DIES WITNESS DEFENDS BUND AS PATRIOTIC

USE ARMY TO HALT COMMUNISM, SAYS GEN. MOSELEY

BY RICHARD L. TURNER Washington, May 31 (AP)—Major General George Van Horn Moseley, retired, spent five turbulent hours before the Dies committee today, alternately insisting that Jewish-led Communist revolution is about to overwhelm the country and protesting that he harbors no anti-Semitic prejudices.

With energetic oratory, he asserted that "the Jew is an internationalist first" and "a patriot at home second."

Several organizations are known to be looking to Moseley for leadership in the fight against the alleged "revolutionary activity."

Moseley said today that it was unfortunate that Robert E. Edmondson, identified with a "patriotic organization," recently published an article entitled "Hail Moseley."

Job for White House He defended organizations of "the extreme right" as an "antidote for the disease of Communism," but asserted it was unnecessary to place the government in the hands of any or all of them, in order to put down the Communist revolt.

"It ought to be handled in five minutes from the White House," he said, clapping a broad hand upon the witness table.

His method, it developed, was that the president should use the army, under a law passed in 1929. That law, he said, made it the duty of the president to take such action if the lives and property of citizens are threatened.

For the German-American Bund, he had nothing but praise. Its George Washington's birthday meeting at Madison Square Garden, he called "impressively patriotic," citing the fact that an American flag and a picture of Washington were prominently displayed on the stage. The Bund's only purpose, he said, was "to see that the Communists don't take over the country."

Makes Imposing Entrance For the rest, his time was spent battling with the committee over whether he would be permitted to present a lengthy statement to support his thesis about the revolt. The committee finally agreed that it might be presented tomorrow, after committee counsel has examined it with a view to determining the creditability of the sources of his information.

The general's entry into the committee room was impressive. He stepped through the door, with a military stride, accompanied by a retinue of attorneys, augmented by one member of the house, Representative Thorkelson (R-Mont), whom the current issue of Liberation, organ of William Dudley Pelley's silver shirts, calls a

Barrymore Recovers Under Oxygen Tent

Chicago, May 31 (AP)—John Barrymore, veteran star of stage and screen afflicted with a heart ailment, was placed under an oxygen tent periodically today.

Dr. T. J. Coogan reported the 57 year old actor had a "narrow squeak" yesterday, when he suffered a heart attack, but was much better today. If he continued to improve at the same rate, the physician added, he should be able to resume his role in "My Dear Children" next Monday night.

Dr. Coogan and Dr. W. G. Highstone attributed Barrymore's heart condition to complete exhaustion. They ordered rest and a special diet and put him under the care of nurses for 24 hours a day. An electro-cardiograph examination disclosed no coronary thrombosis, Dr. Highstone told reporters, but indicated a weak heart muscle. They decided to use an oxygen tent, he explained, only because of a definite deficiency of oxygen in the blood stream.

Barrymore was well enough to be removed to a hospital but elected to remain in his apartment in the Ambassador East hotel. He insisted, too, that he would return to the stage next Monday night.

The actor's estranged wife, Elaine Barrie, telephoned from Hollywood to inquire about his condition. She said she would come here "if his condition takes a turn for the worse."

Arrangements were made for a bed room back stage at the theater so Barrymore can rest during his free moments when he again takes his place in the show's cast. Meanwhile, all performances for the remainder of the week were canceled.

The "My Dear Children" company, engaged in a cross-country tour, opened at the Selwyn theater on May 8. It had planned to stay two weeks but the farce was so well received by most critics and playgoers that the run was continued indefinitely.

It was in Chicago that Barrymore, youngest member of the "royal family" of the theater, made his first stage appearance 35 years ago. Since then, he has starred in plays in the United States and abroad and has acted in many silent and sound films.

RULERS LEAVE LITTLE BRITAIN King and Queen Start Journey to U. S. Via Canada

BY FRANK H. KING Chilliwack, B. C., May 31 (AP)—King George and Queen Elizabeth said farewell to little England on the Pacific today, leaving behind the royalists of bustling Vancouver and sleepy Victoria to live with the memories, the queen's smile and the king's royal demeanor.

If there is any truth in the old story that Englishmen stand up in their beds when the national anthem is played the patriots of old Victoria, who look on London as an outpost of empire, were able to take their tubs for the first time in 36 hours. The strains of "God Save the King" ran like a theme song through the town while the royal couple was there.

At Vancouver the British sovereigns were publicly proclaimed king and queen of Canada for the first time since their arrival in the Dominion. At Victoria the visit was a triumph of successive appearances in a seagirt setting like their island home 6,000 miles away.

Skyraks, old oaks, golden broom growing as rank as in Scotland, crooked lanes scented with blossoming May trees, even wind signs like "Teas with Devonshire cream" added to the illusion of the English country side.

Only an occasional "hot dog" stand or freshly painted cryptic "Barb-b-a" sign for the American tourist horde relieved the spell of the old country.

SUGAR TRADER UNDER ARREST

Fake Warehouse Receipt System Used to Steal Over Million

New York, May 31 (AP)—Carlos G. Garcia, 46-year-old sugar importer whose firm was placed in receivership last Wednesday, was arrested today on a charge of stealing $1,070,427.

Assistant District Attorney Frank A. F. Severance, in whose office Garcia was taken into custody, said he had admitted obtaining the money by use of fictitious sugar warehouse receipts. Garcia is president of the Garcia Sugars Corporation of Wall Street, and has interests in Standard Sugars Corporation, the International Trading Company, and the Insular Terminal Company of Long Island City.

Garcia sugars went into receivership last week on application of the National Sugar Refining Company, American Sugar Refining Company, and Lee & Simmons, a Lighter concern, which told federal court that the Garcia firm owed them more than $400,000 and that liabilities were more than $1,000,000 in excess of assets.

District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office subpoenaed Garcia's books, which Assistant District Attorney Severance said showed that, beginning in 1937, Garcia received large loans from the Chase National Bank and the Clinton Trust Company, securing them with sugar warehouse receipts.

He quoted Garcia as saying about 90 per cent of these receipts were faked. The money was used, he said, to meet losses suffered through trading in sugar futures and through repudiation of contracts by purchasers in the face of a falling market.

Chauffeur And Wife Victims Of Detroit Twin Shooting Case

Detroit, May 31 (AP)—Lieut. Jack Harvill of the homicide squad said today that Thomas A. Reyes, an unemployed Filipino chauffeur, shot to death his wife, Ida, 30, then committed suicide by firing a shot through his head.

The shooting, which followed a quarrel witnessed by several persons, took place on a street corner early today. Friends of the couple told police that Reyes was angry because his wife would not accompany him to Chicago, where he made his home.

Welfare Case Load Continues To Drop

Lansing, May 31 (AP)—The emergency relief commission reported a continued drop in the welfare case load today, but attributed a large part of the reduction to an increase in WPA employment.

The total welfare case load dropped to 79,387, as compared with 81,215 shown in a survey a week ago. The general relief burden was reduced in that period from $6,347,40 to $5,162,000.

A survey showed 118,818 persons on the WPA rolls, compared with 117,198 listed in the survey a week ago.

BANK BILL SIGNED Lansing, May 31 (AP)—Governor Dickinson today signed an act permitting state banks to add five members to their boards of directors. They could appoint five to twenty members under the new plan. The present law provides for boards of from five to fifteen.

INQUIRY ASKED IN ELECTRICAL BOARD CHARGE

DICKINSON TELLS MEN TO EXPLAIN OR RESIGN

Lansing, May 31 (AP)—Governor Dickinson demanded tonight that the state electrical administrative board refute charges of "irregular" handling of state funds, or that its members submit their resignations.

"I will give them an opportunity to come before me to reply to these charges," the governor said, referring to a final report by Attorney General Thomas Read elaborating previous charges against the board. He added that he would have no authority to remove the members until after the legislature has taken its final adjournment June 30.

The board, consisting of L. P. Dendel, Lansing, C. W. Spain, and James G. Spaulding, Detroit, James Kelley, Jackson, Charles Crozier, Battle Creek, and A. T. Babbitt, chief inspector, had informed the governor previously that it would resign if he desired.

Fees Not Returned Dendel said that at a meeting last week with Read and Auditor General Vernon J. Brown the board was informed there was "no evidence of illegal transactions" involving either the board or Babbitt.

Read's latest report to the governor asserted that "an undeterminable sum of thousands of dollars in fees have been collected by inspectors (for the board) but they have not returned the monies to the general fund of the state" as required by law.

Read also stated that "two or three instances contained the name of a claimed assistant district inspector who in truth and fact the claimed assistant district inspector did not work during the reported pay period."

Read further reported that the board was "aware that large sums of money were being collected by inspectors and retained to their own use," and also, that "sums in amounts of upwards of $3,000, during the period of one month, have been withheld from the general fund of the state by district inspectors with the full knowledge and consent of the board."

Paid No Salaries Dendel declared that district inspectors were not paid salaries or expense accounts but were expected to reimburse themselves from their collections. He said each district inspector was given certain receipts in advance, charged to him as cash.

When fees were collected, he said, they were sent, along with the receipts, to the board office in Lansing and then to the auditor general's office, after which they were returned to the inspector.

Dendel declared "as far as the charge of robbing the state is concerned, the state never was intended to get the money in the first place. Some men may have been technically in violation of the law by not making full reports but the money would have been their eventually anyway."

Read recommended installation of a new administrative system for the board upon Brown's advice. Dendel said the board had agreed to that in the meeting with the state officials last week.

Work has been delayed pending the additional federal grant of $123,750, which makes the PWA's share in the cost of the project $460,000.

Germany Lionizes Veteran Fighters Who Aided Franco

Berlin, May 31 (AP)—Germany today welcomed home 4,500 soldiers who helped General Franco win the Spanish civil war, signed a non-aggression pact with Denmark and prepared to honor Prince Regent Paul of Yugoslavia, due tomorrow for a five-day visit.

Field Marshal Herman Wilhelm Goerring, representing Chancellor Hitler, in Hamburg greeted the Germans who were sent to Spain to "fight Bolshevism." At the same time Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop in the Berlin foreign office signed their agreement with Denmark.

The treaty, of two short articles, was the first of three which Hitler plans as a direct result of President Roosevelt's April 15 peace message, in which Mr. Roosevelt appealed to Hitler and Premier Mussolini for a pledge not to attack 31 specified nations.

Hitler subsequently declared his willingness to sign non-aggression pacts with Scandinavian and Baltic countries. Three of these countries—Denmark, Latvia and Estonia—accepted the offer. Pacts with the last two are under negotiation. Norway, Sweden and Finland, however, preferred to maintain complete neutrality.

Herluf Zahle, Danish minister in Berlin, signed today for Denmark during a brief ceremony. The signing of the treaty, the text of which is to be published later, and the coming of the Yugoslav regent were classified in Berlin foreign office quarters as signs that Denmark and Yugoslavia intended to resist what is described here as British-French efforts to "line up Europe against Germany."

BRIGGS STRIKE DECISION NEAR

Conciliator Will Submit Recommendations to Joint Conference

Detroit, May 31 (AP)—Recommendations designed to end a week-old strike that has closed seven plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co., and affected more than 70,000 workers will be submitted to a joint conference of management and officials of the CIO-United Automobile Workers Union here Thursday.

Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey, who spend today discussing with both sides 28 grievances which the CIO-UAW blamed for the strike, said he hoped acceptance of his recommendations would bring about "immediate" reopening of the plants.

Both management and union officials have agreed to accept Dewey's decision on the grievances. After the verdict has been accepted, Dewey said, discussion of an agreement for reopening the plants will begin.

Meantime, estimates of the number thrown out of work by the shutdown continued to grow. It was an accepted fact that the strike has made idle more than 70,000 Briggs, Chrysler and Ford employees in Detroit, and one reliable source predicted that the shutdown soon might force an additional 130,000 out of work in the steel, rubber and glass fields.

Approximately 700 employees of the Bay Manufacturing plant at Bay City, Mich., were sent home today after the Bay City plant of the Electric Auto-Lite Co. failed to resume full production following the weekend shutdown. Officials blamed the shutdown on the Briggs strike.

Japanese Give Up Attempt To Enter River At Foochow

Foochow, May 31 (AP)—A force of Japanese naval vessels withdrew toward the sea today after a 24-hour artillery duel with Chinese coastal batteries at the mouth of the Min river.

The Japanese were attempting to run the gauntlet to approach Foochow. The warships made an earlier attack without success Tuesday and then returned with reinforcements.

Seeking to block further attempts to enter the river, Chinese threw a boom across the mouth of the stream and closed the port.

OHIO SCHOOL IS BLOWN UP; 57 ARE HURT

VICIOUS GAS BLAST MAY BE FATAL TO THREE PERSONS

Barberton, O., May 31 (AP)—A roundup tonight of victims of an explosion which shattered a school building here in mid-afternoon totalled 57 persons injured—53 grade school children and four adults.

Three were not expected to live, hospital attendants reported. They were Dorothy Young, 6; Frances Fisher, 7, and P. S. White 58, panitor.

Two teachers injured were Miss Mabelle Miller, 38, who suffered fractured leg and ribs as she was hurled beneath a piano, and Miss Albertina Mills, 44, with possible fractured back.

Outer Walls Collapse H. P. White, an electrician working nearby, also was hurt. Thirty-one remained in hospitals tonight, several suffering fractures, many burns, and all shocked.

The explosion, which all concerned said undoubtedly was from gas, literally tore the two story frame structure apart. It was a former house being used as a school while a new building is being built.

The outer walls flew out. The center partitions remained upright. The upper floors slanted downward, shooting children out, sliding down like a toboggan.

Dozens of tons on the first floor dropped into the basement and were covered with debris. The roof fell upon the mass of children and wreckage.

Caught Under Debris A carpenter foreman, John Rublen, working on the new building sent his men for help and went to the rescue. He said: "I was on my hands and knees when I heard the explosion and the screaming. As I ran to the building the sides fell out and the roof came down with a second roar."

"Most of the buried children were caught under lath and plaster and desks which were not very heavy. Many of them slid or were blown out of the house."

"There were about 20 on the second floor and I believe some of them fell clear to the basement. I pushed a piano off a teacher and carried her and another teacher out. I took out about 15 little fellows."

"One of the worst parts of this is that some of the little girls probably will be disfigured for life."

Before Janitor White lapsed into unconsciousness because of burns, he said he had been burning papers in the basement when the blast let go.

"The whole basement must have been filled with gas," he said before lapsing into unconsciousness.

Chisago City, Minn., May 31 (AP)—Abduction, slugging and dooping of a 28-year-old Chisago City garage proprietor was reported tonight close on the heels of the reported kidnaping and robbery of a Red Wing laborer.

The Chisago City victim, Harry Hjelmberg, was in a critical condition in a St. Croix Falls, Wis., hospital. He had been struck on the head and his condition was such that authorities were unable to question him.

Standing Pat

Vlachoslav Molotov

In a speech before the Russian parliament Wednesday, Vlachoslav Molotov, Soviet premier and foreign minister, rejected the British-French mutual aid proposal as inadequate and said that Russia stands firmly against violation of her frontiers. The door was left open for Paris and London to swing around to Moscow's view, however.

CONGRESS MAY FINISH IN JULY

Neutrality and Revision of Taxes Make Date Uncertain One

Washington, May 31 (AP)—Leaders sought today to speed up the legislative pace so that congress could adjourn by mid-July, but one major "if"—neutrality legislation—prevented them from promising President Roosevelt that the session would end by that date.

The things congress has done and left undone were canvassed at a White House conference attended by Vice President Gurney, Speaker Bankhead, Senator Barkley (D-Ky), the majority leader, and Representative Rayburn of Texas, the house Democratic leader.

The leaders advised Mr. Roosevelt they would check on the progress of major legislation through committees this week and give him next Monday their best guess on when congress would adjourn.

Their forecast may decide the date on which the president will start his projected trip to the San Francisco fair. Mr. Roosevelt has said that if it appears possible congress will adjourn by July 15, he will delay his trip until after that date. If congress is unlikely to adjourn before August 1, however, he probably will leave Washington June 15.

The congressional leaders reported to Mr. Roosevelt that adjournment prospects were tied up with the problems of neutrality and tax legislation.

A tax revision measure is expected to reach the house week after next. Prompt action is expected in that chamber and, later, in the senate.

Collective Suicides Feared As Refugees Return To Germany

Havana, Cuba, May 31 (AP)—Captain Gustav Schroeder of the German liner Saint Luis, informed authorities today he feared a "collective suicide pact" among his 917 German Jewish refugee passengers, who are scheduled to sail back to Hamburg with him tomorrow after being denied entry to Cuba.

The captain reported there was a "state of mutiny" aboard which he could not control and therefore he feared "open mutiny" when the ship left Havana harbor.

State Girls' School Head Resigns Post

Lansing, May 31 (AP)—Governor Dickinson today accepted the resignation of Mrs. Mary Swaney, superintendent of the girls' Training School at Adrian.

The state (juvenile) corrections commission, by a divided vote, had recommended that she be dismissed. A group of members had disagreed with her administrative policies.

Dickinson said her successor had not been selected.

RUSSIA WILL NOT LINE UP ANTI-HITLER

BRITAIN AND FRANCE MUST MEET VIEWS OF MOSCOW

Moscow, May 31 (AP)—With Joseph Stalin looking on and applauding, Premier-Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov tonight rejected the latest British-French pact proposals as inadequate.

In a speech before the supreme Soviet—the Russian parliament—Molotov left the door slightly open for further negotiations, however, if Paris and London are willing to meet Moscow's view. He emphasized that Russia stands for a common front of all peaceful nations.

Independence Emphasized He asserted vigorously, however, the complete independence of Moscow's foreign policy. It was his first speech since succeeding Maxim Litvinov as foreign commissar on May 3.

"It is impossible," he said in a caustic reference to British-French efforts to build a bloc of French efforts to build a bloc of Rome-Berlin axis, "to think now whether they want to end aggression."

He also mentioned a possible renewal of trade negotiations with Germany, clearly indicating that Moscow is not leading any anti-Hitler boycott. These negotiations, he said, "may be resumed."

Molotov described the British-Polish mutual aid agreement and a like British-Turkish understanding as a "good sign," but declared Russia wanted more.

Proposed One-Sided The conditions of Soviet cooperation include, he said, a mutual assistance pact covering not only those countries guaranteed by Britain and France, but "all neighboring countries of the U. S. S. R."

Britain and France have "remained silent as to three countries on Soviet Russia's northwestern frontier (apparently Latvia, Estonia and Finland) which may be powerless to defend their neutrality," he said. Britain and France, he added, "only think of those whom they have guaranteed."

As for London's answer to previous Russian objections that the British offer did not include reciprocity, Molotov said: "It is true that London and Paris have accepted the principle of reciprocity modified by numerous clauses so that it may be purely formal."

No Cat's Paw After expressing his uncertainty whether Britain and France "really want to end aggression," Molotov added: "That is why we must be vigilant. We must remember Stalin's warning about pulling chestnuts out of the fire."

(On March 10 Stalin said Russia would not be dragged into conflict with Germany as "a cat's paw" to pull British and French chestnuts out of the fire.)

"The Soviet union is not what it was in 1921," Molotov said. "We are compelled to remind the world of this, for it seems that even our neighbors forget it. Our strength has risen."

"It is time to understand that we will not tolerate violation of our frontiers," Molotov declared. The Soviet union's firm intention of defending the frontiers of outer Mongolia, (Japanese sources have reported recent skirmishes along the outer Mongolian-Manchoukuo frontier).

Capital Highlights

(By The Associated Press) The house started debate on the Townsend old age pension bill, some representatives praising it as "a national recovery plan" and others condemning it as "economic heresy." Leaders sought to speed congress toward a mid-July adjournment, but the controversy over neutrality legislation was a possible obstacle. Major General Van Horn Moseley, retired, told the Dies committee that the German-American Bund was only "trying to see that the Communists don't take over this country."

KEWEENAW PT. ROAD PRAISED

US-41 Around Ft. Wilkins Chosen As Most Scenic

For the third year, a state trunkline highway has been singled out for recognition in the field of roadside development by the Michigan Horticultural Society.

This week, State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner was awarded a certificate of recognition by the Society at its annual meeting at Grosse Pointe. US-41 from Laurium to Copper Harbor was selected for the honor by the Garden Committee of the Society. This road through the middle of the Keweenaw Peninsula is one of rustic beauty. It traverses a land of forest and rock. It has been popular with tourists because of the natural beauty which has been presented along its route.

In 1937, the department received the award for the shore road between Harbor Springs and Cross Village, then a trunkline highway and now a county road. Last year, the department's work on US-2 between Watersmeet and Wakefield in Gogebic County was recognized.

"new statesman x x x rearing high above this miasma of skull-and-gory."

The general, every inch a military man, scarcely shows his 64 years. He is tall, slender and erect with sandy hair, hardly turning grey, a long narrow, craggy face, with close-set eyes and a nose rather larger than average.

Clashes With Committee

Seated before the committee, he adopted a policy of defiance at once. When the first question was asked, he began insisting that his prepared statement, accompanied by documentary evidence, be read. Acting Chairman Healey (D-Mass.) looked doubtfully at the pile of papers neatly stacked before the witness.

"General," he observed, "you are not here for the purpose of making speeches."

A fast exchange followed, culminating in:

"Will you ever give me a chance to make this statement?"

"That," said Healey, "is in the discretion of the committee. We would like you now to answer the questions of the committee's counsel."

"The American people want to hear this. I have a lot of evidence. Aren't you interested in un-American activities?"

"Yes, but—"

"Then let me read this statement."

Again he was refused permission.

"My friend, here," Moseley said, nodding toward Thorkelson, "will bring this whole thing out on the floor of the house. And, I will bring it out to the American people from coast to coast."

Speedway Winners Get About $100,000

Indianapolis, May 31 (AP)—Approximately $100,000 in cash was paroled out tonight to drivers in yesterday's 500-mile motor speedway race, with Wilbur Shaw of Indianapolis, the winner, drawing $27,405.

Shaw also received the L. Strauss trophy, the Borg-Warner trophy, an electric refrigerator, the checkered flag that gave him the victory signal and the medal from the American Automobile association for finishing second last year in the AAA driving championship race. The first place medal went to Floyd Roberts, Van Nuys, Calif., veteran, who was killed when his car hit that driven by Bob Swanson of Los Angeles. Roberts won $650 before he crashed.

The checks, handed out at the annual victory dinner, ranged from Shaw's award down to the $510 won by Swanson.

Jimmy Snyder of Chicago, who finished close behind Shaw in the classic, won $15,687.50 and a belt buckle, given each year by Joel Thorne, owner of Snyder's car, for the fastest qualifying time.

Prizes for others in the first ten were: Cliff Bergere of Hollywood, Calif., $7,062.50; Ted Horn of Los Angeles, $4,475; Babe Stapp of Los Angeles, $3,800; George Barringer of Houston, Tex., $2,612.50; Thorne, of New Rochelle, N. ### Mediators Suspend Mine Conferences In Harlan District

Harlan, Ky., May 31 (AP)—Federal and state conciliators stepped out of contract negotiations between Harlan soft coal operators and the United Mine Workers (C.I.O.) today with the announcement conferences had been suspended indefinitely.

John L. Conner, labor department conciliator, left for Charleston, W. Va. He said conferences were subject to recall by either side.

Today's three-hour conference, which ended with no statement of progress made, climaxed a week of efforts by Conner and Emmett Durrett, state conciliator, to reconcile the views of union leaders and operators on contract differences.

The Harlan County Coal Operators' association, controlling 42 mines, opposes a contract embracing the "union shop" clause included in plans signed by operators in every other major field in the nation since the April 1 general shutdown.

George E. Ward, association secretary, said half the association mines now were operating without contracts. Several non-member operators have signed "union shop" agreements, which preclude, after a stipulated period, the hiring of non-U. M. W. miners not employed at the time the contract is signed.

Camera Finds Body Of Trapped Miner

Toluca, Ill., May 31 (AP)—A picture taken with a camera lowered to the bottom of a 421-foot mine shaft tonight located the body of Dominick Zalesano, 77, who had been missing since May 18.

Members of Zalesano's family, who had feared he might have fallen into the abandoned shaft, had been denied permission to explore it by state mine officials who said it was filled with dangerous gases.

Two neighbors, Frank Gerado, 24, and his brother, Jack, 27, amateur photographers, lowered a camera and flashgun to within eight feet of the bottom of the shaft and took a picture. The prints showed the body of Zalesano, a retired miner.

It was undecided when an attempt would be made to recover the body.

Australia Jittery; Looks To U. S. For Diplomatic Backing

BY ANDRUE BERDING
Washington, May 31 (AP)—Anxious Australia is expected to file a formal request within a few weeks for the opening of full diplomatic relations between herself and the United States as oriental clouds shadow her future in the Pacific.

Australia lies uneasily in the war-torn, war-threatened Far East. The ambitious Japan is showing toward the Asiatic continent have alarmed the 7,000,000 Australians—all the more so because they fear that in the next war—if it comes—the British fleet will be tied up in Europe and unable to defend them.

Hence they must rely on themselves and hence, too, their eyes turn toward the United States.

Australia now is represented in Washington by a diplomatic officer attached to the British embassy. But this is not enough. She wants a full-fledged legation, with a minister in charge and several secretaries. Moreover, she wants an American legation in Canberra. Well, Barkis is willin'. When the request comes from Australia, the state department will accept it. Recently S. M. Bruce, formerly Australian prime-minister and now high commissioner in London, visited Washington, mentioned the idea of a legation and saw it given cordial welcome.

It is Australia that is taking the initiative. This is partly because of protocol, which means diplomatic "hoyle." When it comes to open diplomatic relations, the smaller nation does the asking. But the principal reason that the request is coming from Canberra is that the Australians genuinely want a direct diplomatic connection with the United States.

Ireland and two British dominions, Canada and the Union of South Africa, already have duly accredited representatives here presiding over legations. Australia thus will join a British family in Washington.

Governor Milks Cow On Lawn Of Capitol

Lansing, May 31 (AP)—Governor Dickinson partially fulfilled his promise to milk a cow on the capitol lawn today but Della, the much-advertised partner in the program, did not appear.

Michigan State college officials explained that they feared Della would be a bit frisky for such a formal occasion and substituted Michigan Miss Ormsby, a Holstein capable of delivering 94 pounds of milk a day.

The governor picked Miss Helen Cawood, Port Huron sophomore, from a co-ed "guard of honor" and instructed her in the milking process.

The ceremony marked June as National Milk Month.

Body With Weights Attached Found In Marquette Harbor

Marquette, Mich., May 31 (AP)—The body of Eben A. Ames, 52, was removed from the harbor today by coast guards who were called after Ames' hat was found near Spear's merchandise dock. Two heavy pieces of iron were attached to one ankle and both wrists were bandaged, indicating, coroner Marvin P. Fassbender said, that Ames apparently failed in a previous attempt to commit suicide.

The wrists had been slashed with a sharp instrument, but the cuts were not deep enough to sever arteries. Coroner Fassbender said condition of the body indicated it had been in the water since Sunday. Ames was last seen late Saturday night.

sciousness because of burns. "I'm sure it was a leaky main."

Floor Forms "Slide"

The force of the blast blew out large sections of wall and buckled the second floor so the flooring, sloping toward the ground, formed a perfect "slide" for pupils on the upper story. This factor probably helped cut down casualties, observers said.

"The children slid out of there like it was a toboggan slide," said U. L. Light, school superintendent, who described the blast as "terrific." It blew a blackboard across a street.

Some were rescued from debris. One mother, Mrs. Aldena Johnson, ran screaming from her home across the street and pulled her six-year-old daughter Arletta from under a desk, found she was not seriously injured.

Mothers Frantic

The three were immediately under the basement explosion. There was a small fire in the basement but firemen quickly quenched it.

Residents who rushed to the eight-room white building recalled the 1937 explosion in a New London, Tex., school, which killed 237 children and teachers, but their fears were soon allayed.

The state department of industrial relations dispatched two investigators here. Nelson Hovey, assistant director of the department, said he was informed a broken gas main released gas in the building.

Fire Chief Claude Wiltwer declared he believed the explosion was caused by natural gas.

Miss Mable Miller, a teacher, suffered a broken leg as she was buried under a piano, and another teacher, Miss Albertina Mills, was reported in a serious condition with her back possibly fractured.

The building, formerly a residence, was impressed into service last fall for 100 first-to-fifth grade pupils while Central grade school is being rebuilt.

Last Day Today

As doctors proceeded from victim to victim, they found that Roy Clemens had suffered internal injuries. The pupil's condition was described as "only fair."

Miss Miller, told that three of her pupils might die, said "it's marvelous that there weren't more than that."

"I don't understand why some of us were not killed. I certainly was very much buried—under a piano."

Tomorrow was to have been the last day of school, except for a brief return Friday for report cards. Most of the children's parents are industrial workers.

An uninjured girl, seven-year-old Thelma Barkov, described the blast like this:

"A great big crash fell down and I jumped out the window."

Attaches at Citizens' hospital and Harberton clinic said the four adults and 27 of the children, several seriously injured, would remain in the hospitals at least overnight. The others were released after treatment.

Miss Ruth Chamberlain, principal, was in her office next door when the explosion occurred.

"It seemed as if the partition just divided in the middle. The floor buckled up and the walls fell out," she said.

"It was just as if they were shooting the shots when they slid down to the outside."

Superintendent Light said "there's only one thing that caused this—gas."

"I don't think anyone was to blame. It looks to me as if some fellows left a main open."

he said. "According to our mutual assistance agreement we must help guard her frontiers. Our attitude is serious. We will defend those frontiers as firmly as our own. It is time to understand that all patience has a limit."

Molotov spoke for 70 minutes. Diplomats who had crowded the galleries withdrew afterward to consider the effect of his speech, which, in its rejection of the British proposals, had startled many.

The supreme Soviet itself vigorously applauded Molotov and voted unanimously a resolution approving Russia's foreign policy as he had outlined it.

Litvinov was among the deputies, sitting in a fifth row seat on the floor of the house.

Molotov optimized the foreign situation as follows:

Italy and Germany are in a mood to brag about their successes, while France and Britain on the other hand have been trying to minimize these "by paying public opinion by making believe nothing has happened."

The Soviet position differs from both of these, Molotov said:

"The Soviet union is beyond suspicion of sympathy with aggressors, but it wants the facts given to the public. We want peace, but we must remember Stalin's warning about pulling chestnuts out of the fire."

Molotov said Russia was lending aid to China. He recalled Stalin's words to the party congress in March about aiding victims of aggression and said of China: "We are carrying out his words with deeds."

He also touched on the question of the Aaland Islands, which guard Russia's outlet to the Baltic sea. The League of Nations council adjourned on May 27 without passing on a Finnish-Swedish proposal to re-fortify the islands, to which Russia had objected. Molotov today referred to Finland's refusal to give information as to the purpose and extent of the proposed fortifications.

Among appointments announced during the night session of the supreme Soviet was elevation of a woman, Madame R. S. Zemliakha, to the post of a vice premier. She is the first woman ever to hold that position here.

Molotov's wife, Paulina Zhemchuzhina, was appointed commissar of the fish industry some weeks ago.

The ancients believed that the dew which accumulated upon the plant known as St. John's Wort, during the night preceding St. John's Day, possessed healing powers.

Survivors Of Squalus Tragedy Helping Raise Craft With 26 Shipmates Bodies

Portsmouth, N. H., May 31 (AP)—Thirteen survivors of the sunken submarine Squalus worked aboard the salvage ship Falcon with their rescuers tonight to aid in raising the craft that holds entombed the bodies of 26 of their shipmates.

Navy officials said their tasks would not take them into the 240-foot depths in which the Squalus lay.

Most of them were seamen, signmen and machinists and they were assigned to the rescue ship to relieve members of her deck and below-decks crews.

A coast guard picket boat took the thirteen of the Squalus' 33 survivors from Portsmouth navy yard to the salvage scene, 15 miles offshore. None of them commented on the orders to aid in raising their ship.

Research and salvage were carried on side by side as operations were pressed to take every advantage of unusually fine diving conditions.

While divers attached air hoses to two of the forward dry compartments to relieve the 109-pound pressure on the craft's hull and bulkheads, technicians carried out experiments they believed solved much of the problem of keeping a continuous flow of un-

Workers Alliance Signs First Lady As Rally Speaker

Washington, May 31 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has accepted, it was learned today, an invitation to take part in a "national right-to-work congress" opening here June 3 under the sponsorship of the Workers Alliance.

Aides of Mrs. Roosevelt said she would attend for a short time, and probably would say a few words. An announcement of the Alliance, an organization of relief recipients and unemployed, listed her as a featured speaker. Other speakers listed were Tom Mooney, Mayor Edward J. Kelly of Chicago and Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The Alliance said it expected 1,500 delegates to attend the week-long meeting to arouse support for a $60-a-month old age pension and a bill to appropriate $2,250,000,000 for work relief in the 1939-40 fiscal year.

Three Killed In Automobile Accidents Over Memorial Day

SEVEN INJURED IN SMASHUPS

Rockford Irving and John Burgos Died When Hit By Cars

Delta county witnessed one of its most disastrous Memorial Day week-ends in many years, four persons being killed and 11 seriously injured in automobile accidents and a drowning. At least one of the injured persons still is in a critical condition at a local hospital.

The dead are: John Servis, Pine Ridge; Rockford Irving, Danforth; Miss Mary Johnson of Chicago; and John Burgos, 67, Cor-

INQUEST HELD
A coroner's jury conducted an investigation into the death of Rockford Irving at the city hall yesterday afternoon and returned a verdict of "no cause for action" against Mr. O'Donnell, driver of the car involved in the fatal accident.

nell, Miss Johnson was drowned in the Escanaba river Monday while the rest were killed in three auto accidents in the vicinity of Escanaba. Michael O'Leary of Salamanca, N. Y., who was involved in the accident in which Servis was killed, is in critical condition.

Irving was killed at 2:10 yesterday morning when struck by a car driven by Dan O'Donnell, 321 South 14th street, at Stephenson and Third streets north.

Servis was killed and seven persons, including O'Leary, were badly hurt when cars driven by the two men collided at the corner of Ludington and Twenty-Third streets about 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Six other occupants of the two cars were taken to the hospital.

The body of Mr. Servis is remaining in state at the Boyce Funeral Home chapel until the hour of the funeral which will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church. Rev. Fr. Edward Leary, O.F.M., will officiate at the requiem high mass. Burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Irving Rites Friday
Rockford Irving was born in Ford River, September 20, 1888, and had been employed as foreman of the C. & N. W. tie plant for the past twenty-two years.

Surviving are his wife, the former Clara Wamberg, and the following children, Wallace, Mrs. Oscar West, Hubert, Lucille, Albert, Charles and Harold, all at home; two sisters, Mrs. Fred Welserst and Mrs. Oscar Anderson, Escanaba; and one brother, Melvin of Ontonagon.

The body was taken to the Allo Funeral Home to be prepared for burial and is remaining there in state. Services will be held at the funeral home chapel Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. Albert Lund of Bethany Lutheran church officiating, and burial will be in Lakeview cemetery.

Killed Near Paper Mill

The body of Burgos, who was killed about 10 o'clock Tuesday night when he was struck by a car driven by Percy Clouse of Groos, was taken to the Murphy Funeral Home. Services will be held today and burial will be in Lakeview cemetery. The accident occurred on highway 426 on the Groos hill between the paper mill and Flat Rock. Burgos was born in Buenos Aires, March 19, 1871, and had lived in a cabin near Cornell for a number of years. He had no known relatives.

O'Leary Unchanged
The condition of Michael O'Leary of Salamanca, N. Y., seriously injured in the Memorial Day traffic accident which cost the life of John Servis of Pine Ridge, was reported unchanged yesterday at St. Francis hospital.

O'Leary is suffering from cuts on the face, body injuries and severe shock.

The condition of other victims of the accident, a collision of the O'Leary and Servis cars at the intersection of Ludington and 23rd streets, is improved and they probably will be able to leave the hospital within a short time.

Four persons, two from Racine, Wis., and two from Pontiac, were seriously injured Saturday morning when their cars collided at the intersection of Washington avenue and highway UB-2-41. All four are recovering from their injuries.

DOINGS ABOARD SHIP RELATED

Views of German People Presented By Press Correspondent

BY STANLEY ST. LOUIS
About 50,000 Europeans—At the time this article is being written the Atlantic ocean is as placid as Lake Michigan on a quiet summer evening. Throughout the entire voyage the weather has been extremely mild and the sea calm. The ship is proceeding exactly on schedule and if fog conditions are not experienced Chorgou should be reached on time.

Yesterday a chance was given to view an increasingly rare sight. A full-rigged, three masted schooner passed us within range of clear vision. The ship was flying the French flag and was bound for the fishing banks off the coast of New Foundland. She carried three jibs, fore, main and mizzen sail and fore and main topsails. For some unknown reason the mizzen topsail was not set. In the course of the trip we have passed several steamers, but these did not occasion any where near the interest shown this ship of a by-gone day.

Later in the season these trans-Atlantic liners are taken over by American tourists making their annual trek to Europe. However, at present, the passenger list consists mainly of Germans and German-Americans. Out of the one thousand passengers aboard at least ninety five per cent are of German extraction. The meals served, language spoken, the flag the ship flies and her port of registry are all German. Under maritime law and by necessity of circumstances, figuratively speaking, the passengers are on German soil from the moment the gang plank is crossed.

A routine account of the ship's accommodations, personnel and cuisine can be had by reading ordinary travel literature. What is of far greater interest in the attitude of passengers and crew towards the very few Americans aboard.

Courteous Treatment
It does not take the average American long to have many of his pre-conceived ideas of the German people blasted out of existence.

In life aboard ship no hint is given of the rather strained foreign relations now existing between the United States and Germany. Your correspondent has received every possible courtesy, and has in turn discovered a people of warm heart and genuine hospitality.

After watching these music loving people, laugh, dance and burst into spontaneous group singing, reports of their government having to unleash propaganda on the fine art of enjoying a joke, seem ludicrous.

One of the most widespread American misconceptions is that the German people are not free to, in fact dare not, openly discuss their government and its leaders. Your correspondent participated in a very frank discussion of this nature, and sharp differences of opinion on matters pertaining to the third reich were spoken by Germans, without the least fear or hesitation.

Arguments on present day Germany are carried on in exactly the same manner as a group of American citizens discuss the new deal.

In considering this fact, which is in absolute variance with common reports, the reader should keep in mind that these people are enroute to Germany and will be in that country within a few days.

Many Germans Aboard
Loyal German citizens are plentiful aboard ship and if there were any dire consequences to be feared from offering criticism of the present German government these people would not run such a fool hardy risk.

There seems to be only one possible inference to be drawn from this true state of affairs. The reports often circulated in the United States that the German people are not free to express an opinion are not only grossly exaggerated but in many instances absolutely untrue.

The German labor front is another question on which apparently much confusion exists. Particularly is this true in the minds of members of organized labor in the United States. It is a popular impression that the labor front is a body of purely terroristic origin and forceful administration.

Aboard this vessel is a German-American who was steadily employed as a heat treator in a Cleveland machine tool plant. He was a member of the American Federation of Labor. His weekly salary average $42 for forty-five hours work. The man was making a good living in the United States and had been doing so for twelve years. Fully informed on existing conditions in Germany, and of his own free will, together with his family he is returning to his native country. Upon arrival he will resume the same type of work in a German plant and will become a member of the much-maligned labor front.

Friends Cheer Johnny Seymour At Hospital

BY HARRY LEDUC

Indianapolis—Johnny Seymour has been officially declared "out of danger." Hospitalization may end for Seymour within two weeks, though he will be what the doctors call an "out-patient" for a much longer period.

Seymour is the 40-year-old Detroit driver who was almost burned to death a week ago at the Speedway when his car crashed and went up in flames.

"Something happened to Johnny's mind that pulled him out of it," Dr. E. Rogers Smith, the track's chief surgeon said Monday. "He was badly burned, of course, but his attitude worried us more than his injuries. He didn't want to live. We gave him two blood transfusions, you know, but he didn't respond as much as we thought he should. He was delirious about having ruined a $60,000 race car. He felt he had ruined his one big opportunity to drive a car that had a chance for the money."

Something Happened
"Then, along about Wednesday, something happened. He perked up. He has been getting better every hour since. Maybe in another couple of weeks and he'll be out of the hospital."

What happened? The doctor didn't know.

Al Miller, of Detroit, who was driving in the 500-mile race, is a friend of Seymour.

"I idolized Johnny when I was young, back in the early twenties," said Al. "He was the greatest motorcycle racer in America. He won all the big races; set all the records."

"I've still got big pictures of him at home as a motorcycle racer. Then he broke his leg in a race in Honolulu and went in for auto racing. He feels awful about this wreck-up. I've been to the hospital every day, trying to cheer him up."

Doesn't Know Reason
No, Al couldn't think of anything that had happened to make Seymour want to live.

Johnny Nelson, a former race driver and now a member of the technical committee, is another close friend of Seymour. It was he who went through Seymour's burned clothing and removed his personal effects, including $49, the balance of what Seymour got after "hooking" his car (as they say here), so he could stay on at the Speedway until the race.

"Harry Miller has been up to see Seymour regularly. He sent flowers, he had a radio put in Johnny's room. He told Johnny not to worry about the car; that what occurred was as much his fault as it was Johnny's because he should have given Johnny more time to get used to its operation."

But Nelson didn't know of anything that happened "along about Wednesday" to make Seymour want to live.

"No visitors," read the sign on the door of Room 203 in the Methodist Hospital here Monday, but Johnny's special nurse came out of the room. He couldn't be seen, so the white-capped woman talked.

"About last Wednesday, it was," she said, "we got him to realize the people wanted him to live. Mr. Miller and his close friends among the racing boys were allowed in for a minute at a time. They made him realize things. Then a boyhood chum of his in Grosse Pointe, Mich., telephoned us that as soon as Johnny got out of the hospital he would take him to his summer cottage some place in Canada. Another friend of his in Detroit wrote him a letter of encouragement and promised to get him a job in a Detroit plant. He began to get better. He's going to be all right now. I'm sure."

Then the nurse hesitated, for newspapermen are hardly less

WORK PERMITS ARE CHANGED

Employment of Minors Is Regulated By New Statute

The Michigan Department of Public Instruction has agreed to cooperate with the United States Children's Bureau in carrying out the provisions of the minor's section of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, according to a bulletin received by Supt. John A. Lemmer.

This plan will necessitate some changes in the forms to be used and in the procedure of issuing permits.

The kinds of permits and certificates are the "Working Permit and Age Certificate" and the "Limited Vacation Permit and Age Certificate."

The Working Permit and Age Certificate will be issued to minors under 18 years of age who have left school for regular full-time employment. This form may also be issued to minors over 18 years of age when proof of age is required by employers.

The Limited Vacation Permit and Age Certificate will be issued to minors 14 and 15 years of age and to a minor 16 years of age who is subject to compulsory school attendance. This certificate will permit a minor to be employed during the summer vacation of the public schools or in the school term during hours when schools are not in session. Additional details may be procured from Supt. Lemmer.

than anathema in hospitals. "Does he know your name?" she asked. He did.

"Then I think it may be good for him if you go in for just a minute."

Seymour, propped in bed, was not slightly. Facial burns had prevented shaving. Gauze swathed both hands and arms to the shoulders. A sheet covered the rest of his gauze-wrapped form. But Johnny was cheerful.

"It's swell of you to come," he said. "I didn't know I had so many friends."

Exchanges had been brief when the nurse moved toward the door. The minute was up.

Out in the hall, she smiled when told that the doctor had said something had happened that had made Johnny want to live.

"Friends," she said. Seymour is a former Escanaba resident.

Joseph Deloria, Sr., Receives Pension

NEW BITE PROTECTION

Children as well as grown-ups can go about their usual outdoor activities without fear of the hordes of mosquitoes prevalent these days, if they are sprayed with Ace insecticide, the product may be sprayed on the body or on the finest of materials without danger of harm to either. In the scene above, Ace is giving the folks the full benefit of the great outdoors.

Ace Insecticide Proves Popular With Outers

Chemical experts are turning the guns of their genius on the current mosquito plague with devastating results to the buzzing pests. In fact, things have reached the point where a mosquito can no longer go about the business of boring into humanity with total abandon. He must first stop, look and sniff, in search of mosquito repellent bedecking the person of his intended victim, and the records show that if he discovers his goal forearmed, he moves to more attractive fields without further argument.

Outstanding among the popular repellents this year is Ace Insecticide, sold at Lauerma's exclusively. Its effectiveness in putting a "hands off" or, to be exact, "stingers off" sign on those who use it, is becoming widely recognized, and the company has been forced to speed production to supply the demand of those who prefer to indulge in fishing, swimming, picknicking, camping, gardening and other outdoor pleasures, minus the presence of mosquitoes.

Not restricted to the destruction of mosquitoes, Ace Insecticide also kills flies, ants, gnats, roaches and other similar insects. It is highly effective as an insect-destroying agent when sprayed on the under sides of leaves and flowers.

- ### Suggestions for your comfort
1. Spray your bedroom before retiring . . . give the screens a good dose. You'll have a comfortable night.
  2. Spray ACE on the youngsters' faces, hands and legs when they go out to play.
  3. Spray your porch or the area on the lawn where you wish to sit, and you'll forget this is a mosquito year.
  4. If you play golf, fish, ride horseback, use ACE before you go, and mosquitoes will give you a wide berth.
- ### Other Uses for ACE
1. Rids dogs and their pets of fleas; just spray it into their fur.
  2. Protects horses, cows and other animals from insect bites.
  3. Spray your plants; ACE will kill most plant pests. It has no injurious effects.
  4. Is used extensively where large outdoor gatherings, such as concerts and dances, are to be held. Spray the grass and shrubbery thoroughly, and mosquitoes hie away to other feeding grounds.

Bad Holiday Record DELTA county contributed more than its rightful share of fatal accidents to the traffic toll of the nation over the Memorial Day week-end.

At this writing, three are dead as a result of automobile accidents in the vicinity of Escanaba, and there is a possibility that a fourth may succumb to injuries received in one of the mishaps.

The recommendation made recently by the Escanaba safety commission that a traffic-actuated signal device be installed at the intersection of Ludington and Twenty-Third streets was proven to have merit, but unfortunately a fatal accident was required to emphasize the need.

Installation of the signal equipment is to be done jointly by the city and state highway department, and the recent accident should serve to hasten the work on it.

Subsidies Are Unwise THE public clamor for new industries in every community of America often has provided an opportunity for unscrupulous promoters to take some hard-earned cash from the pockets of many civic-minded citizens.

In various communities of the Upper Peninsula, for instance, can be found the records of where smooth-talking entrepreneurs have come in and misled the citizens out of thousands of dollars through the promotion of fly-by-night industries.

Public Management, organ of the International City Managers' association, also points out in a recent editorial that halting new industries with subsidies, as is often advocated now, is unsound practice for municipalities.

While a city may catch the industry, it is quite likely to get itself a string of new expenses and problems, the editorial continues.

Attention is called to the fact that many southern towns have found that industries which are not willing to pay their fair share of the cost of public services likewise are not willing to pay fair wages, and so add little to the community's wealth.

The editorial continues: "... It is fallacious to assume that the location of an industry, no matter what type, will necessarily prove to be a blessing to a city. If the industry depends upon cheap labor, is characterized by marked seasonal fluctuations in employment, and has a hard-fisted labor policy, its establishment may result in higher municipal costs for welfare, relief, police, and health services.

"Even if it is a high-grade industry with a large proportion of skilled labor, the increase in population attendant upon its establishment in the city may result in the immediate need for new school buildings and playgrounds and for costly extension of transportation and utility services. ... Even in the case of desirable industries there is little or no justification for using subsidies as bait to attract newcomers."

There is one question that is never explained satisfactorily. Why should a communities give free rent, utility service and tax exemptions to questionable new industries when they exact full tribute from old and well-established concerns, who came in and started operations without asking subsidies?

Toys for the World THE American toy industry has for the first time achieved a position of leadership in providing the world's playthings.

Buyers recently assembled in New York for the annual Toy Fair confirmed this position; 36 came from Canada, six from South Africa, six from Holland, four from England, two from France, two from South America, and others from Denmark, Sweden and the Canal Zone.

Last year the dollar value of toys exported actually exceeded for the first time the value of toys imported, whereas in the past the United States usually imported far more. Germany is too busy making guns to bother to make toys, and boycotts by individuals against German and Japanese products have cut down their imports here.

Meanwhile, by ingenuity and quality, American makers have been surmounting their handicaps in the higher American cost of production. And it is hard to think of anything better to make and sell to the world than toys to bring joy to its children.

Out After Business THE average small town business man would not consider that a trade mart like Chicago would every worry about bringing more business to its busy community, but nevertheless the Windy City through its Association of Commerce is doing just that.

An immediate objective is the raising of $250,000 to advertise Chicago as a vacation center, but the association aims to go farther and recommend basic improvements in the city which will make it more attractive to residents and visitors. It is launching a series of forums or business clinics at which members will discuss such matters.

Four specific questions are to be put before the clinic groups, as follows:

1. What three or four major problems are now most deserving and in need of aggressive, united action by the business men of Chicago?

2. What can the Association of Commerce do that it is not now doing to help my business?

3. What new enterprises can be undertaken by the association to bring about an immediate improvement in the several major lines of business endeavor?

4. What can Chicago business men, banded together, do to bring about a "Greater Chicago" and a revival of the old Chicago "I will" spirit?

Upper Peninsula communities, who have chambers of commerce and similar civic promotion agencies, might profit by emulation of the Chicago plan. If it is worthwhile for Chicago to make an effort to open up new frontiers for business certainly it is an idea that deserves the consideration of others.

UNHAPPY REAFFIRMATION (Boston Evening Transcript)

The President's speech to the gathered average businessmen of the American Retail Federation is an unhappy reaffirmation that, however woefully the spending policies of the government may have failed of their object in the past, they shall be carried on relentlessly in the future, for no sounder reason than that the administration is at a loss to see any other alternative to lavish expenditures save in the widespread privation among the millions unemployed. But to admit this, with the vigor and the self-righteousness with which the President does it, will only serve to accentuate the high dubiousness of the course Washington has pursued since 1933.

Have the billions expended through federal pump-priming during the intervening six years brought business back to normal so that it could, upon its own resources, take up the enormous slack of idle men? If not, what assurance is there that future billions will accomplish what recent billions have failed to do? And at what point, precisely, shall we call a halt to the piling up of debt, which somebody some time must pay unless it is written off ingloriously—and disastrously—through the expedient of involuntary bankruptcy or wild inflation?

AROUND THE PENINSULA (Ironwood Globe)

One of the best human nature stories of the week came out of Menominee where Otto Miller resigned from the job of dog catcher and wrote a letter to the chief of police with this postscript, "Too much grief." He evidently is like the Missouri lawyer who argued to the jury in a dog case and concluded, "and when the last scene of all comes, and death takes the master in its embrace and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the graveside will the noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad but open in alert watchfulness, faithful and true even to death."

The most unusual school honor situation developed at Rockland where Katherine Kinney and Jerry Page were named valedictorians of the graduating high school class and no salutatorian was named. It was about all the school authorities could do since the two were tied for first place, said Bonner Crawford, superintendent of schools. Well, at least it was the fairest way out of a tight place.

The unexpected death of Circuit Judge John G. Stone of Houghton must have ruffled the court reporter of the Houghton Mining Gazette. One of the last acts of the jurist before he was taken sick was to sentence a man to a term in the branch state prison at Marquette. In reporting the sentence, the Gazette used the wrong name and promptly apologized, of course.

The St. Mary's Falls canal at Sault Ste. Marie is the busiest canal on earth. It handles more freight annually than the Panama, Suez and Kell canals combined. Large ore and grain freighters, some of them more than 600 feet long, are lifted or lowered 20 feet within a few minutes in the locks. It is no wonder that Sault Ste. Marie folks boast that the locks, one of the largest engineering projects of its kind in the world, are perhaps the most interesting of all things to see in the Peninsula.

Manistique hopes to break into print aplenty between now and July 22, 23 and 24, the dates of its first annual Blueberry Festival. Dr. E. L. Schatzman is general chairman of the festival committee and says, "Schoolcraft county is first in the Peninsula in blueberry production, and there is a real opportunity for a noteworthy festival with plenty of high jinks and pageantry." Manistique might take a tip from Sturgeon Bay, Wis., where cherry pies are featured during the cherry season. Wat's much better than a good blueberry pie?

The desire of some Crystal Falls residents to annex Crystal Falls township is probably actuated by the thought of the great increase in tax money that would result. And if tentative mine values fixed in townships become permanent, there will be all the more reason. While mine values in the city run to only about $384,000, those in the township run to slightly more than $711,000. Tentative values in the township this year show an increase of about $25,000, which isn't much but means more than $1,000 additional in taxes.

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent

London—Every day in some section of London the screaming banshee wail of sirens can be heard above the din of the great city. Every night the country-like quiet of the London residential district is shattered by the throb-throb of airplane propellers.

These are signs that John Bull's sons in the Royal Air Force and the Territorial Anti-Aircraft units are on guard. No chances are being taken on Nazi Germany making a sudden onslaught on a totally defenseless and unprepared metropolis.

The British have a very keen recollection of what their former allies and now friends of Germany—the Japs—did back in 1904. The little yellow men—Hitler's "honorary Aryans"—caught the Russians napping. One night they sneaked into a Russian harbor and torpedoed a kooky part of the Russian Asiatic fleet. The Russians then knew they were really at war with Japan.

There is in governmental circles in London a very lively apprehension that the Nazis might seek to turn a similar trick. The first thing England would know of a war with Germany would be German bombers dropping their death loads on London.

—JITTERED SO LONG THEY'RE "SEEING THINGS"—

There have been several scares already. As in all cases of extreme and prolonged tension, people see ghosts. Not long ago a friend of mine, and Air Raid Warden, was called up in the night and told to come on to headquarters. The Germans were coming. The "Germans" probably were hefty lads in the Royal Air Force doing their nightly air prowls over the city.

Last September, if war had come, the chances are that London would have been terrifically punished. The government is better prepared now. During the seven months that have elapsed, the production of airplanes has greatly increased and there are many more trained pilots in the air force. Also at points in and around London there are probably many more anti-aircraft guns than there were in September.

—TOWN STRAFING WORKS BOTH WAYS—

Another point that is hardly ever mentioned here is that, in a war with England and France on one side and Germany and Italy on the other, the totalitarians would not have a monopoly on the bombing of towns.

The talk is always that German planes would have a much shorter hop from German airdromes to London and Manchester than English planes would have to Berlin and Munich. But that is not the whole story.

English and French planes, hopping off from behind Metz and Strasbourg, would have an easy jump to Stuttgart, Mannheim, Coblenz, Dusseldorf, Cologne, Essen and the whole all-important industrial region of the Ruhr and Rhine where so much of Germany's war material is manufactured. If German bombers could break through English defenses, it is highly probable that English bombers could break through German defenses.

southern part of the Peninsula it is not generally known that Ontonagon is one of the oldest communities in the Peninsula. The anniversary will be marked with a homecoming celebration which, if it is carried out along the lines that Ontonagon usually does, will be well worth attending.

The smartest little craft to ply waters boundary to the Peninsula this year will be a Tumliaren, now being prepared for launching at the Henning Larsen boat works in Menominee. Tumliaren is Swedish and the name of the type of boat—not the name of the craft. It will have a 12 foot boom for the mainsail and the mast will be 40 feet high. The craft is 26 1/2 feet long and has a beam of 6 1/2 feet. Its draught will be about 4 1/2 feet. Larsen, who is a Dane, had a hard time figuring out the plans. Instructions came in the Swedish language, but he managed to have them translated.

THE REICHS WEST WALL (Cincinnati Enquirer)

With the maximum publicity, hoping the world will notice and be impressed, Reichsfuehrer Hitler has completed a thorough personal inspection of the new line of fortifications which from the frontier of Holland to that of Switzerland. The ostentation with which Herr Hitler made his survey suggests that he is satisfied with Germany's "west wall," and wants the world to believe it is impregnable.

Curiously, it is not bothering the French and British peoples. It is not a threat, being strictly defensive in function. But it is bothering the high command of the French and British armies. For their newer mission is to make war on Germany if necessary to prevent a direct invasion of the Rhineland, they are forced to think in terms of an offensive through Northern Italy, meanwhile establishing a blockade of the Fascist powers in the Baltic and the Mediterranean.

Defensive though it is, the new line of forts along the Rhine could be the weapon of aggression, blocking an Anglo-French attack long enough perhaps to allow German troops to move into the Rumanian oil fields or the plain of Poland.

BEFORE ADJOURNMENT (New York Times)

It is a vice of legislative bodies to spend the earlier days and weeks of sessions in squabbles and trivialities and the latter periods in doing hastily and badly things that should have been done with care and deliberation. The cure is in the hands of the voters, who can usually tell what faction, what leaders and what members of the rank and file are mainly responsible.

The Rev. Frank H. Cookson, pastor of the First Methodist church, left yesterday to participate in the anniversary service there.

Gauff brothers, who yesterday opened to the public for the first time their new store on Ludington street, the People's drug store, received a large number of visitors throughout the day.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—Haagy Carmichael is the most enigmatic tunesmith of Tin Pan Alley, although he is the composer of some of the nation's brightest melodies. He has battled 1,000 in the song world, for no tune of his has proven a dud or failure. And yet he is an unfamiliar figure along Song Row and Swing Alley.

SHUN'S BROADWAY'S BRIGHT LIGHTS

It is doubtful if many would recognize him at Lindy's, through which flow all Tin Pan Alley's harmonies and discords. Carmichael shuns the bright lights, and discourages a lionizing retinue. Perhaps it is his Indiana background that makes him shy of the Big City and the big city slickers.

He has been a melodist all his life, with plenty of the usual ups and downs. His mother, an amateur musician, inspired him to play by ear at home in Bloomington, Ind., where he still resides when he has dusted off his routine duties in Hollywood or New York.

He wrote his first song at Indiana University. "Riverboat Shuffle," it was, in the negro idiom and though that was a long time ago, almost any band still has that tune at the tip of its tongue. But it did not earn any profits for Carmichael until a couple of years ago.

He was studying law and after receiving the coveted sheepskin, waited patiently for clients in vain, then went out and organized a three-piece band.

As a musical signature for this modest venture, he wrote "Washington Blues," which Paul Whiteman later popularized. But that, too, failed to add to Carmichael's financial stature. So, forsaking his tiny orchestra, he came to New York, knocked on the music publishers' doors, was turned away, and secured a clerkship in a bank.

NO LUCK AS LAWYER

In that stifling atmosphere, he toiled a year and dreamed his migratory career. He went to Florida, hung out a shingle but no law clients turned up. He packed up and returned to Indiana, brooding. Finally, he decided upon a westward trek.

Armed with the mms. of both "Stardust" and "Lazybones," he hitch-hiked to Hollywood. The movie moguls would have none of him—nor his songs. And by uneasy stages he fled back to Manhattan and got an insignificant job as a music arranger. He toiled at this arduous task for two years, nursing his wounds quietly when he was away from the office.

One day a publisher accidentally heard "Stardust" and risked its publication. It was an overnight sensation, of course. And the name of the inconspicuous arranger soon echoed all through Tin Pan Alley's corridors.

The fame of "Stardust" set the Hollywood wheels in motion and offers rapidly sped to Carmichael.

And this time he went west with a contract and cheerful spirits. Out there in the film colony, and in Bloomington, he has been writing all those hit tunes that the country periodically hums. He is rich now.

It is not enough to preach the gospel to the poor, but the underlying causes that contribute to poverty and injustice ought to be corrected in the spirit of Christ.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—The date is supposed to be a White House secret, but barring unexpected developments the President will leave on his West Coast-Alaska junket June 14.

All arrangements for the trip—route, traveling schedule—have been completed. The latter calls for fast traveling with few stops, chief ones being in San Francisco to visit the Golden Gate Fair, and in Seattle to see his daughter and son-in-law, John and Anna Boettiger, plus their new son, Johnny.

At Seattle, Roosevelt will board the Cruiser Houston for a 10 or 12-day round trip visit to Alaska. This will enable him to return to Washington before the adjournment of Congress, fixed tentatively for about July 15.

The President is anxious to get his western trip out of the way as soon as possible, in order to be back on the job in case the European cauldron starts boiling again in midsummer. It will be recalled that last year Hitler began his Sudeten pressure just before the harvest season, and it is expected that the drive against Danzig and the Polish Corridor will start in real earnest by midsummer.

—TOWNSEND ACT—

There are several remarkable things in the Townsend bill on which the House will vote this week, one being the fabulous language of the second paragraph on page six, which reads as follows: "Throughout the Act the present tense includes the past and future tenses; and the future, the present. The masculine gender includes the feminine and neuter. The singular number includes the plural and the plural the singular. 'Shall' means 'must' and is mandatory. 'May' is permissive."

Nobody seems to know quite what this means.

—GENERAL MOSELEY—

General George Van Horn Moseley, now featured as the embryo fascist leader of the United States, is remembered in the Army for two things, first the manner in which he got promoted to the top, second a riot gun which he developed.

The gun was concocted during the days of the Hoover depression when Moseley saw bonus armies and breadline riots behind almost every bush. He placed a mobile field gun on a specially constructed truck, costing the Army $15,000, and planned to use it against rioters despite the fact that the gun shot four miles, would make mince-meat of a streetful of people, and was so powerful that the rush of air from the projectile invariably knocked the glass from the truck's windshield.

Moseley was one of the youngest major generals in the Army, and the manner in which he got that way was politics. A bill was being passed in Congress preventing any lieutenant colonel from being promoted to the rank of brigadier general without first having been a colonel.

Moseley was then a lieutenant colonel. But a friendly Congressman slipped an exemption into the bill so that it did not apply to lieutenant colonels with 22 years of service. It was no accident that Moseley and Hugh Drum were the only lieutenant colonels having 22 years of service, so they, of all the other officers in the Army, were permitted to skip a grade.

—"FRONT MONEY" RACKET—

The Securities and Exchange Commission is quietly setting the stage for one of the biggest swindler clean-ups ever launched.

Object of the sensational drive will be to smash the "front money" racket, which has misled millions from small businessmen in the last few years. Over 100 operators have been marked for the first prosecutions, which will soon be started simultaneously all over the country.

Preparations for the racket drive have been under way secretly for more than a year through the SEC's nine regional offices in New York, Boston, Atlanta, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver, Fort Worth, San Francisco and Seattle, with the aid of postal and state authorities.

The "front money" racket is an outgrowth of depression finance. It results from the fact that banks are reluctant to take chances and make loans, so small businessmen find themselves hard put to obtain needed funds. The RFC has power to aid, but has been almost as tight-fisted as the banks.

Result is that smooth-talking swindlers have used this to their own crooked ends. They have approached hard-pressed small businessmen, claiming to have powerful brokerage connections and influence with the SEC, and offer to float stock issues for an advance payment. These sums have been as low as $250 or as high as $10,000.

Some of the swindlers offer their services in advertisements. Others seek victims through the mails. Sometimes the racketeers even offer to take a block of stock, but when the showdown comes the businessman discovers that the agreement is so worded as to be useless.

THE FIGHTING IS GOOD

There's plenty to make you look downward, But there's some that are not staring groundward— With chins hoisted high and a gleam in the eye

They're pressing the fight to the end of the night. They say it's got to come morning. They're shouting while other are mourning.

They face toward the dawn. With strength most gone. They muster their faith and press on. And they sing. As they tackle the thing; If tomorrow must carry a day or an hour They manage to gather the courage and power.

To work on and patiently wait— If the end of the road is a yard or a mile They're not looking gloomy—they smile!

DAIRY PLANT WILL REOPEN

Creamery At Bark River Is Taken Over By Pauly & Pauly

Bark River, Mich.—Pauly & Pauly, well known cheese dealers, tomorrow will reopen the Bark River Creamery which has been closed the past several months.

Pauly & Pauly have been established in this territory the past twenty years, with a cheese warehouse and cold storage plant in Escanaba, a branch office at Manistique, and offices in fourteen other cities of Wisconsin and Michigan.

Simon McDermott, an experienced cheese maker, who formerly worked at the local plant, has been engaged as cheese maker by the new management.

The local plant has been operated at intervals since the death of the late Phil Labre, who built and successfully operated the plant until his death. Farmers of this district were reluctant at the closing of the plant and will welcome the news of its reopening. Thousands of pounds of milk are daily shipped from this district to neighboring towns, as the dairy herds have increased each year since the local creamery was first established.

YOUTH HOSTELS DRAW TOURISTS

About Fifty Established In Middle West States

Northfield, Mass.—With good week ends and vacation days ahead, youth hostels are beginning to draw the army of young people who zigzag across the country about this time of year, on foot and astride bikes, seeing the country on $1 a day.

In sweaters and shorts and ski jackets they are rolling up to New England farmhouses—15 of them accredited in the New England chain now—for their 25-cent overnight accommodations in a homey atmosphere, but what pleases Monroe Smith, National Director of the American Youth Hostels, Inc., more is that memberships are rolling in at the rate of 100 a day, now totaling 5,200, and by July, he said today, will reach a national total certainly of 10,000.

And here's real news! Hostellers who plan to spend vacation days not on sunny stretches of Vermont roads or shaded lanes in New Hampshire valleys but pedaling toward New York and the World's Fair, will find the route sprinkled with hostels and several on Long Island which can be reached conveniently by ferries from the Connecticut mainland.

Information Bureau

For the convenience of these members, Mr. Smith said, an information bureau is open at 32 West 58th Street, New York City. In addition to posting hostels, this bureau will give out the names of private families where the young visitors, may obtain beds for 25 cents a night, mainly in the homes of parents of other hostellers who live in that section.

One hosteler who has made the trip gives this advice to companions who may be planning to ride down from New England points: "Do not go near the Boston Post Road. It is too congested and dangerous for cyclists. Many small roads lead into Bridgeport. Try them. My advice is to plan your trips so that you may keep off the main roads. This will please your families and enable you to see the best country."

Hostels—parents who may not know are advised—are located in eight regions of the United States and in 20 States from California to Maine. The usual hostel is a farmhouse where the farmer and his wife act as houseparents, taking care of the young hikers or bikers who stop for the night. The rules are few: you must have the A. Y. H. pass ($1 for under 21, $2 for those 21 or over) and sheet sleeping sack, knife, fork, plate and spoon, besides the 25 cents for overnight and 5 cents or 10 cents fuel and light charge.

New England Hostels

The 75 youth hostels in New England are located as far north as Jeffersonville, Vt., as far east as Portland, Maine, and south to Cape Cod and Long Island. One could easily spend a whole summer visiting hostels, climbing mountains, following the Long Trail or the Appalachian Trail, and exploring rivers and lakes. In any one region there are infinite possibilities, but New England is developed the best for youth hostel travel. The first American hostel was established in Northfield, in 1934, and the first experimental loop set up in 1935. So it is quite natural for this region to have the most hostels.

Down in North Carolina, right next to the Great Smoky National Park, is a loop of hostels where a visitor could easily spend two weeks, with a day or two hiking around each hostel. In Pennsylvania there are about 30 hostels and a dozen or two in the Southeast region.

There are 50 hostels in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Wisconsin. Soon members will be able to go up into the beautiful lake region of Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri are starting hostels, too. Those who live in the western half of the United States have 30 or so hostels to choose from; in the Denver area there are three, around San Francisco about 15 and up on Puget Sound, Washington, about the same number.

As for hostels in Canada, a number are located around Vancouver, British Columbia, and others in Alberta and other provinces east to Quebec. The total is 20 or 30.

The Regional Secretary in Quebec plans to have this region connected with New England hostels by early summer. For information on this change, members are referred to Miss Ruth V. Lister, 125 Cornwall Avenue, Town of Mount Royal, Quebec, Canada.

NO ACTION ON TRAIN

Marquette—The Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway is making an investigation to determine whether passenger train service can be restored to Calumet, but a solution to the problem has not been found, C. E. Urbahn, South Shore general manager, said here Monday.

Passenger service in and out of Calumet was curtailed two weeks ago today when a cave-in occurred on the South Shore line about 2 1/2 miles southeast of Calumet, damaging 3,300 feet of track. The cave-in was at the site of the old Osoola mine.

It was necessary to discontinue passenger service to Calumet, Mr. Urbahn said. "To restore the service, we would have to build around the damaged track for about three-quarters of a mile. We can't fill in the spot where the cave-in occurred, nor can we go over it."

SUGAR GROUP BOOSTS DRIVE

Beet Growers Benefited By Campaign for Markets

The Farmer and Manufacturers Beet Sugar Association pledged its support today to the "Michigan Days" campaign initiated to promote consumption of Michigan products. The association will cooperate fully in all efforts to obtain wider distribution of the state's products, it was announced.

Arthur A. Schupp, executive secretary of the association, called the chain store plan to stimulate consumption of Michigan products "highly commendable" and declared that it "should receive the wholehearted support of Michigan agriculture and industry."

Commenting on the benefits derived by farmers from such campaigns, Mr. Schupp pointed out that beet sugar, which is distributed through thousands of chain stores in Michigan and throughout the country, was the most profitable crop in the Wolverine State last year, averaging $66.88 per acre. The only comparable crop, he pointed out, was potatoes, valued at $66 per acre. Schupp said that beet sugar production in Michigan amounted to 240,223,000 pounds last year, giving 17,554 farmers a cash return of $9,166,528. He further pointed out that an additional 17,000 persons found jobs in the beet sugar industry.

Founded in 1898 when the first Michigan beet sugar factory was opened in Bay City, the industry has been an important factor in the state's economy since that time. Michigan processors and growers proved the quality of their product in 1900 by winning the Gold Medal at the Paris Exposition.

Since then, production has increased steadily. Last year, for instance, nearly two million dollars was spent in the state for transportation of beets, sugar and supplies; 155,287 tons of coal and 6,546,454 gallons of fuel oil were used by the industry. In addition, thousands of dollars were spent for miscellaneous supplies, repairs, and new buildings as well as factory equipment.

"The quality of Michigan-made beet sugar is already widely known," Schupp said, "but its further promotion in the 'Michigan Days' campaign should stimulate consumption and thus contribute to the general prosperity of the industry and the state."

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT The wife who earns a pay check should watch out that she doesn't slip up on some of the tricks that home women use to please. Even if it does make her get up fifteen minutes earlier, she ought to see that breakfast is a meal and not a snatch-and-run affair. If she leaves after her husband she ought to go to the front door with him for a goodbye kiss. That is much more feminine than staying at the table or shouting good-bye to him while she put on her "face". If it is possible, she ought to beat him home (that may mean marketing by telephone) and act as pleased to see him as does the wife who has been home alone all day. Maybe her day went all wrong but if she is smart she will keep it to herself. At least until after she has shown some interest in his affairs. If he suggests a show, she ought to manage some enthusiasm. It's worse for her to say wearily, "I'd just as soon go if you want to", than to say flatly that she's too tired. She managed to do everything she had to do at the office, and if she is to make a go of her marriage, she can't stop exerting herself the minute she gets home. WORK MAY BE AN EXCUSE She has to watch that she doesn't become too absorbed in her own work to keep up with the details of his. Or too interested, when they are out socially, in putting herself across to boost him. Somehow she must see that his clothes are as well maintained as those of the man whose wife hasn't anything to do but sew on buttons. The great danger the working wife faces is that she can always excuse her neglect of her husband with, "but I just can't do every-

MARQUETTE TO GET SLEEPER

Pullman Service Placed On Run By C&NW Railway

Marquette goes back on the "main line" of the Chicago and North Western railway with resumption, on Friday, June 2, of through sleeper service between Chicago and Marquette.

When the first Pullman sleeper arrives there Friday morning at 8:20 Eastern Standard time, it will carry North Western railway officials who will be greeted at Negaunee by a reception committee representing the Marquette Chamber of Commerce, the city of Marquette and the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway, which is cooperating with the North Western in re-establishing a Chicago-Marquette service abandoned several years ago because the depression forced railroads to curtail passenger train operating schedules.

The sleeper which the North Western will operate on the Chicago-Marquette run is one of the most modern Pullman cars, streamlined and air-conditioned. When it arrives here Friday morning it will be "spotted" at the South Shore station and will be open for public inspection from 9 a. m. until shortly before it leaves for Chicago at 7:10 p. m., Eastern Standard time.

Coming to Marquette with the sleeper will be G. L. Helmstadter, of Chicago, the North Western's general passenger agent; F. B. Martin, of Green Bay, division freight and passenger agent, and G. Z. Flanders, of Escanaba, division superintendent.

At Negaunee the North Western officials will be met by C. E. Urbahn, general manager of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railway, and a party of Marquette men who will go to Negaunee in Mr. Urbahn's private car. In the party will be Phil Spear, Jr., president of the Marquette Chamber of Commerce; E. L. Pearce, Lane J. Horigan, S. C. Stern and Mayor Louis W. Biegler. At Negaunee Mr. Urbahn's private car will be coupled to the North Western sleeper and a "welcome North Western" breakfast will be served enroute to Marquette.

SOME PRE-CAMPAIGN THOUGHTS

Reading last week the various speeches on policy—that of the President, and the debate between Senators Vandenberg and Milton —leads one to think that the failure of American recovery is not being correctly or courageously analyzed in any political quarters.

A year ago our economy was in the depths of a severe depression or "recession" as we euphemistically called it. I think there is no question—it is now generally agreed—that this depression was due to a curtailment of Federal spending, plus other deflationary measures undertaken by the government. One must gather that the government itself had been listening to the opposition, which was painting large the menace of inflation.

The opposition and others also criticized at that time the tax on undistributed profits as punitive, and held it partially responsible for stagnation.

Since then the tax on undistributed profits has been reduced to a mere shadow. The government resumed deficit spending, undid its strictures on reserves, requirements and remonetized the previously sterilized gold, and production responded.

Now whether this was due to the credit policy, or the spending policy, or the taxation reform, the fact is that the recovery was of short duration.

In the first quarter of 1939 it was already hesitating. At the close of the quarter there was a sharp decline in stocks and there has been no notable "spring upturn" but a general sagging.

There is much evidence that the halts in our economic recovery are due to the disturbed international situation. The collapse in the market in March, 1938 accompanied the occupation of Austria; the break in September, 1938 was synonymous with the Czech crisis; the fall of Barcelona in January corresponded with another market break; and during the decline of March, 1939 Bohemia and Memel were being occupied.

That our economy in some measure, and possibly in considerable measure, is a reflection of deteriorated international relations seems indicated—and this in spite of the fact that our export trade has not relaxed but has maintained itself excellently, while financially we have been attracting European capital, and that capital has not been liquidated.

The facts do not speak well for all the criticisms of the Administration. The facts would seem to indicate that too great importance has been attached by the opposition to the surplus profits tax, that a drastic reduction of government investment and spending did, and would again, bring about another recession, and that the constant advice to the President to leave Europe alone and to mind our own business indicates that we do not always see just where our business is.

Had the President not made it very clearly known to the world that we were not disinterested in the shock after shock emanating from Germany, it is as nearly certain as anything can be that we would have had a whole succession of week-end coups. Certainly Poland was on the list, and the date has at least been postponed—undoubtedly due to the sudden rally of something like world solidarity.

If, now, the Morgenthau-Hanes tax reform program is accepted in substance by Congress and is not followed by a substantial increase in private investment, the opposition will be out on a limb. For what then—according to the opposition argument—will be hindering the twenty largest corporations, let us say, from expanding, reinvesting their cash holdings, which, in some corporations at least, are very large, and so creating new employment opportunities?

Opinion, which has been increasingly sympathetic to business, may undergo another of its shifts, be convinced that business has been complaining without having a constructive program to offer in place of the present one.

Abroad, in Great Britain and France, there is apprehension that the 1940 campaign will concentrate an unmeasured attack on the Administration's foreign policy. If it does, the dynamic expansionist states will certainly exploit it for all that it is worth, and the Hamilton Fishes will be worth a dozen Fritz Kuhns to them. It is even possible that they will mark time in anticipation of a Republican victory and use that moment to strike.

If they should, that would be most unfortunate for a new Republican administration, for it would be held responsible for a world catastrophe and would enter office with no possible chance of fulfilling a single one of its campaign promises, certainly not any promise to return to a more free economy! For the very attempt to keep out of war would entail a greater amount of government control than we have ever

SERIAL STORY DATE WITH DANGER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Mary Franklin warns Duke Martin to keep hands off Clem Shirley. After the French funeral she writes: "Has Janice French's secret been buried with her?"

CHAPTER XX

That night Clem Shirley was standing at the bar of the Dove with Jack Burden when Duke Martin walked in. He saw that Jack, half-drunk, was arguing with Clem.

Instead of speaking to them, the Duke silently pulled out a chair at a table in a far corner, quietly told the waiter to bring him a drink, then settled down to watch the pair at the bar, a dark look on his saturnine face.

Clem was drinking a highball. Her black hair was tumbling in careless curls about a defiant face and the strap of a scarlet evening gown had already slipped off one shoulder.

Her voice was high-pitched and reckless as she replied to Jack's pleading tones.

His face was flushed, his hair rumpled, and his dinner coat wrinkled. Half-drunk, he was making a desperate effort to hold her attention. Occasionally curious eyes strayed in their direction, but the crowd which frequented the tap room of the Dove was accustomed to scenes of this sort. As a rule it tolerated them with bored indifference and objected only when the principals grew noisy.

"You don't care a damn!" Jack's words, tense and deep, suddenly penetrated the haze of bar-room chatter.

A woman laughed shrilly. "He's off again. Why doesn't he come over here? She isn't the only girl in the world."

Another woman sitting at the same table tittered. "The idiot was going to marry her. She's thrown him over for Duke Martin. Caught in the mesh, I'd say."

The first woman sniffed. "She's more scatterbrained than I thought. Look where Janice French landed."

A fresh lot of people came in and their conversation was lost again in the babble of noisy tongues.

Jack steadied himself at the bar as he ordered another drink. His handsome face was drawn and in his blood-shot eyes was a harassed, desperate look.

"You're a silly little fool heading straight for the devil," he said. Then reaching for the glass the bartender handed him, he added, "And I'm going with you."

"Don't talk rot," she said sulkily. "I don't want you policing me. You don't own me." Her voice grew hysterical. "I don't see what I ever saw in you—such or had!

Governor Landon, I think, and other responsible Republican leaders realize this—realize that a wide open party split over foreign policy might be disastrous.

And from a domestic viewpoint it would also be unfortunate, because it could turn the campaign into an ideological fight of peculiar nastiness and danger.

The place for the opposition to concentrate is where this government is really weak—namely, in the acrimonious spirit of its attacks on business and in the administration of its reforms.

To attack spending or government investment per se will get us nowhere. But the manner of spending—the absence of adequate standards, criteria and long-range vision; the failure of government enterprises to set for themselves even the same standards that they require of business.

Business ought to appoint its own S. E. C. to investigate and publicize government malpractices—the introduction of partisan politics into fields from which common honesty demands that partisan politics be rigorously barred; the lack of consistency, rationality and planning throughout a system that presented itself as an experiment in planning; the evil effect of the agricultural program on the very classes that this government has set out to save.

For instance, upon the share-croppers in the South—here there is a field for meticulous investigation and careful reporting to the public which will bear fruit.

The continuous and undifferentiated attacks on business, the repeated and expensive "hearings" which actually reveal nothing, the shifts in policy which accompany each change in personnel, and the repeated changes in personnel; the chaos in labor relations, the tendency of the President to govern with a more or less anonymous set of advisers instead of with his responsible Cabinet; the succession of unexpected shocks—most notable among them the bill for reorganizing the Supreme Court and the fact that the Administration policy on this point has not changed—these are psychological factors which have contributed as much as any economic measures to the lag in recovery.

After all, a nation's production is only the sum of its employed energies. And it must be said of this Administration that although it has not taken the profits out of private enterprise, it has contributed to take the heart out of it. It has taken the fun out of it and the prestige out of it.

Indeed, the Administration's continual emphasis on the nefarious profit motive has blinded it to the profitfulness of the motives that enter into any creative activity.

a prig!" "A prig because I object to your going with Martin when you know he's a crook. A prig because I don't like the pretty drinks he concocts for little girls." His voice broke. "My God, Clem. Can't you see it's only because I love you that I'm talking this way?"

As Jack's words again rang out through the room, Martin left his table and walked slowly across to the bar.

"Sorry to interrupt," he drawled, "but I thought we had a date tonight, Clem."

Like a little slave, Clem put down her drink and turned to go with him.

Jack, white with anger, faced Martin. "You can't take my girl."

There was a flicker of amusement in the Duke's eyes. "She wants to go."

Jack's right fist clenched convulsively, then trembled. "Perhaps you would like my money as well." He reached in his pocket.

"I'll buy her back. How much is she worth?" He flung a roll of bills on the bar.

"You're acting like a fool, Burden. Put that money back in your pocket."

Spitting with rage, Jack struck out at Martin, fanning the air as the Duke side-stepped his fist.

Clem stepped between the two men, her eyes were cold and hostile. "I never want to see you again, Jack Burden," she cried. "You're—you're unspeakable!"

Martin caught her by the arm, his lowering face red and dark. "Come on, Clem." But before he could turn, Jack had swung again and this time he landed a neat one on Martin's chin.

The owner of the Dove reeled slightly. "Don't be such a sap," he warned, showing Jack into a chair. "Clear out and come back when you're sober."

"I'll clear out when I damned well get ready," shouted Jack.

The little group at the bar had everybody's attention. The head waiter rushed excitedly forward, a couple sitting near Martin and Jack moved to a far table and Nick came hurrying through the door.

"You louse," he cried, grabbing Jack by his shoulder. "So you thought you could strong arm the boss?"

With cold brutality Martin walked out. Clem followed him. People returned to their tables. The tap room again hummed with chatter.

"Take a drink to clear your head," Nick advised, nodding to the bartender to pour Jack a stiff one.

Feigning to reach for the drink, Jack swung at Nick's head instead, sending him spinning like a billiard ball among the tables. Before the crowd could grasp exactly what had happened, or before Nick could recover, Jack had drained the glass of whiskey, hurled it at the head of an advancing and menacing waiter and bolted for the door.

Still running, he bumped hard into Mary Franklin, just as she was stepping into the main entrance.

"Good heavens, Jack, but you're in a hurry!" she exclaimed irritably.

When he didn't stop to apologize she stared after him. He stood on the curb in front of his automobile, swaying unsteadily as he tried to unlock the car door.

Mary rushed toward him as he stumbled in.

"Jack," she cried, attempting to grab the car door. "What is the trouble?" He banged the car door shut. Mary was thrown backward on the pavement. His only reply was a screeching of the tires as he swung the car out into the middle of the street and careened wildly off.

Quickly picking herself up, Mary shouted at a taxi whirling by. Climbing excitedly in she called to the driver, "Follow that blue coupe."

The taxi man nodded. Jack's car was already turning up Third Avenue.

A shifting of the brakes threw Mary forward as her taxi jerked to a stop.

"Go on," she cried, "can't you see we're already losing track of that blue car?"

But the driver didn't answer. A policeman had thrust a grim face into the front of the taxi. "Where's the fire? Let's see your license."

"You can't stop this cab," Mary spoke sharply. "I'm on the Gazette." She reached in her bag. "Here is my police card." She tapped the driver on the shoulder excitedly. "Go on, every minute counts."

"Just a minute, sister. Just a minute." The officer held up a warning hand. "I ain't got no quarrel with you, but I will have if you keep this up. Show your police card to the commissioner, not me. This box was breaking the traffic laws and he's going to get a ticket or worse."

"You fool," cried Mary. "I'm on a story that the commissioner cares a lot about."

Michigan In Washington

By Esther Van Wagoner Tuft, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg's one-term idea must have been a surprise. To me, it recalled a most casual recent conversation I had with the senator while we were watching from his window the parade for the president of Nicaragua.

Justly he accused me at that time of reading his mail because I challenged him with the question: "If you think the country needs saving why don't you or some Republican, who is more American than Republican, go in on a one-term promise for a big new deal clean-up letting the chips fall where they may—even on some of the party patronage boys?"

Now it is obvious that the senator had been toying with the one-term idea. Only party leaders fully realize how the senator's friends make it for Vandenberg's friends to get the nomination for him when he declares himself in favor of "an administration for all Americans in which a pre-pledged, one-term president is manifestly free of all incentive but the job of saving America."

Naturally if the party leaders can succeed in upsetting the Democrats they want the political plums for the boys, and a candidate willing to keep the party in office by running for re-election if they so desire. It is easy for them to believe that an all-Republican administration would be one "for all Americans."

Some of Vandenberg's advisers wanted him to issue the statement sans the one-term idea—urging that he could spring that later to prolong the interest in his boom. But not the senator, who, having decided to clarify his 1940 intentions, wanted to have his complete say-so and have it over.

In July certain Coast Guard officials will travel along the shores of Michigan to spot the best place for the erection of a new Coast Guard station. The station, which will be an airplane base, has been authorized for the Great Lakes area with the exact location to be determined by the Coast Guard. Cheboygan has made a strong plea for consideration as has Sault Ste. Marie. Congressman Fred Bradley of Rogers City says:

Michigan Democrats have long complained that they do not get many of the better jobs in the federal government. In fact, Republicans always said they did not have their full quota when their party was in power.

A search through the departments (excluding such emergency agencies as PWA and WPA) unearthed only a lucky fifteen who hail from Michigan and who receive $5,000 or more salary from Uncle Sam.

COUNCIL NAMES TWO NEW MEN

Jackson and Hough Will Succeed Dahms and Abramson

Two new names were placed on the roster of the Manistique city council last night. The new councilmen are Clifford W. Jackson and Arthur Hough, appointed to succeed Harry Abramson and Frank Dahms, members elected in 1936 who have submitted their resignations.

The meeting of the council last night was a special one, called to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dahms, who asked to be relieved of his duties because of ill health. Then Abramson submitted his resignation, and it was accepted by the council. Abramson, mayor pro tem, member of the board of supervisors, and chairman of the board of review last year, said that he was forced to resign because of regulations in the WPA, where he is employed as a foreman.

The resignation of Dahms and Abramson removes the last of three councilmen elected in 1936. Frank Gierke, the other member, resigned to become Manistique postmaster, and was succeeded by Thomas Grimley. The two men appointed Wednesday will fill unexpired terms running to April, 1940.

Manistique Lions To Meet Tonight

LIGHT PLANT PROPOSED

Marquette—Construction of the Resemer municipal light plant may start July 18, according to a letter received by city officials and read at a special meeting of the council last night. The communication was from Ayres, Lewis, Norris and May, consulting engineers of Ann Arbor, engaged by the council.

July 18 is the earliest possible date construction could start. That is the end of the 60 day period after May 18 when work could start, set by the decree of the court filed April 28.

May 18 was the final date that an appeal could be filed by the Lake Superior District Power company from the decision rendered by the state court. The company did not appeal from the court's decision. The injunction suit to prevent construction of the plant brought by the company was decided in favor of the city by the supreme court.

The potato originated along the Pacific coast of South America and was introduced to Europe by the Spaniards.

Betting Even For Nova-Baer Heavyweight Fracas

EDGE ON AGE CONCEDED LOU

Californians See Crack At Title Ahead of Tonight's Bout

BY SID FEDER
New York, May 31. (AP)—Lured on by a shot at the heavyweight championship "big money," Max Baer, the reformed playboy, and Lou Nova, a determined young ex-collegian, fight it out for 15 rounds or less in Yankee stadium's ring tomorrow night.

Before a crowd expected to reach 30,000 to 40,000 and contribute to a gross gate of $100,000 or more, the two California "family men" climb into the ring at 9 p. m. (E.S.T.) at about even money in the betting.

The clash shapes up as one of the closest headline heavyweight fights on paper—in years. For each of the punch-tossers it is his most important fight.

Baer, serious in training and purpose for the first time, hopes to become the first man in boxing history to win back the heavyweight championship. He is confident he knock out his fellow-Californian in six rounds or less. Nova, who has skyrocketed to

BROADCAST AT 9 P. M.
New York, May 31. (AP)—The National Broadcasting company announced tonight the Max Baer-Lou Nova heavyweight fight tomorrow night would be televised direct from Yankee stadium by Station W2XBS.

It will be the first television of a regularly scheduled fight in the United States. The program will include the preliminary bouts starting about 8 p. m. (E.S.T.).

A round by round broadcast of the main bout will be carried by NBC's blue network at 9 p. m. (E.S.T.).

prominence in heavyweight circles in less than two years, is equally convinced he can get by Baer and then go on to take the title just as easily. "In fact," he says, "I will be disappointed if I don't kayo Maxie."

Since Promoter Jacobs has promised the victor a September shot at the winner of the June 28 title go between Joe Louis and Tony Galento, the principals in tomorrow night's tea party are playing for lots higher stakes than just a cut of the gate.

Started Too Late
For the first time in his colorful madcap whirl through the hectic world, Baer has convinced the boys of his new determination. The only question-mark now is whether his reformation has come too late.

This corner believes it has. From his six weeks of training routine at Ferndale, N. Y., Max has come with all his usual excellent physical equipment. He still has a physique finer than any other man in the ring. He still carries sleep-making medicine in his right hand and has added a hard left hook. But Maxie still likes to clown around the ring, and he'll walk in there tomorrow night on 30-year-old legs.

So this department believes that unless he can polish off the strong, young ex-footballer in half a dozen rounds or less—and that is doubtful—Max will lose—or rather, Maxie's legs will lose for him.

Nova, on the other hand, is a fast moving, sturdy blonde belter, definitely a difficult target for Maxie's roundhouse rights. He throws lots of punches, and likes to come in close and mix it, which doesn't argue well for Maxie's right-hand shots. Baer needs plenty of swinging room.

At his fantastic training base among the apes, elephants, lions and tigers at a Yogi center near Nyack, N. Y., Nova has given his sparring men plenty of practice in a fast left hand, a "cute" right hand chop and a body attack which won't please Maxie one little bit. And, on top of all that, his legs are six years younger than Baer's.

GALENTO GIVES LOOK
Asbury Park, N. J., May 31. (AP)—After Tony Galento "wins the heavyweight title" he may have to fight either Max Baer or Lou Nova, so he said today "I may as well take a look at them."

The look will be taken at the 15 round battle in Yankee stadium tomorrow night when the reformed-California playboy and the likeable Nova clash to see who gets to meet the champion in September.

So Tony will take another stiff drill tomorrow and then motor to New York with his manager Joe Jacobs to see the fight.

But that's the last "time out!" Tony will take, because his fight with Louis is just a month from tomorrow and the pride of Orange, N. J., has a strict training routine.

He took an hour's workout this afternoon and plans another tomorrow before heading for the Baer-Nova fight.

Concerning the argosy to New York, Tony said, scornfully, "I would rather remain down here and get the ocean breeze than go to New York (Asbury Park papers please copy) but after I win the title I will have to fight one of those bums so I may as well take a look at them."

SPILLING the DOPE
BY JOHNNY ENGLISH

ANOTHER RELAY CARNIVAL has passed into history... and an interesting one it was... from the flag raising to the last half mile relay, there was something of interest for everyone... the flag raising is always colorful with the band playing the national anthem... this year, relay managers took a page from the Olympics and had the athletes and officials parade half way around the track behind the band immediately following the flag raising... as each team went by the stands, a cheer went up from its followers... the track was in good shape but a strong wind from the south, blowing directly into the faces of the runners on the straightaway, held runners back... the fastest 100 yard field in the history of the Relays was unable to do much on time because of the strong wind.

City Rivals, Giants Are Taken By Brooklyn In 7-4 Thriller

New York, May 31 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers tightened their hold on fifth place in the National League today with a stirring 7-4 victory over their city rivals, the Giants today.

The victory, which came in the eighth inning, when they showed three runs across on four hits, gave them a 2-1 edge in the series.

Tied from the third inning, the Dodgers routed Hal Schumacher from the mound in the eighth with a four hit assault, good for three runs. John Judson's single scored Dolph Camilli, who had singled, and sent Manager Leo Durocher to third. Durocher's bounder had forced Mungo at second. Then Al Todd, batting for Chuck Stalback, doubled past Mel Ott in right center, scoring Durocher and Hudson.

The Dodgers started the game with a three run attack, but the Giants managed to tie it up at 4-4 in the third with a three-hit salvo, one of them a homer by Mel Ott.

EAGLES BEATEN BY MANISTIQUE

Errors Aid Visitors In 10-6 Victory to Open Season

Manistique made its bow in Escanaba on Tuesday and defeated the Escanaba Eagles 10 to 6 in the opening game of the local baseball season. Errors on the part of the Eagles contributed largely to the scoring of the Manistique team. Manager Norman Brown brought his full roster of 18 players with him from Manistique, and after the game the Eagles and Manistique players enjoyed a luncheon to celebrate the opening of the Rainbow League.

Ethiopian Clowns To Play Escanaba

Arrangements are being made by Orville Welland, manager of the Escanaba baseball team, for a game with the famous Ethiopian Clowns at Escanaba on Saturday afternoon, June 3. The Clowns, who are already known to Escanaba as diamond fans, have an open date, and yesterday accepted by wire the terms of the Escanaba manager for an appearance against the local nine.

Further details regarding the hour of the game are expected today by Mr. Welland.

Montague Over 14-Club Limit

John Montague shovels out of sand trap because galleries like to see feats that made "Mysterious" Montague national figure in Hollywood. But the erstwhile mystery man of screen colony would rather be known as just a good golfer and, as such, attempted to qualify in Chicago district for United States Open in Philadelphia, June 8-9-10.

Injured Driver's Condition 'Fair'

Indianapolis, May 31 (AP)—The condition of Bob Swanson, Los Angeles driver injured in a three-car crash in the 500-mile speedway race, was described as "fair" at St. Vincent's hospital today.

Swanson was thrown from his car as it collided with the speedster of Floyd Robert, Van Nuys, Calif. Roberts died soon after.

Chet Miller of Detroit, driver of the third car, also was injured, but his condition was reported "improved" today.

Planning Pistol Shoot For Tonight

Gladstone, May 31—The Gladstone Pistol and Rifle club is planning on resumption of activity after a short lay-off. It was announced last night. The club will hold a pistol shoot this evening at 7 o'clock.

NEWSOM GETS CHANCE TODAY

Boston Makes Three-Day Stand In Detroit; Yankees Next

Detroit, May 31. (AP)—Big Buck Newsom will attempt to prove that he can pitch winning ball for a winning club when he takes the mound tomorrow for the Detroit Tigers against the Boston Red Sox at Briggs Stadium.

Some citizens have been prating that Newsom can't pitch winning ball for a club that is winning games, and the news got to Buck's ears. He went to Manager Del Baker and pointed out that the only way he could win ball games was to start them and Baker gave him the starting assignment.

Newsom will be after his third victory as a Tiger hurler. He defeated the Red Sox in Boston and trounced the St. Louis Browns. He pitched good ball against Washington, too, but his teammates marked up three errors in the first inning and the handicap was too much for Newsom to overcome.

Baker said that Pinky Higgins would play third base in tomorrow's opener against the Sox. Higgins has not recovered fully from a leg injury that benched him early in the season, but he has been hitting at such a pace that Baker is willing to take a chance with Higgins' injured limb.

Barney McCosky, Baker said, probably would be back at his old position in center field. McCosky wrenched his back recently and has been benched.

Boston will arrive here minus the services of Woodrow Rich, the rookie who turned back the Tigers once this year. Rich was left home with an ailing arm suffered during the Boston-Washington game last Friday.

The game will be the first of an invasion by eastern forces. After a three-day stand here, Boston will move out to make room for the league-leading New York Yankees, who will be followed by the Philadelphia Athletics and the Washington Senators in that order. Each team is scheduled to make a three-day appearance.

Robert Grove or Elden Auker are slated to twirl for Boston in the opener.

NO STEAM LEFT IN ROWE'S ARM

Great Detroit Pitcher Using His Head and His Heart

Detroit, May 31. (AP)—The question of how good is Schoolboy Rowe this year is being answered by the Schoolboy himself as baseball rounds into the long summer stretch.

There was loud ringing of the town hall bells when the Schoolboy pitched Detroit to an easy victory over Cleveland a few weeks back. In that game he had his old control, his old speed. The ease with which he turned back the Indians brought predictions that he was back in form—that with Rowe in there taking his turn the Tigers would be up battling Detroit to two pennants and a world's championship—apparently as easy as whipping a bowl of gelatin.

As Rowe went down to his fourth defeat they discovered he has developed a new pitching technic. He worked much slower. His pitching was deliberate. There was little display of the once-famed fire ball.

The experts saw another change in Rowe's style. He was using his body, instead of his arm, to get power behind his throws. The result was an unbalanced position after the delivery.

The Chicago team caught on quickly. Joe Kappel pushed a bunt to Rowe's left. The Schoolboy, off balance, couldn't get started after the ball and it went for a hit. Gee Walker did the same thing, but Gehring was able to recover in time to throw to Greenberg for the out.

And that's the Schoolboy as he stands today. His arm apparently gone, he's pitching with his head—and his heart.

Doings About Capitol

Lansing—The policy of the 1939 State Fair at Detroit, as revealed by action just taken by the fair's executive committee, will be to emphasize Michigan's agricultural and industrial resources.

From a statement just released by Elmer A. Beamer, state commissioner of agriculture, it is apparent that the Hollywood movie-radio glamour which has characterized the 1937 and 1938 enterprises may be greatly subdued, if not missing altogether.

Arrangements are under way to have light harness racing, use of the grand stand for outdoor entertainment both afternoon and evening, enlarged livestock and farm machinery displays, and a comprehensive program for the 53,000 club members of 4-H clubs.

Assisting Dr. Linwood Snow as manager will be managers of three of the most successful fairs in Michigan. They are Robert Buckley, Huron County Fair at Bad Axe; Harry Kelly, Hillsdale county fair at Hillsdale, and Lester H. Schrader, St. Joseph county fair at Centerville.

The committee is continuing the policy of not permitting the sale of intoxicants of any kind on the grounds, while all fair amusements will be carefully checked to assure its suitability for family enjoyment.

An Issue for 1940?

The idea of June find the five-month session of the state legislature a matter of public record.

Observers are carefully analyzing the results in an effort to detect possible issues for 1940. Those law-makers who hoped in vain for a "clean-up" of the Republican party from convention control by Messrs. Frank McKay and Edward Barnard insist that the legislature's failure to curb so-called boss abuse has created a major issue for the next campaign.

From Rep. Elton R. Eaton of Plymouth, captain of the anti-boss element, comes this dire warning: "Unless the Republican party cleans house in the next primary, no one can rightly predict what might happen in the next state election."

The budget-balancing efforts of the present administration, other observers feel, may overshadow the reform issue. This may be true especially if public opinion continues to disapprove, as Gallup surveys continue to reveal, the vast spending spurges at Washington.

It is too early to forecast accurately what will be the effects in 1940 of what the present legislature has done or has not done. An administration's record does not depend wholly on a five-month legislative record.

News Writers Puzzled

The attitude of Governor Dickinson to the McKay investigation and the Barnard convention bill has puzzled metropolitan newspaper correspondents at Lansing.

W. A. Markland, writer for the Detroit News, says that Michigan's new governor "is an extremely irritating puzzle to a lot of people." This comment was inspired chiefly by the governor's veto, as recommended by Emerson R. Boyles, legal adviser first retained by the late Governor Fitzgerald, of a bill which would have legalized the continuation of the McKay probe.

Although prior to the veto the governor was visited by two members of the legislative investigating committee who urged him to sign it, he later said that he had not read the bill and evidenced surprise that the veto would close an inquiry into McKay's bond fees of $105,000.

Frank Morris, Detroit Times correspondent, intimated openly the same day that the governor's "pipe line" was in the direction of Grand Rapids, home of Mr. McKay.

Guy H. Jenkins, head of the Booth newspapers' bureau at the statehouse, declared: "When the curtain is rung on the 1939 Republican legislature the record probably will disclose the enactment of more selfish, sniping, noisy-minority group laws than any in the history of the state. . . . Pressure groups have been more overbearing than ever before."

Jenkins took the House of Representatives to task for indulging in what he called "petty politics" . . . . Blasting "supervisor-poor superintendent patronage hounds, he opined: "The people as usual take it on the chin, but they make targets of their chins when they elect so many pseudo statesmen."

No Liquor Legislation

One of the curious results of the legislative session was the failure to enact one liquor control bill.

With the driest chief executive in many, many years at the helm of the administration, liquor interests were apprehensive earlier in the year that drastic measures would be passed to correct some of the persistent, ever-present "liquor evils."

Because the governor was an officer of the National Anti-Saloon league and president of the state league, it had been taken for granted that something would be attempted before adjournment May 26 to tighten the state's control if not to abolish out right the system of state-owned liquor stores, as recommended by Fitzgerald.

On May 14, two weeks before adjournment, Governor Dickinson took the churches to task. He said: "I never was in the legislature or around the capitol during a legislative session when there was as little encouragement from outside on such lines as during this session. . . . I regret to say that the churches, as such, have given slight expression."

It was a tardy appeal for dry to "lobby" at Lansing. Organized effort, he asserted would have resulted in passage of laws to restrict advertising of alcoholic beverages including beer and wines as proposed in Senate bill 208 which died in committee.

Civil Service, Vandenberg

Will enactment of the new civil service law, called a "ripper" law by its critics—react unfavorably on the administration?

James Thomson, chairman of the state republican central committee, is confident that the people back home were rebellious over the cost of Murphy's civil service act. Payrolls during the first 18 months totaled $93,537.

One cannot help but observe that 1940 will be a presidential campaign year, one in which it is entirely possible that the Republican nominee will be Michigan's senior United States senator, Arthur H. Vandenberg. In a gigantic tussle with the New Deal, the party would be occupied chiefly with national issues. In such a situation all legislatively-made issues—bossism, civil service, and so on—would go easily into total eclipse, so the theory goes.

Vandenberg's triumph in defeating the Florida ship canal project brought a nicely timed declaration by Michigan administration leaders that Vandenberg "should be drafted" and that "Michigan will ask his nomination." The rising stock of the Michigan senator was noted by the Chicago Tribune which reported a few days ago that "sentiment among local politicians indicate that Vandenberg is the candidate being most favorably considered by Republicans in many states, not only in the West but in the East."

On the Vandenberg bandwagon is Howard C. Lawrence, of Grand Rapids, former state treasurer, who is credited with having proposed the administration's statement and who, incidentally, is being mentioned in the press as a potential candidate for either the United States senator or for the governorship.

Lawrence is being backed by the McKay-Welsh alliance in the furniture city. His boom was hailed by McKay's own weekly newspaper, "The Michigan Times".
