U. P. Communities Several of the larger communities of upper Michigan—over 5,200 population—are included in the list. They are Marquette, population 16,000, and maximum salary of firemen (exclusive of chief) $1,500; Escanaba, population 14,324, maximum salary $1,320; Ironwood, 14,500, maximum $1,200; Menominee, population 10,320, maximum salary $1,260; and Manistique, population 5,200, maximum salary $1,320.

New York City pays the highest maximum, $3,000. The New York chief receives $12,500 a year; Chicago, $10,000, and Manistique—at the foot of the list—$1,620. Chief Sciolati, of Iron Mountain, draws $1,320, or $300 less than the chief at Manistique.

Good Wages Deserved The International Association of Fire Fighters has been actively engaged during the 21 years of its existence, according to a foreword in the publication, in "promoting the best interest of the fire fighters of the United States and Canada."

"The best interests of a fire fighter," the statement adds, "demand that he shall receive wages commensurate with the services performed. Wages commensurate with services performed does not mean, by any possible stretch of the imagination, bare living wages. We believe, of course, that everyone who works should be paid a living wage. Mere living wages, however, are not sufficient compensation for a fire fighter, whether he be a member of a fire department of a large metropolitan city, or a member of the department of a small town."

"Fire fighting is a high calling, and the requirements for entrance into the fire service are today most exacting. Men who possess the mental and physical qualifications required of fire fighters, and the character, the courage and the ideals of service which it is essential that a fire fighter should have, are entitled to more than bare living wages."

Detroit Commerce Board's Cruise To Dock At Escanaba

The summer cruise of the Detroit Board of Commerce will dock at Escanaba sometime between June 15 and 19, according to word received yesterday by George E. Bishop, secretary-manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, from Harry Shearer, Detroit, assistant secretary of the board.

The annual summer meeting of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau is scheduled to be held here on the date the cruise will put in at the local harbor, and a joint session with the Detroit board is planned by the bureau members.

On The RECORD

By Dorothy Thompson

THE NOTE AND THE BEAM

While our public officials are conducting an energetic offensive against the ideas of the dictatorship, this country follows a domestic program which tends toward dictatorship and adopts many of the measures which are most susceptible of criticism under the dictatorship, such as a rapidly pyramiding increase in the proportion of the national income controlled by the state, a grammatic deficit financing, the strangulation of private enterprise and initiative by taxation policy and the setting up in the W. P. A. of a separate work economy demoralizing the working standards of the rest of the economy.

And now the latest move in the same direction is the proposal to barter American cotton against British-grown rubber and tin, together with an export subsidy for cotton.

The warning as to the direction in which we are tending comes from numerous sources. Mr. Harry Sherman, in the April 22 "Saturday Evening Post," has a brilliant article on the eventual meaning of a systematically unbalanced budget.

The latest report of the Brookings Institution is not at all in harmony with New Deal theories but, we are told, represents the views of the ablest men in the Treasury Department.

Nevertheless, the chance of these views being adopted is remote, in consideration of the political situation. The reports from Bolivia describing the justification for the first totalitarian state on the Western Hemisphere are enlightening. President Lieut. Col. Busch has proclaimed a totalitarian state, with the abolition of the courts and the existing legal codes and the establishment of the whole paraphernalia of total dictatorship on the ground that that country can only be saved from bankruptcy by financial dictatorship, that such a dictatorship could not function under a democratic government and that certain capitalist interests have been obstructing his efforts to solve financial and economic problems.

It is worth noting that the regime which has established the new system—which, from the first reports, closely follow the German model—started with half-baked semi-socialistic ideas, and that the new dictator was the instigator of capital confiscation. The sequence is logical. The state having undertaken much, must undertake more and must have increased power in order to deal with its own errors.

In Chicago a controversy is going on over the W. P. A. policy which deserves more publicity than it has received. Building contractors and trade unionists are protesting that building enterprises undertaken by the W. P. A.—eliminating the contractor, disregarding established methods of operation, giving questionable supervision and overloading jobs—are bankrupting the building industry, and that the W. P. A. is doing work with relief labor which undercuts the union scale.

It is perfectly obvious that building done under one system in which the laborer is paid a subsistence wage as stop-gap employment cannot indefinitely exist side by side with the majority system and both of them prosper. Some hope of a reform of this may be in the Burns bill, which would put all work of the Federal government under a new Cabinet officer, who would have the power to decide how all public works should be carried out and who could, therefore, reform methods. But to create a new executive officer does not make a policy.

And now, finally, we see a barter arrangement proposed which bears a distinct family resemblance to the policies of the German government, which Mr. Hull's administration has been most consistent hitherto in opposing and the operation of which constitutes a legitimate quarrel with the Nazis.

The worst of it is that this barter agreement is just a red herring to divert attention from the breakdown of the Triple-A agricultural policy. For the specific problem of cotton we are introducing a special arrangement by which we depress the international price and thus do our part to contributing to world price anarchy.

SERIAL STORY

BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Barro suspiciously tells her so and then she is carried off by two of Barro's lieutenants to another part of the house. She retains her hysteria because resistance is useless.

CHAPTER XX
On the afternoon that Inspector Hope Kildare, of the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service, admitted that he was in love with Betty Mary Jordan, the first coolness in all their memory came between him and Sheridan Starr.

The Kildare and Starr families had lived in another part of Texas side by side. The parents had been close friends. Young Sheridan and young Hope had enjoyed first fights as small youngsters, but only in teamwork fighting someone else. They had romped and enjoyed life through grade school, high school, thence into college. Perfect athletes, they had achieved wide fame as football players. What one had attained the other had shared, always. And now there was conflict over pretty Betty Mary Jordan.

"Well, Hope," Sheridan said that evening when they would have gone to supper together as usual, "if it's not a sin for you to love her, I guess it's not a sin for me either. I guess we can't either of us help it. You ready to go eat now?"

Hope did not look at his friend. He was staring vacantly away. "Reckon I'm not hungry," he said finally.

Sheridan went without another word. He did not depart whistling or bantering with other officers in the headquarters offices as he was wont to do. He just walked glumly out, alone.

He didn't know how long he had walked, but when he came to himself at last it was dark. From force of habit he drifted to a favorite cafe and told the waitress heavily with his policies of barter. "I have frequently had occasion to point out that regimented foreign trade based upon the principle of bilateral balancing, implemented by barter or compensation arrangements, is fundamentally unsound and that such practices, when adopted as a general policy, not only constitute a highly disruptive influence in world commerce but are injurious to the very countries which utilize them. While there may be circumstances under which special types of barter arrangements may be considered necessary to supplement other methods of trade promotion, the substitution of a general policy of barter or compensation trade for normal trade methods inevitably leads to a curtailment of total trade and reduction of living standards."

There might, of course, be a justifiable barter if on the basis of a uniform price. But the barter proposal now made is not such a one. It consists of pegging the price here and letting the international price take the brunt.

One is compelled to see in this measure a political camouflage for the bankruptcy of the New Deal agricultural policy since 1934, which, building on the Hoover Farm Board errors, compounded misplanning long before the authoritarian barter attack on world economy.

It bears a distinct analogy to the Brazilian coffee valorization, which ended with dumping and burning unmarketable supplies. The world carry-over of American cotton is expected to approximate fourteen and one-half million bales by next August—the largest in history—and government loan holdings, if no cotton is released before August, plus the expected 1939 crop of thirteen million bales, are estimated to bring the world carry-over to four or five years of normal export requirements.

Since the government's loan holdings were not hedged in the market, the barter deal will merely transfer stocks from the producing area—interested in stabilizing cotton prices—to the consumer, and will prevent a change in our policy in the direction of stimulating foreign markets.

The mere enunciation of the plan has virtually killed the export market. The anarchic price influence of the whole proposal means that the foreigner hopes to obtain his requirements at his own price, while the internal demand is affected by expected lower futures.

The scarcity of desirable cotton outside government-loan stocks, and our previous scarcity policy which has stimulated foreign production; the high price of American cotton relative to foreign growths—these have meant that foreign exporters have been using less and less American cotton.

Politically speaking, such a barter transaction, once begun, is bound to be extended to other commodities, which will demand to benefit from subsidies. So we introduce a new pork-barrel scheme, the mere apprehension of which will disrupt the markets of other commodities.

In its present form we will subsidize the foreigner without expanding our foreign markets and depress the world price level of cotton—and then, in all probability, extend loans to Brazil to offset the deflation of her cotton income, which our previous policy originally stimulated.

CAPITAL COMMENTS

Washington, April 28 (AP)—After eagerly analyzing Adolf Hitler's speech...

Secretary of State Hull and his principal advisors gathered early in the day at his office...

Speakers Bankhead called the reply "specious and unpromising" and said that while it "contained some general desires upon his part to preserve peace in Europe and the world"...

Senator Nye (R-N. D.), commented: "The president won't like it. (The speech) but let it be remembered that he invited at least in part what was said."

London, April 28. (AP)—The British foreign office, officially silent on Reichsfuehrer Hitler's speech, was reliably reported to have rejected his suggestion that Germany and Great Britain negotiate a new naval agreement.

Large Crowd Hears Cligh Explain The Townsend Program

C. F. Cligh, an official representative of the Townsend Recovery Plan movement...

Mr. Cligh, in presenting the Townsend Plan stressed the importance of the business men in supporting such legislation as the plan implies...

The need of readjustment of our taxation system is felt by all lines of business and the transaction tax feature of the bill H. R. 2 was declared by Judge Harvey Smith as the greatest, most justifiable and practical tax that has been brought up in the last 100 years...

Following the program there was musical entertainment and dancing. Mr. Cligh speaks at Gladstone on Saturday night at a meeting at the city hall.

That the agreement was "permanent and definite." A semi-official source said "the foreign office view is that the Chamberlain government would fall if it attempted to negotiate a new naval treaty with Germany after Hitler's repudiation of the old one."

Four Points Noted There still was some disagreement in diplomatic circles tonight regarding the more purely political phases of the speech, but this much was generally agreed: 1. The speech was relatively moderate in tone...

MOTHER SENT UP FOR LIFE WITH 2 SONS

Hart said the three convicted slayers would be taken to prison Monday. Probate Judge Elizabeth Coger directed that the children be taken temporarily to St. John's home in Grand Rapids.

The conspiracy, the state contended, began when it became evident that divorce proceedings instituted by Charles would give Helen custody of the children. Mrs. Matilda Cassidy and her two sons decided that Helen would have to be "put out of the way" and Elton was chosen to do the job.

After two months of inquiry Matilda Cassidy and her two sons confessed first and accused the mother of directing the conspiracy. Twenty-four hours later the mother confessed.

Crocodile Island Colorful Comedy; Tuneful Melodies

"Crocodile Island," a tuneful and colorful musical comedy, was presented by the music department of the junior high school at the William W. Oliver Memorial Auditorium last night.

Featuring one of the finest choruses and orchestras in the junior high school in several years, the production was a delightful one, the tunes being melodious and the dialogue witty and fast moving.

Principals of the cast included: Fred Thatcher as King Bongazoola, happy-go-lucky monarch of Crocodile Island, and Nit-Wit, his gloomy chamberlain, portrayed by John PappaJohn; Dorothy Jorgensen and Ruby Arnesen as Petal and Pearl, pretty daughters of the King, and courted by Jack Warwick as Thomas Brooks, an American college student, and Clifford Turquist as Jeff Penfield, a fellow traveler.

BUDGET NEXT BIG TASK FOR STATE SOLONS (Continued from Page One) tigation of commissions paid Frank D. McKay, former Republican state treasurer, has asked U. S. Attorney General F. M. Murphy for information concerning the financing of the Blue Water International bridge.

Its chairman, Rep. Nelson A. Miles, Holland Republican, said it would be "some time" before the committee could issue a preliminary report. His statement said the group also is assembling information regarding "various revenue producing bonds which have been issued in the state of Michigan during the past few years."

Kangaroos, lizards, seals and snakes are hunted primarily for their skins, not for meat. The committee in charge consisted of the officers, Margaret McCarthy, Tom Dufour, Arlene Moreau and Jim L'Heureux, and the program committee, Pearl LaViolette, Tom Powers, Norman Kincaid, Bob Casey, Jim McMonagle and Bob Beaudoin.

Don't Forget To Set Clocks Hour Ahead Tonight

Scene: Editorial rooms, Daily Press. Time: Friday afternoon. Managing editor: "We'll have to have a story tomorrow on the change to daylight savings time so people won't forget to change their clocks Saturday night."

Reporter: "Allright—say, do we set the clocks back or ahead? I never can remember." Managing Ed: "That's easy. Clocks are set ahead." Society Ed: "No, that isn't it—you set them back an hour." Managing Ed: "Well, now, I thought I knew—but maybe it is back."

Photographer: "Until you people started arguing about it, I knew what it was but now I don't know." Reporter: "Well, let's figure it out. It's 5 o'clock now. If we set the clocks back, it will give us an hour more daylight." Photog: "No, that's not right. If you set them back, you lose an hour of daylight." Managing Ed: "My first idea was right—set the clocks ahead." Reporter: "Allright, I'll write the story that way, but if it is wrong, don't blame me!" (Reporter's note: Folks, set your clocks an hour AHEAD before retiring tonight—or is it back?)
