here.

Beatrice Park, Charles Forst Are Wed In Green Bay

Interesting to many residents of Escanaba, the former home of the bride, is the following announcement from the Green Bay Press-Gazette, of the wedding of Miss Beatrice Park and Charles Forst: "St. Francis Xavier Cathedral was the scene of a wedding at 8 o'clock this morning when Miss Beatrice Park of Escanaba, Mich., daughter of Raymond Park, Levering, Mich., and Charles Forst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Forst, route 6, pronounced their marriage vows before the Rev. George Schemper.

The gown worn by the bride was of white lace fashioned with a train and veil. She carried a shower bouquet of roses, pompons and lilies. Miss Martha Forst and Mrs. Harold Huempfer, sisters of the bridegroom, were the bride's attendants and wore wine chiffon velvet dresses and roses in their hair and carried bouquets of dahlias, roses and ferns.

Joseph Allen and Harold Huempfer, nephew and brother-in-law of the bridegroom, attended Mr. Forst.

Among those present at the reception at the Forst home following the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Dufresne and family of Escanaba.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT

Feminine finance is highly important, when you remember that 80 per cent of the nation's wealth is in the hands of women. And that spending, like bringing up children, still falls to the woman—whether she is a stay-at-home or a down-town worker.

Advice writers aren't overlooking either of those things. In fact there is a trend now to tell women, who have heretofore been told only how to be beautiful, how to get a man and hold him, and how to bring up their children, just how they can make their dollars do double duty.

Two recent books, "Money Without Men", and "What Do You Want for $1.98?" are devoted entirely to feminine finance. And in almost every general woman's book published in the last few months there is a chapter on wise spending. There is a sensible one in "Your Life as a Woman and How to Make the Most of It".

All this looks like a good thing for women—and indirectly for men. For the elasticity of almost every man's pay check depends on how much some woman knows, or doesn't know, about money.

And it is surprising how little the average girl understands about money and buying and relative value. All too often the girl who marries a poor young man doesn't know what are necessities, and what are luxuries. She has no idea what to look for and what to look out for in buying merchandise. So she becomes, in all likelihood, the kind of shopper who walks into a store and walks out with something she can't afford, doesn't need, and in no time at all wishes she had never seen.

Books, of course, can't teach her all there is to know about stretching dollars. But they can wake her up to the fact that when two live almost as cheaply as one, the miracle is one of high feminine finance. Love hasn't anything to do with it.

Club Fine Arts Group Meetings Open This Week

The schedule of meetings of the Fine Arts department of the Escanaba Women's club, which are opening this week, was announced yesterday by Mrs. William J. Clark, who is chairman of the department. The Needle Guild will meet on Thursday afternoon, October 27, at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Coleman Nee, 428 Lake Shore Drive. Members interested in joining this group are asked to call Mrs. Nee, 165-J, or Mrs. C. W. Malloch, 946.

The Study section group will meet in the Carnegie library lecture room, Friday afternoon, October 28, at three o'clock. Mrs. Luther Krantz, 2037, is chairman.

The Advanced French group meets Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at the library hall, with Mrs. E. J. MacMartin, 237, in charge.

Announcement of the music group meetings, both voice and music appreciation, the first of which will be held about the middle of November, will be made later. Mrs. John Bartel, 1428, is chairman. Announcement concerning the Art section meetings, of which Mrs. Victor Powers is chairman, also will be made later.

All club members interested in any of the Fine Arts groups are urged to join the classes and a special invitation is extended to new members of the club.

STORM DAMAGES LIGHT ON SHOAL

Saturday's Gale Causes $1,000 Loss on Crib at Minneapolis

Word was received here yesterday from Minneapolis shoal light station, about 12 miles southeast of Escanaba in Green Bay, describing $1,000 damage done to the structure by the 40-mile gale of last Saturday afternoon.

Steel doors at the base of the light were broken by the force of the waves as they dashed against the lighthouse, and windows were broken in the engine room. Supplies were lost as the light was flooded.

The spray was flung high over the top of the tower, which stands 85 feet above the water level. Men on the light, who clung to the structure throughout the storm, are William Ohearn, first assistant keeper, and Ben Aldridge, second assistant keeper.

POTATO BLIGHT IS DISCOVERED

Inspector Finds Tubers Infected With Fungus Growth in County

Potato blight has been found among the Delta county crop, Orville Nelson, federal state potato inspector, stated yesterday. He urged farmers having potatoes in storage to go through them, weeding out any that may be infected, to prevent the spread of rot through the entire stock.

"It is only during the last three or four days that the blight has been noticed," Nelson said, "but it seems to be prevalent among the potatoes from many different parts of the county."

"Ninety per cent of the potatoes inspected today were infected to some degree, with all the way from 5 per cent to 40 per cent of the crop showing signs of the growth," he said yesterday.

Is Not 'Blackleg'

"The disease is not that which is commonly known as 'blackleg,'" he said. It is characterized by small, depressed areas which appear on the surface of the potato. They are not easily noticed at first, but when a thin peeling is taken from the potato a discoloration within will be revealed.

Below the sunken spots the potato is discolored, and may vary from a brownish color to red. A very thin peeling must be taken to catch the disease at the outset, as it eats into the potato slowly at first.

The ultimate result of the blight, if diseased potatoes are not weeded out, is the loss of the whole stock.

"The blight softens the potato so that fungus growth and rot can start," Nelson explained, "and they may spread throughout the whole bin of potatoes if the diseased ones are not weeded out early."

Nelson, who is federal-state potato inspector for the Upper Peninsula, may be reached for advice on identifying blighted potatoes or on their care at the Sherman hotel, by phone or letter.

Samples Displayed

Samples of potatoes from Delta county farms which have been damaged by the blight will be on display at the Upper Peninsula Potato Growers association show which opens today at the Coliseum. E. A. Wenner, Delta county agricultural agent, will be at the show to give advice on the handling of the blight problem to county farmers.

Piles of tubers in the field should not be covered with diseased vines, as the disease may thus be carried from the vines to the potatoes. If they are in transit or in storage, they should be kept dry and at temperatures between 35 degrees and 40 degrees, Fahrenheit, where the disease will develop very little.

Golden Jubilee Is Celebrated By St. Anne's Catholic Church of Escanaba

A PONTIFICAL HIGH MASS at 10:30 o'clock Sunday morning opened the golden jubilee observance. The mass was offered by His Excellency the Most Rev. Joseph Casimir Plagens, bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Marquette and Sault Ste. Marie. Officers of the mass, shown above at the altar during the service, were Rev. Fr. Joseph E. Guertin, assistant priest; Rev. Frs. George Laforest and Joseph Dufort, honorary deacons; Rev. Fr. Matthias Laviolette, deacon; Rev. Fr. Paul Savagau, O. Praem., sub-deacon; Rev. Frs. Joseph Zryd and Lester C. Bourgeois, masters of ceremonies. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Fr. Ovid LaMothe of Munising, and priests of the deanery, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Raymond G. Jacques of Sault Ste. Marie and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Henry Buchholz, vicar general of the diocese, were present.

Bishop Scores 'Isms' In Anniversary Talk At St. Anne's Church

A stirring plea for a united defense of all believers against the "isms" and dictatorships of Godlessness was delivered by His Excellency the Most Rev. Joseph C. Plagens, bishop of the Catholic diocese of Marquette and Sault Ste. Marie, at a banquet Sunday afternoon in celebration of the golden jubilee of St. Anne's Catholic church of Escanaba. Deeply impressive in its dignity and beauty was the anniversary program, which began with a Pontifical high mass Sunday morning.

"My friends," the bishop asked as he addressed the banquet crowd of over 200 persons, "If God is not with us, where are we headed?"

He took the people of America to task for their lethargy in the face of the menaces of Communism, Fascism and Godlessness, which he charged are not limited to foreign lands, but are eating away at the bulwarks of our own nation.

"America must wake up," he charged. "A Christian and God-loving people must wake into action or the enemies, the proponents of Godlessness, will conquer."

The observance was attended by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Henry A. Buchholz, vicar general of the diocese, the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Raymond G. Jacques, of Sault Ste. Marie, who was pastor of St. Anne's for nineteen years, the Very Rev. Fr. Thomas A. Kennedy, and a large number of members of the Catholic clergy including Rev. Fr. Paul Savagau, O. Praem., and Rev. Fr. Matthias Laviolette, former parishioners, as well as representatives of the various civic, governmental and fraternal organizations of the community, and members of the congregation of the church.

The jubilee events opened, following a procession from the rectory to the church in which Bishop Plagens, escorted by two little pages, Jerome Besson and Charles Lancoeur, dressed in white satin costumes, members of the clergy, acolytes, and Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus took part, with a Pontifical high mass at 10:30 o'clock. Bishop Plagens was celebrant, with the officers of the mass: Rev. Fr. Joseph E. Guertin, assistant priest; Rev. Frs. George Laforest and Joseph Dufort, honorary deacons; Rev. Fr. Matthias Laviolette, deacon; Rev. Fr. Paul Savagau, O. Praem., sub-deacon; and Rev. Frs. Joseph Zryd and Lester C. Bourgeois, masters of ceremony. Present also were Rt. Rev. Msgr. Buchholz and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Jacques, and the priests of the deanery.

Rev. Fr. Ovid LaMothe, of Munising, in an inspiring sermon, spoke of the sacrifices of the early parishioners, which made the church possible, described its solemn dedication fifty years ago, and stressed the beauty of faith and spirit in which it is enshrined, as far transcending the material beauty of the temple of Jerusalem.

Bishop Plagens, in his address at the mass, declared the general forgetfulness of youth as to the sacrifices made by their parents and grandparents, and stressed the need of faith and charity within the community during the trying days of the present time when the future is so uncertain.

Jubilee Decorations

Solemn benediction followed the jubilee mass. The decorative theme of the church in keeping with the observance, with golden and white flowers arranged with the gleaming altar candles, enhanced the beauty of the ceremonies, as did the special program of music sung by the choir under the direction of Miss Lucille DeGrand, with Robert Moreau carrying the parts in the plain chant of the mass.

The banquet was served at one o'clock to two hundred guests, was in itself, a scene of beauty. Gold and white bunting with gold motifs draped the hall, and a large bell of white decorated in gold hung from the center ceiling. Baskets of golden chrysanthemums were at either end of the hall, and the attractive table appointments were in the same theme. Ivory bowls and vases contained gold and white baby mums, and at each place were lacy corsages of the baby mums, gold covered program booklets and place-cards, lettered in gold.

Costumes of 1888

The outstanding note in the jubilee theme was presented by the attractive costumed women of the parish who served the banquet. All wore golden yellow dresses of the fashion of 1888, styled with fitted bodices, and bustle-skirts, ruffe hemmed, and dainty white frills at the neckline, completing the costume.

The Very Rev. Fr. Thomas A. Kennedy presided at the banquet program, which opened with a welcome by the present pastor, Rev. Fr. Joseph E. Guertin, who introduced the visiting church dignitaries, the honor guests, men and women who have been members of the congregation since its organization; the two young priests of the parish, Father Laviolette who was presented with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Laviolette, and Father Savagau, who was presented with his mother, Mrs. David Savagau; Rev. Fr. Dufort, who is the only priest whose ordination took place in St. Anne's church; Mrs. John W. Broderick, of Oshkosh, whose marriage was the first performed in the church, and in turn, representatives of the various organizations of the community.

Happy Memories
"I can still call you my dear people," Msgr. Jacques said in opening his brief talk on "Memories," "because you are still very dear to my heart. The memories I have of St. Anne's, nineteen years of them, are nothing but pleasant."

Msgr. Jacques spoke of his pleasure in being present for the golden jubilee celebration, describing his years at St. Anne's church, as the happiest of his life. He touched on the lack of appreciation of the younger generation of the sentiment connected with a national parish and urged whole-hearted support of the young people, and in closing paid tribute to the faithful parishioners and to the deep affection and loyalty they have at all times given their pastor.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Buchholz spoke of his boyhood years in Escanaba and his association with St. Anne's church, of the splendid ability and zeal of Rt. Rev. Msgr. Jacques, and Father Guertin, his successor, and expressed admiration of the spirit of sacrifice manifested by the people of the congregation, particularly in the early years, in building a temple of worship for themselves and their children.

Rev. Fr. Laviolette, in a brief talk expressed his heritage of the priesthood as the gift of the people of the parish, Rev. Fr. Savagau spoke of the happiness of the jubilee observance and Med Beaudin, representing the laymen, spoke of the harmony and cooperation between parishioners and pastors and pledged continuance of it.

Appropriate and excellently presented musical numbers were an enjoyable part of the banquet program. A quartet of Leonard Moreau, Hal Smith, Tom Touisant and Robert Moreau, with Miss DeGrand accompanist, sang "Love's Old Sweet Song," and "Tom, the Piper's Son," and a delightful song and pantomime sketch, presenting "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," and "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Assembly Singing
The program closed with the assembly singing of "Holy God We Praise Thy Name," led by Mrs. Thomas Touisant.

Mrs. William Richer was general chairman of the afternoon event and the chairmen, who were assisted by large committees of men and women of the parish were: Mrs. John Peltier, dinner; Mrs. Arthur Barron, dining room; Miss Lillian Grenier, tickets; Med Beaudin and Clarence Moreau, hall decorations; Miss Beatrice Perron, table decorations, and Mrs. Thomas Touisant, music.

BANQUET SPEAKERS included (left to right) the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Henry A. Buchholz, vicar general of the diocese, His Excellency the Most Rev. Joseph C. Plagens, bishop of the diocese, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. R. G. Jacques, who served as pastor of St. Anne's from 1916 to 1935.

ORIGINAL MEMBERS of St. Anne's church, who were parishioners at the time it was started, were present at the jubilee banquet. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Grenier, shown above as they were served by Mrs. June Bergeron who was one of the staff of waitresses dressed in gold dresses of the style of 1888, the year the parish was formed.

BRADLEY WILL CLIMAX DRIVE

Candidate Preparing to Close Strenuous Campaign

With organization details completed in all sixteen counties, Fred Bradley, of Rogers City, turned to the more populous areas of the Eleventh Congressional District this week to wind up his campaign for election to Congress on the Republican ticket.

A speech-making trip which will continue right up to election day has been mapped by Bradley, who has conducted one of the most intensive campaigns ever witnessed in this District.

"I have been in every city and village in this District at least once in the last eight months," Bradley said in commenting on his campaign. "I do not enjoy the privilege of sending a postage-free piece of campaign literature to every home in the District at Government expense, so I must get around personally."

"However, I have been able to talk with thousands of voters in this way, and, have been able to get from them, first-hand, a true picture of deplorable conditions which exist under the New Deal. Mounting relief rolls, farmers forced to compete with foreign products which are allowed to be dumped in here and destroy home markets, and the pressure being brought to bear on relief clients and old age pensioners, in the frantic attempts by New Deal candidates to snare votes, are just a few of the things I have found about which honest American citizens are rightfully incensed.

Surplus Hay Crop

"Why, in Chippewa county last week, I found that farmers are being promised Federal loans to buy more cattle as an outlet for their surplus hay crop."

"At the same time, Department of Agriculture reports show that in 1933 our imports of hay from foreign countries amounted to only $53,000. Last year hay imports were valued at $1,009,123. "Our total imports of farm products in 1933 were valued at $20,843,000. Last year we imported farm products valued at $136,939,180."

"There's a story for farmers to think about when they wonder about the low prices for their products. They should also find out why relief agencies in some sections of the lower peninsula have been distributing eggs from Holland, butter from Argentina, and canned beef from South America, so-called surplus commodities purchased with taxpayers' money in direct competition with American farmers."

Bradley will wind up his campaign in the lower peninsula counties of the District after completing a swing around the upper peninsula next week.

Bradley will speak in St. Ignace on Tuesday, Nov. 1; Sault Ste. Marie on Wednesday, Nov. 2; Thursday, Nov. 3, he will be in Alpena; Friday, Nov. 4 in Cheboygan and Saturday, Nov. 5, he will speak in Charlevoix.

The night before election, Bradley will spend with fellow sportsmen in his home city at a non-political meeting in Rogers City.

OBITUARY

DR. L. P. TREIBER
The body of Dr. L. P. Treiber, local physician who passed away Saturday afternoon, was returned to the family home at 304 South Seventh Street yesterday. Funeral services will be held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph church, Rev. Fr. Edward Leary officiating, with burial in St. Joseph cemetery.

Funeral services will be held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph church, Rev. Fr. Edward Leary officiating, with burial in St. Joseph cemetery.

Members of the Delta county Medical Association will meet at the family home this morning at 8:30 o'clock to form an honorary escort.

FRANK H. ATKINS
The impressive funeral rites of the Masonic Order were conducted Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the chapel of the Alto funeral home, for Frank H. Atkins, of Pasadena, Calif., former resident of Escanaba, and a prominent figure in the Masonic organization throughout his life.

The services, conducted by A. J. Young, Past Master of Masons in Michigan, and a life-long friend of Mr. Atkins, followed a prayer and scripture reading by Rev. James G. Ward of St. Stephen's Episcopal church.

The Masonic commitment service also was conducted at the grave in Lakeview cemetery where burial was made.

Members of Delta Lodge, Number 195, F. & A. M., and members of R. C. Hathaway Chapter, Number 49, Order of the Eastern Star, attended the services in a body.

Palbearers, old friends of the family, were Harry Work, Carl Lambert, Andrew Bredahl, Norman Stephenson, Charles N. Wood and Louis Larsen.

Members of the family here for the services included Mrs. Atkins, who accompanied the body from Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Atkins, Mr. Atkins a son, of Duluth; Horace Atkins of New York City, a son; and Miss Mary Atkins and Ellsworth Atkins, of Oconto, Wis., sister and brother of Mr. Atkins.

MRS. PAMELA R. SAYEN
Impressive services, largely attended, were held for Mrs. Pamela R. Sayen, esteemed Bark River resident, at 9 o'clock Monday morning at Sacred Heart church, Schafter, Rev. Fr. William Remillard officiating at the requiem high mass.

The music of the requiem was sung by the senior choir. A duet, "Dies Irae," was sung at the offertory by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beaudry, and as the body was being removed from the church, Mrs. Beaudry sang "Face to Face." Miss Jeanette Moreau was organist-director.

Burial was in Schaffer cemetery. Honorary pallbearers, members of St. Anne's Society of which Mrs. Sayen was a charter member, were Mesdames Arthur Potvin, D. Lavigne, E. Cousineau, Amedee Touisant, Armond Gingrass and Hermine Mayrend. Active pallbearers were Noel Brier, Joseph Pilon, Regis LaFleur, Steve Martin, Edward Pilon and Peter Martin.

Out-of-town relatives and friends at the services were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ripelle and Howard, of Pekin, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. William Allard, Gwinn; Mrs. Mary Doutré and son, Bertram, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bruce, son, Francis, and daughter, Theresa Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Henry DeMars, Mr. and Mrs. Ell Sayen and daughter, Nona, Mrs. Henry Beaumier, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Delaire, Mrs. Leonard Bryson, Mrs. Roy Bryson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward DeMars, Albert DeMars and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beaudry, Escanaba.

$15,000 DAMAGE AT MENOMINEE

City Crews Begin Task of Cleaning After Windstorm

Menominee, Oct. 24.—Repair work on Menominee beach, lashed Saturday by a storm that caused damage estimated at $15,000 in the city, was started today by city street department crews. City Engineer Thomas R. Hasley estimated repair work at the beach would cost $3,000.

In addition to the $3,000 Menominee beach park damage was damage to docks along the waterfront, commercial fishing equipment along the bay shore, and advertising signs.

Greatest loss to commercial fishermen was the nets that had been set in shoal water (25 to 30 feet). The waves tore the nets and tangled them with drift. Some of the nets were lost altogether. Loss in nets alone by local fishermen is estimated at $5,000.

Salvage Nets
Fishermen were out on the bay today seeking to salvage their nets. A three-day blow in 1929 was the last storm that caused comparable damage, fishermen said.

Waves driven by a 40 mile an hour east wind piled over the Menominee seawall Friday night and Saturday. Several sail and motor boats in the yacht basin pulled their moorings and were driven ashore. Despite the piled-up appearance of the craft, damage was not great. The seawall protected them from excessive pounding. Three sailboats and two cabin cruisers rode out the storm.

Lumps were broken on the breakwater, the waves moved slabs of concrete weighing several tons from the outer end of the small craft pier at Menominee beach, and ate great chunks out of the beach park shoreline.

WOOD SUPPLY NEEDS GUARDING

Bennett Says Selective Logging Is Solution to Problem

Selective logging and a scientific program of reforestation are the two principal methods of saving the fast diminishing supply of wood in the United States, E. G. Bennett, general manager of the Escanaba Paper company, said yesterday in a highly interesting discussion at a meeting of the Kiwanis club.

Conservation of the wood supply is a serious problem at this time, Bennett said, although the local paper mill still is able to get all the wood needed within a radius of 50 or 60 miles. The United States forest service and the Michigan department of conservation are doing a fine job of fire prevention and reforestation and through their efforts and efforts of the timber owners themselves he said it will be possible to keep the timber supply constant. He said at present the local drain on the timber supply is temporarily stopped because of the heavy shipment of pulpwood from Canada but pointed out that in the not too distant future the Canadian government will realize the value of its wood supply and will put on a heavy protective tariff, limiting the exports to the United States.

Tolls of Southern Mills Bennett told of the rise in the number of paper mills in the south of recent years but said that at present at least they do not appear to be causing too much concern among northern mills. The reason, he said, is that the southern mills make a craft paper, a rough grade which is used as wrapping paper rather than newsprint or writing paper such as is manufactured in the local mill. The only danger, he said, from southern mills is that they are underbidding northern mills making craft paper and forcing the latter into white paper manufacture in competition with other northern mills. The heavy increase in demand for craft paper in recent years has been enough to use the heavy supply of southern mills. One factor in favor of southern manufacture of paper, Bennett said, is the speed with which trees grow up. A complete new crop is grown in 10 or 15 years.

After tracing improvements in the manufacture of paper, Bennett told an interesting story about the manufacture of paper at the local mill. He traced the process from the arrival of the eight foot lengths of pulpwood to the finished paper ready for shipment, telling of the barking, beating and dehydrating processes. The local mill uses from 35,000 to 40,000 cords of pulpwood per year, 50,000 tons of coal per year, four million gallons of water per day and 200,000 kilowatt hours of electricity per day. It takes about four carloads of pulpwood to make one carload of finished paper. Bennett, whose talk was very well received, was introduced by program chairman Ed Rudness.

Van Wagoner, Picard To Talk Here Tonight

VAN WAGONER

PICARD

Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, and Frank Picard, chairman of the Michigan unemployment compensation commission, will be principal speakers at another of a series of Democratic rallies here tonight, the meeting being held at the Junior high school auditorium beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

A torch light parade together with attendant aerial bombs will be staged at 8:00 p. m. The parade will be headed by the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corp and all people with cars desiring to take part in the parade are asked to meet at the east-end of Ludington street.

The parade will be under the direction of Sheriff William E. Miron. The candidates for office and speakers will be introduced by assistant prosecuting attorney, Clyde McGonagle. The speakers who will clarify state and national issues will be Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, and Frank Picard, chairman of the Michigan unemployment compensation commission.

Murray D. Van Wagoner is well known to Escanaba audiences having appeared here many times. He has always been known as "The Friend of the Upper Peninsula," having early in his first administration instituted a road and bridge building campaign for the counties north of the Straits. It is his intention, and he has declared publicly that during his present administration US-2 will be completely paved linking the eastern and western ends of the peninsula.

Frank Picard is listed as the main speaker at tonight's meeting. A life-long Democrat, he neither asked for nor sought prominence for himself. He was drafted by Governor Cooch to assume the chairmanship of the Michigan state liquor control commission. Frank Picard, more than any other person, was instrumental in establishing the present system of liquor distribution with all its attendant problems. VIENNA CHOIR BOYS ON TOUR

Group to Sing at Local Series Program on Friday Night

The Vienna Choir Boys, who will be heard at William W. Oliver Memorial auditorium of the junior high school next Friday evening, as the first number on the Escanaba Music Concert Series, have started on their concert tour. The first appearance was at Muskegon, on October 18.

Walter L. Larsen, director of the National Concert League through whom the choir boys have been secured for the local appearance, describes their opening concert as follows in a letter received yesterday by R. P. Bowers of the Escanaba concert committee:

"In all my years of attending and presenting concerts, I personally have never heard anything to equal the performance given by these young boys. Their lovely fresh voices, the beautiful costuming of the one act opera, together with the varied program they present is most inspiring. Perhaps the greatest tribute given them is the fact that these audiences at the close of the program as a body have been reluctant to leave.

"Last night in Milwaukee at the close of the program, not one person moved. They were recalled many times and the audience was not satisfied until after their second encore, Mozart's lovely Slumber Song. I am sure I'm safe in saying that their concert will be the most unique that you will ever present."

Program Described

The program of the choir boys is described as follows in the Muskegon Chronicle: Representing an institution dating to the 15th century, the Vienna Choir boys directed by Victor Gombos, brought to central campus auditorium Tuesday night, an enchanting old world atmosphere and the music-loving people of their home land, as the first number on the 1938-39 program sponsored by the Greater Muskegon forum.

Their amazing mastery of the contrapuntal music of Palestrina, their singing of the romantic roles of a miniature opera, old German madrigals and the folk songs of their native land captivated and held their audience thrilled through the two-hour program, at the sheer beauty of the children's voices.

Outstanding in the first group was the soprano solo "Allelujah," Mozart seemingly as unstudied as a bird song, yet sung with the finished technique of a mature artist. Others in the first group were an "Ave Maria," by Vittoria, a sixteenth century composer; Schubert's setting of the Twenty-third Psalm, showing an almost unearthly quality of voices unachievable by mature voices, and a five-part composition of Palestrina.

Midway on the program, the singers appearing in the costumes of ladies and gentlemen of 200 years ago, presented "Bastien and Bastienne," a one-act opera, composed by the child Mozart at the age of 12, and presented by players probably averaging about the same age. The opera provides solo numbers for three voices, and the young players moved about the stage like animated Dresden figures, to the delight of the audience.

The last group included two numbers by Johannes Brahms, an Old German madrigal of the 16th century, the lively "L'Grometta," Sibella, a 19th century folk song and the Kaiser Waltz, the last two numbers transcribed for the choir by the director.

Probably because of the length of the program and the extreme youth of the performers, only one encore rewarded the insistent applause of the audience. The next number on the Forum program announced for Nov. 9 will be the lecture by Dr. Smith Burnham on "Looking at the World."

The first number promised well for the success of the course, a nearly capacity audience greeting the singers.

WILLETTE HAS BRUISED JAW

Local Boy Ponders Over Futility of Attack Upon Officer

Lawrence Willette, 1113 Third avenue north, nursed a bruised jaw in the Delta county jail yesterday and pondered over the futility of attempting to resist an officer of the law.

His troubles started early Sunday morning at Argonne Gardens, where he became involved in a scuffle and was arrested by the deputy stationed there. Deputy Harold Johnston of the Delta county sheriff's department was called to take him to jail, and upon his arrival at the dance hall the prisoner was turned over to him and entered the deputy's car without resistance.

Johnston was alone, driving, and his prisoner was alone in the rear seat. As they drove along the narrow gravel road that leads from Argonne to highway US-41, Willette attacked the deputy from behind.

Attacked From Behind "He reached ahead with both hands and grabbed me around the neck," Johnston said. "Then he hauled back as hard as he could pull." The deputy removed his foot from the throttle, but was unable to reach the brake and the car left the road and came to rest at an angle in the ditch.

Johnston went over the back of the seat after his prisoner, and hauled him still fighting, from the car. More blows were exchanged as they reached the center of the road, and then Johnston's right to Willette's jaw ended the battle.

The deputy handcuffed his prisoner while he lay in the road, and a wrecker was called before the car could be removed from the ditch. A check-up yesterday revealed that Willette suffered a

FARMERS HOLD MEETING HERE

Discuss Means of Using "Ag" Conservation Program

Community committeemen of the various communities of Delta county met at the Delta county court house to discuss the 1939 Agri Conservation program, and to study ways of gaining cooperation of farmers of Delta county.

The success or failure of the Agri Conservation program depends entirely upon the voluntary cooperation of the farmers. During the fall and winter months the community committeemen have agreed to contact the farmers of their respective community to explain the program to them and to show them how, by participating, they can earn the payments offered and still carry out better farming practices.

This educational campaign will be carried out by the committeemen without pay and it is hoped that a great deal of good can be accomplished for the farming industry of Delta county.

In Oriental countries flowers are often added to salads for decoration. Other members of the society will help out on the day of the performances.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

ALBION PLANS HOMECOMING

World Premier of Play to Feature Week End of Nov. 4-6

Albion, Mich., Oct. 24.—Plans for Albion college's annual homecoming Nov. 4, 5, and 6, call for the world premiere of a play by a former Albion college student, a homecoming hop, alumni luncheon and parade, and a football game that will probably decide the MIAA championship. Dr. Kenneth G. Hance, professor of speech, is general chairman of the grad-gathering.

The homecoming dance will officially open the three-day program Nov. 4. The following day a parade of fraternity and sorority floats will be held in the morning, followed by an Alumni luncheon in Kresge gymnasium. The Albion a cappella choir will make its first appearance of the season at this luncheon.

On the evening of Nov. 5 a comedy by Wallace A. Bacon, '35, a graduate student at the University of Michigan, called "The Bean and the Cod," will be given its first presentation. Members of the college Historical club, under the direction of Miss Beulah Champ, director of dramatics, will present the play.

The homecoming football game will be played Saturday afternoon with Hillsdale college. Both Albion and Hillsdale are contenders for the championship. The Chapel service in the Methodist church Sunday morning will conclude the program for the sixteenth homecoming.

WARDEN TELLS ABOUT PRISON

Reforms and Problems of Officers Explained by Marvin Coon

Marvin L. Coon, warden of Marquette branch prison and former resident of Escanaba, yesterday noon told members of the Rotary club about prison problems, organizations and what changes are taking place in Michigan's penal institutions.

Under the law that established the department of corrections, under which is the bureau of prisons, pardons and paroles, it is impossible for an offender to legally have his sentenced commuted to a shorter time than the minimum set by the sentencing judge. Before the new organization was established often times a prisoner was released before he had served his minimum time. Now it is necessary to remain at the prison until near the end of his minimum sentence and then his case is presented before the parole board before he is officially released.

The Marquette branch prison has a constant population of about 712 inmates. Out of this group there are about 300 prisoners with life sentences. Most of the prison population is kept employed in jobs within the walls, on the prison farm, or as trustees. Industries in the prison are the shoe factory, tobacco factory and brick factory. Approximately 300 inmates are employed in maintaining the institution, grounds and working about the prison.

Warden Coon stressed the type of work that officials of the prison are attempting to do in changing the attitude of inmates to make them more easily see that they are trying to be helped rather than punished for a wrong doing. Offenders are very carefully investigated when they are admitted to the prison and after complete investigation by prison officials they are placed in the type of occupation that they are best fitted for and in one which will also give them a feeling of being of some value.

Your tired nerves need frequent relief

Known variously in early Scottish history as Skye terrier, Highland, Cairn, and Scots terrier, although that dog bore no resemblance to Skyes and Cairns of today. Nicknamed the "die-hard" for stout heart and unquenchable love for sport. Extremely independent.

HE'S GIVING HIS NERVES A REST...

AND SO IS HE

LIKE humans, dogs have a complicated set of nerves. But dogs are kinder to their nerves than we. They rest when they need rest... while we plunge ahead with our hurry and worry—straining our nerves to keep up with the fast pace. We can't turn back to the natural paces of life like an animal, but we can protect, soothe, and calm our nerves. Smoking a Camel can be your pleasant method for breaking nerve tension. Camels are mild, with the flavor of a matchless blend of costlier tobaccos. Smokers find Camel's mild tobaccos delightfully soothing—soothing—to the nerves.

SUCCESSFUL PEOPLE ADVISE

"Let up—light up a Camel"

DID YOU KNOW:

- that tobacco plants are "topped" when they put out their seed-head? That this improves the quality of leaf tobacco? That most cigarette tobacco is harvested by "priming"—removing each leaf by hand? Camel buyers know where choice grades of tobacco are—those that cure nicely—the mild ripe, fragrant tobaccos. Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic.

On The RECORD

By Dorothy Thompson

There are very serious things afoot in this world. We do not know exactly what these things are, for most of Europe today is governed by secret societies, operating in darkness, and with a muzzled press. This now holds, not only for the totalitarian states, but for England and for France. However, from the unparalleled observation point which this country still has, we can observe the effect, even if we are uncertain of the origins, of new policies. Mr. Lippmann was not overstating in any sense, when he said yesterday that Munich "must be regarded as one of the decisive though bloodless battles that shape the history of the world."

Since Munich an independent state has to all intents and purposes vanished off the face of this earth. New alignments in eastern Europe are following each other with dizzying rapidity.

At a blow, France has been reduced to the position of a third-rate power. The German dictator presents demands which completely reverse those that France, through Versailles, made upon the Germans. Yesterday terms were dictated to Czechoslovakia; today France is asked to renounce her pact with Russia, return to Germany colonies in Africa, assure Germany a free hand in the East, and agree to permanent inferiority in the air.

Great Britain is backing down in Arabia, where the Arabian masses have been agitated for years by Italian propaganda. The weakness of Great Britain in the Far East is notorious.

North Africa is in ferment, the populations stirred up by Fascist agitators. The refugee question is assuming titanic proportions.

The shifts in national power are pushed forward not only by the threat of war from two nations which are completely on a war footing, but by revolutionary propaganda employed on a scale absolutely unprecedented in all history and by trade policies ruthlessly designed to further imperialist aggrandizement in unremitting war against the free economies of the non-totalitarian nations.

This hardly masked warfare goes on in the Western Hemisphere no less than in Europe. In Mexico the product of expropriated British and American oil wells is given to Germany in return for goods.

In all the South American countries colonies of Germans and Italians are centers of revolutionary activities designed to change the existing governments of South American republics and switch new Fascist governments into line with the international aims of Italy and Germany.

And in our own country a spy plot is being uncovered which is unique in peace times.

This country suddenly wakes up to its appalling military, aerial and naval weakness in the world as it exists today. The facts about our weakness are well known to the intelligence officers of other powers, but they are not known to the American people.

Having comfortably relied for generations upon the might of the British Empire to collaborate in protecting mutual interests outside our own boundaries, we must and very soon will realize that we are not by ourselves capable of protecting even the Monroe Doctrine, the one item of our foreign policy which has been consistent from our beginnings.

We observe that the shifts in power carry with them radical changes in the internal policies of the so-called democracies.

Not only is national power sacrificed; the liberties of the people are sacrificed also. In Britain and France the parliamentary systems do not function. The people are kept in almost complete ignorance of what is happening to them.

In France and in England a whispering campaign is going on in which the scapegoat is the United States.

The parole goes out that the troubles of Europe are all the fault of Woodrow Wilson.

There are serious apprehensions among well informed people that a new worldwide settlement is being contemplated in the secret conclaves of uncontrolled governments which will be largely at the expense of the United States; that we will be asked to abandon the Monroe Doctrine, and as a price of "general appeasement" sacrifice vital interests on this hemisphere.

Now, what in all this is the policy of our State Department, and what is the role of Mr. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to Great Britain?

Throughout the whole crisis which culminated at Munich Mr. Kennedy was in closest touch with Mr. Chamberlain.

He has been warmly—though not publicly—thanked for his useful advice. He was also in close touch with the President, and there is reason to believe that it was on the basis of the information received from Mr. Kennedy that the President sent his "peace" telegrams to Hitler, Mussolini and the other heads of powers.

On Wednesday, Mr. Kennedy, who as Ambassador to Great Britain is the official spokesman in London of the United States government, made a most remarkable speech. He suggested collaboration with the dictatorships and again raised the question of general limitation of armaments.

SERIAL STORY MURDER TO MUSIC

BY NARD JONES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MYRNA DOMBEY—heroine. Wife of the sensational swing band leader.
ROBERT TAIT—hero. Newspaper photographer—detective.
ANNE LESTER—Myrna's closest friend.
DANNIE FEELEY—officer assigned to investigate Ludden Dombey's murder.

Yesterday, Tait theorizes that George Weeks, who wrote "The Cat's Meow," murdered Dombey in revenge. Feeley and Tait return to the factory district for clues.

CHAPTER XIX
 The Millbay district looked much less fantastic to Tait in the early morning than it had in the moonshadows when the taxi driver had almost given his life in the discord of a cat's cry—and when Tait had detected that haunting odor of perfume. But even in the light of day it was an evil-looking area, and the factory in which Tait had fruitlessly pursued an attacker was the worst building of the lot.

"This is it," Tait said to Dannie Feeley as the latter drove his car alongside.
 Feeley eyed it with distaste. "A fine spot for murder, all right. D'you know, Bob, if you'd come here alone and they'd done you in it might have been days before anybody found out about it. Nobody comes down here but the last of the bums and it hasn't been on the patrol chart for five years."

"Yeah. . . I owe my life to that taxi driver, all right," Tait stepped out of the car. "Come on, let's go."

"Take it easy, son. There's nothing to tell us that the bird isn't still up there. If it's the goofy musician he may not have sense enough to scam."

Cautiously they climbed the narrow staircase, and Tait showed Feeley where the candle had been burning. The Irishman nodded. "I don't think it could have been your fancy blond, Tait. A woman doesn't usually carry the stub of a candle around."

"But how do you account for the perfume?"

to be arrived at by general agreement. The whole speech seems to indicate that the President had not abandoned the idea he had many months ago and launched again in his second note at the time of the Czechoslovak crisis of some sort of international conference in which we also would participate.

But it would seem that if ever there was a time in history when the United States should keep her hands free, and her eyes strictly on her own interests, that moment is now. This country should sit down at no conferences with any one until we have put our own house in order, until our capacity to defend the totality of our interests is unquestioned, and until whoever sits at that conference is backed up by the authority of arms and the support of a free, informed and united people, with a very clear policy of exactly what it is that we are prepared to defend. Every meeting so far with the dictatorships has meant unequivocal surrender, simply that and nothing more.

The only statesman in Europe who has ever understood the true nature of National Socialism and its leader was the late Marshal Pilsudski of Poland, himself a revolutionist, and a believer, like Hitler, in the power of the sword, and in the fall accomplice.

Very soon after Hitler came into power, the Marshal sent his ambassador in Berlin to Hitler with terse instructions. (Be it noted that Marshal Pilsudski did not himself go to Berlin, Berchtesgaden or Godesberg.)

The diplomat was instructed to ask, "Do you want peace or war? If you want war, it begins tomorrow morning. If you want peace, sign here."

That was the origin of the German-Polish peace pact for ten years, which, however temporarily, caused Mr. Hitler to divert his attention from the Polish Corridor elsewhere.

And unless this country is willing and prepared to confer in this manner, it would seem very much better to keep very still. For any other form of conference, the outcome is predictable on the model of Munich.

Peace on the terms of the dictators is a Carthaginian peace, and the price is our vital interests, our national and individual liberties, and even our form of government.

"I don't," said Feeley. "At least not yet." He started clomping up the stairway to the big machine room. "These your tracks?"

"Yes. And those marks in the dust are where the others were swept up."

Feeley looked. "They go to the window all right. How do you explain he had the time to manage that?"

"I figured I was covered. That light on the landing worried me. There was plenty of time before I got the nerve to make the second landing."

"Which," said Dannie Feeley "was lucky for you."

They went to the window climbed down to the roof next door. Gravel on tar, it showed no trace of a recent occupant. The knife welder could have walked for a block over the ancient roofs, or could have gained the street in a dozen places down fire escapes.

"There's nothing we can get out here," Feeley said. Tait followed him back to the factory room watched while Dannie went over it practically foot by foot. At length the detective straightened wearily and shook his head. "I don't see anything I can tie to it's certainly a cinch that nobody's been using this room for very long. But I'll send Dunphy down with a squad to look over all the adjacent buildings. We might find where this guy Weeks has been lodging since he skipped his board bill at Old Lady Sour puss's."

As they went down the stair again, Feeley opined dourly. "You know, it beats hell. In all the detective stories I ever read a couple of guys in our position up there would have found something—a busted match, or a hunk of hair, or a cigar butt. All we find is dust."

"You keep forgetting that there was a noise like a cat meowing, and the odor of perfume."

"I don't keep forgetting it—even if I'd like to. Feeley shot Tait a look of disgust. "I'm talking about tangible clues. All you give me is a smell and a sound. A fine couple of clues!" Feeley yawned prodigiously. "I've got to get some sleep, and I have an idea you could use some."

"You said it, Dannie. Drop me off at the apartment, will you?" At the apartment Bob telephoned Myrna. His heart lifted a her voice. He was sure there was relief in it "Bob, where have you been?"

"Just around. I'm getting some sleep right now. But I'd like to take you and Anne to dinner to night. How about it?"

"We'd like to," Myrna said.

In the days that followed, dinner for the trio became a regular thing. And sometimes, when Tait noticed that Myrna's spirits were up, they would drop into the Pacific-Plaza to hear the band. At first Myrna obviously steered herself against the memory that came rushing when she entered the Golden Bowl. But gradually she faced her problem, and it seemed to Bob that she began once again to enjoy hearing the band. "You've done a good job of lifting Myrna out of it," Anne told Bob one day. "She's beginning to take an interest in The Swingsters as a business. It's the best thing in the world for her. At first she didn't want even to think about swing music. If—only she could be definitely cleared of the suspicion of killing Lud Dombey!"

Tait nodded soberly. "Feeley's no nearer than ever, and I've been no help, I'm afraid."

"What does Barkley say?"

"The prosecuting attorney? He says, in effect, that he wants Myrna's neck. And the trial opens on the 20th. Keep your fingers crossed, baby."

But that very day Tait did more than keep his fingers crossed. He went to see Barkley. He knew Barkley's kind and he tried a simple bluff. "Look here," Tait said. "I've still some friends on the newspapers—and I don't want Myrna served up as political potage."

Barkley's dark eyebrows raised. "I'm afraid I don't know what you mean, Tait. You know I don't work that way. There's an open and shut case on Myrna Dombey. For instance, Tait, when you are called to the stand you'll have to testify that a few seconds after Lud Dombey was killed you picked up Mrs. Dombey's handbag, won't you?"

"And that inside it was a .32 caliber revolver with one shell fired and the barrel still warm. Is that correct?"

"Yes, but—"

"Well, then?" Barkley smiled. "That's just one example. And I don't mind telling you that Leonard Macy and Doctor Matise have been bringing in some interesting things."

"Those fakers!"

"That is wholly a matter of opinion, Tait. I doubt if the jury, when I am through with it, will think they are fakes."

"But what about Feeley?"

Barkley shrugged. "I'm afraid Dannie is a little baffled, Tait. And I've tried to get him to say that he's confident of Myrna Dombey's innocence. He won't quite go that far. Not even," again Barkley smiled, "not even in view of your splendid friendship."

Tait reddened, tried to hold back his anger. But it was no use. "You're going to regret making trouble for Myrna to save your own skin, Barkley! But even as he gave the warning, Tait wondered dully how it was to be fulfilled.

Swedish Church
To Hold Special
Program On Wed'y

The men of the Swedish Baptist church will sponsor a very interesting program at the church Wednesday evening, October 26, at 7:30.

The uniqueness of this program is that only men are to take part. The pastor will be in charge of the program which consists of music by the so called "German Band" of the high school. Congregational singing. Devotional. The men's chorus will sing two songs, directed by the Rev. C. T. Smith. There will be quartet and duet music, a reading, and a speech by the Rev. S. T. Bottrell, pastor of the Methodist church of this city.

Following the program the men will serve refreshments in the church parlors which will be decorated in harmony with the Halloween season. At this time the ladies will be guests of honor. The public is most cordially invited to this festival. A small admission fee, adults 25 cents and children 15 cents, will be received at the entrance.

MARINES BEAT
ALL-STARS, 8-0

Locals Gain Revenge for Defeat Earlier at Marinette

The Manistique Marines, local independent football team, turned the tables on the Menominee-Marquette All Stars here Sunday, defeating the Twin Cities eleven, 8 to 0, to avenge for a decisive defeat suffered by the Marines at Marinette several weeks ago.

The game here Sunday was played in a hard rain, but nevertheless it was a hard fought battle which well rewarded the fans for their loyalty.

The Manistique team scored their touchdown on an unusual play in the first half. Menominee kicked from deep in their own territory to midfield, where the ball was caught by a Menominee end, who put the ball on the ground, believing that it was dead. Rubick, Manistique halfback, grabbed the ball and scooted to the goal line, with none of the Menominee players attempting to stop him. The officials agreed, however, that the ball was not dead and the touchdown was allowed.

In the last period, Manistique added a safety on another unusual play. Menominee was forced to gamble in an attempt to score, and they attempted a pass from their own end zone. Bunno, Manistique lineman, rushed through to block the pass and the ball was grounded in the end zone for an automatic safety.

Next Sunday the Marines will travel to Sault Ste. Marie to play a return game with the Soo Bears. The teams battled to a 6-6 tie here in the first game of the

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES

Table showing stock market averages such as Dow Jones Industrial Average, S&P 500, and other indices.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER
New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Buying power in the stock market today shifted to utilities, a few aircraft, oils and specialties.

While profit taking in the recently buoyant stocks, motors, rubbers, mail orders, coppers and farm implements tended to give the list a spotty appearance at the close, gains running to a point or so generally predominated with a handful of issues up around 5.

Business recovery prospects, while ignored by some pivotal groups, still were the principal sustaining influence marketwide and resistance to selling was such that declines, in most cases, were limited to minor fractions.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks moved up .2 of a point to 53.3, a new top since Oct. 7, last year.

Utilities were stimulated by fresh rumors of a billion-dollar expansion and rehabilitation program to be instituted by the largest power companies in cooperation with the government, with an initial outlay of some $250,000,000 to be announced soon.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem were a shade under water despite a sharp jump in this week's mill operating schedules to the best level since last October.

Oils did better than the average as regulation of refining, as well as production, with approval of Washington, was looked for.

Bonds and commodities were mixed. Wheat at Chicago was off 1-8 to 1/4 of a cent a bushel and corn was up 1/4 to down as much.

Among gainers of fractions to 2 or more in the curb were American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, United Gas and Lockhead aircraft.

Among losers was American Cyanamid "B". Turnover of 265,000 shares compared with 235,000 Friday.

Among gainers of fractions to 2 or more in the curb were American Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, United Gas and Lockhead aircraft.

CHOICE CARRIER ISSUES ADVANCE

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—The bond market fluctuated irregularly today in a narrow range.

A highpoint of the market was strength in Nickel Plate 6s, maturity on which was recently extended with bondholders' approval.

The Associated Press average of 20 rails at 60.6 was .1 higher. Utilities and industrials showed mixed trends.

Foreign dollar loans were quiet. United States government obligations showed little activity, and moved within a narrow range.

Sales totaled $7,498,500 face value, compared with $8,698,700 Friday.

STEEL REMAINS UPWARD BOUND

Favorable Reception of New Model Automobiles Boosts Demand

Correction of recent price settlement has had a beneficial effect on steel markets, according to magazine Steel.

Direct effect of the withdrawal of sharp concessions on flat-rolled steel has been a moderate pickup in demand for other products.

'Wrong Down' Error Stirs Up Football Arguments

REFEREE WRONG AT SOUTH BEND

Carnegie Tech Protests; Quarterback Should Know, Says Layden

By Charles Dunkley
South Bend, Ind., Oct. 24 (AP)—The "wrong down" decision in Notre Dame's 7 to 0 triumph over Carnegie Tech Saturday stirred the football world to the greatest argument of the season today.

The ruling rivals, in controversial element, the famous fourteen count the late Dave Barry was alleged to have given Gene Tunney in his second world's heavyweight championship fight with Jack Dempsey.

Johnny Getchell, of Minneapolis, a graduate of St. Thomas, referee of the game, is the "Dave Barry" of the situation. It was Getchell who advised Paul Friedlander, Carnegie quarterback, some three minutes after the fourth period started that Carnegie had the ball on third down with a yard to go. Actually, it was fourth down, and when the running play Friedlander called was short of the needed yardage, the ball went to Notre Dame on Tech's 47 yard line. Friedlander screamed that he would have ordered a kick if he had known it was fourth down, after referee Getchell unhesitatingly admitted he had misinformed the quarterback.

"Biggest Bonehead"
The Carnegie players and Coach William Kern protested they should not be penalized for Getchell's error. Nevertheless the ball went over to Notre Dame, and the inspired Irish in three plays scored the touchdown that won.

Coach Kern, back home in Pittsburgh, today termed the decision as the biggest "bonehead I ever saw pulled by any official. It certainly meant defeat for us."

Elmer Layden, head coach at Notre Dame, expressed the opinion that Friedlander knew it was fourth down when he disputed referee Getchell's ruling.

"I only want to point out," said Layden, "that it is the quarterback's duty to know what down it is. The score board and the head linesman's marker showed fourth down. The Tech players knew it was fourth down because they checked signals when Friedlander called for a running play. But he called it in. Apparently trying to take chance with official sanction."

SPARTANS GET NO REST DAYS

Bachman Prepares for Big Battle With Santa Clara

East Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—Coach Charley Bachman gave his Michigan State college football charges no rest today as he drove them through a stiff practice session in preparation for their "big" mid-season game with Santa Clara Saturday.

Bachman shifted the emphasis from aerial defense, stressed in advance of earlier contests, to the rugged type of play he believes will be necessary to stop the westerners' bone-crushing power plays. Spartan fullbacks will alternate in a key role under his plans, and the recovery of Paul Derrickson, a sophomore, who has been out of the game with a shoulder injury, topped the coach's plans along with Derrickson, the State team would be shy of fullback replacements.

Derrickson, whose play in early-season games earned him an enviable reputation, probably will understand the stalwart Cliff Haney, who bore the brunt of the fullback's duties against Syracuse last week. He will be battling another veteran, George Kovach, for the right to alternate with Haney against the unbeaten invaders.

State's third and fourth teams scrimmaged today as Bachman continued to seek capable replacements for Johnny Pingel, his triple-threat star, at left halfback. Pingel played through most of the Syracuse game as a result of the injury that benched his regular understudy, Gene Ciolek, for the remainder of the season.

In reviewing the Spartan victory over Syracuse, Bachman expressed particular gratification over the line play of George Handier, 240-pound sophomore tackle, and Lyle Rockenbach, junior guard.

DECISION BOEDED
New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—George Zengaras, New York lightweight, won an unopposed eight-round decision over Lloyd Pine of Akron, O., at St. Nicholas Palace tonight. Zengaras weighed 134, Pine 132 1/2.

The decision brought a burst of booping from the crowd, although it was a close fight with both of them taking plenty of punishment and neither showing much speed.

Syracuse Man Gains, But Michigan State Wins

Richard Banger (14) of Syracuse goes through the line for a nine-yard gain in the game with Michigan State at East Lansing. George Kovach (32), Michigan State halfback, missed the tackle. No. 34 is "Curley" Thomas, Syracuse halfback. Michigan State won, 19-12, to snap Syracuse's winning streak.

Football Coaches Dig Up Plenty Of Stuff For Beefing

BY PAUL MICKELSON

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—It was like old home week in the old professor's Monday morning classroom for college football coaches from the fair-haired boys sat in or near the favorite seats, beefing about decisions and giving each other the needle in professional style. In honor of the somewhat rare occasion, the professor wore his famed red vest and had Tulane's Red Dawson pass around some of his exclusive Mankato cider.

Professor: What is so rare as a field day for football favorites? Even Evansville won again and the wolves are 8 1/2 years away from Dana Bible down in Texas. And Bernie Bierman had a day off. Hey! Elmer, I thought you said Bill never speaking since Referee Johnny-on-the-Spot Getchell got mixed up on those downs?

Bill Kern, Carnegie Tech: It wasn't Elmer's fault, Professor, but it was Getchell's. Getchell told Friedlander it was third down when it was the fourth, my boys tried to run the ball over and lost it on downs on our 47 yard line. It took the heart right out of my boys. Professor, we never would have run the ball on fourth down with 11 minutes to play, a wind in our face, against a major opponent and the score tied. Give me another swig of that cider, Red.

Elmer Layden, Notre Dame: Our tackling was poor and our fumbling awful. As to the controversy between Kern and Getchell, Professor, I merely point out to you, sir, that we have never received five downs to make 10 yards. Why should Tech?

Professor: I'm for authority, first and last. Getchell made a mistake, admits it, and let's not be too hard on him. Is he going to work the next T.C.U. game?

Paddy Driscoll, Marquette: Professor, I've no quarrel with Getchell or anybody else but a flock of blind men could work at T.C.U. game and it'd still be T. C. U. Wow, Professor, I'm a believer. I saw Pitt a week ago and I think this T. C. U. gang is probably the only team in the country that could give them a battle. Pitt's line is a little faster but not as big. And that Davey O'Brien! Professor, the fellow's a wonder. Our Soph center, Ray Apolskis, was still in there. Watch him, boys.

Dutch Meyer, T. C. U.: Yes, Professor, the Irish are a great race, especially the O'Briens. If we didn't have five southwest teams laying for us every Saturday until December, I might be able to enjoy myself. Baylor has a boy named Patterson, who pitches strikes, too.

Professor: Now for some soft music. Doctor?

Dr. Jack Sutherland, Pittsburgh: Fortunately, Professor, we still have our first team. Goldberg gave his greatest performance at fullback and our guards were better. I liked that Texas razzle dazle—when we had the ball.

Matty Bell, S.M.U.: Professor, we lost to the most terrific football team I ever laid my eyes upon. They're got speedy ends, backs, guards—everything. Still we gave 'em the ball with fumbles that made a difference of 14 points. We'll be back in 1940 so remember our dogies.

Professor: In 1940? What's wrong with 1939? Okay, more soft music.

Stub Allison, California: With Washington, the toughest club we've faced, out of the way, Professor, I think we have a slim chance for the Pacific coast title.

SPILLING the DOPE

BY JOHNNY INKBLINGER

We have never been a crusader against the "evils" of high school athletics—in fact we always have defended them. If any—but there was something about running the cross country race last Saturday that went against our grain. . . here's the picture: temperature just above the freezing mark. . . mixture of rain and snow being driven from the north on a 35 mile wind. . . running track and fields in a quagmire of snow and water. . . about 15 young boys not yet fully developed come out of the warm fieldhouse, clad in sweat suits, scotch caps and toques and wearing mittens. . . after a preliminary warming up, much to the astonishment of the few frozen fans in the stands, the boys take off their sweat suits, leaving their bodies covered only by the flimsiest of running outfits.

I thought we were laced until Vic Bottari saw something and got a chance to work it in the third period.

Jimmy Phelan, Washington: Well, we lost to the 1938 champs. Professor, there's nobody in this league than can beat Cal. Aside from ends, I think California compares favorably with Minnesota.

Bernie Bierman, Minnesota: Please leave us out of it. We have Northwestern Saturday and, Professor, they're tough on Gophers.

Bob Zupke, Illinois: I'm glad that Northwestern game is over with, Professor. I don't know what a car of juggernauts is but they say Northwestern rolled over us like one and I don't want any more rides. Our boys will do better later.

Wallace Wade, Duke: We had a close call against Wake Forest, Professor, but we did okay considering we had three backs out of the contest.

Peahead Walker, Wake Forest: That fumble on the six yard line in the last two minutes surely hurt, Professor. O'Mare of Duke and our Mr. Edwards played like all-Americans.

Fritz Crisler, Michigan: The whole Yale team played like all-Americans behind the most marvelous passing attack I've ever seen. I'm proud of the way my boys came back, especially proud of Captain Janke and Ralph Helkinen.

Ducky Pond, Yale: So am I proud, my boys, especially Captain Bill Platt, Charlie Miller and Bud Humphrey, never let down.

Professor: I'm proud because my poison ivy is leaving. . .

Buck Shaw, Santa Clara: That Arkansas game had too many thrills for my blood pressure. They rained passes on us. We did a good job of knocking 'em down and I'll have some more cider.

Fred Thomson, Arkansas: Professor, call it treason if you must, but that Santa Clara outfit comes favorably with Texas Christian although T.C.U. is more powerful around. You'll see those Broncos right back in the Sugar Bowl.

Bernie Moore, L.S.U.: We got one scoring opportunity against Vanderbilt and the boys cashed in on it. Looks like we'll never get any rest, Professor. Look who's next—Tennessee.

Eddie Anderson, Holy Cross: Everything we tried against Georgia worked, Professor.

Joe Hunt, Georgia: Professor, I'm a man of few words. We decided to gamble all the way and lost like a railbird at the races.

Tex Oliver, Oregon: All I can say, Professor, is that Fordham will give Pittsburgh its toughest game of the season.

Jim Crowley, Fordham: Right, Professor. We're going to give Pitt a battle. If the mayor of Pittsburgh thinks he's going to get a free spaghetti dinner from our Mayor LaGuardia, he may be fooled.

Biff Jones, Nebraska: Professor, Oklahoma had too much line. I'm going to get a ton of sandpaper to rub out rough spots.

Professor: Any cider left, Dawson? The rest of you guys get. Hoping that this letter will be

CRISLER GIVES PASS PRACTICE

Clash With Illinois Is Next on Schedule for Wolverines

BY GEORGE A. STAUTER
Ann Arbor, Oct. 24 (AP)—A light practice with emphasis on passing, marked the first drill of Michigan's football team today for the clash here next Saturday with Illinois.

Coach Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler sent the squad through the customary two-hour practice, however, and indicated intensive preparation would begin tomorrow.

The 15 to 13 intersessional victory over Yale at New Haven, the third triumph in four starts for the Wolverines, failed to impress Crisler.

"The boys thought they were going to have a field day," he said. "Now that they didn't perhaps they'll get down to work."

"Every team has an off-day—one bad game in its system—and I hope that Yale game was it. There isn't a soft spot remaining on the schedule and we'll have to look a lot better than we did Saturday if we are to have a chance to win."

That Crisler plans no immediate line-up changes was seen in the make-up of the first-string squad, the same team that took the field against Yale.

In the backfield were Forest Evashevski at quarterback, Tom Harmon and Norm Furucker, halfbacks, and Ed Phillips, fullback. Harmon paced Michigan's two touchdown drives against Yale with his running and passing to clinch a regular job.

Crisler devoted most of today's session to passing, which had considerable success against Yale, with Harmon, Dave Strong, former Illinois quarterback; Bill Luther and Fred Trosko on the throwing end.

One of the day's surprises was the showing of Vincent Valek, end, as a kicker. The Holly Junior, who did some punting as a high school player, got off consistent boots of 50 to 60 yards although he was aided by a slight breeze.

Except for a few bumps and bruises, the squad reported in excellent physical condition.

Striking out 17 batters is good enough in any company, but when you fan 14 of them in succession in a no-hit victory, you get your picture in the paper. That is what George Bock, above, of Nappanee, Ind., high school did against Millersburg high in an autumn league game.

COMMUNICATION

GAME WAS EVEN
Sport Editor,
Escanaba Daily Press:

In writing this letter I am referring to numerous remarks made by your paper about the Soo-Munising game. Your paper stated that Soo pushed us all over the field, but couldn't capitalize near the goal line. Why? Because Soo never was inside Munising's 30-yard stripe. Not once during the whole game. We are forced to admit that Soo made more first downs than Munising. Soo had 5. Munising made 3. Not a decided advantage. In the third period, Munising, by virtue of a blocked punt had the ball on Soo's 5-yard line with four downs to make it in. Poor field generalship cost Munising that touchdown. It kind of looks like you tried to make Soo look tough, so as to give the Eskymos more prestige if they won. It must be admitted Soo's passes were clicking, but we stopped their passing attack with five interceptions.

In a view of all fairness I think it will have to be admitted that the game was played on a fairly even basis. Munising was not lucky, but had eleven men fighting all the while.

New Feather Champ Really College Boy

BY DREW MIDDLETON New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—The persistent dream of the fiction writer, the prize fighter attending college, is the real McCoy as far as Joey Archibald is concerned.

Less there be any misunderstanding, Archibald is pretty generally recognized as the king pin of the men who fight at 126 pounds. The New York state athletic commission recognizes him officially as the featherweight champion. The National Boxing Association won't acclaim him until he meets the winner of the Leo Rodak-Fred Miller bout, but after he handed Mike Belotte an emphatic beating last week every one else called him top man.

Archibald is a bona-fide student at Providence college, near the family home in Pawtucket, R. I. He is taking a pre-medical course. In the meantime he will fight as often as possible in over the weight bouts.

He would like to defend the title against Rodak because "I'm not sure Miller can make the weight." Right now he is most interested in getting back to school and making up for lost time.

Al Welli, Archibald's circular manager, is proud of his charge's ability.

"A good boy, a very good boy. He studies hard and his marks are good. When he is through fighting he will be able to earn his living. He bright lights for him when his fights are over. He goes back to work," Welli said.

"The money he makes goes to help the family. He is very conscientious about it and a hard trainer. If all fighters were like him it would be a pleasure to be a manager."

In his very first fight Archibald ran into tough luck. He broke his right hand. This forced him out of the ring for almost a year but he came back in 1931 and won the Rhode Island state amateur flyweight championship. He was runner-up in the New England and junior national championships the same year and then turned pro in 1932.

His hands troubled him for five years but in the past three he has made rapid strides. When Henry Armstrong gave up the featherweight title this summer, Archibald got his chance against Belotte who had been recognized in New York state a year before.

He won and today is, in Welli's words, "the only Irish champion, think of it!"

Girls Play Football At Sacramento, Cal.
Sacramento, Calif., Oct. 24 (AP)—Sacramento Junior college is going to have a women's football team.

Charles Graves, student coach and organizer, said today the odds would not headgear, shoulder pads and football pants to give the rooters between-halves entertainment.

Harry A. (Hack) Applequist, football coach, will help the girls with their interpretation of "feminine football."

Two-Ton Galento To Fight Nov. 14
Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (AP)—Promoter Herman Taylor announced tonight he had signed "Two-ton" Tony Galento, of Orange, N. J., leading contender for the heavyweight title, to a 12-round bout with Harry Tomas, of Chicago, here on November 14.

It will be Galento's first fight since he was stricken with pneumonia last July, four days before he was to fight Lightweight Champion John Henry Lewis.

Rodak, Chicago Boy, Seeks Feather Title
Shington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Leo Rodak of Chicago took a decision from Freddy Miller, Cincinnati, tonight, thereby clearing the way for a National Boxing Association featherweight match with Joey Archibald.

After six listless rounds, Rodak bore down on Miller and in the closing rounds of the 15-round match, hammered the Cincinnati with rights and lefts to the face and body. Rodak weighed 124, Miller 123 1/2.

A few hours before the bout, the N. B. A. ordered Archibald to sign for a bout with the victor of tonight's match within 30 days and fight within 60 days. Archibald is recognized as featherweight champion by the New York Boxing Commission. Should Joey fall to meet the demand of the N. B. A., that organization's title would go automatically to Rodak.

Thanks to some timely assistance from the rejuvenated Cleveland Rams, the Green Bay Packers Sunday night were leading the western division of the National Professional Football league.

The Packers did their share by whipping Pittsburgh, but it took a victory for the Rams over the Chicago Bears to send the Packers into first place.

The Bears toppled to second by losing to Cleveland, 23 to 21. The Bears rallied to score a touchdown and take the lead in the fourth period after trailing most of the way, but Cleveland retaliated with a field goal that won the game.

The Detroit Lions defeated the Chicago Cardinals, 10 to 0, on Bill Shepherd's touchdown after a 70 yard march in the third period after Regis Monahan had kicked a field goal from the nine yard line in the second.

Dutch Clark, 31 year old coach of the Lions, failed to take an opportunity to set a new all-time National league scoring record. Tied at 301 points with Verno Lewellen, former Green Bay Packer star, Clark kept himself on the bench all but a few minutes of the third and fourth quarters.

Washington's Redskins retained the eastern division lead by nosing out Philadelphia, 20 to 14, while the New York Giants scored a more decisive victory over Brooklyn, 28 to 14.

Doom of 'Flatfoot Cop' Predicted, Result of New Motor Radio Plan

BY WILLIS THORNTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
Cleveland, Oct. 24.—The last word in streamlined police protection is promised by the new home-to-police car radiophone system being installed here. The citizen who awakens to hear burglars in the garage or downstairs will be able to talk directly with the police cruiser as it speeds to his aid.

"There are two of them. Yes, they're still in the basement. I think there's a lookout in a car parked across the driveway. Hurry." And the listening police are kept fully informed by this running account as they hurry to the scene.

That's how the new Cleveland police radio system is expected to work as final touches are placed on a complete reorganization of the force whose basic patrol work will all be carried on in automobiles, each itself a broadcasting station, licensed by the Federal Communications Commission, and each able to carry on two-way conversations with headquarters at all times.

One-Minute Service
The old-time precinct station is on its way out in Cleveland. Half of them are to be eliminated and the others will be scarcely recognizable as the neighborhood fixture where a dozen policemen always lounged waiting for something to happen.

Radio isn't new in police work, but Cleveland is now launching the most elaborate system of radio police work ever put forward. Technical progress in radio in the past four years has made it possible to assign many new permanent channels to police work.

When the new system is in operation, no person in greater Cleveland will at any time be more than one minute away from a moving police car containing three or four men.

A telephoned complaint or report of emergency to police will bring a quick reference at headquarters to a huge light-studded map, where the patrol territory of each cruiser and its position almost minute by minute is shown. A radiophone order turns the nearest car in the direction where help is wanted. If the person making the complaint is composed and able to help, his call can by a flick of the central operator's wrist be switched to the men in the car speeding to help him.

Passing of the "Flatfoot"
That is the basic patrol protection of the city, not a mere adjunct in emergencies. About 150 cars will give police an auto to every 10 men, and an auto to every 3 1/2 men on duty at any one time.

Elliot Ness, former G-man and now Safety Director of Cleveland, tells why the old-fashioned precinct station and the "flatfoot" on the scene are on the way out.

"The old precinct setup goes back to the days of the night watch," says Ness. "It was effective when established, as the precinct stations were usually placed at geographical distances designed to make it easy for neighborhood people to walk to it and report disturbances. The beat man got to know neighborhood people and activities, and so he was effective."

"But with the coming of the auto, neighborhood life broke up. Young folks go clear across town for a dance. A burglar comes from another neighborhood, or another town, does his work and is gone. The old advantage of the foot patrolman in knowing the neighborhood dwindled."

"The automobile came to help the criminal and hinder police. But the telephone and new communications come to help police. Our aim is to put our patrol on wheels, give them superior communications, and make them able to render real 'watchman service' again."

"Under our plan, the man reports for duty right to his car. Being instantly and constantly in touch with headquarters, no roll

Hollinrake To Speak Here On Wednesday

Munising, Oct. 24.—W. E. Hollinrake, Republican state central committee member, will speak to a public meeting on the corner of Elm avenue and Superior street Wednesday noon.

Mr. Hollinrake is a former controller of the state department of agriculture and former deputy warden of the Michigan state prison and a very interesting speaker. He has addressed several farm organizations including the Grange, Farm Bureau and the National Farmers Union. He has a national reputation for his speaking ability and has been well received by the audiences wherever he has spoken.

Supervisors Named In Two Civil Suits

Munising, Oct. 24.—The Alger county board of supervisors found themselves the defendants in two civil suits here today. Robert Elliott, who served on the Alger county poor board during the early 1930's, is suing the county for $1,080 for rent on the building which he owned and which was used as a storage place for commodities used for relief work during that time.

County Prosecuting Attorney R. E. O'Brien also has received notification from the prosecuting attorney of Kent county, Fred N. Seal, that Kent county will file suit in the state supreme court to collect a judgement of $3,083 and interest of $750. The judgement was obtained in 1933 and would mean the spreading of additional taxes on the tax roll.

HYLO-MIRON

Munising, Oct. 24.—The marriage of Miss Cecelia Hylo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hylo, and Philip Miron, both of Munising, was performed on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock in Sacred Heart church by the Rev. Fr. Ovid J. LaMothe.

Miss Amelia Myjak and John Neglist attended the couple. Both Mr. and Mrs. Miron attended the Mather high school, the bride graduating with the class of 1935. The groom is employed by the Munising Paper company in their plant here.

Mr. and Mrs. Miron left on a week's wedding tour to Detroit and will reside here on their return.

PLANS FOR NAVY DAY

Munising, Oct. 24.—James O'Boyle, commander of the Roderick Prato post of the American Legion, has been named local chairman in charge of the observance of Thursday, October 27, as Navy Day.

The day, October 27, is also the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, who was a strong supporter of a sound naval policy and an adequate navy for the United States.

MUNISING BRIEFS

Mrs. Berenice Credlund spent the week-end visiting with friends in Escanaba.

The Soiree Classique will meet on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Lois Chase, West Onota street. The Drama Club meeting which was to be held in the home of Mrs. Tidd this evening has been transferred to the home of Mrs. Edward Bartels. This is an important meeting as well as an interesting one. The meeting will start at 8 o'clock and movies of Scandinavia will be shown by Howard Morgan.

Mrs. Lyle Atkins and family have left for Carthage, Ill., where they will join Mr. Atkins. Mrs. Atkins' brother, Harold Bjornstad, motored with them.

Nell Reese of Manistique spent Sunday visiting here.

Mrs. O. A. Hanson and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Morris Hanson of Virginia, Minn., who has been visiting here, left this morning for Virginia where the former will visit.

Ten Round Decision Credited To Yarosz

Pittsburgh, Oct. 24 (AP)—Teddy Yarosz flashed some of the speed and stinging punches which earned him the middleweight title several years ago, as he won a decision in ten rounds from Oscar Rankins, heavy-hitting Chicago negro.

The former champion, weighing 164 1/2 pounds, led in every round except in the fourth and fifth, when his 164-pound opponent momentarily slowed him down with a heavy body attack.

In the ninth round Yarosz landed 10 successive hard rights and lefts to Rankins' face without getting a return.

Hassock Stores Conveniently

If you need extra space for storing knickknacks in your game room, consider a hollow hassock covered in simulated leather in attractive shades.

Adamick Conqueror, Toles, Gets Beating

Philadelphia, Oct. 24 (AP)—Willie Reddish, 189 1/2, Philadelphia negro, battered Roscoe Toles, 195, Detroit negro, for 10 rounds and a decision tonight in the wind-up of a boxing show. Reddish took all but one round from the conqueror of Jimmie Adamick, and had the Detroitier staggering and bleeding at the end.

Measles, introduced by the white man, has been a leading factor in reducing the Eskimo population.
