FEDERAL AND STATE HEALTH PLAN DRAFTED

ROOSEVELT OFFERS PROGRAM TO COST 850 MILLIONS

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—A vast program of federal-state health activities, to cost ultimately $850,000,000 a year, was transmitted to congress today by President Roosevelt with a recommendation that the legislators study it carefully.

Though he did not ask specifically for adoption of any detail of the plan, drawn up by his special committee on health and welfare, he referred to it as a program to reduce "the risks of needless suffering and death."

Cause of Suffering One step recommended by the committee was an Americanized version of compulsory health insurance as it is now in effect in many European countries.

"The health of the people is a public concern," the president said. "Ill health is a major cause of suffering, economic loss, and dependency; good health is essential to the security and progress of the nation."

Linking the committee's proposals with the social security act, the president added that it was recognized five years ago "that a comprehensive health program was required as an essential link in our national defenses against individual and social insecurity."

Insurance Avoided He did not discuss in detail any of the recommendations made by the committee and avoided any mention of the compulsory health insurance program.

Health insurance has been the basis of a controversy between the committee and the American Medical Association and is the only one of the five recommendations made by the president which the association failed to endorse.

Such "medical service" insurance would call for a payment of approximately $25 per year by each wage-earner into a general state or county fund. In return he would receive medical care from the doctor of his own choice. The doctor's fee would be paid directly out of the general fund.

The report also suggested that disability insurance be included in the health program, providing compensation for a wage-earner incapacitated by illness or injury.

More Hospitals Needed For persons too poor to afford medical care—those whose income covers only food, shelter and clothing—the health program called for the use of federal, state and local funds to pay for the attention of a physician. This group was classed as the "medically indigent," as differentiated from persons on relief, and was said by the committee to be the most neglected group in the population. Most of the sickness emanates from this group, the committee added.

The report also recommended the extension of existing public health facilities to reduce sickness and death from conquerable disease. Such a step, it said, would enable public health officers to

Civil Service Snoopers Used

Lansing, Jan. 23 (AP)—The joint legislative committee investigating administration of the civil service law disclosed today it had assigned investigators to help it in its task.

Senator Elmer E. Porter, Republican, Blissfield, the chairman, declined to go farther than to confirm that investigators are on the job.

"It will all come out later," he said, "possibly at tomorrow's session of the committee." The committee has been in recess since Friday. He declined to say whether the investigators were obtained from some branch of state government, or whether they were employed out of funds appropriated to the committee by the legislature.

Deputy Attorney General Willard McIntyre said none of the staff investigators of his department had been assigned to the work, but that he had two who could be so employed if the committee requested assistance.

Legislators returning for routine sessions of the house and senate tonight that ended the weekend recess found a fever of controversy surrounding opinions by Attorney General Thomas Reed broadening the patronage powers of departmental executives by depriving heads of minor divisions within departments of civil service protection.

SPLIT WIDENED IN UAW RANKS

Martin Opponents Name Their Own President; More Impeached

Detroit, Jan. 23 (AP)—The suspension and impeachment merry-go-round in the CIO United Automobile Workers Union whirled again today as members of the executive board, suspended last week by Homer Martin, named an acting president of their own and suspended four board members who cast their lot with Martin.

Dual unionism in the first labor organization ever to gain a foothold in the automobile industry was brought closer when anti-Martin board members named R. J. Thomas, a UAW vice president, to be acting president until the special convention they have called to meet in Cleveland on March 20. At the same time the Martin opponents announced impeachment and suspension had been voted against Irvan Cary, of California; Frank Tucl, of New York; Loren Houser, of Detroit, and Lester Washburn, of Lansing, Mich.

Thomas immediately appointed a committee of eight, all adherents of the anti-Martin group, to go to Washington to confer Tuesday with John L. Lewis and other CIO officials.

"We want to find out definitely if the CIO is going to support us as the legal board of the UAW," he said.

The anti-Martin faction asked circuit court late today for an injunction restraining Martin from handling union funds or records.

PAROLE ORDERED

Lansing, Jan. 23 (AP)—Matthias Klesgen, who was sentenced to serve four to five years in prison for conspiracy to defraud the Wayne county welfare relief commission of $25,000, was ordered paroled February 16 at a state board meeting today. He was sentenced March 23, 1936, to the Detroit house of correction.

Bride, 14, Alone On Honeymoon; Husband In Jail

Detroit, Jan. 23 (AP)—A 14-year-old bride, Mrs. Grace Massey, was on a husbandless honeymoon today while police detained her spouse, Walter, 16, and Jerry DeLisle, 17, the best man who financed their elopement to Kentucky last week.

A complaint from DeLisle's employer, who told police that the money which financed the elopement was stolen, interrupted the married life of the young couple.

Massey told police DeLisle suggested the elopement while the three were attending a motion picture show Wednesday night. He said DeLisle supplied the money and accompanied them by bus to Greenup, Ky., where the marriage was performed by a justice of the peace.

Police said the marriage apparently was legal under Kentucky law.

The girl is a student at Redford high school.

Detour Fishermen Drift On Ice Floe Above Lake Huron

Detour, Mich., Jan. 23 (AP)—Three fishermen drifted on an ice floe in the north channel above Lake Huron tonight possibly cut off from rescue by high winds and darkness.

The trio, Phillip Goetz, 60, and his son, Russell, 36, and Whiard Dyer, 47, had been drifting approximately eight hours at 10 p. m. (EST) after the floe had broken from its field where about 30 fishermen were picking up nets.

High winds drove back a light plane which set out in search of the three. Hardy lake veterans of this isolated village in Michigan's Upper Peninsula later tried to rescue the men in a gasoline launch. Coast guardsmen said it might not be possible to reach the three before dawn. The plane will set out at that hour again if the men are still adrift.

The floe was described as about a mile square but "pretty thin ice" by fishermen who reported the danger to the three. The ice field broke three miles northeast of Drummond Island, which juts into the north channel alongside the international boundary.

CHINESE FLEE FROM CHUNKING

Provisional Capital of Kai-Shek Bombarded Daily By Japs

Shanghai, Jan. 24 (Tuesday) (AP)—Approximately 30,000 Chinese civilians are fleeing daily from Chunking, provisional capital, to escape raiding Japanese bombers.

The invaders have threatened to bombard the city until Chiang Kai-Shek's government is driven out.

Far to the north, Japanese were reported reinforcing garrisons, leading Chinese military officials to believe a long-threatened offensive to subjugate Mongol areas was imminent.

Chunking, 1,400 miles from the south of the Yangtze river, is on a rocky promontory between the Yangtze and Chialing rivers. It is backed by high mountains.

Some 800,000 persons have been crowded within the five-mile ancient wall which encircles the city.

The Japanese again are engaging in their favorite tactics of extensive bombings to destroy defenses and undermine Chinese moral before throwing their infantry into action.

Chinese military officials estimated 1,200 enemy aircraft now are engaged in the far-flung raids.

LAND AND SEA FEEL HAND OF KING WINTER

SHIPS IN DISTRESS; COLD TAKES TOLL OF DEATH

Onslaughts of wind, cold and snow caused widespread distress on land and sea yesterday.

"S. O. S." signals came from fourteen ships scattered across the Atlantic while mountainous waves imperiled several hundred seamen and passengers.

Piercing cold spread through the east and New England in the wake of a brisk blow that dashed and pounded surf against the coast from Cape Hatteras to Maine.

Snow storms swirled through the west and midwest.

At least 29 deaths were reported on both sides of the ocean. Gales, at times reaching a velocity of 84 miles per hour, killed 12 persons on the southwest coast of England. A freak "line squall" which brought rain, hail and snow to New England left three dead.

Five fatalities in upstate New York, seven in Pennsylvania and two in Chicago were attributed to the frigid weather.

Heavy seas delayed the arrival of the rescue tanker Ezzo Baytown in New York until late afternoon. On board were the ten survivors of the flying boat Cavalier, which sank Saturday with a loss of three lives.

Residents of New York City shuddered in the coldest weather of the season when the temperature dropped to 10 above early in the day. A minimum of 12 above, with snow, was forecast. Upstate readings included 30 below in the Adirondack mountain hamlet of Mountain View, 28 below at Owl's Head, 19 below at Malone, 10 below at Watertown and Saranac Lake, 5.7 above at Buffalo and 7 above at Rochester.

The sudden descent of temperatures in New England glazed many highways. Thermometers registered 26 below atop Mt. Washington in New Hampshire, 14 below at Greenville, Me., 12 below at Concord, N. H., and 10 below at Maxfield, Vt. Boston's five above was the lowest since Jan. 19, 1938.

Temperatures Rising The zero level was touched in many rural areas in New Jersey but rising temperatures, accompanied by snow, were in prospect in much of the east.

The weather also took a turn for the warmer in the midwest as forecasters predicted snow, sleet or rain for most of the states in that section.

Snow ranged from two inches

Czech-Soviet Pact Is German Thorn

Prague, Jan. 23 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler of Germany and his foreign minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, have demanded Czechoslovakia renounce immediately her mutual assistance pact with Soviet Russia, reliable Prague circles reported today.

Germany also demanded that Czechoslovakia join the anti-Comintern pact, which now includes Hungary, Germany, Italy and Japan, and that she prepare for closer military cooperation with the Reich.

The reports arose after Foreign Minister Frantisek Chvalkovsky told the cabinet the substance of his conversations in Berlin last week.

Franco's Guns Within Range Of Barcelona

Hendaye, France, Jan. 23 (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco tonight thrust his month-old Catalan offensive to within 12 miles—heavy artillery range—of Barcelona, Spanish government capital.

The advance of this column, pressing toward the Mediterranean shore to Barcelona's southwest, suggested that "a downhill road and little resistance" lay ahead.

The gravity of Franco's threat to Barcelona was reflected by drastic defense measures but government supporters contended the insurgents were far from winning the civil war despite the capital's peril.

Seaplane Survivors Tell About Night Of Horror

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—The ten survivors of the sunken Imperial Airways flying boat Cavalier—who lifted hoarse voices in a desperate, tuneless song to guide the lifeboat which picked them out of the Atlantic—arrived tonight, and three of their number emerged as heroes of the disaster.

They returned on the tanker Ezzo Baytown, which rescued them early yesterday and they said that drowning itself seemed no greater peril than a school of sharks which was attracted by the bodies of the three men who perished.

They disclosed the three were definitely lost, although a search was conducted for hours after the rescue.

As the Ezzo Baytown pulled into sight, the five men and five women had been floating for some 10 hours in the Gulf stream, about midway between New York and Bermuda at the point where the great plane was dashed to the sea Saturday. They saw one ship go by and could not endure to see yet another fade from view.

Dead Lure Sharks So Patrick Chapman, the Cavalier's radio officer, left the doubtful refuge of the lifeboats which the ten had joined together—"like a daisy chain"—one man said—and struck out to swim the 200 yards to the tanker.

Behind him thrashed Neil Richardson, the plane's first officer, to freighten away sharks and give his brother officer at least an even chance to reach the tanker, and so to direct it to the spot where the eight other victims remained, Chapman reached it.

"Of course," said Edna Watson, of Montreal and Bermuda, "we had three dead people in the area (Donald W. Miller, president of a Lincoln, Neb., department store; J. Gordon Noakes of New York, and Robert Spence, one of the Cavalier's two stewards.)

"They put the wind up," she said, meaning their presence would serve as a lure for sharks.

Sank In 10 Minutes Mrs. Watson herself was a member of the trio who showed exceptional bravery. It was she, other survivors said, who for hours clung to the injured and unconscious captain of the Cavalier, M. R. Alderson, to keep him afloat—after he had given her his life-belt.

Alderson, slight and boyish in appearance, declined to speculate in detail as to the cause of the crash, but he did say that "there were no icing conditions when the plane got into trouble."

This at first was taken to be a denial of previously accepted reports that the carburetors had frozen, but later other airway officials said they had understood him to mean only that no ice had formed on the wings or outer parts of the ship.

The survivors agreed that the Cavalier broke up and sank within 10 minutes after it plummeted into the sea and, bounced a few times over the waves.

Guided By Singing Mrs. Watson said the huge luxury air-liner fell during a snow and sleet storm which had quickly followed first gloomy conditions and then, suddenly, bright sunshine.

Richardson also declined to attempt an explanation for the disaster.

It was Stanley Taylor, seaman who stood in the bow of the lifeboat as it put out from the Baytown, who described the half-hysterical song which floated deceptively through the gloom.

"We were without stars, moon or sextant—in complete darkness," he said. "And then the whole crowd of them started singing. We listened and the song guided us to the spot."

Joseph R. Minor, boatswain on the Baytown and stroke-oar of the lifeboat, explained that the chant was elusive—being heard now ahead and then again on other sides of them as the sound was buffeted over the swells and troughs.

Woman Dances Jig Taylor, praising the master of the tanker, Capt. Frank H. Spurr, for his skill in bringing the vessel within half a mile of the survivors, said they owed their lives to the fact that the Cavalier went

Negaunee Miner Hurt By Cave-In

Negaunee, Mich., Jan. 23 (AP)—Caught in a minor cave-in in the Cambria mine here, Roy Johnson, 36, was rescued four hours later and taken to his home, where it was found that he had suffered slight scalp wounds.

Johnson was working on the sixth level of the mine when the cave-in occurred, partially burying him after his leg was caught in a fall of rock. He was covered from his waist down and his arms were pinned so that he was unable to move.

Nazis Ban Priests As School Teachers

Salzburg, Germany, Jan. 23 (AP)—Nazi officials today forbade Catholic priests to give religious instructions in Salzburg schools, delegating Catholic laymen to handle the classes.

The action was said to have been taken because the Catholic archbishop, Dr. Sigismund Schwatz, declined to replace a priest whom the Nazis accused of "misusing religious instruction for political purposes."

After a three-day senate attack on his record as WPA administrator, Harry L. Hopkins was confirmed Monday as secretary of commerce. Among the 27 who voted against him was Senator Vandenberg of Michigan.

NEW SECRETARY MAKES HURDLE

Senate Confirms Hopkins for Cabinet Job By 58 to 27 Vote

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—Harry L. Hopkins was confirmed as secretary of commerce by the senate today after a three-day attack on his administration of work relief. The vote was 58 to 27.

The final vote showed a margin of more than two to one in Hopkins' favor. The Republican membership, voting almost solidly against confirmation, polled a total of 21 votes, and received the assistance of one Farmer Laborite and five Democrats, all of whom have been at odds with the administration from time to time. Fifty-three Democrats were supported by two Republicans and by three minor party senators in confirming the appointment.

Of particular interest to the galleries, crowded throughout the day, were the votes of the three Democratic senators whose renomination President Roosevelt personally opposed last year. They were evenly divided. Senator Smith of South Carolina voted for confirmation; Senator George of Georgia voted against with an emphatic "no," and Senator Tydings of Maryland asked to be excused from voting. Senator Gillette (D-Ia.), whose renomination Hopkins opposed, voted for confirmation.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), voted against the nomination. Senator Lewis (D-Ill.), the majority whip, announced that Senator Brown (D-Mich.), was among those who favored the nomination.

Fitzgerald Will Have To Demand New Prison Report

Lansing, Jan. 23 (AP)—The state pardons and parole bureau recalled today it had submitted a report a year ago to former Governor Frank Murphy in the cases of Anthony J. Wilkowski and Elmer B. O'Hara, two convicted "recidivists," and that if Governor Fitzgerald wanted another report he would have to ask for it.

In answer to published reports that he planned to free the two men, imprisoned for election frauds in 1934, Fitzgerald asserted "as far as I am concerned any move to free these men will have to come through the regular channels."

Taxes Nearly Doubled

Under authority granted former Governor Murphy to cut legislative appropriations as he saw fit, state expenditures in 1937-38 were held to $115,288,724. Smith said it still is too early to estimate accurately the total expenditures for the current fiscal year.

The demands submitted today included $40,325,262 for the next fiscal year for operating expenses of the departments and institutions, compared with $33,440,545 actually spent in 1937-38; $32-

In the Headlines From Washington

(By The Associated Press)

The senate confirmed the nomination of Harry L. Hopkins as secretary of commerce by a 58 to 27 vote.

Secretary Morgenthau reported that the treasury's $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund made a substantial profit last year.

A program of federal-state health activities which President Roosevelt said, in transmitting it, would reduce "the risks of needless suffering and death" was submitted to congress.

Thomas R. Amle, former progressive representative from Wisconsin, was nominated by President Roosevelt to be an interstate commerce commissioner.

Secretary Morgenthau and SEC Chairman William Douglas may be called to testify before the federal district court regarding the treasury's disclosure of bank examiners' reports to the SEC.

BUDGET CHIEF DEAD

Madison, Wis., Jan. 23 (AP)—James B. Borden, 69, state budget director, died at the Wisconsin General hospital here tonight. He had suffered a collapse Saturday.

REQUESTS TOP REVENUES BY 98 MILLIONS

GOVERNOR READY TO WIELD HIS BLUE PENCIL

BY G. MILTON KELLY Lansing, Jan. 23 (AP)—State departments and institutions submitted to Governor Fitzgerald today a statement of their budget demands for the next biennium that towered $98,000,000 higher than the state's anticipated revenues for that period.

The request caught the governor in an ill humor. He had just completed paying his taxes for 1938, and the total nearly doubled the taxes he had paid on the same Eaton county farm property in 1936. "We must have economy, and we're going to have it," the governor said. "That unbalanced picture will be radically changed by the time it (the budget) leaves this office." It is his duty to revise it and submit his recommendations to the legislature.

$158,068,524 for 1939 The departments and institutions, submitting their requests through the budget office, asked for $148,068,524 for the fiscal year 1939-40, which was $50,673,644 more than the state's anticipated revenue of $97,394,880 in that period. The requests for 1940-41 totaled $145,636,252, which was $48,335,762 more than the $97,300,490 anticipated revenues in that year.

The statement of budget demands reached the governor's desk as something of an orphan. Budget Director Harold D. Smith explained he had forwarded it without change, following the usual custom in years in which there is a new administration. A letter of transmittal that accompanied it bore former Governor Murphy's signature below a statement disavowing any responsibility for it and complaining that "the retiring governor must transmit and theoretically assume responsibility for a budget which applies to the administration of his successor."

Not Complete Yet Smith pointed out that the budget demands, tall as they mounted, were incomplete. He said a supplementary statement would be submitted to Fitzgerald later outlining the needs involved in equipping and staffing additions to the state hospital system involved in the $11,500,000 institutional building program.

The difference between expected revenues and requested expenditures reached record heights surpassing even those of 1937, the previous peak, when the institutions and departments asked for $120,000,000. The anticipated income had been set at $101,000,000. Actually the legislature appropriated $3,000,000 more than was asked.

Smith explained that the figures in the requests submitted today are tentative and that he and the governor will work together to scale them down. He said the situation showed a need for a system under which the legislature could work along a planned program to keep expenditures within the state's income.

CRISLER TALKS AT MARQUETTE

Audience of Nearly 350 Hear U. of M. Coach At Alumni Dinner

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 23 (AP)—"Winning is not the principal thing to emphasize in football," Herbert O. (Fritz) Crisler, University of Michigan football coach, told an audience of nearly 350 in the St. Peter's cathedral dining hall tonight at a banquet given in his honor by the Marquette County club of the Michigan Alumni association. It was one of several meetings Crisler will address in the upper peninsula this week.

"There is a bigness to the sport that does not show on the scoreboard," he stressed. "Football serves to prepare young men for life in that it teaches them to control their emotions and to do their level best to succeed, no matter what conditions may be."

Included in the crowd were approximately 100 Marquette and Alger county high school athletes who were guests of the Marquette County Alumni club.

Stating that this is the time of the year when many "self-appointed reformers" seek to bring about some change in America's most popular collegiate game, Coach Crisler granted that the game may have some evils, but that "its advantages and benefits far outweigh its evils."

Crisler took his listeners behind the scenes in a few instances, in which he pointed out how certain individual players had bettered themselves by their contact with football.

He said that "players must learn to accept conditions as they are and to do their level best without offering any alibi." And that, he remarked, constituted an important lesson in preparation for life.

"I contend there are many values to the game besides the score," Crisler emphasized. "In answer to those who say football has its evils, I say that the game has many benefits."

Veteran Attorney Dies In Marquette

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 23 (AP)—Albert E. Miller, one of the oldest practicing attorneys in the upper peninsula, died here today at the age of 77.

Born at Ypsilanti, he was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1883 and was admitted to the bar two years later. He came here in 1888 to enter the legal department of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway and retired last June as the railroad's legal counsel after 44 years of service.

He is survived by a widow and two sons, James W., dean of the faculty at William and Mary college at Williamsburg, Va., and Edwin, professor of mathematics at the University of Michigan.

down in the relatively warm and placid waters of the Gulf stream. Had it been colder and rougher, he said, they could not have survived their ten-hour horror drift. The Esso Baytown was welcomed by a great shrieking of harbor whistles and by saluting airplanes overhead as she pushed her thin and sturdy ice-coated prow in to the pier.

As the tanker moved up the harbor, Miss Nellie Smith of Pembroke, Bermuda, one of the survivors, dancing a jig on the deck. Describing the rescue, Taylor said that eight of the survivors were hanging to four life preservers when the life boat pushed in to sight through almost total darkness.

"They must have lost the other life preservers when the plane crashed," he added. "They said that when it struck the water it seemed like the whole bottom of the plane came up and then it sank in ten minutes."

BOMBER CRASH FATAL TO FLIER

Parachute Fails; French Passenger Escapes With Injuries

Los Angeles, Jan. 23 (AP)—America's most modern light bomber crashed in flames in a parking lot near the Los Angeles municipal airport today, and its pilot, John Cable, was killed when his parachute failed to open.

A passenger, identified as Paul Chemidlin of Paris, a representative of the French air ministry, was dragged from the rear cabin of the all-metal bomber before it burst into flames, and escaped with a broken leg, severe back injuries and minor head wounds.

Ten persons, including four women, seated in cars in the parking lot, were injured slightly by flying pieces of wreckage. Nine automobiles were demolished.

Cable, a test pilot for the Douglas Aircraft corporation, fell to his death when his parachute failed to open at 200 feet. He was killed instantly when he struck the earth less than 50 feet from the smashed bomber.

Expert witnesses who saw the tricycle geared, high-winged ship go through a series of difficult aerial maneuvers said Cable apparently cut one of the two engines at 3,000 feet preparatory to climbing tests at half-power.

A moment later the plane fell going into a flat spin. At 500 feet Cable was seen hurling from the forward cockpit hatch. It was not known whether he had jumped or had been thrown out by the plane's gyrations.

Suspects Are Held In Hammer Slaying At Indianapolis, Ind.

Indianapolis, Jan. 23 (AP)—Detective Chief Fred Simon announced tonight two men, taken into custody at Jacksonville, Fla., would be questioned in the hammer slaying of Mrs. Carrie Leah Romig, 55, here last Tuesday.

Simon said a detective would go to Jacksonville to question the men, whose names he declined to disclose. He would not discuss the connection the men may have with the case, nor say whether his department has any evidence against them.

Simon said the men left Indianapolis the day Mrs. Romig was killed. He described one of them as a "personal acquaintance" of the slat woman.

SHIPPING CRIPPLED

London, Jan. 23 (AP)—Wintery gales crippled Atlantic shipping and interfered with continental aviation tonight, with 14 vessels disabled or lost in the storms.

Twenty-four lives were feared lost, and all naval vessels in the English channel were instructed to keep a sharp lookout for a missing royal air force bomber with a crew of seven men aboard.

Crippled ships struggled under the force of giant waves 50 feet high in a wild Atlantic whipped by a 90-mile-an-hour wind.

Building of additional hospitals or subsidization of existing hospitals to provide more beds, nurses and laboratory facilities with tax funds was also urged. Officials said that this, combined with health insurance and care of the medically indigent, would make it possible for everyone to secure the aid of a physician and hospital, and such special services as X-ray examination and treatment, blood and other analyses necessary in modern medical treatment and, through the disability insurance proposal, an income during the period of illness.

Deadline Passes Without Call for Statewide Strike Move

Detroit, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Teamsters Union appealed to the National Labor Relations board at Washington today for a settlement of an inter-union dispute involving 700 Detroit beer truck drivers which threatened to mushroom into a general trucking strike.

The Teamsters' joint council held in abeyance the authorization given it by representatives of Teamsters' locals in the state last night to call a city-wide trucking strike, "and, if necessary, a statewide strike."

A noon deadline passed without a strike call, but a spokesman for the Teamsters said a city-wide strike would be ordered in the event all other efforts failed to settle the dispute. A state-wide strike might follow, he said, as a last resort.

Mayor Richard W. Reading, who has taken an active part in efforts to settle the original dispute and avert a general trucking strike, was unable this afternoon to find representatives of the teamsters for a conference.

O. L. Smith, attorney for the teamsters, was asked if a general strike was probable tonight. He replied: "The officials of the Teamsters Union are doing all they can to bring about an adjustment so there will be no necessity for a strike. If what they are trying to do does not materialize, there will be a strike."

St. Ignace Harbor Improvement Asked

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—Major General Julian L. Schley, chief of army engineers, announced today he has ordered Col. R. Pettis, district engineer at Detroit, to investigate proposed improvements at St. Ignace, Mich., on the north side of the Straits of Mackinac. General Schley said local interests had asked that the harbor be deepened to 21 feet and protected with a breakwater on the north side.

Taxes represent 28 per cent of gasoline costs.

WAVE OF FEAR SHAKES EUROPE

Troop Movement Rumors Spread Jitters In Many Nations

London, Jan. 23 (AP)—An undefined wave of fear swept European stock markets today, causing what many commentators described as the "blackest day since the September crisis" when it appeared Germany, France, Britain, Italy, Russia and perhaps others were about to go to war over Czechoslovakia.

London's city—the British equivalent of Wall Street in New York—was caught during the day between the whirlwind of apparently unfounded rumors of troop movements in various parts of Europe and quick official denials.

Rumors of "abnormal troop movements in greater Germany" caused Swiss officials to reinforce their frontier services facing old Austria. The reported troop movements were promptly denied in Berlin.

Such unsettling reports were coupled with a pessimistic interpretation of the basic international outlook.

In Wall Street, where stocks dropped $1 to $6 a share, the crop of rumors included fears that the dismantling of Reichbank President Hjalmer Schacht by Chancellor Hitler of Germany meant a decisive swing toward inflation, economic experiment or international adventure by the Fuehrer.

Other bearish developments included: 1. Hitler's decision Saturday to require membership of all able-bodied men in his Nazi storm troops or other Nazi formations.

2. Premier Mussolini's blunt warning to France, Sunday, that a firm stand against his territorial demands in Africa and the Mediterranean might find an even firmer Italy. This warning had been preceded by official statements that Italy is waiting for her accounting with France until after the Spanish war is settled—and to many observers the war seemed to be reaching a critical stage.

3. The virtual alliance of Yugoslavia with Italy, as announced today by the authoritative Fascist editorial writer, Virgilio Gayda. Gayda said Yugoslavia saw eye to eye with Italy on the Spanish question, Communism and Italy's differences with France and that while they might not fight together would not fight against one another.

Legislative Council Loses Its Prestige And May Be Junked

Lansing, Jan. 23 (AP)—A bill to repeal the act that carried the legislative council advanced tonight to position for a final vote in the house of representatives, with not a word spoken in defense of the once powerful council.

The council lost much of its prestige under attorney general opinions last summer that deprived its subdivisions of authority to subpoena witnesses, and increased the difficulty of collecting expense accounts.

It was created in 1933 as an interim agency to propose legislation and co-ordinate legislative investigations. None of its recommendations has reached the legislature this year in the form of bills, although the council devoted months last summer to investigations of gambling and other issues.

The Sundstrom bill to authorize Republic township, Marquette county, to issue bonds to finance improvement of its waterworks system, was sent back to committee to be killed after Rep. Charles F. Sundstrom, Democrat, Michigan, its sponsor, learned an enabling act was unnecessary.

MEDIC SERVES ISLAND ALONE

Dr. Palmer Has Practiced On Beavers for 16 Years

BY HERBERT A. HALL
St. James, Beaver Island, Mich., Jan. 21 (AP)—A lone-handed battle against death and disease on a northern Lake Michigan island enters its sixteenth year this month with death a two-to-one loser.

The hero of this fight on one of Michigan's last frontiers is slight, gray-haired Dr. Russell E. Palmer who guards the health of the 450 families on isolated Beaver Island.

Dr. Palmer, a graduate of the University of Toronto, for 16 winters has been driving his way through huge snow drifts and performing emergency operations on kitchen tables by the uncertain light of oil lamps.

He was sent to Beaver Island in 1923 by the Michigan department of health, which guarantees him part of his income as the island's resident physician.

More Births Than Deaths
Emergencies, which have a habit of cropping up most frequently in the winter, have plagued him ever since he came to the island. Limited equipment and isolated farmhouses make things difficult.

"These emergencies," observed Dr. Palmer, "always seem to arise at night when an operation must be performed by the flickering light of kerosene lamps."

He reflected, however, that the birth rate of his islanders averages 25 a year while the death rate is less than half that figure.

Dr. Palmer said his worst trip was last winter when he was called to a farm 11 miles from St. James. He hired a sleigh and left the village at midnight with Coast Guard Paul Somerville. The horses floundered in the snow-drifts and Somerville had to walk ahead of the team with a flashlight. They reached the patient five hours later, over a route which may be covered in summer in less than 30 minutes.

Two weeks ago Dr. Palmer commanded a fish tug to rush 23-year-old Hubert Gallagher to a Charlevoix hospital for an emergency operation. Gallagher survived the turbulent crossing to the mainland, but died in the hospital.

Other Island Doctors
There were other physicians on Beaver Island before Dr. Palmer's day. Possibly the most colorful and mysterious of them all was Foodar Protar, who landed here in 1892 and, until his death years later, carried on the lonesome battle. Each year Protar sent to the mainland for his annual supply of medicines. He refused all fees and died penniless. The islanders believe he was a Russian nobleman, but no one knows where he got his medical knowledge or his funds.

An influenza epidemic in 1923 emphasized the island's desperate need for full-time medical service. During that epidemic an army plane took off from Selfridge Field with Dr. R. N. Armstrong, Dr. J. D. Brown, of Leveing, who already had set out across the jagged Lake Michigan ice from Cross Village, arrived at St. James, after a 14-hour journey, just as the army plane landed here.

Fresh Mullet Caught Like Smelt

Suckers, of fresh mullet, were dipped up like smelt off the north shore Sunday morning as 15 tons of the fish were taken from the water. Fishing was not unusually good, however, for they were scooped out of pens under the ice where they have been kept for several weeks.

The small-mouthed suckers were taken in trap nets off Masonville, Fairport, Stonington and Isabella, and brought to the pens off the north shore which are maintained by the Hansen and Jensen fish company. By Sunday a full carload of the live fish had been placed in the pens and were ready for shipment.

Dip-nets not unlike those used during the smelt runs were employed to scoop the fish out of the pens, and they were loaded into boxes and swiftly trucked to a waiting express car equipped with large tanks. Dumped into the tanks, they were on their way to New Jersey fish markets Sunday night.

The tanks in the railway car were filled with water here, and the fish were to make the trip half-way across the continent in the same water. To keep it fresh, an air compressor on the car provides a constant stream of air that bubbles through the tanks. They will arrive in New Jersey tonight, and be on sale in fish markets there tomorrow morning.

Mullet are shipped largely for the Jewish market, which requires that they be killed by a Rabbi. Hence the tank car system of live shipping has been developed. Similar cars are employed by the conservation department, for shipping fry from hatcheries to be planted in Michigan streams and lakes.

DUKES RESIDENT KILLED BY CAR

Sunday Morning Mishap Fatal to Konstu Heitikko, 51

Munising, Jan. 23.—Konstu Heitikko, 51 year old Dukes resident, died in the Munising hospital at 1:30 o'clock on Sunday morning after being struck about a half an hour earlier by a car driven by his son, Arne, 18.

The accident occurred on Cedar street near the corner of Chocolate street. The elder Heitikko was walking south on the road toward the home of his daughter, Mrs. George LaRue and his son was driving north on Cedar street into Munising.

The younger Heitikko saw the man walking on the road and turned so that he would avoid hitting him. As the car and the man almost met the elder Heitikko started to cross the road in front of the car. Swinging the car toward the ditch to avoid striking him the younger Heitikko applied the brakes. The front of the car went into the snowbank while the rear swung around on the road and hit the elder Heitikko.

When Arne got out of the car he found that the man was his father, who had suffered a broken leg and facial injuries.

State and city police and the Alger county coroner, John Schilling, investigated the accident. Schilling said here today that the death was accidental and that no inquest would be held. The son was absolved of blame.

The body was removed to the C. F. Beaulieu funeral home and then taken to the Swanson funeral home in Marquette.

Mr. Heitikko was born in Finland and had been engaged in farming near here for the past 21 years. Surviving are his wife, three daughters, Mrs. Henry Rademacher, Jr., of Manistee, Minn., Mrs. Peter Trombly of Cloquet, Minn., and Mrs. George LaRue of Munising; a son, Arnie of Lawson, two sisters and two brothers in Finland, a brother, Frank Salmi of Marquette and three grandchildren.

Services will be held from the family home in Lawson on Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The Rev. Francis Koski of Gwinn will conduct the services. Burial will be made in the family plot in the Park cemetery.

sidtown strikes of 1937.
Murphy for the first time disclosed the contents of his letter to John L. Lewis, head of the CIO. It was his trump card and it brought a settlement of the strike that had thrown thousands of men out of work.

But Murphy still failed to disclose many things that would be even more interesting than the Lewis letter. In no way detracting from the importance of the Lewis letter, which many said put the bushy-haired labor leader in bed, Murphy could have gone on and told what precautions had been made by the Michigan National Guard to drive strikers from Flint plants.

He also might have related that the order putting Flint under martial law had been written and that he was prepared for a military drive against the lawlessness that then obtained.

The former governor, whose preference for the conference table caused worldwide discussion, also might have told the senate judiciary sub-committee that he had threatened martial law when the strikers took over the Consumers Power company.

SUCCEEDED WHERE MISS PERKINS FAILED
One can imagine the headlines if Murphy had told the committee just how much aid he received from President Roosevelt during those dark hours. It is recalled that Murphy stepped in after Miss Perkins, secretary of labor, failed completely even to arrange a joint conference between labor and industry. When she failed, Murphy launched his peace program.

Murphy only told the senate committee snatches of what took place during those conference days. The Lewis letter may be the first and only chapter of Murphy's strike story. His reasons for keeping the public in complete ignorance of all these things are just as important as the strike settlements, and as he put it during his campaign for re-election, "without the loss of a single life."

Had the governor disclosed even the Lewis letter back in February, 1937, the state's political history might have been much different. But he did not choose to disclose the struggles that took place behind closed doors.

Murphy would be doing a great service if the entire proceedings were made available to the public.

Heavy Snow Causes Several Accidents; Vision Is Obscured

Obscuring motorists' vision as it filled the air and caked on automobile windshields, the heavy snowfall of Saturday afternoon and evening caused several accidents in Delta county. High winds early Sunday morning added to motorists' troubles as they blew drifting snow across the roads.

Three accidents occurred on the highway between Escanaba and Gladstone. A car driven by Gilmore Foster, bound south, collided head-on with a car driven by Mrs. Henry Jokela of Rock. Mrs. Jokela reported to sheriff's department officers that Foster was driving on the wrong side of the road, and that she swung to the left in an attempt to pass him on that side. Foster stated that he was blinded by the snow and was on the left side of the road as he approached the other car. When he saw it, he said, he swung back to his own side of the road where the cars came together. Mrs. Jokela suffered a cut over one eye and a bruised leg.

A truck loaded with meat collided with an automobile driven by August Tyni of McFarlands about a mile and a half south of the Gladstone city limits. Jacob Henkin of Escanaba was the driver of the truck, which was badly damaged in the crash. Attorney Jackson Talks At Meeting Of Rotarians Here

Attorney Glenn W. Jackson, Gladstone, warned Rotary members at yesterday's meeting that every thinking American citizen must do his part to stem the tide of un-American propaganda that is flooding the United States from foreign countries, attempting to undermine the fundamental theories and practices of democracy.

The speaker pointed out the fact that both Germany and Italy had forced all Rotary Clubs of those countries to disband at the end of last year. In both of these countries this club has served as an instrument of international understanding, good will and peace. This is just the beginning of a program to spread the gospel of a totalitarian form of government to America and the United States from dictator-ruled nations, he said.

GIRLS MISSING AFTER PICK-UP

Accept Ride After Drift Halts Car at Bridge Near Rapid River

Two Oser girls were missing yesterday, after they accepted a ride with strangers when the car in which they were riding became stuck in a snowdrift near the Whitefish river bridge on highway US-2 north of Rapid River. They were reported missing at 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

Jack LaFave of Oser, his daughter, 13, and her friend, Devoe Davis, 14, of Rock, were driving south on US-2 early Monday morning when their car slid onto a deep ditch at the side of the road. They attempted to free it, and stopped a passing car for aid.

Two men in the automobile got out and helped them, but they were unable to get the car back onto the road. LaFave and the two girls got into the strangers' car, to ride to Rapid River for a wrecker, but the driver failed to stop at Rapid River and they went on to Gladstone.

They stopped in front of a Gladstone garage, and LaFave got out of the car to get a wrecker. He reported to officers that he left the girls in the car with the two strangers. When he returned, he said, the girls and the car were gone.

The girls were reported missing at the Delta county sheriff's office at 2 o'clock yesterday morning by Gladstone city police, and Escanaba police were notified to be on the lookout for the car.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. LaFave reported to the sheriff's department here that the girls were still missing. She stated that she was going to the home of her daughter's friend, to see if they had been taken there by the men who had picked them up.

"Evidently the girls were found there," Sheriff William Miron said last night, "or Mrs. LaFave would have called us back. She said she would call if she didn't find them."

The LaFave home is located on a stretch of road between Rock and Oser, which is not tapped by telephone lines, and LaFave could not be reached last night.

STATE OFFERS WINTER SPORTS

Various Communities Are Holding Snow Festivals

Lansing, Jan. 21. (AP)—Michigan, a summer paradise for millions of out-of-door lovers, is becoming a year-round holiday land with the increased popularity of winter sports. The state's 1939 program is already started at several snow centers and other winter festivals are planned within the next two weeks.

Urban residents of the state and those from neighboring states have already begun to find athletic delight in the snow-filled woods of northern Michigan. Railroads operating in the state have a full schedule of snow trains this season to carry the ski, toboggan and ice skating enthusiasts to regions where those events are a day-to-day occurrence.

The Alpena winter sports season opens officially next Friday and runs until February 5, with the Michigan outdoor speed skating championships a highlight of Feb. 4 and 5.

At Cheboygan, the "snow fiesta" began Saturday and will continue to attract winter sportsmen while the snow lasts.

Negaunee will open its winter season January 29 with a ski jump and will crown its traditional queen February 3. The following day it plans a winter Mardi Gras and will continue festivities irregularly until February 19.

Top flight ski fans will turn their attention February 19 to the opening of the Pine Mountain ski slide. The slide, in two jumps, boasts a total length of 360 feet and a total drop of 500 feet.

At Marquette, the city's winter carnival will run from February 5 to 12, and the nearby winter sports center of Ishpeming already is busy welcoming Marquette county residents.

Grayling, nearest and best known winter sports spot to the large urban centers of southern Michigan, has reached that stage of popularity where every weekend is a carnival time for loaded snow trains.

Escanaba, during the 1939 season, features skating and ice-boating on the broad reaches of the Little Bay de Noc.

The first nonstop solo airplane flight from Buenos Aires to Lima was made in March, 1937, by a Peruvian army officer, who covered the 2000 miles in 13 hours 51 minutes.

Tech Professor Makes Study Of Early Miner

Utilization of the most modern scientific knowledge may lead to establishment of a new theory regarding the age-old mystery of prehistoric mining on Isle Royale.

The new attempt to determine who the ancient miners were and whether they were kin to the prehistoric men whose identity already has been established in Wisconsin is being made by Dr. Roy W. Dreier of the Michigan college of Mining and Technology metallurgy department.

"Working in collaboration with the Milwaukee Museum," Dr. Dreier explained, "I am taking old pieces of pottery and by x-ray diffraction and spectrographic examination trying to identify these pieces of pottery—found on Isle Royale—as pieces of pottery made by known cultures."

Dr. Dreier, who already has conducted an intensive investigation into the mysteries surrounding Isle Royale's "infancy," has evidence indicating that—other theories notwithstanding—copper was mined on Isle Royale as early as the days of Christ.

"The Milwaukee Museum," Dr. Dreier asserts, "has pottery from all over Wisconsin—and one of the theories is that the early miners on Isle Royale came from Wisconsin."

Dr. Dreier said his new investigation will be aimed to determine whether this belief can be substantiated—and, if so, how the early miners traveled to the Lake Superior island.

Interesting Evidence

"The early Isle Royale mining," he explains, "was naturally a seasonal proposition, miners coming to the island only during the summer months. Inasmuch as travel most probably was all by water, it has been claimed that they came north by way of Lake Michigan—in their rough canoes or dugouts, through the St. Mary's river and west along Lake Superior to the Canal and then to Isle Royale. They must have been stout fellows to travel in canoes on this long journey."

Dr. Dreier's studies have led him to believe the hardy prehistoric miners traveled west through the Keweenaw Waterway to the present site of the Portage Canal. Here scientists have discovered as many as 600 pieces of copper artifacts, including such implements as chisels, wedges, axes, fishhooks, spear-heads and other tools. Some authorities claim the prehistoric men camped at the site of the Portage coast guard station, waiting for favorable weather to cross the 50 miles or so to the Isle Royale mine pits. Because of the crude and somewhat unsafe boats, travel was possible only during calm seas.

Indicating that the Isle Royale miners conducted their activities at an earlier date than did the miners who dug into the earth in the Keweenaw peninsula, Dr. Dreier has in his rare collection of ancient mining implements, crude mauls found at McCargue's Cove, scene of most of the early mining operations, and others found on the mainland.

Most Important Tool

"The most important tool of these miners," he explains, "was the hammer-stone or maul. These mauls are usually egg-shaped boulders, varying in weight up to over 40 pounds, and none of the variety found on the shores of Lake Superior or in the glacial drift in the region. With the exception of a few locations in Keweenaw peninsula all of the mauls found on the peninsula have an angular groove, which undoubtedly was used to enable the mauls to be attached to handles by means of thongs, withes or crochets. Some of the larger mauls are found with two grooves. It is thought that these larger hammer-stones were attached to bent-over saplings and used as stamps. None of the stone mauls found on Isle Royale have grooves. Certainly the grooved hammer-stones are evidence of a later stage of civilization or at least a reversal in the average slope of the civilization curve."

"Only one copper maul was ever recorded found and that near Ontonagon. In general the character of the island diggings is older and more interesting."

Dr. Dreier is prone to discredit the oft-mentioned theory that the extent of prehistoric mining conducted on Isle Royale consisted of "10,000 men working 1,000 years." Although he openly holds that evidence points to activity on the island "about the time of Christ," he bases his contentions upon the fact that "more than 500 men could not have existed on the island because of the inadequate transportation." The food problem, he says, would certainly have been a serious one for a larger army of miners.

Evidence Is Unique

Isle Royale, in recent years projected into national prominence because of Uncle Sam's plans for dedication of the island as the nation's 28th national park next summer, has probably the last remaining evidence of prehistoric mining in the country. In Dr. Dreier's opinion, the prehistoric miner paved the way—blazed the trails—for the modern miner—and, in many ways, was superior to the modern miner, considering his lack of knowledge, crude implements and handicaps provided by the elements.

"Indian legends," Dr. Dreier says, "contain nothing about mining. So it is safe to believe that the mining on Isle Royale was done before the time of the Indians. Even if the prehistoric people were predecessors of the Indian, a thing of that magnitude would certainly have been handed down by generations."

To date, investigation conducted by the Michigan Tech scientist has failed to identify the Isle Royale pottery with that uncovered on the mainland.

Roberts Shifted To U. S. Forest At Bedford, Ind.

Rapid River, Mich.—The following article taken from a copy of the Iron River Reporter will be of interest to many friends of Floyd Roberts, a former Rapid River boy:

"Floyd T. Roberts, ranger of the Iron River district of the Ottawa National Forest received word yesterday of his transfer, effective January 20, to the Hoosier forest in Bedford, Ind. Clare Hendee, supervisor at Ironwood, informed Roberts that his transfer is regarded as a notable promotion.

"Roberts has been connected with the forest service since June 1929, when he graduated from Michigan State college. He studied forestry, and was granted a degree of bachelor of science.

"Following graduation Roberts was given an appointment in the Wyoming forest. In 1930 he was an assistant ranger in Nebraska, and the following year he was transferred to Colorado. In 1935, and within a few months, when the Iron River unit was established, he was promoted to ranger. He has been the ranger here for almost four years.

"Under his supervision millions of seedlings and small trees have been planted in the Iron River forest, which at one time had four CCC camps. At present there are two, Camp Gibbs and James Lake. "Roberts is interested in the Boy Scout movement, and is a member of the scout committee sponsoring the troop of St. Agnes church. He also has devoted some time to civic affairs, and was elected to membership in the Iron River service club."

Floyd Roberts is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Roberts of Whitefish, he graduated from the Rapid River high school in 1922, took a commercial course at Ferris Institute in 1925, spent the years between working on U. S. lake survey, logging and saw mill work, earning money for his college career.

After graduating from Michigan State college in 1929 he was assigned as assistant ranger at Der Noir, Wyoming. In the timber sales administration on Washington National Forest, transferred to Nebraska in November 1930 on nursery, plantation and improvement work. March 1931 he was assigned as district ranger to the Blanco district on the San Juan National Forest in southwestern Colorado, work consisted of fire protection and grazing administration, (2,099 cattle and 24,099 sheep), timber sales, expenditure and other miscellaneous items. In 1933 first CCC camp on San Juan forest district was established. Transferred to Treasure district in the San Juan National Forest in June 1934, the work there was about the same as on the Blanco district.

In January of 1935 he was transferred to the Iron River district, Ottawa National Forest, as district forest ranger (class 1), worked mainly as timber sales, user, and general CCC activities, having three camps at one time, now two remaining. Transferred to Hoosier National Forest in January 1935, as assistant forest ranger and assigned staff assistant. He attended two special forest service training schools, one at Colorado Springs, Col., in May 1930, and one at Eagle River, Wis., in January and February, 1936.

Floyd's family consists of his wife and three children, Eleanor, 6; Jimmy, 2½; and Edmond, 1 year old. His many friends in the community join in wishing them success in their new home. They arrived at the Gus Roberts home Wednesday, Jan. 18, and left Thursday for their new home in Indiana.

Roads Near Munising Blocked By Heavy Snowfall

Beautiful scenes like that above were created by Saturday's fall of heavy wet snow on highway M-94 near Munising. Later in the evening, rising winds and more snow made drifts across the road and for a time the highway was blocked.

Members of an Iron Mountain band (below) are shown as they attempted to free car after becoming stuck near Au Train. Pushing the car are (left to right) Wally Hill, Art Trotter and Jerry Salone. The musicians abandoned their car at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, and spent the night at the Bovan resort on Au Train lake, getting under way again at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. Trotter became unconscious from exhaustion as they attempted to push the car through drifts, and was carried to the resort by his companions and revived there. Other members of the band are George Corst of Iron Mountain and Gordon Sullivan of Escanaba, who took the photographs reproduced here.

AVERAGE DEPTH OF ICE 9 INCHES

Row of Trees Marks Way Across Bay; Rising Temperature

Average depth of the ice of Little Bay de Noc is nine inches, according to measurements taken by the local weather bureau office yesterday. Three measurements were taken, one showing eight and one half inches and two showing 10½ inches.

With the ice becoming safe for driving with autos, the annual "Christmas tree highway" has made its appearance. Annually, a row of trees is placed in the ice to mark the road across the bay to Stonington in order to enable drivers to cross when the weather is not favorable.

The thermometer hit four degrees below zero early yesterday morning but rose quickly under influence of the bright sun. Temperature at noon was 18 degrees, a rise of 22 degrees from the low, rising temperature was forecast.

Yesterday was the first time since January 1 that the thermometer has been below zero. On New Year's day, it registered three below.

City Manager Bean Talks At Kiwanis Meet On Astronomy

An interesting talk on astronomy was given by City Manager George E. Bean at the meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Sherman hotel yesterday noon.

The city manager explained various characteristics of planets in the solar system, and cited some scientific discoveries that have been developed from studies made by the astronomers.

A new program feature was introduced at the meeting. It consists of having Kiwanis members, born during the current week, give brief biographical sketches about themselves. Autobiographies were given yesterday by Britt Hall, Dr. K. F. Harrington and Wm. J. Schmitt.

A trip to the Birds-Eye Veneer company's plant will be the feature of next Monday's meeting.

Skiing More Than Sliding Down Hill; All Fundamentals Must Be Mastered

Most people have the mistaken idea that to learn to be a skier, one climbs a long hill and coasts down, as though the skis were merely substituted for a sled or a toboggan, and that speed is the ultimate thrill. As altogether wrong as this is, more so is the idea that one can learn under such conditions.

The first thing one learns is to stick to the nursery slope and learn the fundamentals of controlled skiing, and when he has the confidence and skill needed, then he can, if able to, graduate to the higher slopes.

As mentioned in the last article, the vorlage crouch is extremely important. Some of you who were out skiing yesterday probably tried it. Check yourself by reviewing it again. The knees are thrust forward, so that the weight of the upper part of the body is sinking forward and against the knees, but is not balanced at the knees. The bumps are taken up by the knees and ankles because the weight is pressing in that direction. The knees become springs rather than pivot points, and no longer is success dependent upon muscular force.

Keeping this all important feature in mind, and remembering not to sit down, but to have your body on a perpendicular axis to the hill, this will make downhill running and all of your turns much easier to learn.

After learning how to take a hill properly, the stooping or stemming is next noted. This operation is very valuable in checking the speed on the slope, on the level, and in turning.

How to Stem Always think of stemming as an operation requiring three successive movements: First, crouch—the lower and more forward the better. Second, widen out—but in widening, throw the heels out and toe in, that the ski points remain close together, skis forming a perfect V or snow-plow, and skis still flat. The widening out and shifting of the weight is accomplished just at the instant you start to lower your body into the crouch.

Third, still crouching, begin to edge the skis inward, tipping them gradually until the inside edges bite enough to bring you to a full stop.

In crouching always let yourself down at the knees, try to avoid bending at the waist, keep your head erect, your arms stretched forward and down toward the ski points.

You may have noticed that when one skis was advanced slightly, there was a tendency to go in the direction to which it pointed. This is the principle of turning in the snow-plow turn, the stem-turn and the Christiansa turn.

The Snow-Plow Turn Again, it is easier to learn to turn on a gentle slope, and to further control the speed it is best to go down the slope at a slight angle.

Still keeping the correct vorlage and stem position, go down the hill at an angle, checking your speed as you go. Most of your weight will be on the downhill ski, but as you reach the spot to turn, shift your weight to the inside ski, face down hill, and keep your body away from the slope. Using the downhill ski as a sort of a pivot, weight the inside ski and advance it slightly, but do not cross it. In the snow plow turn keep the skis flat—no edging.

The danger is in the tendency to lean inward instead of out, to straighten or brace with the outer leg. Knees must be bent to prevent edging. Try to bend the outer knee more than the inner one when turning.

The snow-plow turn requires a great deal of practice. Only when you have it under perfect control should you try the next step in controlled skiing—the stem turn.

LET UP... LIGHT UP A CAMEL

SMOKERS FIND THAT CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS ARE SOOTHING TO THE NERVES

101 STORIES UP on the world's tallest building, Sidney Evert swings in the wind with only a frail scaffold between him and—well, it's 1100 feet to the street. His work is to repair windows in the tower of the Empire State Building. Nerve straining, you bet, but as Sid Evert says: "A fellow with jumpy nerves wouldn't last long on my job. So I ease the tension on my nerves whenever I can. I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels are soothing to the nerves." Smokers in a wide variety of nerve-nagging occupations, nerve-straining sports turn to Camels for the same reason. They find it pays to ease nerve tension often. So they let up—light up a Camel!

TRAPPED ON A BLAZING WRECK, Captain Hans Milton displayed courage and nerve-power that won him head-lines from coast to coast. He says: "On the schooner Pioneer, afire 400 miles out of Halifax, we had a little food and water and some Camels. Those Camels were a great comfort through the nerve strain of worry and danger. It's a rule with me, whenever I feel my nerves getting tense, keyed-up, to let up—light up a Camel!"

"RUNNING A HOME is a full-time job," says Mrs. Frank E. Smith, housewife and hostess, "and every minute of it can be nerve straining. Cleaning up, planning meals, social affairs would run me pretty ragged (and add years to my looks) if I didn't make sure to protect my nerves. My way of avoiding jumpy nerves is this: The minute I feel tense and 'edgy,' I pause—I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels really soothing to the nerves."

(above) A GORDON SETTER is pictured here—a handsome, muscular dog to be proud of. It's a thrill to watch his flashing action. And it's a valuable lesson to observe that after strenuous activities, this dog suddenly halts... relaxes! Though his nervous system is high-strung like our own, the dog responds quickly to the instinctive urge to rest. We don't usually look after our nerves that well. Perhaps you have often willed yourself on... hour after hour at a task... ignoring nerve strain. Try breaking that nerve strain occasionally—pause now and then—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS... Turkish and Domestic.

On The RECORD

THE SPANISH EMBARGO
If General Franco wins the war in Spain the results for Britain and for France will be a greater catastrophe than Munich, and the results, in the long run, for the United States will be very disturbing.

No responsible journalist doubts that a simple statement, and the most intelligent statement of the countries concerned are perfectly aware of it.

Conversely, it is a matter of primary importance for the Fascist powers that Franco should be victorious. In the conversations between Chamberlain and Mussolini in Rome the latter made it clear that the Spanish question was more important to him than all the other issues combined. The dispatches over the week end from Spain indicated that Italian participation in the insurgent drive is enormous. Nevertheless, there is actually a tendency to take seriously Mussolini's argument to Chamberlain—and his categorical pledge—that if and when General Franco is victorious Italy will withdraw wholly from Spain. These words mean less than nothing. If Franco is victorious, Franco Spain will be part of the Rome-Berlin axis, France will be totally surrounded and Britain will have the choice of playing hand in glove with the Fascist powers or eventually facing a war against them, with herself in a terrible strategical position.

The idea that Mussolini, having spent thousands of Italian lives and hundreds of millions of lira, will withdraw when his side has won, leaving Majorca to the British, or that General Franco, unable by himself to subjugate Spain, will be able to drive out the Italians and Germans, is hardly worth intelligent consideration.

General Franco has already made a "cultural" treaty with Hitler by which they agree to exchange professors, motion pictures and radio programs. And though Franco was supposed to have declared for neutrality at the time of the Munich crisis, the German pocket battleship Deutschland, with submarines and destroyers, took up a battle station in the port of Vigo, in the north-west corner of Spain, from where Britain's sea lanes could be controlled most effectively.

The only thing that can prevent a Franco victory from meaning greatly enhanced international Fascist power is a miracle—the breakdown of Italy or Germany, a hope entertained by the weak-minded, who seem to think that the more victorious and successful a regime is the more likely it is to collapse.

Meanwhile, in Spain, the interests of Britain, France and the United States are being represented and fought for by Spanish men, and the cost is being paid by Spanish women and children as well, and the governments of democratic peoples continue to talk about a totally non-existent non-intervention and continue to maintain an embargo on arms to the loyalists, with whose cause their peoples sympathize and in whose success all democratic countries have a direct national self-interest.

This country clamped an embargo on Spain because we actually thought that non-intervention was going to mean non-intervention.

Now, two years later, when we see that it is a tragic farce, that four or five Italian divisions are in Spain, that Franco is supplied with limitless material by Italy and Germany and aided immensely by German technicians, we still maintain the embargo, and just now shelve a proposal that it should be lifted.

The neutrality act does not demand this embargo. If it did, we should have to embargo China, which we are not doing. The suggestion that selling arms to the Spanish government would involve us in war is poppycock. We are simply, like all the rest of the democratic world, yielding to blackmail, and, like France, following the lead of a British government which has proved an appalling incapacity of courage, leadership, or even simple morality.

It is not a matter of no concern to the United States that a Fascist government, tied to the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo axis, should be set up in Spain. The Spanish influence in South America has always been prodigious, and a Spanish-Fascist state, co-operating with Italy and Germany, will have tremendous repercussions on this hemisphere—culturally, ideologically and in trade. We are already worried about Italian and German infiltration into South America, but a Fascist Spain, collaborating with the other Fascist powers, will represent a far, far greater danger than anything at present on the scene.

With all our talk about international law and the sanctity of treaties, we at present stand in a position which is in every way an indefensible inversion of international law.

A legitimate friendly government has the right to buy from us in the markets of the world whatever she needs for her defense against rebellion.

That is a principle of international practice which the Ameri-

CYNTHIA CANTRELL, orphaned granddaughter of great-aunt Mary Cantrell. Still another dreamer was Yesterday, Janet meets an old man in the park who tells her that Lance had offered to build his house on his lot if the affair could be handled quietly.

CHAPTER XIV
Janet wondered for a moment if this weren't all some grotesque dream. She had to steady her quivering lips before she could answer. "Why—he wanted to sell you the house without the knowledge of his firm, I suppose."

"So I gathered. . . . Now my problem is this: I want that house a lot. I'm not under any obligation to Hallowell and Benton. I've already paid them for any services they had rendered. But—now you look like a smart young woman—would it be your opinion that a man who was disloyal to one employer would be any more straightforward in dealing with another?"

"No," Janet said, very low. "I'm afraid it wouldn't. . . . Not with—any one."

"Well, that's just about what I decided. . . . But I did want that house."

He glanced toward the white house across the ravine.

"I don't suppose," he said reflectively, "that that one is for sale."

"I—really, I don't know," murmured Janet.

After all, did she? Could she be sure of anything after this? She got up slowly.

"I think I'll have to be running along now."

"I'm afraid I've been boring you," he said, smiling up at her. "But sometimes talking things out to someone else helps you to come to a decision. . . . My dear young lady, you look ill. I hope you haven't over-tired yourself. I have a car right out by the gate. If—"

"Thank you," Janet said hastily. "But I'm all right. Anyhow, I live just around the corner."

At first Janet thought that she could not go to the party that night—that it would be impossible to appear with Lance, laughing and acting as if her world had not fallen to pieces. But soon all the legend that her love had built up about Lance sprang to his defense.

Whatever he had tried to do, he had attempted for her. . . .

can government has stood for from the beginning of her history. Our historic tradition has been on the side of not only selling arms to friendly governments but of preventing arms going to rebels against which such friendly governments were struggling. There are many, many such instances in our history.

Now, however, we have reversed this American doctrine at the very moment when two of the reckless dictator governments have violated all rules of law and treaties and have chosen to cut off from the lawful government of Spain the rights given to it by international law. We have actually chosen to use our new neutrality to aid and abet treaty breakers and governments hostile to our basic institutional and national interests. And the neutrality act, presumably designed to keep peace, is being used to assist one of the most ruthless and cynical interventions in history.

Numerous international lawyers—and among them the former Secretary of State, Mr. Stimson—believe that the President has the power to lift the embargo and ought to do so.

He of all people ought to lift it, for he has time and again expressed himself on the question of aggressor nations; he has advocated a quarantine of them; he has castigated the Fascist dictatorships as no democratic leader in the world has done.

He has the right to lift the embargo because, under the neutrality act, it is he who determines whether or not a state of war exists. He has chosen to regard what is happening in China as no war and what is happening in Spain as war, although we have never recognized Franco as a belligerent.

He ought to lift it and stop our playing ducks and drakes with international law, and he ought to lift it in our own national interest.

The present embargo act was designed by the State Department in the absence of Secretary Hull in December, 1936, when the Secretary was at the Buenos Aires Conference. It was thought of as a parallel measure to non-intervention. It was rushed through Congress as an emergency measure.

Senator Pittman said at the time that the United States should not, alone, violate a general non-intervention policy.

The act, therefore, is now perfectly senseless. The insurgents are fighting with tanks, airplanes, every kind of motorized material and whole divisions of Italian troops.

Each division is equipped with artillery and machine and submarine guns.

On the loyalist side there is not a rifle for each soldier. What the

Besides, he had failed. And having seen the cool scorn in the old man's eyes that afternoon, Janet had a feeling that before the matter was ended, Lance would be made to understand just why he had failed. . . . He must have been too desperate to understand exactly what he was doing, or he would never have tried. Before it was time to dress for Leslie's dinner dance, Janet had almost persuaded herself that this was true.

The sea-green gown with the jacket of sequins was delivered late that afternoon. Janet decided that she might as well wear it. There was nothing like a sense of being beautifully dressed to bolster up one's morale. Besides, she thought a little bitterly, the sea-green gown would be entirely out of style before she needed a trousseau.

Cynthia and Timothy Benton had just arrived, and were standing in the lobby of the hotel where Leslie and Janet went in.

Timothy Benton was rather overpowering in evening dress. He was, Janet thought, as Lance had said, so ugly he was almost handsome. He carried himself with the easy poise of an athlete, but his voice, when Cynthia introduced him to Janet, was just a shade too loud, his manner a shade too heavily for perfect ease. There was something about him that reminded Janet of a great friendly bear not entirely sure of his welcome. When he made a boastful joke about their being cousins now, Janet saw Lance's left eyebrow lift ever so wearily.

Lance, who had been trained in an expensive technical school and in Paris, and who had been taken into the business as the son of one of Mr. Hallowell's best friends, had always been humorously contemptuous of the self-made younger partner.

Then Timothy Benton turned to Cynthia, and at something in his eyes, Janet's breath caught.

Why, he's really in love, with her, she thought. This wasn't just a fly-by-night marriage with him. He looks—kind; and—Cyn's just using him. It isn't fair.

Cynthia, in ivory satin and old gold ornaments, was more radiant than Janet had ever seen her. In fact, from the beginning it was really Cynthia's evening. . . . Not that Janet cared about that. What she cared about really was that nothing in her own world was quite the same tonight as it had been only a week before. She wondered a little blankly if she ever should get it all back again—that sense of security and that clear confidence in the integrity and kindness of the world about her.

It was during the first dance after dinner that Lance said, very casually, "Oh, about the old boy I was drawing the plans for, Jan—I heard just awhile ago that his wife died suddenly in the hospital early this evening. An unexpected heart attack. Rotten luck!"

"Oh, the poor old dear!" Janet cried, remembering the old gentleman's eyes when he had spoken that afternoon of the walks he and his wife used to take in the wood.

Barney McKnight was there—very long and lanky—and tousle-headed even in the formality of tails. He was conspicuously armed with a huge notebook and pencil, with which he gravely pretended to make copious notes for the morning society page.

"Put me down for ermine and emeralds, Barney," Sylvia Grant called, dancing by in rose taffeta. "And don't forget my diamond stomacher," Leslie laughed.

Janet had hardly had time for a private word with Cynthia. Late in the evening, coming from the powder room, she saw her cousin alone through the French doors that opened on a veranda, and turned to follow.

It was dark on the veranda; but rounding a corner, Janet made out the glimmer of Cynthia's satin gown against a stone ballustrade. She was about to call her name when she realized that Cynthia was not; after all, alone.

Out of the darkness Cynthia's drawl rose, clear and scornful. "Don't you think it would be brighter?" Cynthia was saying. "If you'd stop poking around in the dead ashes? After all, it is a little late in the year, isn't it? And—it may be hard for you to understand this—suddenly it makes so little difference to me what you think about me."

Oh, Barney! Janet thought impatiently. How can you make a doormat of yourself? It isn't like you.

Then all of a sudden she understood that it wasn't Barney Cynthia was speaking to. . . . Barney was much taller than the figure that stood, half in shadow, at Cynthia's shoulder.

"But, Cynthia," a man's voice said, "how could you do this insane thing? I've been half wild ever since I saw those headlines. . . . Cyn, you've always been the only one really. You must know."

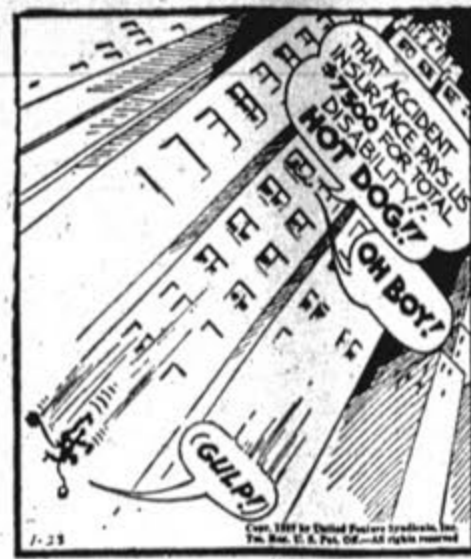

"I do seem to remember having heard that once—long ago," Cynthia's low voice stung like a whip. "But that was before Jan came home, with her stocks and bonds and that look of a sweet, kind, brave little girl. . . . You made your choice then, Lance. Well, I've made mine. And I hope to God I'll manage to be a better sport about it than you've been."

Janet fled down the dark veranda. Stumbling over a chair leg, she plunged forward against a tall figure which had just stepped out from a doorway.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk—because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble? What else you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any further. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination. If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B. Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars" Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

NERVES AFFECT STOCK TRADERS

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES table with columns for Net change, D-25, D-15, D-11, D-1, Monday, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago, 1938-39 high, 1938-39 low, 1937 high, 1937 low.

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—Stock market prices crumbled today as Wall Street suffered a new attack of nerves resulting, primarily, from the cloudier foreign outlook.

Steels and motors fell rapidly at the start and other groups were quick to follow. Leaders closed with losses of 1 to 6 points generally, around the lows of the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 2.1 points to 48.8, the widest break in this composite since Sept. 13, last.

Dealings were fast in the forenoon as large blocks of recent favorites changed hands on the downside. The pace slowed later, but transfers totalled 1,881,120, the largest volume for any session since Dec. 29.

Inspiring heavy offerings, brokers said, was the thought of international complications that might come in the wake of an imminent insurrectionist victory in the Spanish war. In addition, the news Prime Minister Chamberlain would broadcast a strong defense speech later in the day was seen as a warning of a possible European explosion. The address, coming after the close, was actually milder than had been talked of. Gloom over the German financial muddle hinged on the ousting of Reichsbank chief Hans Schacht was a factor and trading forces took to the woods in large numbers.

Considerable short selling was noted and offerings of American securities from abroad were said to have been in greater proportions than for some time.

A chilling influence was seen in a more than expected drop in this week's estimate of steel mill operations. At that, motor sales and output were said to be holding up well. Rails were hardly as soft as other departments and most utilities kept decline to around a point or so.

Bonds traded stock on the slide, even U. S. governments, giving ground. Most commodities were lower and a cut in the scrap copper price aroused thoughts of a likely readjustment in the domestic rate of the red metal.

Wheat at Chicago was off 1/4 to 1/2 of a cent a bushel. Corn yielded 1-8 to 5-8 and cotton was down 40 to 50 cents a bale. Guilders fell sharply in terms of the dollar and the French franc was moderately lower. Sterling, however, improved.

In the curb Electric Bond & Share broke 1-5 under heavy offerings and Lockheed Bell 3-18, followed closely by Bell Aircraft. Others of a point or more included Grumman Aircraft, Standard Steel Springs and American Gas & Electric. Turnover of 291,000 shares compared with 203,000 Friday.

On the Record

loyalists have in man power. The rebels hold two-thirds of Spain, but more than half the Spanish people are still fighting with the loyalists! Fighting without a rifle is a piece!

And while we denounce Fascism publicly, officially and as a people, we assist it. And listen to those who tell us that the loyalist government is a Communist government—which is simply a lie.

There is no danger of Communism in the world today. What is Bolshevism in the popular mind—the war against the traditional cultural and spiritual values of the Western world, as well as the war against both human and property rights—is being carried on by the Fascists. The foreign policies of the democratic powers have been so craven and so unenlightened that it will be a miracle if Russia and Germany are not driven together. Then, with German organization and technology having access to the vast central and east European resources, with Italy in a position to blackmail in the Mediterranean, with Italy, Germany and Spain concentrating on the great resources of South America, we may all wake up—just a little bit too late.

MARKET GETS BAD SET-BACK

BOND MARKET AVERAGES

Table of Bond Market averages including Net change, D-14, D-10, D-5, D-1, Monday, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago, etc.

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—The bond market broke badly today as stocks suffered the sharpest setback in four months, and losses of 1 to 4 or more points liberally sprinkled the loan list.

Down the most were secondary rail loans, which more closely in step with stocks, but off nearly as much were foreign dollar bonds as selling orders swept into local securities markets from abroad.

Touche of liquidation were reports Spanish insurgents were closing in on Barcelona, and rumors Prime Minister Chamberlain was about to make a strong defense speech which would indicate the gravity of events in Europe. Chamberlain's address, reported after the market close, appealed for voluntary support of 50,000,000 Britons between the ages of 14 and 65 for defense of the British empire if the need came.

United States government issues, which had been touching new highs for year or more, slipped back with other loans, and while one maturity showed a gain of 5-32nds of a point, all other active issues were on the downside, with losses in some cases as great as 3-32nds.

Off 1 to 3 or more in the foreign were Italian 7s of '51 at 70 1/2, Milan 6 1/2 at 53, Rome 6 1/2 at 66, and German 5 1/2 of '65 at 17. French 7 1/2, stamped were up 7-8 at 107 5/8.

Transactions totaled $6,630,425, face value, the largest since January 5, and compared with $6,188,000 Friday.

Fritz Crisler Speaks At Grid Banquet Tonight

DINNER STARTS 6:15 O'CLOCK

Escanaba and St. Joseph Gridders Feted At Sherman Hotel

Fritz Crisler, whose dynamic personality has won him the title of "Doctor of Football" and who did such a remarkable job in rebuilding the University of Michigan football team last fall, will be the principal speaker at the sixth annual football recognition banquet for St. Joseph and Escanaba high school football players at the Sherman Hotel this evening at 6:15 o'clock.

The banquet is an annual affair sponsored by members of the Escanaba chamber of commerce for the benefit of football players from both schools. Speakers at previous dinners were Harry Kipke, Crisler's predecessor as Michigan coach; Con Jennings, director of athletics at the Marquette university; Bernie Bierman, football coach at the University of Minnesota; Charlie Bachman, coach at Michigan State, and Harry Stuhldreher, coach at the University of Wisconsin.

Has Great Record
Crisler, who stopped in Escanaba, for a few minutes yesterday enroute to Marquette where he spoke last night, is one of the best speakers in the post season circuit. A tall, handsome, well-built fellow, Crisler is famed for his sparkling wit. His coaching career started at his alma mater, the University of Chicago where he was assistant to Alonzo Stagg. He was named head coach at Minnesota following ousting of Doc Spears and had the Gophers around the top when he took over the head coaching duties at Princeton university, where he put teeth back into the none too ferocious Princeton Tiger. Eager to get back to his old stamping grounds in the Big Ten, Crisler jumped at the chance to take over coaching duties at Michigan when Kipke was given notice to leave.

In his first year, Crisler imbued the Wolverines, down-trodden for several years, with his flaming spirit and they responded with a will that missed winning the Big Ten title by the mere fraction of a missed extra point against Minnesota. Michigan losing to the Gophers, 7-6, for their only defeat of the year. In the course of the season, Crisler developed an upper peninsula boy, Ralph Heikkinen of Bessemer, into an all-American. Strom Toastmaster
Attorney T. E. Strom, graduate of the University of Michigan, will serve as toastmaster at tonight's dinner. Rev. Fr. Paschal, athletic director at St. Joseph, will deliver the invocation with Escanaba lettermen furnishing musical entertainment.

H'VILLE PLAYS CHANNING FIVE

Two Unbeaten Teams to Meet This Evening for First Time

Hermansville, Mich., Jan. 23—Hermansville high school's unbeaten record will receive a severe test Tuesday night when they meet the also unbeaten Channing team on the Channing floor. Channing is the only team to defeat the locals during the regular season in the last three years, having turned the trick last year on the Hermansville floor.

Hermansville has won her first four games of the season turning in victories over Felch, Daggett, Stephenson and Harris, while Channing has not been defeated. Both of the teams have met Felch this year and both have won for the Dickinson county team by about the same margin.

The Hermansville starting lineup will probably be chosen from Schwartz and the Machalk twins, Steve or Mike at forwards, with St. Juliana at center, and the guards being picked from Earle, Parish and Maule, with Peterson and Miketinnac in reserve. In the Felch game three of the first four were handicapped by injuries or illness, but they are expected to be in top form for the contest on Tuesday night.

Powers Quintet Is Defeated By H'Ville By 23-17

Hermansville, Mich., Jan. 23—Behind throughout the first half, Hermansville's entrant in the Delta-Menominee county league came back strong in the second half to defeat a clever Powers crew by a score of 23-17 in a well played game here Sunday afternoon.

Powers put up a strong defense in the first quarter, holding the locals to but one field goal but Hermansville crept up slowly, knotting the score at nine all just before the half ended. The locals continued their progress and edged ahead in the third period and retained the slight lead until the end of the game.

The game was well played between two evenly matched teams, no player being outstanding. Powers' lack of ability on the free throw line was largely instrumental in its defeat, making only three free throws out of 15 attempts.

SPILLING the DOPE BY JOHNNY INKALINGER

"If you can't lick 'em, join 'em," was Fritz Crisler's observation when he signed as head coach at Michigan last fall. . . . commenting after losing to Minnesota in that one point heart-breaker, Crisler said: "We didn't practice much on kicking of extra points this year because I thought the alumni would do all the kicking!" . . . at the Blaney Park coaching school four years ago, Crisler asked the coaches for their signatures with this remark: "I want your names so that I can recommend you if you ever want a job—and to write to you for recommendation if I ever want a job!" . . . these three bon mots give you an idea of the kind of a fellow Crisler is. . . . we'd like to bet he makes a big hit at the banquet at the Sherman hotel tonight.

Negro Heavyweight Fight To Draw Great Audience

BY DREW MIDDLETON
New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—To the great astonishment of all concerned the Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis battle is selling tickets like nobody's business. As the result there will be a crowd of about 18,000 and $100,000 or more in the till when the two negroes square off Wednesday night in the red-rope ring of Madison Square Garden.

When the match was made there were loud predictions it wouldn't draw flies. It is the first heavyweight championship fight between negroes since Jack Johnson fought battling Jim Johnson in Paris in 1913. Then too, the experts put Louis so far ahead of the field, it didn't seem likely the customers would pay to see him against Lewis, the clever but non-violent, light heavyweight champion.

NAHMA MEETS TRENARY FRIDAY

Tobin's Crew Off Form While Losing to Daggett Five

Nahma, Mich., Jan. 23.—Trenary high school, one of the highest scoring class D teams in the peninsula, will furnish the opposition for Nahma high school at the local gym Friday night in the feature attraction of the year.

The Trenary cagers have an imposing record of nine consecutive victories and in two games they can up more than 130 points. In their last start, however, they were held to a close victory over Cooks, an indication that they are not invincible. The Nahma quintet was badly off form Saturday night in losing to Daggett by a score of 27-14. Only three times were the boys successful in slipping the ball through the hoop from the free, eight points coming on free throws.

Soltz led Daggett with 11 points. Leichman of Daggett was banished from the game via the foul route.

Boys' Hockey Teams To Be Formed Today

All boys interested in forming hockey teams are asked to report at the North Escanaba outdoor hockey rink as soon after 3:30 today as possible. Leagues will be formed this year the same as last with Clifford Anderson, WPA recreational leader directing. Juvenile and junior leagues will be conducted in the afternoon and for older boys in the evening. If enough good teams are formed, arrangements will be made for them to give exhibitions and possibly stage a series playoff in the indoor rink in the exhibition buildings.

TRIBUTE TO LOUIS

All this a tribute to Louis' drawing power. He has not fought since he annihilated Max Schmeling last June. The crowd will expect a similar massacre, but in the cauliflower industry opinion is sharply divided. No one thinks Louis will lose, except a few rabid fans, but the manner of his winning was in dispute as the fighters went through their last ring workouts today.

It is almost impossible to get a bet down. The prices range from 1 to 5 to 1 in favor of the champion but no one is betting. It is 1 to 3 Louis will stop the Phoenix, Ariz., negro. There is no pessimism in the Lewis camp. "I'll just tie Joe up, outbox him and outfox him," said John Henry, an affable fellow with great confidence in his own powers.

Those who figure Lewis will go the distance are betting more on the astuteness of James Joy Johnston than anything else. Johnston it was who engineered the Bob Pastor-Louis walk-out, a horrible thing to watch, and Johnston it is who has been at Summit during most of John Henry's training, coaxing him to try the hit and run methods employed by Pastor against Louis. Louis won that one after one of the worst fights of his career.

Boxing With Skill
Not many think Johnston can do it again. Louis has come a long way from the awkward, gun shy boy who fought Pastor. At Pompton Lakes he has been boxing with his customary skill and hitting well. He is amused at reports he will go easy on John Henry because of friendship.

"This fight'll be over just as soon as I can fix it," said Joe Louis will weigh around 202. Lewis about 187. The challenger will fight along more or less careful lines, stressing body-punching, infighting and an earnest desire to stay away from the T. N. T. the champion carries in both fists.

No one thinks this will be enough to beat Joe, the best boxer in the division since Tunney and the best hitter since Dempsey.

GOPHERS LEAD BIG TEN RACE

Fighting Squad Noses Out Illinois, 35-33, As 14,600 Watch

Minneapolis, Jan. 23 (AP)—A fighting Minnesota basketball team rode to the top of the Western Conference standings tonight by nosing out Illinois, 35-33, in a thrill-packed game before 14,600 fans, the largest crowd ever to witness a floor contest here.

Little Gordon Addington, Gopher forward, with 17 seconds to go, dropped in a field goal for the winning points after Minnesota had trailed for almost the entire tilt.

It was Minnesota's fourth conference victory against one defeat while it was the second loss for Illinois in six starts.

The Gophers started out with a 3-9 lead but the Illini quickly caught up and led, 18-11 at the half.

Following the intermission Minnesota reduced its disadvantage to three points at 21-18 before Illinois again increased its lead to eight points on five three throws by William Hapac, forward.

Behind, 22-23, the Gophers put on a brilliant rally to close the gap and went into a one-point lead at 33-32 on five straight field goals. Lewis Dehner, Illinois center, was fouled and he made his one gift shot to tie the score at 33-33. Addington's game-winning goal followed.

Addington sparked the Gophers to victory with 13 points.

Hapac had three field goals and seven free throws for 13 points for Illinois.

Frank's Of Rock Beat Camp Wells By Score Of 55-38

Rock, Mich., Jan. 23—Led by Francis Trombly, last year's Little Giants captain who is leading the Delta-Menominee county league in scoring, Frank's of Rock had little difficulty in disposing of Camp Wells here Sunday afternoon. The final score was 55-38.

Tri-State Conference At Ishpeming Feb. 21

Ishpeming—Called by the Ishpeming Winter Sports club, a tri-state winter sports conference, appealing to all interested organizations and persons in Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin, will be held February 21, in conjunction with the closing day of the "Carnival of the North."

Announcement was made today by the officials of the Ishpeming organization after preliminary survey convinced them that there was a demand for such a conference and after assurance of delegates from Minnesota and Wisconsin made it evident the conference will be tri-state in character as well as in name.

A five-point theme has been suggested, the objectives being:

1.—The formation of a tri-state council, within which will be set up three committees, acting, respectively, for Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan. These committees will be empowered to study conditions and developments peculiar to their own areas and to act as a clearing house for individual clubs in the exchange of ideas and standardization, wherever expedient, of any winter sport attractions.

2.—Cooperative and coordinated programs not only in the three districts, but between them, insofar as they can be beneficial and effective to all concerned.

3.—A study of the possibilities of cooperative advertising by areas instead of localities.

4.—A study of the possibilities of greater legislative appropriations earmarked for winter sports advertising and development, those to be recommended only after a vigorous and inclusive study of each area, study and recommendation to be made by each area committee.

5.—A round-table discussion during which experiences of the past season can be pooled and trends studied.

Indicative of the all-embracing character of this meeting is the fact that the club has invited, or will invite, representatives of all known resort organizations in the three states; all mayors of communities which have winter sports organizations; all county engineers and park commissioners, state highway and conservation commissioners, WPA and NYA officials, development bureau leaders and land and lumber company representatives.

Every effort will be made to lay out a comprehensive, yet concise program.

It is expected that between 150 and 200 delegates from the three states will be here.

One of the conference features will be a 12:30 o'clock dinner meeting, when Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald, of Michigan, will be the principal speaker. Efforts are being made to bring Governor Julius P. Heil, of Wisconsin here, because of the importance that will be laid on resort development, a factor in which all northern Wisconsin is vitally interested.

Fitzgerald said he would submit to the labor committees of the senate and the house of representatives Wednesday the administration's labor relations program. The bills will be introduced formally in the afternoon, accompanied by a special message from the governor urging speedy enactment of the law.

The Republican majority in both branches disclosed it planned to hold weekly consultations with the governor at behind-closed-door caucuses, to keep in close touch with Fitzgerald's legislative wants, that the administration program might be speeded through in the way he wants it.

A joint caucus was scheduled for tomorrow noon.

The governor declined to discuss terms of the labor relations bill until it has been presented to the labor committees. It is being given its final revision before introduction by the executive office's legal staff.

Lansing, Jan. 23 (AP)—Rep. Maurice E. Post, Republican, Rockford, introduced in the house of representatives tonight a bill to initiate a constitutional amendment limiting Wayne county's representation in the house to not more than 25 per cent of the members.

The measure would forbid any county to have more than 25 of the 100 members of the branch. Wayne county now has 25. Post said he believed more than 25 would give Wayne county too much control of legislative affairs.

A bill by Rep. John B. Smith, Republican, Alma, would reduce the interest rate on delinquent taxes to one-half of one per cent a month. It now is three-fourths of one per cent. The four per cent collection fee would be retained.
