

BRITAIN TO MATCH NAZI PROPAGANDA

KING GREETED BY CONGRESS, IS KEPT BUSY

UNION JACK FLOATS IN NEW YORK FOR TODAY

BY RICHARD L. TURNER Washington, June 9 (AP)—With two reverent little ceremonies, George of England honored today an enemy of old and a recent and fallen comrade-in-arms.

Hyde Park Agog Hyde Park, N. Y., June 9 (AP)—Inhabitants of this flag-decked home town of President Roosevelt, accustomed to the coming and going of the great and near great, waited agog tonight for tomorrow's arrival of King George and Queen Elizabeth.

British king decorated the marble slab at Arlington, beneath which lies one who fell in the Great war and whose identity none could determine, America's Unknown Soldier.

Schedule Crowded George's queen, Elizabeth, demure in white silk and a white picture hat, Mrs. Roosevelt in pink and black and the president in cool white linen, stood by with heads bowed.

But there were intervals in a day which was hardly devoted to solemnity. It was, in fact, another day of bustling activity and ceremonial procedure.

For the program included a reception at the British embassy, at which 800 resident Englishmen wildly cheered their sovereigns, while they received some 250 veterans of the British armed forces, proudly wearing their decorations over clothing well tailored in some cases, shabby and threadbare in others.

Monarchs Accommodate Crowd At the capital rounds their majesties met members of the house and senate. Congressmen from cornfield and city bowed stiffly from the hips, murmuring "your majesties," while the king, looking beyond them, could see additional reminders of the war which freed America of British rule—pictures of the surrender of Cornwallis and Burgoyne.

Outside the capitol, the wives and friends of the members of house and senate were seated in some 3,500 straight-backed little yellow chairs. They cheered and applauded as the sovereigns mounted the high central flight of

Mrs. Rubens Is Released By Soviets

Moscow, June 9 (AP)—Swift Soviet court action today brought a promise of freedom tomorrow for Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens, American imprisoned in Russia for a year and a half, but produced no answer to her only question—"Can you tell me anything about my husband?"

Admitting she entered the Soviet Union in 1937 with a false passport, the brunette Mrs. Rubens coolly puffed a cigaret while awaiting a sentence of 18 months which she already had served except for one day. The trial, announced only shortly before it began, lasted 40 minutes.

She was disconcerted only when the court declined to give her information as to the whereabouts of her husband who disappeared from a Moscow hotel shortly before she was arrested December 9, 1937.

Her husband has not been heard of since, despite efforts of the United States embassy and the state department in Washington to get to the bottom of the mysterious case.

The judge's response to Mrs. Rubens' request for information about her husband was only "No, not yet."

When asked if she had anything to say before sentence was passed, Mrs. Rubens declared in English:

"A false passport was found on me. I have no defense. It was not known whether she would be turned over to American officials for possible prosecution on charges of falsifying a passport.

Both Mrs. Rubens and her husband are under indictment in the United States on charges of obtaining fraudulent passports.

FERRIES BLAME TUG FOR CRASH

St. Ignace Unseaworthy, Damage $100,000; 9 Persons Hurt

Mackinac City, Mich., June 9 (AP)—Confusion caused by a tug sounding its fog horn was cited today as a contributing factor in the collision of two state-operated ferries in the Straits of Mackinac yesterday in which nine persons suffered injuries.

L. B. Reed, finance director of the state highway department, who investigated the accident for the state, said the masters of both ferries had been absolved of negligence. The ferries, the St. Ignace and the Cheboygan, crashed together in a heavy fog shortly before noon yesterday.

J. B. Gallick, U. S. Bureau of Navigation inspector, estimated the damage to the St. Ignace at $100,000 and pronounced her unseaworthy. Damage to the Cheboygan was estimated at $100,000. The St. Ignace probably will be repaired at the Cheboygan, Mich. docks.

The state highway department said today that two more persons had been added to the injury list, bringing the total to nine. These were Mrs. W. J. Johnston, 66, of Detroit, who suffered face lacerations and a minor concussion, and Fred Hizer, a fireman of the St. Ignace, who was believed to have been suffering only from shock, was found today to have a fractured knee.

The highway department said eight automobiles aboard the St. Ignace were damaged, but that both vehicles and passengers were covered by insurance.

Dupont Stock Report 'Discrepancies' Sifted

Washington, June 9 (AP)—A securities commission announcement today that it was inquiring into alleged "discrepancies" in Pierre S. Du Pont's reports concerning short transactions in Du Pont common stock brought from the Wilmington business man today a statement that "mine is not a short account in the usual form."

The "discrepancies," the SEC said, were disclosed when Du Pont, who is chairman of the company's board, filed corrections on previous reports he had made to the SEC concerning his transactions.

The SEC announcement said: "The official summary of transactions and holdings of officers, directors and principal company stockholders published today includes corrections submitted by Pierre S. Du Pont, chairman of the board of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours and company, of 29 previous reports of his direct holdings in the common stock of that company since November, 1934."

The commission stated that whereas original reports submitted showed substantial net long positions, the corrected reports showed that "throughout the period he owned substantially more shares than he owned."

Ships Sail the Mighty Missouri Again

First vessels leave Omaha, Neb., for St. Louis, Mo., as Missouri river is opened for commercial traffic between two cities for first time in 70 years. Inset, Mayor McCall, left, of Council Bluffs, Ia., directly across river from Omaha, and Mayor Butler of Omaha watch ceremonies. It took army engineers 12 years, required $140,000,000 of federal funds to dig 25-foot deep channel in river.

REFUGEES SEEK PLACE TO LIVE

Jews Appeal to Leaders in Berlin for Help in Finding Homes

Berlin, June 9 (AP)—East Prussian Jews and thousands of others scattered throughout Germany who have been ordered to leave or go to concentration camps appealed to their leaders in Berlin tonight for help in finding homes outside this nation.

The Jewish leaders, who have been working at top speed for months in efforts to get visas, said they were practically powerless to act except in a small number of instances.

Transports of Polish Jews, more than 10,000 of whom have been given written notices to depart within time limits of from a few hours to four weeks, continued today to be organized by the police.

The most harried of the Polish Jews are those Poland says she will not accept because they have lived so long abroad.

Some of these have been told they must get out of Germany or be interned.

Numerous instances have come to light of Jews without a country who have tried and failed to cross "the green border," as the smuggling route across the frontier is called.

Polish Jews had hoped that Poland would take reprisals in Poland against Germans, but so far there has been no indication here that any such action has been started.

Included in the present new Nazi effort to get rid of the remaining Jews are those who were arrested last fall and released on promises to emigrate.

Raising Of Thetis Delayed 3 Weeks

Birkenhead, England, June 9 (AP)—The necessity of manufacturing new nine-inch salvage cables will delay for at least another three weeks efforts to raise the submarine Thetis.

Free City of Danzig, June 9 (AP)—Albert Forster, Nazi district leader, told a rally of Danzig and East Prussia storm troopers tonight that Danzig hoped for annexation by Germany "in the near future."

"We all feel that the fate of this city has advanced to a stage which we hope will lead to a good end in the near future," he said.

On the platform beside Forster was Victor Lutze, Adolf Hitler's chief of staff of the brown-shirted SA (storm troops) corps, who came for a two-day sport festival which tonight's demonstration opened.

In closing his speech Forster directed his words to Lutze, saying: "Our greetings to the Fuehrer, and tell him we are awaiting his command."

CZECH WOMAN HELD AS NAZI POLICE KILLER

PUNITIVE MEASURES TAKEN; VILLAGE IS FINED $20,000

Prague, June 9 (AP)—A young woman of Czech nationality was reported in unofficial quarters tonight to be in police custody in connection with the slaying of a German police sergeant at Kladno which brought about a $20,000 fine and severe punitive measures against that community.

Gendarmerie headquarters at that mining and industrial center neither denied nor confirmed the report, but there was a sudden burst of activity on the part of the officers. Dozens of gendarmes hurried from the headquarters in little groups.

Reason Not Clear The woman was said to be a nurse. At a hospital at which she was employed she was described as "a great patriot." It was admitted that she was being questioned.

The report was that she had voluntarily given herself up to the authorities.

It came after German officials levied the $20,000 crown ($20,000) fine on the Kladno district of Bohemia-Moravia and ordered that anyone withholding information of the slaying be shot upon discovery.

Whether the motive of the shooting lay in the growing tension between German authorities and the Czech population or whether personal reasons were at the bottom of the incident had not been established.

Deadline Advanced German police authorities, who all day long had been conducting practically a door-to-door search for evidence as to identity of the slayer, obviously sought a political motive.

Stern punitive measures already imposed by the office of the Reich protector of Bohemia-Moravia, Baron Konstantin von Neurath, were tightened, and it was announced further measures would follow tomorrow night if the slaying has not by then been solved.

Unrest and uncertainty crept over the remnants of the Czechoslovak republic in the wake of the incident. The police sergeant, Wilhelm Kniest, was found dead on a street in Kladno, an industrial town, early Thursday morning.

Some quarters thought the end of the slight measure of self-government the Czechs now have might be in sight.

This morning at 8 p. m. (2 p. m., E. S. T.) deadline was set by German authorities for Czechs to solve the killing. Tonight the deadline was advanced 24 hours.

There were reports that full martial law or mass arrests might follow expiration of the deadline without discovery of the slayers.

Robber With Bomb Raids Kansas Bank

Altamont, Kas., June 9 (AP)—A dynamite-bomb robber raided a southeastern Kansas bank today, the second such occurrence in three months. The man entered the Labette County State Bank a few minutes before closing time, displayed a gun and threatened to "blow up the place" with a bomb strapped around his waist. He escaped with several hundred dollars, scattering half dollars in the street as he ran.

Strike Call Ignored At Fisher Body Plant

Flint, Mich., June 9 (AP)—Fisher body plant No. 2 local of the American Federation of Labor's newly adopted section of the United Automobile Workers voted today to ignore a strike call and consider return to the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Bruce Manley, spokesman for the local's officers, said the membership voted 10 to 1 against joining the strike.

"The men are displeased," he said. "They were not consulted about the strike and no vote was taken. Fisher body No. 2 local is solidly UAW-AFL but we are not recognizing this strike because there is no chance in the world to win."

Manley said the local would meet Tuesday to discuss return to the UAW-CIO.

The strike, called Thursday at General Motors plants in Flint and Saginaw, brought sporadic fist fighting today between rival

Found Dead

Beverly Hills, Calif., June 9 (AP)—Owen Moore, former matinee idol and first husband of Mary Pickford, was found dead in his apartment today. He was 52.

Dr. Karl Lewis, called after the discovery of the actor's body by his wife, Mrs. Kathryn Perry Moore, said death might have been caused by a hemorrhage, and that there were spots of blood on his face.

He lay, fully clothed, on a bed when Mrs. Moore returned home from work at a motion picture studio. She said he had been brooding recently because of his inability to find work in pictures.

He married Mary Pickford, then 17, January 17, 1911, in Jersey City, N. J. Six years later they separated and March 2, 1920, Miss Pickford obtained a divorce in Minden, Nev.

GOVERNOR SIGNS DEFICIENCY BILL

Thirty Measures Passed By 1939 Legislature Made Into Laws

Lansing, June 9 (AP)—Governor Dickinson today placed his signature on 30 bills passed by the present legislature, among them the $728,000 deficiency appropriation measure for which funds are claimed to be lacking.

The deficiency bill includes $750,000 for welfare relief for the remainder of the current fiscal year, $295,000 for county tuberculosis sanatoria, $592,000 for medical treatment for afflicted children and $134,000 for medical treatment of crippled children.

Other bills signed by the governor: Recognize the period from sunset Friday to sunset Saturday as the seventh day of the week for persons who conscientiously believe it to be so.

Make water bills a lien against property. Create a new state boxing commission, to be known as the state athletic board of control, with broader powers to regulate boxing and wrestling.

Permit dismantling of buildings and walls at the old state prison of southern Michigan and use of the materials by other institutions.

Authorize a referendum in St. Clair county to determine whether the county should forbid Sunday hunting save for waterfowl on the St. Clair river and Lake St. Clair.

Clarify the enabling act to permit completion of a hospital building program under WPA auspices.

Dickinson vetoed a bill that would permit the use of buildings within incorporated cities, owned or partly owned by townships, for township purposes.

Capital Highlights

(By The Associated Press) King George and Queen Elizabeth were received by congress and visited the tomb of George Washington and that of the Unknown Soldier in their final day at the capitol.

The securities commission announced it was inquiring into alleged "discrepancies" in Pierre S. Du Pont's reports of his transactions in Du Pont common stock.

The agriculture department forecast a winter wheat crop of 623,431,000 bushels and a spring crop of 145,000,000 to 170,000,000 bushels. Last year's winter crop was 586,637,000, and the spring crop was 244,164,000.

The house debated but failed to reach the final vote on legislation to amend the social security act.

ENGLAND USES GERMAN RADIO FOR CAMPAIGN

Berlin 'Distrusts' Conciliatory Speeches

(By The Associated Press) London, June 9—Gestures toward Germany by both Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax were described by sources close to the government tonight as the beginning of a vigorous British counter-propaganda campaign to offset Nazi charges of "encirclement."

The purpose of statements by the prime minister and foreign secretary in parliament yesterday that Britain was willing to discuss Germany's claims for economic "living room" was not immediately clear and gave rise in some quarters to suspicion that the government might be turning back toward its discarded policy of appeasement.

"Peace By Resistance" Official sources, however, were quick to deny any shift from what they called the new policy of "peace by resistance."

The parliamentary correspondent of Reuters, British news agency, which has close connections with the government, also said flatly that the intention of the statements was "to answer encirclement propaganda."

As indications that the prime minister and his foreign secretary were aiming their words primarily at the ears of the German public, officials pointed to these facts:

1. Chamberlain expressed hope that the British broadcasting corporation would carry his state-of-the-union broadcast in German language broadcasts, inaugurated a few months ago to get around Nazi censors and to present the British point of view in Germany.

2. Lord Halifax said that one of the chief dangers in the present situation was that "the German people as a whole should drift to the conclusion that Britain had abandoned all hope to reach an understanding with Germany."

3. The BBC broadcast Chamberlain's statement in full and broadcast the lengthier statement of the foreign secretary almost in full.

Laborites Not Satisfied The German press apparently regarded the declarations as propaganda for Berlin editorial comment was unanimous in assailing them as "British maneuvers to distract attention," as "old tricks to intrigue against the axis," and as "fine words mixed with insults."

In official Nazi quarters it was said that Germany "distrusts" the conciliatory speeches as "a diplomatic maneuver connected with the hard sledging apparent in British negotiations with Russia." Officials said the government regarded them as "an effort to bring pressure on Moscow."

British laborites, however, were not fully satisfied that the statements did not indicate a possible return to the so-called "Munich policy" and indicated they would ask for amplification in parliament next week.

Official sources, meanwhile, pointed to developments both here and in Paris as evidence that extension of the British-French front was being pursued.

The foreign affairs committee of the British cabinet this afternoon approved a new formula which the government hoped would overcome Moscow's objections to the projected British-French-Russian mutual assistance agreement.

Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador to Paris, flew to London with France's suggestions and was to confer with William Strang before Strang, named as special envoy, flies to Moscow to try to hasten a conclusion to the long-drawn negotiations.

LAW OFFICERS OKEH SCHOOL

Chief Ettenhoffer At Enforcement Meet At Menominee

Menominee, June 9.—Continuation of the highly successful police training school sponsored by the Upper Peninsula Law Enforcement Officers' association, this year for the first time was decided upon at a business meeting of the association here yesterday afternoon.

Donald McCormick, Marquette police chief and president of the association, read a letter from J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, offering the Department of Justice's cooperation in the school to be held next year.

The Law Enforcement Officers' association was complimented by Hoover for its sponsorship of the school, in which Oscar Olander, Michigan state police commissioner, and his department cooperated.

Manistique in July
City and county law enforcement officers, state police, and others connected with law enforcement in the upper peninsula are members of the association, which now has 131 members.

The 1939 police training school was held in Marquette and is expected next year's school will also be held there because of that city's central location in the upper peninsula.

Although Sault Ste. Marie made a written bid for the July 10 meeting of the association, it was voted to hold the meeting in Manistique when no Sault Ste. Marie members appeared to follow up the communication with a personal invitation. Manistique's invitation was made by Municipal Judge W. G. Stephens of that city.

School Committee
Other business of the association at its session in Menominee Beach House yesterday included a proposal to send a letter of consolation to the family of the late Circuit Judge John G. Stone of Houghton, expressing the sympathy of the law enforcement officers. Judge Stone was a member of the association.

President McDonald named a committee to arrange for the 1940 police officers training school which will probably be held at Marquette.

On the committee are George D. Peoples, Gladstone, special agent for the Soo Line railroad; Sergeant Charles Engle of the Marquette state police post; William J. Sheehan, Manistique, Schoolcraft county prosecuting attorney; Sheriff J. Willard Welch, of Sault Ste. Marie; William Gleason, Lake Linden police chief, and Municipal Judge W. G. Stephens of Manistique.

Many at Meeting
Registering at the convention were Ray Anderson, Manistique police chief; Marvin Coon, warden of Marquette prison; William E. Carlson, traffic officer of Crystal Falls; Captain Ora E. Demarey, commanding officer of the state police detachment at Marquette; Edward J. Dundon, former prosecutor of Iron Mountain; Sergeant Engle; M. F. Ettenhoffer, Escanaba police chief; Reino Harma, Atlantic, Mich., investigator for the secretary of state's office; Sergeant Donald Hoadley, commanding officer of the Iron Mountain detachment of state police; Sheriff John Hewitt of Manistique; Sergeant William Irish, commander of the state police detachment at Newberry; Emery Jacques, Marquette, district parole officer; Ted Karney, police chief of Hancock and first vice-president of the association.

Marquette Well Represented
Wallace Kemp, Marquette, superintendent of probation; Donald McCormick, Marquette police chief and president of the association; Howard J. McDonough, Iron River, probation officer; Corporal Jack Miller, Marquette detachment of the state police; Sergeant M. H. Modders, commanding officer of the Manistique detachment of the state police, and second vice-president of the association.

Tennis Court Trouble Aired By Director

In answer to the question "What is wrong with the tennis courts?" a statement was issued yesterday by Beverl Butts, director of parks and recreation.

The statement follows: "The five courts in Ludington Park were surfaced last fall with an emulsified asphalt covering, the popular conception that it is tar being an error. Due to circumstances over which the city department had no control, it was impossible to complete the work during the hot weather which would have allowed the asphalt to go through a natural and necessary process known as "bleeding," and which is causing the softness and stickiness which has caused so much discomfort. On the first hot day the public works department will add sand and roll the courts which will very materially hasten the "bleeding process."

Players will no doubt find that addition of sand to the soft spots which develop during play will be of some advantage in eliminating the stickiness.

"The emulsified asphalt surfacing is probably the most satisfactory black top that can be obtained. If Escanaba tennis enthusiasts will be patient for a few hot days until the courts become set, there is no doubt but what they will have no more trouble with stickiness."

The recreation director also added that although the courts are not as level as they might be, the high cost of the resurfacing that has been done will prohibit any further expenditure on the Ludington Park courts this season except for the addition of new nets and renewing worn lines.

Rapid River, Mich.—A large crowd was present at St. Rita's church in Trenary, Thursday, June 8th, the feast of Corpus Christi, when Father Arnold Thompson, a newly ordained priest of this diocese celebrated his second solemn high mass.

Members of St. Charles congregation in Rapid River were also much interested in Father Thompson's ordination as his parents were former residents of this place, though born in Rapid River he grew up in the vicinity of Trenary.

FIELD COURSE TO BE OFFERED

Extension Work Will Be Carried On In City Next Season

The school of education of the University of Michigan will provide a field course in education during the coming school year, according to information received by Mr. John A. Lemmer, superintendent of schools of this city. This unique type of advanced course will be offered through the university extension service for the sixth consecutive year. It will relate to problems in the field of secondary education including grades seven to twelve. Emphasis in the course will be placed on three major questions as follows: (1) What are the practical values of the newer methods of appraisal of classroom instruction? (2) Can the study habits of pupils be improved? (3) What are some of the implications of newer reports on issues and trends effecting secondary education? The course will be especially planned for classroom teachers, principals, and other administrative officials. The course is open to graduate students only.

The instruction will be provided by the regular staff members of the school of education under a plan whereby several faculty members will take part in the work of each section of the course. There will be sixteen sections of the course at selected centers—six of these will be assigned to cities of the Upper Peninsula and ten will be organized in cities of Lower Michigan. Superintendent Lemmer has been informed by Dean J. B. Edmonson of the school of education that a section of the course will be organized in this city. It is anticipated that many teachers and school officials from the local schools and neighboring school systems will elect the course this next fall.

The course will be planned by a university committee under the chairmanship of Dean J. B. Edmonson of the school of education.

The first meeting of the course will be held during the month of October. A special bulletin relating to the course may be secured on request addressed to Dean J. B. Edmonson at the university.

STATE SENATOR VISITOR HERE

McCallum Comments Up-on Actions of State Legislature

The 1939 legislature did a lot of silly things for which it deserves all the criticism it has received, but it probably should be commended for reducing the biennial addition of new laws on the statute books, State Senator George McCallum, Republican of Ann Arbor, said while on a business visit here yesterday.

Two years ago, the lawmakers passed 471 bills, while this year the number was cut down to 350, the state senator said.

Senator McCallum is chairman of the senate committee on finance and taxation, and yesterday he freely expressed his opinion of a number of measures handled by his committee.

Opposed New Formula

He expressed his disapproval of the new formula for equalization proposed in the school aid bill, explaining that the legislature was dominated by the rural interests who, he charged, revamped the measure to discriminate against larger communities. He added that the senate had no choice but to vote for the $38,000,000 school aid bill and accept the new equalization formula favoring the rural districts or else vote against the entire measure.

Senator McCallum also expressed his displeasure over the defeat of the bill, which proposed the establishing of a central finance department, which he said would have saved the state about fifteen million dollars annually.

"Now, we have four departments auditing state accounts, and you cannot get a financial report from any of them that will jibe," Senator McCallum said. He charged that the state officers lobbied against the measure.

Tax on Intangibles

The bill providing a substitute plan for the taxation of intangibles, as originally proposed by him, would have yielded an additional $10,000,000, Senator McCallum said. As finally adopted, however, it will produce only about $3,000,000, Senator McCallum said. He added that the bill as finally drafted was not an honest measure, and that he had advised the governor to veto it.

The taxation of intangibles is nothing new in Michigan, Senator McCallum pointed out that this form of taxation was provided for under Act 206 of the Public Acts of 1893. The old law is so severe, however, that no assessing officer has ever tried to collect the tax on intangible property, he added.

Senator McCallum explained that the new law provides for a six per cent levy on the earnings from stocks, bonds and other intangibles. On non-productive intangibles the levy is one mill of the par value, with an exemption on the first $7,000. There is also an exemption on commercial accounts of $3,000.

The state of Michigan would not be in an embarrassing financial position if the extravagance in government were curbed, Senator McCallum said.

"Excessive payroll should be reduced," the state senator said. "You can look down on the main street any day and see a dozen or more state cars chasing each other. If the inspection duties of many state employees were just turned over to the state police or some single agency, we could save $10,000,000 a year."

Senator McCallum also called attention to tax leaks, and said that the state has been losing from four to five million dollars annually in sales taxes on automobiles. He said that he expected the new law requiring that the sales tax on automobiles be paid when the purchaser gets his license plates would bring in much additional revenue.

Forest Service Camp Will Be Opened Soon

Three forest camps on the National Forests in the Lake States, completely equipped with buildings and interior furnishings, electric lights, water and sanitary sewer systems will be available for use by the public early in June, it was announced by Jay H. Price, Regional Forester of Milwaukee. The regional chief of the North Central Region of the Forest Service said the forest camps have been constructed for use by organizations—church, fraternal, under-privileged youngsters, scouts, clubs, and civic and other groups.

The Clear Lake Forest Camp on the Hiawatha National Forest in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan and the Lost Lake Camp on the Nicolet National Forest in northern Wisconsin will accommodate from 32 to 64 persons, while the Nesbit Lake Camp on the Ottawa National Forest, also in the Upper Peninsula has facilities for organized groups of from 32 to 96. A fourth camp on the Chippewa National Forest in Minnesota is under construction and will be available for occupancy sometime in August.

Accessible by car and located on the shores of lakes in forest environment, the forest camps offer recreational benefits to National Forest users at modest individual cost.

The rustic buildings designed by the Forest Service have been arranged at each camp in such a manner that several smaller groups may occupy the camp at one time. Thus a smaller group may benefit from the economy derived from maximum capacity use of the camp. The Lost Lake camp is provided with a large building for general administration, recreation, dining room and kitchen facilities for the campers and quarters for director and service personnel. The forest camps at Nesbit Lake on the Ottawa National Forest and the Clear Lake Camp on the Hiawatha National Forest have two main buildings, a mess hall and a recreation building. The Nesbit Lake Camp also has three groups of four cabins each. Eight cabins are arranged in two groups of four each at Lost Lake and Clear Lake. Each cabin is provided with eight metal cots and individual clothes lockers. One building, equipped with showers, hot and cold water and toilet facilities, is provided for each cabin group. The infirmary at each camp contains a three-bed ward, equipment for medical examinations and quarters for the doctor or attendant.

Play Fields Provided

The camps are provided with play fields, outside fireplaces, improved bathing beaches, diving floats, row boats and landing docks. Forest Camps at Lost Lake and Nesbit Lake have council rings. Lost Lake and Clear Lake are provided with horseshoe courts. Camp Clear Lake has an outdoor theatre in addition. The Forest Service maintains a custodian of each camp who takes care of the general maintenance and the operation of the light and water plants. Fuel is provided by the Forest Service.

Each National Forest is under the immediate supervision of the Forest Supervisor. Information concerning applications and rates for use of the forest camps should be made directly to the Forest Officer in charge of the forest on which the camp is located. Nesbit Lake Forest Camp on the Ottawa National Forest is under the supervision of the Forest Supervisor at Ironwood, Michigan. The Forest Supervisor's headquarters for the Nicolet National Forest on which the Lost Lake Camp is located is at Rhinelander and inquiries pertaining to the Clear Lake Camp on the Hiawatha National Forest should be directed to the Forest Supervisor at Escanaba, Michigan. The Ruby Lake Forest Camp on the Chippewa National Forest, which will be available for use in August, is under the direction of the Forest Supervisor at Cass Lake, Minnesota.

There will be no supervision on Sunday.

The North Escanaba playground will be directed by Clifford Marcus and Harley Copeland with Kenneth Genesee on duty on Saturdays. CHILDREN GET COD LIVER OIL

Part of Health Program Conducted In Schools In Past Year

Ten gallons of cod liver oil were consumed by children of Escanaba public schools under the health program during the past year, according to a report of Miss Gertrude Sheason, school nurse. The cod liver oil was furnished by the Escanaba Woman's club.

Extensive work has been conducted with children during the past year by the school nurse, there being 3,847 routine inspections during the year. Tuberculin tests were given to 375 senior high school students and 108 students received X-ray tests at Pinecrest sanatorium. Audiometer tests were given to 1,050 students while vision of 1,024 was examined. Seventy-two children were fitted with glasses which were provided by the Children's Fund and Red Cross.

In seven pre-school clinics, 141 children were examined, 98 being given toxin for diphtheria and 101 being vaccinated against smallpox. Miss Sheason made 775 visits to the schools and 967 home calls.

According to a report by Supt. John A. Lemmer, teachers' absences were greater this year than in the past two years, being due largely to the heavy epidemic of flu during the year. Teachers averaged three days absence this year as compared with 1.9 days last year and 2.7 days in 1936.

LOCAL SCHOOL TERM CLOSES

Finances Strained; New Schedule Planned for Next Year

Public schools of Escanaba closed yesterday after one of the most hectic financial battles in years, there being about $500 in the coffers at the completion of the term after bills had been paid.

It was only through the $9,700 received from the emergency appropriation by the state legislature, however, that the schools were able to meet their obligations. Had this appropriation not been received, the schools would have ended with a deficit of almost $10,000.

The exodus of members of the faculty to their homes or other destinations began early last night. Many of the teachers will study during the summer while others will travel. Misses Roma Irons, Irma Bangs and Mary French, accompanied by Miss Fern Fontanna, will leave shortly for a trip to Alaska while Miss Alice Potter will tour Mexico with her sister.

Maintenance work will be begun on city schools immediately by the custodial staff. Because of the lack of funds, all major repairs must be curtailed. In addition to the routine cleaning and redecorating, the roof and stairs at the senior high school will be repaired.

Retrenchments Planned

Due to expected financial trouble again next year, retrenchments are being made in faculty assignments for the new term. One ungraded room and an open window room will be eliminated. Miss Helen Roddel, having resigned and Miss Elizabeth Lelper being transferred to the sight saving room to succeed Miss Helen Cayen, who has resigned. One room will be closed at the Washington school. Miss Virginia Wohl will be transferred from the kindergarten department to the first grade while a kindergarten position will not be filled. Misses Margaret Bezold and Althea O'Connell will have charge of kindergarten work in two buildings, spending half days in each place.

At the junior high school, there will be one teacher less. Resignations of Misses Lillian Perkins, Alice Ziebell and Beatrice Harkins have been accepted but only two new teachers will be added, Miss Irene Pippel of Whitewater State Teachers and Miss Ethel Knutsen of Northern State.

In addition to the sight saving room, two other special rooms in the junior high school will have replacements next year. Miss Evelyn Lindsay replaces Miss Helen Harrington, who has been in charge of oral-deaf work for three years and who will inaugurate a similar program in Muskegon Heights school next year and Miss Evelyn Merritt of Detroit will replace Miss Natalie Herrick, who has been in charge of orthopedic work for three years and who has resigned to be married. Miss Beatrice Perron, art teacher at the senior high school, has resigned and part of her work will be assumed by Miss Lois Gaut. One course in art will be eliminated.

that, as in so many cases, the thing sought has been gradually growing up and its well on the way to accomplishment while reformers are still demanding it.

These facts about the federal service have been revealed by two Columbia professors, Arthur W. Macmahon and John D. Millett, after studying 62 units of 10 great government departments:

The average head of a government bureau is 58, has served as a chief for 16 years, came up through the ranks of government employes, attended an institution of higher learning, and has made a life career of government service.

Which shows that much more than a beginning of a "British-type professional civil service" is already well established in the United States government.

THIRD TERM VOTE PUSHED

It now seems more likely than not that the Senate will express itself on President Roosevelt's seeking a third term. Rush D. Holt, West Virginia's anti-Roosevelt Democratic senator, says he is determined to get a vote on his third-term resolution.

When President Grant ran for a third non-consecutive Republican nomination in 1880, the House adopted a condemnatory resolution. Its text, followed by Holt now, is also the same declared to be "the sense of the Senate" in 1928, when it seemed that President Coolidge might run a third time.

Coolidge. It turned out, did not "choose to run." Grant had over 300 votes for 36 ballots in the 1880 Republican convention. Though it may be contended, we do not think the House and Senate actions had appreciable effects in bringing about these results.

Extensive threshing given the subject has established several points. Presidents have the right to try to break the precedent; action in Congress is but advisory on a matter not its business to decide.

However, since not much more than passing politics will be involved, we don't much care whether the Senate runs with or drops Holt's hot potato. If the Senate votes, it will be rather worth while to observe that such thorough pro-Roosevelt New Dealers as Wagner (N. Y.) and Barkley (Ky.), the Democratic Senate leader, do about it. They were among the 17 Democrats still in the Senate who thought a third race by Coolidge was a trifling thing to contemplate.

REPORTING ACCIDENTS

When the Iron Mountain chief of police expressed the opinion recently that perhaps some cities in the Upper Peninsula are not reporting all automobile accidents, his remarks did not apply to Ironwood.

The Ironwood police call attention to the state law on reporting auto accidents. The act provides that reports must be filed on all accidents resulting in injury or death to any person, or damaging a vehicle to such an extent that it can not be operated in the usual manner.

Operators of motor vehicle repair shops in Ironwood and individual motorists are cooperating 100 per cent in reporting accidents under this ordinance, according to Chief of Police Thomas Jeffery.

The explanation of its failures seems on the whole to be found in lack of leadership rather than in lack of intent. There is every probability that had Governor Fitzgerald lived, the body would have functioned satisfactorily and made a creditable record.

Indeed it appeared to have been on the road to doing so when the governor died. After that things seemed to fall apart. Governor Dickinson refuses to accept as final the legislature's failure to balance the state budget. He says something must be done about it.

So far Mr. Dickinson has not made known just what he has in mind. But unless the legislature repairs its failure when it meets for final adjournment on June 29, a special session is the only evident answer.

American housewives had a chance to questions of business at a Buffalo, N. Y., convention. Most of them probably wanted to know if their husbands really show up at those evening business meetings.

World Affairs Reviewed

BY MILTON BRONNER NEA Service Staff Correspondent London—In the Italo-German military pact a marriage of love between the Nazi and the Fascist states—or a shot-gun wedding, with Adolf Hitler's finger on the trigger?

There are responsible statesmen who believe the alliance was a logical outcome of the parallel policies of the two totalitarian states. They are alike in denying people freedom of the press, public assembly and frank speech. They are alike in building up huge armaments at the cost of all else.

So all their interests in the future of Europe and the world march together. —GERMANY IN POSITION TO THREATEN ITALY—

But there is a decidedly opposite view held in many European quarters. Part of it may, of course, be due to wishful thinking. But these thinkers point out that Italy's position and Italy's policy have undergone radical changes ever since Hitler seized Austria.

That brought Hitler's legions to the Brenner Pass. That made the Reich a neighbor of Italy with common frontiers. That enabled Hitler to threaten a hostile Italy with a smash through to the Trentino and to Trieste.

If Mussolini does not toe the line and, if Hitler wants an excuse for strong-arm methods, there is always the South Tyrol, annexed by Italy after the World War. About 350,000 German Tyroleans were thus put under the heel of the Italian conqueror.

By the implied threat of the Brenner Pass and the situation of the Tyroleans, and by the bait of the loot Italy can attain by allying herself with Germany, Hitler has directed Mussolini's recent policies.

—FASCISTS ADOPT NAZI POLICIES—

Those who accept this theory point out: (1) That after having often declared anti-Semitism had no place in the Fascist scheme of things, Mussolini about a year ago adopted most of the Nazi racial theories and eliminated non-Aryans from the army, navy and colleges.

(2) That when the time came for the Italo-German military pact to be signed, it was not Ribbentrop who went to Rome, but Ciano who went to Berlin for the signing. In other words, Italy was treated as the junior partner.

(3) While comparatively few high Italian officers have visited German fortifications and military dispositions, there has been a constant stream of German army higher-ups who have gone to Italy and to Libya to inspect Italian fortifications, air forces, munition factories and anti-aircraft forces. Once more Germany has acted to ward Italy as the junior partner.

—SEE GERMANY WEAVING WEB AROUND HER ALLY—

On top of this come various reports — difficult to check — that Germany is pressing Italy to devote itself more to raising food and securing raw materials, while Germany makes guns and munitions both for Germany and Italy. If true, this shows a desire of the Nazi leaders so to interweave the interests and war potential of Germany and Italy that it would be impossible for Italy to break away.

The Nazis know that the mass of the Italian people are not keen on the alliance with Germany and the prospect of being pulled into a war in which Germany would be the greatest gainer if there were a victory.

Also, the Nazis remember their history. Before the last war Italy was a member of the Triple Alliance, with Germany and Austria-Hungary. But when the World War broke out, Italy remained neutral—then finally came in on the side of Great Britain and France. The Nazis are trying their best to weave such a web around Italy that it cannot possibly repeat this performance.

budget, a task to which they were strongly committed, they even failed to provide for the very necessary debt retirement fund, strongly urged by the late Gov. Fitzgerald.

They did not so much as complete the routine job of making up a budget in an orderly manner. And in consequence the support of the school system goes on only by virtue of continuing authority from the last legislature; and the figures as they stand have no relationship to immediate school needs or to the capacities of the pocketbooks of tax payers.

Yet people who have had opportunity to observe the legislature closely and have become acquainted with its members, say the body contains good material, and altogether possesses a personnel rather better than the average.

The explanation of its failures seems on the whole to be found in lack of leadership rather than in lack of intent. There is every probability that had Governor Fitzgerald lived, the body would have functioned satisfactorily and made a creditable record.

Indeed it appeared to have been on the road to doing so when the governor died. After that things seemed to fall apart. Governor Dickinson refuses to accept as final the legislature's failure to balance the state budget. He says something must be done about it.

So far Mr. Dickinson has not made known just what he has in mind. But unless the legislature repairs its failure when it meets for final adjournment on June 29, a special session is the only evident answer.

American housewives had a chance to questions of business at a Buffalo, N. Y., convention. Most of them probably wanted to know if their husbands really show up at those evening business meetings.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York — That visiting fireman is here again, a-gape at the peculiar ways and customs of New Yorkers. He finds them more puzzling than quaint.

He is, of course, not alarmed by the turmoil and continual clatter, for those are what he expected. But he was not prepared to see a throng of harried-looking natives, darting forward to their destinations, stopping dead in their tracks to watch a pitchman hold half a dollar between his lips.

And he doesn't hope to fathom the singular etiquette of the subway where a gentleman only offers a seat to a lady if she looks as though she is about to faint, or is sagging beneath a load of packages, or is at the age of 80 at least!

—THAT FAR COUNTRY — BROOKLYN He is willing to be patient with the New Yorker's lack of interest in the museums, the Planetarium, the Aquarium and other civic centers, and he readily sees why eight out of ten city dwellers could reel off the exact whereabouts of the Polo Grounds, Yankee Stadium and the Madison Square Garden in a single breath. But he can't understand why most citizens of Manhattan consider Brooklyn, which is just across the river, as a foreign country where a passport and visa are almost necessary.

The hat check girls at the midtown hotspots startle him, because he can't imagine that he is so Adonis-like as to deserve to be called "Darling!" and the cigarette girl, putting her arm around his shoulder affectionately, knocks him off his underpins.

Taxicab drivers baffle him most. He can't make out why five of them will ram their vehicles into each other against the curb, in a fit of self-destruction. Not being too well informed about the statuary of his home town, he can forgive New Yorkers for not having the slightest idea of what here is commemorated in the marble on Columbus Circle; but he is a trifle shocked to learn that not more than one per cent of all New Yorkers have, at one time or another, been within shouting distance of the Statue of Liberty.

WHERE TO EAT? IS BIG QUESTION The visiting fireman is impressed by the diligent courtesy the New Yorker extends to the out-of-towner in one breath and the diligent discourtesy he extends in another.

For example, ask a New Yorker street directions and he will all but lead you to where you want to go. Hook at him for his own safety from an auto and he will pause long enough to cuss you out eloquently. He (the visiting fireman) is puzzled by the New Yorker's perennial problem—Where to Eat—in a town which is regarded as having the widest and best variety of restaurants in the world! He is touched by the winning sight of a "hard-boiled" New Yorker, tending a lump of sugar to a mounted cop's horse.

He is not surprised to learn that the main attendance at Broadway shows consist of New Yorkers. But that the bulk of the movie audiences is comprised of out-of-towners who could see the same pictures back home gives him pause.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—Sir Willmott Lewis of The London Times has a horror of being written up. In fact, he has been made "most damnably uncomfortable and frightfully embarrassed by press comments which, dammit, had their beginning twelve years ago when Drew Pearson wrote during the Geneva Naval Conference that I was the actual British Ambassador, not Sir Eame Howard."

Furthermore, Sir Willmott deplora generally the practice of newspapermen writing about each other. "Very bad," he says, "very bad. So I hope you boys will not write a piece about me."

But, Bill, now that The tumult and the shouting dies; The Captains and the Kings depart, the inescapable fact is that you, more than any ambassador or visiting monarch, really represent the British Government to those in the know in Washington.

Furthermore, you have done a better job than any British envoy in years, and since you are celebrating a birthday next week, you cannot complain if you are taken for a ride on The Merry-Go-Round.

Very bad, Bill, very bad. But — let's start the music.

—CHINA WARS—

Sir Willmott Harsant Lewis is now a Knight Commander of the Order of the British Empire. But there was a day when he played a piano in a honky-tonk joint off Nanking Road in Shanghai, and his carefree friends never dreamt that he would rise to the knighthood.

That was around the turn of the century, when Bill was covering two Chinese wars plus a major engagement between Japan and Russia. He would cover a war and then come back to Shanghai to recuperate and spend his earnings. After one battle in the Boxer Rebellion, he returned to find that a marker had been erected on a Chinese battlefield to mark his grave, and that a friend had taken a picture of it to show his family. This friend was the first person Bill met in Shanghai, and he had some difficulty in dispelling the rumor.

For the most part, however, Bill thrived on wars. He has probably covered more wars than any other newspaperman, and his worst, by far, was the Russo-Japanese war in which he almost neglected the first requirement of every war correspondent—that he must live to tell his story.

In the capture of Mukden, Bill made eight charges with the Japanese army up a hill held by the Russians. Japanese officers took out their revolvers to blow the brains out of Japanese soldiers who refused to go forward. Again and again, Lewis advanced, then threw himself prone on the ground, then up, then down again.

—U. S. STAMPING GROUNDS—

Although Sir Willmott is now Washington correspondent—for The London Times, half his life has been spent writing for American newspapers. Once he was editor of The Manila Times. He was not only editor, but copy reader, reporter, and chief editorial writer, eating two meals a day (coffee and sandwiches) at his desk.

Bill covered the Russo-Japanese War for The New York Herald and by the time it was over, he had saved so much money that he could afford to return to the United States where, believe it or not, the present Knight Commander of the British Empire helped run a prize-fight establishment with Philadelphia Jack O'Brien.

Not even the manly art of self-defense, however, could keep him away from the Far East. He drifted Chinward again, then back to the United States with the outbreak of the World War. There he was attached to the American forces in France.

—AMERICANIZED BRITON—

Sir Willmott is accused of being an English propagandist by American super-patriots, and by the British of being completely Americanized. Once when lecturing at the U. S. Army War College, a colonel asked him: "When will Great Britain quit expecting the United States to pull her international chestnuts out of the fire?"

To which Sir Willmott shot back: "As soon as the United States quits considering Britain her first line of defense."

The real truth is that Lewis left England in 1899. He was 22 years old and had been gainfully employed as a newspaperman "covering smoke hall concerts in Brighton and writing ad puffs for the merchants of that estimable resort. My stipend was 25 shillings a week."

"Since that time," he adds, "I have written on one or two other subjects of somewhat greater importance."

During the interim since 1899, Bill has not been back to England except on short visits. And he has become so Americanized that during the World War, General Pershing entrusted him with a very important message to the French regarding the nature of the American offensive.

TIME OUT FOR FRIENDSHIP Such a busy person he is, So involved in business deals And the management of men He hardly takes time for his meals. But for one thing he always will stop. He says it pays great dividends. He always finds plenty of time To welcome and visit his friends.

"I have so many friends," He once exclaimed, in fun, "That all my time is spent on them And I get nothing done, But let them come who will, On them my heart depends, I will not let my work Exclude me from my friends."

And so they come and go, Their laughs will make amends For the gold he fails to make— A friend takes time for his friends!

BEHIND THE SCENES

By Bruce Catton

Washington—Opening of a sensational anti-trust drive in the building industry awaits only appropriation by Congress of the needed funds.

Now pending is a bill which would give the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice an extra $500,000. If that increase passes, a nation-wide drive to break a whole series of restraints of trade in the building industry probably will be launched.

Preliminary studies are in progress already. But the anti-trust division has just five men to spare for the job. It wants to use from 60 to 100 men on it—to move into a dozen or a score of cities simultaneously and open up the industry from top to bottom.

MAY REVEAL SCANDAL.

If it is enabled to do this, two results are anticipated:

First, there may be literally hundreds of indictments.

Second, building prices may be broken all along the line—materials, labor, appliances, and so on. Out of this, the Justice Department confidently believes, there would come the long-awaited breaking of the log jam in the building industry.

Specifically, Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general in charge of the anti-trust division, has asserted that price structure in the building industry is unduly rigid because of practices common in every level of the industry, from top to bottom. Among such practices, he declares, are the following:

Prices of materials are fixed by a variety of means. In some cases, holders of patents on building materials allegedly control sales methods, and even limit the quantities which may be sold, among those who handle their products.

Basing point and zone price systems are common in some building materials industries. In certain industries, a definite share of the business is allotted to different concerns, and the crack-down is applied to any firm which tries to get more than its share by cutting prices.

PRICE BOYCOTTS CHARGED.

In the field of distribution, it is charged that collusive markups are prevalent. Boycotts are applied to manufacturers who sell to distributors that refuse to abide by these mark-ups. In some cases, distributors boycott retailers who sell appliances direct to the consumer. There are instances where a manufacturer has to pay a distributor a commission when he—the manufacturer—sells an appliance direct to a consumer, even though the distributor had nothing whatever to do with the sale.

Contracting rings which fix bids may be common. In some cities, it is said that contractors maintain a central bureau which calculates the costs of various jobs and tells each contractor the bid he is to make.

In one way and another, building trades labor unions may draw cards in most of these practices. In some cases, they may be in collusion with manufacturers or distributors; in others, with contractors; in still others, they may set up their own restraints as to the materials or methods which may be used in building.

On top of all of this, it is claimed that there is a network of local regulations—building codes devised in the interests of some or all of these groups to outlaw the use of cheap materials or methods of construction, and licensing and registration laws which keep outsiders from coming in to offer price-reducing competition.

WOULD SWEEP ENTIRE FIELD.

Arnold believes that the only way to tackle this problem is to do it on a nation-wide scale, hitting every facet of the industry at one time. He remarks that the price-rigidity existing in the building industry has been built up in spite of the fact that approximately 25 per cent of all the cases brought in the anti-trust division's history have been brought in the building industry.

Tackling one city at a time, one abuse at a time, one phase of the industry at a time, he feels, will never bring anything more than an isolated, short-lived improvement in conditions.

For the moment it is up to Congress. If Congress puts the increased appropriation through—and present indications are favorable—one of the most spectacular and far-reaching campaigns the anti-trust division has ever launched will get under way.

SERIAL STORY BRIDE ON A BUDGET

CAST OF CHARACTERS

IRIS IVES—a radiant bride who thought love came first and money could take care of itself.

BART WHITTAKER—a righteous bridegroom who looked at the bankbook first and his wife afterward.

Yesterday, Iris buys a suit and fur, on the installment plan, convinces Bart that two could pool their resources and afford to marry. So Bart begins to figure the cost of the affair.

CHAPTER II

His attractive, weather-browned face was so serious, his brown eyes so intent as he figured on the back of the old envelope. Watching him, Iris felt a curious maternal pity tugging at her heart. He took all this so seriously, he was so sure that arithmetic was the solution to happiness. While almost any girl could tell you it had nothing to do with real happiness.

"What real happiness?" she asked. "I'll be a big start, honey," Bart said, after studying the oracle of his arithmetic soberly. Iris said nothing. She didn't tell him that it was no saving, because she had purchased the suit for no other reason than this: And—it wasn't paid for yet!

"There's the rent and upkeep for one apartment, Bart," Iris volunteered faintly. He looked up at her and grinned. "Whatever rent we'd pay, will be a saving."

"And eating at home, to say nothing of good home cooking," Bart added fervently. "Come to think of it, we've been saps to be afraid of this for so long, honey. Why, the way I figure it, we'll be money ahead, being married. No high-priced restaurant meals, no indigestion, only one place to keep up, and being together as well."

"You'll take me out to dinner now and then, Bart Whittaker, or I'll step out with the professor of natural history!"

He grasped her slender wrists in warm strong fingers and pulled her down close.

"Dear," he said humbly. "I want you to be happy. I don't want you ever to have to worry and scrimp and do without the way other wives do. It's because I love you, Iris, that I've been afraid. Afraid it would be selfishness to ask you to marry me, knowing the hard road we'd have ahead."

"If you love me," Iris whispered softly. With a smothered endearment he crushed her to him.

"Dear, dearest dear," he whispered unsteadily. "You know that. You know I love you. I'm half crazy with loving you. . . . Iris, why wait any longer? Why not be married now—we can have a honeymoon after school closes, and we have our vacations. Now . . . we've waited too long as it is, dear."

"Of course," Iris agreed practically. Hadn't she known the suit would do this? After trying everything else and falling, an $80 powder blue wool gabardine suit brought about the miracle. That, and a comfortable lounge chair, a smoking stand, and a good supper, those old-fashioned notions were!

"And you won't mind waiting till summer for our honeymoon, dear?" Bart urged tenderly. Against the rough wool of his coat, Iris shook her head.

"Mind? She'd a hundred times rather wait until summer for a honeymoon. By then, she'd have to have new summer clothes; by then she'd have Bart persuaded out of his queer obsession against clothes money expenditure. It was just a matter of time."

They were ten minutes late to the movie, and had to stay over because, as Iris said, she didn't care about newsreels, or comedies, but she did love Myrna Loy.

"She has the best clothes sense of any star in Hollywood, Bart," Iris explained, "nobody else can touch her."

"Good sound sense, too—"

Bart agreed, still in the roseate glow of a man newly engaged.

newly pledged to marry within five days, if the law approved their license application. "Wears plain duds. Suits—like that one you've got on, honey. Plain little things that don't cost much."

Iris was glad of the friendly darkness of the theater as they sat down. Not that Bart would guess how much her suit cost, or any of her clothes for that matter, from her face. Only—well, she was glad it was dark in the theater. Some catty woman might smile sarcastically, and warn Bart; someone might titter, after looking at the obviously expensively tailored suit.

In the days that followed, Iris was beset with a hundred ills. She had to buy new lingerie, new pajamas and a chenille robe, and mules. She had to have another blouse, and some pumps and a hat. And she had to insist gently but firmly on gardenias, instead of the violets Bart wanted to give her to wear to the wedding.

"Violets make your eyes so beautiful," he pleaded with a rare burst of eloquence for her, "and they're in season now, honey."

"But all my life I've wanted gardenias for my wedding, Bart! I . . . I know it's silly, and they're probably horribly expensive, but a girl doesn't have but one wedding to a lifetime, and it's just this once. You . . . you can get me the violets to wear on my suit later—after the wedding if you want. I'll year them to dinner, and you'll love them just as much."

He gulped and tried not to show the dent this made in his careful budget. Gardenias were bad enough, but gardenias and violets too!

"You must remember a small gift for your best man, too, Bart," she reminded him. "Some nice studs, or a cigarette box, or something."

"I never thought of that, Iris," reproachfully—as if it were quite her fault, instead of being a custom she merely reminded him of.

"I'll get them, Bart; you quit worrying," Iris admonished him. "No! I'll get them."

"Darling," she said in tender reproach, "not letting it get you down this early? Think what I've to worry over."

"It's just that I was so sure I'd figured everything," he explained.

They were married at 4 o'clock on a Saturday afternoon, before a few friends and the dean, while the dean's wife wept sentimentally all through the solemn little ceremony in the gray stone church at the end of Sorority Row. And instead of returning home to the little apartment they had prepared, hastily, out of Iris's rooms, and an additional room, adjoining, plus the furnishings, Bart brought from his rooms, there was the wedding supper at the Tivoli.

Bart was tired from a rushed hectic day at the shop, and if he thought, fleetingly, of the cozy Saturday night suppers of steak, French fried potatoes, salad and shortcake, or baked beans and fixings that was their usual Saturday night feast, he said nothing. This was his wedding day, his and Iris's. And whatever Iris wanted, he wanted her to have.

At the supper, Johnny Keelin, his best man, and a reporter on a small daily paper 40 miles from Linwood, had a cocktail too many and grew maudlin over Iris.

"Best pal I ever had, Iris, darlin'," he admonished her weakly, "but a devil with the women."

Iris was startled. Of all the faults she knew men to possess, this was one she hadn't found in Bart. He seemed peculiarly immune to lovely damsels, and turned disinterested eyes to their best efforts to snag his interest.

"nother thing," Johnny continued solemnly, "never waste a penny in Bart's sight. Makes him ill. Can't bear to see money wasted. Noble virtue and all that, but blight on romance."

Bart wasn't listening to any of this. As she studied her new husband, the length of the table away, talking seriously with Dean Somers on the business outlook at the moment, Iris realized that Johnny had spoken a fear that was buried deep in her subconscious mind. That was why she never let him know how much she paid for anything, or how much she spent, or what she did with her money! It was the secret reason for a dozen little reticences that had sprung up between them over the months they had known each other. Secrets she was determined he should never know.

"Don't look so scared, bride," Johnny continued cheerfully, "though you're as lovely as Red Riding Hood, I'm no wolf. I was just charting your course for a happy sail over the seas of matrimony. It's the first year that counts, Iris. On it, you lay the foundation of your future, be it happiness or misery."

"Johnny, don't!" she said sharply, and when Bart looked up, startled, and gave her a questioning look she managed a set little smile and passed it off gracefully.

"He was teasing me about something that is—sacred," she said to Bart, not realizing that she laid the first paving stone with that small fib.

That out of that small fib were to grow a thousand more, a mighty network of them, choking off their happiness, destroying their faith, their trust and love. That by its very glibness, that first small fib betrayed her complete unwillingness ever to let Bart know—how completely apart were their lines of thought.

ASA PARKER IS DEATH VICTIM

Pioneer Resident Found Dead In Bed Friday Morning

Asa Parker, pioneer Manistique resident, passed away in his sleep at his home on Garden avenue late Thursday night or early Friday morning. He was found dead by his son, Edward, Tuesday morning. Death apparently was caused by a heart attack.

Mr. Parker has been in ill health for some time but had not been confined to his bed and his death was unexpected. In recent months his eyesight had become badly impaired and only a month ago the Manistique Lions club presented him with a white cane in recognition of impaired vision.

Mr. Parker, who was 75 years of age, was born in Canada March 5, 1864. He has been a resident of Manistique for more than 50 years and was employed at one time as delivery man for the Chicago Lumber company, retail store. When that company suspended operations here, Mr. Parker went into the fruit business. He has been retired for a number of years.

He was one of the community's first firemen when the volunteer fire department was organized many years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Parker celebrated their golden wedding anniversary two years ago. Mrs. Parker passed away here several months ago.

The body was prepared for burial at the Kefauver and Jackson mortuary, but funeral arrangements are incomplete, pending the arrival of relatives.

Mr. Parker is survived by two sons, William, of Pontiac, and Edward, of Manistique. A third son, Elmer, is deceased. Seven grandchildren also survive.

Commencement Is Held In McMillan

McMillan, Mich.—Sixteen seniors were graduated from the McMillan high school with impressive commencement ceremonies at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening, June 7.

Mr. George E. Bishop, of Marquette, manager of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, delivered a very interesting address. He sounded a challenge to the seniors to go into the world with a specific aim in life, work toward that aim and to let nothing sidetrack their aims. That graduation did not mean they were finishing but rather they were facing a future rich in opportunities in America, and it was up to them to drive ahead.

Mr. Bishop stressed the fact that favorable openings could be found in the upper peninsula "Gods great out of doors" as well as elsewhere.

His address was enthusiastically received by one of the largest crowds that ever filled the auditorium, many coming from Germfask, Curtis and Lakefield to attend the exercises.

Charles Holbrook represented his class as valedictorian. Besides unusual scholastic attainments Mr. Holbrook has been active in many extra school activities. Louise Reiter, as the second highest ranking honor student, presented the Salutatory.

The following seniors were presented with their diplomas by William V. Acker, superintendent of the local school.

Charles Holbrook, Louise Reiter, Lillian Decker, Adrienne Doran, Raymond Feneley, Elaine Generou, Minnie Harriger, Stanley Holbrook, Lois Holmes, Floyd House, Arnold Hyvonen, Grace Johnson, Rita Michelin, Charles Niles, John Painter and Rachel Thorber. CLUB PROGRAM WELL RECEIVED

John Zabelka and Peter Trudell Give Fine Speeches

John Zabelka, of Sault Ste. Marie, president of the Isaac Walton league of the Soo, and Peter Trudell, of Negaunee, president of the Northern Sportsmen's association, gave interesting and inspiring addresses at the meeting sponsored by the Schoolcraft Conservation club at the Legion cottage Thursday evening.

Others who spoke briefly were Francis Furlong, district supervisor of the Conservation Department, and Clarence Chase, U. S. Forest ranger. The speakers were introduced by C. E. Underwood, president of the local club.

Trudell, who was the first of the principal speakers on the program, outlined the activities of the Northern Sportsmen's association, parent group of virtually all of the sportsmen's clubs of Upper Michigan.

He explained that the association keeps an ever watchful eye on legislative developments of interest to sportsmen and conservationists, and has played an important part in protecting the interests of hunters and fishermen.

"We feel that the game and the fish belong to the public and should not be reserved strictly for land owners. We feel, too, that private hunting and fishing reserves should be subjected to the same restrictions as govern the hunting and fishing activities of the general public," Mr. Trudell declared.

The speaker pointed out that the association has played an important part in having a portion of license fees earmarked for land purchases for public fishing and hunting grounds.

Mr. Zabelka urged an united front by conservation interests, hunters, fishermen and nature lovers in promoting conservation activities, and especially concerning legislation affecting the interests of sportsmen.

"A sportsmen's club such as your newly reorganized Schoolcraft Conservation club provides a distinct service to the community."

Mr. Zabelka outlined some of the activities of the Isaac Walton league of the Soo as well as the Soo Conservation club.

Sound motion pictures depicting fishing in Michigan lakes and streams and methods employed in fire prevention and fire fighting were shown at the conclusion of the speaking program.

$25,000 FIRE LOSS

Marquette—Fire early yesterday morning which destroyed the Schneider Brothers bowling pin mill, dry kilns and a stock of lumber resulted in a loss of more than $25,000, according to an estimate made by members of the firm yesterday. The loss is partially covered by insurance. Pending complete investigation of company records, no accurate amount of the damage was available last night.

Believed to have started from a bolt of lightning, the fire burned the pin mill building, 100 feet north of the planing mill, to the ground. The alarm was turned in at 2:45 a. m. and about an hour later the fire was under control. Chief R. W. Bystrom reported.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

One Prison Term Given By Judge; Court Adjourns

Munising, June 9.—Alger county's June term of circuit court closed here this morning. Sessions, presided over by Judge Herbert Runnels of Sault Ste. Marie, started on Monday.

Harold Mattson, drunk and disorderly, third offense, was sentenced to 6 months to two years at the Marquette branch prison.

Alex Chartier pleaded guilty to charges of felonious assault with intent. Judge Runnels ordered Chartier to pay the hospital bill of the youths injured when Chartier allegedly fired at them. Judge Runnels will return here on June 27 to sentence Chartier.

A judgment of $420 plus $15 interest was granted to Robert G. Elliott, who sued the Alger county board of supervisors for the rental of a building used to store federal relief commodities during the time Elliott was poor commissioner. Elliott sought $1080. Prosecuting Attorney R. E. O'Brien stated today that no decision had been reached as to whether the county would appeal the case. The county will have twenty days in which to file an appeal.

The case of Harry Becker, charged with issuing a check without sufficient funds, was dismissed.

State Graduate

Munising—Keith Gordon Clement, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Clement of Shingleton, will be one of the Alger county students attending the Michigan State college who will be graduated from the school in June. Keith is well known in Munising, where he attended high school, and in Manistique, where the family lived before coming to Shingleton.

Keith will be graduated from the college with a bachelor of arts degree in the hotel administration course. The course combines schoolwork during the college year with practice in the various fields of the hotel business during the summer vacation periods. During the summer vacation in 1936 he was employed at the Hotel Ojibway in Sault Ste. Marie, in the 1937 vacation he worked at the Hotel Belvedere at Charlevoix, and in 1938 he was employed at the Club Manitow at Wequetonsing, near Petoskey.

Keith is a member of the Sigma Gamma Upsilon, honorary high school fraternity; the Blue Key, Junior men's honorary fraternity and the Hesperians, a social fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Clement left on June 9 for East Lansing to attend the graduation exercises there on June 12. Mrs. Clement's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bisell of Monrovia, Calif., will also go to East Lansing for the graduation.

DORY MUST BE 14 INCHES LONG

Small Fish Being Taken; Officers Checking Catches

In view of an apparent lack of knowledge or misunderstanding as to the minimum size wally-eyed pike or dory which may be legally taken by fishermen a conservation officer pointed out yesterday that this species must be 14 inches or over in length.

In many cases it has been found that fishermen are guessing and not any too accurately as to the size of the dory they are catching and when checked by conservation officers the fish have been found to be slightly under-size.

All catches are being checked by officers when the boats dock at Masonville or Rapid River. The legal limit of dory when taken from the waters of Bay de Noquet is 10. Five is the limit when taken from inland lakes.

Dory have started to bite fairly well at the head of the bay and a number of good catches have been reported. A June bug with a big job of worms seems to be the most successful lure and trolling the best method of catching wally-eyes.

CHURCH SUIT DELAYED

Sault Ste. Marie—The death in Marquette this week of H. R. Harris, one of the trustees of the endowment fund of the Episcopal Diocese of Northern Michigan, with funeral today, in addition to the fact that federal court here demanded the attention of Robert P. Hudson, attorney for St. James' Episcopal church, has delayed court action by St. James' parish against the board of trustees. The suit definitely will be filed within the next few days, however, Mr. Hudson stated today.

"We chose not to add to the sorrow and distress of the family of Mr. Harris, deceased trustee, by having subpoenas served at this time," Mr. Hudson explained. He made clear that court action has been definitely decided upon and that St. James' parish will take all necessary legal steps to obtain an accounting of the funds of the diocese with reference particularly to the $69,000 missing from the endowment fund for which the trustees were "clearly responsible."

Passeau Gives Game To Giants; Detroit Wins 14-4

PITCHING HERO BECOMES GOAT

Walks Lose Ten Inning Game for Cubs, 4 and 3

New York, June 9 (AP)—Hero of a five-hit victory over the Giants two days ago, Claude Passeau today became the goat of New York's 4 to 3 ten-inning decision over the Chicago Cubs.

In the overtime the Giants loaded the sacks on a single, an error and an intentional pass before the former Phil walked pinchhitter Bob Seeds for the winning run.

In the eighth inning, after Passeau relieved Larry French, he walked pinchhitter James O'Dea for the tying run after one runner had scored on an infield out and an intentional pass again filled the bases.

Passeau hurt his pitching hand in fielding a hard smash in the eighth and had to call time out.

Browns Drop Two To Red Sox, First 4-3, Second 18-7

St. Louis, June 9 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox won one the hard way, and then showed how to do it easily, in taking a double-header today from the much-beaten St. Louis Browns.

Fritz Ostermueller turned in an exceptionally good job of relief pitching and drove in the run that won the first game, 4 to 3, but the second was just a breeze for the Red Sox as they hammered four pitchers unmercifully for an 18 to 7 victory.

In the second Ted Williams hit his ninth home run of the year, and Jimmy Foss, his eleventh after No. 16 in the opener.

Home Folks Buy Plow For Pepper

Oklahoma City, June 9 (AP)—Pepper Martin, who has plowed many a furrow in a baseball manager's brow with his head first slides, is going to get a plow for his Oklahoma farm.

Hearing that St. Louis baseball fans have decided to give the Cardinal outfielder a pair of mules on "Pepper Martin" day at St. Louis June 15, the home folks hit on the plow idea.

There was some dissension over whether Pepper should have a "walking" or a "riding" plow. A committee decided on the first, on the theory the restless ball hawk wouldn't ride anyway.

BENGALS SCORE 17 HITS ON A'S

Greenberg, McCosky and Fox Hit Home Runs; Benton On Hill

Detroit, June 9 (AP)—Slamming out 17 hits—including three home runs, one with the bases full—the Detroit Tigers whipped the Philadelphia Athletics, 14 to 4 today to take the series two games to one. The A's committed five errors.

Pete Fox's first home run of the year scored four runs in the second inning to give Detroit a 5-1 lead. Hank Greenberg got his thirteenth round tripper in the sixth with two on base and Barney McCosky hit his second four-bagger of the year with two on the paths in the seventh. Sam Chapman of the A's hit a circuit ball in the fourth.

Bags Swept Clean
Alton Benton went the distance for the Tigers, turning back his former Philadelphia teammates with eight hits and fanning seven. Lee (Buck) Ross started and was the losing pitcher. LeRoy Parmelee and George Caster also hurled for the Mackmen.

The A's started off with one run in the first, made on Joe Gantebeln's triple and a putout, but the Bengals evaded the count in their half. Singles by Fox and Gehringer and Greenberg's force-out of Gehringer produced the tally.

Beau Bell and Frank Croucher singled at the start of the second and Benton, trying to sacrifice, popped to Ross. A pass to McCosky loaded the bags and Fox swept them clean by sailing the ball in to the lower leftfield pavilion.

Philadelphia counted twice in the fourth. With one out, McCosky dropped Frank Hayes' fly and the batsman reached second. Bob Johnson popped out and Chapman homered.

Rally Nets One Run
Gehringer launched Detroit's two-run assault in the fifth by doubling and he stole third after Greenberg had fouled out. Rudy York singled to score Charley, who stole second and, after Bell drew a walk, the Cherokee scored on Croucher's single.

In the sixth the Tigers added three more runs. McCosky singled, Fox was thrown out and Gehringer was safe on Gantebeln's fumble. Greenberg scored both runners with his homer, and Ross gave way to Parmelee who got rid of the next two batters.

An attempt to rally brought the A's only one more run in the seventh. Two men already were down when Chubby Dean, batting for Parmelee, doubled. He went to third on Gantebeln's single and home on one by Wally Moses.

Not content with a 10-4 margin, the Bengals scored three runs in the seventh and one in the eighth. Croucher singled and Benton sacrificed, but both runners were safe when Caster threw Low to second, and McCosky sent them home with his circuit blow for the three runs. The final tally came from singles by Pinky Higgins, Fox and Bell.

Eagles Leave For Munising At 10

Members of the Escanaba Eagles are asked to meet at the Metropolitan Sunday morning at 10 o'clock to start for Munising. The early starting time is due to the fact that the players want to get accustomed to the Munising diamond, which is surrounded by hills.

The two teams met on the local diamond last Sunday in a good game, the Eagles beating Munising by a score of 6-4. Manager George Williams announced last night that he expects to start Russ Greenless, his southpaw Cliff Oseen, who pitched a fine game last Sunday, will be used in reserve.

Error Gives Break As Indians Defeat Washington, 3 to 2

Cleveland, June 9 (AP)—Catcher Jake Early's error gave the Cleveland Indians the break they needed to win a 3-2 decision over Southpaw Kendall Chase and the Washington Senators today.

Chase held the Tribe to one hit for eight innings and fanned Jeff Heath to start the ninth. Hal Trosky lifted a home run over right field wall to tie the count at two-all, but Ken Keltner went out and Oscar Grimes missed a third strike for what should have been the third out. When the pitch went through Early for an error, Grimes was safe. Sammy Hale and Frankie Pyltak then singled to win the game.

Bob Feller, trying for his tenth victory, after giving up five blows, went out in the eighth for a pinch-hitter, so Johnny Broaca was credited with the victory.

HITLER'S 1940 BID ACCEPTED

Winter Olympics Will Go to Bavarian Alps; Detroit Loses

BY SCOTTY RESTON
London, June 9 (AP)—The International Olympic committee scrambled out of a tight corner tonight by accepting Adolf Hitler's personal invitation to hold the 1940 winter Olympics at Garmisch-Partenkirchen in the Bavarian Alps.

At the same time the committee awarded the 1944 summer games to London and the 1944 winter competition to Cortina D'Ampezzo in Italy. Bids of Detroit for the summer games and Montreal for the winter sports were defeated, the latter by a small margin of four votes.

Faced with a flat refusal by Swiss Olympic officials to run the 1940 winter games under Olympic rules, officials sent cables to Oslo, Norway, Lake Placid, N. Y., and Montreal. The replies were not encouraging. Oslo said it was holding the international ski championships next winter and Lake Placid said it was too short notice. Montreal said it would take the games if there absolutely was no other way out, but it did not want to prejudice chances of getting the 1944 games.

The difficulty was solved by Germany. It was announced the German delegate, Dr. Karl Ritterer Von Hall, had received assurances from Hitler that Germany would be pleased to invite the Olympic committee to Garmisch, scene of the 1936 winter games, and to provide necessary financial guarantees to see that the games were run in Olympic tradition.

The dispute between the I. O. C. and Swiss officials arose over the skiing program. In this part of the world skiing is the most important part of the winter games, but next year it has been reduced to the status of an exhibition because the I. O. C. refuses to allow skiing instructors to compete as amateurs.

St. Moritz officials originally accepted the winter games with the understanding that skiing would be reduced, but later advised the committee they wanted a full competitive ski program. Count Henri De Baillet Latour, I. O. C. president, yesterday called the Swiss committee to accept the program by noon or forfeit its rights. At 11:30 a. m. Switzerland refused to meet the committee's demands.

Here were the other developments of the four-day conference: (1) Basketball, handball, field hockey, and women's gymnastics were dropped from the program of next summer's Olympics, which will be held at Helsinki, Finland, July 20-Aug. 4, 1940.

(2) The I. O. C. awarded a special Olympic diploma to Leni Riefenstahl for her film of the eleventh Olympiad at Berlin in 1936.

(3) A special Olympic medal was awarded to the Union of Swedish Sports Federations for "outstanding achievement and development of sports and physical education."

(4) Women's speed skating was added as a competitive sport to the 1940 program. Heretofore it has been only an exhibition.

In the balloting for the 1944 games, Detroit got only two votes against London's 20, Rome's 12 and Lausanne's one. Cortina was selected with 16 votes to Montreal's 12 and two for Oslo.

It took two ballots to decide the venue of the 1944 winter games. On the first ballot Cortina got 16, Montreal 11, and Oslo 7. A second ballot was necessitated by the rule that the winner must have a majority over all others. Despite the explanation of the Oslo delegate that Norway could not hold the games with skiing as a mere exhibition, seven votes were cast for Oslo—an indication that the skiing dispute is not yet settled.

I. O. C. delegates pointed out that in a straight vote for second place between Rome and Detroit that the motor city probably would have had the support of most of the delegates that voted for London. The United States delegates, Avery Brundage and Frederick Couderd, were confident the Detroit delegation made a good impression, which should help the city in a new attempt to get the games in 1943.

Arrest Of Reds' Pitcher Ordered

New York, June 9 (AP)—The arrest of Paul Derringer, Cincinnati Reds' pitcher, for alleged failure to pay a judgment of $8,170 was ordered today by Supreme Court Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer.

The judgment was obtained recently by Robert E. Condon of Larchmont, N. Y., who claimed Derringer assaulted him in a Philadelphia hotel room in July, 1936.

In ordering Derringer's arrest, Justice Hammer asserted: "An assaultive athlete, through the very physical condition which enables him to gain place in competition, is a potential menace to law abiding persons. * * * The situation emphasizes the desirability of all athletes to follow the example of the great majority of their highly respected and decent living colleagues whose interests are jeopardized by any breach of the peace or unlawful or untoward act."

Peninsula Airmail Proposal Awaiting Federal Authority

Washington, June 9 (AP)—Coll Hunter, president of the Northwest Airlines, said today he believed a proposed air mail route from Chicago via Duluth-Superior to St. Paul-Minneapolis would be justified by passenger business that could be developed.

Other points on the route would include Fond du Lac, Oshkosh, Appleton, Green Bay and Wausau. Hunter was the last witness at a civil aeronautics authority hearing on the feasibility of authorizing the operation of the line and two alternatives proposed by the company. One of the other routes would be from Milwaukee through Green Bay to Marinette, Wis., Menominee, Escanaba and Marquette, Mich. Another route would follow the same course to Marquette, then to Ironwood, Mich., Duluth-Superior and St. Paul-Minneapolis.

Marquette Volume Light
Earlier, B. D. Suggs, Chicago postal inspector, testified airmail volume on the proposed Marquette route was light north of Green Bay. Hunter said this testimony was surprising as his company had counted on a greater volume of business from the Michigan cities.

Hunter said he believed the route from the Twin Cities to Duluth-Superior would develop business in the future and predicted eventually an air connection between Duluth-Superior to Port Arthur, Canada, which would open up a rich Canadian mining territory to air travel. He said airmail business could be expected to increase on the Chicago-Duluth-Twin Cities line if approved.

The airline executive said it was not feasible to operate a shuttle from Green Bay to Marquette, basing an airplane at Green Bay. Instead of this he advocated a service from Chicago, Milwaukee, Green Bay to Marquette and a second such service from Milwaukee to Duluth-Superior and the Twin Cities. If the authority should approve a service to Michigan points, he made no mention of the proposal to operate from Marquette through Ironwood to Duluth-Superior.

Postal Receipts Compared
Peter Van Nostrand, secretary to Representative Gehrmann (Prog-Wis.), told the authority railroad connections between Superior, Wis., and cities in the north and central portions of Wisconsin were bad and because of this little or no business was transacted between them. Originally, he said, railroad lines ran north and south for logging purposes. He said the Wisconsin cities along the proposed route to Duluth consider authorization of the proposed airline imperative.

Counsel was allowed ten days to submit brief outlines of their cases. There was no indication of when the authority would reach a decision.

Suggs introduced data to show that 1938 postal receipts for cities on the proposed routes were:
Fond du Lac, $184,165; Oshkosh, $248,275; Appleton, $213,724; Green Bay, $358,034; Wausau, $215,779; Superior, $153,459; Duluth, $740,810; Marinette, $72,908; Menominee, $85,359; Escanaba, $72,361; and Marquette, $88,541.

Suggs said air-train service at present provided cities between Milwaukee and Green Bay with about the same service as would be given by the proposed airline.

Industry On Decline
Suggs testified Escanaba, Marinette and Marquette, Mich., north of Green Bay would receive slight advantage in faster movement of mail but only on that ready before 1 p. m.

The witness said cities in the Fox River Valley between Milwaukee and Green Bay were "progressive," with population, business and postal receipts increasing. Those north of Green Bay, he said, were in sparsely settled country and were not as progressive as the Wisconsin cities. He said this was due to the decline of the lumber industry.

Suggs introduced data showing the outgoing and incoming air-

A. E. Graham, formerly of Indianapolis, lost a leg fighting with the Canadians at St. Amiens in 1918.

"How long have you been over here?" his majesty asked.

"I'm an American, sir," Graham replied drawing himself as erect as a cane and a crutch would permit.

"In what outfit did you serve?"

"In the Eighth Canadian Infantry, sir."

"And where did you lose your leg?"

"At Amiens, sir."

Graham confessed to a reporter, later, that he became so flustered he didn't think once to say "your majesty."

Isabelle Won't Curtsey
Displayed upon the chest of another American was the highest British decoration, the Victoria Cross. It caught the king's eye at once. Chatting briefly, his majesty learned that the wearer was Dr. Belvidere S. Hutcheson of Cairo, Ill., who served as a medical officer with the 75th Canadian battalion.

Meanwhile, the queen spoke to several ladies among the subject spectators. At her approach, little, three-year-old Isabelle Kinloch of Washington, whose mother restrained her with a leather leash, eeked toward the queen. Her majesty looked down and smiled.

"Curtsey," the mother urged.

Instead, Isabelle picked up the hem of her plaid skirt and tucked it in her mouth. Laughing, the queen held out her right hand and the girl shyly placed a sticky hand within it.

As the reception drew to a close, the band played "God Save the King," and the crowd broke into three spontaneous cheers.

Martin Warns Derby
With the shrieking sirens of a motorcycle escort clearing the way, the party made a fast trip to the capitol. At the foot of the steps, a reception committee, headed by Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee and Acting Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of house foreign affairs committee awaited them.

Among them, Rep. Martin, the Republican floor leader, attracted some attention, for, unlike his colleagues, who all wore high silk hats, he turned up in a derby, and one that came rather more down over the ears than up on the head.

The hundreds outside set up a din of applause as the royal party swept up to the capitol. The king alighted first, to be escorted into the capitol by Pittman, while the queen followed, with Bloom, inside, the house membership waited at one side and the senate the other.

Vice President Garner presented the senators, beginning with their dean, Borah of Idaho. One after another, the senators filed past, bowing deeply and saying: "Your majesties." Similarly, Speaker Bankhead introduced the house members.

The queen had a smile for each, and a word for several, especially the women members, while the king frowned uneasily under the glare of klieg lights installed for mail from each of the cities on the three proposed alternate routes. He said only 17 per cent of the airmail originated north of Green Bay while that city and those on the route to Milwaukee provided 83 per cent of the total.

the motion picture men. Finally, he asked that they be extinguished.

Calls King "Cousin"
Among the first house members to be presented were Rep. Mansfield of Texas, who for years has made his way about the capitol in a wheel chair, and Rep. Miller of Connecticut, who lost both legs in the war. The king leaned over and shook hands with each and both he and the queen engaged them in a brief conversation.

Bumpkins Rep. "Cousin"
Nat Patton of Texas, so-called because he greets all and sundry about the capitol with that appellation, told reporters he greeted their majesties with the following:

"Cousin George, I bring you greetings from the far-flung region of the empire state of Texas, the only state that never fought the English.

"Cousin, Elizabeth, you're a thousand times prettier than your pictures. You're nearly as pretty as the blue-bonnet girls of Texas."

"Thank you, sir," he quoted the queen as saying.

"I said to the queen, 'How do you do?'" recounted Rep. Lewis of Colorado. "I wish very much you could come out west." Her face lit up immediately, and she said with a voice with hardly a trace of British accent—"I wish we could, too."

Irish Stay Away
When the presentation had been concluded, the king turned to Pittman, the latter reported later, as dead:

"Her majesty and I are unable to express our appreciation of the universal courtesy and friendship we have received."

There were, of course, many who stayed away, some because they were disinterested, some because too close a connection with such things as royalty does not go too well with the voters back home and some because, like Rep. Sweeney of Ohio, they are Irish. Sweeney said that instead he sat in his office and read Washington's Farewell Address to his sons.

The royal party lunched with the Roosevelts on board the yacht and, refreshed by the cool river breezes, stepped ashore at Mount Vernon.

With the queen and Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt looking on, the king took up a wreath of red carnations, white lilies and blue iris and solemnly placed it upon the tomb. Attached to the wreath by a ribbon of the royal red and blue was a card inscribed "George R I and Elizabeth R."

Kitchen Interests Queen
Not only were the ever-present news photographers on hand—and for their benefit the queen graciously lowered her parasol lest it obstruct the focus—but Secretary Morgenthau and James Roosevelt had their own movie cameras, busy recording the historic scene.

An inspection of the old Washington mansion followed. Emerging, Queen Elizabeth displayed a sudden interest in a small white-washed building close by, used in the old days as a kitchen. Hurriedly, secret service men cleared the spectators away. Elizabeth was obviously deeply interested in the old kitchen utensils, gleaming pots and pans of copper, and the huge fireplace with its old iron crane.

Enroute from Mount Vernon to Arlington, the party drove a short distance off the road to inspect the Fort Hunt C.C.C. camp.

On to Arlington. There, the president stood bareheaded and General Mahtz, chief of staff, at rigid salute, while the king took a wreath of white flowers from a kilted Scotch soldier and laid it on the tomb. Then, at salute, while a bugler softly played taps.

King and queen then walked through the adjacent marble amphitheater to pay homage at the Canadian Cross, presented by the Dominion government in honor of Americans who died while fighting in the Canadian army.

NO TICKET TAPE
New York, June 9 (AP)—From a thousand unaccustomed flag-staffs all the way from the Battery to the Bronx the Union Jack floated today over a city which had gathered all its vast resources of pagantry to welcome the king and queen of England tomorrow.

The lowest of all official estimates was that 2,000,000 people would see their majesties during their ride through 51 miles of New York streets. Other millions simply will not be physically able to get close enough to the royal route for even a glimpse.

All save one of the devices of welcome—the screaming whistles of ships in the bay, the roar of cannon, the streams of water pouring from fireboats—will be loosed. Missing will be the dirty rain of ticker tape and confetti which always in the past had fallen about the heads of distinguished visitors.

For, in the first place, the usual route up Broadway will not be followed and in the second place the police asked the people not to use this and other similarly over-demonstrative forms of greeting.

CZECH WOMAN HELD AS NAZI POLICE KILLER

that the streets of Kladno be cleared between 8 p. m. and 5 a. m. It already had been ruled that doors and windows of homes must be closed during these hours.

In imposing the fine authorities instructed the president of the Kladno district to assess Czech workers as little as possible in collecting it.

It was reported in usually well-informed circles that approximately 300 persons—including state and district Czech police and the mayor of Kladno and other city officials—were interned in a schoolhouse. Included among those held, it was reported, was the district leader of the National Unity party, and only legal political group for Czechs in the protectorate.

The party, taking an extremely serious view of the shooting, declared such "acts of force are a crime against the entire Czech people."

The district council of Kladno posted 30,000 crowns ($1,200) reward for apprehension of the killer or killers, and then during the day raised it to 100,000 crowns ($4,000).
