FITZGERALD ORDERS STATE POLICE TO ENFORCE LAW

Battle Creek, Mich., March 6 (P)—Hard upon Governor Fitzgerald's order to state police to enforce anti-gambling laws where local authorities fail to act, the Rev. Amos B. Bogart tonight withdrew threats of a recall movement but warned he would "stay on the job" to see that gaming was halted.

Governor Fitzgerald had issued his order—promptly accepted by State Police Commissioner Oscar G. Olander with a promise to "clean up" wherever necessary—after Mr. Borart had declined to accompany two state policemen to Lansing at the governor's bidding.

Minister Approves The minister called Governor Fitzgerald on the telephone at the latter's home in Grand Ledge tonight and afterwards announced his approval of the governor's orders to state police. The governor, while issuing the order, denied Mr. Bogart's charges that gambling had been permitted to expand under the present state administration.

Disclosing details of his call, Mr. Bogart said the governor had told him he thought "I had been unfair in cracking this thing wide open without going to him first."

"I told the governor," Mr. Bogart said, "that too many things we had seen it happen that something like this got nosed around before an investigation was started and when it did start, all the places (gambling places) were closed."

Might Not Be True "I'm still not saying that the charges in my letter were anything but reports. They might not have been true, but they should have been investigated."

In a letter last week to the governor, Mr. Bogart had threatened to start recall proceedings unless enforcement steps were taken. The governor today had ordered the minister brought to Lansing "within two hours" to present evidence.

"I told him," Mr. Bogart said tonight, "that if the enforcement order were carried out, it would satisfy my group."

He said he would not attempt a recall movement, nor a grand jury investigation.

Won't Visit Lansing "However," he said, "I told the governor that the people back of me were going to stay on the job and see that both local and state police do their jobs."

Mr. Bogart said he had no desire to "crucify anybody" but that if the governor's orders went unheeded, there would be "another crack-down."

He indicated he would not visit Lansing.

"The governor did not ask me to come to Lansing and I did not think that I should go," he said. Commissioner Olander said his

House Passes Bill Permitting Schools To Borrow $500,000

Lansing, March 6 (P)—The house of representatives voted tonight to permit distressed public schools to borrow $500,000 against next year's school aid appropriation. The measure, advanced after partisan debate, now goes to the senate.

Rep. Isadore A. Weza, Democrat, Ontonagon, declared he was voting for the measure "because of threats by the governor to veto better bills." He charged the loan was inadequate and that the house would be better advised to make an outright appropriation.

Weza said he understood some schools would have to shorten their terms by six to eight weeks unless they received additional funds.

He was challenged promptly by Rep. John P. Eaple, Republican, Eagle, chairman of the ways and means committee, who declared he believed "no one needs to lose any sleep for fear the schools will have to close."

Rep. Victor A. Knox, Republican, Sault Ste. Marie, took issue with Weza's charge that Governor Fitzgerald is refusing to abide by campaign promises to help the public schools solve their financial problems.

The house adopted and sent to the senate a bill to permit members of boards of supervisors to resign and immediately accept appointment to salaried county positions. A six months' wait now is provided by law.

A joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to make the office of superintendent of public instruction appointive was referred back to committee for revision.

British Troop Trying to Kill Dangerous

Lansing, March 6 (P)—Harold D. Smith, state budget director appointed by former Governor Frank Murphy, tonight confirmed Washington reports that he was in line for the post of federal budget director.

He said he had not yet accepted the appointment to succeed Lewis W. Douglas, who quit in 1934, but was weighing the offer which came from President Roosevelt.

Smith told intimate friends, however, that "it begins to look as though I could not afford to refuse."

Governor Fitzgerald, Murphy's Republican successor in office, expressed surprise at the possibility Smith might leave the state service. "I had regarded him as a permanent aide," the governor said. "I have not considered the possibility of appointing a successor to his position."

SMITH OFFERED JOB IN CAPITAL

State Budget Director In Line for Federal Appointment

Lansing, March 6 (P)—Harold D. Smith, state budget director appointed by former Governor Frank Murphy, tonight confirmed Washington reports that he was in line for the post of federal budget director.

He said he had not yet accepted the appointment to succeed Lewis W. Douglas, who quit in 1934, but was weighing the offer which came from President Roosevelt.

Smith told intimate friends, however, that "it begins to look as though I could not afford to refuse."

Governor Fitzgerald, Murphy's Republican successor in office, expressed surprise at the possibility Smith might leave the state service. "I had regarded him as a permanent aide," the governor said. "I have not considered the possibility of appointing a successor to his position."

Democratic sources described the offer as "impatient" over the delay in accepting the appointment. The budget director might be another in a growing line of Michigan officials who have followed Murphy into the federal service.

The former governor chose Smith, who was executive secretary of the Michigan League of Municipalities, for the state budget post two years ago. Since then Smith has been directing a program of reorganization of the state's fiscal affairs that is not yet completed.

Smith's term does not expire until July, when the current problem of financing the deficit remaining from the Murphy administration will be settled, so far as the 1937 legislature is concerned. With his predecessor in the office, George R. Thompson, now Detroit city engineer, he has been at work on a budget for the coming biennium since Fitzgerald's inauguration.

BARUCH SAYS IT'S TIME TO CUT EXPENSES

DEMOCRATIC PARTY LEADER IS OUT FOR ECONOMY

Washington, March 6 (P)—Bernard M. Baruch, financier and powerful figure in the Democratic party, took a hand today in behind-the-scenes maneuvering over a business appeasement program and informed legislators reported that he was supporting the congressional "economy bloc."

At a luncheon with Vice President Garner and a group of Democratic senators, it was said, Baruch assured them that he believed government expenses should be pared.

No Halt On Spending There was no sign, however, that the White House was contemplating any retreat from the view that continued deficit spending was necessary. Within the administration, advocates of the theory of spending as a means of bringing about economic recovery were fighting hard. The federal reserve board, of which Marriner Eccles is chairman, said in its monthly view of business that one of the factors upon which further industrial activity depends is "greater public expenditures."

Soon after this announcement was made public there were reports that President Roosevelt, far from dropping his demands for $150,000,000 additional for relief, would soon detail his reasons for asking that sum.

Tax Revision Coming? Besides economy, Baruch was said to have advocated tax revision as a means of encouraging business. Secretary Morgenthau and other administration officials have hinted that such revision might be in the offing.

Morgenthau pressed his business encouragement drive today in a novel manner. He posted behind his desk a sign asking "Does it contribute to recovery?" The sign blue and black placard was intended, he said, to serve notice on all callers that unless they had something to discuss that would assist business he had no time for them. Similar signs will be posted throughout the treasury.

The federal reserve board reported in its review that the February rate of industrial production was about 99 per cent of the 1923-25 average, compared to 101 in January. It added: "A further growth in activity appears to depend on an increase in consumption arising out of such factors as further growth in private residential building, larger outlays for plant and equipment, and greater expenditures for construction or other purposes."

Early Admittance Seen The report came at a time when Senator Harrison (D-Miss) and

MARTIN'S UNION CLAIMS 104,500

Followers Vote to Bar Communists, Fascists From UAW

Detroit, March 6 (P)—Delegates to Homer Martin's convention of United Automobile Workers swung their full support to him late today in his fight against rival co-unionists and buried the first major blow in what bids fair to be an inter-union rank and file battle.

Martin's convention, a competing affair with a March 27 Cleveland convention of the CIO-supported faction within the auto workers organization, adopted resolutions suspending twenty CIO-backed members of the international executive board of the UAW. The resolutions also "bar" the twenty from union membership.

Seventeen of the board members previously had been suspended by Martin. Three others suspended by the convention, Walter N. Wells, Russell Merrill and F. J. Michel, had been ignored by Martin.

Adoption of the resolutions set off a five-minute demonstration by the delegates, who also gave Martin a vote of confidence in approving all his actions since the split between him and the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The convention meanwhile disavowed all actions of R. J. Thomas, acting president of the CIO faction.

Niagara Span Will Be 'Rainbow Bridge'

Niagara Falls, N. Y., March 6 (P)—With plans almost complete for a new span over Niagara gorge to replace the wrecked "Honeycomb Bridge," the Niagara Falls bridge commission announced today the new structure would be called "Rainbow Bridge."

The commission said the name was selected because mist from the cataract often forms a rainbow. The old span was originally named "Falls View Bridge" but was more commonly known as "Honeycomb Bridge."

It collapsed during an ice jam a year ago last January.

BASE IN GUAM AGAIN PUSHED BY NAVY MEN

LARGER AIR CORPS IS APPROVED, 54 TO 28

Washington, March 6 (P)—A bill authorizing the army air corps to increase its strength to 6,000 war planes won the approval of the senate today after a debate which emphasized the "threat" of dictator nations to the democracies of the world.

The vote, 54 to 28, was taken toward the close of a day which also saw the navy again bring forward, forcefully, its proposal for the establishment of a naval air base on the far-away island of Guam, a project which the house rejected.

Mass Purchase Advised Admiral Leahy, chief of naval operations, appeared before the senate naval affairs committee to urge the proposal, saying the strategic position of such a base in the western Pacific would give it "inestimable value," to this country and act as a strong "deterrent" for any nation which might contemplate an attack upon Hawaii or the Pacific coast of the United States.

The senate's vote came in the course of its consideration of the $358,000,000 rearmament bill, carrying the bulk of the administration's national defense program. The measure already has passed the house, but that body voted for a 5,500-plane air corps.

After the house vote, however, Secretary Woodring urged that this limitation be raised by 500 planes. He said that since mass purchases of planes meant lower prices, it might prove possible to buy more planes than first expected with the money congress has been asked to appropriate. So that the army might be able to take advantage of such savings, he wanted the plane authorization increased.

Less Than 900 Now By contrast with the 5,500 authorization in the house bill, and the 6,000 voted today by the senate, present law permits the air corps to maintain a strength of 2,300 planes. General H. H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, testified before the military committee, it actually has less than 900 fighting planes.

Foes of the increase to 6,000 planes were led by Senator Clark (D-Mo.), who argued that the increase was "simply gratuitous attempt on the part of the army" to get additional funds.

Under the measure, he said, the army could go ahead and contract for planes and then send the bill to congress in the form of a request for a deficiency appropriation.

"There is not a line in this bill," he shouted at the senate, "that would prevent the government from being obligated to the extent of $1,000,000,000, $2,000,000,000 or any number of billions."

Clark, in addition, warned that if congress did not restrict the expansion of the air corps and other phases of the administration rearmament program, it might bring about a "pre-war inflation" which would ruin the cost of the program to a level that would "stagger the imagination."

GRIES REJECTS JOB AS WARDEN

Governor Still Looking for Suitable Man At Jackson

Lansing, March 6 (P)—Walter F. Gries, of Negaunee, former warden of Marquette prison and Governor Fitzgerald's No. 1 choice for a corresponding post in the southern Michigan prison, rejected the appointment today.

Informed of Gries' decision, the governor said he would confer with Hilmer Gellein, state corrections director, and members of the corrections commission in a search for available candidates with penal experience. "Only one thing is certain," Fitzgerald said. "He'll be a Michigan man—and not from Missouri."

Sources close to the governor recalled that E. J. Oswald of Crystal Falls, superintendent of operations for the Republic Steel Corp., had been mentioned as the governor's favorite for the wardenship at Marquette, should a vacancy occur. Similarly, Glenn Carpenter, once employed in the southern Michigan prison, has been mentioned for the wardenship of Ionia reformatory.

Fitzgerald has indicated there would be no hurry about either appointment, and there was a possibility one of the candidates for those posts might get the more lucrative southern Michigan job. He waited for the "voluntary" resignation of Warden Joel Moore before publicly discussing the choice of a successor.

The southern Michigan warden draws the largest salary provided in the civil service department's compensation plan for classified state employees—with a top limit of $7,650. Warden Moore said, however, he had been receiving no more than $4,500 a year in cash since civil service was instituted.

Abolition of his wife's post as prison matron, at $1,500, and deductions for maintenance accounted for the rest, Moore told a legislative committee investigating civil service. A furnished residence, with living expenses paid, is provided for the southern Michigan warden by the state.

Five Japanese Navy Warehouses Burned

Tokyo, March 7 (Tuesday) (P)—The Japanese admiralty announced today that five navy warehouses at the great Yokosuka naval station were destroyed by fire at 11 a. m. yesterday—the second time within five days that disaster had struck Japanese war resources.

Last Thursday a series of blasts and ensuing fires destroyed army powder magazines at Hirakata, north Osaka, in which 67 persons are known to be dead and more than 100 still missing.

FRANCO'S MEN POISED READY FOR ATTACKS

NEW REGIME TURNS THUMBS DOWN ON COMMUNISTS

(By The Associated Press) Paris, March 6—An anti-Communist national defense council, headed by General Jose Miaja, held Madrid and most of Republican Spain in a tight military grip tonight trying to bring the war to an end by a surrender to the nationalists.

As Generalissimo Franco's powerful armies awaited developments, poised for an attack, the new government which overthrew the regime of Premier Juan Negrin in a peaceful week-end coup, fought down opposition of the Communists.

Conditions Uncertain The council's own communiques broadcast on the Madrid radio, reported Communist attempts to "disturb public order" in Madrid were being met with "strong measures."

Madrid dispatches, however, reported that all the central zone beyond Madrid, with the exception of Cartagena, where the Republican navy escaped to the Mediterranean in a week-end revolt, was quiet and orderly.

The situation at Cartagena, Republican naval base, was described in Madrid dispatches as "uncertain." In Madrid, troops backing General Miaja, commander-in-chief of Republican Spain's land, air and sea forces until he became head of the government at the overthrow of Negrin, formed cordons about Communist headquarters.

Troops in Trenches The headquarters of the party had been ordered closed by General Segismundo Casado, who had headed the new national defense council until Miaja succeeded him. Troops surrounded principal buildings of the city.

Squads of police and soldiers patrolled the streets enforcing the order for citizens to keep moving. Machine guns were mounted at strategic street corners.

As if warning that the nationalist armies were only awaiting an order from General Franco, nationalist guns bombarded the capital twice during the morning. But the nationalist troops stayed in their trenches.

The Communists, whom the government communiques accused of fostering disorder, had formed the main support of Premier Negrin who apparently had considered further resistance against General Franco up to the time of his overthrow.

Negrin Leaves No Communists are included in the new national defense council which was formally constituted today with General Miaja as president. General Casado became minister of national defense, and Julian Besteiro, a moderate socialist who is known to have favored making peace with Franco, became foreign minister. Miaja was known to have advised Negrin to surrender to Franco. Meanwhile, Negrin and his displaced ministers fled to France.

With his former foreign minister, Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, and eight other ministers, Negrin arrived by Spanish commercial plane at Toulouse, worn-looking, they refused to comment on their flight from Spain, and went directly to a hotel.

In the Headlines From Washington

(By The Associated Press) The senate approved by a 54 to 28 vote the administration's proposal to increase the army air corps strength to 6,000 planes.

Bernard M. Baruch, financier and prominent Democrat, was reported to have told Vice President Garner and a group of Democratic senators that he believed government expenses should be pared.

The house started debate on legislation of government reorganization. Democratic supporters contending it would destroy bureaucracy. Republicans asserting that authority already granted to President Roosevelt had been "disastrous."

Secretary Wallace appealed to the states to remove trade barriers, which he said were impeding recovery and causing economic loss to the nation.

Col. Edwin M. Watson, senior military aide to President Roosevelt, was appointed a member of the White House secretariat.

BILL IS AIMED AT SPEED TRAP

Revised Motor Traffic Code Is Proposed In Legislature

Lansing, March 6 (AP)—"Speed traps" would become unprofitable under bills introduced in the legislature today to revise Michigan's motor traffic code.

The measure, among other things, would limit justices of the peace to a one dollar fee for hearing traffic cases, and would forbid arresting officers to receive any part of the fines imposed on traffic law violators.

Rep. Alexander M. Mackay, of West Branch, and Douglas D. Tibbitts, of Boyne City, Republicans, said they introduced the companion bills in behalf of the state police.

The measures would:

- Increase the fee for an operator's license from $1 to $1.25.
- Compel applicants for chauffeur's licenses to submit to fingerprinting.
- Assign permanent numbers for chauffeur's and operator's permits.
- Require the probate courts to notify the department of state, the licensing authority, of all changes in names and commitments of insane, feeble minded and epileptic persons, or of liquor or narcotic addicts.
- Forbid local governmental units to establish speed limits of less than 25 miles per hour in areas other than business or residential districts.
- Impose a state-wide 45 miles-an-hour speed limit on cars and trailers.

A bill by Rep. George N. Higgins, Republican, Ferndale, would license all automobile salesmen through the department of state.

that the cost of some airplanes had risen from $50,000 to $200,000.

Tobey imputed to Craig an intimation that this was due to increased labor costs, and said that such a statement was "not in accord with the facts" and was, moreover, a "libel on labor."

Tobey announced he would offer an amendment to restrict the profits of the aircraft industry under the bill to ten per cent. Chairman Shepard of the military committee said he would accept the amendment and Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), the majority leader, said he saw no objection to it.

Today marked the beginning of the second week of debate upon the rearmament measure, a discussion dealing mostly with the nation's foreign policy, which found some administration supporters urging a policy of helping prepare the democracies of Europe to defend themselves against the dictator states, and the senate's isolationist school urging absolute aloofness from the quarrels of Europe. Administration leaders hoped to reach a final vote tomorrow.

Great Potential Value

Leahy, defending the Guam project before the naval committee, said opposition to the Guam development had generally been based upon the assumption that "what is really intended is the fortification of Guam so as to make it an important and strongly defended naval base for airplanes and submarines." That, he added, was "not the case."

It was proposed he said that a breakwater be built, and that the reefs and coral heads be removed within the harbor to increase the calm water area for plane operations.

"The island of Guam is of great potential value to the United States whether or not any improvements are carried out at this time," he said, "it is vitally important from the standpoint of naval as well as commercial aviation."

"It is an essential link of any overseas movement of naval patrol planes to the Philippines as well as an important stopping place in the commercial air route across the Pacific."

Leahy was bombarded by questions from committee members, which brought out his opinion that Guam eventually should be fortified. An outlay of $80,000,000 would make it "difficult to capture" and $200,000,000 would make it impregnable, he said. The bill before the committee proposes an expenditure of $5,000,000.

Questioning also brought from Leahy statements that a base at Guam would make air scouting operations possible in case of a war in the Pacific. He said this would give the United States notice a week earlier than otherwise of the advance of an enemy fleet toward the United States.

BARUCH SAYS IT'S TIME TO CUT EXPENSES

other economy-minded legislators were endeavoring to win administration agreement to some cut in spending. Harrison, Senator Byrd (D-Va.), and others contend government expenses must be reduced if business confidence is to be restored.

Another development today with a bearing on the business apsement program was a broad hint, dropped by congressional leaders, that President Roosevelt would like to see congress clean up all pending matters speedily and adjourn.

After a conference at the White House, Representative Rayburn of Texas, the house majority leader, said Mr. Roosevelt told the leaders he had nothing new to submit to congress. The Texan volunteered on his own part that there should be an early adjournment.

Speaker Bankhead, another of the conferees, said the assurances the administration was given to business would justify businessmen in "going ahead."

Labor Factions Meet

"The policy of the administration is to do everything within reason to help, without abandoning its program for social reform which I think most of the country accepts," he added.

While the business apsement drive went on, the CIO and the AFL were ready to begin their peace negotiations at the behest of President Roosevelt.

Mr. Roosevelt will give his blessing to the peace committee and start them off on their conferences tomorrow. The three negotiators from the CIO and the three from the AFL are to meet with Mr. Roosevelt at the White House at 2:30 p. m. (EST).

Secretary of Labor Perkins, who will accompany them to the conference, said today Mr. Roosevelt had no formula, or proposal of his own for settling the disputes between the labor organizations. She said she thought he probably would talk to them about the effect their rivalry has had on general economic and business conditions.

Although past CIO-AFL efforts to reach agreement have been fruitless, the administration is known to believe that a growing demand for peace in the rank-and-file of the two organizations makes present prospects for ending the quarrel brighter. Miss Perkins said she had received 199 joint CIO-AFL resolutions supporting Mr. Roosevelt's plea for peace.

Americans Warned Of Jap Offensive

Shanghai, March 6 (AP)—Japanese authorities tonight warned third powers of a coming intensified military offensive in northern Kiangsu province, where there are numerous Americans.

The local Japanese consul-general requested that consul-generals of third powers to advise their respective nationals of the scheduled drive.

He asked that foreign properties in the area be plainly marked "so that they will not be bombed mistakenly by airplanes."

Diplomatic sources heard that 500 other Republican leaders of Spain were fleeing by air and sea.

Among the fugitives, a dispatch from Oran, Algeria, said, was Dolores Ibaruri, woman Communist leader known as "La Pasionaria," who landed in a plane at Oran with other fugitives.

Meanwhile French semaphores on the north African coast signaled that 13 warships of the Spanish Republican fleet, which fled Cartagena Sunday, were on their way to Bizerte in Tunisia.

The warships were expected to enter that port to be disarmed early tomorrow.

Dispatches from Madrid said the fleet had radioed General Casado that it was "at your orders."

Nevertheless, the warships were reported to be continuing toward Bizerte.

At Madrid it was explained that the Cartagena naval revolt was mostly directed against Negrin and that a few Franco sympathizers had mixed in.

Madrid's new rulers were said in diplomatic reports to have demanded only two conditions of Franco for the surrender of that beleaguered capital:

1. Safe conduct for Republican leaders to Spain's borders;
2. Guarantees that no Italian troops would be permitted to march triumphantly into Madrid as they did after the fall of Barcelona.

The new junta waved the olive branch from the beginning by declaring itself anti-Communist, and its leaders even cried, "Spain for the Spanish!" — the cry which Franco recently concluded one of his speeches.

Grosse Isle Naval Base Is Favored

Washington, March 6 (AP)—A proposal for government purchase of the Grosse Isle (Mich.) airport and establishment of a permanent naval training base there gained support today in congress.

Representative Lesinski (D-Mich.), said he would submit tomorrow a bill embracing the proposal and suggesting an appropriation. Senator Brown (D-Mich.), said he would offer a similar bill.

Lesinski said the Detroit Aircraft corporation, which had leased the property to the federal government for a seaplane port and training school, was offering it for sale. He said $600,000 would purchase it.

He estimated the federal and state governments had approximately $750,000 invested in equipment at the field.

Lesinski said the University of Michigan would benefit by the field under the new National Youth Administration pilot training program. Toledo, Ohio, he added, had been bidding for removal of the airport to that city.

Selfridge Crackup Fatal To Pilot, 23

St. Clemens, Mich., March 6 (AP)—An army investigation committee sought today the cause of the pursuit plane crackup in which Lieut. Ned A. Cowles was killed Saturday night. Capt. J. R. Hawks, Selfridge Field operations officer, said the plane had not run out of fuel.

Examination of the wreckage on a farm near London, Ont., showed the motor was cut in, and a strong odor of gasoline was evident.

Capt. Hawks said that Lieut. Cowles, on a test navigation flight, was 30 miles north of his course from Boston to Selfridge Field when the accident occurred, that visibility was four miles and the ceiling 3,000 feet.

Lieut. Cowles, 23, was a son of L. B. Cowles of Tacoma, Wash. The widow and an infant daughter survive.

Bartenders Backing Beer Truck Drivers

Detroit, March 6 (AP)—The Bartenders Local No. 562 (AFL) came to the support of Teamsters Local 271 today in the dispute over control of beer truck drivers.

The Brewery Workers Local 38, engaged in a jurisdictional dispute with the Teamsters, holds an injunction supporting its claim to control of drivers, and also won a decision from an arbitrator.

force would be prepared "within a day or two" to make any necessary raids.

"We are sending out instructions immediately for our men to work with local officers and clean up any gambling situation that they may find exists," Olander said.

No Change in Policy

Governor Fitzgerald said his order for state police enforcement of the gambling laws did not represent a change in policy. He said it was predicated upon a letter he sent to all sheriffs January 25 notifying them that they would be held responsible for enforcement of the law in their counties, and that the state would step in whenever local enforcement efforts proved inadequate.

"This letter constituted a clear outline of my policy, which is unchanged," the governor said. "It presented sufficient notice to the sheriffs. Therefore, in accordance with my policy as stated in my former letter to sheriffs, the state police will at once enforce all anti-gambling laws through Michigan. Further comment is unnecessary. The action of the state police will speak for itself."

Troops Kept Waiting

Mr. Bogart kept the two state policemen, Capt. Laurence A. Lyon and Detective Patrick Dillon, waiting at his home for more than an hour today while he attended a meeting of the Battle Creek Ministerial association. During that interim, he asserted that he would not ride to Lansing "with any state policeman," and added that "I don't believe they can make me."

Capt. Lyon, armed with an urgent "request" from the governor, conceded that he had no authority to enforce the "urgent request" of the governor.

During a brief interview, Capt. Lyon asked the minister:

"Mr. Bogart, are these reports (about gambling) anything but rumors?"

"Well," Mr. Bogart replied, "we haven't got much evidence but our committee is gathering evidence now and we hope to be able to present it to the governor."

Tool of Slot Machines?

Mr. Bogart explained that the "committee," which he said previously consisted of "two dozen business and professional men throughout the state," was known as "the Citizens League of Law Enforcement." He was soliciting new members today.

The minister's threat of recall proceedings climaxed a controversy over the merits of state enforcement of anti-gambling laws, as practiced under the administration of Governor Frank Murphy, and "home rule," as advocated by Governor Fitzgerald. Mr. Bogart said in his letter to the governor that gaming was flourishing under the "home rule" policy and asserted that some members of the Fitzgerald administration were in collusion with gaming interests.

Governor Fitzgerald said today he had learned on "unimpeachable" authority that Mr. Bogart had acted unwittingly as the "tool" of a man whom the governor described as "an agent of slot machine interests." He called attention to a paragraph in Mr. Bogart's letter which suggested

Lansing, Mich., March 6 (AP)—A spunky little store manager came out second best in a fight with a masked robber here tonight, but the row he raised resulted in the gunman's capture at the scene of the attempted hold-up.

Lawrence Van Nauker, 39, the manager, was in a hospital here with a fractured knee cap and a severely bruised head as a result of the affray. He told police officers that when the robber aimed a sawed-off shotgun at him he felled the intruder with a can of fruit juice. The gunman struck him with a blackjack and his fists, Van Nauker said.

Police officers, summoned by a neighbor who witnessed the struggle, arrested a bruised negro in the store and booked him as Luther Spratt, 29, of Lansing. Detective William Kennedy said Spratt stood over Van Nauker as the officers arrived and was attempting to compel him to open a safe.

Champions Crowned In Golden Gloves

New York, March 6 (AP)—A sellout crowd of 18,231 fans jammed Madison Square Garden tonight and saw 16 champions crowned in the New York-Brooklyn finals of the Daily News A. A. Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament.

Winners in the open and sub- novice classes in eight weight divisions qualified for the inter-city "tournament of champions" final next Monday and Tuesday were, with teams from 15 cities from Maine to Miami represented.

Heading the list of tonight's sluggers was Buddy Moore, a 19-year-old "ringer" for Joe Louis in both looks and punching power. This local high school student, a native of Florida, flattened Enzo Avondaglio, a 22-year-old iron worker, with a left hook in less than two minutes to win the heavyweight crown.

Nat Wolcott, a Brooklyn heavyweight, belted out Charles Butch in the third round to win the sub-novice heavyweight honors.

Other open class titlists, all winners by decisions, were:

- 175 pound: Henry Jones, 20-year-old negro grocer's clerk.
- 160 pound: Warren Jones, 18, negro high school pupil.
- 147 pound: Tami Mauriello, 20, grocer.
- 135 pound: Willie Smith, 22, negro porter.
- 126 pound: Ray Robinson, 19, negro grocer's clerk.
- 118 pound: Edward Forsner, 23, Canadian-American.
- 112 pounds: Basil Jones, 21, negro porter.

ENERGY SALES ON INCREASE

Residential Use of Electricity Jumps Over Last Year

Purchase of electric energy in the city of Escanaba during the month of February just closed showed an appreciable increase over the corresponding month of last year, it was announced by City Manager George Bean.

During the past month, purchase of electrical energy amounted to 473,600 kilowatt hours as compared with 441,100 the previous year. During the month of February of 1937, the purchase of energy amounted to 410,700 kilowatt hours.

Residential use of electricity was more than 10,000 kilowatt hours greater during the past month than the corresponding month a year ago, use amounting to 161,780 this year as compared with 151,174 last year. This was a great jump over the mark of 124,086 set in February of 1937.

Commercial use was not as bright, sale of energy to commercial users showing a drop over last year. In February of this year, commercial users purchased 142,000 kilowatt hours as compared with 148,000 last year. This year's consumption for the month was larger, however, than the 132,000 kilowatt hours sold in February of 1937.

The drop in the sale of energy in this bracket is explained by the fact that commercial sale is much more sensitive to changing business conditions than is the residential.

Park Lagoon Now Good Perch Fishing

Bay City, Feb. 25—A man-made lagoon at the state park here has proved unexpectedly to be excellent fishing grounds.

Good catches of perch are being reported from the lagoon which was constructed by CCC crews. It covers about 10 acres and is about four feet deep.

The perch evidently have wandered into it through the two channels, each 100 feet wide, which connect the lagoon with Saginaw bay.

CLERK SEEKS TO AVOID JAM

Persons Seeking First Or Second Papers Should Delay

Persons seeking their first and second papers are asked not to apply at the office of County Clerk P. A. LeClaire until after naturalization hearings are held on March 8, 9, 10 and 11, it was announced yesterday.

These papers can be filed without the presence of the visiting naturalization officer and it is to relieve him of all unnecessary congestion that this request is being made.

Women born in the United States, who are seeking to regain their citizenship, are eligible to apply during that time, however, in view of the fact that the examiner can take care of such cases immediately.

Naturalization Examiner M. H. Powers of Sault Ste. Marie will be at the courthouse Wednesday, Thursday and part of Saturday for the purpose of accepting application of final papers for citizenship.

Father Held After Shooting Affair

Frank Gustafson, 59, of Faithorn, was held in jail here today without charge while officers continue their investigation of a family quarrel at the Gustafson home Saturday evening, in which the husband confessed he fired six shots at his wife and two children with a high powered rifle.

Sheriff Edward Reindl said that Gustafson told him he "shot in some bushes" and did not aim at his wife and children, Phyllis, 15, and Russell, 14, as they fled down a roadway away from the house.

Proctor Michael J. Anuta and Sheriff Reindl were at Faithorn this afternoon investigating the shooting.

The Gustafson home is about three miles north of Faithorn on County Road B. Mrs. Gustafson and the two children were in Norway today with relatives. Four other Gustafson children do not live at home.

Reported drunk
Sheriff's officers arrested Gustafson Saturday night and brought him to Menominee. He was drunk when he entered the jail here, officers said.

Sheriff Reindl said that Gustafson told him the quarrel Saturday evening had started over some money and because "the house was dirty." The sheriff said Gustafson told him to look the rifle from the wall where it was hanging, and "emptied the magazine—four or five shots—" at his wife as she ran down the road.

Officers here said that Gustafson told them he did not intend to hit his wife "but fired close just to scare her."

Scouting Makes Good

ESCANABA and Gladstone are joining hands today in conducting a three-day campaign to raise funds to finance the Boy Scout and Cub programs in the two communities for the coming year.

Judging from the remarkable growth of the Scout and Cub movement during the past year and a half and the laudatory comment one hears from parents and others interested in boys' work, it is safe to predict that the canvassers will be able to report a generous response from the contributing public.

One of the features of the Boy Scout movement is that all boys can belong regardless of race, color, or creed, or economic station in life. The poor boy or less chance boy is not forgotten.

During the past year, Scouts in communities throughout the Red Buck County territory have responded wholeheartedly to all calls for "Good Turn" tasks.

Performing a good turn task leads to the formation of character habits that will stay with the Scout, who will learn as well the fundamental principles of good citizenship: Service to God, country, community and fellowman.

War Preparedness

MOST war preparation is economic lost motion.

It results in unproductive production—that is, the production of things which are of no value in themselves to men, and which are not productive of other valuable things. Guns, bombs, and bayonets are like that.

But the Senate is now embarked on a preparedness program that is less on the unproductive side than almost any other. It is the buying up in advance of certain materials which might be hard or impossible to get in time of war.

Not only a war in which the United States was involved, but any war, might make it dangerous or impossible to get the things in question. So the buying and stocking of quantities of them might well make it possible to stay out of another war in which the United States was not concerned.

At the rate of $25,000,000 a year, it is now proposed to buy $100,000,000 worth of certain basic materials. Here they are: Aluminum, Hides, Iodine, Antimony, Mica, Kapok, Chromium, Nickel, Nux vomica, Coconut charcoal, Optical glass, Oplum, Manganese, Quartz crystal Phenol, Manila fiber, Quicksilver, Picric acid, Rubbe, Quinine, Platinum, Silk, Tin Scientific glass, Asbestos, Tungsten, Tanning material, Cadmium, Wool, Titanium, Coffee, Cryolite, Toluol, Cork, Flaxseed, Vanadium, Craphite and Fluorspar.

It will be instantly observed that most of these materials are not produced in the United States, or produced in quantities that do not fill potential war-time demands. They are in general non-perishable. They could be stocked against an emergency without competing in domestic markets.

Purchase of these things will further provide American dollars for countries, most of them in South America, which now find it hard to buy American goods because the United States does not buy enough of their products to provide needed exchange.

Perhaps even greater benefits could come from the plan if the deals for these materials were made in gold. Thus they would not increase the national debt, and surplus gold not needed for monetary coverage would be furnished to countries which desperately need it to keep their currencies on some kind of par with our own.

In any event, the plan is one of the more far-sighted means of preparedness against any possible emergency. It may well bring benefits both to the United States and to the countries whose products are bought, and if properly engineered might make at least a partial blessing out of part of the curse of the armament burden.

Campaign Begins Soon

THE Democratic state central committee has announced the itineraries of two delegations of speakers that will commence a tour of the Upper Peninsula on March 17. Escanaba is not included in the itineraries of the two groups of candidates of state offices, but very likely this city will be slated for a party rally later on in the campaign, which will end with the spring election on April 3.

Although the office of Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, is not at stake in this coming spring election, the well-organized political machine that has been developed in the state highway department is expected to be very active. Commissioner Van Wagoner wields control of the Democratic party from the New Dealers at the recent Flint convention, and will be showing more interest in the party slate than has been the case in some past elections.

But the Democrats will find the Republican party in Michigan to be much stronger in this campaign than in any previous spring election since the advent of the New Deal in national and state politics. The Republicans now have the benefit of great enthusiasm and confidence resulting from their victory at the polls last November when Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald made his impressive comeback.

Republican party workers will be more eager to get out a corral the votes in the current campaign because there is still the promise of many jobs to be dished out. On the other hand, Democratic patronage is getting scarce, and even though the Democrats would win the April 3 election, there would be few political jobs to be dispensed by those elected. Another advantage for the Republicans lies in the fact that township elections will bring out the vote in the rural areas, where they have been gaining strength, while there will be a larger stay-at-home vote in some cities, where the Democrats have a larger following.

While the odds may appear in favor of the Republicans, the party's strategists are not going to take any chances, however. They are planning to wage an energetic drive for votes in the hope of making their victory even more decisive than that registered at the polls last November.

The Movie Industry

WHAT has been a marked tendency toward concentration in the motion picture industry since the worst days of the Great Depression is revealed by statistics just compiled by the Bureau of the Census. While the President's special committee named to investigate monopolies, has not so much as glanced at the motion picture industry so far, there always is a possibility that some attention will be attracted by these fresh figures. The movie magnates, however, have their answer ready. It is that they have, in the interests of better organization, tightened up the whole industry and made it more efficient.

Because of the enormous work of compilation, the Census Bureau necessarily is a year behind with its figures. Last year's are not available but those for 1937 are and they show that while the industry was bigger than ever it was far more concentrated. While official figures, such as these, are not at hand, it is understood from the news of the trade, that there has been even further concentration since 1937.

The year 1933 usually is selected as marking the beginning of Recovery. In that year there were 92 establishments engaged in the production of motion pictures. Under the stimulus of the New Deal measures which were set on foot, the motion picture industry began large scale expansion. The industry is commanded to a large extent by highly volatile individuals who are accustomed to splendid visions and quick action. There is no doubt that they expected as sensational a rise in the economic welfare of the United States as the descent had been after 1929. They were all ready for a boom. New companies were projected. The result was that 1935 saw 129 motion picture producing establishments in existence.

Then came the realization that the economic affairs of a great nation do not move with the celerity of a motion picture reel. Slow motion is more nearly descriptive of the pace of underlying changes. Even though a lot of snap judgment is used in the picture business, there also is considerable shrewdness and it was soon realized that the industry had overreached. In consequence, 1937 found only 3 producing establishments in business. This, it will be noted, was a lesser number than had been functioning four years earlier.

SOUTHERN PULP (Detroit News)

It begins to appear as though the fast-growing slash pine of our southern states, together with cheaper labor costs, might eventually be responsible for the establishment of pulp mills all through the area and the production of newsprint at a cost that defies competition. One authority has stated that newsprint made from slash pine can be produced for $20 a ton less than that coming from Canada, and proof of this is lacking.

Recently A. W. Chapman, chief chemist of the Celotex Corporation, pointed out that southern United States now has 27 pulp mills, 11 of which were built in the last three years. "Indications are that the South may break into the newsprint pulp field in a big way," said Chapman. "and this is a field decidedly worth getting into. For 2,000,000 tons are imported annually. Newsprint must be white and cheap. Eighty per cent of the fiber has no chemical treatment, being merely ground mechanically, which demands a natural white wood, a requisite which spruce meets perfectly. But it has developed that young pine has white wood and present indications are that a new era is on its way with the use of young slash pine for newsprint pulp."

He added that capital has been pledged to erect a $6,250,000 newsprint mill in Texas, and southern newspapers have contracted to take its entire output. "All indications are that the pulp and paper in-

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent Paris—French statesmen are increasingly concerned by the noisy Italian campaign demanding the cession of part of French Savoy, the Riviera territory around Nice, the island of Corsica, the protectorate of Tunis, and the railway and port town of Djibouti in French Somaliland.

This agitation—and not the next move of Adolf Hitler—is the paramount worry in Paris officialdom.

The French may not take the Italian demand for Savoy and Nice too seriously. They look upon the claim for Corsica as an ill-timed joke—Corsica which gave to France its great Napoleon, many statesmen and cabinet officers, outstanding Prefects of Paris police, and other men in high places.

But they realize that Mussolini's yearn for Tunis and for Djibouti is something more earnest.

If Italy obtained Tunis it would dominate the middle Mediterranean in such a manner that neither France nor Britain could cope with the new situation thus created. For in Tunis the French have built their great naval and air base of Bizerta—a base which offsets anything Mussolini has created on the islands of Sicily and Sardinia.

Tunis never was Italian. It has its own Moslem ruler, the Bey. In the early eighties, when the French assumed the protectorate over Tunis, there were 11,000 Italians living there and only 1100 Frenchmen. It was French money which built the roads, the railways, the electric light plants, the city tramways.

Italians, half-starving at home, flocked to this neighboring country across the sea to take jobs. Men from northern Italy worked in the new factories and in the cities. Men from Sicily worked on the French-owned farms. Some of them saved their money, bought little farms and settled there permanently. But the north and center parts of Tunis, so far as Europeans are concerned, have always remained populated mostly by Frenchmen.

Before the advent of Mussolini, there was no clash between the French and Italian colonists. They were good neighbors. They inter-married. They became good Tunisians.

The French want all permanent residents of Tunis to become French citizens. Mussolini does not want the Italians naturalized. He considers them Italians even when born in Tunis and wants to keep them so. Furthermore, he has claimed that there are more Italians than French in Tunis and wants Tunis for Italy.

The French say there are 108,000 Frenchmen there and only 94,000 Italians, many of whom, especially the Jews, want to be French citizens as soon as possible. Not only are there more French than Italians, but the bulk of the farm property held by Europeans is French. The French own ten times as much farm land as the Italians. The same proportion holds true of real estate in the cities and towns.

If the French maintain Bizerta in Tunis is one of the strong-holds for themselves and the British, they have the same view of the town of Djibouti in French Somaliland on the East coast of Africa.

The French built the railway from that town to Addis Ababa in Abyssinia. The French made of a sand bar the present port town of 15,000 inhabitants. They have here stores of coal and fuel oil for their vessels.

For them it is the key to their sea communications with their colonies of India-China, New Caledonia, Madagascar and Reunion.

So long as the British hold Aden in Arabia and the French hold Djibouti, they hold the gates to and from the Red Sea.

Industry in the South, large as it has already become, is destined for further growth," said Chapman.

The Lake States are vitally interested in this development, for a considerable amount of newsprint pulp is produced here and the industry is quite likely to be affected by cheap competition from the South.

TRADING WITH GERMANY

(New York Times) 'Till more is known about the probable direction of the negotiations between representatives of the British and German governments regarding an agreement on foreign trade relations, no clear judgment will be possible. But it is not too early to point out that unless the German representatives show a willingness to move toward a general reduction of world trade barriers, no agreement reached is likely to promote world economic stability.

The trade methods that Germany is at present employing—particularly the bilateral barter arrangements—are at best acts of desperation. If the British begin to imitate these methods (as one or two officials have vaguely threatened), the result can only be another backward step in international commerce. A country that does business through bilateral clearing arrangements or by barter merely deprives its citizens of the advantages of triangular trade. It cannot buy what it wants, when it wants it, at the cheapest price. It cannot sell its own goods where it can get the highest figure for them.

Unless the German negotiators are willing radically to relax their previous premises, the best result that seems likely to emerge from the forthcoming Anglo-German talks, from an American standpoint, is a negative one—the avoidance of an outright trade war.

Q. Why is no comic supplement issued with the New York Times?

A. Arthur Hays Sulzberger says: "When Mr. Ochs first took over The New York Times in 1896 the days of so-called yellow journalism were at their zenith. He had no desire to compete in sensationalism. Quite the contrary, the opportunity to succeed with what might be termed strictly a newspaper was the more apparent. Accordingly, on the day that Mr. Ochs took over he discontinued a serial story without even permitting it to finish, and from that day on the test of appropriateness for The New York Times is, 'Is it news?' This paper has never published a crossword puzzle, a serial story or comics, and the sole and determining reason for this is that they are not news."

At this date he was asked by the school authorities of Paris to undertake a study of children in the public school system to detect the various forms of mental deficiency which interfered with school work. For this purpose he devised a series of tests with the cooperation of Thomas Simon. Various versions of the Binet scale have been made by Terman and others, who have continued the work.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—The John Barrymores are as blissful as a pair of cooling love-birds. And Elaine wanted to be on the stage.

So the Barrymore, emulating Lunt & Fontanne, started rehearsing in a Broadway show the other day. Eavesdroppers in the dimly-lit theater where "My Dear Children" was about to be launched, saw a jittery Mrs. Barrymore behind the footlights.

"I'm so excited," murmured Elaine to an actor. "I couldn't eat any breakfast. I feel all churned up inside. I must calm down before we start. Oh, Honey Lamb—"

Honey Lamb is her affectionate nickname for her husband with the world-famed profile. He playfully calls her Mrs. Snodgrass, as an endearment, though Elaine wishes he didn't. This being the first time that she will be seen on the stage, the Ariel to the captured Caliban naturally is nervous.

Barrymore, the Artist

The director beckoned the couple into a huddle about the script. Then two photographers poised their flashlight bulbs and cameras and posed the trio. Elaine also confessed her jittery feelings to them.

"I'm trying so hard," she said. "I must make good, I simply must make good!"

Her husband interrupted. "Let's get everybody together," he suggested, and when the cast had been assembled, he drew a cravat from his pocket and started sketching the "My Dear Children" troupe—with Elaine in the forefront. He keeps these pictorial mementos for the family album.

Somewhere in the dark auditorium sat Elaine's mama, watching the proceedings, without a suggestion or a word of advice, though Elaine's mama takes a lively interest in her daughter's professional career. It was Mrs. Barrie who didn't think Elaine was quite ready for Shakespeare when the possibility was discussed of producing "Hamlet" with John as the Melancholy Dane and Elaine as Ophelia.

Eavesdroppers looking around for Elaine's favorite uncle couldn't locate him in the darkened playhouse. He happens to be Barrymore's favorite relative of Elaine's, since they started playing pinocle together, away back when the Ariel and Caliban romance was in the initial stages.

Elaine, the Manager

Now that the Barrymores have gone to work—and rehearsal is arduous work—the town will see less of them at the premiers and night clubs. They've been batting around a good deal lately, jamming up the entrances to theaters on Opening Nights where the autograph hunters milled around. They usually managed to sit down shortly after the show started, so there wasn't much excitement in the aisles.

A discriminating playgoer, incidentally, Barrymore disregards the bad plays by dozing off politely. When he grows slumber-some, Elaine prods him gently on the arm. He rouses quickly at these signals.

Most of the couple's public life is managed with high efficiency by Elaine. She chooses the shows they attend, the restaurants where they wind up before going home.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—In the center of the Capital's financial district, a historic landmark is being pulled down. It is the old McLean mansion, famous for the days when two New York bands jazzed alternately at opposite ends of the room, when several hundred bottles of champagne were opened in an evening, and when the elite of Washington uncertainly danced the New Year into the dawn.

Ned McLean, its owner, was one of the rulers of Washington. A member of the Harding gang, he was a friend of Fall and Daugherty, once was ejected from the White House by Mrs. Harding.

Today the era of Ned McLean's parties, his house, his power is over. But on the site of this one-time glory is being erected a new building which demonstrates that, despite an alleged New Deal, the old days of personal pull and privilege have not changed.

Briefly, two officials who resigned from the New Deal have now turned around and borrowed $5,600,000 of government money from the RFC through their old friend Jesse Jones, and are now erecting on the McLean site a new office building into which Jesse Jones will move his RFC. In other words, Jesse Jones having advanced government money to build a building, later will pay out government money as rent so his two friends can repay their government money.

All of which would indicate a profit of about $1,100,000. The two gentlemen who will receive most of this are Colonel Horatio ("Rash") Hackett, former head of the Public Works Administration under Ickes, and Angelo ("Mike") Clas, former director of the PWA Housing Division.

—HORATIO ALGER?—

To get the full story, it is necessary to go back to the pre-Roosevelt days when Clas was a salesman with the Holabird and Root architectural firm in Chicago, and when Hackett was an architect with the same firm. Later Secretary Ickes, also of Chicago, brought the two men to Washington and they became the Castor and Pollux of PWA.

Where one went, so went the other. When Hackett was promoted from Director of Housing to be Assistant Administrator of PWA, he got Clas the job of Director of Housing. And when Clas proved a dud as housing director, Hackett promoted him to be Assistant Administrator of PWA. When Cackett resigned from PWA, Clas followed a month later.

Horatio Hackett then became president of Thompson-Starrett, New York contractors, and suddenly put in an appearance in Washington last fall to camp on the RFC doorstep of Jesse Jones. Jones and Hackett are old friends, Jesse having once taken Hackett to the Kentucky Derby in his private car. Mrs. Hackett also came to Washington and was seen with Mrs. Jones almost every day, playing bridge and visiting mutual friends.

After all this personal pow-wowing was over, the RFC put out an official and very innocent announcement that it had approved a loan of $5,600,000 to the "Lafayette Building Corporation" to construct a 12-story office building on the site of the McLean mansion.

—MYSTERIOUS DUMMY—

No explanation was given regarding the incorporators of the Lafayette Building Corporation, and as far as possible it is kept a mystery to this day. George Rogers, listed as "assistant secretary" of the corporation, says: "I don't know who the directors are or anything else about the setup. All I know is that I'm assistant secretary. But I don't have anything to do with the affairs of the company. The whole thing is run from New York."

Jesse Jones' henchmen at the RFC are equally mysterious. Although information regarding government loans is supposed to be a matter of public record, the RFC refuses to give any information regarding the Lafayette corporation. Any publicity, it says, "might reveal secrets to competitors."

Officials of the American Security and Trust Company, however, trustees for the McLean estate which sold the property, state that the Lafayette Building Corporation was formed by the Thompson-Starrett Company, of which Col. Horatio Hackett is president.

Furthermore, Thompson-Starrett are constructing the new building, while Angelo Clas is listed as architect. Clas, it is also revealed, is one of the incorporators of the Lafayette Building Corporation.

In other words, Col. Hackett, after getting out of the New Deal, set up the Lafayette corporation, borrowed $5,600,000 from the New Deal through his friend, Jesse Jones, then turned around and hired his own firm, Thompson-Starrett, to construct the building, with his old friend Clas as architect. But inasmuch as Clas never has had any architectural experience on anything important, Hackett also hired his old boss, John Holabird of Chicago, to do the real architectural work. Finally he rented the new building to Jesse Jones, from whom he had borrowed the mopey.

AMERICA OUT-OF-DOORS

THE MODERN QUAIL DOG

By Ozark Ripley

The character of localities and the type of modern sportsmen have had a world to do with establishing the type of the present day quail dog. In the old days sportsmen were directed only by the all consuming idea of killing as many birds as possible. Today a sportsman is actuated in the quail fields by the quality of the sport instead of the amount of game he can kill. Spectacular performance on birds appeals more than a plentitude of points done in any sort of slovenly fashion.

The present day quail dog, which is regarded as the highest type, must do the work of the hunter on his own accord instead of being all the time directed by the master. In other words, the bird brain of the dog is given full sway instead of that of a mere man, who sometimes erroneously thinks he knows more about bird location than the best dog. The farms of the present era are kept so clean, save in many parts of the South, that the hunter is constantly being confronted with a lot of guts, plenty of speed and range which can be maintained all day, and still when it is called upon to work on scattered birds it must do it ably.

Strange as it may seem, where quail are most plentiful the most sportsmanlike methods of hunting the great little brown birds prevail. In the big quail areas the practice of following all the scattered birds one by one, as in erstwhile times, is regarded as a sin against the tenets of conservation. One or two birds of the scattered bevy is considered sufficient. After that the dog is sent on to hunt another bevy. Many a northern sportsman visiting the great quail regions of the South for the first time cannot immediately understand why his old practice of following all the singles is regarded as a breach of sportsmanship.

A combined bevy and great single bird dog is truly a rare avia. Hunters who have followed pointers and setters quail hunting all their lives have seen only a few during their careers afield—that is high class single and bevy dogs in every sense of the term. The reason of this is obvious; the dog with great range that has been developed to go places and has the spirit to do it, hates to be held up on singles since he has to slow up his natural going and suffers a lot in performance when hacked down to working close. It must never disgrace itself nor its owner by hunting footscent. Some of the really great, experienced quail dogs, possess the ability to wind birds accurately whether they are facing the wind or it is behind them. Even when it is at their backs they handle it as accurately as when they are going again.

Where cover is rank all over the hunting grounds big going dogs are not held in such great esteem as in open areas. Sportsmen hunting this sort of quail territory have no desire for wide rangers, or dogs with extreme speed. They want them in eight all of the time not only for bevy, but as the class of hunters who favor these parts care a great deal for single bird work has no ability to perform in the they think a dog with great speed manner which they desire it.

Whether a country demands a close or wide ranger the dog which handle, through body scent is much more accurate than one which fools with foot-scent, or in other words trails its birds. All classes of bird dogs should be steady to wing and shot under every condition, hunt dead birds well and retrieve. In the big goer retrieving is not held in such great esteem as with single bird cover workers, since the modern sportsman use the big goer to seek bevy and hunts at the same time a slower dog to which he assigns the greater part of finding dead birds and retrieving. Pointers and English, and the Dewey strain of English setters, in the aggregate excel all other bird dogs on quails. It is only the occasional individual of other breeds that is really able to show class hunting quails.

Great quail dogs, whether modest or wide rangers, must have abounding stamina. They have to cover all sorts of territory quickly and accurately. The dog that is unable to stand all day going has no place with the modern quail hunter.

Schlafer Exhibits Lindbergh Covers To Local Stampers

Escanaba stamp collectors had the rare privilege of seeing the finest collection of Lindbergh airmail covers in existence on Sunday evening when W. D. Schlafer of Appleton, Wis., spoke and displayed his famed collection at the annual banquet of the Escanaba Philatelic society. Other guests of local stamp collectors were Ole Olson of Green Bay, through whom Mr. Schlafer's appearance was arranged, Martin Onstad of Green Bay who is a specialist in Scandinavia, possessing a collection started in 1882, and Paul Schlafer, son of W. D. Schlafer.

The Lindbergh collection contains covers carried on mail flights piloted by the "Lone Eagle" before he became famous and also on his "good-will" flights in Latin America. The collection contains a total of 13 autographed covers and due to the rarity of the aviator's autographs would be practically impossible to duplicate today. In addition to the covers the collection contains many Lindbergh photographs, sketches and such items as menus from banquets given in his honor, and a bit of ribbon from flowers presented to him, all autographed.

Of interest, not only to stamp collectors, are such items as the letter he wrote to a friend in St. Louis, in which the subject of his spectacular flight was brought up. At that time, Lindbergh, in Texas for training flights, was irked by the fact that army pilots showed an inclination to regard civilian flying as haphazard and amateurish. There is also the note on the unpaid balance of the purchase price of the plane.

Mr. Schlafer received the bulk of his Lindbergh collection from a personal friend of the flyer who made the collection at the time of the flights. Schlafer also showed the Italian and Vatican City portions of his foreign collection.

Ole Olson invited the local stamp collectors to attend the convention of the Wisconsin Stamp Federation on May 6 and 7 at Manitowish.

The annual business meeting of the local society will be held on March 19 in the city hall council chambers. In addition to the regular business, plans are to be made for an exhibit next month.

Munising, March 6—The annual Alger county Junior combined tournament was held here on Saturday and Sunday as the Munising Ski club closed their tournament season. The cross-country race was held on Saturday afternoon in Classes A, B and C over a course of approximately two and a half miles for Classes A and B and two miles for Class C. In all, twenty-nine entries completed the two events. Billy Mattson of Forest Lake was first in Class A; Gunnard Lindquist, first in Class B; and Keith Longevin, first in Class C. 100 Canvassers Engaged In Campaign In Two Communities

One hundred men of Escanaba and Gladstone will begin the Scout finance drive today to raise funds to continue the boys' work program during the ensuing year.

The finances derived from this cooperative effort will go into the Boy Scout council treasury and will be used to carry on the training, camping and other activities to maintain council headquarters and service facilities for the Scout troops and Cub packs. Each community will participate in this project for the good of its own boys and those of their neighboring communities.

Early Bird Breakfast

About fifty persons attended the "Early Bird" breakfast at the Sherman hotel this morning to give the Escanaba fund-raising campaign a good start.

Finance campaigns will be held in Manistique and Manistiquette during the next month. The four districts together make up the Red Buck council, which was formed a little over a year and a half ago.

Membership Over 800

The council has had a rapid growth in the last year and a half from a paid membership of 54 in April, 1937, to a paid membership of Scouts of leaders of more than eight hundred at the present time.

There are now 22 units organized in the Escanaba and Gladstone districts. S. R. Venne is general chairman of Gladstone, assisted by Eugene Noblet, J. T. Jones, C. LaFave, Fred Schram, A. R. Watson, Claude Hawkins, G. Westcott, W. W. Winchester, Louis Hillierwert, Oscar Ohman and Alfred Radant.

J. F. Hart is chairman of finance in Escanaba, and John A. Lemmer, Carl J. Sawyer and O. V. Thatcher are members of the general committee. Others who will assist are: George Bean, L. L. Farrell, J. T. Schoonenberg, C. J. Driscoll, William Warmington, Wm. J. Duchaine, Wm. J. Schmitt, Ralph Olson, Regina Cleary, Matt Sullivan, A. L. McNeil, Edward E. Edick, Frank Lindenthal, Clarence Zerbel, Axel Anderson, Robert Gregory, J. W. Watson, James Frenn, Dewey Meunier, Tom Dufour, H. Gasman, Britton Hall, Jos. Mater, Matt Peterson, Edw. Rudness, Art Goulais, Walter Nelson, Vincent Bergman, Harold Meiers, J. L. Nolden, Nelson Jensen, Walter Dickson, E. A. Wenner.

Program Highly Praised

Scouting has received universal commendation. Here are the thoughts of a number of men in our Council:

A. R. Watson, Superintendent of Gladstone Public Schools: "I am interested in Boy Scouting, because it does more for boys between the age of ten and sixteen, than any activity which I know."

George E. Bean, Escanaba City Manager: "It is difficult to realize the full importance of the Boy Scout Movement in advancing community service and in building community spirit."

Rev. Frederick Steen, Minister: "The youth of today is the citizen of tomorrow. Scouting produces a higher type of youth. Invest your time and money in Scouting, and your dividends will be enjoyed, not only by yourself, but by the world and posterity."

R. E. Gregory, Escanaba store manager: "It is my belief that the problem of boys in the stores has improved 75 per cent since the Scout activities have started in Escanaba."

Fred Hahne, Manistique: "Scouting is the process of making real men out of real boys by a real program which really works."

BOY SCOUTING

Your Questions Are Answered Here

Q. What boys can belong to the Boy Scouts?

A. Any boy over 12 years of age.

Q. How much does it cost to be a Boy Scout?

A. The registration fee of 50c a year, which goes to the national council for growth and development of scouting throughout the nation.

Q. Does a boy have to own a uniform?

A. No.

Q. Can't parents train their sons?

A. Yes, when the boys are home, but the boys' companions with whom they spend most of their playtime are vital factors in the formation of habits of conduct.

Q. What are the objectives of Scouting?

A. Physical fitness, character development, and training for good participating citizenship.

Q. How is this accomplished?

A. Through activities which boys enjoy under the leadership of men of good character who are especially trained for the responsibility. Through their example and suggestion, rather than by "preaching" the Scout accepts the Scout Oath and Laws as his rule of conduct.

Q. Is Scouting military?

A. Scouting is not military. It teaches courage, self-reliance and leadership, but Scouting is not military.

Q. Is Scouting sectarian?

A. No, but the twelfth law is, "A Scout is Reverent. He is faithful in his religious duties and respects the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion."

The religious element in character building is recognized and stressed, but specific instruction is left to the church of the individual boy. Every denomination in the country has endorsed Scouting.

Q. What does Scouting do for a boy?

A. It provides a boy with wholesome companionship under capable, devoted leadership, a constructive program of activities, progress which is usually recognized through the issuance of insignia, through practice of practical activities received liberal general education, is injected into situations that require of him the right decision. Constant practice in right deciding creates good character.

Q. Why is Scouting needed in our community?

A. Within a few years the boys of today will be men—your neighbors. Scouting is helping them to become good neighbors and citizens to carry on the affairs of the city.

Communication

SIXTY YEARS AGO

Editor Escanaba Daily Press, Dear Sir:

It might be interesting to the younger generation of Escanaba to know how the older generation lived; they are most all dead, the writer of this is also a dead one.

Wages of common laborers, such as section men, car repairers, engine wipers and others, received $1.10 per day of 10 hours; brakemen on freight trains $1.80 per day, no time limit or overtime; freight conductors $65, and $70 per month, no overtime.

Passenger conductors received $33.33 per month. Locomotive firemen $2.00 for 100 miles or less and 2 cents per mile for over 100 miles; Engineers $3.00 for 100 miles or less and over time at same rate for over 100 miles; Telegraphers, Agents of small stations, Office clerks and Bookkeepers $50.00 per month. Good clothes ave. $40.00 per suit, hats $5.00; Shoes $6.00; beer five cents, hard liquor ten cents per glass, which was considered those days very necessary, and while being absorbed by the consumer, their extra funds were absorbed by the vendor.

The writer of this lived in Escanaba from age 8 to 25 and was well informed as to labor and living conditions during that period 71 to 85.

There was no expensive Nite Clubs, moving pictures, air planes or autos; and when a boy wanted to entertain his girl, he would buy her a soda and take her for a walk on the South Shore or to the cemetery; in the evening after their walk they sat on the porch and looked at the moon and stars and just talked? When the writer was 16 he got a job (modern parlance accepted a position) as brakeman on ore and freight trains.

Two years later conductors Victor Fish, Dan Carroll, Frank Snider and Dick Roberts plugged for him and he was set up; (according to later parlance, due to diligence and faithful service in the interest of the railroad he earned a well merited promotion) but in those days he was just set up.

Youth Here and Abroad

The sharp contrast between dictatorship's youth lessons (top) and the lessons learned by millions of American (center), French (bottom) and British boys as members of democracy's largest youth movement, the Boy Scouts, is set in bold relief by "Young America," in the new March of Time.

Three-Point Program Is Offered For Youth

The Red Buck Council, in common with other councils of the Boy Scouts of America throughout the United States, is now prepared to offer to institutions such as churches, and schools, Legion posts, and civic clubs, three boy programs each backed by a uniform and insignia attractive to boys and leaders and by printed matter which makes the program understandable, definite and usable.

To these advantages are added the services of the local council which will help to train the leadership chosen by the institution concerning the program, techniques and objectives of Scouting.

Cubbing

Cub Packs—These units are for boys 9-10 and 11 years of age. This Cubbing program is home and neighborhood centered with emphasis, and affords to these younger lads the motivation of ideals which give constructive guidance to their leisure hours.

Scout Troops

The ideals of Scouting are given expression through boy and man experiences and relationships shared in Troop meetings where the boys learn to tie useful knots, to perform practical first aid service, to transmit messages in code, to make maps, to care for their physical well-being and to do many other things pleasurable to themselves and of great help to others.

Senior Scouting

This affords opportunity for young men 15 and older to enjoy a new type of experience, the program being as broad as they and their leaders choose to make it, motivated by the Scout Ideals—the oath and law. Usually each Senior Scout retains and service relationship to his troop, here seeking to pass along to younger boys the benefits of his knowledge and experience gained as a Scout. With other young men he shares rich adventure, the association of fine men who serve as the leaders of his division and the Scouters with whom he is associated in his leadership of boys.

Those interested in participating in the party are asked to call either Lorentz Schou or Marvin Johnson before noon today in order that necessary reservations be made.

Sanders Employed On Steel Carrier

Elmer C. Sanders, formerly of Escanaba, writes from the Canal Zone that he is now employed as radio operator aboard the S. S. Oremar of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's fleet.

He was ordered to report to his ship at Baltimore on Feb. 9. The vessel is carrying steel and automobiles to San Francisco, and then is going up to Portland and Seattle for 7,000,000 feet of lumber to bring back to the east coast.

CANDIDATES TO ADDRESS CLUB

Cameron and Herbert On Program for G.O.P. Meeting Tonight

Wallace Cameron, Republican candidate for the office of Delta county school commissioner, and Atty. J. Joseph Herbert of Manistique, Republican candidate for regent of the university, will address members of the Escanaba Republican club and affiliated organizations at a meeting in the council chambers of the city hall at 8 o'clock tonight.

Now employed as superintendent of schools at Rapid River, Cameron is a product of Delta county, he was born at Gladstone and graduated from Gladstone high school with the class of 1925. He attended Northern State Teachers college at Marquette, took his A. B. degree at Albion college and his M. A. degree at the University of Michigan.

Cameron's teaching experience has included instruction in such schools as that at the Northwest-ern Coopers & Lybrand company's old Camp 45 near Rexton, and a one-room school at North Rock. He was superintendent of the Rexton school until 1933, when he succeeded W. J. Miller as principal of Rapid River high school. In 1936 he was named to his present position as superintendent of Rapid River schools.

Well Known Attorney Attorney Herbert of Manistique, who is well known throughout the Upper Peninsula, was the only man from above the straits to be nominated for a state office at the Republican state convention at Flint on February 23. His candidacy for the regency nomination was supported by friends from both Upper Peninsula and downstate counties.

He has been active in every campaign for the past 20 years, and Republican county committees all over the peninsula have called upon him for his support on speaking programs. He is a member of the Republican state central committee from the Eleventh Michigan district.

The Manistique attorney was graduated from the University of Michigan department of literature, science and arts, receiving his A.B. degree in 1915. He was graduated from the University Law school, receiving his LL.B. in 1917.

He served two years as an officer in the World war and was state commander of the American Legion in 1925 and 1926. He served as president of the University of Michigan Alumni association, in the upper peninsula, for the term of 1937 and 1938. He is president of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, and through out the history of that organization has been one of the peninsula's most enthusiastic boosters.

STEEL EXPECTS BETTER LUCK

Producers Are Hopeful of Prospects In Next Sixty Days

Steel producers are more hopeful concerning prospects for better business the next 60 days, according to magazine Eads.

Finished steel buying lately has shown little change from the slightly reduced pace prevailing during most of February, but consumption is sustained or heavier as reflected in gradual recovery in ingot production. The national steelmaking rate was up 1 point to 56 per cent last week, a new high for 1939 to date and comparing with 29.5 per cent a year ago.

March operations will be aided by heavier rail production. In addition, an upward trend in activity of the automotive, building construction, tin plate and farm equipment industries is indicated, with an accompanying beneficial effect on steel consumption.

Average daily pig iron production in February was 73,543 tons, compared with 70,448 tons in January and 46,655 tons a year ago. Except for November, 1935, this was the highest rate since October, 1937. Active blast furnaces on Feb. 28 numbered 121, a net gain of 3 for the month.

The shorter month reduced total February production to 2,059,203 tons, against 2,183,895 tons in January and 1,306,333 a year ago. Output was the largest for February since 1930, except for 1937, when the total was 3,020,066 tons.

Handsome Spring Handbags

Distinctive spring handbags show a similarity of treatment in pouch and frame—smocking, shirring and pleating in the pouches handsomely duplicate the carving on the frame. Generous pouches of softest doekins, beautifully detailed, dyed in the season's high colors, topped with frames of carved plastic in harmonizing jewel-tones are an excellent choice to wear with rather dressy afternoon ensembles.

PLANE DROPS SIGN

Jona—Jona residents wondered what strange thing was falling out of the sky recently when an advertising banner being towed by an airplane became detached and fluttered to the ground. The 100-pound banner landed in a vacant field, thus avoiding serious damage. The plan was about 1,000 feet in the air.

While driving near here recently their car left the road and crashed head-on into the concrete steps of a nearby building. Menominee Girl
Courier Nurse
With Santa Fe

Menominee—One of the first ten courier nurses to be chosen by the Santa Fe Railroad company for duty on its cross country trains is Miss Marcella Shatusky, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Shatusky, 806 Marinette avenue. Miss Shatusky has been in the company's employ since May, 1938.

To qualify as a courier nurse, Miss Shatusky says, a young woman must be a registered nurse with at least two or three years experience. Unlike airline hostesses, courier nurses are chosen from applicants of taller stature, and must be between 24 and 30 years of age, she explained.

Care for Children
Their duties consist chiefly of caring for babies and young children traveling with their parents, children who are traveling alone, elderly persons, invalids and cripples. For mothers traveling with young babies the nurses prepare formulas and see that the babies are fed on schedule.

Courier nurses are often called upon to serve travelers who become ill enroute. Air conditioning on the modern day trains, Miss Shatusky says, has reduced to a minimum the number of persons who become seasick, and forms of mental disorders, which in the earlier days, afflicted passengers traveling at high altitudes through the mountains.

One of Miss Shatusky's sister nurses on a new York-Chicago train, ministered to a woman voyager who delivered a child shortly before arriving in Chicago, where she was removed from the train to a hospital. Ten days later after release from a hospital Miss Shatusky cared for the woman and child on the train which took them west.

Scout, and El Capitan
Miss Shatusky travels on the Santa Fe "Scout," a tourist train, and on its new streamlined train "El Capitan" which covers the distance from Chicago to Los Angeles in 39 1/2 hours. At the conclusion of her cross-country run Miss Shatusky has a two-day layover in Los Angeles and she has a four-day recess in Chicago between trips.

Miss Shatusky was attracted to her present position when she read about duties of courier nurses in the Sunday magazine section of a Detroit newspaper while she was employed in that city by the Budd Wheel company. She immediately applied to the Santa Fe Railroad and two months later was accepted. Prior to assuming the duties, courier nurses make one student trip to familiarize themselves with the work. This pioneer corps of ten was given a ten-day pleasure trip through the southwestern states and into Mexico at company expense while awaiting arrival of their uniforms.

Sees Movie Stars
While one end her journey is very close to the movie capital of Hollywood, Miss Shatusky gets only an occasional glimpse of film personages due to the fact that she is attached to slower trains on the Santa Fe. Most of the stars using the Santa Fe travel on the "Chief" and "Super Chief." However, William Powell did make two trips across the country on trains to which the Menominee girl was assigned.

Miss Shatusky was born in Menominee, was graduated from Menominee high school in 1925 and from St. Luke's hospital in Chicago in 1933. Following her graduation she did private duty for several months, was a member of the staff of Pinescrest sanatorium at Powers, and a company nurse for the Budd Wheel company in Detroit prior to entering the service of the Santa Fe railroad.

Teach Early Grooming

Although not quite seven, little Beryl Magee, popular child model, brushes her own hair every night.

BY ALICIA HART
(NEA Service Staff Writer)

Your small daughter may not be a beautiful child but it's nobody's fault but your own if she isn't an attractive one. There are few real beauties in the world, big or little, but it does lie within the power of every woman to be attractive and to have attractive children. And that's enough.

Whether one is six or sixty, being attractive means being meticulously clean from head to foot. Teach your daughter the not too subtle difference between getting dirty and being dirty. Let her enjoy rolling in the mud and climbing trees, but teach her to remove the mud and grime. Then, too, being attractive means having shiny, healthy hair that comes from nightly brushing and excellent health habits; perfect posture; clean nails and trimmed cuticle; comfortably, properly shod feet; simple clothes with good taste written all over them, regardless of what they cost; last, but not least, a pleasant disposition and a ready smile.

When your child is very little, it's up to you to brush her hair, take care of her nails and so on. At an earlier age than you may think, however, she can be taught to do simple grooming routines regularly herself.

To prove this, let's take, for example, little Beryl Magee, one of the most popular child models in the glamorous modeling business. Although not quite seven, Beryl brushes her own hair every night. Furthermore, she brushes it in such a way that her arm muscles get pretty fine exercise while she's at it.

Holding the child-size brush in her right hand, Beryl brushes the hair on the right side of her head upward and outward twenty-five times. Changing the brush to left hand, she brushes upward and outward on left side. For the back hair, she holds the brush in both hands and brushes downward as well as up. The last step makes for good shoulder carriage.

The little model is an expert at brushing her own teeth. Furthermore, she doesn't forget to rub a little cream into her hands after she has washed them before going to bed. She likes to bathe and doesn't have to be urged any more to scrub her knees with a small hand brush. Her mother washes Beryl's hair, but the child enjoys that, too.

Don't think for one minute because she brushes her hair and likes her baths and shampoos that Beryl Magee is a sissy, prissy child. She isn't. Being taught something about the fundamentals of true attractiveness needn't make any little girl seem unnatural or too old for her years. Perfect grooming never detracts from any personality, regardless of age.

BEHIND THE SCENES

By Bruce Catton

Washington—A very broad and entirely new system for handling the relationship between business and government under the anti-trust laws is being worked out by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold.

Briefly, Mr. Arnold would like to see established some sort of commission or agency to handle the problems which follow upon any prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

When an anti-trust prosecution is begun, the leaders in the industry affected usually come in to the Department of Justice and try to work out some method of eliminating the abuses complained of.

NO JOB FOR LAWYERS

The job of negotiating with business men on business methods, of eliminating price fixing devices and restraints of trade... that, as he sees it, is a job for business experts in some other agency of government.

The advice which his proposed commission would give would not merely be negative. That is, it would not stop at telling corporations and trade associations what they might not do; it would tell them what they could do, within the anti-trust law framework, to attain desired ends.

Primary purpose of this set-up would be to restore the essential elements of free competition to a complex industrialized society in which a considerable measure of cartelization is inevitable.

How would the scheme work? Well, take any big industry in any city—the milk industry, for example. If milk is to get distributed, some sort of organization or combination is necessary; after all, the farmer can't hitch up and drive downtown from door to door peddling milk.

HOW IT WOULD WORK

Suppose they do—and then suppose (as sometimes happens) that the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice prosecutes them for forming a combination in restraint of trade.

Under this new system they would go to the commission with their troubles. On the commission there would be experts in the milk business—experts from the Department of Agriculture, perhaps. In any case, the commission and the industry would work out a plan of combination and submit it to the anti-trust division.

If, on the other hand, the attorney general should hold that the plan went far beyond the anti-trust law, then the commission would lay the problem before Congress and say, in effect: "Here we need special legislation to meet this problem. What can you do for us?"

In effect, then, says Arnold, the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice would function as a traffic cop—and the commission would be the body charged with saying what lights went on what corners.

Now as to this "rule of reason." It simply means that a combination may be justified if the savings it effects are passed on to the consumer and that restrictions may be justified if they don't interfere with orderly marketing.

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES

© COPYRIGHT, 1930, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful.

DICK TREMAINE — He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie.

JEFF BOWMAN — His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday, Susie sees Jeff again only to be invited by Dick to return to Rivertown with him. She puzzles about this trip. Finally, she decides on her course.

Susie decided to take a chance. In Rivertown she might pass unnoticed or, if discovered, acclaimed for her amazing prowess. If she treated the matter casually Dick would naturally see it in the same light.

Dick inadvertently made her plan feasible at dinner that night. He was talking of the intended jaunt.

"It'll be fun to get back to the campus again," he said. "See everyone I used to know. My class is gone, of course, but I know plenty of fellows and girls."

"Lots of fun," she agreed nervously. "Were you ever at Rivertown, Suzanne?" he asked.

"Oh, yes. I learned to sing at the university."

"He looked at her speculatively. "Funny that I never saw you there."

"I worked my way through. Went to night and summer classes."

"What about your family? Couldn't they help you?" He appeared to think nothing of her having been a toiler. It was encouraging.

"My father is a farmer up state. He had plenty before the depression, but—" She shrugged expressively. "I want you to meet my father. He's one of the best."

"I'd like to meet him." He smiled at her. "Judging from his daughter he must be rather wonderful."

"I think so," she finished demurely. Dick wouldn't care for Martha, but he couldn't help liking her forthright, ruddy father. Dan Lambert was smart, he'd been a power before the depression.

"Let's start early tomorrow," Dick was saying. "I want to barge into the Waffle Shoppe about four. Remember it?"

Did she remember the Waffle Shoppe? "Yes," she said. "I remember it." Should she tell him? Now was the time if ever.

"There's a girl who makes waffles, I guess you'd call her a woman," Dick went on thoughtfully. "She's huge and terrible looking, but her waffles are something to write home about. Do you remember her?"

"Yes," she must tell him. If, and when, he learned the truth he would have a right to think that she had been deceitful. She opened her lips to speak.

"Her name is Susie," Dick ruminated, a half smile on his lips. "She certainly had a crush on yours truly. I did her a nasty trick once, was always ashamed of myself. Used to drop in every afternoon at four so she'd know I liked her." Throwing back his head he laughed. "She used to get positively purple, waiting on me."

Susie could feel the old inferiority returning to her. Color flooded her face and she felt sure it must be of a purplish hue. Fumbling in her purse she brought out the silver compact which had been a favor at that party long ago when Dick had let her down.

"Dick," she began, her tongue paralyzed with dread, "did you ever see this before?"

He examined the compact. "Sure—hundreds of them. Not being very original we used them for party favors year on end. Where'd you get it?"

Susie swallowed painfully. "Dick—" At that moment he jumped to his feet as Hester, his sister, and a group of friends bore down upon them.

There was an exchange of conversation. Hester a bit snooty, obviously disapproving the tete-a-tete dinner.

Dick urged them to attend Suzanne's broadcast and they accepted. Susie was not alone with Dick again until he took her home. When she left him at the elevator, promising to be ready at 10 in the morning, the confession had not been made. Guiltily, with apprehension growing momentarily, Susie went to bed.

The trip to Rivertown now appeared in the light of a calamity, the setting for her downfall.

The next morning, carrying a small, fitted case, she slipped from the elevator. With a joyous greeting he caught her hand and pulled her out of the confused throng milling about the lobby. Never had Susie seen Jeff so alive, so exuberant. His eyes danced, his face was one big smile, he was slightly out of breath. In his hand he carried a telegram.

"Susie," he exploded. "I've got the sweetest news. Broke all traffic regulations getting here to tell you."

His excitement communicated itself to her. "What is it?" she begged. "Tell me."

He held out the telegram. "Look," he said. But Susie didn't look. Dick had swung in through the revolving doors and she stood on tiptoe to wave at him.

"H'ya, beautiful," he shouted rushing up to them. "Hello, Jeff, what's the good word?"

"Taking Susie's bag, ignoring Jeff after the salutation, Dick urged her toward the door. Jeff, the joy draining from his face, pushed back his hat and watched them go. Susie said, "Bye," over her shoulder and he stared blankly after her. When they had disappeared Jeff looked dazedly at the telegram.

Susie, sitting close to Dick in the snug warmth of his car, did not think of Jeff again until they were skimming along the highway north of Chicago. When she did think of him it was with a decided pang of regret.

"Oh, Dick," she said. "I was dreadfully rude to Jeff."

"Is that so?" he returned banteringly. "Well, be nice to me and that'll make up for it."

She frowned, unable to forget Jeff's face, first radiant, then ruefully disappointed.

"He wanted to tell me something," she mused. "I—I shouldn't have treated him like that. Wonder if I could call him from a filling station or somewhere?"

"Not on your life," Dick objected strenuously. "When I step out with a gal she doesn't spend her time calling other guys."

Susie laughed. Dick was different this morning, on tiptoe with eagerness, possessively attentive. Susie couldn't know that he had made a stand at breakfast that morning, that he'd advised his family to attend to their own affairs and he would look after his—and Suzanne's.

"But she's a nobody, Dick," his mother had wailed. "She won't have a homey contest or whatever you call them. I wish I'd saved the picture Harker published before he dressed her up."

"She was awful, Dick," Hester had put in. "Simply a dowdy frump, her picture looked like a comic valentine."

"More power to her," Dick had returned airily. "Lots of the stars in Hollywood were dowdy little nobodies until someone took them in hand. Suzanne is a sensation over the air, she has a big future, Hollywood will eat her up." Dick had expanded, thinking of his own part in Suzanne's success. Architecture was all right, but it didn't land you in Hollywood's inner circle.

"You're not serious about this girl," his mother gasped. "Richard—" She appealed to the head of the house who had wisely kept out of the discussion. But he merely rustled his newspaper.

Dick pushed back his chair. "You bet I am. Tomorrow night I shall bring her straight here and I want you to be decent to her. You, too, Hester," he added, with an emphatic nod at his sister.

"Thank goodness you're taking her to California," was all Hester said. So that was that and Dick waited only for the romantic moment when Suzanne would melt into his arms. If Susie's offer from the coast had been the deciding factor—well, a man couldn't very well get along without money.

Garden Five Beats Gladstone To Take Tourney By 45-26

Garden, Mich., March 6.—The Garden city team defeated Empsons of Gladstone to win the fifth annual gold medal tournament held at Garden Sunday night. The final score was 45 to 26.

Garden worked its way to the finals by defeating Nahma in the afternoon 31 to 24. Empson's defeated the Manistique Sandwich Shop to the tune of 57 to 43.

Manistique defeated Nahma in the evening for third place by an easy margin of 60 to 44. In the championship game Garden led by Potvin, Rangnette and Hennessey took the lead at the start and was never headed thereafter. The defense functioned well to hold the high scoring Empson team to but 24 points. The outstanding players of the tourney were McIntyre, Hennessey and Fisher. Anderson of the Sandwich Shop scored 25 points in a single game to win high scoring honors.

The all tourney team chosen included N. McIntyre and Anderson forwards; Rangnette, center; Hennessey and Potvin, guards.

Scoreboard for Garden vs Gladstone: Garden 45, Gladstone 26. Individual scores listed for Garden players.

Last-Second Shot Beats Purdue, 28-26

Lafayette, Ind., March 6 (AP)—A sensational last-second shot by Chicago's sharpshooting forward, Meyer, enabled the Maroons to upset Purdue university, 28 to 26, in a torrid Western conference basketball battle here tonight.

Meyer's shot hung on the rim as the gun fired, then dropped through the net. The field goal followed one by Meyer's running mate, Cassel, which had tied the count at 26-all.

Credit for the victory was earned almost single-handedly by Meyer, who made five points in Chicago's rally. His game total was two field goals and four free throws.

Chicago won on free throws, making 12 of 13, compared with Purdue's four of 10.

Preparing for Cage Tourney

Winding up their season with a rush, Munising high school cagers served a warning on opponents that they must be reckoned with at the district tournament at Ishpeming this week by virtue of their victory over the strong Negaunee high school quintet Friday night. Mather high school will be represented at the Ishpeming meet by: (back row) Montclair, Pangborn, Coach Bob Villemure, Flatley, Bowerman and Dott; (front row) Oas, Nadeau, Capt. Rousseau, Hansen and Seglund.

SPILLING the DOPE

The Harlem Globe Trotters played in Crystal Falls last week but fans were disappointed because they failed to put on their usual "show-off" act.

St. Joseph cagers, who have won but one game this year, were fortunate in the tournament drawing at Stephenson... they were dropped Vulcan, a team which has failed to win a single game in two years.

TIGER ROOKIE SHOWS SPEED

Lakeland, Fla., March 6 (AP)—Another challenger for an outfield job with the Detroit Tigers, rookie Leslie Fleming, a contribution from Beaumont, broke into the picture today in training camp activities.

A solid chap built for power, Fleming shared with Rudy York and Catcher Dixie Parsons the starring roles in batting practice, but the youngster still has to show when he can do in the field.

York, the Tigers' No. 2 slugger who put on a home run race with Hank Greenberg last year, and Parsons drove several pitches over the far-off left field wall.

Manager Del Baker manifested his first show of impatience today with the missing Boots Poffenberger. Pitcher Boots is several days late now.

"He'd better get into camp before its too late," Baker said. "I'm going to have a telephone conversation with Mr. Briggs (owner Walter O. Briggs) tonight at Miami Beach, and I expect to learn from him just where Poffenberger is and when he will arrive in camp."

Frank Croucher, on a comeback after having been out all of last year from his fractured leg, showed today in both fielding and hitting drill that he's a pronounced threat to Bill Rogell's shortstop job.

Last year in spring training Croucher, sliding into a base, suffered his fracture. Although he became physically fit again well before the end of the season, he stayed out of play as a matter of precaution. Today he appeared as good as ever.

But it's an old story for Rogell, the veteran who has survived challenges before this and has always been in position to say "Somebody is always taking my position in March but Rogell always has the job in August." There has been talk that Rogell might be traded this year, in connection with the attempt to get Earl Averill from Cleveland, but nothing has been heard of that for weeks.

Toads cannot breathe in air like most creatures, but must swallow it, hence the constant motion seen in their throats.

HAWKS DEFEAT GLADSTONE, 7-6

Marquette Tips Niagara; Finals Will Be On Sunday at 2:30

In the semi-finals of the first annual hockey tournament Sunday afternoon, Escanaba nosed out Gladstone 7 to 6 in an overtime tilt and Marquette defeated Niagara 7 to 3.

The first game was a corker with a capacity crowd yelling from start to finish and going wild when either team scored a goal. Gladstone played a much smoother type of hockey Sunday compared with Saturday's meet, and scored the two points within five minutes of the first period.

In the ten minutes overtime period, Belanger scored the first on a pass from Bertrand but the fighting Gladstone Indians came back to tie the score at 6-all. With five minutes to go, Erickson, the Hawks center, scored to put the locals ahead and with some fine defense Gladstone's pounding forward attack was broken up and held till the final bell rang.

Marquette, handicapped by the loss of three of their players and their manager who are victims of the flu, lost the second game of the afternoon through Marquette's early lead. In the second and third periods the Badgers played the victors on an even keel and showed courage and fighting spirit against the ability of the heavily strengthened Marquette team.

Next Sunday the final game of the tournament will be played at 2:30 o'clock when Escanaba will meet Marquette. A second game between Niagara and Gladstone for third and fourth place will be played after the championship game.

Menominee Teams Gird For Cage Tournament

With the teams from the Menominee county league holding down three out of the four seeded positions in both Class C and D, the league stands a good chance to have one of its members win the district title this week in the district tournament at Stephenson.

In Class D both seeded positions are held by Menominee county league squads with Powers holding down the top seeded position and Daggett being placed in the seeded spot in the lower bracket. In Class C, Hermansville rates the top seeded position with Norway

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 6 (AP)—Michigan won its final Big Ten game of the season by defeating Northwestern, 32 to 26, here tonight.

Center James Rae, with three field goals and three free throws, paced the Wolverines attack. Capt. Leo Beebe, a teammate, scored eight points to tie for runner-up honor with Chas. Melchior, Wildcat forward.

The Wolverines ran their margin to 17 to 11 a minute after the second half opened, and increased it to 26 to 18 midway in the period. CITY LEAGUE MEET OPENS

Second Round Will Be Played Tonight At Junior High

The second round of the city recreational basketball tournament will be played this evening at the Junior high school beginning at 6:30 o'clock with four games scheduled at hourly intervals.

In the first game, the Eagles will play the Loons. They will be followed in order by the H & J and Brews, Blesers and Salfors, and Engineers and Escanabians.

Four teams advanced in the opening round last night, one of them by the forfeit route. The Escanabians won on a forfeit from the Kaysees when the latter team was two members short.

Games last night were lopsided for the most part. The Eagles opened by crushing the Indies by a score of 55-11 under the clever guidance of Eddie and Roy Johnson, two fifty ball handlers.

The second game was closely contested until the third period when the H & J crew pulled away from the South Siders to win by a score of 41-21. Smithwick and Kositzke led the winners and Karas the losers in scoring.

In the final game of the evening, the Blesers disposed of the DeMolays, 49-35. The game was not as close as the score indicated with the Blesers clowning most of the time.

FOREIGN POLICY IS EXPLAINED

Prof. Hayden Delivers Interesting Talk to Rotarians

Professor Joseph Hayden, political science lecturer at the University of Michigan, and four time visitor to the Far East, told Rotary members at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the American policy in the Far East. Hayden has spent considerable time in China and Japan as an exchange professor and as vice-governor of the Philippine Islands.

At the outset the speaker outlined his attitude towards the establishment of a naval base on the island of Guam. The question, according to the speaker, is one that can only be answered by the relative importance of establishing this base to the entire Far East policy of the United States.

At times it has been difficult to exactly establish what the Far East policy of the United States is but since the year 1842 it has always hinged around two purposes. The first to secure equality of commercial opportunities for the government and peoples of the United States and secondly to secure protection for lives and properties of Americans in the Far East. These two attitudes have always been the basis for the Far East policy until recently.

Japan On Rise

Some features that are gradually changing this policy are: Rise of Japan as a military and naval power in the Far East, rise of Chinese nationalism, the present acute struggle between China and Japan, whole expression of collective peace and international security, and the rise of Fascist powers and the swing of Japan in this direction.

It is the speaker's intention that the United States should not make any agreement or offer any assistance in any instance that might eventually force this country to protect itself with the possibility of being drawn into conflict. By establishing a naval base in Guam it appears would be exactly forcing the issue in the Far East with very little to gain in case authority for establishment of a naval base was questioned by some other world power.

Boy Scouts of Rotary troop Number 52 were guests of the club and presented some demonstrations of first aid, signalling and scout laws.

At the first meeting in April the new board of directors will be elected for the coming year.

Salvation Army Names Central States Chief

Lt.-Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, new commander of the Central states territory, one of the most important Salvation Army posts in the United States, will be welcomed by army officers and leaders from throughout the Middle West as he takes charge on Thursday, March 16, at territorial headquarters in Chicago.

In his new post, to which he was recently appointed by General Evangeline Booth, Commissioner Pugmire will have charge of Salvation Army activities in Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin, Iowa, Kansas, North and South Dakota, Nebraska, Minnesota and Missouri.

Came from Atlanta

Commissioner Pugmire comes to Chicago from Atlanta, headquarters of the army's southern territory, which he has commanded since 1935. Before going south, Commissioner Pugmire served the central states territory for three years, as chief secretary or second in command to Commissioner W. A. McIntyre, just retired, whom he now succeeds.

Just prior to his appointment to Atlanta, Pugmire was advanced in rank from colonel to lieutenant-commissioner. Then only forty-seven, he was hailed as the army's youngest commissioner. Now fifty-one, the title is still appropriate for that rank has been granted few army leaders before their sixtieth birthdays.

The son of Colonel Joseph Pugmire, veteran Salvation Army officer now retired, Commissioner Pugmire has been active in army work since childhood and an officer since 1907. He was born in Kansas City, on March 4, 1888. Before he was ten years old, he had crossed the Atlantic four times as his father's changes in appointments took him to England, to Canada, again to England and back to Canada again.

Worked in Canada

In the last transfer to Canada, Colonel Pugmire became men's social secretary for the dominion and his family lived in Toronto, where Ernest attended school and, later, trained for officership.

After receiving his commission, Ernest Pugmire served in the financial department of the Toronto headquarters until 1915, when he became financial secretary of the newly formed western Canada territory. In 1918, he was sent to China, to become the army's first financial secretary in that country. The next year, he was transferred to Japan, where he served for 12 years.

From Japan, Commissioner Pugmire was sent to Winnipeg and then to Chicago, where he became chief secretary for the central states territory in 1932. In 1931, while in Canada, he married a colleague, Captain Grace Vickers. His brother, Brigadier Herbert Pugmire, is divisional commander of the western Michigan division, one of the units of the central states territory.

Communication

Dear Editor: I wish to express some views on expansion of the 15 mill amendment for schools.

I do not believe there is any question of the fact, that our schools need more money or that a tax dollar can be better spent than in our school system. The benefits are more visible than in other departments because we get a dividend on our investment at the end of every school day. An education is really the only fool-proof legacy one can leave a child.

Our rural schools, in this county, seem to have taken a very definite step forward in the past four years. Of the many important changes, fundamental in bringing them up to the desired level, several of them cost the taxpayers nothing. For these things, I believe, we owe a salute to the ingenuity of our present school commissioner.

However, inasmuch as our schools are a branch of every one's home, the cost of its maintenance is likewise every one's responsibility.

The sales tax is a tax on all the people and when collected for a necessity which benefits all the people, there should be no cause for complaint.

On the contrary, the mill tax is an addition to all other taxes. It is a tax on a few, regardless of income or ability to pay, for the benefit of others. Because of its inflexibility, it is highly discriminating and the method of its collection, by extortion, is condemnatory. The hundreds of leaking roofs throughout the countryside, which are consuming our farm buildings, stand out in mute testimony to the ravishes of the mill tax.

I believe we should get away from a tax on debts, liabilities and deterioration as much as possible.

USE TAX WILL BE GIVEN BACK

Utility Users Credited With Funds Collected 12 Months Ago

Approximately $2,500 in credits is being issued on this month's utility bills to residents of Escanaba, it was announced yesterday by City Treasurer A. J. Manley.

The money is in the form of rebates on that collected as state use taxes in December of 1937 and January and February of 1938. This money was collected from utility users on advice of the attorney general that utilities were subject to the then newly administered use tax. After collecting the tax for three months, the city, realizing it was likely that the attorney general's ruling would be reversed, stopped collecting any more but held the collected money in trust until final advice on its disposal was forthcoming.

With the announcement that the use tax was not collectible against utility bills, the city is turning it back in the form of credits to those who paid it.

Utility bills for the month will be distributed starting Wednesday. Because of the heavy amount of book work, some of the credits will not be placed on the bills until next month. Persons not finding credits on this month's bill are asked to wait until next month
