

BATTLE TO 'CLEAN UP' WPA BEGINS

JAP BLOCKADE OF BRITISH IS TIGHTENED UP

FOOD IS CUT OFF; TOKYO LISTS DEMANDS

BY J. D. WHITE
Tientsin, June 15 (Thursday)
Japanese officers tightening their blockade on Tientsin's British and French concessions served notice today they would keep those areas isolated until Britain yielded to new and wider demands.

Apparently given a free hand by Tokyo in this tense far eastern British blockade, the officers rejected amicable settlement, and declared bluntly in a statement:
"We will not consider our present measures until the British reverse their policy and afford us complete cooperation."

Shoes Taken Off
The dispute, which started with refusal of British authorities to hand over to Japanese four Chinese accused of terrorism, appeared more firmly deadlocked than when the Japanese army started its blockade early yesterday.

The 120,000 population of the British and French concessions (including 5,000 foreigners) was virtually cut off from food and all other supplies. Prices soared. Provisions were scarce.

British passing Japanese barriers to enter or leave the blockaded areas were forced to undergo thorough searches, in many cases submitting to removal of shoes and stockings.

Traffic of foreign and commercial steamers to Tientsin was stopped completely. The vessels halted instead at the seacoast, down the Hai river from Tientsin, and discharged their cargoes at Tangku.

Boarding Charged
New conditions stipulated by the Japanese, in addition to surrender of the four Chinese suspected of the slaying of a Tientsin official, were that the British:
1. Quit protecting "anti-Japanese and Communist" elements;
2. Quit supporting Chinese currency;

3. Quit "hoarding goods in Tientsin, thereby causing price increases."
4. Quit using "unregistered radio stations in Tientsin; (apparently referring to diplomatic and naval radio);

5. Allow the use of Japanese-prepared textbooks in the British concession.

A total of 2,250 French and British troops were on duty in the concessions. Japan has a large army of occupation in this north China area, which came under Japanese domination in the first months of the Chinese-Japanese war that started July 7, 1937.

There were unconfirmed reports that Japanese were to parade today through the British concession to graves of Japanese killed in the Boxer Rebellion of 1900. They were said to be planning to deposit wreaths on the graves, which are inside the concession.

The Japanese, whose announcements were made today, were said to be planning to deposit wreaths on the graves, which are inside the concession.

TAVERN KEEPER HELD AS BANDIT

Attempt Made to Hold Up Savings Bank at Constantine, Mich.

White Pigeon, Mich., June 14 (AP)—Miguel Brennan, 40, a beer garden operator and former amateur boxer, was held by state police here tonight after what Sgt. William Gore of the state police described as an attempted robbery of the First Commercial Savings Bank of Constantine, Mich.

Sgt. Gore said Brennan entered the bank today and demanded $5,000 on Morris Bennett, a cashier.

Bennett said Brennan menaced him with a gun, and that he jammed the gun through the speaking tube in the bank cage window. Mrs. Lena Lepley, a bookkeeper, stepped on a burglar alarm. Brennan fled without taking any money.

Sgt. Gore said Brennan denied that he carried a gun, and that he had an old automobile door handle with which he threatened Bennett. No gun was found.

Brennan was arrested at his beer garden, a few miles out of Constantine. Police said he offered no resistance.

Sgt. Gore said Brennan would be taken to the St. Joseph county jail at Centerville and that he would be arraigned there on a charge of attempted robbery.

BABY TOSSED INTO STREAM BY SNATCHER

SLIM CLUES FOUND IN CLYDE, OHIO, KIDNAPING

BY ARTHUR S. BOSTWICK
Clyde, O., June 14 (AP)—An autopsy tonight indicated that the killer who snatched Baby Hudson Fink from his home suffocated the infant with his blanket before throwing him in a creek seven miles away.

A mysterious stranger reported in the neighborhood and a strange call to police inquiring about federal agents provided but slim clues for the forces of Sheriff H. L. Meyers and Federal Agent J. R. O'Hara.

Suffocation Indicated
The body of the 10-week-old baby who was snatched while sleeping in his crib without arousing the family dog, was found today in Green creek 12 hours after the kidnaping.

Coroner D. W. Philo stated: "After examining the lungs I found they were not water-logged. Therefore death definitely was not due to drowning. It probably was due to suffocation by placing the blanket over the baby's mouth."

"Preliminary examination disclosed no trace of poison."
The baby's blanket was taken with the child and it has not been found although officers have made exhaustive search. One blue bootie was taken and one remained in the crib.

We haven't found anything to indicate that I could make an arrest tonight," Sheriff Myers said after he and O'Hara spent three hours questioning the baby's mother, her brother, Edwin, and her parents.

"Asks about a stranger who, the baby's mother said, approached her near her home Tuesday night and inquired directions to a neighbor's, Sheriff Myers commented:
"He should be in the picture. He seems to fit in very well."

A telephone query received from an unidentified woman at nearby Fremont, O., police headquarters three hours before the baby was missed, seeking to learn location of "the nearest federal bureau of investigation office," also may have a bearing on the case, the sheriff declared.

"Rags" Didn't Bark
Myers reported that Jerry Swartzlander, operator for a city-county police radio system at Fremont, received the call about 8 o'clock last night.

When told the nearest office of the federal bureau of investigation was at Cleveland, the woman asked: "Is there one at Toledo?" She said nothing more.

The mother, Mrs. Velma Fink, 22, was in collapse both before and after her baby was found dead, but she regained her composure late today.

"Now, anyway, I know where my baby is," she said. "But it's awful."

Her brother Edwin, 20, expressed belief the family dog, "Rags" would have barked if a stranger entered the house to seize the child. He said the dog was in either the dining room or living room of the house when the child disappeared from the parlor.

Er-Husband Quizzed
Irvin Fink, the baby's father—divorced last week by the mother—explained "Oh, it can't be true" when he got the first word the body had been found.

"In spite of our divorce I think just as much of 'Kelly' (his nickname for Mrs. Fink) as I ever did."

Fink later was questioned for an hour and a half by Sheriff Myers.

Flint Pickets Go Home; State Troopers Called

Flint, Mich., June 14 (AP)—Two hours after 85 Michigan state policemen were ordered to the scene of strike violence here pickets of the AFL-United Automobile Workers were withdrawn from Flint General Motors plants.

Homer Martin, president of the UAW-AFL, announced later in Detroit after a lengthy session with General Motors executives that a settlement ending the six-day-old strike had been agreed upon.

Details were not revealed, but Martin said they were mutually satisfactory and recognized his union as a bargaining agent. Corporation representatives made no comment. Martin sided left for Flint and Saginaw to submit the terms to union members.

Leaders of the rival CIO auto workers voiced skepticism concerning Martin's announcement and R. J. Thomas, president of the UAW-CIO, telegraphed William S. Knudsen, G. M. president, that "any understanding reached with Homer Martin will have no standing with General Motors workers, for whom only the UAW affiliated with the CIO has the right to speak. We will hold you strictly accountable for any breach of contract you have signed with us and for any violation of the Wagner labor relations act."

Orders were issued to 73 state patrolmen and 12 sergeants after members of the UAW-AFL, which called the strike to enforce demands for recognition as bargaining agent for G. M. employees, and CIO-affiliated UAW unionists turned streets near the headquarters close to the Fisher Body No. 1 plant into a battleground.

Six persons were injured in hand-to-hand fighting; rocks and pop bottles flew in another encounter.

James R. Pollock, Flint city manager, carried an appeal for aid to Gov. Luren D. Dickinson at Lansing, the state capital. After a conference the 80-year-old governor issued this statement:
"The state will enforce the law. It will protect the worker in his right to work, regardless of which organization he happens to belong to. It will preserve peace, and protect life and property, without favoritism to either of the warring factions."

Hamilton Says Roosevelt Will Promise Anything to Gain Votes
Fort Wayne, Ind., June 14 (AP)—Republican National Chairman John Hamilton, addressing a G. O. P. rally here tonight, quoted Democratic National Chairman James A. Farley as saying "some candidates will promise anything in order to gain votes," then asserted, "Reluctantly and with shame, candor compels me to say that Franklin Roosevelt stands today as the most outstanding of such men."

Hamilton reviewed Democratic platform pledges he said were broken by the Roosevelt administration, and asked:
"Is it any wonder that our people have lost faith in the pledges of political parties? Is it any wonder that they distrust the utterances of those seeking office? With the experiences of the last seven years so clearly in our minds, it could not be otherwise."

"It is for that reason that the Republican party, when it meets in national convention next year, must resolutely and fearlessly be determined to give the people of this country an honest platform and an honest candidate for the presidency."

"We must not promise the impossible. We must shun expediency. We must undertake the task of restoring to the American people faith and confidence in the truthfulness, worth and sincerity of political platforms and declarations."

Beer Banned Until 2 p. m. On Sundays

Lansing, June 14 (AP)—The liquor control commission today forbade the sale of beer in drinking houses during the normal hours of Sunday church services.

The new rule, effective July 1, prohibits the serving of drinks from 2 a. m. to 2 p. m. on the Sabbath. In the past, licensees were permitted to resume sales at 7 a. m. Sunday.

The sale of hard liquor always has been forbidden on Sundays since the repeal of prohibition in Michigan.

MOONSHINE RING SENT TO PRISON

Monroe Poolroom Served As Headquarters; Gang Started In 1936

Detroit, June 14 (AP)—Federal Judge Edward J. Moynihan imposed sentences today on seven of eight men convicted last week of operating a moonshine liquor ring in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Those sentenced: Emanuel Badalamenti, 42, Monroe, Mich., poolroom operator and alleged head of the gang, fined $5,000 and sentenced to four years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Clyde Cunningham, 28, Monroe, $500 and two years.

John Jackson, 31, Toledo, O., four years.

Charles J. Spadafora, 55, Monroe, two and one half years.

Leon J. La Prad, 32, Monroe, two years.

Charles Annarino, 39, Toledo, 10 months in federal detention farm, Milan, Mich.

James Annarino, brother of Charles, one year, suspended three years.

Badalamenti was found guilty by a jury. The others pleaded guilty. Jesse Lay, 27, Toledo, who also pleaded guilty, was referred to the federal probation officer.

The men were charged with conspiracy to violate the federal internal revenue law. Federal agents estimated that the loss to the government in unpaid alcohol taxes was $180,000.

The gang was alleged to have bought liquor in Chicago and distributed it from Toledo to bootleggers at cut rates. Badalamenti's poolroom was alleged to have been the headquarters. The gang started operations in 1936, U. S. officials said.

Relief Case Load Bottom Seen Near

Lansing, June 14 (AP)—George F. Granger, acting emergency relief administrator, said today current declines indicated the welfare case load would reach a "bottom" of about 60,000 cases in August.

He said the current burden was 73,271 cases, compared with 75,953 listed in a survey a week ago.

The auditor general's office, with the sanction of the emergency commission, released $100,000 to Wayne county today for welfare purposes, the only release yet made under a $750,000 deficiency appropriation by the legislature.

Lack of revenues to cover vouchers was given as the reason for the delay.

State Budget, Cut 13 Millions, Sent To Gov. Dickinson

Lansing, June 14 (AP)—The $57,695,000 omnibus budget bill, together with a detailed statement of the state's fiscal position, was placed on Governor Dickinson's desk today for signature or veto.

The governor said he would give the matter considerable study before acting.

The committee, drawn by Budget Director Grover C. Dillman, showed that departments headed by elective state officers received larger appropriations for the next fiscal year than they got in the fiscal year closing June 30.

The total budget, Dillman said, amounted to $108,275,808, $7,000,000 more than anticipated revenues, but $13,000,000 less than granted in the current year.

Some Increases
Dillman said $17,307,000 had been expended for welfare relief this year, compared to $8,750,000 appropriated for the next year. Medical aid for crippled children was allocated $386,000, compared to $98,450 this year, while medical aid for afflicted children was given $518,000, compared to $1,430,015 in this year.

The saving of $10,080,000 thus obtained, however, was offset in part by other increases.

The department of state, which obtained $119,100 this year, was given $152,500 in the new budget. The treasury department, whose current expenses were $68,000, was given $89,745 next year.

The appropriation for the attorney general's department was increased from $194,600 to $210,000. The bill for the department of public instruction was increased from $99,950 to $108,000 and that of the department of agriculture from $402,500 to $480,000.

Dillman said the new appropriation of $4,475,000 for the University of Michigan, compared with $4,487,056 received this year. The allocation for the Michigan state college was increased from $3,372,800 this year to $2,509,000 next year.

HOMING PIGEONS SENT SENATORS

Birds Know Where They Are Going, Congress Doesn't, Says Holt

Washington, June 14 (AP)—Senators tossed a flock of homing pigeons out of their office windows today, thereby doing their part in a stunt conceived by the Hazelton (Pa.) flying club.

The club sent each senator a bird in a cardboard box, designed like a house and containing a letter reviewing the depression and calling attention to the work of the National Youth Administration.

Each letter was signed by the bird's name (presumably all were females) and asked the recipients to send her home to her mate "and the twins." In the roof of each house was a cigar for the senator.

"Ellen" arrived in a state of rigor motifs at the office of Senator Davis (R-Pa.). The senator sent a telegram of condolence and ordered "Ellen," the only reported casualty, laid to rest.

Aides of Senator Holt (D-W. Va.), peeked in at "Mary Jane" and expressed pity at her confinement.

"Poor bird, nothing," the senator said, showing her out the window. "She knows where she's going and that's more than we can say for congress."

Marinette To Have New Radio Station

Washington, June 14 (AP)—The federal communications commission today approved tentatively two applications for new radio stations at Saginaw, Mich.

The applicants are the Saginaw Broadcasting company and Gross & Shields.

The Saginaw Broadcasting company would operate on 1200 kilocycles, with night power of 100 watts and day power of 250 watts, while Gross & Shields would operate on 950 kilocycles with power of 500 watts, daytime only.

The commission authorized the M. & M. Broadcasting company to construct a station at Marinette, Wis., to operate daytime on 570 kilocycles with 250 watt power.

LEVY ON BANK STOCK

Lansing, June 14 (AP)—An opinion by Attorney General Thomas Read declared today that local assessing officers "must assess individual stockholders for their bank stock, unless a bank specifically requests that it be permitted to assume the tax burden. Read held that the banks are liable for the tax in the event it is not paid otherwise."

WORK RELIEF SETUP IS DUE FOR REVISION

CONGRESS TO SLAP AT RACKETEERING AND POLITICS

Washington, June 14 (AP)—A new relief bill, ordering extensive changes in WPA practices and appropriating $1,477,000,000 to finance the agency through another year, started through congress today as the culmination of months of fighting over relief policies and expenditures.

Presenting the measure to the house on behalf of the appropriations committee, Representative Woodrum (D-Va.) was roundly cheered when he said it would "clean up WPA," eliminate "the relief racketeer," and make the nation's relief dollar assist a greater number of people.

May Pass Friday
For the Republican minority of the committee, Representative Taber of New York asserted that the majority had "tried as far as they could to improve the administrative setup and method of operation of WPA," but should, instead, have brought in a bill decentralizing relief by turning its administration over to the states and localities.

With these developments, the house began a three-day battle over the measure, a contest which all concede will result some time Friday evening in passage of the bill, but which is expected to bring several sharp conflicts over its individual provisions.

No difficulty was expected over the amount appropriated, exactly the sum requested by President Roosevelt. The controversies were expected to arise over restrictions the measure places upon the spending of the money.

Project Cost Limited
Foremost among these, to judge by today's debate, was a limitation of $25,000 upon the total cost of any WPA project. This stipulation was intended to force localities to go to the public works administration for the financing of large projects. PWA requires that the localities chip in 45 per cent of the cost, while WPA local contributions.

Another was an outright prohibition upon all projects wholly financed by the federal government. Related to this was another order that the federal theater project be discontinued on July 1, and that the federal arts project, the writers project and the historical documents projects be undertaken only when sponsored and partly paid for by states or local governments.

Debate also touched frequently upon a new formula for distributing relief funds among the various sections of the country. Instead of giving WPA wide discretion, the bill calls for distribution to states according to the formula: 45 per cent on the basis of the number of unemployed; and 10 per cent at WPA's discretion.

Three-Member Board
In addition, the bill would Supplement the present WPA administrator with a bi-partisan board of three members: Provide for a "rotation" of WPA workers so that project workers would be dropped after 18 months work, giving work to others in need for a while. Those dropped would be subject to re-employment subsequently.

Every six months of the rolls of relief employes to determine whether all are in need of help. Change the present prevailing wage provision by permitting the new board to establish a working

Bob Beaudoin, John Cleary and Earl Harris, left yesterday for East Lansing where they will represent Escanaba in the second annual Wolverine State which opens today and closes June 23.

All three boys are students at Escanaba high school with outstanding records. Harris, who will represent local Masonic Order, is a member of the senior high band, the Tri-S, senate club, Hi-Y, orchestra and is a member of the DeMolay, Christian Endeavor and Boy Scouts. Cleary, representing the American Legion, is a member of Hi-Y, C.Y.O., Columbian Squares, Mask and Wig, band and is junior assistant scoutmaster. Beaudoin, who represents the Knights of Columbus, is a member of the Hi-Y, Columbian Squares, C.Y.O., senate club, Mask and Wig, camera and history clubs, tennis team and president of the junior class.

880 Boys Present

Eight hundred and eighty outstanding boys from every county in the state will be assembled at East Lansing, on the campus of Michigan State college. The group will be divided into cities, and counties and the entire group will comprise the Wolverine Boys' State. For ten days the boys will conduct the "affairs of the mythical 49th state," elect their own governor, state and county officers, city council, establish their courts, city law enforcement agencies and legislative bodies under the general supervision of a specially chosen counselor staff.

Besides being a training in good citizenship and actual governmental problems, a very interesting program is being arranged, including sight-seeing tours, trips through the college farms, industrial plants and the state capitol.

The political parties to be set up in Boys' State are purely mythical and will have no resemblance to the present political parties in the state.

Detroit, June 14 (AP)—Jack Zeller, general manager of the Detroit Tigers, was under medical care at Providence hospital today for injuries suffered when he was struck by a baseball during a work-out at Briggs Stadium. Zeller was able to walk off the field, but he was removed to the hospital as a precautionary measure.

Detroit Pair Free In Plot To Murder Woman's Husband

Detroit, June 14 (AP)—Mrs. Juliet Becker and Ernest Hawkins, held since June 2 in connection with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Becker's husband, Henry, were freed today after posting bond of $15,000 each.

Meantime, the state prepared for a third and final day of testimony at examination of the defendants.

The examination was adjourned late Tuesday until Saturday when Prosecutor Charles L. Wilson of Oakland county told Justice of the Peace Ben W. Winter of Berkley he would be able to produce two witnesses who are not now in Michigan.

Becker, an Oak Park automobile parts manufacturer, was shot and killed in the back yard of his Oak Park home the night of May 26.

Prosecutor Wilson has charged that "infatuation" of Mrs. Becker and Hawkins had resulted in a plan to have Becker killed.

Hawkins was superintendent of Becker's factory.

PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Menominee—Marquette postal officials now in Washington attending a hearing of the Civil Aeronautics authority on a petition of Northwest Airlines for a license to operate an air transport line from Chicago north through Menominee to Marquette report there is a "good chance of a certificate being issued." H. P. Westervelt told the Menominee Rotary club today.

Westervelt, president of the Menominee chapter of the National Aeronautics Authority, spoke to the Rotary club at its meeting in Hotel Menominee. He returned last week from Washington, where he represented Menominee, Marinette, Escanaba, and Marquette at the C.A.A. hearing.

There is reason to believe that Northwest Airlines' application for a license will receive favorable consideration, Westervelt said. Comparatively small volume of air mail from the U. P. means only that adequate service has not been available, he said.

BRIGGS PAYS DIVIDENDS

ers and the G-man, James Powers one of a group with whom Fink said he played cards Tuesday night, also was seized.

Sheriff Myers said Fink, Powers, and members of Mrs. Fink's family all agreed "voluntarily" to be fingerprinted. "For purposes of elimination." He indicated all finger prints would be compared with those on the front door knob of the Baker house, which he removed from the door frame and safeguarded.

Sheriff Myers asserted Fink, 23, a foundry worker, could throw no light on the theft of the baby.

Thrown From Bridge?

"Death evidently was not from drowning," said Coroner D. W. Philo. "There were no apparent signs of physical violence."

The mouth was slightly bloody, but Dr. Philo said this might have resulted when the baby struck the water. He and sheriff's officers theorized the child was thrown from a bridge 15 feet above the creek, perhaps from a speeding motor car.

The body was found 71 feet downstream, three feet from shore, floating in a clump of willow branches. At that spot the creek is 35 feet wide and nine feet deep.

Oran Baker, 64-year-old grandfather of the baby, identified the body on the creek bank.

"The dirty skunk!" he exclaimed.

The child disappeared between 10 and 11 p. m. Tuesday from the nine-room Baker home, where Mrs. Fink had been living with her parents. The grandfather said both Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Fink left the house for a short time Tuesday night, and the baby apparently was taken while they were away.

He said the young mother told him on her return she had been stopped at her doorstep by a stranger who asked the way to their next-door neighbors. Baker asserted he had no other theory as to who might have entered the Bakers' parlor—a party through their front door—and taken the child.

One pale blue bootie was left behind. The mate to this bootie was missing today when the body was found. Also missing was a blanket in which the child was wrapped. The body was in ribbon tied nightgown and diapers.

Frankenstein Jury Unable To Agree In Flint Assault Case

Flint, Mich., June 14 (AP)—The circuit court jury which heard the trial of Richard T. Frankenstein, executive board member of the CIO United Automobile Workers, on a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm disagreed tonight after deliberating ten hours.

The jury of seven men and five women was discharged by Judge Clifford A. Bishop and Frankenstein was bound over to the next term of court. His bond was continued.

Judge Bishop had instructed the jury to return one of four verdicts: Guilty as charged, innocent, guilty of assault with a deadly weapon or guilty of simple assault.

William Kupres, a factory worker, accused Frankenstein of threatening to shoot him during a tumultuous union meeting here February 11. Frankenstein insisted he drew the gun in self-defense when a hostile crowd threatened him.

Michigan Governor Signs Up 29 Bills From Legislature

Lansing, June 14 (AP)—Governor Dickinson, signing 29 bills passed by the legislature today approved an act increasing the automobile drivers' license fee from $1 to $1.25, and returning 35 cents instead of 15 cents to local communities for license examination purposes.

The new law also requires the fingerprinting instead of the photographing of applicants for chauffeurs' licenses, and makes licenses expire from the date of issue, thus staggering the task of renewing them.

Exemptions for Veterans

The governor also signed a measure setting the unpaid balance of a damage judgment for which a driver's license may be suspended at $75 instead of $150.

Other bills signed would:

Make it a misdemeanor to commit an assault without a weapon and without intent to murder or do great bodily harm.

Exempt Boy and Girl Scout property from property taxes and grant soldiers and sailors of the World War with a service disability a $2,000 exemption on their homesteads.

Establish a new board of embalmers and funeral directors, replacing the 1937 act and making the board and appointees of the state health commissioner.

Counties Get Refunds

Return to county road funds money impounded in closed banks from road bond sinking funds, where the bonds have been paid from other funds.

Exempt insurance benefits for disability from levy and sale under executions.

Permit 20 per cent of land owners, instead of 65 per cent, to petition for the provision of township fire apparatus, although denying such petitions if 35 per cent of the land owners object.

Repeal a law permitting townships to expend money to extend fire protection to unincorporated villages.

In divorce actions, unless the court holds otherwise, to make a life insurance or annuity policy payable to the husband when the wife has been named as beneficiary.

Job Buying Banned

"Strengthen" the state chiropractic examination law.

Set township political caucus on the third Monday in February instead of the first Monday in March.

Require the approval of the state budget director and auditor general for the purchase of state cars and to permit those officials to dispose of "unnecessary" automobiles.

Eliminate the position of state hospital director and provide for the appointment of an executive secretary to the commission and a director of mental hygiene.

Make it a misdemeanor for an employing agent in industry to accept or solicit money from a person applying for a job and to forbid requiring an employee to make any purchase to hold a job.

Revise generally police and fire department pension plans in cities with full-paid departments in order to make the plans "actuarially" correct.

Designate state and federal bonds, building and loan shares and federal savings and loan shares as proper investments for boards of education.

DROWNS IN LAGOON

month of 130 hours at such a wage as could make no material change in WPA's present average labor cost per worker. This, legislators said, means more hours of work per month at no greater pay for many WPA workers.

Strengthen the present prohibition on political activity by forbidding administrative and supervisory employees to attend political conventions.

Require all supervisory personnel to swear to uphold the constitution.

In addition to the $1,477,000,000 for WPA, the bill makes appropriations for other agencies, such as the National Youth Administration and the Farm Security Administration. These bring the total of the measure up to $1,716,600,000. The total was $223,205,000 less than appropriated for the current year and $45,000,000 less than requested by President Roosevelt.

The youth administration fund was cut from the $123,000,000 asked by the president to $81,000,000. The committee said that even with the cut the agency would have $6,000,000 more than was appropriated for its activities this year.

JAP BLOCKADE OF BRITISH IS TIGHTENED UP

ed goal in the China conflict is creation of a "new order" in eastern Asia, said in turning down the British mediation offer that further negotiation would be fruitless and that it was necessary to isolate the concessions as a "nest of intrigue and plots."

One British subject, Eric Mayell, a cameraman for Fox Movie-tone newsreel, was arrested while taking photographs of the Japanese barricades. When he protested that the bridge on which he was standing was international, Japanese gendarmes placed him in a guardhouse in the Japanese-occupied area. This correspondent was denied permission to see him.

Mayell was arrested, the Japanese said, because he was taking pictures of Japanese controlled areas—"which is prohibited."

The 200 United States marines here were ordered by Lieut. Col. William G. Halthorne to wear their uniforms at all times since Japanese agreed to pass U. S. marines in uniform without any search or questioning. The American barracks are in the former German concession, adjacent to the British zone.

Old Flags Burned In Lansing Rites; Dickinson Present

Lansing, June 14 (AP)—Governor Dickinson participated in military ceremonies today at which World War Veterans "consigned to cleansing fire" flags of the United States that had flown over the graves of deceased comrades.

The ceremony of the burning of the 400 faded and weather-beaten flags was conducted at the front steps of the capitol as a feature of flag day exercises. Dickinson, speaking briefly, said the program "makes me proud to be an American citizen."

The flags were placed in an incinerator, saturated with gasoline and ignited as a bugler sounded "taps."

"Render the first day," said Smith. "Try a For Rent Ad today."

Our Navy

THE American Navy has always been an outstanding bulwark of American liberties, and when a Naval Academy class steps out to assume its duties abroad ship and in the Navy yards and offices, the event is of interest to everybody.

An unusually fine address was made to this year's graduating class by Admiral William D. Leahy, who said in part to the budding midshipmen at Annapolis: "A grave emergency comes as a rule in every generation. It will come in yours, and if you aspire to worldly goods, or east, or the usual comforts of life ashore, the Navy will be a misadventure, and you should, in your own interest, begin another line of effort without delay."

"If on the contrary you are pleased to accept the sacrifices involved, life at sea through the ages has provided romance, adventure, and the opportunity for service. It has trained men in vigilance, self-reliance, initiative, and endurance, and it has eliminated quickly those lacking in courage."

"It has rewarded survivors with the satisfaction of successful contest with the elements, with days of soft sunshine in tropic seas, with pleasing friendships, sparkling enmities, and a continuing promise of adventure beyond every horizon."

"Forty-two years ago it was my happy privilege to stand where you are today, at the beginning of a career in the service of our country. In a few days that career will terminate by retirement at a statutory age that is, for you, still in the far distant future, beyond years that will probably provide for you even greater opportunities for service than those that were available to my generation. We are envious of your prospects."

"With a counsellor to remain always steadfast in your devotion to the ideals of America inherited from our fathers, to be considerate of the ideals of other peoples, to strive for peaceful solutions of differences, and to hold your personal honor of higher value than all else, I have the privilege today of extending to you from the Navy a welcome to full membership in the brotherhood of sea officers of America, and to deliver your well earned and justly prized diplomas."

If the class takes these words of the Admiral to heart—and no doubt it will—the American people can be assured that the high traditions of the Navy will not suffer, and that our wall of ships, come what may, will stand firm as the protector of American freedom.

Trailing the Trailers

EVER since the invention of the auto-trailer, local laws and regulations have been trying to catch up with it.

Four new court decisions, according to the American Society of Planning Officials, have helped to clarify the problems which have grown up around the trailer.

The Indiana Supreme Court, for instance, has held that cities have a legal right to limit the stay of trailers within their limits, even though parked on private land. This, the court held, was a reasonable exercise of the police power to protect the lives, health, and property of citizens.

A Michigan justice court decision made trailers subject to local housing acts.

New York state's Supreme Court ruled that a portable "trailer" lunch-wagon set up on a foundation and connected with electricity is taxable as real property.

A U. S. district court in Texas ruled in an insurance case that a trailer detached from its auto is a building for legal purposes.

Thus the laws, freedom from which was one of the attractions of "trailing," are beginning to catch up with the trailers.

EVEN THE CHILDREN'S PENNIES

(Milwaukee Journal)

Merchants on Milwaukee's south side complain that the bingo craze, fostered chiefly in church, is cutting deeply into trade. Drugstores that used to do a good evening business at the soda fountain now are empty. The former customers are around the bingo tables, chasing the rainbow of an elusive prize. Children no longer get the pennies and nickels they used to have to spend. Mother saves the small change for bingo. All through the retail trade, there is at least some noticeable effect. And this is true in varying degrees in other sections of the city.

The south side is getting in a small way the same effect that merchants in cities near gambling race tracks have felt severely. When the Narragansett track was running at its height in Rhode Island, merchants in Providence and other cities around the bay complained that their customers not only bought less, but neglected to pay the bills for what they did purchase. Investigators who were sent out saw these same persons day after day at the race track showing their dollars through the pari-mutuel windows.

The same effect was felt in the cities of Texas that had race tracks near them authorized by state law to engage in gambling. The flow of money into the pockets of the out-of-state gamblers finally caused a state-wide protest.

Yet, in the face of these demonstrations, we have people in Wisconsin who would legalize pari-mutuel betting and other forms of gambling. Bills appear at every session of the legislature. The lure is always that the state would get a "cut" and that this would work to reduce taxes. Some of our upstate counties have thought that such legalization and division of profits was just the way to solve the slot machine problem. They might send a delegation down to our own south side merchants and find out whether gambling really helps a community.

It is not merely that merchants lose trade. People have a right either to buy or not to buy. It is what this loss indicates that is significant. If fathers, and mothers spend their money gambling, then fewer

World Affairs Reviewed

Slightly eased is the international tension which followed the shooting of a Danzig citizen in the recent Polish-German border clash. But politico-geographic factors remain to plague Poland, the country which in a thousand years of history has seen her territory both widely expanded and partitioned, and at times even erased altogether from the map.

Geographically, Poland is one of Europe's most thoroughly surrounded nations, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

—ENCIRCLED BY MANY NEIGHBORS— The only doorway to the sea is by way of the narrow "corridor" which cuts off East Prussia from the rest of Germany. Poland thus has Germany to the west of her and Germany to the north and east, together with the Free City and Territory of Danzig which still further limits Polish territory on the Baltic.

In addition the nation also has common boundaries with six other foreign neighbors. Reading clockwise, they are Lithuania and Latvia on the north; Soviet Russia on the east; Romania, Hungary and Slovakia on the south.

The latest changes in the Polish border line-up followed the dismemberment and later obliteration of her former neighbor, Czechoslovakia. Poland herself took over the entire Teschen District in the southwest, where a rich mining section had been shared with Czech-Slovakia. Hungary in the east pushed her border northward to meet that of Poland, wiping out the former Czechoslovakia Province of Ruthenia; while Germany absorbed the other Czech states of Moravia and Bohemia and took under protectorate the autonomous region of Slovakia.

This latter shift now places Poland virtually in the same geographic relationship to Germany as was Czechoslovakia; that is, her entire western head is thrust deep into the mouth of German-controlled territory.

—WORLD WAR BROUGHT INDEPENDENCE—

Modern Poland, with few natural boundaries such as rivers, mountains, or seas, appeared on the new map of Europe only after the World War.

Nearly a thousand years earlier a Polish kingdom had been established in this region by a group of ambitious Slavonic tribes. Gaining power, they ruled in time, over peoples from the Baltic to the Black Sea. During the 17th and 18th centuries, their hold loosened, due to geographic and internal weaknesses, and powerful neighbors, Prussia, Russia, and Austria, joined in a three-way partition that rubbed Poland off the face of Europe.

For a short period during Napoleonic times Poland regained semi-independence, only to lose it at the Congress of 1815 by repartition among the same three ruling powers. It was not until the World War, therefore, that the independence of Poland was finally proclaimed at Warsaw on Armistice Day, November 11, 1918.

Since then Poland's boundaries have been set by treaty, plebiscite and occupation to include an area of about 150,000 square miles and some thirty-four and a half million people. Of this population more than 30 per cent is made up of minority groups. The largest foreign section is Ukrainian, with about 14 per cent. The Jewish element amounts to an estimated eight per cent, the German population to some four per cent. The remaining foreign population is divided among White Russians and others.

These minorities are largely concentrated, with Ukrainians in eastern farm areas, Germans in western industrialized regions, and Jews—engaged in business and commercial activities for the most part—scattered in many towns both east and west.

Predominantly agricultural, Poland has valuable resources in grain, potato, and sugar-beet crops, as well as in vast forests, good grazing lands, and rich mineral deposits including coal, zinc, iron, salt, marble, and oil.

The republic is heavily populated, especially in certain industrial centers where density rises to some 800 persons per square mile. Put another way, Poland in general supports in an area slightly less than that of California a population nearly six times as great.

In the field of foreign trade, Poland's chief exports are farm products, timber and coal; its chief imports are raw cotton and wool, vegetable oils, copper, and machinery.

In 1938 Germany was Poland's best customer as well as the most important source of Polish imports. Great Britain was second and the United States third.

Germany also is Poland's Number One problem in regard to foreign relationships. For the Polish corridor and the part of Upper Silesia awarded to the latter country are still bones of contention between the two nations. Another longstanding boundary quarrel has been between Poland and Lithuania over Wilno (Vilna), ancient capital of Lithuania, now under Poland.

of the necessities of life are going into the home. It may be a cutting down on food or clothing or just those little luxuries that make life more livable. At any rate, it is for the families of the bingoists a reduction in the standard of living.

That is just what gambling always does—it reduces the standard of living in the home, for children, women, men. Gambling tends to drag down the American home instead of elevating it. And it doesn't make any difference whether the gambling is fostered by church groups "for a good cause" or by professional racketeers—the effect is the same.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—If Their Majesties could have tarried on Broadway and caught a few shows, they would have found our stage monopolized by their own.

Britain's Raymond Massey, for instance, is the greatest prototype of our great hero, Abe Lincoln. Gilbert and Sullivan, the great gods of the London theater, furnished the inspiration for a great Broadway musical success, Bill Robinson's swing version of the "Mikado."

Why, even Tallulah Bankhead, although American, was discovered by English audiences and practically thrust down the throats of our own drama devotees.

Bramwell Fletcher and Vincent Price are making "Outward Bound" such a pleasurable entertainment; Laurence Olivier is giving theater-goers a thrill in Katharine Cornell's "No Time for Comedy." And the cinematic smash of the current show season? Why, nothing else but "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," made in London with an English cast and written by the new English literary man of the hour—James Hilton.

ROYALTY LIKES

A SHOW

Even as you and I, kings and queens and titled folk like the theater, whether it be images on a flickering screen, murmurs behind footlights, or voices via the wireless.

Yes, there is an affinity between the theater and the throne. And many are the amusing tales told thereof. For instance, spend an hour or two at the Lambs Club and somebody will surely regale you with the story of Willie Collier's appearance in London. Collier was playing there in his great success, "Nothing But the Truth." During his first week on English terrain, Collier was asked by a Duchess to come to tea. There she sought him out and asked: "Mr. Collier, tell me, did you play 'Nothing But the Truth' before the King?"

"Before the King?" exploded Collier. "Lady, I created the role in the business!"

NOT NEAR ENOUGH

They tell, too, of the time the Earl of Lonsdale visited America. Richard Rodgers, the melody man, took the distinguished visitor to one of our night clubs. There the Earl requested a malt drink. He was served a concoction that left him nearly limp. "Just what was that?" inquired the Earl timidly.

"Near beer," Rodgers enlightened him.

"Near beer?" repeated the Earl. "Then all I can say is that you Americans have a prodigious sense of distance!"

Quotations

The real issue before us today is not the issue between Left and Right or between the Progressives and the Conservatives, it is a choice between Christianity and paganism.

Dr. Peter Marshall before the Presbyterian General Assembly at Cleveland.

If there are responsibilities of a broader nature, I shall meet them to the best of my ability. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, announcing his candidacy to succeed himself in the Senate.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—Highly important but so political consequence of the royal visit to America is a plan, brought forward by the King's advisers, to establish a residence in Canada and live there a part of every year.

Motive behind the plan is to prop the loose-knit British Empire, for the strongest cohesive force in the Empire is the feeling of personal loyalty for the sovereigns. To make that force more potent, it is argued, the sovereigns should present themselves in person outside of "the tight little island."

The success of the current tour has lent strength to the proposal, according to which the King and Queen, instead of retreating to Balmoral Castle in Scotland for the summer months, would cross the Atlantic to a residence in Canada.

—HOT STUFF—

U. P. STILL HAS MUCH TIMBER

Abbott Fox Gives Report On Lumber Resources of Region

Iron Mountain, Mich. — According to Abbott M. Fox, vice president of the Von Platen Fox Lumber Company and the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau, Michigan's Upper Peninsula contains more virgin timber than all of Wisconsin and the rest of Michigan combined.

"In the first quarter of the present century, the manufacture of forest products in the district considerably exceeded the growth," said Mr. Fox. "In the depression years from 1930 to 1934 more timber grew than was cut. From 1935 to the present day there has been a slight depletion of the timber stand. However, it is likely that in the next five years or so, the annual growth will at least equal the cut."

Mr. Fox stated that Iron Mountain is now the largest United States producer of lumber east of the Mississippi river, and the largest producer of hardwood lumber in the world. There are still three million acres of virgin timber in the Upper Peninsula, he estimated, and the total area can be roughly divided into five nearly equal portions as follows:

1. Virgin forests.
2. Areas cut 30 to 50 years ago which have not been burned over and will be ready for a second cutting in 10 or 15 years.

Fred P. Struhsaker, chief of the lands division of the conservation department, has accepted an invitation to meet with officials of cities and villages in this region on Thursday, June 22, at the annual conference of the Michigan Municipal League, to be held here June 22 and 23.

Policies of the conservation commission in its management of properties surrendered for non-payment of taxes in recent years will come in for study, together with the additional problems anticipated from recent state sale legislation.

Large areas of homesite developments on the fringe of municipalities, as well as properties of mining and other industrial concerns which have abandoned their holdings, will become state owned through operation of tax sale law.

Municipal governments have piled up large credits against many of these properties for the services they have rendered without receiving payment, and city officials have expressed a desire to have an agent of the state join them in their discussion of this major question.

Struhsaker indicated it was possible a plan could be arranged for disposition of the properties on a basis satisfactory to public and private interests alike. Much of the tax-reverted land, he believes, will be devoted to public purposes, and owned and administered by the local governmental unit.

Community forests, recreational areas and plots of ground for small-scale farming by welfare families are among the uses that could be made of such lands. Such developments, he said, would do much toward restoring property valuations in communities which have suffered from over-expansion in "boom" days.

Michigan In Washington

Esther Van Wagoner Tufty Washington is still talking about the visit of the King and Queen of England. Everyone has his own pet story or personal experience to narrate.

Certain sidelights of the royal visit will live with me always. Some solemn—when King first met President at the station. Some were side-splittingly funny—when the woman tumbled out of the choice-view window of "the Johnny" in the Union Station just as the King passed by. Some were thrilling—when the band played "God save the King" as the royal couple appeared on the portico of the beautiful British Embassy. Some were touching—when the Queen, the mother of two little girls, stopped to speak to a little three-year old girl, who did not respond to the honor, to the despair of her mother. Some were sad—when the king reviewed the British ex-service men. Some were almost terrifying—when the crowd surged and all about and people dropped like flies from the intense heat. Some were beautiful—the lavish array of white orchids on the state dining room table set "fit for a king" with gold, crystal and china. But one was embarrassing—when I made a last minute decision to curtsy when I was presented to the King and Queen.

A few mistakes were made. Probably it was bad taste to ask King George to place a wreath on the tomb of George Washington at Mount Vernon. After all, why remind our guest, the King, that except for this—and that back in 1776 George Washington might have gone down in history as an English rebel, not the Father of Our Country? And that the United States might be today a rich British colony?

Another error concerns a dish of tea. (We had "tea" trouble with Great Britain, once before, in Boston) One of the highest favors granted at THAT garden party was an invitation to sip tea with the King on the portico of the British Embassy after his walk through the garden. J. P.

Upper Peninsula session can be applied to much of the problem of tax delinquency in the cut-over upper half of the southern peninsula, Struhsaker declared.

STANDARD OIL DEALERS PROVIDE THOSE CLEAN REST ROOMS

IT'S THE DEALER himself who deserves the credit. He's in business for himself and, though he has inherited a heap of Standard Service tradition, he's the man who carries it on. Of course he knows it's smart for him to do his service job so commendably—that it's bound to bring him more business. But, think of the voluntary effort it takes! Our has certainly are off to him, for the spirit he shows and the work he does. You'll enjoy stopping at Standard Oil Dealers' stations. We hope you'll make it "standard practice" this summer!

IT'S THE DEALER HIMSELF

who deserves the credit for praise like this...

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The high standards which a number of oil companies throughout the country have adopted in the maintenance of their service stations and rest rooms have been recognized and commended by the U. S. Public Health Service.

The commendation, it was explained, was made in recognition of the fact that the toilet rooms operated in connection with gasoline service stations may have an important effect on the health of the nation.

Press Table, Dies Committee, Washington—(Having a fine time. Wish you were here.)

It's 10:30. We're waiting at two long press tables to hear Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, retired, who thinks we'll have a revolution if we don't watch out.

We're in the big House caucus room. It has cream walls, crystal chandeliers, French windows, a green rug. One end is taken up with a huge, green-covered committee table, press tables and the witness table. The other end has rows of seats.

The committee is ready. It's headed by Rep. Arthur D. Healey of Massachusetts; a kind-faced man with thick gray hair. (Dies is in Texas.) Next him is Rep. John J. Dempsey of New Mexico; white hair, snapping black eyes and ruddy face.

On the other side is serious, young Rep. H. Jerry Voorhis of California. He has big, blue eyes and dark hair. Then comes Jolly Rep. Noah Mason, of Illinois, and round-faced Rep. J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey.

To one side the newsreel men are standing on chairs behind their cameras. Around the witness table, squatting on the floor, are rows of news cameramen. The press lines are dotted with piles of yellow paper and ash trays.

There's a stir at the door. Moseley stalks in flanked by three men: two lawyers (one who won't give his name) and big-faced Rep. J. Thorkelson, of Montana. Moseley stands and jerks a smile at each committee member as he is introduced.

He catches "Mason from Illinois," says Moseley, "that's me." He smiles broadly at Mason, who looks back without a smile as he cleans his glasses. Moseley loses his smile and sits down precisely, spreading a thick pile of papers in front of him.

Moseley listens, his small, pale eyes squinted. He has a long face with little pouches of flesh along his jaw. His upper lip is long, his mouth tight and turned down. His sandy hair is sparse. He's 64, and retired on $6,000 a year.

He looks deprecatingly about when he is asked about his army career. "Oh, gentlemen," he says, spreading out his hands, "you can find that in 'Who's Who.'"

Healey instructs, obviously trying to be gentle. "General, that's just a routine question. Please answer."

But there's trouble about getting Moseley to answer questions directly. In five minutes he is shouting at Healey, who looks surprised and annoyed. Moseley has a way of snapping his head back and forth when he makes an emphatic statement. Often he pounds the table. He wants to read his prepared statement rather than answer questions. At one point he shouts, "Don't you wanna hear?"

At another he throws back his head and shouts, "Bull! Bull!"

Each time, in a placating voice, Healey assures him the committee wants to show him every courtesy. The audience is a curious one. Back on one side is James True, whose "Industrial Conference Reports" are mentioned in the questions. True has come in alone, wearing dark glasses. He slips out early. About the room are some groups of well-dressed people that looked annoyed when Moseley isn't permitted to read his speech. After the morning session, they crowd about the witness to pump his hand. He likes the excitement. He struts out, flanked by Thorkelson and his lawyers.

At 1:30 we're back again. The counsel begins wading through speeches Moseley has made. We hear about a woman who made a speech in the west, about shipping companies, about smuggled refugees. The committee keeps hammering for names, places, dates. It doesn't have much luck.

Rep. Voorhis, however, determines to get one answer. He asks, "General, how do you feel about that Nazi meeting in Madison Square Garden where Hitler was cheered and Roosevelt—the American President—was booed?"

It's 10 minutes before Moseley finally grasps the table edge, looks very solemn and says, "Why, of course, the president should always get Number One applause in this country."

At 2:30 we're around to another shouting scene. Moseley demands to read his speech. Healey confers with fellow committee members and they agree to hear Moseley the next day. But each member cautions Moseley he can only read statements that he can back up with his own knowledge.

"Remember, General, two words," says Thomas, shaking his finger, "Knowledge and opinion."

Yesterday, Bart's troubles with Iris begin as she balks at cooking and saving. He realizes now that those old jokes about the "little woman" are all too true, too real!

CHAPTER VI
"We'll have the berries for breakfast, Iris. And I like chocolate bread pudding."

They had the pudding, and Iris refused to eat her dish of raspberries for breakfast. "I'll have mine at dinner, Bart. I bought them for that." Baffled, he watched her store them in the refrigerator. Unreasonably annoyed, he decided Iris was just contrary. She just wouldn't listen to reason or logic. It was funny in a way. Hearing all those jokes all these years about the little woman. Now, finding they weren't funny at all. They were all too bitterly true. Too real!

Contrary to Bart's belief that she was unreasonable, Iris knew only too well that her precarious position depended solely upon cool, clear reasoning. She would rush, with the deadliest certainty, if she yielded by so much as a fraction to the clamoring urge her emotions were inciting within her.

Loving Bart, knowing full well that he had married her with the budget idea fixed firmly in his methodical mind, she knew she was breaking faith with him. But she knew, with greater certainty, that she owed $21 each and every week of her life for the coming seven months, and it was no time to look back at earlier bargains.

Bart would have to make the most of it. He'd have to get used to things as they were. Because if she didn't make the payments each week, he would learn about her debts. And if he learned about the debts there'd be a riot.

Bart loathed installment buying almost as much as he loathed the peculiar system set up and made legal by the budget plan sellers. The "lines" inflicted on the account that was delinquent, the carrying charges—ten times more than any bookkeeping and financing through legal channels required. The crafty method of withholding ultimatums until cost of merchandise was completed, then cracking down and taking the stuff back to resell at almost the same price over again.

"I remember, once, when I was ten, they took the piano away from us," Bart told Iris, during the first weeks of their marriage when he discovered a "slip" she had run at the corner grocery for groceries for the week, and had argued vigorously against it, insisting that she promise never to do it again.

"I'll never forget how my mother cried. And how mad I was. I made up my mind then I'd never buy anything on time. Not if I went without it forever."

"But Bart, everyone runs a grocery slip when they're short. And—I hated to ask you for the money."

"What are you married to me for then, honey? If I can't share your responsibilities? Besides, that stuff was for the house, and I pay for the food and maintenance of this place."

There was more about the piano later on. There was the slow, halting story of his mother's gentle upbringing. She had been a music teacher in the four or five years preceding her marriage to his father, but it was only to help out with her clothes and spending money. The old homestead on the corner of Crandall and Burke streets was free of encumbrances even to the time of her father's death. But his own father's long illness, after a tragic accident that left him a helpless invalid, wiped out the little family's savings, and left everything heavily mortgaged.

"I got my first job because of that piano," Bart explained soberly. "I'd been selling papers and magazines, and working afternoons down at Hogan's Stationers, and Mom was set on my going to college. But I couldn't see it. We'd never make even my tuition, let alone clothes and everything."

"But you did go, Bart!"

"After pneumonia got Mom, I decided I'd try for it. And business trade school was my best bet. I had the job playing the piano afternoons and nights at the old Bijou Theater, so it had to be something I could do outside of that."

"So you see it was a good thing your mother believed in time payment buying, Bart! If she hadn't managed to get the piano and give you lessons, where'd you be?"

"You don't understand, Iris. What I mean is, I can't bear debts because of my fear of them. It's almost a phobia. I hope you never charge anything anywhere, ever. I couldn't bear it if you did."

So—Bart must never know. And nights, when Iris lay awake, thinking about the accounts she was paying on, each week, shivers raced her spine as she contemplated the awful consequences, should Bart ever learn her secret. Only he wouldn't. She comforted herself with that belief. Bart never knew. She'd never tell him, and when they were all paid, she'd buy on a cash basis, since he was so set on it. But it was silly. People who never used budget plan buying had practically nothing. And you had to look well nowadays or you'd be out of everything. So, little by little, she lulled her fears, and since Bart never mentioned debts again, it wasn't long before she saw something else she had to have. And could only pay a small deposit down on. It was an evening gown this time. A gorgeous, heavy, printed linen it was, with a big splashy gold and green maple leaf against an ivory background. Really enormously effective in contrast with her glowing sun-tan, shining blond hair and blue-violet eyes. But—$25!

"Marked down from $29.95, Miss... Mrs. Whittaker," the saleslady urged subtly, "it's really a buy. Not another gown like that in Linwood. And you can wear those linens. They look like Paris on you."

Iris bought it. She bought gold linen sandals to match, and a tiny beaten gold ornament to wear in her hair. And then faced the problem of getting her bodice home so her husband wouldn't see it.

She took the dress home the next noon, and hid it away in an older suit box. She had wracked her brain for a suitable fabric to explain the dress with, and had finally decided on something that would make doubly dear the new dress. She would make Bart think it was a last year's dress. She knew he wouldn't remember; he never remembered her clothes from one season to the next. Men seldom did, she believed.

Hiding the box far back in her clothes closet, deep under a pile of other boxes, she smiled a little, planning how she would spring it on him.

That night, dressing to go to the weekly Saturday night dance at the Yacht Club with John and Ellen Kent, Iris pretended to find a great flaw in her pet dance dress.

"Goodness, Bart, this seam has come out! Whatever can I do? This late!"

"Needle and thread is indicated, wife," Bart answered, grinning, "or doesn't one sew an evening dress?"

"Definitely not, Bart! It's a job for a tailor, and a mighty smart one. Unless you want to buy a new dress."

Sitting down on the little gray enameled bench before the matching gray dressing table, Iris was a convincing study of a perplexed, frustrated bride. Until her faintly frowning gaze swept the closet and a puzzled, hopeful smile tugged at her mouth.

"Unless—oh, Bart, get me that pile of boxes, will you? Up there on the top shelf of the closet. In one of them I've an old linen evening gown—one I wore last year several times, but didn't like. If it doesn't need pressing or cleaning—and I'm almost positive I had it cleaned before I put it away last summer—I'm saved."

Bart was so proud of her in the new, but allegedly "old" last year's gown. It was, he insisted, stunning. It was the best-looking thing he'd ever seen her wear. It was a knockout. She looked grand in it.

"You'll wow 'em, honey," he ended up enthusiastically. Definitely, the $5 down had been worth it. And, but definitely, the weekly payments completing the price would be nothing. Bart's enthusiastic approval of the dress more than proved how accurate her judgment had been in buying it. You had to buy a new dress now and then, to keep a man noticing you. And it didn't matter if he did think it was a last year's dress. If a man was going to be so unreasonable about buying new clothes a girl had to use strategy, didn't she?

At the dance, Bart got quite a kick out of the others thinking Iris's dress was new, too. He beamed with pride, he even bragged a little.

"Not new at all," he admonished Monica Bradon from the science department at the university. "Just something I put away in a box last year and kept over. I'll bet she does the same thing again this year with it, too. A dress doesn't wear out in several years."

Iris avoided Monica's clear, direct glance. She avoided Ellen's mirthful brown eyes, and the hilarious grin on John's face that Bart mistook for appreciation. Let them, she thought mutinously. They didn't have to scheme and figure 40 ways to have so much as a decent dress to wear to a dance, where there were smart summer people from New York and Boston and everywhere. They didn't have a husband who lived by a silly old budget book, and raved hours on saving two dimes a day so he'd have $2000 in 15 years. They didn't have the present and the immediate future hamstrung and made ugly and barren, just so the far future might be glided.

"After all," Iris told herself sulkily, "who knows if we'll live that long? In that day you can while there's the chance, and never mind the far future."

And the linen gown was doubtfully, trebly precious now. (To Be Continued)

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just flows in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks puny.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25 cents. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

OLD AND NEW LIGHT RATES
Some years back the city authorities decided to change to a new system of light rates. It was advertised as an improvement over the old rate. Previous to that change the city officials encouraged the people to make use of the 3 cent power rate. It was one that did. I bought a new electric ice cream cabinet, installed the wiring at an extra cost of $25. A year or so after the rate was changed. When I came to pay my light bill I found that my light bill was nearly doubled. I took it up to the city manager and asked him what he thought about it. I told him that I would not pay and I would go back to the ice man. He then gave me a new rate, not so high, and have been on that until now. In studying this rate now for the first time I find that there is three different rates for three classes of people, home owners, merchants and those who use more power than the two first two mentioned classes. The rates favor the first and last classes, and hits the class that I am in. The question then arises, why favor two classes and discriminate against the third class? If it is necessary to definitely classify anyone, when it comes to a matter of all of our people, who should bear the light rate equally. This state of the city affairs was brought to my attention by a city official at the commission meeting of the 12th stating that I had been favored long enough. Now then, the next question arises, why was I favored? If I pay more now, than I paid under the old rate, and why will I have to pay still more from now on? From what I learned from the present manager there are others in my class who are paying more. Why this discrimination? I have never asked any city official for any favors except courtesy. I also learned from the manager that I am

BOYS' STATE OPENS TODAY

Local Delegation Left Last Night for East Lansing

Jimmy Peterson, Yona Wheaton Jr., and John Hiltowart, accompanied by John Norton left last night for East Lansing where they will attend the annual Wolverine Boys' State which opens there today under the auspices of the state Legion department.

Paul Cargo, who will also attend the state, left earlier in the week for the lower peninsula.

The group is traveling with other delegations from here by bus to Menominee where they will cross by ferry to Frankfort.

Mr. Norton will serve as a counselor at the school.

About 800 boys are to attend from every county in the state. They will live on the campus of Michigan State college.

For ten days the boys will conduct the affairs of the mythical 49th state, elect their own governor, state and county officers, city councils, establish their courts, their own law enforcement agencies and legislative bodies under the general supervision of a specially chosen counselor staff.

Besides being a training in good citizenship and actual governmental problems, a very interesting inspirational program is being arranged, including sight-seeing tours, trips through the college farms, industrial plants and the state capitol. The Boys' State does not in any way take the place of any part of the school curriculum, but is a chance for the boys to put into practice some of the things they learn in the classroom.

The political parties to be set up in Boys' State are purely mythical and will have no resemblance to the present political parties in the state.

At the same time conditions under which the state pistol matches for the Upper Peninsula section are to be held at Escanaba on Saturday and Sunday will be explained.

Stuart B. Miller, Marquette, will supervise the matches which are to be conducted at the range on the fair grounds.

Thirteen matches in all are to be fired, if the contestants also include the two matches in which .45 caliber guns are used.

Tommy Bridges will face Boston tomorrow in the third of the four-game series. He will be opposed by Elden Auker, former Tiger, or Jack Wilson.

Outing in Opener
Detroit was out in the first game, 11 to 8, but in the second they pounced on Denny Galehouse, Monte Weaver and Jake Wade for 13 hits while Paul Trout and Buck Newsom were holding the Red Sox to six.

In the first game, Detroit drew first blood with a three-run barrage in the third inning. Rowe led the attack when he drew a walk. McCosky and Fox went out on flies but Gehring singled and Greenberg walked, after which Higgins doubled to left, scoring all three.

The advantage was erased in the Boston half of the third when the Sox pushed over four runs. Detroit added another run in the fourth when Croucher doubled and scored on two infield outs, but the Sox made it 8-4 with another four-run barrage in their half of the inning. Slicker Coffman was the victim of their blast.

Trailing in Seventh
Bagby was yanked in the fifth after he opened by walking Greenberg and pitching an infield single to Higgins. Joe Heving, who replaced him, filled the bases by walking Cullenbine, whereupon Croucher scored Greenberg with a grounder and Tebbetts scored Higgins with a liner to Voamk.

The Tigers were trailing 8 to 6 when they remedied that situation with a three-run attack that was sparked by Croucher. The Tiger shortstop singled and Kres, batting for Walkup, lined a single, filling the bases. McCosky's single to right scored Croucher and Tebbetts and Fox walked, again filling the bases. Gehring then fled out but Croucher scored with the third run, enough to put the first game on ice.

Trout was credited with the victory in the second game, although he retired in the eighth, complaining of a sore arm after holding the Sox to five hits and two runs in the first seven innings. Newsom then went to the mound and held Boston without a run.

Detroit won the second game in the fifth inning by scoring three runs to wipe out a 2-1 edge Boston had gained by scoring twice in the fourth.

Croucher opened the fifth by beating out a trickling infield single, but he was thrown out at the plate after moving to third on Tebbett's single when Trout bled an infield out to the mound. McCosky and Fox singled, scoring Tebbetts and Trout and Gehring grounded out, McCosky scoring on the play.

Bridges Tries Next
From that point on it was just a case of keeping the Sox in the rear and Trout succeeded in doing just that until his departure. He pitched to only ten men in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings while his teammates were adding

Individual Baffles To Highlight NCAA Meet In Los Angeles; USC Is Favored

BY JERRY BRONDFIELD
NEA Service Sports Writer

Sealed, wrapped and waiting to be picked up in the National Collegiate Track and Field Championship. And nothing short of an earthquake or tidal wave will keep Southern California from doing the collecting in Los Angeles, June 16-17.

Dean Cromwell's terrific Trojans, like the Yankees, have a bulge on the rest of the field that simply can't be overcome.

So instead of getting excited over the quest for the team title in the climax of the collegiate circuit, some fans are looking forward to some of the most brilliant individual duels the carnival has presented since 1936, the last Olympic year.

In the 100-yard dash it'll be Clyde Jeffrey, the Stanford favorite, favored to stand off the challenge of Mozelle Elberbe, of Tuskegee Institute and Myron Piker, Big Ten titlist from Northwestern. Jeffrey, who has done 9.5 this year, very possibly may be pushed by these two to 9.4 and a share of the world record.

QUARTER MILE LOOMS
BEST RACE OF DAY
In the 220 Jeffrey may have more than he can handle in Bob Lewis, Ohio State star who has done 20.8 for the fastest time of the year. And there'll be plenty of push from Payton Jordan of Southern Cal, Frank Ohl of Pitt and Ken Clapp of Brown.

Greatest race of the day should be the 440, bringing together Warren Breidenbach, Michigan's sophomore sensation; Erwin Miller and Howard Upton of U. S. C.; Don Watts of California; Jack Sulzman of Ohio State, and Harold Cagle of Oklahoma Baptist.

Either Breidenbach, Big Ten champion, or Miller, Coast titlist, will do 46-plus if hot.

Bill Dale, Washington State, is the best of the 880 field in the absence of Pittsburgh's John Woodruff who will compete in the Princeton Invitational.

Out to clip his own collegiate mile mark of 4:09.4 will be Lou Zamperini, of Southern Cal, who should get plenty of prodding from Mel Trutt, slender Indiana ace and Walter Mehl, Wisconsin star, both of whom have been within split second distance of 4:10.

HIGH JUMP FIELD LACKS
REAL TALENT
Favored at two miles because of a recent 9:7.9 performance, Dixie Garner of Washington State will match strides with a great field which includes Wisconsin's Mehl and Ralph Schwartzkopf of Michigan.

Only in the high jump may the field be considered lackluster. Outstanding is Bob Dieffenthaler of Illinois who gets up to 6 feet 6, with Bud Wilson of U. S. C. and Ed Burke of Marquette just about his equal.

Bill Watson, Michigan negro star, and probably the finest all-around track man in the country, consistently betters 25 feet to make him first choice in the broad jump, with California's Guy Manuel a likely second.

For the second straight year, Fred Wolcott, of Rice, the greatest hurdler in the world today, should sweep both the high and low events. Yet to be defeated outdoors, Wolcott has been clocked in 13.9 in the high and 22-plus in the low.

Very close at his heels should be the Trojans' Jim Humphrey and Earl Vickery in the high and low respectively.

The discus is due for a ride when Watson, Phil Gaspar of U. S. C. and Archie Harris of Indiana palm the platter. All three hit the 160-foot mark and better.

TROJANS SEEK FIRST, SECOND IN JAVELIN
It'll be a two-man show in the shot put with Kansas State's Elmer Hackney, who recently set a new American mark of 56 feet 11 inches, pitting his brawn against Watson, who has pushed the ball out close to 55 feet.

If Bob Peoples and Hugo Degroot finish one-two for Southern Cal in the javelin it'll come as a surprise to no one. Both exceed 225 feet. Included among the strong-armed throwers are Boyd Brown, the Oregon boy who heaves the spear better than 220 with the thumb of his throwing hand missing, and Nick Vukmanic of Penn State.

Loring Day of Southern Cal, who soars 14 feet 6, is favored in the pole vault, closely followed by Bob Cassells of Chicago, Mitt Padway of Wisconsin and Dick Gansden of Columbia who have done 14 feet.

In the hammer throw it looks like either Bob Bennett of Maine or John McLaughry of Brown.

CHICAGO HELD TO SIX BLOWS

Zeke Bonura Slams Out Two Homers; Defeat Eighth for Lee

Chicago, June 14 (AP)—With Zeke Bonura hitting his fifth and sixth homers of the season, the New York Giants opened their second western swing today by beating the Chicago Cubs 2 to 1 and supplanting last year's National league champions in fourth place.

Bill Lohrman, making his second start, held the Cubs to six scattered hits. Their only run resulted from a triple by Dick Bartell and a sacrifice fly by Bill Lee in the fifth.

Lee yielded seven hits in absorbing his eighth defeat against five victories.

Fielding Is Ragged and Classy; 7 Hurlers Give 21 Hits

Cincinnati, June 14 (AP)—The league-leading Cincinnati Reds came from behind in two big innings today to pound out a 10 to 7 victory over Philadelphia in a game featured by ragged and classy fielding and extra base blows galore from a total of seven hurlers.

Staged before a ladies' day crowd of 15,625, it was the Reds' 22nd victory in 23 starts and No. 2 for Rookie Gene Thompson, who relieved Startling Hurler Paul Dorringer in the fourth.

COACH IS PROUD
Milwaukee, Wis. — Proudest man in Milwaukee when Charles Beaudry won the Central collegiate 220-yard championship and subsequently was elected captain of the 1940 Marquette university track team was his prep coach, Arlie Schardt, now vice-principal of a local high school.

SPILLING the DOPE

Only a convict likes to be stopped in the middle of a sentence!

"LET THERE BE no moaning at the bar," writes John Walter, sport editor of the Green Bay Press-Gazette, "or anywhere else except in quarters hostile to the athletic advancement of Green Bay West, for a glance over the sports situation on the side of the river where the sun sets indicates that the big round orb is, in fact, just getting a good start on its way upward. . . . Coach Lars Thune, in his first season at West, produced a strong second place football team and an all-conquering track squad. In between Coach Frosty Forsace ground out a basketball team which started slowly and was going places in the closing days of the campaign. Coach Vernon Krieser came up with a wrestling squad which was unbeaten for the second consecutive year.

"LOOK at the graduating football lettermen. . . . Thune indeed must concentrate hard upon the thought of 13 returning lettermen to dim the memory of those he is losing. . . . Forsace receives a dizzy blow in basketball, with three guards—Co-Captains Miller and Paul Edwards, and Bob Sullivan; and Forward Billy Burch all graduating. He has, however, four good lettermen back and some stuff from the reserve unit which may give the Wildcats a successful season."

Why do people drink whisky in summer to cool them off and in winter to warm them up?

Averill Traded Off For Detroit Pitcher

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, June 14 (AP)—Oscar Vitt reckoned there'd be a hot time in the old town tonight—and he still hasn't got his infielder.

He was referring to the deal which sent Earl Averill, popular Cleveland outfielder, to Detroit for pitcher Harry Eisenstat and cash. The little skipper took a philosophical view of the transaction.

"We'll have a lot of explaining to do in Cleveland," he opined. "Earl's very popular. He's a fine player and very easy to handle, doing what he is told without question. He was late reporting and got off to a slow start. He'll help Detroit."

"I'll say he'll help Detroit," a listener chimed in. "And they're only three and a half games behind us and coming fast."

"And I still haven't my infielder," moaned Vitt. "Yes, we hoped to make a deal even before the season started. Our infield sometimes gives the other team two or three runs a game, and you can't do that against a team like the Yankees. We've lost about six games that way."

Too Many Outfielders
"No, I think we came out all right on the deal. We had too many good outfielders and would have to keep one on the bench. Eisenstat is a young pitcher, but has lots of promise. He pitched the last game against us last year when Bob Feller struck out 18, but Detroit won."

It was suggested Eisenstat might be passed along to Vitt pursued his lips.

"Maybe," he ventured. "Maybe."

In his room the busy, aggressive Averill was busily packing his bags.

"I haven't heard anything officially yet," he said. "But it's all right with me. I always said that if I had to leave Cleveland I'd rather go to Detroit than anywhere else. Of course I hate to leave. My home is in Cleveland and it's pretty nice to come home to rest and quiet after a hot day at the ball park."

Break For Detroit
"I don't know what I'll play with Detroit. Yes, I guess I could play any field, but I prefer center field. Sure, I bet they raise the dickens in Cleveland over the trade. This last remark was without conceit. Just a plain opinion. The sideliners think that from the player standpoint the Tigers got the best of the deal. However, Eisenstat might win a few games, and there always is the possibility he might be good trading fodder for an infielder. Besides, as Vitt pointed out, there was no percentage in keeping a good outfielder sitting on the bench. And Bruce Campbell can fill in the outfield very nicely."

"Bruce isn't quite as steady as Averill, but he has streaks when he is as good as any of them. But we still haven't got that infielder," he complained.

And, it might be added, they still haven't got Averill.

HEFFNER COVERED
Cleveland, June 14 (AP)—Baseball's David Harms sent Earl Averill, Cleveland outfielder who has a lifetime big league batting average of .322, to the Detroit Tigers today for southpaw Harry Eisenstat and a wad of greenbacks—and threw in a couple of lesser deals for good measure.

Immediately there was speculation as to whether the Indians

FELLER TAKES TENTH VICTORY

Indians Come Across With Three Runs In 9th and 4-2 Verdict

New York, June 14 (AP)—Rallying three runs in the ninth inning, the Cleveland Indians gave Bobby Feller his tenth victory of the season 4 to 2 today after two unearned runs nearly took it away.

The Cleveland youngster, poised as a veteran, gave only two hits until the eighth, when two more singles, a walk and an error by catcher Rollie Hemsley accounted for New York's runs.

Johnny Murphy went to the mound for the Yankees in the ninth and was promptly touched for a single, a walk, and a single and a double by Ben Chapman, his third hit of the day, to put Cleveland in front again.

Murphy was charged with the loss and Feller regained the victory, although removed for a pinchhitter during the rally. Lefty Al Milnar finished for Cleveland, giving one hit to bring New York's total to five.

Score by innings:
Cleveland — 000 100 003—4 6 1
New York — 000 000 020—2 5 1

MARKET AGAIN FEELS SETBACK

By Frederick Gardner New York, June 14 (AP)—Stock averages scaled slightly downward on a meagre market today, despite a last-hour rally which raised many issues above yesterday's levels.

For four hours the session operated in a mild fog of pessimism, with traders only testing trends. Then, suddenly, quotations turned upward by fractions, some leaders making up as much as three or four points.

Speculators apparently felt that prices had gone far enough in the reactionary swing and bought back shares which they earlier had sold.

However, their activities did nothing to speed the rate of trading and the total transfers were among the smallest in a month—399,370 shares compared with 531,870 yesterday.

Observers readily attributed the timid attitude of traders to the labor situation in the automobile industry and to the resurgence of worries over war possibilities.

In the latter case, the Czech-German-Polish and the British-Japanese situations at opposite sides of the world, received the most attention.

Aside from the motor labor mixup between the CIO and AFL, the domestic news set was regarded by most Wall Streeters as generally encouraging.

Bonds were lower and commodities irregular. Cotton ended 5 cents a bale down to 35 cents higher at Chicago, wheat was unchanged to 5-8 cent a bushel higher and corn unchanged to 3-8 cent down.

CHOICE ISSUES GAIN SLIGHTLY

New York, June 14 (AP)—Selected issues managed to mark up small gains in today's bond market, but the majority of active loans closed fractions to around a point lower.

United States governments, recently selling at record highs, tended to taper in light dealings. Final prices were 4-32 of a point higher to 13-32 down.

Proceedings rolled along with little fresh home business news, and most investors stuck to a "wait and see" attitude.

Among foreign dollar bonds, Panama stamped 5/16 closed 5/16 at 69, the rise following yesterday's jump of 5/16 points.

MANY BRITONS USE BICYCLES

Management of Hostels Abroad Described By St. Louis

BY STANLEY ST. LOUIS
Newcastle on Tyne, England—One of the things that most astound a visitor in England is the way people on bicycles manage to weave in and out of heavy city traffic. Automobiles are still considered a luxury in England and most of the natives in the lower income brackets use bicycles or buses as a means of transportation.

The manufacture of bicycles is "big business," and every possible requirement for this mode of travel is handled in the large cycling shops which are as numerous as gas stations in the United States.

Instead of the coaster brake commonly used in the States, British wheels are controlled by levers placed directly under the handlebars. Connecting rods run from the brake handles to brake-shoes, which, when pressure is exerted on the handles, are forced against the wheel rims, giving the rider complete control over the machine at all times.

Cycling Equipment
Braking power under this arrangement is much more effective than the coaster brake, and is absolutely necessary for use on the steep and frequent English hills. Special rain capes, cycle pants, and other items of equipment are provided to make cycling in bad weather and for long distances, more practical. Balloon tires are not favored, the seats are of unpadding solid leather, and in general little consideration is given in the construction of the bicycle for the rider's comfort. However, great stress is laid on mechanical efficiency and in this regard the English made wheel is far superior to the American product.

Most bicycles are equipped with a three speed gear shift to facilitate hill climbing. Every possible effort is made to eliminate unnecessary weight even to replacing steel mud guards with celluloid.

On week-ends and holidays the streets are full of young and old people riding their bicycles enroute to the country. It is a common sight to see an elderly lady or a real old man, miles away from home, peddling tirelessly along on a bicycle.

Country inns cater especially to cyclists and the English Bicycle Society has a recommended list of hotels for its members in the same manner as the American Automobile association provides this service for its membership.

Youth Hostels, which accept as guests only hikers and cyclists, are scattered throughout England. One of the most attractive features of the Youth Hostel is the cheap fee which for a night's stay amounts to only ten cents. Bedding is not provided and the guest must come prepared with a sleeping bag. Meals are pot-luck affairs, whenever enough young people are gathered under the same roof.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED MEDICINES PROVED WORTHLESS TO HIM

Then KruGon Wrought A Wonderful Change; Relieved of Awful Soreness and Stiffness in His Body

"It is a pleasure to tell others about such a commendable remedy as the KruGon," said Mr. Frank A. Flanagan, Route No. 2, (Airport), Winona, Minnesota. "For the past three years I had been miserable with drawing and cramping muscular pains throughout my entire body but especially so in my right knee. I was so stiff and sore it was with great effort that I got about at all. Constipation was another source of trouble for me and for over seven years I had been forced to take the strongest laxatives and then they did me no real good. My body was saturated with impurities causing a general break in my health and I was at a loss to know what to do next when I learned about KruGon.

"I had taken so many medicines that proved so absolutely worthless to me, I was somewhat skeptical about KruGon," continued Mr. Flanagan, "but began its use after the earnest urging of my friends. In a very short time my bowels were functioning normally and the waste impurities being regularly removed. That awful stiffness and soreness has left my body and I get around and walk with ease. I am certainly pleased with what KruGon has accomplished for me."

occupants must leave everything clean and ready for the next guests. There is only one serious complaint to be made against the present Hostel set-up in England; at the end of a long day's trip, when the cyclist is usually tired out, the Hostels are difficult to locate. Most of them will be found tucked away on small side roads which would be all right if directions for finding them appeared somewhere along the main road, but this is not the case. It is up to the cyclist or hiker to study his Hostel guide, and use his instinct in locating them.

A way, equally as good as the Youth Hostel, though more expensive, for the foreigner to really get to know the people, is to make overnight stays at English farm houses. The price here for bed and breakfast is in the neighborhood of a dollar and a quarter.

Most of the farm houses are very old but will nearly always be found to be clean and comfortable. As in most English residences small consideration seems to have been given the housewife when the building was designed. The English farm kitchen is immense, and is usually laid out so that a maximum amount of walking and effort is required of the farm wife.

PUSH BREAKWATER PLAN

Menominee—Menominee mariners today doubled their efforts to have a two-foot addition built on the top side of the 1,050-foot outer breakwater after an estimated 40-mile-an-hour wind Saturday evening and Sunday morning gave small craft boat owners a hectic eight hours.

One boat sank, and another was awash and near the sinking stage before it was bailed out, while most of the fleet lost at least one line and shipped some water from the wash as Green bay waves broke over the wall in a steady assault.

Olget Peterson's Pauline III, a 20-foot runabout, sank at the breakwater but was raised by seaman Sam Turner, boy mayor of Boys Town.
