LABOR BOARD WINS A ROUND IN FORD CASE

MICHIGAN'S LIQUOR RULINGS UPHELD IN HIGH COURT

THE SUPREME COURT TODAY: Gave the National Labor Relations board permission to withdraw a court case against the Ford Motor Company for the purpose of amending procedure.

Held that a state's right to prohibit or regulate importation of liquor was virtually unlimited.

Agreed to pass upon a lower court decision which declared that marketing provisions of the 1935 farm law were constitutional.

Held that the state of Washington could not tax the gross receipts of a company primarily engaged in interstate business.

Agreed to review litigation involving the right of Utah to tax the income of an employee of a federal agency.

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—The National Labor Relations Board won a round in a long legal struggle with the Ford Motor Company today when the supreme court gave the board the right to withdraw certain litigation from the federal court in Covington, Ky., to follow new procedure.

The board had issued an order directing the Ford company to re-instate 29 employees with back pay and to cease certain practices called "unfair." This led to litigation in the circuit court.

Hughes writes decision. Later the board sought to withdraw its case and change procedure to avert criticism such as was expressed by the supreme court when it invalidated an agriculture department order against Kansas City livestock commission men last April 25.

The Ford Motor company promptly objected to withdrawal of the case.

Chief Justice Hughes wrote today's decision affirming the lower court's ruling that the case could be withdrawn.

He said it was "familiar appellate practice to remand causes for further proceedings without deciding the merits, when justice demands that course in order that some defect in the record may be supplied."

But, he said, the court was unable to conclude that the board has an absolute right to withdraw its petition at its pleasure. We think that permission to withdraw must rest in the sound discretion of the court to be exercised in the light of circumstances of the particular case.

TVA Case Delayed. No dissent to this opinion was announced. Justice Roberts did not participate.

In another case, the high court ruled that the states were given

Carferry Grounded In Straits Blizzard

CHIEF WAWATAM

St. Ignace, Mich., Jan. 3 (AP)—A serious mishap from this winter's storms, this afternoon, but could not free her.

Plenty of provisions were in the vessel's stores—a standard precaution on the part of lake boats—and the crew stayed aboard to watch the cargo of 12 full freight cars and 10 empties. The weather had cleared by tonight, and a moonlight voyage was indicated for the John Roan.

To meet the straits traffic emergency, the state-chartered ferry Ste. Marie was pressed into 24-hour service for carrying freight cars at night and passenger trains and automobiles in the day. The Ste. Marie ordinarily ferries only automobiles the seven miles between the upper and lower peninsulas.

The tug John Roan, leaving Sturgeon Bay, Wis., early tonight on a 200-mile race to the beached 352-foot ferry, was not expected to reach the Chief Wawatam before tomorrow afternoon, but meantime no fears were felt for the Wawatam's crew of 33 men.

Drifting in a blizzard, the huge ferry boat ran aground on the North Graham shoals a mile north of here with a full cargo of 22 freight cars. Coast guardsmen reached the vessel, first to befall

United States Fleet Launches War Games

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP)—The United States fleet was geared for battle tonight.

Dawn will find the annual war games on, with fighting forces moving to sea from Southern California bases for operations which will continue into June.

Large areas of the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, and the Caribbean sea, will be the field of "war" in the yearly test of the fighting fitness of 191 ships and 923 aircraft which compose the United States fleet.

Some units will operate independently, while the major phase of the maneuvers in the Caribbean will find 150 ships, 600 planes and 58,000 officers and men divided into White and Black fleets for Problem XX.

Admiral C. C. Bloch, commander-in-chief, who will be chief umpire aboard his flagship, the dreadnaught Pennsylvania, stressed the fact that selection of the Caribbean area for Problem XX and extension of operations into the Atlantic was made more than a year ago by the general board of the navy in the regular course of shifting scenes of maneuvers, and to take the feet to the east coast for participation in the world's fair at New York.

The nature of Problem XX, as usual, is secret. Last June Congressman Isaac (D-San Diego, Calif.), member of the foreign affairs committee, expressed belief that it would involve a hypothetical situation in which this country is attacked by a coalition of German and Japanese fleets, but added that he preferred to know no details of the problem.

STORM IN WEST QUIETING DOWN

Flood Threat Lessens; Damage Heavy, Three Lose Lives

Seattle, Jan. 3 (AP)—A sudden halt in a three-day siege of wind and rain lessened flood threats in the Pacific northwest tonight and permitted restoration work on crippled transportation and communication systems.

Winds of 60 to 80 mile velocity whipped the Washington-Oregon-British Columbia coast, at the height of the storm, caused three deaths, damaged highways and private property, and endangered ships at sea.

Winds of unexpected suddenness, a break occurred this afternoon in heavy rain and wind which had hammered the Grays Harbor, Wash., region. Water was backing up in sewers and starting over Chehalis River dikes at Aberdeen and Hoquiam, Wash., when the storm halted.

In British Columbia repair crews were cleaning up highway and telegraph system damage after the heaviest rain and wind in years struck Vancouver Island.

Andrew Johnson, 63, was killed at Campbell River, B. C., when struck by an electric power wire blown down in the storm. Frank Richardson, 30, a lineman, was electrocuted near Walla Walla, Wash., when repairing storm damage, and Mayland Gill, 18, drowned in the Chehalis river when a rowboat capsized.

SENATE GROUP CHARGES WPA CASH MISUSED

REPUBLICANS READY TO HELP CUT SPENDING

By The Associated Press. 76th congress convenes and organizes.

Sheppard committee urges legislation to prevent political abuse of relief funds.

Dies committee says labor department's laxity toward alien agitators fosters spread of un-Americanism.

Senate Republicans offer to cooperate with "any group" to cut spending.

Senator Smith (D-S. C.) proposes to "junk" part of crop control system.

Supreme court rules a state can bar liquor imports; labor board wins a round in litigation with Ford Motor company.

BY RICHARD L. TURNER. Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Congress convened today in a spirit of back-slapping joviality, tolerance and good-will which lasted a scant half hour by the gilded hands of the clock that hangs above Vice President Garner's senate rostrum.

For within that time, the bitter discord underneath the surface had found expression in:

A report from the senate committee on campaign expenditures denouncing WPA for indulging in "unjustifiable political activity" in connection with the recent election.

"Anti" Rally Round. A statement by Senator McNary (R-Ore.) that he would ask that the report be referred to the commerce committee, which will be in charge of the nomination of Harry L. Hopkins, former WPA chief, as secretary of commerce.

The first open bid by the increased Republican membership of the senate for coalition support from anti-new deal Democrats.

It took the form of a statement emanating from a Republican caucus that the minority was ready to "cooperate with any group" to reduce governmental expenditures.

Cotton Ed Peeved. An assertion by Chairman Smith (D-S. C.) of the senate agriculture committee, who is frankly and picturesquely angry because President Roosevelt proposed his

DUKE TO VISIT BRITAIN ALONE

"Her Royal Highness" Title Still Denied for Duchess

London, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor was reported today to have bowed to the will of the British royal family and agreed to revisit his homeland in March without his wife.

Reliable quarters reported this decision, but no one knew whether it would remain final or whether friends of the duke would continue their campaign for public recognition of the duchess and attempt to persuade the royal family to receive her.

These friends were undismayed by the absence of a promotion to rank of "her royal highness" for the duchess in the king's new year's honors list. They expressed the hope that official royal status might yet be granted to the former Wallis Warfield.

The duke and duchess are now on the French Riviera, at the Villa LaCroc at Antibes.

Some believed that Edward's reported decision to come to England without his wife signified he had lost his long fight for her recognition by the royal family.

They were reminded, however, that the duke might decide personally to petition for his brother's royal favor when he and the king meet the first time since he announced his abdication and went to France on Dec. 10, 1936.

Los Angeles Chief Of FBI, Trapper Of Kidnapers, Resigns

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP)—John H. Hanson, 36, who aided in the solution of several spectacular criminal cases, has resigned as chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation office here and left the service, it became known today.

Hanson's chief assistant, Val C. Zimmer, 32, became acting chief of the Los Angeles office.

Hanson was transferred to Los Angeles in December, 1935, after working in Seattle, Birmingham, Chicago, Washington and New York.

In one of his most sensational cases, Hanson and his aides, in May, 1936, trapped Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., kidnaper, in a Glendale apartment. Robinson kidnaped Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll, wealthy Louisville, Ky., society matron, and extracted $50,000 ransom from her husband. He is now serving a life term.

Hanson also directed the search that resulted in the arrest of John Henry Seadlund, alias Peter Anders, at Santa Anita race track last January for the kidnaping and murder of Charles S. Ross, Chicago millionaire. Seadlund was put to death last July.

SPANISH REBELS SEIZE KEY CITY

Vital Highway Center of Catalonia Taken By Franco's Men

Huidade, France (At the Spanish Frontier) Jan. 3 (AP)—Insurgent dispatches to the border tonight reported that Artesa, vital highway center of Catalonia but 65 miles from Barcelona, was being occupied by General Franco's advancing forces.

The insurgents were said to have thrown several pontoon bridges across the icy, flood-swollen Segre river 30 miles northeast of Lerida to replace permanent structures blown up by retreating militiamen, and to have opened a way through the outskirts of Artesa.

After encircling the town, insurgent advisers said, the troops began direct assaults which gradually reduced government resistance. By nightfall the conquest of the "key to Catalonia" was declared "practically completed."

Artesa, once a prosperous textile center, lies just south of the Segre river.

Junction point of highways to the French frontier, Barcelona and Tarragona, Artesa has become the immediate major objective of the insurgent campaign into Catalonia which started December 23. It is some 60 miles northwest of Barcelona.

Strikers Tie Up Los Angeles Port

Los Angeles, Jan. 3 (AP)—The port of Los Angeles was dormant today as a shipping tie-up resulted from the picketing of 17 vessels by the Marine Clerks' Union, CIO affiliate, to enforce demands for a new method of computing salaries.

In San Francisco the liner Mariposa waited for 244 passengers, now in Los Angeles, to be brought there. Matson line officials said the Mariposa would omit Los Angeles as a port of call enroute to Honolulu and Australia, because of the tie-up.

Tornado Kills Two At Montgomery, La.

Montgomery, La., Jan. 3 (AP)—Two persons were killed and a child was injured by a tornado which ripped through this town of 224 population tonight.

The dead were Mr. and Mrs. Ross Metcalfe. Their three-and-a-half-year-old son, Willie, was reported to have suffered a broken leg. He was taken to a hospital at Alexandria, about 45 miles east of here.

Pensions For Bank Employees Favored

Lansing, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Michigan Bankers association said today it would discuss plans for an old age pension system for bank employees at a conference here Thursday.

Ray O. Brundage of Lansing, manager for the association, said the members would discuss four different plans, each of which would provide bank employees with a retirement income in excess of $100 a month, in addition to their social security pensions.

PEGAN'S RULE AS TAX CZAR IS CUT SHORT

FITZGERALD PUTS McPHERSON BACK AS CHAIRMAN

Lansing, Jan. 3 (AP)—Governor Fitzgerald ordered the restoration of Neville B. McPherson, veteran Lowell Republican, to the chairmanship of the state tax commission today. McPherson's elevation which will supplant John N. Fegan, youthful Murphy appointee, will become effective tomorrow.

Fitzgerald said there would be no action toward Fegan's removal from the commission "for the present." He expressed regret at the need to demote Fegan in Fegan's absence from the capital, but said he had sought to communicate with him and did not find him in his office.

Need New Revenues. Fegan, 26-year-old former municipal judge of Sault Ste. Marie, replaced McPherson as chairman a year ago in a stormy fight that the Lowell Republican carried to the courts. A circuit court decision held that the tax commission's chairman was an appointee of the governor, and could be removed at the governor's pleasure.

McPherson warned at the time that Murphy was establishing a precedent which other governors might follow, and Fegan's demotion came as no surprise in the capital, Fitzgerald let it be known immediately following his election that McPherson, who gave up ambitions of his own for the governorship to support Fitzgerald in the primary, was slated for reinstatement.

McPherson sought reinstatement today, he explained, in order that he, as chairman, might call a meeting of the tax commission to tap several hundred thousand dollars in tax revenues for the state and for local governments. Fegan has been out of the city, and McPherson said the two remaining members were "practically powerless" to hold a meeting without their chairman.

By T. H. PECK. Lansing, Jan. 3 (AP)—The Republican state central committee commended Chairman James F. Thomson and his aides, James G. Frey, in a formal resolution today upon their conduct of the fall campaign that resulted in complete victory for the party's state ticket.

Observers believed the committee's action served to entrench Thomson in his post at the party's helm. The meeting had been regarded as a logical occasion for the development of a contest over the important job of piloting the Republican state organization through the crucial 1940 campaign.

May Run For Office. There remained the possibility that Thomson might decide to seek a state office in the spring election, leaving a clear field for

FRANCE GUARDS OVER TUNISIANS

Daladier Says Country Has Power to Assure Security

BY ROBERT B. PARKER, JR. Tunis, Tunisia, Jan. 3 (AP)—Premier Daladier declared tonight before French and Tunisian officials that "France has the force to assure your security."

He spoke at a banquet in honor of his visit to the North African protectorate of the French government while local Italian Fascist leaders circulated a demand for equal rights for Italian nationals in Tunisia.

Daladier hammered home the points of his speech with blows on the table that made the dishes dance.

"France will never permit your efforts to be turned to the wall which is to create here an African soil a human community comparable to the French," he said.

"France has the force to assure your security," her power is invincible."

Daladier declared his words were intended for the 18,000,000 population of the French North African empire of Tunisia, Algeria and Morocco.

Pioneer Dies

Capt. Hans Peter Hansen, 77, for more than fifty years in business in Escanaba, died Sunday evening after an illness of several weeks duration.

CAPT. HANSEN PASSES AWAY

Hansen & Jensen Company Vice President Was 77 Years Old

Hans Peter Hansen, 77, vice president of the Hansen & Jensen oil company, died Sunday evening January 1, at 9 o'clock at Bellin Memorial hospital in Green Bay where he had been a surgical patient for the past several weeks.

Mr. Hansen, better known as Captain Hansen in the community in which he had lived for close to sixty years, was born in Als, Denmark, February 13, 1861. He came to the United States, directly to Escanaba in 1881, and had made his home here continuously from that time.

He and Mrs. Hansen, who was Anna M. Jensen, were married here March 19, 1888 by Rev. H. W. Thompson of the First Methodist Episcopal church and the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding was celebrated at a family reunion this past year.

Mr. Hansen's partnership with his brother-in-law, Peter Jensen, in Hansen and Jensen, one of the city's pioneer business firms, was an association of over fifty years' standing.

He was a life-long member of the First Presbyterian church of this city, and was prominent in parish activities, and he also was a member of the Modern Woodmen and the Royal Neighbors society.

Surviving are his wife, two sons and four daughters, Peter Hansen and Henry Hansen, Mrs. Madge Johnson, Mrs. Chester Nichol, the former Anna Hansen, and Mrs. Paul Richter, who was Emma Hansen, Escanaba; and Miss Mayme Hanson, Chicago; also twenty-five grandchildren and three great grandchildren; one brother, Chris Hansen, of Minneapolis, and one sister, Mrs. Catherine Baker, who lives in Canada.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon, at 2 o'clock in the chapel of the Anderson Funeral home where the body is resting in state, and at 2:30 o'clock at the First Presbyterian church. Burial will be in the family lot in Lakeview cemetery.

Sentence Of Death Confirmed For Cash Kidnapers, McCall

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 3 (AP)—The Florida supreme court today affirmed Franklin Pierce McCall's conviction and death sentence for the ransom kidnaping of 5-year-old James Bailey Cash, Jr., at Princeton last May.

The child, who disappeared from his home, was found dead in a clump of palmettos after $10,000 ransom had been paid for his return.

Cafe Man's Body Found In Millpond

Paw Paw, Mich., Jan. 3 (AP)—The body of Frank Sage, 53, cafe operator here 30 years, was found in the millpond today, and Coroner Frank Thompson, who said Sage had been ill, declared the death a suicide. The widow and a son survive.

SESSION FULL OF HEADACHES STARTS TODAY

GOVERNOR TO GIVE CLUE IN MESSAGE ON THURSDAY

Lansing, Jan. 3 (AP)—Michigan legislators, returning for the opening of the 1939 session tomorrow noon, predicted today that their labors will be neither short nor calm and that four major disputes will face them for settlement.

Governor Fitzgerald's opening message to the legislature, to be delivered Thursday, will provide the legislators a clue to the proper attitude toward those disputes. They are:

- 1. Labor relations. 2. Civil service. 3. Economy. 4. Taxes.

There was a half of headaches in each problem, but the newly-inaugurated governor has served warning all must be dealt with if the Republican campaign pledges are to be fulfilled.

Fitzgerald, in his inaugural address said that industrial peace was one of his major objectives; he has criticized some phases of the present civil service law and his party associates have been outspoken in their condemnation of it; he has declared he would reduce the state payroll within 60 days to effect an $8,500,000 annual saving; and the new governor must find funds to balance the state's red-ink budget without raising new taxes for the folks back home.

Welfare War Certain. One element in the tax muddle will be a report of a tax study commission appointed by Governor Murphy and which has not yet published its findings.

Welfare administration is certain to plague the legislature in some form. Proponents of the defeated welfare reorganization measure may come back to the

with a new plan and boards of supervisors who have sizeable influence in the 1939 session are clamoring for a return of welfare administration to them.

The age-old fight over capital punishment is expected to be revived in view of the hanging of Tony Chebatoris by federal law last summer.

Labor unions have served notice they desired a broadening of the occupational disease law to include more industrial ailments.

The crime commission has advocated abolition of the coroner system and its replacement with a medical examiner system.

The conservation department has reopened the "one-buck" law to question and will ask it be given authority to manage the deer herd without recourse biennially to the legislature.

TRAFFIC TOLL

Mulliken, (AP)—Ora Turner, 55-year-old farmer was killed, and his wife, Luce, was injured Tuesday when their automobile collided with another on M-42.

Adrian, (AP)—Mrs. Ann Stahl, 74, of Postoria, O., was fatally injured Tuesday when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband collided with another on US-223 east of Blissfield.

Grand Rapids, (AP)—Injuries suffered Christmas night when he was struck by an automobile proved fatal Tuesday for George Laughlin, 65, of Grand Rapids.

Saginaw, Mich., Jan. 3 (AP)—Saginaw county recorded its first traffic fatality of 1939 when Mrs. Thekla L. Radtke, 33, of Saginaw, died today in general hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile collision Sunday

SOO TO MIAMI ROAD PROPOSED

Military Affairs Chief to Push for Super 4-Lane Highway

Washington, Jan. 3. (AP)—Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the house military affairs committee, said tonight his committee would give early consideration to a proposal that a four-lane highway be built from Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., to Miami, Fla.

The route would follow the Dixie highway through Cincinnati, Ohio, and Lexington, Ky., to Miami, with a branch from Miami to New Orleans. While intended primarily as a peace-time traffic artery, May said, the road would afford in time of war a means of quick transportation for troops and war supplies.

aspirants to the chairmanship. In that event, a wide-open battle would be likely. The committee adopted the laudatory resolution, along with resolutions fixing the time and place of the party's spring convention, after a series of huddles in a cloakroom where the Republican organization's "big three"—Edward N. Barnard of Detroit, William McKeighan of Flint and former state treasurer Frank D. McKay of Grand Rapids—were present or represented.

Barnard, whose voice and votes appeared to dominate the party's last state convention in Grand Rapids, introduced the resolution. McKeighan also was present at the committee meeting, and McKay was represented by his close associate, Ivan E. Hull of Grand Rapids.

Convention Feb. 23 Later Barnard and Hull individually expressed satisfaction with Thomson. McKay did not appear at the meeting.

The committee chose Flint, which will be the scene of the Democratic spring convention the preceding week, for its own state gathering. The date designated for the Republican state convention, which will decide upon candidates for superintendent of public instruction, two supreme court vacancies, two vacancies on the state board of agriculture and two on the University of Michigan board of regents, and one on the state board of education, is February 23.

Postmasters Admit Embezzling At Soo; Two Are Sentenced

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 3. (AP)—Two former Michigan postmasters who pleaded guilty to charges of embezzlement of federal funds were sentenced today by Federal Judge Fred M. Raymond.

Howard F. Beach, former postmaster of Cedarville, Mich., who pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $1,535 in postoffice funds, was sentenced to pay a fine of $650 and received a suspended sentence of 10 months in prison. A similar sentence was given Leonard J. McGraw, Engadine postmaster, who pleaded guilty to embezzlement of $1,578 in government money.

Judge Raymond sentenced J. P. Stanchino of Houghton, Mich., to serve six months in the federal detention farm at Milan, Mich. Stanchino was found guilty of forging WPA checks.

ORCHARDIST DIES Grand Rapids, Jan. 3. (AP)—Thomas Elwood Graham, 73, widely known horticulturist and fruit grower, died here Tuesday afternoon. He was a native of Grand Rapids and his father, Elwood Graham, was a pioneer in the fruit growing industry in western Michigan. He was associated with his brother, Robert, for many years and owned orchards in Kent and Manistee counties. Funeral services will be held Friday.

STRIKERS RETURN Bay City, (AP)—Thirty-eight WPA workers on a Bay county drain project struck Tuesday but returned to work later in the day when they were reassigned to different jobs. The men complained that the job to which they had been assigned was too far from their homes.

renomination last summer, that he intended to fight for a complete revision of the administration's crop control program. A report submitted to the house committee on un-American activities denouncing Secretary of Labor Perkins for failing to deport Harry Bridges, west coast director of the CIO, and asking that the investigation be extended and include the National Labor Relations Board.

In addition, American foreign policy, as well as national defense, took on the status of one of the session's most important issues. Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.), of the senate foreign relations committee said he favored "ostracism" of Japan and announced that his committee would review all statutes relating to foreign affairs.

Special Message Coming At the White House, President Roosevelt disclosed he would send a special message on national defense to congress early next week. This, it is widely believed, will call for large increases in defense facilities, notably in aviation strength.

The document will be in addition to the regular message on the "state of the union" which President Roosevelt will deliver personally to a joint session of the senate and house a few days later. The document will be in addition to the regular message on the "state of the union" which President Roosevelt will deliver personally to a joint session of the senate and house a few days later.

The events on Capitol Hill today tended to confirm many predictions, made since the Republican election victories in November, that the coming session would produce more and greater controversies than any in recent years.

Many Republicans are obviously more than ever determined to block new deal efforts at further social and economic experiments, and to cut down federal spending and reduce the powers that have been given to the chief executive.

Watching The Straws The conservative faction of the Democratic party, encouraged to believe that the November elections showed popular support for its attitude, is obviously of a like mind. But before doing anything to increase the rift within the party it is awaiting some signal as to the direction the new deal may now take.

However, to most outward appearances today, there were few signs of this bitter and deep-seated feud. In both house and senate, new dealers, anti-new dealers, conservatives, liberal senators who beat the purge effort of last summer and senators who won with Mr. Roosevelt's support, milled about together, laughing, shaking hands, exchanging wisecracks and generally enjoying the family reunion which each convening day brings to the capitol.

In the senate, Garner, who has become a leading force among the conservative Democrats, ascended the dais promptly at noon and rapped for order. The session opened with a prayer. Then, in groups of four, the new and re-elected members of the senate presented themselves at the rostrum while Garner administered the oath of office.

Galleries Shushed Crowded galleries buzzed with conversation. Senators wandered from desk to desk still engaged in greeting each other, laughing and gossiping.

Finally, Senator Lewis (D-Ill.) resplendent in a faultlessly cut brown frock coat, arose, smoothly in his pinkish gray whiskers, and after valiantly calling "Mr. President" several times, gained recognition. He asked that Garner administration the galleries against noise, "so we may hear the oaths administered." Garner did so, adding a warning to the senators too.

The oath-taking finished, the senate proceeded with other routine matters incident to opening day, committees were named to inform the president, busy at the time preparing his annual message to congress, that congress had met, and to let the house in on the same information.

Works Progress Administration in such states. The committee believes that the funds appropriated by the congress for the relief of those in need and distress have been in many instances diverted from these high purposes to political ends.

The committee condemns this conduct and recommends to the senate that legislation be prepared to make impossible, so far as legislation can do so, further offenses of this character.

SENATE GROUP CHARGES WPA CASH MISUSED (Continued from Page One) Reporting to the senate as its committee on campaign expenditures, the group declared that funds now in need and in distress had been diverted in many instances to political ends.

Although the committee fixed no responsibility for this condition upon Harry L. Hopkins, the former WPA administrator whom President Roosevelt appointed recently to be secretary of commerce, it sustained some charges which Hopkins had denied concerning the WPA in Kentucky.

May Contest Hopkins Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, indicated strongly that the campaign committee's findings would be made the basis of a contest against confirmation of Hopkins' cabinet appointment.

Another Republican senator opposed to Hopkins predicted privately, however, that the former relief chief would be confirmed. The campaign committee was outspoken in its denunciation of an utterance made before a meeting of WPA workers here last June by Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator, whose recent designation by President Roosevelt to head the National Youth Administration is not subject to senate confirmation.

Williams had told the relief workers "We've got to keep our friends in power." The committee report was signed by all five members, Chairman Sheppard (D-Texas), and Senators O'Mahoney (D-Wy.), Walsh (D-Mass.), Harrison (D-Miss.) and White (R-Maine).

Legislation Outlined Although reporting political abuse of WPA workers in Kentucky, Tennessee and Pennsylvania, the committee said its evidence failed to sustain charges it had received of such abuse in Maryland, Missouri, New York, Indiana, New Jersey and Ohio.

Legislation recommended by the investigators would, among other things, prohibit any beneficiary of federal relief funds or anyone administering federal relief laws from making contributions for any political purpose.

Prohibit any relief official from using his authority or influence to coerce the political action of any person or group. Make it a felony, instead of a misdemeanor as at present, for anyone to deprive another person of work relief because of his race, religion, political affiliations, or membership in a labor organization.

Prohibit relief officials from furnishing lists of those on relief to a political candidate or agent. Prohibit political contributions by federal employees, not only to any member of congress but also to any candidate for such office or to anyone acting in the candidate's behalf.

Amend the federal corrupt practices act to prohibit candidates from promising work, employment, money or other benefits in connection with public relief.

BY WILLIAM R. MULLER Associated Press Michigan Correspondent Washington, Jan. 4. (AP)—The Michigan delegation, with an increased Republican membership and its eyes on 1940, is hopeful the voice of the mid-west will echo powerfully in the 76th congress.

PREMIER QUILTS; CABINET FALLS

Japanese Government Is Split Over Chinese War Policies

Tokyo, Jan. 4 (Wednesday) (AP)—Finally surrendering to the pressure of extreme nationalist elements, the government of Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye fell today after 19 minutes in office.

It was considered almost certain in informed circles that Baron Kichiro Hiranuma, president of the privy council and leader of the former nationalist party, Kokuonsha, would be summoned to the emperor's palace tonight or Thursday and ordered to form a new cabinet.

One of the rifts in the cabinet covering Konoye's resignation was full application of the national mobilization law which gave the government power to draft the country's manpower and economic resources for an emergency.

Nugent, terse spoken dairyman, indicated he might require a week to determine committee appointments, and that he might ask the house to recess during the interim.

Opposition to Nugent's election collapsed at a caucus in the Republican central committee headquarters and he was accepted on the first ballot. Rep. Maurice E. Post of Rockford, who had campaigned for the speakership, will be the speaker pro tempore, to hold the chair during Nugent's absence.

It indicated it also might contest the election of Frank C. Priest, of Mancelona, former Republican member of the house, as sergeant-at-arms. The house Republicans chose Harold Hill of Kent county as postmaster and C. D. Birkholm of Eau Claire as his assistant. The house Democrats chose Rep. Joseph C. Murphy of Detroit as their floor leader.

Opposes Junkets Nugent, declaring he wanted to speed the legislative session to adjournment by "May 1, or earlier," said he would oppose the time honored custom of junkets, in which the state has spent thousands of dollars in past years, to send members to visit state institutions and departments.

"Junkets," he asserted, "are a waste of time and money. I can see where, conceivably, it might be in the interest of the taxpayers to send somebody from the ways and means committee to determine whether an expenditure proposed by some institution is actually necessary. But I can see no other value of junkets."

He said he would endorse a proposed change in the rules of the house of representatives under which appropriations bills could be speeded to enactment.

The old rules provide that an appropriation must lie on the desks of members five legislative days after being reported out of committee before a final vote. Thus, when they came from committee late in any week, the week end recess held up final passage for two to three days.

He said he would ask that the rule be amended to provide for only five calendar days consideration of the members before the taking of a vote.

The speaker, who succeeds the Democratic former Representative George A. Schroeder of Detroit said he also would approve a rules change to reduce the number of committees through which bills pass before being reported to the floor for debate. The rules now require the appointment of 66 committees.

proval at a caucus was equivalent to election. Nugent, terse spoken dairyman, indicated he might require a week to determine committee appointments, and that he might ask the house to recess during the interim.

Opposition to Nugent's election collapsed at a caucus in the Republican central committee headquarters and he was accepted on the first ballot. Rep. Maurice E. Post of Rockford, who had campaigned for the speakership, will be the speaker pro tempore, to hold the chair during Nugent's absence.

It indicated it also might contest the election of Frank C. Priest, of Mancelona, former Republican member of the house, as sergeant-at-arms. The house Republicans chose Harold Hill of Kent county as postmaster and C. D. Birkholm of Eau Claire as his assistant. The house Democrats chose Rep. Joseph C. Murphy of Detroit as their floor leader.

Opposes Junkets Nugent, declaring he wanted to speed the legislative session to adjournment by "May 1, or earlier," said he would oppose the time honored custom of junkets, in which the state has spent thousands of dollars in past years, to send members to visit state institutions and departments.

"Junkets," he asserted, "are a waste of time and money. I can see where, conceivably, it might be in the interest of the taxpayers to send somebody from the ways and means committee to determine whether an expenditure proposed by some institution is actually necessary. But I can see no other value of junkets."

He said he would endorse a proposed change in the rules of the house of representatives under which appropriations bills could be speeded to enactment.

The old rules provide that an appropriation must lie on the desks of members five legislative days after being reported out of committee before a final vote. Thus, when they came from committee late in any week, the week end recess held up final passage for two to three days.

He said he would ask that the rule be amended to provide for only five calendar days consideration of the members before the taking of a vote.

The speaker, who succeeds the Democratic former Representative George A. Schroeder of Detroit said he also would approve a rules change to reduce the number of committees through which bills pass before being reported to the floor for debate. The rules now require the appointment of 66 committees.

"There are many new faces in the house this year," Nugent said. "I don't know the background of many members. I don't see how I can make my committee appointments in less than a week, and that may entail a recess." Incoming bills must be sent to committees for a report to the floor before they can be debated generally.

READ PICKS STAFF Lansing, Jan. 3. (AP)—Michigan's new attorney general, Thomas Read, picked the announcement of the personnel of his staff today with the declaration he would press the state's fight for the extradition of Frank B. Scholl, convicted swindler, from Tennessee.

Read retained Andrew DiMaggio, assistant attorney general, who has been handling the Scholl case, and ordered DiMaggio to "push the case to the limit." Political figures had watched for an indication of Read's attitude on the Scholl case because it had figured in Democratic criticism of Governor Fitzgerald during the last election campaign. Fitzgerald had pardoned Scholl on one count and paroled him on another. The state wants to return Scholl to face two other fraud warrants and as a parole violator.

John Saul Resigns As City Supervisor

Munising, Jan. 3.—John Saul, state representative-elect, Saturday turned in his resignation as supervisor from the city on the Alger county board of supervisors to the Munising city commission. The resignation was accepted by the commission but action on the selection of a successor was deferred until the next meeting of the body.

The commission also adopted a resolution in accordance with that of the Alger county board of supervisors, asking that the state highway department give consideration to the needs of Alger county when the program of hard-surfacing of roads is drawn up for 1939.

December Snowfall Total Was 3 Feet

Munising, Jan. 3.—More than three feet of snow fell in Munising during the month of December, the records of Albert Oas, cooperative weather observer, show. A total of 37.6 inches of snow fell during the month. The month was dark, with 26 cloudy days out of the 31 in the month, four partly cloudy and one clear.

Eleven below was the coldest temperature recorded here during the month, 39 degrees above zero the warmest and the temperature average for the month, 23.7 degrees above zero.

LABOR BOARD WINS A ROUND IN FORD CASE

(Continued from Page One) a free hand to bar or regulate liquor importations when the federal prohibition law was repealed. The tribunal upheld Michigan and Missouri statutes barring alcoholic beverages shipped from states which enact liquor control laws deemed discriminatory.

Justice Brandeis wrote the opinion holding that the state's right to control liquor imports was not limited by either the commerce clause or the due process clause of the federal constitution. He concluded: "The substantive power of the state to prevent the sale of intoxicating liquor is undoubted."

Brickbats Hurlled in New York City Cab Driver Strike

New York, Jan. 3. (AP)—Hurling brickbats caused the first damage reported to police tonight in a general strike of 11,000 taxicab drivers called this afternoon by the Transport Workers Union (TCU).

Fearing a recurrence of the violence that marked a 1934 cab strike, police were placed on an emergency basis shortly after the strike call was issued by Warren G. Horie, TWU organizer.

A Queens police station reported four or five men in a passing sedan had stoned a cab of a street company. Scattered reports told of cruising parties warning drivers at taxi stands to park their cabs "or you'll be sorry!"

FEWER CASES TO BE HEARD

Court Calendar Shorter for Term to Start Here Jan. 9

Faced with a shortened calendar including only 31 cases, Judge Frank A. Bell will open the January session of Delta county circuit court here next Monday. At the last term, in October, there were 55 cases on the docket and an extra session was held after the regular term to dispose of those left unheeded.

The list is headed by 13 criminal cases. Henry Auger is charged with larceny by conversion; Charles Blosser, illegal fishing; Olin Stearns, cruelty to animals; Robert Kostsky, unlawfully driving away an automobile; Rene Meyette, forgery; Alfred Riquel, arson; Lloyd Magnuson, receiving stolen property; Harold Minor, larceny; Clifford LaFond, larceny; Rudolph Norman, larceny; James Faucett and Lester Ness, statutory offenses; and Henry Shampo, disorderly conduct, third offense.

Jury civil cases to be heard are Fred Fagan vs. George Beltzer, assumpsit and garnishment; Michigan Mutual Liability company vs. Paul Herring, trespass on the case; Alice P. Alton et. al. vs. Edward J. Brunelle; Charles Gauthier vs. Township of Garden and Edward Setterlund vs. Roy F. Warrin.

At the January session 5 non jury civil cases, 6 chancery cases and 2 cases in which there has been no action for more than one year will also be heard. Jurors have been drawn for the session, and attorneys will meet with Judge Bell on the opening day to arrange the order in which cases will be heard. Several cases are expected to be added to the calendar at that time.

District Kiwanians Hold Winter Meet At Milwaukee, Wis.

Charles B. Madden, Marquette, will be installed as Kiwanis lieutenant governor for the Northern division at the annual mid-winter conference of Kiwanis club and Kiwanis district officers, which opens Monday morning, January 9, at the Schroder hotel, Milwaukee, for a two-day session.

The Northern division includes Kiwanis clubs of Escanaba, Iron Mountain, Ironwood and Marquette, each of which will send delegations to the conference, including the club president, vice president and secretary. Other Kiwanians of these clubs who will have an important part in the conference program are:

Dr. Frank O. Logic, Iron Mountain, an underprivileged child worker; Rev. James G. Ward, Escanaba, Kiwanis extension; Charles B. Madden, Marquette, presiding Monday afternoon business session; William Sense, Marquette, chairman of the 1939 district convention at Marquette.

Among those from Escanaba planning to attend are: Edward V. Rudness, Clarence Zerbel, Dr. K. F. Harrington and C. B. Smith.

The conference will discuss plans through which Kiwanis can aid agriculture, business, community betterment, underprivileged children, support of the movement to aid churches in their spiritual aims, better citizenship and the living of the golden rule.

The installation of officers will take place at the Governor's banquet in the Schroder hotel Crystal ballroom during which George M. Hetherington, LaCrosse schoolmaster, will take office as the 1939 district governor, along with his staff of twelve lieutenant governors.

The Kiwanis ladies' reception committee includes Mrs. George

Frank Murphy Chosen As Attorney General

Washington (AP)—Red-haired Frank Murphy, of Michigan, took office Monday as one of the youngest attorneys general the United States has ever had. After the solemn White House ceremony was over, the 45-year-old former governor promised to conduct his office with "soundness and helpfulness."

While Murphy, a close friend of President Roosevelt, was being sworn by Associate Justice Stanley Reed, of the supreme court, several senators of both parties predicted he would be confirmed readily by the senate.

He was the second to take over a cabinet post in 10 days. Harry L. Hopkins, former relief administrator, took the oath as secretary of commerce in place of Daniel C. Roper, Christmas eve.

FRANK MURPHY

May Ask Facts

The only discordant note in senatorial comment was struck by Senator McCarran (D-Nev.). While he said he knew nothing "unfavorable" to Murphy, he expressed belief that the senate would "wish to have information on his handling of the sit-down strikes."

(Fierce controversy over Murphy's attitude toward the sit-downs in the automotive industry culminated in testimony last summer before the Dies committee that he blocked enforcement of a court order to evict strikers. President Roosevelt, defending Murphy, accused the committee of unfairness.)

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) said today he did not "expect to oppose" confirmation, believing cabinet appointments were the chief executive's personal privilege and responsibility. Senator Brown (D-Mich.) has supported Murphy.

The oath was administered to the new attorney general in the president's study. President Roosevelt, Vice-President Garner and a large group of fellow cabinet officers, officials, relatives and friends looked on as the soft-spoken nominee received his commission and swore to uphold the Constitution.

FACES HIGH COURT

Washington, Jan. 3 (AP)—Attorney General Frank Murphy is not eligible to practice before the supreme court.

He will be tomorrow, however. Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson will introduce the former Michigan governor to the justices when court meets at noon.

DEATH CLAIMS JOHN COLBERT

Pioneer Escanaba Citizen Was 89 Years Old; Ill Four Days

John M. Colbert, 89, a resident of Escanaba for the past sixty-three years, died at 11 o'clock New Year's Eve, at his home, 311 South Twelfth street. Mr. Colbert had been in failing health for some time, but was seriously ill only four days.

Funeral services, with the Deagan Funeral Home in charge of arrangements, were held Tuesday morning at a solemn requiem high mass at St. Patrick's church. The Very Rev. Fr. Thomas A. Kennedy was celebrant of the mass, Rev. Fr. Paschal Kerner, O. F. M., deacon, and Rev. Fr. Nolan McKevitt, sub-deacon.

The body was shipped after the services to Fond du Lac, Wis., to rest in state in the Hargrove and Gordon Funeral Home until this morning when burial will be made in the family lot in Calvary cemetery.

Funeralbearers at the services Tuesday morning were Ray Gasmann, John Manning, John E. Johnson, Frank Fontaine, Francis Rogers and Tom Dufour.

Mr. Colbert was born in Garrycaba, County Cork, Ireland, May 6, 1849, and he came to Escanaba in 1875. He worked as a carpenter in the Chicago & Northwest river shops and bridge department from 1875 until 1921, and also was engaged as a contractor in Escanaba during five years of that time. He retired in 1921. His marriage to Miss Mary Webb, who passed away February 24, 1934, took place in Dotyville, Wis., June 24, 1873.

Surviving are one son, James A. Colbert, two grandchildren, John and Eileen Colbert, three nephews and two nieces who lived in Concord, N. H., and one brother, Patrick of Garrycaba, Ireland.

Escanaba Schools Open This Morning

Public schools of Escanaba will open at the usual time this morning after the regular year end holidays.

Teachers returned from their respective homes yesterday and everything is in readiness for resumption of school sessions.

Semester examinations will begin on January 25 and extend through Friday, January 27, when the first semester ends.

The first basketball game of the year will be on Tuesday, January 10, when Coach Carl Nordberg's Eskymos meet their traditional rivals, Gladstone, on the local court.

Miss Ella Bacon, South 13th street, will resume her duties as second grade teacher at the Barr school after being unable to teach for several months because of illness. Miss Dorothy Cox substituted in Miss Bacon's absence.

Miss Mildred Sourwine, Sixth avenue south, first grade teacher at the Barr school, is confined to her home because of illness.

FURTHER CUT NOT EXPECTED

Letmer Notified News Release On School Aid Incorrect

Any further reduction in state school aid is not expected this year, a representative of the Michigan department of public instruction informed John A. Letmer, superintendent of schools, by telephone yesterday.

Word of a further reduction in school aid by retiring Governor Frank Murphy was carried in news dispatches from the state capital over the week-end. The state department, however, said that no such additional cut was made by Murphy before he retired from office.

Several months ago, however, the governor did reduce the appropriation for state aid to schools from $28,000,000 to $19,000,000. The reduction was made at that time over the resistance of Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction, who contended that such a cut would endanger the stability of the school system and would compel some schools to shorten their terms or cut salaries.

Facing $20,000 Deficit

The Escanaba school budget for the current fiscal year was based on the $19,000,000 appropriation for the whole state. Because of that reduced appropriation, Escanaba schools are facing a heavy deficit.

A deficit of from $20,000 to $25,000 will face local schools unless the incoming legislature makes an emergency appropriation or unless delinquent taxes bring in heavy returns. At present, there is about $65,000 outstanding in delinquent school taxes in the city. Under state law, persons are allowed to pay only their school taxes if they prefer and it is upon this law that the school board hopes to derive some badly needed revenue. Current school taxes also are due at present.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY GOUTIN

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary Goutin of Isabella were held 9 o'clock Monday morning at the Isabella Catholic church, with Rev. Fr. V. C. Savageau officiating.

The pallbearers were Caleb Johnson, Ray Leo and Francis Nadeau, Clifford and Joseph Bourgeois.

Retiring Register Of Deeds To Enter Insurance Business

Werner A. Olson, who retired as Delta county register of deeds on January 1, announced yesterday that he will enter the insurance business in Escanaba. The post of register of deeds was abolished by the county board of supervisors at a meeting last summer, effective January 1, and work formerly handled by the register has been added to that of the county clerk's office.

Olson was elected to the post on the Democratic ticket in 1932, and was reelected in 1934 and 1936. Before going into politics he was a salesman for the J. R. Watkins company.

CITIES SEEKING BIGGER RETURN

Pay 85% of Road Taxes; Get Only 11% Back From State

Cities and villages through the Michigan Municipal League are seeking a larger share of highway taxes in return for their contributions, A. V. Aronson, Escanaba city engineer, said yesterday.

According to a recent study made by the Michigan Municipal League, 81 percent of all motor vehicles in the state of Michigan are owned by persons residing in cities and villages and that these residents pay 85 percent of all state-collected highway-user taxes.

The study also revealed that 54 percent of all motor vehicular travel within the state is upon city and village streets. Only 11 percent of all highway taxes collected is returned to the cities and villages.

The Michigan Municipal League recently passed a resolution requesting that a more simplified and more equitable method of distribution be devised by the new legislature in order that cities and villages get their rightful share of taxes. It is pointed out that cities and villages have to maintain the streets where most of the traffic is felt and the League feels that these units should receive a larger share of taxes collected in order to care for these streets.

A Significant Message

As one who has been through the mill of public service for many years and then remained as a sideline observer the last two years, Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald has gained a clear-cut perspective as to how state government should be administered in the interests of everyone.

Although he reserved the announcement of his legislative program until later, the new governor did indicate in his inaugural message the general course his administration will follow the next two years in an effort to "lead the people of Michigan back to the solid ground of safe, sound government."

He promised to work for more amicable and profitable relations between laboring people and employers, and to resume once more the practice of balancing expenditures with revenues. As governor, he will lead but not dictate, he pledged. Cooperation will be the watchword.

Considerable significance should be attached to the following statement by the governor: "Let me say here that the victory of last November does not in any way blind me to the rights of the minority, nor does it signify that we Republicans must erase from the map of our state government all traces left by the opposition. We shall retain that which is good, and discard that which is bad."

These words should lend encouragement to those who have feared that the Republican party would scrap the civil service system to permit a wholesale grabbing of the spoils. Civil service reform in Michigan was inaugurated by Governor Fitzgerald, during his previous term, when he appointed the special study commission, headed by Prof. James K. Pollock of the University of Michigan. The commission's recommendations were adopted in the main by the succeeding legislature.

The law can be strengthened to prevent the solicitation of political campaign funds from state employees and other revisions made to remedy minor defects, but it is not necessary to repeal the act. Apparently, the new governor does not plan to do this, his inaugural message would indicate.

Wants Wilderness Areas

SECRETARY ICKES of the department of interior wants congress to pass legislation to protect the primitive wilderness of certain national parks from the encroachments of civilization.

The secretary of interior would have the standards for wilderness national parks set by law, rather than depend upon administrative orders, which he fears might be changed time to time. Among the parks he mentions is the new Isle Royale project in Lake Superior.

Secretary Ickes believes that wilderness areas should have a minimum of road building and hotels should be totally excluded. Accommodations for visitors would be limited to only overnight shelters and camping grounds.

While Isle Royale will have only hikers' trails and not a single automobile road, the new Lake Superior national park will have a couple resort hotels, according to the present plans of the National Park Service. If Secretary Ickes is successful in securing passage of the kind of law he has in mind, these hotel plans would be out and Isle Royale would assume a different character than that contemplated by those who advocated its inclusion in the national park system. These advocates did not intend that Isle Royale should become the Coney Island type of playground, but they hoped that comfortable housing would be provided so that tourist travel to the island would increase.

If Isle Royale is to be allowed to become more primitive, the traffic to the new national park will be mainly by nature lovers and others who like to hike and rough it in the outdoors. It is doubtful whether there are enough of this class to contribute any substantial gain in tourist business to the Upper Peninsula.

Appointed, at Last!

THOSE who have been becoming tired of the think-pieces that the Washington news correspondents have been turning out during the dull season at the national capital probably will be relieved upon hearing that former Governor Frank Murphy has been appointed and sworn in finally as attorney general. He succeeds Homer S. Cummings, who resigned to return to private law practice.

While there will be some criticism of the appointment in the senate, it is expected that the upper house will finally confirm the naming of Murphy at attorney general. Vice President John N. Garner, who opposed the former Michigan governor for the supreme court, has voiced his approval of the latest presidential choice, and apparently will be able to swing sufficient support for confirmation.

It will be recalled that the political observers were opining that Murphy would retire to private law practice in Detroit in order to be on the scene to run again for the governorship in 1940. The former governor did not lose a day on the public payroll; however, for he left the gubernatorial office on Sunday and was sworn in to the attorney general's post on Monday. The appointment puts into President Roosevelt's cabinet another ardent New Dealer. Just several days before, Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, replaced the conservative Democrat, Daniel Roper, as secretary of commerce. The New Deal purge is still in progress.

Captain Hansen

THE death of Capt. Hans Peter Hansen removes from this community another of those early-day pioneers, who by dint of hard work and enterprise have contributed in no small measure to the development of the business structure of Escanaba.

He was vice president of the Hansen and Jensen company, which first began as a commercial fishing concern and later branched out into the oil business. For more than a half century, the partnership of Hans Peter Hansen and his brother-in-law, Peter Jensen, has been doing business in this community, a fact, which in itself, reveals the stability and other fine traits of character of the two principals.

An old partnership has lost a good partner; a highly respected family, a devoted husband and father; and the community, a very useful citizen.

Testing for Drunkenness

DRUNKS behind the wheel are potential murderers and certainly drastic prosecution should follow wherever it is shown that a driver who figured in an accident was intoxicated.

But blood tests and other tests have not been shown to prove drunkenness conclusively in all cases. Doctors and courts still are looking for fool-proof proof.

A recent case in Toronto points up the fact that capacity to absorb alcohol without drunkenness ensuing varies with the individual.

According to a blood test, the driver of an auto that killed a man should have been absolutely drunk—unable to walk or answer questions. Yet the driver, said the coroner, appeared quite normal and showed no signs of drunkenness.

No drink at all while at the wheel of an auto is the safe rule, but science has yet to devise a sure-fire test for drunkenness.

Other Editors' Comments

IMPORTANT TO U. P. (Ironwood Globe)

Resignation of Phillip Schumacher of Ann Arbor from the state conservation commission leaves three places on that important body for Governor-elect Frank D. Fitzgerald to fill when he assumes office, providing he accepts Schumacher's resignation. The Ann Arbor man's term of office does not expire until April 1, 1935. The other two places to be filled are those of Harry H. Whitley of Dowagiac and Joseph P. Rahilly of Newberry.

Whitley's term expired April 1, 1937, but Governor Murphy failed to appoint a successor and Whitley continued to serve. Some observers believe Fitzgerald will not reappoint Whitley on the ground that the commission is now top-heavy with Western Michigan representatives.

The law creating the department of conservation provides that two of the seven members of the commission shall be residents of the Upper Peninsula. This means that one of the appointments to be made will be from north of the straits.

In creating the department of conservation, the legislature provided that it should "protect and conserve the natural resources of the state of Michigan; to provide and develop facilities for outdoor recreation; to prevent the destruction of timber and other forest growth by fire or otherwise; to promote the reforestation of forest lands belonging to the state; to prevent and guard against the pollution of lakes and streams within the state, and to enforce all laws provided for that purpose with all authority granted by law, and to foster and encourage the protecting and propagation of game and fish."

Conservation is rapidly increasing in importance, especially to the Upper Peninsula, which still has a great wealth of natural resources in minerals, forests, and recreational areas, including lakes and streams. The Upper Peninsula, therefore, will scan with interest the qualifications of the incoming governor's appointees.

DEFICITS MADE EASY (New York Times)

One point in connection with Chairman Eccles' letter to Senator Byrd ought not to be overlooked. Mr. Eccles favors a continuation of the present policy of government spending not primarily because of the total amount spent, but precisely because of the size of the deficit it creates. "The government's net contribution to community buying power," he writes, "is the amount that the government expends over and above the amount it collects." But on his theory, instead of achieving a prospective deficit of $4,000,000,000 by collecting $5,000,000,000 in taxes and spending $9,000,000,000, as we are doing in the current fiscal year, we could just as well spend only $4,000,000,000—which would still be slightly in excess of our total federal expenditures in 1929—and declare a complete tax holiday. Such a course would at least have the advantage that it would keep expenditures at a manageable level for the day when taxation was once more resumed.

The two biggest assets of the United States, a former premier of Belgium contends, are the Atlantic Ocean and the Pacific Ocean. And, happily, it looks as if they will not evaporate in the near future.

IT DOESN'T AGREE WITH ME (From Science)

At least 10,000,000 Americans suffer some form of the now fashionable ailment known medically as an allergy, according to an estimate made by Dr. Theodore D.

World Affairs Reviewed

Recent elections in Memel, Lithuania, resulting in reported Nazi-Party victories, swings the busy European news spotlight to another German-border sore spot.

"Lying along the northeast frontier of East Prussia (now cut off from the rest of Germany by the 'Polish Corridor'), Memel Territory is an irregular sliver of land covering an area of about 1,000 square miles," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "In general a farming and cattle-raising region. It has a population of about 150,000 people and includes the long-contested and vital Baltic port of Memel—'Klaipeda' to the Lithuanians.

—AN INTERNATIONAL FOOTBALL—"Given up by Germany under the Versailles Treaty, Memeland was administered by the Allied Powers for several years after the World War," continues the bulletin.

"In 1924, following Lithuania's action of the previous year in taking over the area, Memel Territory—with certain autonomous rights—was legally ceded to that country in a League of Nations pact signed by Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan, and Lithuania. Since then Memel has periodically rated news space as one of Europe's problem children.

"Such dramatic events as it has seen since the War, however, are mild compared with the bloody past of this strip of land on the crossroads of international history.

"More than 700 years ago, before the town of Memel was founded, its site was a battleground between Lithuanian tribes and invading Teutonic Knights, a military and religious order of German Crusaders. Destroying the Lithuanian fortress which stood guard against Baltic pirates, the Knights built their own stronghold, following it with the town of 'Memelburg.'

"As an early trade center, Memel grew and prospered, but found little peace. In the 13th, 14th and 15th centuries, it was attacked and burned time and again in a three-cornered tug-of-war between Lithuanians, Poles, and Teutons, the latter winning out in the Peace of Melno in 1422.

"For a short time in the 1600's, the Swedes called Memel theirs; later it was occupied by Russian troops. After sacking and burning the town they left it to the mercy of a deadly plague. But the stubborn city again struggled to its feet. As a thriving Prussian town, it became, until the World War, Germany's northernmost Baltic port.

—LITHUANIA'S WINDOW ON THE SEA—

"Today Memel is the Lithuanian Republic's only good port. Modernized by the government, with new wharves, warehouses, docking machinery, grain elevators, and cold storage equipment, the old city has been given a new lease on life, not only as a timber center, but as a general transit port for foreign and domestic trade.

"Regular shipping service links it with British, Polish, and Latvian ports; rail and airplane lines connect it with Berlin and Moscow.

"Much of Lithuania's commerce flows through Memel, including imports of textiles, coal, machinery, and cement; and exports of bacon, butter, eggs, lumber and skins. To its protected harbor, which, unlike many other Baltic ports, never freezes over, nearly 1,400 ships came in 1936.

"Lumber, floated down from Lithuania's great forests by canal and river, provides raw material for a busy industrial life in Memel's sawmills, cellulose plants, and ship-building yards. Varied enterprises in which Memelanders make their living include an ancient and famous industry which produces amber (trinkets from fossil gum recovered along Baltic shores).

"Vital to the Lithuanian hinterland, however, as is this active port of some 50,000 inhabitants, Memel has only lately been connected with the interior by direct railway service. Until the opening of a new route to Telsiai in 1932 the only communication between the port and Lithuania's capital, Kaunas, was by way of Germany.

—A NON-MELTING POT—

"Sandwiched between East Prussia and Lithuania, both the territory and town of Memel are mixtures of German and Lithuanian influence. Like that other border region of Sudetenland, where German population is largely centered in the cities, with the Czechs in the country, Memeland's Teutonic concentration is urban; the Lithuanians are predominant in rural districts.

Memeland has not only Lithuania's sole port but also four-fifths of its already limited seaboard with a teeming fishing industry. While Memeland is not especially fertile, particularly in the sandy regions near the shore, it holds the lower and navigable section of Lithuania's chief river, the Nemunas, a vital economic artery of the country."

DOING ITS BEST (St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

There is no reason for Americans, with their pride in claiming super-colossal achievements in every field, to be downcast over the revelation that the Britisher pays $15 more a year in taxes than a citizen in the United States. Whatever else may be said of the New Deal, it cannot be denied it is doing its part to correct this deficiency.

All is not Utopia in the Soviet, it would seem. Government newspapers are campaigning against drunkenness and "job racketeering."

New York—Frustrated ambitions: We've often heard Moss Hart, one of the first names in the playwrights' circles, say that if he had his way, he'd run a sheep farm the rest of his life and make it profitable.

The team of Rodgers & Hart compose some of the most popular songs in the country. Yet those gentlemen are not a cheerful pair. They won't be, it seems, until they get a full-length opera off their chests.

Men who patrol City Hall tell us that although official life agrees heartily with Mayor La Guardia, he would blissfully accept a career as the best French horn player in the world. That was the instrument his father played as a bandmaster in war days.

Secret Yens: The most dramatic figure on any orchestral podium, Arturo Toscanini, is said to have confessed to cronies that if his life had not led him solely into music, he would have liked to have been an actor of the classics which he reads and recites aloud at home.

Tony Canzoneri, one of the pluckiest cauliflower boys in the ring, would like to be a band leader.

Noel Coward would exchange his life in the theater for those of either a country squire or a globe trotter.

To what do you suppose a spectacle-maker such as Bill Rose aspires? Well, seriously, that diminutive, latter-day Barnum would like to put on a two-character play in one setting some day.

Schnozzeling Hamlet: Jimmy Durante (like many another in his comic craft) would reach the peak of a life-time if someone were to give him a part like Hamlet.

James Montgomery Flagg, the celebrated illustrator, would have reached the goal of his career, if a portrait of his had been hung in the art museum for posterity.

Gladys Swarthout, who started out as an actress and became a great opera singer, would like to become a great actress.

It is no secret that the maestro, Arturo Toscanini, is on the absent-minded side. So it is no breach of hostely confidence to relate that the other night a guest came down to the lobby of the Hotel Astor and said there was a suspicious looking man on the seventh floor, trying to open doors with a skeleton key.

The lobby detective hurried upstairs and prepared to nab a seventh-story man in the act of burglarizing a hotel suite.

He did espay his prey fitting a key into the wrong lock and approached his catch warily. But he stopped short when he recognized the maestro. For Signor Toscanini had forgotten the number of his own hotel suite.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—A secret AFL attempt to have the reappointment of Donald W. Smith as Labor Board Commissioner withdrawn ran into a chilly reception at the White House last week.

Withdrawal of Smith's name has been urged on Roosevelt by both liberal and conservative advisers, including Vice President Garner, who argued that a defeat on Smith's confirmation would be harmful to the Administration at the beginning of a new Congress.

The AFL made its overture through a friendly New Dealer, who went directly to the President with the Federation's message that he name another appointee, "acceptable to both the AFL and the CIO."

Roosevelt's answer was a flat turn-down. He told the emissary that when he reappointed Smith last summer he was fully aware that there would be a hot confirmation fight, that he was determined to stand by his guns. The President also intimated that he was considering making a radio speech defending the work of the Labor Board and Smith's part in it.

—ALICE LONGWORTH—

For many years Alice Roosevelt Longworth has cast covetous eyes upon the gold piano in the East Room of the White House, told friends that the piano was given her by the Steingard company when her father was President and that it was not the property of the White House.

Recently, a new gold piano was given to the White House, but Alice Longworth did not get the old one. Her presidential cousins had other plans. They gave it to the Smithsonian Institution.

—POLITICAL ARITHMETIC—

New Dealers were mystified last week when the White House announced the appointment of George Proudfit as U. S. Marshal in Nebraska. Proudfit was Senator Burke's campaign manager, and about as strong an anti-New Dealer as Burke.

Later in the day, however, came the solution of the mystery. Commenting on the reported appointment of Frank Murphy of Michigan as Attorney General, Senator Burke, who was expected to oppose his confirmation, announced:

"A good organizer is needed to obtain an efficient Department of Justice, and Murphy appears to be qualified on that score."

Moral: Two and two make four in politics as well as in arithmetic.

—CAPITAL CHAFF—

One American diplomat to watch is Bill Bullitt, Ambassador to France. He is probably the shrewdest envoy the U. S. has in Europe, sits at the right hand of the President, also has what so many diplomats lack—a thorough understanding of his own country. Had Pennsylvania Democrats patched up their differences and nominated him for Governor last spring, as advised by Roosevelt, they would have been a lot better off today. Bullitt may be performing several important missions for the President in the future. . . . Remember a bibulous friend leaning over the shoulder of Presidential Secretary Marvin McIntyre: "Well, I see Jimmy Roosevelt's got the job at Hollywood. . . . you wanted."

Keep an eye on Russell Sturgis, uncle of Anne Clark Roosevelt, working out a new water supply for the Virgin Islands. He may be the next Governor of those islands.

—LIFE JOB SCRAMBLE—

The undercover scramble for the 24 district and circuit court vacancies that have been awaiting action on the President's desk is approaching the proportions of a stampede.

Some of the most prominent Democratic committee chairman in Congress are trying to wangle on of these life jobs, among them Representative Marvin Jones of Texas, head of the House Agricultural Committee. His backers are RFCChairman Jesse Jones and Jack Garner.

What Marvin wants is the vacancy on the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia. Another angler for this one is Congressman Goldsborough of Maryland. In fact, this is the choicest plum of all, for it means a life job right in the Capital, and the angling of ex-Congressmen who have to leave the gay whirl of Washington for the prairie States is heart-rending.

The job, however, has been promised to Jerome Frank, dyspeptic Commissioner of the SEC.

—HARRY HOPKINS—

Asked by a friend how he liked his new job as Secretary of Commerce, Harry Hopkins replied:

"I've been laughing to myself ever since I took office. In the WPA-I could hire or fire 3,000,000 people and now I can hire only one person, my secretary."

Note—All personnel in the Commerce Department is under Civil Service, a large portion being holdovers from Republican regimes.

ESKY SKI CLUB ENJOYS OUTING

Ideal Weather Brings Out Many; Group to Give Instruction

Plenty of soft dry snow and the temperature around ten above combined to make almost ideal skiing for the Escanaba Ski club and local enthusiasts over the New Year's holiday.

Large numbers turned out at both skiing centers, Danforth Hills and the Day's River area, and all types of skiing were enjoyed.

Most of the beginners were still getting their "ski legs" by going on cross country jaunts, but the more advanced practiced speedy down-hill rides and difficult turns.

With the instruction shown in recent ski movies as their pattern, several practiced and also gave rudimentary instruction in the basic turns necessary for controlled skiing.

Among the maneuvers worked on were the snow-plow, the stem turn, the Christia turn, the Telemark turn, and the re-landesprung.

Anyone interested in learning more advanced technique in skiing is urged to get in touch with the officers of the Escanaba Ski club. An effort will be made to give this instruction to everyone so that it can be used for the required turns on cross country jaunts and in new ski country.

If the weather continues as it has, and there is moonlight this week, there will undoubtedly be many sking at the Danforth hills practicing turns and going cross country.

Plans are going ahead for the ski hike Sunday to the proposed new location for the Escanaba Ski club just west of town on U. S. 41, and all members and those interested are asked to meet at the Community Club house on So. 14th st. at 2 o'clock sharp. Those participating are urged to bring their skis.

SKI HIKE TONIGHT

Ski enthusiasts are invited to participate in a cross-country ski hike to-night starting at 7:30. The hike will be led by Mrs. Zania Rivers, Delta County WPA Recreational Supervisor and Miss Doris Costley, WPA Recreational leader. The starting place will be the north side of the senior high and skiers will travel to Camp Bladaban where there will be a program of games and music by the Wells Synopators. Lunch will be available to those who care to pay the actual cost of the food. Anyone expecting to participate is asked to call 1347 any time today up to 5:30 and register for the hike. It is necessary that this be done in order that sufficient lunch will be available and that other plans may be completed. As long as interest continues, these cross-country ski hikes will be a part of the recreational program conducted in the city.

Time Is Central Standard
New York, Jan. 3.—President Roosevelt's annual message to a joint session of congress on Wednesday is to be an all-network broadcast as he delivers it in person. Approximately the full list of chain affiliated stations will be booked into the house chamber.

Broadcasting is scheduled to begin at 11:45 a. m. Network groups will comprise the combined WEA-FWJ-NBC, WABC-CBS, WOR-MBS and WMCA-Intercity. Previous to the address, WEA-FWJ-NBC has announced for 11 a. m. a five-minute description of the scene at the joint session.

Frances Langford becomes soloist in the Theater of the Stars of WABC-CBS at 8. She takes the place of Jane Froman, who plans to return east from Hollywood, with her husband, Don Ross.

In looking over the guest list, there will be found these, all on WABC-CBS: Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews in So You Want to be an Archaeologist, at 4:30; Floyd Roberts, auto speedster, with Eddie Guest at 9 and Walter Gross, Saturday swing club conductor, with Buddy Clark's Musical weekly at 9:30.

Seven Cars In Holiday Crash; No Fatalities

Police Chief Michael F. Ettenhofer and County Sheriff William E. Miron joined in sighs of relief yesterday as the New Year week-end was safely passed without serious injury in city or county accidents.

"It was a mighty lucky week-end for many people on the highways," Sheriff Miron commented, "and with roads in an icy condition it was fortunate that there were no serious accidents."

Only minor cuts and bruises resulted from the most serious of the New Year's eve accidents, a series of collisions in which seven cars were involved early Sunday morning.

A parked car was struck on highway US-21 about five miles west of the city, blocking the road, and five cars were involved in mishaps that followed before the highway was cleared.

The mix-up started when an automobile owned and driven by Wally Urban of Escanaba, which was parked on the shoulder of the highway, was struck by a car driven by Francis Costley of this city. John Brady, who was driving behind the Costley car, was unable to stop after the crash and collided with the rear end of the car. His automobile rolled over once after the crash.

Unable to Stop
Hamilton LaBlanc of Hermansville, driving west from Escanaba, was unable to stop when he saw wreckage of the cars blocking the highway and took to the ditch on the left side of the road. William E. Kasbohm of Bark River slid into the mix-up from the opposite direction.

The final crash of the series occurred after deputies Lawrence Rouille and John Molin of the sheriff's department had arrived on the scene. Rouille had signaled John Hogan of Escanaba to stop as he approached the accident, and Hogan was proceeding slowly after being warned when a car driven by George Nottle, approaching from the rear, slid past the deputy and into the rear end of the Hogan car.

Head cuts were suffered by Mrs. Fred Siebert, a passenger in the Hogan car, whom officers said was the only person requiring medical care after the accident. She was taken to St. Francis hospital.

Three Local Accidents
Within the city limits there were three minor accidents on New Year's eve. An automobile driven by William Brown, 322 north 13th street, collided with a car owned by Louis Kleiman of Bark River which was parked in front of 1124 Eighth avenue south early Sunday morning. Both autos were damaged, and Brown was held by city police pending settlement of damages.

Victor Guindon of 223 north 14th street collided with a parked car on Stephenson avenue, early Sunday morning. He reported to police that he had fallen asleep at the wheel. Both cars were only slightly damaged.

Walter J. Stromwell of 209 south 12th street suffered bruises and a nose cut when he was struck by an automobile driven by Clarence Wright of Wells in the 1200 block on Ludington street. He was thrown to the pavement and badly shaken, but was able to leave for Milwaukee yesterday on a business trip.

Mrs. Frank Boyle of 317 south 14th street escaped uninjured when she slipped on the icy sidewalk and fell through the window of the Service cafe in the 1300 block on Ludington street.

Officers of police and sheriff's departments reported a comparatively orderly celebration in the city and the county at large. There were no prisoners held in jail on drunk and disorderly charges on the morning of New Year's day.

Two Are Released
Two other youths, picked up by state troopers at Manistique, were released yesterday after the police and prosecutor had questioned all of the boys.

According to city police, the boy admitted taking Flath's car from South Tenth street about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon and driving to Cornell, where he got stuck in the snow and had to be towed out by a farmer with a team of horses. He went into the ditch again at Wells and abandoned the car there where it was found.

The boy confessed, police said, to stealing Dr. Boyce's car about 7 o'clock Monday from near his home, driving to Gladstone and a CCC camp before going to Manistique where he was picked up by state troopers. The boy also admitted taking a camera from a car owned by J. T. Sharpsteen, county road engineer.

LOCAL POSTAL RECEIPTS UP

December Sales Highest Recorded In Escanaba Since 1929

Receipts at the Escanaba post office for the month of December 1938, were 10.47 per cent above those of December, 1937, authorities announced here yesterday. They were 7.33 per cent above those of December, 1936, which was formerly the heaviest month since 1929. Postal receipts are used in many localities as a barometer of business conditions.

The bulk of the increase was in straight stamp sales, which accounted for about seven-tenths of the rise. The additional three-tenths was made in increased parcel post business.

A similar increase was noted in the volume of incoming mail and parcel post at Escanaba, which was up in proportion to the gross receipts. Handling of the additional volume of mail this season was greatly facilitated by the additional space made available when the government building was remodeled last winter.

The postoffice department was able to handle all incoming parcel post in the building this season, instead of using storage space in other buildings on Ludington street as has been customary for many years. Ten extra men were added to the force for the Christmas season, and several extra trucks were made available through the U. S. Forest Service.

Murphy's Rise Really Began When He Was "Adopted" By President Roosevelt

By The AP Feature Service
Detroit—Thin, red-haired Frank Murphy, who is the successor to Attorney General Cummings, had been in politics in Michigan some 10 years before his name became known nationally.

His rise to prominence seems to date from the time he attracted the attention of Franklin D. Roosevelt when Roosevelt was governor of New York and Murphy was mayor of Detroit.

Helped the Needy
In the turbulent days of 1930-1933, Murphy was trying to whitewash Detroit's $400,000,000 debt. He was reorganizing Detroit's social service—instituting several reforms similar to those to be set up later under social security by President Roosevelt.

Auto plants were shutting down, banks were closing, relief rolls were growing. Murphy called on Washington to help; care of the unemployed, he insisted, was a national problem.

In May, 1933, after Roosevelt had become President, Murphy resigned as mayor to accept a Roosevelt appointment as Governor General of the Philippines.

He had been in the Philippines three years when, in 1936, he was called back. Elections were coming up and Democratic leaders figured that Murphy-for-Governor would help carry Michigan.

Murphy won. He scarcely had taken office on January 1, 1937, when a sit-down strike in Flint inaugurated a series of labor troubles that beset his administration.

Amidst the clamor that the sit-downers be evicted, Murphy held out against bloodshed. He finally brought about peaceful settlement of the strike. But critics have said ever since that he did not know the importance of property rights.

Red, Then and Now
After a witness before the Dies committee had testified that Murphy countenanced communist activity, Murphy replied, "They called me 'Red' as a boy and they call me 'red' now."

Last November he was defeated for re-election after a campaign largely concerned with his labor record.

He's a bachelor—says he never found time to marry. He's a worker, too; rarely finds time to play, though when he does he plays hard. Likes to ride, and plays golf, but his golf is not so good. Enjoys the theater, likes Katharine Cornell especially.

Does Your Breath Broadcast— "I WEAR FALSE TEETH"?
Play Safe—Be Sure—Use Polident

People who wear plates or bridges often suffer from a special kind of bad breath. Dentists call it—"denture breath."

You won't know if you have it—but it can spoil your happiness. Friends will shudder—people avoid you! And the worst of it is that ordinary brushing may not prevent it. Neither will mouth washes. For the odor comes from a mucin-scum that collects on plates and bridges. This scum soaks up germs and decay bacteria and causes a vile odor that you cannot detect.

One thing that definitely will stop "denture breath" is Polident! This new brushless cleaner has won the approval of thousands of dentists. Users say it's a blessing. Polident not only purifies false teeth—but also removes all stain, tarnish and deposits. Makes breath sweeter—plates look better and feel better. Costs only 30¢ at any drug store and lasts for many weeks. Money back if not delighted.

Cleans, Purifies Like Magic
Do this daily: Add a little Polident powder to 1/2 glass water. Stir. Then put in plate or bridge for 10 to 15 minutes—Rinse—and it's ready to use!

Congressman Crawford, of Saginaw, is almost of the same opinion, adding Murphy will do no harm in the cabinet and he will pass out of the picture along with the present administration.

Congressman Mapes, of Grand Rapids, believes that the people he represents from western Michigan will resent the appointment as a defiant gesture of Roosevelt's in the face of the anti-New Deal significance of the results of the last election.

Congressman Hoffman, of Allegan, says that "his appointment is an invitation to the lawless and calls him a 'tool of the Communists'."

Congressman Woodruff, of Bay City, questions Murphy's stature as a lawyer for the No. 1 Law Enforcement office. He is glad he is out of the state of Michigan.

Congressman Michener, of Adrian, "if the philosophy of Governor Murphy as to law enforcement as exemplified in his conduct in connection with the sit-down strikes in Michigan is to be the philosophy of the United States Attorney Murphy, then the appointment would be most unfortunate indeed."

Michener as a veteran member of the House Judiciary committee has a special interest in the appointment. He promises he will cooperate with Murphy, if and when he should appear before his committee as Attorney General is sure to do if they want anything from Congress.

Democratic sentiment in the Michigan delegation could not be sounded, as this is written, for Senator Brown and the Detroit congressmen are not yet back in Washington.

Fitzgerald Promises Return To Safe and Sound Government

GOV. SPEAKS AT CEREMONY

Sound Business Policies Offered; Minority Not To Be Ignored

Lansing, Jan. 3 (AP)—Following is the text of Governor Fitzgerald's inaugural address, delivered Monday:

We are gathered here today to observe not only the inauguration of a new administration, but to witness the real beginnings of a new attack upon ailments, economic and otherwise, which have so sorely afflicted the people of our state.

It is an occasion as momentous as any in all the history of Michigan. If there is a spirit of celebration, it is because we realize we have within our grasp an opportunity to render a service that may mean the difference between misery and happiness; between poverty and prosperity; between uncertainty and security. If we are joyful, it is not because of any partisan exultation, but because we feel with confidence that we can lead the people of Michigan back to the solid ground of safe, sound government.

We feel that this occasion is invested with added solemnity, because we know its significance transcends state boundaries. We know that troubled people in other states, enduring difficulties not unlike our own, are watching Michigan with hope in their eyes. They look to Michigan to point the way, and to Michigan succeeds—as we are all confident it shall—then, they feel the country at large may also emerge from its period of hardship and distress.

Policies Approved
Less than two months ago, when the people by a majority vote expressed their desire for a change in administration, they also approved, in effect, the program and the policies of the regime which today comes into office. By their vote, they demanded the establishment of a code of relations between laboring people and employers, that would preserve industrial peace and at the same time accord fair treatment and protection for the public, for the workers, and for employers alike. They demanded also that the state cease its head-long plunge into debt, and that it resume once more, its former practice of balancing expenditures with revenues. Many other issues were involved in their decision as they expressed it at the polls, but these two were the predominant ones.

The hour now approaches when we begin the gigantic task of translating our pledges into deeds; of justifying our words by our acts; in short, of keeping faith with those who have entrusted us with these solemn responsibilities.

Message Later
This is not the time to express in detail my views as to the various steps that should be taken in fulfillment of our responsibilities. That will be done as required by law in the governor's message to the legislature, later in the week.

I do believe it is appropriate on this occasion to visualize, if one can, the magnitude of the duties and responsibilities facing us; to consider the best methods in which they may be approached; to call upon all those forces which make up the citizenship of a great state to unite in a common effort to overcome the troubles of our times.

If you will pardon personal allusions, let me say I have had my taste of the penalties that go with leadership in public life; of the joy of achievement and the disappointment of failure. I know from these experiences that one in my position could make no greater blunder than to try to walk his way alone. I have my convictions as to what should be done and how it should be done, but let any well intentioned citizen, in or out of office, show me a better way to improve the lot of the people of Michigan, and I shall be the first one to adopt that way.

That is the spirit in which I hope and pray all of us will approach our solemn task. We have but one aim and one goal, and that is to produce for the State of Michigan a yield of human happiness sufficient to enrich the life of every citizen deserving of it.

Governor Should Lead
A governor can and should lead. But he is bound to fail of his purpose if he attempts to dictate. In this age when the tyranny of dictatorships is beclouding world affairs, I wish the people to know that in Michigan, as long as I am governor, we shall strive for cooperation, just as earnestly as we shall resist dictation. I say this because I realize full well that no one mortal is big enough to solve single-handed all the difficulties which have created so much unhappiness and distress. It is not a one-man job. It calls for concerted effort and unselfish team-work on the part of every one of us, whether we be public officials or citizens serving in the ranks, as volunteers. It calls for an attitude reaching far above any consideration of partisanship or personal advancement. It calls for nothing less than whole-hearted and unceasing devotion to the interests of the people as a whole.

We shall meet our obligations to those millions of Michigan people who are depending upon us. We shall do this, by surrendering every thought of self interest or party interest to the demands of public necessity.

Party Not Important

The man without a job; the mother fearing for the well-being of her children, care little about the party identification of those who lead them back to happier times. I dare say no one is so foolish as to believe that there is but one road leading to security and that this road can be marked by only one party label. What we are after is results—constructive, effective achievement. Every servant of the state who contributes his fair share in producing them, may be sure he will be amply repaid, with full credit to himself and to the political organization he happens to represent. He will be repaid in the most precious of all coin—the gratitude and good will of the people.

Our problem is difficult, but not vague. The people had before them in the last election a clear-cut picture. The records of two types of administration were clearly presented—an open book for all to read. They did not have to base their decision on guesswork. They decided in favor of the former Republican administration. In so doing, they returned to office, in the legislature and in other posts of public responsibility, a heavy preponderance of men of previous experience in public service. This fact, if I judge aright, should add greatly to the effectiveness of the party as an instrument for public good, during this and succeeding administrations.

Respects Minority

Since I have touched upon the affairs of my own party, let me say here that the victory of last November does not in any way blind me to the rights of the minority; nor does it signify that we Republicans must erase from the map of our state government all traces left by the opposition. We shall retain that which is good, and discard that which is bad; and by so doing, we shall give further evidence of Republicanism's determination to hold the public interest above all else.

As governor, I feel I am fortunate in having by my side, an official family of sound ability and proven loyalty. I derive added assurance and confidence from the knowledge that the state is to be served by a legislature of fine qualifications, with which I know I shall be able to collaborate in full measure. We shall work together. Of that I am certain. But let it be remembered that all these are but the servants. Their master is the people. An alert public, eager to criticize, and to suggest, and to serve, will always be the strongest bulwark of popular government.

As in my past administration, I shall make every effort to keep the public fully informed. The monthly radio reports will be resumed, detailing what has been accomplished and what we hope to accomplish; inviting cooperation from all those who seek to serve their state.

In almost a quarter of a century of public service, I come now to what I clearly and uncompromisingly recognize as the greatest responsibility of my career. Likewise it is the greatest opportunity ever offered me to repay my fellow citizens of Michigan for honors so generously bestowed. In doing so, I have only one objective—good government—for all people. In attaining it, I sincerely welcome support of all good citizens of Michigan.

Car and Truck Hit In Rear End Crash

A car driven by Alcott Gustafson collided with a truck driven by Abraham Baum on highway US-41 at about 5:30 o'clock Monday evening. According to sheriff's department officers who investigated the accident, Baum had stopped on the highway to pick up a hitch hiker when Gustafson, approaching from the rear, was unable to stop and slid into the rear of the truck. The front end of Gustafson's car was damaged in the crash.

Rotary Told 1939 Outlook

Executives of Industry and Business Give Talks to Club

Optimism, confidence, and an outlook of increased business for 1939 was the keynote of seven talks presented yesterday to the Rotary club by business leaders of Escanaba. All lines of business were represented and each speaker spoke with a degree of caution in respect to general business conditions and with reference to his own lines in particular.

Ernest G. Bennett, Escanaba, Paper Co. said that inventories of hanging paper were much lower this year than last and with increased building activity expected that, no doubt, the paper industry as a whole would show a substantial gain both in employment of labor and output of product. It is anticipated that the paper company will operate about 80 to 90 percent of capacity with steady 5-day a week operation during the entire year judging from present observations of the industry.

Rotary Told 1939 Outlook

Executives of Industry and Business Give Talks to Club

George C. Craver, Delta Chemical Co., expressed the view that there will be little increase in the Wood-Chemical and Charcoal Iron industry but that this will be offset by the number of new products the industry is putting on the market for the coming year. The general outlook is encouraging for the coming year.

Wm. Schuldes, Birdseye Veneer Co., predicted an increased demand for their products as soon as labor conditions are righted with some of their large users of veneer and plywood. Starting yesterday the company added a night shift to take care of increasing orders.

More Retail Business
W. R. Smith, forecast a general increase in wholesale hardware lines of from 15 to 20 percent for 1939 and expressed the belief that if labor and capital can operate on a more friendly basis there will be a noticeable upturn. Production and employment in basic industries is the great need in this particular line of business with a curtailment of governmental spending and some realistic attempt to restore a degree of confidence and security on the part of the government.

Charles Gessner anticipates an eight percent increase in retail lines for the first six months of 1939 with a slightly larger gain for the last six months of the year. Retail trade is somewhat affected by price setting methods now in vogue with some manufacturers. This was stated openly as not sufficient time has elapsed to carefully chart the course this type of merchandising is going to take and what trends of retailing will follow in its wake. Escanaba will have to more firmly establish itself as the trading center of the Upper Peninsula due to several large organizations establishing outlets recently in other communities within the trading area of Escanaba, Mr. Gessner said.

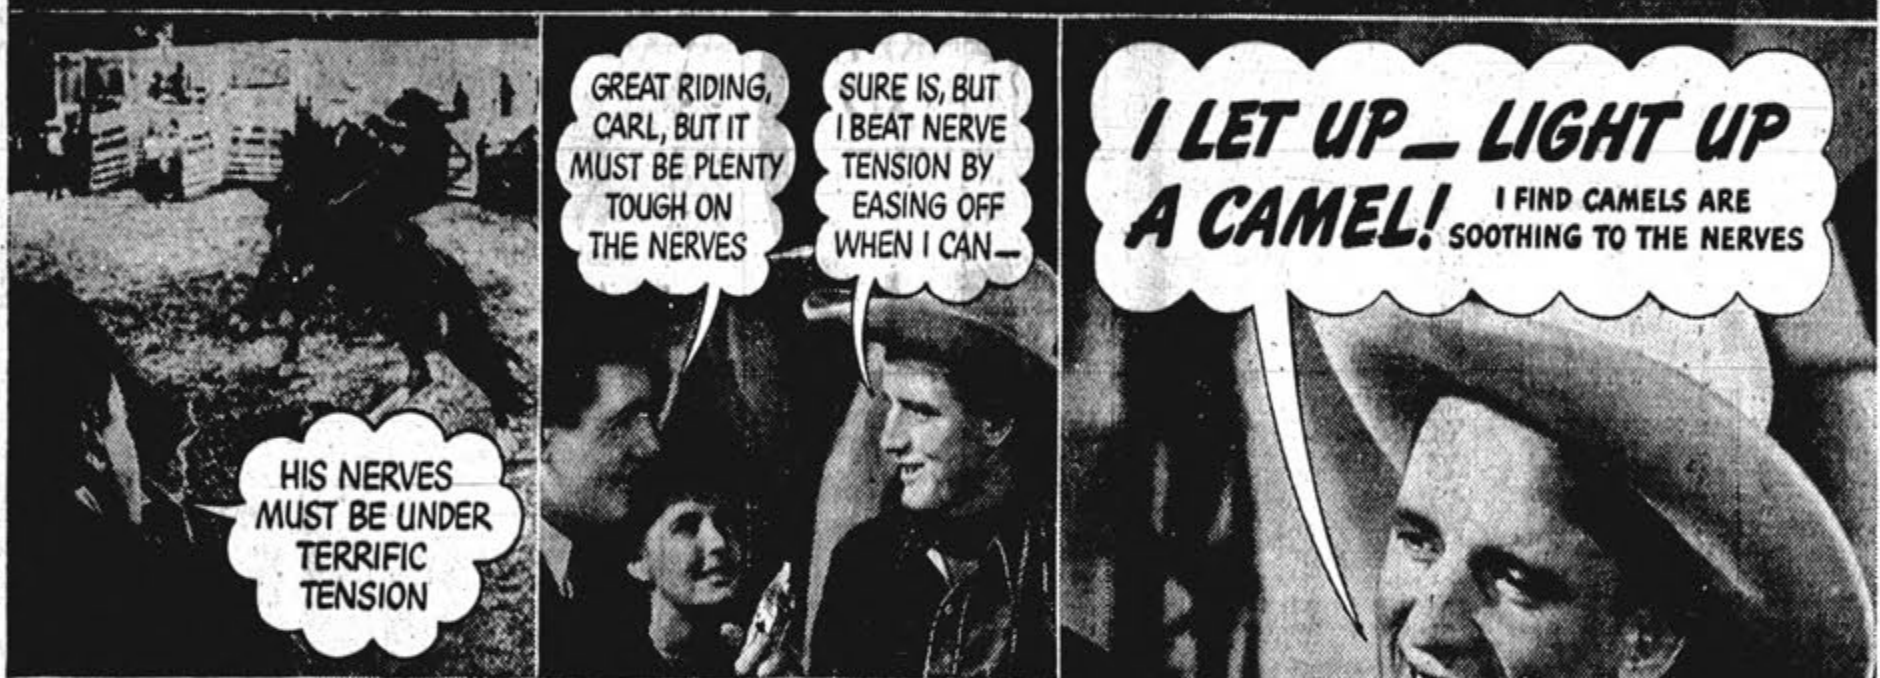

The program was under the direction of Harold Lindsay, secretary of the Escanaba Chamber of Commerce.

George N. Harder reported the potential demand in the building business is the largest in the history of the business and only the restoration of confidence and optimism is needed to make the entire lumber industry boom to the fullest extent. Some mills in parts

NERVE STRAIN APLENTY BUT NO JITTERY NERVES FOR CARL DOSSEY CHAMPIONSHIP COWBOY AND STAR OF THE RODEO

GREAT RIDING, CARL, BUT IT MUST BE PLENTY TOUGH ON THE NERVES
SURE IS, BUT I BEAT NERVE TENSION BY EASING OFF WHEN I CAN—
I LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! I FIND CAMELS ARE SOOTHING TO THE NERVES

LOOK TO THE DOG FOR A VALUABLE HINT ON NERVE STRAIN

THE ENGLISH SPRINGER SPANIEL (above) is speedy, agile. He has a highly developed nervous system. In fact, it's remarkably similar to our own... complex, sensitive. But, unlike so many humans, this dog doesn't ABUSE his nerves. Nor does any dog. When a dog feels tired, he rests INSTINCTIVELY! We humans often let our will-power whip us on, deaf to the warning that nerves are getting frayed. Yet how much more pleasant, profitable life can be when nerves are rested now and then. Try it... break the tension... LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! You'll welcome Camel's mildness—rich, ripe flavor. Smokers find Camel's costlier tobaccos soothing to the nerves.

YOU CAN TELL by Carl Dossey's big smile that while he's resting his nerves—letting up and lighting up a Camel—he's also enjoying the mildness and rich flavor of a supremely enjoyable cigarette—finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOES! Carl says: "Camels lead with cow-punchers."

STORE MANAGER (left) W. A. Knox's life is different from Dossey's, but there's plenty of nerve strain in it. "I'm on the jump all day," he says, "but it's my rule to break nerve tension by taking short recesses—letting up and lighting a Camel."

RECORD-HOLDING woman parachute jumper, Marie McMullin (right), knows the nerve strain of stepping into thin air—4 miles up! She says: "I protect my nerves from tension by giving them frequent rests—I let up—light up a Camel."

Smokers find Camel's costlier tobaccos soothing to the nerves.

EDUARDO
Reading the papers these last days I have been vividly reminded of Eduardo. Eduardo came with the little dependence of the Villa Galotti which I rented some years ago for a long Neapolitan spring. The dependence was hardly a villa. It was really a tower, with a room or two on each of four floors, a terrace on the top, surrounded by a crenellated wall, stone floors, a bathroom with a "geyser" that did not work, and a glass veranda full of camellias, gardenias and chill looking out to Vesuvius across the Bay of Naples. In the bedrooms were tall, black beds with perpetually damp sheets, in the garden were clipped pots of stocks, tangles of thorny roses and broken bits of ancient statuary, and in the kitchen was Eduardo.

The kitchen itself was a vine-darkened room at the garden level, not more than nine by eleven, containing a sink of yellowed marble, a large table almost filling the room made of a slab of cypress on two tree stumps, and a stove which was only a bank of tiles with numerous holes, in each one of which a separate charcoal fire had to be kindled. There was no bake oven. The oven consisted of any pan set upon the charcoal fire with a high iron cover over it filled with smoldering coals. The stove had no draft. That was manually furnished by the perpetual waving of a fan of turkey feathers.

On the table was always an immaculate white cloth, and upon it, laid out with a considerable sense of form, were innumerable knives impeccably polished and terrifyingly sharp. The knives came with Eduardo. They were his own. They arrived with him in the morning and they departed with him at night.

Above the level of the table everything was always immaculate, including Eduardo. He had undoubtedly a fine figure of a man, a man to inspire confidence, and even awe. Nature had designed him to be at the least a senator, at the most a duke. His eyes were masterful and bold. His mustaches were long, curling, black and impressive. His eyebrows mimicked his mustaches, and he had a stubborn brow. It supported a lofty, starched, white cap, fresh every morning, and his handsome shoulders carried a white jacket, equally immaculate. His hands were fine, white and manicured.

Below the table, his sturdy legs, incased in greasy, black trousers, stood ankle deep in the peelings and rinds of the fruits and vegetables which he prepared for my meals. He hewed to the table and let the scraps fall where they might. It would not have occurred to me to criticize this procedure. It was very hard to criticize Eduardo for anything, and more important matters were immediately on my mind.

For Eduardo did the shopping himself, and in the evening before he departed he presented the bill. He presented it in the menacing manner of a tax collector confronting an evader. One suspected a badge beneath a coat lapel. Even a hidden pistol. And that bill was curious. My mind would recall what I had eaten that day. Whatever I had eaten had been exquisite. Still it had consisted of, let us say, a diminutive omelet, a small nugget of veal cooked in marsala, a salad of lettuce and a little cheese, with bread and coffee for breakfast and a dinner as unpretentious as lunch.

And here was Eduardo's account, amounting to 150 lira, and including five pounds of beef, two dozen eggs, some of the finer and more expensive fruits, and a long list of essential groceries and condiments. Every day there were the same number of eggs and the same array of essential materials. Coffee, flour, sugar never lasted for more than twenty-four hours. There were enough eggs to make an omelet for the entire suburb of Posillipo.

Diffidently, I would approach the subject of five pounds of beef. "For soup, madam," he would say with dignity. "But there was no soup." I would reply, weakly, "For the kitchen, madam," he would answer firmly. "But the kitchen" consisted exclusively of Eduardo.

That is to say, it did at first. One day I entered the kitchen to find another occupant, a youth of about seventeen, also clad in a white coat and a tall, starched cap and also immaculate above the waist. He was fanning the charcoal fire. "My son," explained Eduardo, "He comes to take care of the fire, he costs nothing but his food." And then, with haughty, "I am not accustomed to fan fires." And thereafter the account went up 15 lira.

One day I found a third incumbent in the kitchen, a man like the others. He was about fourteen, and he was unloading a market basket. "My son," said Eduardo, "He carries the basket from Naples. I am not accustomed to carrying a basket." I could well believe it. It did seem incompatible with the dignity of Eduardo, and even of his more mature son, but the kitchen was getting crowded, and I had hoped to live cheaply, and a suite and meals at Berolotti would have been more reason-

SERIAL STORY SKI'S THE LIMIT

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SALLY BLAIR—heroine. She had everything that popularity DAN REYNOLDS—hero. He might have had Sally but while he was king on skis COREY PORTER was king of the social whirl. So... But go on with the story.

Yesterday, Dan sends a short farewell letter to Sally, whose heart is now broken completely, irreparably.

CHAPTER XX
"Sally, my sweet," Corey Porter said, for the hundredth time, "I don't see why you won't give in. You know you are going to marry me one of these days. Why won't you admit that you are? Why do you make me keep on telling you, my love?"

This was three months since Dan Reynolds had gone away. Three months during which Sally had had no word from him, except that one farewell letter which she still kept locked in her jewel case. Three months during which the weight on Sally's heart had not grown much lighter.

"There isn't any reason why you can't marry me, is there?" Corey persisted. For Corey was a most persistent young man. He had showered Sally with persistence during these past three months. He had sent her flowers and candy, books and perfume; he had squired her around, escorted her to all the gay spots, courted her in a way that would have won any girl's heart. Except Sally's which was broken.

"No, there isn't any reason," Sally answered. Truthfully. There really was not. For now Sally knew, after these three long months of heartache, that Dan would never come back. She had waited, all this while, still hoping that he might, in spite of that letter locked in her jewel case.

"Then why don't you name the day?" Corey persisted further. This was on their way home from a football game, the Thanksgiving game, in which Dartmouth had scored a triumphant victory over Cornell. They had stopped at a favorite inn for coffee and sandwiches and to get warmed before the long drive back.

Why didn't she? Sally wondered, looking at Corey. He had been very good to her, very patient—for Corey. He was a young man any girl might well be glad to marry. So blond and easy to look at, so gay and glamorous, so much a part of the luxurious easy world that Sally always had known. The world that Dan had despised, from which he had run away.

There was no use now in hoping that Dan ever would return. She might as well forget him! She might as well destroy the letter that was the one thing she had left of him. She might as well mend her broken heart as best she could.

Yet she could not bring herself to say the words that might do able. I was finishing a book; I had a budget to last me through the spring before I went back to the cable desk and slavery.

Gathering myself together and marshaling all my powers of indignation, I finally summoned Eduardo. It was obviously impossible to intervene between Eduardo and his family. I could see that he was strongly philo-progenitive. I hoped that the rest of his sons—I had a feeling that all his children were sons—were otherwise employed or were infants in arms. The capacity of the kitchen was already strained and the laundry bills for coats and caps was already larger than my own.

But I would concentrate upon the accounts. There was no good raising questions. When Eduardo regarded one with that bold, proud and authoritative gaze it was impossible to question the price of gnocchi. I had thought of something shrewd. "Eduardo," I said, "here are 300 lira. This magnificent sum of money must feed me and the kitchen for a week. There is no more forthcoming. I expect to continue to eat as well as I have in the past. I do not wish to see any more accounts. Book-keeping is not my strong point. What do you with this money is a matter of indifference to me. I wish to be fed. That is all."

There was a moment of tense silence. Such a moment Mussolini's more incompetent followers must have felt when summoned for some mistake in Ethiopia. Seldom have I seen a glance so full of pride and contempt. But there were no words. Eduardo bowed, deeply, mockingly.

that, the words that Corey wanted her to say. She supposed she would say them some time. It was very difficult to hold out against such persistency as Corey's. And Sally was so awfully tired, so weary—perhaps because of that dull ache that pressed against her heart.

"I've got something for you," Corey said now, his blue eyes looking into hers across the intimate little table. "Since you wouldn't accept it, my sweet, I want to give it to you today." He put his hand in an inside pocket, drew forth a tiny square box. He had been carrying that box for a long time, waiting for just such a moment had come.

The inn was practically deserted, except for a few scattered parties. The lights were low, the room warm and cozy, the gypsy orchestra was murmuring a love song.

Corey opened the box, took something from it, reached across for Sally's hand. Before she could stop him he had slipped a ring on her third finger, a square-cut diamond that sparkled up at her in a blaze of challenging brilliance.

"Oh, but Corey—you shouldn't! I can't!" Sally's lovely face was distressed, flushing becomingly in the soft rosy light. Corey had had no right to purchase a ring, to put it on her finger, when she had not given him any reason to think she could accept it. But it was like him to do it in just that way, refusing to admit that she could do anything but accept it. Corey who always won in the end.

"Why shouldn't I? Why can't you?" His challenge matched that of the sparkling stone. "Don't take it off, Sally. Wear it—until you make up your mind, anyway."

"But I can't make up my mind," Sally said sadly.

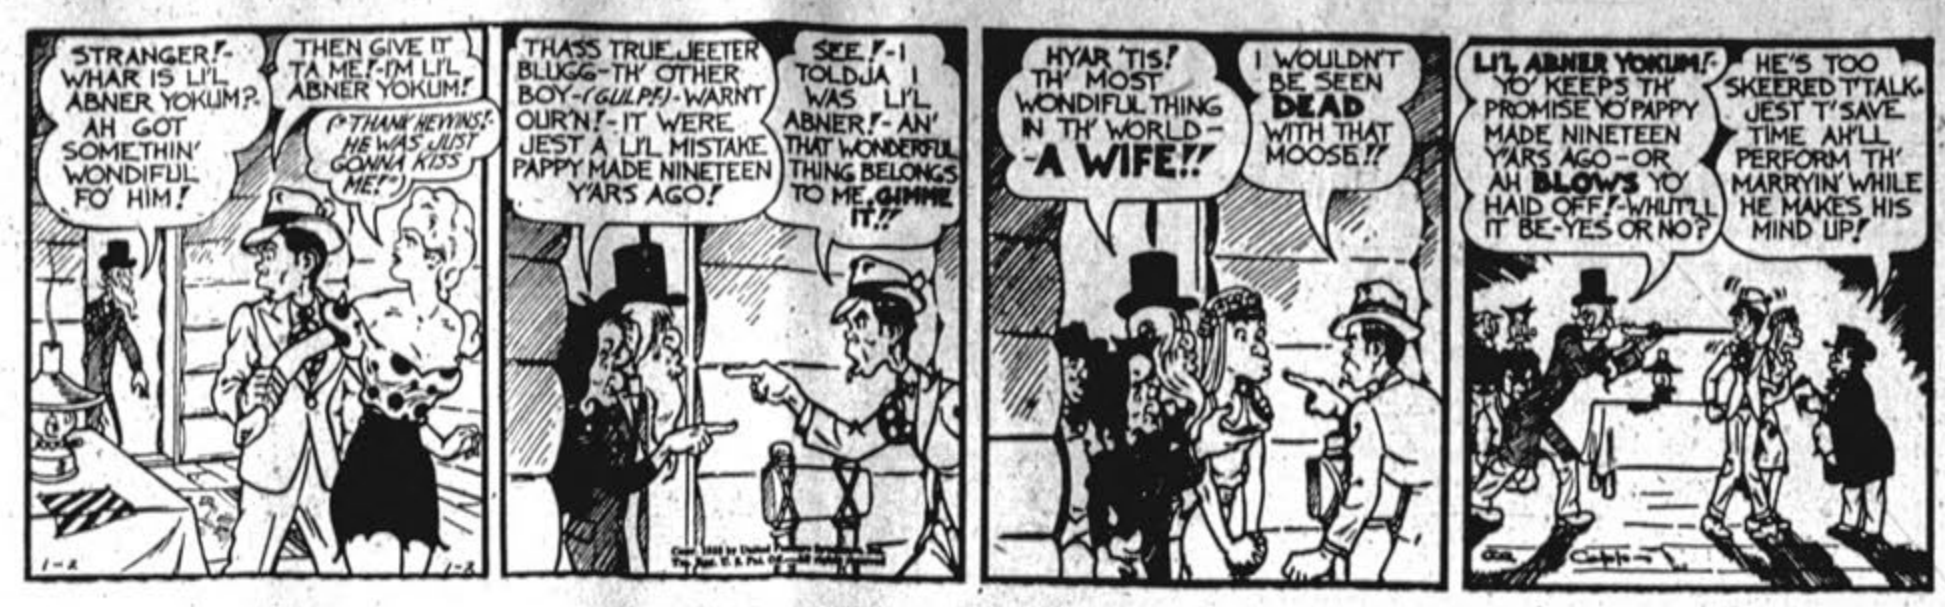

"Then let me do it for you!" Corey's smile was triumphant. He caught both her hands in his, crushing them so that the new ring pressed into her soft skin, hurting it, even as Sally's heart, fluttering in uncertainty, ached.

She might as well let him do that. She knew Corey would not give up until he had won. She liked Corey, more than any other friend. She could not hope to find any other so faithful, so persistent. Anyone else who would make up her mind for her.

It's time, Sally told herself, that she stopped thinking of Dan, hoping he might some day come back. He never would. He did not want to live in her world. He had not asked her to go with him to live in his. He had told her that she was not the sort of girl he wanted.

During these long months those words had been in back of every thought that Sally had had. They had wounded her at first, but gradually they had begun to hurt with a different way. They taunted her, they stung her pride, they stirred her to rebellion and on to ward anger. She knew, though he had not told her, that that was what Dan, writing them, had meant to hurt her, deliberately. He had meant to arouse her anger, to make her come to despise him for them. He had wanted her to put him out of her world, forever.

Other News Items
The many friends of Edith Lagerquist Erickson were greatly shocked and deeply grieved on hearing of her sudden and untimely death which occurred Dec. 22 following the birth of a son, Edith, as she was familiarly known, having been born and raised in this community had many friends. Her kind and genial disposition, her willingness to be of help at any time and in any way in her power endeared her to all. She was an active member in her church and aid work. Her funeral, which was held from Calvary Lutheran church was largely attended and the great profusion of flowers that surrounded her casket gave mute testimony of the esteem in which she was held. Rev. Hawkins, who officiated at the last rites chose as his text the 23rd psalm and 1st Thessalonians 4th chapter, 13th and 14th verses. The theme on which he spoke was "A Christian's attitude of a funeral."

The Gloria Dei choir, with Marie Bredahl at the organ, sang two hymns, "Nearer Still Nearer," and "Abide With Me." Six cousins acted as pallbearers: Everett, Emery, Woodrow and Keith Johnson, Carlyle Holmgren and Friedolph Olson. The sympathy of the entire community go out to the husband and family.

Tax Collections Are Satisfactory

The school and county taxes, totalling $33,919.98 in the city of Manistique, are now being paid at the office of the city treasurer in about the same ratio as for a similar period last year, City Treasurer L. B. Chittenden has reported. Payments can be made on or before January 10 without penalty, after which a penalty of 4% is added. The tax rolls are submitted to the county treasurer in March. The tax rate for schools and county and debt service is $18.30 per $1,000 assessed valuation.

Stonington Couple Weds In Gladstone

Stonington, Mich.—Miss Ina S. Siltar, daughter of Mrs. Sophia Siltar of Stonington and Henry N. Lundberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lundberg of Ensign, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon, Dec. 31. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. Otto Magnusson in the parsonage of the First Lutheran church of Gladstone.

Miss Margaret Lindberg of Masonville, close friend of the bride, and Arnold Siltar, brother of the bride, of Stonington, attended the couple.

For her wedding the bride chose a floor length dress of changeable blue and pink taffets with matching accessories. She wore a wreath of white gardenias in her hair. Her flowers consisted of pink roses and baby breath.

Her bridesmaid wore a dress of aqua blue crepe. She also carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby breath.

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's mother, for the bridal party and members of the immediate families.

Decorations were carried out in a color scheme of pink and white. A beautiful wedding cake decorated in pink and white formed the center piece for the table.

A reception and dance for a large circle of friends and relatives was held at the Alton hall later in the evening. An orchestra furnished the music for the dancing.

The bride has been employed at the Magnuson Bros. store in Ensign for the past few years. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lundberg have a wide circle of friends. The couple will make their home in Ensign.

George Mathison Editing Reporter

George Mathison, former Gladstone youth, has returned here to take charge of editing the Delta Reporter in place of J. A. Sturgeon, the publisher who recently accepted a position as secretary to Congressman Fred Bradley of Rogers City.

Mathison came to Gladstone from Albion where he has been connected with the Albion Recorder in the advertising department. The young man studied journalism at Albion college and while a student worked on both the college paper and year book the same year. As a senior, he edited the Pleade, college weekly.

He is making his home with his mother, Mrs. Robert Mathison, 1401 Wisconsin avenue.

Ray Richards, shop foreman, will be the business manager.

URGE SPEEDY SNOW REMOVAL

Cooperation of Postal Patrons Asked By Micks

Property owners and civic authorities are reminded by Postmaster B. R. Micks of the necessity for prompt removal of snow from sidewalks otherwise there is a possibility of suspension of mail deliveries at points where persons lag in making removal.

This also applies to paved walks or steps which necessarily have to be traversed by the carrier in order to reach the mail receptacle or door slot.

It is the aim and purpose of the entire personnel of the Postal Service to handle and deliver the mail as expeditiously as possible regardless of weather conditions. It is pointed out by the local postmaster, however, he adds, this cannot be accomplished without the cooperation of patrons in removing snow from steps and sidewalks promptly.

City regulations require removal of snow at least within 24 hours after a storm, otherwise it may be removed by city workmen and the cost assessed against the property. Main sidewalks are plowed by the city, however, as soon as possible after a snowfall.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—The stock market today started the new year with a post-holiday headache.

Early weakness of aircraft touched off selling in other departments and, despite a show of resistance, put up rallies and specialties, closing losses running to 2 or more points were widely distributed.

A break in the British pound sterling in terms of the dollar, coincident with a boost of the London gold price to a record peak, was a moderately unsettling influence, brokers said.

Speculative forces cashed profits in the recently buoyant aircraft as doubts arose as to just how far the government would go in its rearmament program.

Steels revived after noon when this week's mill operations were estimated up 11.9 points, the sharpest upturn for any week since mid-July, 1937. U. S. Steel and Bethlehem slipped at the last, however, and Crucible, hitting a new 12-months' high, ended unchanged. Youngstown and Republic were up most of the day and finished only slightly in arrears.

Chesapeake & Ohio retained a small advance and other rails generally kept declines to minor amounts.

Among prominent losers were Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Bendix, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Kenecott, Westinghouse, Du Pont, U. S. Gymnasium, Air Reduction, Standard Oil of N. J., and International Harvester.

Sunshine Mining responded to the maintenance of the treasury's domestic silver purchasing price by an advance of 1 1/4 at 11 1/4.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 3 of a point at 52.9. Transfers totaled 1,152,880 shares against 1,400,010 last Friday.

Wheat at Chicago jumped 1 5/8 to 2 1/8 cents a bushel, partly on crop damage fears. Corn was unchanged to up 1/4. Cotton was unchanged to ahead 30 cents a bale. Bonds were spotty throughout.

Lockheed broke 2 3/8 in the curb and smaller declines were shown by Bell Aircraft, Bellanca, Grumman and Electric Bond & Share. Narrowly improved were Aluminum Co., American Cyanamid "B" and Aviation & Transport. Turnover of 197,000 shares compared with 327,000 Friday.

DAY'S MARKETS IN BRIEF

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—Stocks: Irregular; profit-selling hits aircraft. Bonds: Uneven; year-end rise is checked. Curb: Easier; aviation weakens. Foreign Exchange: Lower; British currency breaks. Cotton: Mixed; foreign buying and southern switching. Sugar: Steady; trade support. Coffee: Lower; European selling.

Wheat: Higher; dry weather. Corn: Firm with wheat. Cotton: Mostly 10 to 25 lower. Hogs: Mostly 10 to 20 down.

Bolero Daytime Favorite

The bolero suit is an excellent choice for daytime costumes. Joan Bennett selected one of soft blue wool, with pleated skirt and long-sleeved bolero jacket, full at the shoulder, and fastened by a unique wooden pin. The white silk crepe blouse has three-quarter length sleeves, is gathered at the center back and fastened down the front with small pearl buttons. With this Miss Bennett wears a matching blue pillbox hat, navy gingham pumps and carries a navy gabardine bag.

PROFIT SELLING AFFECTS BONDS

BOND MARKET AVERAGES

Table with columns for Bond Market Averages, including Net change, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago, and 10 Year Yield Bonds.

New York, Jan. 3 (AP)—Bonds moved unevenly today with some sections of the list affected by profit selling.

Nevertheless, the list showed a fair number of plus signs at the close. New buying interest based on prospects for further industrial recovery was a stabilizing influence.

Rails felt the force of selling broadly, although even here there were some points of resistance, as evidenced by another small gain in the Associated Press average of 20 carrior issues. Top rated loans edged up to a new high average level under institutional buying.

Ahead fractions to more than 2 points at the close were Columbia Gas & Electric (April) 58 at 94, Baltimore & Ohio first 58 of '48 at 56, Central New England 48 of '61 at 36, New Haven Collateral 58 of '40 at 26 1/2, Youngstown Sheet & Tube 48 at 105 1/2, Nickel Plate 5 3/4 at 81 1/2.

Bonds ending on the loss side fractions to around a point included New York Central 58, American & Foreign Power 58, Delaware & Hudson refunding 48, New Haven convertible 68 of '48 and Southern Railway 48.

U. S. governments were quiet, ending 5-32 higher to 5-32 lower. Foreign issues were depressed by fresh weakness in the Italian group, although a few South Americans improved a little.

Transactions totaled $7,407,275, face value, against $9,468,725 on Friday.

Additional factors supporting buying included a shrinkage in 1,950,000 bushels of U. S. viable supply, continued lack of pressure of new Argentine wheat and hope for a new Argentine wheat at the international wheat conference.

Liverpool finished 1/4 to 1/8 higher. Export sales of Canadian wheat over the last 48 hours estimated at 250,000 bushels, but no domestic business was reported.

Corn prices were strengthened by wheat. Some buying was attributed to exporters but local export business was confirmed.

A cable to a grain house estimated the maximum exportable surplus of new Argentine wheat at approximately 1,100,000 bushels, which is below normal.

Oats rose to new seasonal highs while rye followed wheat on buying credited to shorts covering helped strengthen the lard market.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP)—Cattle trade was moderately active today with strictly good, choice and prime steers and yearlings steady; hogs steady to lower; sheep weak to 25 down; vealers fully 1.00 lower; best feeders 13 1/2; very little above 12 1/2; hogs sold 10 to 20 cents lower with day's outside price at $7.78. Fat lambs came at 25 to 25 cents lower, a very few getting up to $9.10. Most sales up to down.

Hogs 25,000 salable receipts; market somewhat uneven, but mostly 10 to 20 lower than Friday's average; closed moderately active all interests at the decline; good 7.70; good to choice 160 to 200 lbs. largely 7.50 to 7.65; 210 to 230 lbs. 7.15 to 7.45; 240 to 300 lbs. 6.75 to 7.10; good medium-weight and heavy packing sows 6.10 to 6.40; extreme weights down to 5.90; shippers took 6,000; estimated holdover 2,000.

Cattle 15,000 salable receipts; calves 2,000; general run short feed steers 25 to 40 lower; choice and prime kinds steady to 25 lower; yearlings up better action than general run short feed weighty bullocks, selling weak to 25 lower; yearlings scarce; fed heifer and mixed yearlings all grades steady; cows steady to lower; bulls weak to 25 down; vealers fully 1.00 lower; best feeders 13 1/2; very little above 12 1/2; hogs sold 10 to 20 cents lower with day's outside price at $7.78. Fat lambs came at 25 to 25 cents lower, a very few getting up to $9.10. Most sales up to down.

Chicago, Jan. 3 (AP)—The price of wheat shot up two cents a bushel in a new year buying rush today to the best level in five years.

Wheat sold above 70 cents a bushel for the first time since early last August and buying was more spirited than at any time since the September war scare.

The break trading apparently was based on a number of constructive influences, foremost among which was continued 100 favorable crop situation in the southwest.

Wheat closed 1 5/8 to 2 1/8 higher than Saturday, 84 to 84 1/2 to 78 1/2, July 78 1/2 to 78 1/2; corn unchanged to 1/4 up, May 25 1/2 to 24 3/4; July 24 1/4 to 24 3/4; soybeans 1 1/2 to 1 1/2 higher; rye 3/4 to 1 1/4 up; lard 5 to 10 higher.

Dry weather and changing temperatures in the southwestern winter wheat belt led to fears that alternate freezing and thawing might do additional harm to plants already weakened by lack of sufficient water.

BOAKE CARTER TAKEN OFF AIR

Hints New Deal Angered In Interview With Gunnar Back

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Radio listeners in this area were startled Saturday night when they heard the voice of Boake Carter, radio and news commentator, intimate and familiar to them, who had been driven off the air by high government influence in Washington, D. C. His talk, in the form of an interview, was a transcription broadcast over radio station WJNO, owned by Jay O'Brien of New York and Miami.

Gunnar Back

The transcribed interview quoted Carter as saying he "was purged," and intimating that his trouble started "from the front office of the White House." The interview further quoted him as alleging that a censorship had been imposed on certain radio speakers.

Interviewed by Announcer According to Reginald B. Martin, manager, and John Moore, chief engineer of station WJNO, Carter was interviewed by Announcer Gunnar Back as he was about to board a plane for New York this morning. The interview was recorded rather than broadcast. The recording was broadcast this afternoon and again tonight.

After a discussion of Carter's visit here, in which it was said he had called on Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, the interview turned to Carter's former radio activities. He was asked why he had stopped giving his radio broadcasts.

Following are some of the questions asked by Back and the answers given by Carter, according to station WJNO:

CARTER: You know I was one of the purged—one of those who was purged.

BACK: What do you mean by that—you were purged?

CARTER: Unfortunately, we haven't television, but for the present moment you know what the gesture is when you put a finger under one ear and draw it under your throat.

BACK: Now, Mr. Carter, who cut your throat? I mean, who took you off the air?

Object to Foreign Policy Views CARTER: Some of the things I said in regard to foreign policy were not particularly liked in Washington.

BACK: And you are intimating that somebody from Washington sent the official word for you—(question uncompleted).

CARTER: I am not intimating anything. I am just saying very flatly.

BACK: But you haven't been able to put your finger on the one person, have you?

CARTER: O, sure. It starts from the (word indistinguishable) from the front office of the White House and goes on down.

Alleged Radio Censorship The interview then went on to alleged radio censorship. According to station WJNO, Carter dis-

Will Never Regret Trying the KruGon

Mr. Beckmann Had Been Unable To Bend His Knees Was So Crippled; KruGon Again Unfailing

"It is a pleasure to tell how I regained my health through the use of KruGon," said Mr. H. H. Beckmann, 1120 N. 7th St., Quincy, Illinois. "Aches and pains settled in my limbs crippling me until I was in a miserable condition suffering continually. I could not get a good night's sleep because of frequent bladder action and it seemed I was always tired and worn-out. My stomach caused me much distress too, I could not eat a single meal without great suffering with gas and bloating afterwards. My whole body was full of pain but everything I tried failed until I finally learned of KruGon.

MR. H. H. BECKMAN

"I will never regret having given KruGon a trial," continued Mr. Beckmann. "My stomach and bladder were regulated easily and I was soon eating and enjoying my meals without the least distress afterwards. I now sleep good at night, but best of all was the manner in which KruGon rid my body of its poisonous impurities, eliminating that awful pain from my legs so I can now go about my work without the least hindrance. It is wonderful to feel so good again, free of all that former pain and suffering. KruGon proved its outstanding merit in my case."

KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ladington St., this city.

State Political Gossip

Governors Always Are Going To Help the Poor Taxpayers

BY GUY H. JENKINS (Grand Rapids Press)

Lansing—There probably is more speculation here as to the future status of civil service than any other subject.

The job hunters have moved into Lansing. The capitol has become the mecca for those seeking to attach themselves to the public pay roll.

The pressure groups—usually a noisy minority—are seeking to re-establish the spoils system. Jobs must be awarded on the basis of reputed votes delivered to the Republican cause, they argue.

Hundreds of state employees who have passed their qualifying examinations and are supposed to be under the protective wing of the merit system have developed the jitters.

A lobbyist for a veterans organization astounded the merit system devotees by predicting "repeal or ruin of the statutes." His people must have more consideration than any other group. Then he asked:

"Does not the state owe them more?"

While that question is debatable, one thing is certain—the state owes $25,000,000 in bonds voted to pay them a bonus after the war.

The Michigan Merit System association recently sponsored a clinic. It was a feeler and sounding board for those who wanted to express themselves.

Fitzgerald Economy Program Is Not New

The major party state chairmen, James F. Thomson of the Republicans and Edward J. Frey of the Democrats, although invited to address the meeting, failed to put in an appearance. No one was surprised.

While the pressure groups had only one purpose—jobs for those they represent—as usual the taxpayer was without a spokesman. His part in the whole system of government is to provide the money for the spenders.

A patronage raid will cost the people of Michigan a million dollars in 1939, according to the reported of Fitzgerald's study commission. But what is $1,000,000 when jobs should be provided for the boys and girls back home?

Gov.-elect Fitzgerald has promised an economical administration. He is to cut pay rolls $8,500,000 in 60 days. It will be interesting to those on the sidelines to watch the major operation while the pressure groups demand the return of the spoils system.

One need but thumb the pages of the records to learn how the incoming governors over a long period of time have viewed with alarm the ever-increasing tax load and the various methods used to extract the hard-earned dollars from its citizens, the messages of governors can be summed up with:

"Words, just words."

Back In 1861 Economy Was the Watchword

Not that governors are not sincere. They actually try to run government as an executive would operate his own business, but few of them succeed.

The outgoing administration is a howling example of what a legislature can do to a chief executive.

Two years ago the Democratic legislature appropriated $18,000,000 more than it had any right to believe would be received in fees and taxes. The climax came when the two houses joined in making Gov. Murphy the financial dictator. In substance they told Murphy, "Fit outgo with income; we are going home."

Will Fitzgerald make the legislature dance to his economy tune? Some say he will; others say it can't be done.

Fitzgerald has kept secret his message to the legislature. He is expected to be firm. There is great interest on how he will handle the labor situation. Some 16,000 employees are wondering what official stand he will take on civil service.

The taxpayers are hopeful, but if history repeats he is out of luck. He will take the old sock as he has been taking it since Michigan became a state.

Gov. Austin Blair told his legislature back in 1861: "Prudence and economy mark the first duty of every government, as rapidly increasing debt is the sure road to bankruptcy."

Groesbeck Had No Luck In Smashing Expenses

Eight years later the legislature was warned by Gov. Henry P. Baldwin: "It should be borne in mind that the tendency of the time and of the legislature has been to the lavish expenditure of public money."

Another 12 years passes and we find Gov. Charles M. Croswell telling his legislature "to exercise a strict economy in appropriations and avoid all excessive and extravagant expenditures of public money."

Coming down to 1891, Edward B. Winans, a Democratic governor, warned: "Taxation has steadily increased year by year while the ability to pay has diminished. There should be an effort to reduce taxation."

And just 46 years ago Gov. John T. Rich told his lawmakers: "The same rule in expenditure should govern you that governs expenditures in private business affairs."

Alex J. Groesbeck, three times governor of Michigan, had this to say: "It may not be impertinent for me to hazard the opinion that burdens of taxation are becoming all too onerous."

But "A. J." was no more impressive than those who followed, for the property tax jumped to an all-time high and when the taxpayers went on strike, the burden was shifted to a sales tax. Last year the Murphy administration collected and spent more money than any other administration in Michigan's history.

They Forgot to Provide Self-Applying Gags

Fitzgerald has a fine opportunity to do something for those who pay, but whether history will continue to repeat itself will be better known a year from now.

The new governor will have tough sledding but maybe he can ward off the pressure groups, the leaders of which are paid for making a lot of noise.

If the taxpayer comes into his own it will be the first time since Civil War days and few can remember the first battle of Bull Run.

And while on the subject of the legislature a lot of things have happened in the last few months to speed up production. When the house of representatives spent $35,000 for a vote-recording machine the branch of the legislature went into second gear. Another $4,000 has been spent to transmit bills from one house to another in less than nothing flat.

Well, there really is nothing like it. The time-saving equipment is just the last word but those who went to all that trouble missed one thing which would be a blessing for all concerned, a self-applying gag for members who talk too long. Such a device would save more time than any mechanical contrivance yet installed. The fellow who can invent one has a fortune within his grasp.

Joe C. Ford Too Sick To Take His Old Job

Joe C. Ford of Grand Rapids will not be back when Michigan's legislature convenes Wednesday. According to word reaching Lansing he is too sick to take his old post in the senate.

Born in slavery, Ford came to Michigan early in life. With only one or two interruptions, he has served as senate messenger, postmaster and cloakroom custodian since the session of 1881. He has been doorman at the Michigan headquarters of Republican national conventions since 1904.

When the senate patronage committee met recently the first thought was of Ford. The committee was advised that Joe, who is with a relative in New York, had passed the time of life when he could take a job, no matter how slight the duties.

Ford had a marvelous memory. He would tell of going to the Civil war as a valet to his master, a lieutenant in the Confederate army. Joe was in his glory as he traced the political careers of various Michigan Republicans. He loved to tell of William Alden Smith's first job in the Michigan senate.
