KITCHEN REMEDIES USEFUL TO DOG OWNERS

By C. E. Harbison

Today dog raising in many cases has become more of a profession than a hobby and veterinarians have gone deeper than ever into the matter of canine ills. Anyone who is starting a kennel, no matter how small it may be, should make sure that he has accessibility to a good veterinarian. Those who are going to raise toy breeds should have a specialized knowledge and wide experience. With so many veterinarians now in the field there is little excuse to be without one at almost a moment's notice.

Novice dog owners and breeders are all too prone to try amateur doctoring methods on their dogs. Indiscriminate dosing is a grave mistake. If a dog is seriously ill the veterinarian should be sent for at once. If the case is not serious this is not necessary as there are many admirable remedies available.

Brandy is a remedy which is tried by many who are unaware that there is a decided danger in using it for gastric troubles. Brandy is invaluable in heart and lung cases but should be let alone in all stomach trouble. If there is the slightest inflammation the brandy is likely to make it worse. By far the safest remedy is the white of an egg, which forms a coating in the stomach and is wonderfully soothing, besides providing sufficient nourishment for the sufferer who will be better without any other food for twenty-four hours.

For ordinary indigestion a pinch of bicarbonate of soda will work wonders and can be given before each meal for several days. The kitchen also provides the very best of remedies for diarrhea in either puppies or grown dogs. Dry arrowroot sprinkled on cold milk is a first-rate cure, and a chopped hard-boiled egg is equally good as an alternative.

For the opposite condition, constipation, olive oil is excellent. It not only acts as a natural lubricant, but is also nourishing and soothing at the same time. It is also of great use as a preliminary to worming, and a teaspoonful to a dessert spoonful should be given every morning for a week before the worm dose is administered.

Olive oil is also valuable for external use. Two or three drops in the ears will relieve the pain from canker, or hardened wax, and it is the best thing there is for massaging any congested milk glands. It should be warmed before used in rubbing and should be just patted until the tender place is eased for gentle rubbing.

TOURIST TRADE OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Season Slow In Starting But Future Optimistic

Harold H. Dearing, of Pontiac, assumed the position as caretaker at Palms-Book state park, the site of Kitch-i-tiki-pi Springs, last week, but bad weather conditions the past few days has caused an unusual drop in attendance at the park.

Heavy tourist traffic is anticipated beginning next week through the summer months but official attendance at the park is expected to be materially lower than in recent years because of the shorter official season. In past years the park was officially opened on May 15.

With the conclusion of school terms this week, the volume of tourist travel through Manistique and Schoolcraft county is certain to expand many fold.

Resort operators and other business interests allied with the tourist industry are making plans for a busy season. Many new lake cottages and overnight cabins are being constructed in the Manistique area in anticipation of this demand.

Resort operators are somewhat divided on the part the two world fairs, at San Francisco and New York, will play in the tourist industry of Northern Michigan.

Some feel that the magnets of the world fairs will attract tourists away from this territory in favor of trips to the fairs. At least an equal number, however, believe that the increased traffic movement created by the existence of the world fairs is bound to divert some additional tourists through this region.

Lake fishing is reported as especially good this spring, certainly a factor in promoting tourist travel to Schoolcraft county. Many fine catches of various species have been taken from Indian Lake in the past few days.

Sellman Crew Lifts 42-Lb. Lake Trout

The Sellman Fishing company crew at Grand Marais made a record catch in Lake Superior last week when a 42-pound lake trout was lifted from the nets. The fish was taken about 50 miles from Grand Marais, the company's Lake Superior headquarters.

He believes that the Roosevelt political machine would be destroyed. He unites with screwballs who would not have tolerated him when he was an army officer—because he assumes that they could help him.

Many of us do not like Mr. Roosevelt. Some of us believe that he is an evil influence in American life. Many of us hate Communists. Some have prejudices against Jews. The American system is to leave all that to the ballot. If enough Americans dislike Mr. Roosevelt or object to his being President for life, he will retire to his dream house at Hyde Park to count his sheep. But whatever happens must be by the ballot; it must be orderly; it must be according to the Constitution and the law of the land.

Personally, I dislike the President and nearly everything he does and says, but I should vote for him tomorrow, even for a third term, if the alternative is a military dictator surrounded by frightened screwballs who live in terror of their own shadows. General Moseley may not realize that, but he is placing that alternative before many citizens, particularly before the opponents of the President.

It seems to me that General Moseley's course ought to be clear. He should first of all name names, provide data and demand the prosecution of traitors. No government can tolerate treason. Criticism, even of the abuse of the President, is not treason. The President must in a republic be something more than an ordinary citizen who for a term is entrusted with particular duties. But when men organize to change the form of government, to alter its procedure, to abolish the due process of the law—that is treason. No official could long stand who permitted its growth. Surely, public prosecutors would find laws to bring to justice those who actively plot the seizure of government by means other than the ballot. It is General Moseley's responsibility as a citizen and a government official to see to it that this is done.

He accuses the Communists and the Jews. Well, they have names. Which Communists and which Jews? Who are they? Where do they live? Exactly what have they done? If he has leads, but not complete data why not get Edgar Hoover and the E. F. I. on the job? If they live in New York, why not ask Tom Dewey to produce the culprit and the evidence?

It seems to me that a responsible man would do that. Certainly, if I possessed such evidence, I would feel called upon to present it to the proper authorities. Why not General Moseley? The suggestion that the President has connived at treason and that he restrained the army from investigating subversive activities is the most serious charge that can be made against any President. It demands substantiation.

Surely, General Moseley would realize that no such charge can be thrown into the wind of public and prejudiced gossip without doing America infinite harm. He may dislike Roosevelt, but he must love America. How then does he dare make such a charge without evidence? If he has the evidence, let it be produced. If he is repeating gossip, let that be made known.

We have here a social canker that needs immediate diagnosis and operation. It ought not to be left to chance. Some say that General Moseley wants to be President, and realizing that he has no chance at the ballot seeks it another way. That in itself is a dangerous disease. Too many of us are optimistically childish about these diseases. We laugh at Ludendorff and Hitler in Germany once. Nobody laughs at Hitler now.

The Dies Committee served its country well by bringing this disease to public attention. Now is the time to act. Now is the time to discover whether there is a scintilla of fact in the accusations. If there are traitors, try them and hang them. But we must be sure that we try the right ones and hang the right ones. No decent citizen would protect a traitor, but we must be sure that he is a traitor. Only the duly constituted courts can decide that. America must be ruled by law—not by gossip and prejudice.

Gala Celebrations Mark Centennial Of Baseball

OLD VETERANS HAVE BIG DAY

Wagners Beat Collinses, 4-2, In Exhibition at Cooperstown

BY EDDIE BRIETS
Cooperstown, N. Y., June 12 (AP)—The first hundred years are always the hardest and old man baseball took off on his second century today after being hailed and feted at the biggest birthday party tossed him during his 100 year rule as the No. 1 figure in American sport.

There were parades, dedications, speaking, a Babe Ruth "comeback" clam bake, ball games and what not for more than 11,000 people who poured into this pretty village where Abner Doubleday sat down on a hot day and invented the national pastime more than 100 years ago.

Landis Leads Cheers
Commissioner K. M. Landis, high priest of baseball, was there to lead the cheering. He received plenty of lusty rooting assists from a score of men whose names are found in almost every baseball blue book ever published.

The baseball museum and hall of fame with its relics of glorious bygone days, was dedicated; so was Doubleday field, built on the actual spot where Doubleday's pioneers first trotted into action one hundred years ago.

Eleven living members of the hall of fame renewed feuds and friendships and baseball as it was displayed in 1839, in the 1850's and in 1939—was reeled off by teams of schoolboys, soldiers and picked major leaguers, wearing the uniforms of the periods they represented.

Men who have helped make baseball history—Babe Ruth, Connie Mack, Hans Wagner, old Nap Lajoie and Walter Johnson, to name just a few—sat on the platform as Landis dedicated the hall of fame "to all America."

Cobb Comes Late
It was accepted by Ford C. Frick and William C. Harridge, president of the National and American leagues; and William C. Bramhan, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball clubs, representing the minors.

John A. Heydler, former National league president, who conceived the idea of the baseball party, was a guest of honor and introduced Landis.

Ten of the eleven living members of the hall of fame were presented with engraved bats, and a ruffle of drums and the sounding of taps answered the calling of the names of the 14 deceased members.

Peach of the Detroit Tigers, was delayed en route by illness and didn't arrive until after the ceremonies. But the other ten were there from Connie Mack, the 76-year-old dean down to Babe Ruth, the freshman of the lot.

In addition to Mack and Ruth were Honus Wagner, greatest shortstop of them all and still active as coach of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Tris Speaker, the old "grey eagle" of Cleveland; Walter Johnson, the "Big Train" of Washington; Nap Lajoie a great Cleveland star of the old days; George Sisler, holder of the world's record for safe hits in a single season; Cy Young, who won 511 major league games; Grover Cleveland Alexander, the shut-out artist of his day and Eddie Collins, former great second sacker for the Athletics and Chicago White Sox.

Ruth In "Comeback"
Ruth, Johnson and Alexander, got the largest ovations, but all were warmly received by the fans.

Afterwards the immortals donned uniforms and marched with the major leaguers and amateur players to Doubleday field for the "cavalcade of baseball."

A sell-out crowd of more than 10,000 saw a team of National and American league players, selected by Hans Wagner via the "choose-up" method, defeat a team captained by Eddie Collins, general manager of the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 2 in seven innings.

The high spot of the afternoon was a "comeback" by Babe Ruth, who lumbered out as a pinch hitter for the Wagners. The Babe, off his old time form, popped weekly to Catcher Art Jorgens after missing one strike by a country mile and fouling off another.

Fast Industrial Competition Sets Pace In Advancement of Softball

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer

Softball was an easy and natural outgrowth of the national game but it owes much of its high stage of development to the organization of leagues.

The speedy sport soon became recognized as just the thing for school, city, church and industrial competition, with the latter possibly playing the greater part in the game's systematized organization.

Although independent, school and club teams represent a majority of the softball clubs in the country, the best and most successful softball teams are those which spring from industry and business.

And just as athletic scholarships have been the medium through which many boys have received college education so is softball providing the opportunity for young men and women to obtain good jobs.

Many a stenographer, welder, machinist, and clerk owes his job to the fact that he can toss that 12-inch ball plateward with blinding speed or while it over the fence.

SOFTBALL CLUBS PROVE GOOD ADVERTISING

Industrial firms don't back softball clubs merely for the publicity they receive. They have discovered that the good will they create and better morale established among their employees is payment enough.

On the other hand softball teams have provided a tremendous advertising medium for clubs like Weaver-Wall of Cleveland; Ke-Nash-A of Kenosha, Wis.; Briggs Body of Detroit; and other teams whose winning ways have attracted national prominence.

When crack industrial teams go on the road they play before packed parks in every town. They get offers for games from coast to coast, from Canada to the Gulf, and business managers of touring top-notchers can draw their pick of games that will draw upwards of 10,000 fans.

Small merchants find it not too expensive and to their advantage to back teams in neighborhood leagues. Enterprising youngsters who can't find one merchant for a backer, will go out and get 10 or more, with each getting the name of his business establishment on a uniform. The club merely calls itself "East End Merchants" or "Tenth Street Merchants", etc.

SIGNING TALENT IN SPIRITED BUSINESS

So keen has competition become in large cities that the fight for talent is a spirited one. Because star feminine performers are more at a premium than men, girls with national reputations frequently receive—and accept—offers of jobs in distant cities, just to play softball.

In Cleveland, one businessman threatened a $10,000 lawsuit because another firm lured his star player away with a better offer. Financing a softball club is much easier than that of a baseball team, but according to Verne Fargo, veteran business manager of Cleveland Weaver-Wall teams, a Double A club can be an expensive luxury, often running as high as $1000 or more.

This covers the cost of uniforms, jackets, equipment, some traveling expenses, refreshments and incidentals. Just as often as not, a firm will fall to get this back through any increase in business brought about by softball, but businessmen consider it money well spent. Winning a league, city or national championship can mean as much to employees as a bonus.

NELSON TAKES NATIONAL OPEN

Cool Texan Bests Wood In Second Playoff of Golfing Classic

BY BILL BONI
Philadelphia, June 12 (AP)—Byron Nelson, as durable as a cow pony from his native Texas and as cool as a Tom Collins on a summer day, fired two great iron shots on the third and fourth holes of the Philadelphia Country Club's Spring Mill course today and thereby won the 43rd national open golf championship.

He had to go to the eighteenth green of his second playoff round with Craig Wood before he could make the victory official with a one-over-par 70 to Wood's 73. But the blond bomber from Mararoneck, N. Y., was ready to admit their struggle for the game's most important title was over as early as the fourth hole.

Eagles Come Easy
On No. 3, Nelson used his sand wedge on a downhill lie and lofted a shot that almost rolled into the cup for an eagle 2. On the fourth, out-driven a good 40 yards and 200 yards short of the green, Byron laced into a No. 1 iron and saw his ball light into the green, 15 feet short of the cup, roll up and nestle against the pin.

When he and Wood walked onto the green and the pin was lifted out the ball plopped into the cup for a deuce, Nelson's second eagle of the tournament. Right there the 27-year-old pro from Reading, Pa., who shortly will take over a new job at Inverness in Toledo, had the playoff won. He was four shots in front, and that was too much for Wood ever to make up.

But Wood didn't stop trying. Even on the 17th which he had started four strokes down, he hit a fine approach shot within two feet of the pin and canned the putt for a birdie 3. Even that, though, left him three strokes down with only one to play. Nelson, down the long 18th where Sam Snead had blown a championship which was his for the asking, was far too steady for any chance of a crack up.

Bad Luck Persists
For Wood, it meant he had lost probably his last, and best, shot at the title. It also meant that the bad luck which had pursued the 37-year-old veteran through four other playoffs still was hanging on. In 1931 he lost a playoff to the late Johnny Golden for the North-South championship at Pinehurst.

In 1933, he was beaten by Denny Shute in a playoff for the British open title. In 1934, Paul Runyan beat him out in the P. G. A. final in two extra holes. In 1935, after being tied by Gene Sarazen's double eagle, he lost in a playoff for the Augusta Masters.

For Nelson, this was the biggest of four major tournament victories. Byron, rated one of the greatest iron players in the game, especially into the face of such a brisk wind as whipped over this course today, won the Metropolitan in 1936, the Augusta Masters the following year, and the North-South open at Pinehurst this spring.

His 70 today gave him the best scoring record in 14 playoffs for the open championship. The wiry youngster, a member of last year's U. S. Ryder Cup team, shot a one under par 68 in his final round of the regulation 72-holes of the tournament Saturday to tie at 234 with Wood and Shute. He matched Wood's 68 with his second straight as both tied in the 18-hole playoff yesterday and eliminated Shute, who shot a 76, and then followed up with a one over par performance when the pressure was hardest.

Both In Sandtrap
In Nelson's opinion, the turning point came at the 14th hole, a 394-yarder where a blind drive has to clear a fairway bunker 200 yards out from the tee. Both men cleared this hazard, with Wood, as usual, 20 yards out front. But Nelson stuck his second into the trap.

That worried Nelson. "I was only three shots in front to there, and figured I was leaving the door open for Craig," he said later.

But Wood shut the door in his own face by following Nelson into the same sand pit, and then turned the key. Their balls were so close that, on his third Wood had to take his stance with Nelson's ball between his feet. The big blond hoisted it out of the trap, 10 feet past the pin. Nelson exploded his out almost the same distance away.

Nelson knew how much hung on that put. There was no hesitation as he studied the line and stepped up to stroke the ball. He eased it in, Wood barely missed his, and Nelson was four shots in front again with only three holes to play.

Scoring two runs in the last half of the ninth inning, Wells nosed out Cooks by 4-3 in the only Delta - Menominee league game played Sunday. All others were rained out.

The game was a nip and tuck affair all the way, Cooks scoring single runs in the first, fourth and seventh and Wells in the fourth and sixth. Going into the last frame one run behind, Wells pushed across two runs to score their first victory of the league and dump Cooks from the number of undefeated teams.

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES table with columns for Net change, Previous day, Month ago, Year ago, 1939 high, 1939 low, 1938 high, 1938 low.

BY GREDEKICK GARDNER New York, June 12 (AP)—Many stock market traders staid today and permitted leaders to drift fractions to a point or more downward.

There was nothing particularly disturbing in the general run of news, but at the same time reaction to the resumption of the rally seemed to be lacking. Analysis suggested the market acted normally in view of last week's run-up and was entitled to at least a temporary breathing spell.

The list displayed lagging tendencies at the start and continued, in reverse to the finish, although closing prices in a number of cases were above the lows established after mid-day.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off 4 of a point at 48.1. Lightness of selling throughout was mildly encouraging to those who look upon volume as an indicator of a decisive change in direction. Transfers for the five hours totaled only 424,250 shares against 786,270 last Friday when the market was rising.

Word from Washington that the house ways and means subcommittee had voted tentatively to approve some tax revisions desired by industry came too late to influence trading sentiment to any great extent.

While speculative contingents had to contend with the General Motors Michigan strike, automotive shares were no worse than others. "GM" ended off 1-8 to 44 7/8 and Chrysler down 1/4 at 49 7/8. Ward's boosted its estimate of new car production this month from 225,000 to around 275,000 units.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem conceded about a point each as this week's mill operations were placed at 53.1 percent of capacity, a drop of 1.1 points. The decline was hardly surprising in view of the three consecutive weekly advances after the soft coal tie-up was concluded. U. S. Steel's May shipments came up to forecasts and for the first five months topped the same period last year by 1,573,538 tons.

The majority of the rails kept losses to minor amounts as last week's freight loadings, based on early reports, were believed to have rebounded sharply after the Memorial holiday week's let-down. Bonds and commodities, on the whole, pointed lower. Wheat at Chicago was off 1-8 to 1-5 cents a bushel and corn lost 3/4 to 1/2. Cotton was down 4/8 to 60 cents a bale.

Salt Dome Oil and Superior Oil of California stood out with moderate advances in a generally lower curb market. Off fractionally were American Cyanamid "B," Lockhead and International Petroleum. Turnover of 78,000 shares compared with 112,000.

DAY'S MARKETS IN BRIEF New York, June 12 (AP)—Stocks: Lower; list in slow retreat. Bonds: Depressed; U. S. governments joint setback. Curb: Down; utilities sold. Foreign Exchange: Steady; gold again lower. Cotton: Lower; general selling. Sugar: Easy, Cuban pressure. Coffee: U. S. even; European, trade selling off local buying. Chicago: Wheat: Lower; new wheat movement. Corn: Lower with wheat. Cattle: Steady to strong. Hogs: Fairly active; steady to 5 higher.
