STRIKE FRONT REACHES INTO FOUR STATES

SETTLEMENT HINTED IN GM WALKOUT AT DETROIT

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Reports that three union sympathizers were wounded and a highway bridge was dynamited near the Green Mountain Dam project in northwestern Colorado last night punctuated strikes scattered over four states.

George F. Judy, 17, who was grazed on the right hip by a bullet, said two of his companions were wounded, but they were not located.

About 100 shots were exchanged in a picket line's advance on the big water diversion project, held since last night by a force of non-strikers, ranchers and town-folk, said Col. S. F. Crecellus, reclamation bureau engineer in charge.

Telephone Lines Cut Pickets said the bridge was dynamited to close the south approach to the project and prevent reinforcements from reaching the non-strikers. Telephone lines from the camp were cut.

The strike began July 13 when five AFL unions demanded recognition by the Warner Construction company of Chicago.

In Cleveland scenes of a riot, in which 46 persons were injured Monday, a committee of non-strikers at the Fisher Body plant urged the Dies committee to investigate the walkout of the CIO United Automobile Workers who, they said, "have Communist tendencies."

Safety Zone Marked As police demarcated a 500-yard safety zone around the factory, small groups of pickets were established at homes of individual workers outside the zone. The company reported 483 of its normal force of 700 passed through picket lines to work.

Prospects of an early settlement at Detroit of the CIO tool and die makers strike against General Motors plants were reported as hundreds of extra police were assigned to prevent a recurrence of violence that has marked the walkout affecting 12 plants and 7,500 employees.

In the mountains of Colorado, unmarried AFL strikers were driven from the settlement at the $4,000,000 Colorado-Big Thompson water diversion project in a compromise with armed workers who had demanded that all strikers leave. Married men were allowed to stay.

Guns Kept Handy Sheriff John H. Lee of Summit county said 175 men working on the dam had guns handy and that armed scouts were patrolling the roads to prevent strike sympathizers from coming in.

As Gov. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts informed the Barre Wool Combing company he would not leave state police on strike duty in south Barre indefinitely, company officials resumed conferences with the state commissioner of labor and industries on the AFL strike there.

Deadlocked after many hours of negotiation at Syracuse, N. Y., AFL truck drivers and their employers.

Increase In State Payroll Blamed On Federal Dictation

Lansing, Aug. 2 (AP)—Two state agencies, the unemployment compensation commission and the employment service, were blamed today by Auditor General Vernon J. Brown for an increase in state payrolls for the first six months of the current fiscal year.

Asserting the policies of the agencies "are dictated for the most part by Washington," the auditor general said the two bodies had spent the "stipendous sum" of $1,344,825 as compared with $568,060 for the same period in 1938.

Brown said that even though the recent legislative session had accounted for $118,619 of the increase, the legislature, nevertheless, spent "more than $28,000 less than its predecessor."

"Had it not been for these offenders and the fact the legislature operated during the first six months of 1939 the total reduction in payrolls for the regular departments of state government would have amounted to approximately $1,000,000 during the first six months of the Fitzgerald-Dickinson regime," Brown declared.

The auditor general said the Republican administration, because of payroll increases totaling $213,110, had "fallen far short" of its economy pledges.

Brown Cuts $118,648 Brown, Secretary of State Harry F. Kelly and Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, have been asked by Gov. Dickinson to study state payrolls with a view to eliminating unnecessary expenses.

As its first task, the committee notified department and institution heads to submit reports showing comparisons of payrolls and other expenses for the last 10 years.

Brown said some departments, including his own, had reduced payrolls as much as $125,134. He said he had effected a savings in his own department of 41.6 percent or $119,475.

Increases ranging from $6,097 in the department of public instruction to $23,000 for the state auditor general.

"In fairness to the present regime, it should be said that the unemployment and employment commissions actually showed material reductions from the figures piled up by the last administration during the last six months of 1938," Brown concluded.

Work Finished By Parliament Chamberlain Overrides Revolt; Adjournment Is for Two Months

London, Aug. 2 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain overrode a minor revolt within his own party tonight, won a 250 to 133 vote of confidence and pushed through his motion to adjourn parliament for two months beginning Friday.

Liberals and laborites supported by a group of "anti-appearance" conservatives, including Winston Churchill, wartime cabinet minister, had attempted to have the house of commons reconvened Aug. 21 for a one-day session because of the critical international situation.

The opposition members expressed fears Chamberlain might return to his policy of appeasement as soon as parliament was out of the way. They recalled that they were in recess at the time of the Munich agreement last September.

The Prime Minister contended, however, that the government was ready for any emergency and that there was no need to have the members of parliament break their vacations except in case of unexpected developments. In that event he said the members would be called back.

He made the opposition amendment a question of confidence and after its defeat the government's adjournment motion was passed 245 to 129. It provided that the house reconvene Oct. 3.

Sales Tax Expected To Enable State To Meet 1939 Expenses

Lansing, Aug. 2 (AP)—Fiscal requirements of the state for the current year may be met, the state board of tax administration reported today, if present sales tax collections are maintained.

For the fifth consecutive month, the board reported an increase in sales taxes with collections in July of $4,663,328, an increase of $24,097 over July, 1938.

In drawing up this year's budget, the legislature estimated sales tax collections for the current year at $55,000,000. Collections for the fiscal year ending June 30 amounted to $51,000,000.

Lansing Milk Price Revised Downward

Lansing, Aug. 2 (AP)—Lansing milk distributors revised their prices downward today, effecting a one-cent cut on quarts and pints. One cent also was cut from the price of a quart of chocolate milk, five cents on a quart of 40 per cent cream, and seven cents on a quart of 50 per cent cream.

Regular milk now retails at eight cents a quart or five cents a pint in Lansing. Other quart prices are ten cents for chocolate milk, 45 cents for 30 per cent cream and 65 cents for 40 per cent cream.

Funds For Disabled Service Men Raised

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed into law today a bill increasing from $120 to $240 a year the amount the federal government pays to state homes for the care of disabled United States soldiers and sailors.

A veterans administration report on the legislation said state homes in Michigan and 25 other states would be affected.

Attorney Disbarred In Sault Ste. Marie

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP)—Albert B. Davidson, 67, Sault attorney, was disbarred in circuit court proceedings Wednesday on the complaint of the Michigan Bar Association that he had mis-handled $2,500 in claims for 26 different clients. Three circuit judges decided the case.

NAZI LEADERS SAY NATION IS SET FOR WAR

Berlin, Aug. 2 (AP)—Germany today celebrated her mobilization for the World War just 25 years ago, an event never before observed in post-war Germany.

Nazi leaders used the occasion to conjure up a parallel between the Germany of 1914, which they pictured as menaced on all sides by covetous enemies, and the Germany of 1939, described as encircled by the same group of jealous powers.

This difference, however, was emphasized in every speech and order of the day: Kaiser Wilhelm's Germany was caught unprepared; Fuehrer Hitler's Germany is prepared and unbeatable.

In other years of the Nazi regime, Aug. 2, the anniversary of the German republic's last president, Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, had been the occasion for homage to his memory.

Wreath for Hindenburg This year, too, a huge wreath was placed by order of the Fuehrer at the Hindenburg tomb in the Tannenberg national monument by the first army corps commander, Artillery General George von Kuechler. Officers instead of privates kept the watch.

But the Hindenburg observances were mere incidents this year: Chief attention was centered on three things:

1. Orders-of-the-day by chief commanders of the German armed forces.

2. Exercises in every military drill grounds.

3. Air maneuvers in western Germany.

Col.-Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, chief of the staff of the army, in an order-of-the-day, asserted that "again those same powers that then (1914) compelled us to fight a war of defense are attempting to encircle us."

"Upper Hand" Claimed Reasserting Germany's desire for peace, General von Brauchitsch nevertheless declared that Germany was ready and willing to fight as she did in 1914 if necessary.

"Compared with 1914 we decidedly have the upper hand this time," he held.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, as commander of the air force, reiterated that German air strategy was directed toward a "lightning victory."

"The German air force today stands ready to carry out every command of the Fuehrer with lightning-like rapidity and with undreamed-of impact," Goering said in an address to his personnel.

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, navy chief of staff, confined himself to a statement recalling the navy's role in the four years of "heroic, defensive fight of the German nation against a world of enemies."

Air Defense "Invincible" On innumerable parade grounds and aboard German ships in harbors and at sea, meanwhile, the main theme was that "Germany, thanks to Adolf Hitler, is prepared to defend herself against any combination of enemies."

By way of reassurance to the population, the press published reports of sectional air maneuvers in western Germany to test anti-aircraft defenses.

Military experts were quoted as saying the exercises had proved that the area, a zone of about 15,000 square miles, was "invincible" against air attacks.

Homes Guarded After Saginaw Dynamiting

Saginaw, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP)—Two cases of violence attributed to the General Motors strike of skilled workers prompted the Saginaw city council tonight to order guards stationed at the residences of 23 employees.

The council members voted to give "our entire moral and financial support to the stopping of these outrages." Assistant Prosecutor August J. Neberle began an investigation of the violence and there were reports that a one-man grand jury investigation might follow.

Hurling of two sticks of dynamite through the living room window at the home of Rudolph W. Reese, 60, a tool maker, caused City Manager L. P. Cookingham to announce that "we intend to put a stop to such un-American and Communist practices." He added:

"If we need 100 more policemen to do it, we will put them on."

Reese was awakened at 3 a. m. today when a stone was thrown through a downstairs window. Shortly afterward two sticks of dynamite taped together and intertwined with sputtering fuse struck the living room floor.

Reese submerged the object in water and informed police.

Capt. George McNeill said no cap was attached to the dynamite and expressed the opinion the dynamite was meant to scare Reese rather than wreck the dwelling. Mrs. Reese and three daughters were at home when the incident occurred.

Reese appeared for work as usual at the General Motors steering gear plant. He rolled down the windows of his car and denounced 20 pickets. They made no return. Afterward a union spokesman said the organization did not condone such actions.

Whatsit Caught In Chicken Coop; No Such Animal

Bloomsburg, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—A tall, web-footed "Whatsit" which Farmer Rush Fritz caught raiding his chicken coops had the whole town guessing tonight—at a nickel a guess.

A fireman's carnival took the critter off his hands, put it on display in a cage and billed it as the featured attraction with an offer to "guess what it is, and it's yours."

Two feet long and spotted like a faun, the animal is 10 inches high, has a "head like a rat," nibbles like a beaver, has brown fur and an underling lower jaw.

Four hundred townspeople paid a nickel each to see it last night, but couldn't name it. Today, S. I. Shortess, head of the science department at Bloomsburg State Teachers college, looked it over, shook his head and vowed he never had seen "such an animal."

As far as Farmer Fritz is concerned he doesn't care how long the "whatsit" remains unidentified. He's getting a percentage of the nickels—to compensate for 10 of his chickens it killed.

NO VACATIONING FOR DICKINSON

Trip to Lake Called Off Because of Business Rush In Lansing

Lansing, Aug. 2 (AP)—Press of official business today forced Gov. Dickinson to tentatively postpone plans for a week's sojourn at Indian Lake in western Kalamazoo county.

"I've never had a vacation," said the state's octogenarian executive said.

The governor had planned to go to a resort at Indian Lake with Mrs. Dickinson, who is convalescing from a recent illness. The rest for the governor's wife was prescribed by Dickinson's personal physician, Dr. H. A. Moyer, state health commissioner.

At the same time, Dickinson announced he would accept no invitation to speak beyond state lines.

"It's not doing justice to the state to take a trip that may require three days or more," he said.

His physician has cautioned him to limit his speech-making hereafter, but the governor accepted invitations to take part in the Bay county Historical Society's pioneer outing tomorrow at Bay City and to attend the Lowell showboat Friday night at Lowell as the guest of Melville M. McPherson, chairman of the state tax commission.

Whiteman Dodges Summons For $250

Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP)—Paul Whiteman, the orchestra leader, is being feverishly pursued by Constable Andrew T. Phillips with a summons in a $250 suit.

Up until this afternoon Phillips sought Whiteman in a purely routine way.

"I got him on the phone," said the constable, "and he kept saying 'okay, Toots.' Nobody is going to call me 'Toots' and get away with it. I'll get that summons served if it's the last thing I ever do."

The suit involves a claim for commission in connection with Whiteman's appearance at a Detroit entertainment spot.

Lapeer, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP)—Mrs. William Louks, 73, succumbed today to injuries suffered in an automobile accident yesterday.

Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP)—Fatal injuries were suffered today by John Klym, 48, of Detroit, when his automobile was struck by a Michigan Central train at the crossing at East Outer Drive near Mt. Elliott road.

Allagan, (AP)—Lyle Connor, 26, of Bradford, Pa., was sentenced to two years imprisonment Wednesday by Circuit Judge Fred T. Miles on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Mrs. John Coleman, who was struck by an automobile last May.

Detroit, (AP)—Ten persons were injured Wednesday in the collision of a passenger bus and a private automobile at Alexandrine and Beaubien streets. Six of the injured were among the 25 bus passengers. No serious injury was reported.

BAR TO THIRD TERM IS SEEN IN HATCH BILL

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Hatch bill barring federal employees from political campaigns became law with President Roosevelt's signature, today, and immediately legislators fell into disagreement as to whether the bill would prove a bar to a third term candidacy.

One school of thought, as typified by Senator King (D-Utah), was that the measure would tend to obstruct any third term drive by making it impossible for federal officials to be delegates to party conventions.

Another, as represented by Senator Murray (D-Mont.), contended that the act would have no bearing on a third term. Murray argued that such a movement depended little on the activity of federal office-holders.

While Senator Bridges (R-N.H.) interpreted the president's action in signing the measure as "the first definite indication that Mr. Roosevelt will not be a candidate for third term," there was still no word from the White House as to the president's 1940 intentions.

However, some interest was created by a conference which Mr. Roosevelt held this afternoon with officers of the Good Neighbor league, Democratic party officials and others. The word was passed that the conference reviewed the status of the Good Neighbor league, which was formed in 1936 to battle for Roosevelt principles, and which was widely credited with helping swing a large part of the negro vote to the Roosevelt standard in the 1936 elections.

No Gag Measure Those at the conference included Walter Jones, Pittsburgh financier and head of the league; Charles Michelson, publicity director of the Democratic national committee, and Lowell Mellett, head of the national emergency council, a White House-supervised agency. The conferees refused to say whether the league, inactive for some time, was about to be revived in preparation for the 1940 campaign.

In signing the hatch bill, Mr. Roosevelt adopted the unusual procedure of sending a lengthy message to congress, in which he expressed approval of the measure's aims and, in fact, declared that it had its "genesis" in a recommendation he made to congress in January asking penalties to prevent political manipulation in connection with relief.

In his message today, Mr. Roosevelt went on to warn that the measure should not be used as a "gag" to deprive federal office holders and relief workers of their civil rights. For example, he said, it would be "un-American" if the act were used to prevent federal officials from answering unwarranted "boisterous attacks," from expressing their preferences, or from giving information about their work.

Can Do Much Good Entitled to act to "prevent pernicious political activities," the law prohibits federal employees in all but top ranking positions from participating in national political campaigns or management. Exceptions are made for the president, cabinet members, members of congress and other policy making officials.

It also forbids: intimidation or coercion with intent to interfere with a national election; promises

Sea Heroine

Today, the relentless economy bloc carried the congressional revolt to a new victory by rejecting a $119,000,000 appropriation for loans to sustain the prices of farm commodities.

Then it passed a $54,191,000 deficiency appropriation bill, minus the loan fund. It did so in the face of a warning by Secretary Wallace that unless the money were made available corn prices would go to 1932 levels, wheat quotations would fall sharply and the prices of cotton, dairy products, wool and rye would be "seriously" affected.

Farm Bloc Beaten The vote rejecting the loan money was by a narrow margin, 116 to 110. It was notable in that it beat back not only the administration but also the usually invincible bi-partisan farm bloc.

Some gallery observers credited the latter support to the circumstance that city members who usually support administration measures voted with the economy group.

They did so, it was apparent, because they were disgruntled with farm members for failing to support them in obtaining increased relief appropriations, and for joining in yesterday's slaughter of the administration's lending program.

Aside from the action in the house, congress was ambling along toward an adjournment which nearly everyone thought would come some time Saturday night. Even if the $800,000,000 housing bill should be brought up for a house vote, and such a move was predicted for tomorrow, no great delay was foreseen. General opinion was that it would be rejected as quickly as was the rest of the lending program.

More Inspectors Wanted There also was the possibility that the house might get a chance to act on a series of widely divergent amendments to the wage-hour law.

The farm loan issue came up in connection with the third deficiency appropriation bill. The appropriations committee trimmed the measure from $215,891,000 requested by the president's budget bureau, to $53,191,000. The reduction, in addition to the farm

Oil Tanker Afire, Sends SOS; Fails To Give Position

Miami, Fla., Aug. 2 (AP)—The oil tanker Bunkwa flashed a distress call tonight, stating she was afire and her regular radio operator had suffered two broken legs.

The ship's mate, pressed into service as an emergency operator, had not given the distressed craft's position more than two hours after the SOS was broadcast.

Coast guardsmen tried desperately to contact him and get him to state the ship's position. The cutter Mojave, with steam up, was ready to put to sea as soon as the approximate location could be learned.

Donahue No Longer On State's Payroll

Lansing, Aug. 2 (AP)—Edwin J. Donahue, Niles attorney and former chairman of the civil service commission has been dropped from the state's payroll, the auditor general's department disclosed today.

Donahue, whose status has puzzled legal authorities since the senate refused to confirm his re-appointment to the commission by Governor Dickinson was removed from the rolls a month ago.

News of the action, however, did not leak out until today.

Attorney General Thomas Read held Donahue was a defacto member of the civil service commission pending appointment of a successor and, as such, was entitled to compensation. Governor Dickinson reappointed him, but the senate pigeon-holed the commission.

AXE WIELDED ON LOAN FOR FARM PRICES

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—The administration took another beating from the house economy bloc today, but nevertheless decided upon a "suicide plan" for bringing the much-opposed $800,000,000 housing bill to a vote tomorrow.

The measure would double the lending authority of the housing administration. It is a companion measure to the lending bill which was killed in the house yesterday.

Administration leaders conceded in advance that it would be defeated.

Warning Disregarded But the administration men indicated they wanted a vote to pin the responsibility for the bill's defeat on the rebellious coalition of Republicans and Democrats, particularly the latter.

Today, the relentless economy bloc carried the congressional revolt to a new victory by rejecting a $119,000,000 appropriation for loans to sustain the prices of farm commodities.

of employment or payment in exchange for votes; solicitation or receipt of campaign contributions from persons drawing relief money and furnishing for political purposes of lists of persons receiving federal relief money.

Mr. Roosevelt informed the legislators that he was addressing the message to them because there had been "so many misrepresentations, some unpremeditated, some deliberate," in regard to his attitude on the bill.

Furthermore, he said it was "well known" that he had consistently advocated the objectives of the measure. He added that while there had been suggestions that "partisan political reasons" had entered "largely into the passage of the bill," he was not concerned about this.

"It is my hope," he continued, "that if properly administered the measure can be made an effective instrument of good government."

GAMBLING BOAT DEFIES POLICE

Frisco Racketeer Laughs At Officers, Squirts Water On Them

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 2 (AP)—Anthony Cornero Stralla—a San Francisco waterfront lad who made good on the high seas—is still in command of his pride and joy, the Rex, "flagship" of Southern California's gambling fleet.

He refused writ-laden officers permission to board his neon-trimmed ship last night and was still holding out late tonight.

Three other gambling boats "surrendered" last night to state, county and municipal authorities, under the direction of State Attorney General Earl Warren, who went out to serve warrants charging violations of the state's anti-gambling code.

Not so Tony. He told the officers he was fully within his legal rights. Then he squirted water on them.

Stralla, better known since the bootleg whisky era as plain Tony Cornero, laughed at officers uncomfortably bobbing about his boat, the Rex in tiny "guard" boats.

Attorney General Warren holds felony warrants charging Cornero with conspiracy and bookmaking. Warren earlier dispatched a warning to Tony, announcing the "law will prevail if it takes all year."

"The Rex is still in a state of siege and will continue to be until the nuisance is abated," Warren stated. "The actions of my men will be governed by what Cornero does. If he tries to run away, he will get plenty of service."

Cornero and most of his 200 employees remained aboard the Rex, hemmed in by a flotilla of small boats carrying attorney general's aides, district attorney's investigators and sheriff's deputies.

LOCAL PEOPLE FEEL TREMORS

Observer Doubts Quake Theory; But Windows Still Rattled

Is it an earthquake or only a shock? former popular song phrase or not, the above fits the questioning attitude of many local residents who felt, Tuesday evening at about 11 o'clock, a repetition of the strange earth tremors which were also felt in the same areas on Wednesday, July 19.

Windows rattled, "subterranean" rumblings were heard, and doors shook as though some mysterious nocturnal visitor was seeking admission, according to stories told by citizens who called from Lake Shore Drive and homes along M-36, and as far from the bay shore as 14th street south.

City In Quake Area Although Escanaba is, according to an encyclopedia, in the area of northern Michigan included in the Trans-Canadian Line of earthquakes, one of three such lines enclosing the United States and the North American continent, the shocks were not definitely placed as genuine earthquakes.

According to some observers, the shocks came in a definite series of twelve, and produced a very perceptible shaking of the ground and houses in the vicinity affected.

W. T. Lathrop, local weather observer, who has experienced several earthquakes while on weather stations, said that the shocks did not seem to him to be real earthquake disturbances. Other observers likened it to distant thunder, while a guess was hazarded that the concussions might have come from night target practice by the naval boats which were here over the past week-end.

A report from Manistique indicates that disturbances of the same sort were experienced by residents here, although no word has come from other outside sources.

Saw-Proof Steel Cut By Convicts To Make Escape

London, O., Aug. 2 (AP)—A police killer and three robbers invented an ingenious blow torch to cut through saw-proof steel bars and escaped today from the state prison farm here.

They lined a flower pot with asbestos and burned coke and alcohol in it forced by oxygen obtained from the prison hospital. The contrivance melted the steel.

They slid from a second story prison hospital window on a rope made of gauze bandages. A guard saw their flight but not until they were out of range of his rifle.

One of the four, Charles Adomak, 41, robber, became exhausted and was recaptured in a field. The others were: Louis Vandervort 36, under life sentence for shooting a policeman to death in a store burglary; Harold Curtner, 39, and Nathan King, 47, robbers.

Vandervort was admitted to the hospital Monday at his own request for observation of possible tuberculosis. King was a tuberculosis patient and the others were nurses.

Superintendent T. C. Jenkins said "Vandervort probably was not as sick as he seemed to be."

Wisconsin To Help Capture Criminals

Madison Wis., Aug. 2 (AP)—The Wisconsin assembly committed today in a senate measure empowering the governor to enter into compact with other states for out-of-state parolee supervision.

It also occurred in a senate bill allowing officers from other states to cross Wisconsin boundaries and make arrests within in close pursuit of fleeing criminals. The officer could take the arrested persons before a magistrate who would determine whether extradition proceedings were necessary.

The bills now go to Governor Julius Hell for signature.

Officers 'Captured' By Farmer In Posse

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP)—Miles Miller, farmer who was a member of a posse searching for robbers in a woods north of Sturgis, came upon two armed men.

He raised his shotgun and commanded them to accompany him, ignoring their protests. When the pair showed him badges and identification cards, Farmer Miller said:

"You can't fool me. All you smart guys have badges and stuff like that."

Back at the posse's headquarters, friends identified Miller's prisoners" as Police Chief Hugh Gordon and Detective Charles Thayer.

Detroit Driver, 89, Involved In Mishap

Detroit (AP)—David Kenyon, 89, who has been taking "two or three drinks of whiskey a day for 55 years," pleaded guilty Wednesday to driving on the wrong side of the street and causing a minor traffic accident. He is believed to be the oldest driver ever involved in an accident here. His case was referred to the recorder's court psychopathic clinic, which will determine whether he is fit to continue driving.

Army Flying Birthday Is Spectacular Show

(By The Associated Press) Droning motors of army warplanes dramatized the thirtieth birthday of military aviation in spectacular fashion yesterday.

Officials estimated that more than 1,500 ships of the army's fast expanding air forces roared over cities all over the nation on the anniversary of the war department purchase of the first frail machine from the Wright Brothers in 1909.

Almost simultaneously a "super flying fortress" bomber, one of the world's largest, set new international marks for speed and altitude, increasing to six the world records to be claimed by the air corps in a week of tests. Ten national marks were established in the same period.

Warning Net Manned More in keeping with the threatening role of bombers in world power politics, army and civilian volunteers on the Pacific coast tested methods of defense against air raids, manning a warning net extending from Canada to Mexico.

The day's celebration, centered at Wright Field, Dayton, O., where the air corps displayed modern machines and motors to crowds estimated at 100,000. A handful of army officers and civilian volunteers learned to fly in the pioneer days of mechanical flight held a reunion there.

In the national capital, another group of pioneers placed a wreath under the wings of the first army plane, now a prized exhibit of the Smithsonian Institution. Then they exchanged reminiscences across the river at Fort Myer, Va., where the Wright Brothers 30 years ago met the army's requirement of a machine that would actually fly and attain a speed of at least 40 miles an hour.

President Roosevelt pressed a button at the White House that flashed the starting signal for the parade of aerial might from nine army air posts. Except for the warplanes of the first wing of the mobile general headquarters air force, which participated in the warning net exercises, virtually every serviceable army plane took to the air, officials said.

Eighteen pursuit craft from Langley Field, Va., flew over a route that included Washington and Baltimore. As many bombers followed a great circle over the Carolinas and Georgia.

New York and Philadelphia saw bombers from Mitchell Field, L. I. Chicago and other cities witnessed a formation of pursuit planes from Selfridge Field, Mich., machines from other fields roared over population centers within a radius of several hundred miles.

The new records of the biggest bomber, the Boeing B-15, were announced at Wright Field as follows: Closed course speed mark of 166.32 miles an hour over a 3,107 mile course between Dayton and Rockford, Ill., with a 4,000 pound payload; and an altitude mark of 33,000 feet with a payload of 11,000 pounds.

Carrying a crew of seven commanded by Major Caleb V. Haynes, the plane landed at 5:22 a. m., at the end of a flight which started Tuesday afternoon.

Officials said the altitude mark exceeded a record of 30,551 feet established by Germany on June 4 last year, but cited no comparative record for the speed mark.

YACHT CRUISE COMES TO END

Boats Arrive At 8 p. m. In Escanaba Harbor; Standings Checked

Arrival of nine boats from Ephraim last night marked the end of the second annual Escanaba-Yacht club cruising race which began last Friday with four visiting yachts participating. Committee members are checking over figures, and expected to announce the winner for the three legs of the race today.

The fleet left at 3 p. m. Friday for Menominee, and on Saturday and Sunday took part in the M & Y yacht club race. The second leg of the Escanaba race started Monday morning, with Ephraim as the destination, and at Ephraim on Tuesday the group joined in the annual Ephraim regatta. The last leg, back to Escanaba, started at 9 a. m. Wednesday, and the first boats arrived in the local yacht basin at 8 p. m.

Placings for the third leg were in the following order: Jibugo, Oslo, Yankee, Mindemoys, Onaway, and Sandra II.

loan figure, also included dropping $2,000,000 in supplemental funds for the wage-hour administration and cutting to $10,000,000 a proposed item of $25,000,000 for buying and storing war supplies not produced here. However, the house restored $1,000,000 of the wage-hour funds before passing the bill.

Officials of the wage-hour administration had said that unless the $2,000,000 were granted they would be seriously hampered in catching up on a block of 10,000 complaints which must be investigated. The division, it was added, has been falling behind on current complaints at a rate of 200 a month and wanted the extra appropriation to put 500 new inspectors in the field and also to build up its legal staff.

The farm loan money was intended for the Commodity Credit Corporation, to restore capital impaired by previous loans. The corporation makes loans to farmers at levels above market quotations, to keep surplus production from beating prices down.

Debate brought out that the corporation has but $9,000,000 left uncommitted with which to continue the program.

Share-The-Wealth Plan Of Grandson Costs Him $2,400

Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Share-The-Wealth Program of Martin Avenue has all over today with Fred Muratski, 66, the unknown sponsor, minus $2,400 and no less than five youthful residents of the neighborhood no longer the possessors of shiny new bicycles and a pool table.

For several years, Detective Charles Zemas said, Muratski has been secreting money about the house because he didn't trust banks. Yesterday he went to a cache that once held $400 and found but $100. A quick inventory showed other hiding places bare.

He told his story to Zemas who questioned Muratski's thirteen-year-old grandson as a suspect. Zemas reported today a confession that resulted in a roundup of eight other boys.

The grandson, Zemas said, apparently had drawn on the cash reserve for some time and had distributed gifts to playmates ranging from $5 to $20 with a generosity comparable to a congressman sending pamphlets on the subject "The Care of the Mountain Goat" to his constituents on the prairies.

Although he recovered the bicycles and a pool table, Zemas said, Grandpa Muratski was quite angry. Officers said they did not know what to do with the grandson.

players postponed until tomorrow their conferences on a wage controversy and the union indefinitely postponed its deadline for a state-wide strike of New York over-the-road truckers.

OPTIMISM IN DETROIT Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP)—Reports persisted tonight in informed circles that a settlement of the General Motors tool and die makers strike was imminent. Nevertheless hundreds of extra policemen were assigned to duty at various Detroit plants to prevent a recurrence of the violence which has marked the strike. The police department went from an eight to a ten-hour schedule last night because of the emergency.

At the General Motors building, where spokesmen for the corporation and the CIO United Auto Workers Union were in conference with Federal Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey, optimistic talk was in the air.

Prospects for a settlement were said to be better than at any time since the strike started July 5. Furthermore it was reported that the prospective agreement would provide not only for skilled workers but also for production workers, thus minimizing the possibility of any walkout later.

Twelve plants and approximately 7,500 workers are affected by the tool and die makers strike. Police details totaling 500 men each were posted this afternoon at the Chevrolet gear and axle plant and the Fisher Body Corp. machine and die unit on Milwaukee avenue. Trouble was expected at these points when shifts changed but none developed. Tuesday police were pelted with bricks and stones at the Chevrolet plant when they escorted non-striking workers out of the building. One pleket was painfully injured.

Union President R. J. Thomas charged that "the police activity in Detroit and in Cleveland at struck GM plants is the current phase of the corporation's efforts to break the strike of tool and die, maintenance and engineering workers. The company has failed to budge the strikers by three weeks of stalling at the conference table."

These, then, are the high points of the scandal that has torn the diocese of northern Michigan and has brought before the nation its bishop in a role unsurpassed in recent times for sheer grotesquery.

STRANGE TALE OF REV. TOLD

U. P. Bishop's Story Called "Astounding" By Clergymen

Chicago, Aug. 2.—The strange story of events which led to the forced resignation of the Rt. Rev. Hayward Sellers Ablewhite from the Episcopal bishopric of northern Michigan was told to The Chicago Tribune last night.

The story, the first chapter of which became public when suits were filed asking the bishop to account for $90,000 in diocesan funds, is replete with details of champagne parties, yacht cruises, market pools, and sorties into Chicago's night life by the once distinguished clergyman. It abounds in anecdotes which characterize the bishop as "the gent with the button shoes" and "Able the bishop."

The churchman's story amazed his fellow clergymen throughout the church. They called the story the most astounding that has come from an American ecclesiastic within their memories. The bishop's statement, supplemented by weeks of independent investigation by Tribune reporters, lays bare an astounding drama.

Champagne Dinners Described Bishop Ablewhite's Chicago sojourns included yacht parties on Lake Michigan and champagne dinners. He became a familiar figure to a number of night club employees who have told how he perched on a stool, along with the other patrons, to sip Scotch highballs.

To this the bishop last night retorted sturdily that he is not a prohibitionist and never has professed to be one; that he enjoys night clubs, doesn't care who knows it; that he defied anyone else a law of the land or of the church prohibiting either drinking or night clubbing.

And, almost invariably, he concluded, it was his wife who accompanied him on his cabaret tours. She affirmed this, and added that she is standing loyally by him in all his present troubles.

Two Deaths Discussed Continuing his statement, the bishop touched upon two deaths. The first was that of a man blamed for the involved state of diocese affairs. His threats to kill himself prompted the attorney general of Michigan to order that authorities investigate the circumstances of the death. The second death was that of the promoter who led Bishop Ablewhite into Chicago's money marts and night life.

These, then, are the high points of the scandal that has torn the diocese of northern Michigan and has brought before the nation its bishop in a role unsurpassed in recent times for sheer grotesquery.

Grateful Lansing Woman Starts Drive To Raise Funds For Crippled Children

Lansing, Aug. 2 (P)—A mother's thankfulness for the treatment afforded her two-year-old crippled son led today to a drive for funds so that other handicapped children may receive similar benefits.

Under the plan of Mrs. Gus Barris, known as the "Teddy Bear Cooperative Community Fund for University Hospital," money will be raised through voluntary contributions and pledges placed in coin boxes throughout the state.

Funds derived from the venture, which won the approval of ranking state officials, including Governor Dickinson, will be used to supplement the state's reduced appropriations for the care of crippled and afflicted youngsters.

Mrs. Barris, wife of a Saginaw restaurant operator, started the movement because of the experience of her son, a patient in University hospital, Ann Arbor, with an injured hand strapped to his back so that skin can be grafted to his palm.

A year ago the child mangled his hand in a wringer. Medical and nursing care exhausted the parents' meager resources and the boy was admitted to the hospital as a state case. When the legislature curtailed funds for crippled children the case was rejected as not an emergency, but the decision was reversed by a probate court in Saginaw and the child readmitted to the hospital.

Because of her experience, Mrs. Barris said, she wants to aid less fortunate children.

Mrs. Barris said she already had received offers of assistance from the Ann Arbor Kiwanis club and that Ashley Clegg, state chairman of the Kiwanis Crippled Children's committee, had aided her in directing the campaign.

She also said that she had received a check from the Salvation Army and that other offers of assistance had come from Boy Scout organizations and ministerial associations.

Governor Dickinson, himself, promised to be among the first to contribute.

Blanks for the purpose of filing articles of incorporation for her movement were obtained by Mrs. Barris from the corporations and securities commission.

COL. TRIPPE PASSES AWAY

Former Army Engineer Was Well Known In Peninsula

Lieut. Col. Harry M. Trippe, former Milwaukee district engineer of the United States army engineer corps and a World War hero, died Tuesday at his home in Whitewater, Wis., his birthplace, after a long illness. He was 67.

Col. Trippe was district engineer in Milwaukee from 1930 to 1936. He retired because of illness after undergoing treatment at Walter Reed hospital in Washington.

Member of a pioneer Wisconsin family, Col. Trippe was assigned to the Milwaukee office a few years before he reached the army retirement age. He said the Milwaukee post was "one I always wanted."

Col. Trippe was awarded a distinguished service medal in 1921 for a feat as commanding officer of the 308th engineers in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He facilitated the progress and supply of the 3rd army corps in bridging a slough which the German and French armies had skirted when they fought over the ground. Col. Trippe built a bridge in record time to permit the movement of heavy artillery, a factor which proved decisive in the military operations by saving many miles of arduous travel.

Col. Trippe went to Milwaukee after three years' service in the Panama Canal Zone. During his stay in Milwaukee he won the friendship of city officials for his work in the development of the harbor.

Promoted on Birthday
President Roosevelt gave him a birthday present in 1933—promotion from major to lieutenant colonel.

He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1896 and, after being employed by the North Western road, joined the federal geological survey and later was an engineer for the interstate commerce commission. He joined the army engineers corps at the outbreak of the war.

Col. Trippe is survived by his wife, Mrs. Culla Trippe, and three daughters, Mrs. Stephen Ambrose, Lovington, Ill., and Mrs. Wayne Kethart, and Miss Harriet Trippe, both of Whitewater.

Col. Trippe was quite well known in the Upper Peninsula, having appeared at various public hearings held in connection with rivers and harbors improvements.

Do Figures Lie?

CONFLICTING reports concerning the tourist traffic in Michigan come from various sources this season.

The state highway department announces that travel on the so-called tourist routes in the Upper Peninsula and the northern part of Lower Michigan during June and July was 12 per cent greater than the volume of traffic during the corresponding period last year.

Probably figures do not lie, but hotel operators in the Upper Peninsula complain that the tourist business is not up to last year's figure.

One explanation that might be offered is that folks do not have so much money to spend this year and are taking hurried short trips into this region.

Folks appear to be traveling, but they must be going to different places than they have been heretofore.

Another Mortality

DAILY newspapers in Minneapolis have been reduced to two as a result of the acquisition of the Journal by the Cowles interests, who have consolidated the highly respected Journal with their Minneapolis Star.

At one time, the Star was the weakest newspaper in Minneapolis. After its purchase by the Cowles group, who also publish the Des Moines Register and Tribune and Look magazine, it began to improve in reader interest and enjoyed increasing circulation.

The trend toward fewer newspapers continues throughout the country. Higher operating costs, due to increased newspaper prices, wages and taxes, are taking their toll.

Program Has Value

TWELVE-YEAR-OLD Donna Fendler of Rye, N. Y., who was lost in the Mount Katadin wilderness for eight days, and owes his life to the fact that he remembered and put into practice some of the safety rules he learned as a Scout.

Many older persons have perished in similar circumstances in the past. But Donna kept his head, subsisted on berries and other natural foods he found in the woods, and followed the signs that led him eventually to a place of human habitation.

The story of how Donna Fendler saved his own life under extremely adverse conditions is just another instance of the worthwhileness of the Boy Scout program, which has shown its value in many ways in Escanaba and other communities.

Fire Losses Mount

THE Upper Peninsula's unusually long drought period is being reflected in a sharp increase in fire losses, according to the state conservation department.

In last 15 years, forest fires have ravaged 2,045,415 acres in Michigan, entailing a monetary loss of $1,426,747.

If you travel the north country this vacation period don't join the growing army of fire bugs. If you must smoke see that your cigars, cigarettes and pipe heels are out before being discarded.

Snail Driver Indicted

THE snail driver is nearly as dangerous as the speeder on the highway, according to Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner, who proposes a system of express highways to speed up motor vehicle traffic.

Impatient when their way is blocked by these over-careful individuals, and proceed to cut in and out of traffic, sometimes with disastrous results.

Educational campaign has little effect upon the snail driver, so the state highway department proposes to accommodate the motorist, who wants to get to his destination without delay, by providing roads on which there would be minimum speed restrictions.

Do Something for Youth

THE cry that "something must be done for youth" has a modern ring. Yet Columbus, O., has a program which has been going on for 11 years, and which has succeeded in cutting juvenile delinquency by 50 per cent in that time.

The Columbus Foundation of Youth is a community-wide project in which both private and public agencies co-operate. It has enrolled a high percentage of boys and girls between 9 and 17. It has a full-time director, it uses public swimming pools, gyms, and parks, it has a full program of all sorts of child activities, and it charges nominal dues of each member just to give him an added interest.

Going on the principle that there are no "bad" boys or girls, the Columbus organization has done a valuable job, and the reduction in juvenile delinquency is merely a byproduct of its work, though a highly desirable one.

The proposed abandonment by the New Haven Railroad of all its lines southeast of Boston out to Cape Cod brings home the change that has taken place in the nation's transportation picture during the past quarter century.

Change is the mark of all life, and economic life is no exception. The railroads will continue to have a fundamental place in our transportation system. But now that their turn has come to accept a different and less dominant status, the problem is not how to resist changes that are inevitable in progress but how best to accept them and to make the needed readjustments.

AROUND THE PENINSULA

When the state highway department took bids on a landscaping project just north of the city limits of Menominee, it was for the purpose of beautifying a comparatively small plot where the exact halfway point between the equator and the north pole is marked.

THE TOLL ROAD

The toll road is as dead as Julius Caesar's grandfather. The toll road is one with Nineveh and Tyre and the pterodactyl. That such a vague, ghostly memory could be incorporated into modern transportation seems a figment of quixotic imagination.

Berlin (AP)—The word "lebensraum"—a Nazi creation—has been taken over into the English language, and into other languages, yet the word does not appear in German dictionaries.

Literally, it means "living room." It is used daily as Germany presses demands on Europe and the world.

Here is an explanation given by one of the high-ranking nazis whose job it is to help execute German foreign policy:

It is the national territory of any country plus such regions as a nation needs for the fundamental, peaceful maintenance of its life through the exchange of goods.

The Nazi definition thus strips the word, and the forward-march foreign policy which it indicates, of all political meaning and connects them with economic life.

The United States, according to this Nazi lexicon, has no lebensraum because its national territory because it lacks only a minor number of raw materials.

Great Britain's empire, on the other hand, is considered, at least in part, as a lebensraum for the British Isles.

IT WORKS BOTH WAYS To the nazis, Southeastern Europe, toward which Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler has waged a relentless drive, is Germany's lebensraum.

Vice versa, Germany belongs to Southeastern Europe's lebensraum because those countries, in the Nazi view, need the big German market for the "fundamental, peaceful maintenance" of their peoples.

Other countries may do business in Southeastern Europe, but because Germany is able to absorb more of their agricultural products than any other country, it is Germany's backyard.

And other countries politically should keep hands off.

This does not mean, according to the Nazi definition, that Southeastern Europe cannot be politically independent. It merely involves an exchange of products, but not an exchange for mere profit.

COLONIES INCLUDED? Nazis say they agree with the Polish contention that Danzig belongs to Poland's lebensraum because it lies at the mouth of the Vistula, a Polish river.

Similarly, they say that Rotterdam, in Holland, belongs to the German lebensraum because it is at the mouth of the Rhine, a German river. It does not follow, they assert, that Danzig politically belongs to Poland or that Rotterdam politically belongs to Germany.

Whether the nazis believe that colonies also belong to their lebensraum has not yet been clearly defined.

Scandinavia does not belong. Nor do Baltic countries, Holland, Belgium, France, Switzerland and Poland. Included in German lebensraum are Hungary, Slovakia, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece.

Roberts P. Hudson of Sault Ste. Marie was virtually a member of the Isle Royale party commission for a few minutes the other day, but Governor Dickinson hastily recalled the appointment when it was discovered there was no vacancy.

That places the Michigan governor in a class with Governor Hell of Wisconsin, who "retired" two measures which he had signed.

Hudson probably isn't disturbed over failure to get the appointment, however, for there is little need any more for an Isle Royale park commission with the United States Park Service taking charge of the island as a national park.

Beatrice Lillie is one of the most frequent users of the trans-Atlantic telephone. Not usually for any urgent purpose, but for casual chats with her friends on this side of the ocean.

The other night Lady Peel, who was in London, felt lonely for her chums in New York. So she called up the Stork Club and asked the waiter who was there.

"Tallulah Bankhead," the headwaiter informed her at heaven knows how many dollars per second and Bea said, "Put Tallulah on the wire."

Then there was a five-minute exchange of gossip and chatter between the two turbulent actresses and Tallulah turned the phone over to the folk at the next four tables. I hope Miss Lillie snapped out of her nostalgia when she hung up and computed the bill.

A few weeks ago, she phoned from her home just outside of London where she was giving a party. She let each of her houseguests speak to the folk over here and evag reported on what each one was drinking.

PRINTER IS APT TO GO BERSERK Two pages of James Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake" were my maximum limit. If I read them aloud, I would now be toothless, for the Joyce prose is a jaw-breaker.

The other day, Pat Corvid, who publishes Joyce's profane gibberish, was saying that they couldn't get printers around here to set the type because they wouldn't risk their sanity.

A fair sample of why a local typesetter wouldn't undertake the job is this modest word in the Joyce vocabulary: Semperexcommuniicamblermbisummers. Maybe I've misspelled it. And don't ask me what it means.

RADIO DEBUT IS NO JOKE A microscopic debut is no less nerve-touching than an initial airplane excursion and a friend in need is the fellow about to be launched upon one of those two adventures.

So this is a belated word of gratitude to Gilbert Martin, the handsome announcer, who, a few weeks ago, nursed me through my first appearance in television with the patience of a samaritan. And when it was all over, he was quick to jump in and lie graciously and outrageously about the quality of my performance.

Without first aids like Martin around the studio, the jangled nerves if laid end to end and then coiled, would strangle Radio-City.

Well, this is certainly very nice. It's one of the bets I missed—but then, I never would have been able to get away with it.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—The story of Louisiana, which might be labeled "The Aftermath of a Dictator" shows that Huey Long's successors got their most spectacular income from oil, and their most despicable income from WPA filching.

However, their most consistent day-in-and-day-out revenue came from gambling. And since there are Americans who would have us emulate the dictators of Europe, it pays to study the manner in which this racket, when nurtured by dictatorship, became more flagrant and ruthless in Louisiana than anywhere in the United States.

Gambling in New Orleans may be divided into four categories, all of them lush sources of graft: (1) the "handbooks", which are pool parlors that take bets on horse races; (2) the lottery, or numbers racket; (3) the slot machines; and (4) the open gambling establishments which feature dice games, roulette, Klondike and almost everything else.

All of these operate with the approval and protection of the little group of brass-hat dictators who have carried on after Huey Long.

SUMPTUOUS GAMBLING

One of the largest gambling establishments in the city, for instance, is 118 1/2 Baronne Street, just a few doors from the Jesuit Church and operated under the protection of Seymour Weiss, bosom pal of Huey Long, who recently was indicted on charge of selling the furnishings of the Bienville Hotel twice to Louisiana State University.

Actual managers of "118 1/2" are Joe Brown and Eugene Smith, professional gamblers from Texas. How complete is the protection enjoyed by this lush joint is illustrated by the fact that when the Club Forest, an adjacent dining and dancing place, started to cut in on its business some years ago, Huey Long closed the Club Forest tight.

"118 1/2" is a sumptuous establishment—air conditioned, furnished with every form of gambling device from bird-cage to a roulette "squeeze wheel", and with total equipment costing at least $100,000. But on the tax books of New Orleans, its furniture and fixtures are assessed at a paltry $1,300, and the total tax which this magnificent place pays to the city is an infinitesimal $31.45. To the State of Louisiana "118 1/2" pay only $13.32 annually, making a total tax bill, both state and city, of but $44.81.

POLICE PROTECTION

Since gambling is illegal in Louisiana, all houses operate with police protection, and an investigation once conducted by State Senator Jimmy Noe indicated that the pay-off began with the officer on the beat and got progressively more generous as it extended to the men at the top. Some New Orleans police actually have built swank $25,000 mansions on Vendome Place, in the most fashionable part of town.

Among those who appear to enjoy more than the ordinary police favors in The Casino, which operates one of the largest Keno games in the city and is run by James Brocato, alias Jimmy Moran, an ex-convict who is the close friend of Mayor Maestri. Moran rides about the city publicly with Maestri, attends prize-fights and ball games with him, and was a colonel on the staff of Governor Leche until the latter resigned.

Moran's partner in operating The Casino is Jerry Woods, who also served time in Atlanta. Another partner is Adam Smith, recently released from the federal penitentiary for smuggling.

This joint does a thriving business in the Oster Brothers' old wagon factory, in front of which a Negro in full uniform is to be stationed to receive customers. When Mayor Maestri heard about the doorman he told Moran to fire him. The uniform attracted too much attention.

Note—Maestri's friend Moran boasts that he is the best-dressed man in New Orleans, having 300 suits of clothes, several hundred dollars worth of shoes, once buying $2500 worth of shirts in one swoop.

WHITE AND COLORED GAMBLERS

There are hundreds of small dice games for Negroes in white saloons all over New Orleans, and in some of these places the Negroes and lower type whites shoot craps together. But the most prominent colored dice establishment is The Fair, located on old Magazine Street and operated by Earl Metzweiler, another close friend of Mayor Maestri.

Biggest Negro gambler in New Orleans, and also reported to be on good terms with Mayor Maestri, is the famous "Mr. Beanie", real name Edgar Fauria, who is so important a figure in the gambling world that he is always accompanied by a white bodyguard, Frank Licali, alias "Fungi", whose picture is in the police rogues gallery. These two once got into a dispute with a white policeman named Mollinary, and when the latter tried to bring charges against them, the District Attorney's office suggested that it was wiser, for the policeman's sake, to drop the case.

LEGION PARLEY TO BRING MANY

Special Trains and Excursion Boats Will Be Used

Excursion boats and special trains, bringing loads of lower Michigan Legionnaires, will add a new note to the annual department of Michigan American Legion convention to be held in Escanaba Aug. 19 to 23. The boats, which will house hundreds of conventionaires during their stay in Escanaba, will be docked just a block from Ludington street, and the special trains, coming from the Flint area, will be in the C. & N. W. railway passenger yards.

Outstanding always as a convention spectacle, the annual department drum and bugle corps contests will be held Sunday afternoon and evening, Aug. 20, on the clipped green turf of the Escanaba athletic field, with Pontiac defending the title of state champions. Finals will be held under floodlights in the evening. Members of the 40 and 8 will have their parade and promenade Saturday evening, Aug. 19, which is also the day of the annual Upper Peninsula association convention. The Legion parade will be Monday, Aug. 21, with its colorful array of floats, boxcars, bands, drum and bugle corps, clowning conventionaires and marching units with massed flags.

Congressman Martin W. Dies of Texas will be the speaker at the annual convention banquet Monday evening, Aug. 21, in the newly completed St. Joseph banquet room. Rep. Dies, head of the congressional committee investigating subversive activities in this country during the past year and a half, is said to possess more information on "isms" than any other citizen public official. Representing the national organization of the American Legion at Escanaba will be Jeremiah F. Cross, New York City, chairman of the National Americanism commission.

Numerous special attractions are being arranged for convention entertainment by the Escanaba convention corporation on both land and water. Facilities of the local yacht harbor on Bay de Noc will be available to visitors, and paraders who bring their bathing suits may cool off at the Ludington Park beach. In addition to excursion boats from Detroit, the coast guard cutter Escanaba will be docked at Escanaba for the period of the convention.

Michigan in Washington

(By Esther Van Wagoner Tutty) Seldom does congress adjourn as late as August. Leaving out the special and lame duck sessions there have been but five August adjournments since 1888, the Congressional library reports. Two of those were recent, in 1935 and 1937.

These days the talk on Capitol Hill is about evenly divided between arguments on the pros and cons of the pending bill and guesswork on a probable adjournment date. Today—the senate dopsters say "this Saturday" and the house prophets "two weeks more at least."

Discouraged, Congressman Albert J. Engel, of Muskegon, wis-cracks that he is writing a Labor Day speech.

Of all people, the Anti-Saloon League says that Methodist-dry Governor Dickinson is an "awkward" crusader for their cause. While the league lavishes profuse praise for "the useful service he is performing in directing public attention to a growing social problem" the league yearns for a more practical leader who can steal as many headlines for a scientific approach to a remedy.

In other words, instead of indignant outbursts, the Anti-Saloon League here would like Dickinson's legislature to pass laws prohibiting the stimulating of liquor sales by advertising in newspapers and radio broadcasts. Also they hope Governor Dickinson will perfect the local option law in Michigan and better police the "highway hot-spots" of the state. Then he might have his welfare department conduct a survey to determine the relation of the liquor sales to relief, the league spokesman suggests.

Especially the Anti-Saloon League would like him to use his influence towards giving the federal alcohol administration the same control over breweries that it now has over distilleries.

Congressman Fred Bradley, Rogers City Republican, is almost willing to hold up adjournment to pass the Walter-Logan bill restricting the powers of the various federal commissions and agencies.

Already through the senate, this bill described by Bradley as one "to regulate the regulators" would subject the orders and rulings of federal bureaus to review by the courts of jurisdiction.

Vice President Garner, that "poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, evil old man," is going to believe in the bread returning-on-the-water philosophy. Days ago he took time off from a most important conference on the Hill to welcome Jean Hammond, Queen of the 1939 Traverse City cherry festival. Now his friends have dug up some pictures taken that day—which capital papers are printing—to give him a boomerang title of "cherry-eating, hand-kissing old man."

One of the nationally circulated news shots showed Garner opening his mouth wide for Michigan cherries from pretty Jean, while Senator Vandenberg looked on and approved.

This is Garner's second experience with Michigan-to-the-rescue. The first was the letter of approval from Michigan's Governor Dickinson, whom even John L. Lewis would hesitate to call "a poker-playing, whiskey-drinking, evil old man." Dickinson called the vice president "one Democrat I admire."

The curiosity on the probable vote of presidential possibilities in the senate on the Tydings amendment to the pending bill which would prohibit the contribution of funds from organizations to candidates or political parties unless the members specifically agreed, was not satisfied since a record vote was not taken. The voice vote was favorable. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg did not hesitate to state that he would have voted for the amendment. He emphasizes that it would not prevent such loans as the $750,000 from the C. I. O. to the Democratic party in a former campaign providing every C. I. O. man contributing was informed and agreeable.

Reich Business Moving To U.S. With Refugees

Philadelphia—A German who used to own a shirt factory in Germany and sell his product to South America has emigrated to this country, has opened a factory and is employing American labor.

Practically all our harmonicas and accordions used to come from Germany; now a refugee has set up a shop for the making of these instruments and he employs American workers.

A certain German firm used to send fine woolen hose to this country. Now the three members of that firm, all refugees, have re-established it in Massachusetts where they are employing 38 American workers to manufacture the same type of goods.

Still another refugee brought with him from Germany a patented process used in the manufacture of gloves; the business he established here is doing an annual business of $100,000.

WANTS PUBLIC TO KNOW

These are just a few of the facts on refugees revealed by the American Friends' Service Committee (Quakers), who are doing yeoman service in helping refugees from Germany and Italy.

Clarence E. Pickett, executive secretary of the Friends, and winner of this year's Bok Award for his refugee work, is particularly anxious that the public at large be apprised of the true facts about refugees, to counteract unfavorable publicity and false rumors.

"Consider the following summary of the refugee problem," explains Pickett. "Every human being is a consumer. He eats; he wears clothes; he requires a place to live. Every immigrant who comes to America is as much a consumer as anyone else, and his wants have to be supplied by American business and factories.

"In this sense the refugees are actually proving work for American labor. This is especially true of the women and children among the refugees. Perhaps about a third of them will become wage earners. This number must be reduced still further, however. Many of the refugees are intellectuals—writers, scientists, scholars. They will help to make our country the cultural center of the modern world by their presence here.

"The larger proportion of them are of course workmen, business men and manufacturers. Of these individuals there will be quite a few who will bring to our country new businesses and skills which we have lacked.

NOT ALL REFUGEES ARE JEWS Pickett feels that there are many facts about the present-day refugees which are not sufficiently clear to the public. For instance, most people think that the refugees from Germany are all Jews.

As a matter of fact, in 1938, one-third of all refugees from Germany were Christians, Pickett estimates. In the years before that, the proportion was higher. According to the best estimates available there are about 400,000 Jews by religion still in Germany and about 200,000 non-Aryan Christians, that is, Christians with some percentage of Jewish blood.

"Up to the present, those arriving here have been divided in the proportion of five Jews to two Christians, but this proportion does not mean that Christians are not anxious to leave Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia. It merely means that the Jewish committees were the first in the field and as a result have had more time to secure affidavits, etc. If the Christians of the United States increase their assistance to their co-religionists, the proportion of Christian refugees will increase.

In addition to other misapprehensions, Pickett has found that the public does not know how really few people are coming in under the quota laws.

"It is illuminating to see that, compared with other years, before Hitler, the numbers who came in 1938, the largest since Hitler, were very small," says Pickett. "The net 1938 immigration was one-fifth that of 1929 and one-tenth that of 1925.

"For the six months of July 1, 1938, to Dec. 31, 1938, there was a net permanent residence of 31,648. Based upon a population of 130,000,000, the 1938 net immigration to this country represented less than 4-100 of 1 per cent of our population."

Minimum Highway Speed Is Proposed

Lansing, Aug. 1 (AP)—A system of express highways which would have minimum speed regulations, was proposed today by Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner as one means of coping with "small drivers."

Asserting such drivers are "nearly as dangerous as the speeder," Van Wagoner sought an opinion from his department's legal division as to whether he had authority to impose minimum speed restrictions on heavily traveled roads.

"Small drivers hold up traffic with a definite objective while they dawdle along the highways," the commissioner said. "We have no money to build wider roads to take care of resultant traffic jams. Drivers annoyed at being held up behind slow-going motorists become impatient and decide to 'run the gauntlet' to get out in front. That's when accidents happen."

Van Wagoner said legislation may be necessary to establish minimum speeds but pointed out some states already have prohibited slow-moving vehicles from us-

Enough to serve 4 or 5. Beat six eggs or three yolks with a quarter of a cup of granulated sugar, a speck of salt, half a teaspoon of vanilla and two cups of milk. Pour into individual molds, rinsed in cold water. Set in a pan of hot water and bake about 45 minutes in a slow oven—325 degrees. Baked custards are done when they are quivery in the center. When cool they will stiffen. For chocolate flavor, add one square of melted chocolate to either the boiled or baked custard.

Kenosha Girl Is The Bride Of Lawrence Beaumier

Interesting to many residents of Escanaba, the former home of the bridegroom's father, is the account in the Kenosha press, of the marriage of Miss Verna Virginia Scholtz and Lawrence Joseph Beaumier. Mr. Beaumier is a nephew of Mrs. Kelly Johnson of this city, and has many relatives here.

The story of the wedding follows: "Wearing a white marquisette gown with short puffed sleeves and orange blossoms nestling at the throat, a finger-length veil and a crown of orange blossoms, lovely Miss Verna Virginia Scholtz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Scholtz, 2420 Seventy-fifth street, escorted by her father, walked to the altar to become the bride of Lawrence Joseph Beaumier at an 8 o'clock mass this morning. "The ceremony, performed in the presence of immediate relatives and friends, took place at St. Thomas' church, with the Rev. Timothy Regan officiating. Palms and flowers decorated the church.

Maid of Honor Wears Blue "The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and gardenias. Miss Agnes Scholtz was her sister's maid of honor, and she wore a blue net gown with puffed sleeves. A blue crown adorned her head and she carried pink roses. Robert Beaumier, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Leo Scholtz and Eugene Cox.

"The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Justin Beaumier, 6848 Twenty-ninth avenue.

Honeymoon in California "A breakfast for 50 guests was held at the Park Place hotel and covers were laid for 30 at a luncheon at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Beaumier left immediately after the luncheon for a three weeks' trip to San Francisco, and after August 1 they will reside in Chicago.

"The bride is a graduate of Kenosha high school and the bridegroom attended DePaul university. He is now an accountant. "Guests from out of town included Messrs. and Mmes. D. Lassar, Niagara, Wis.; E. Papst, A. Lindner, John Scholtz and Matus, the Misses Anne Kelly and M. Appel, Milwaukee, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Donnelly, Chicago."

Heat slowly and stir constantly until a brown bubbling syrup forms, pour in a cup of boiling water and let boil three minutes.

EUROPE TALKS OFTEN OF WAR

St. Louis Writes About Meeting With Bullitt In Paris Home

BY STANLEY ST. LOUIS
Paris—We spent an interesting evening in the private residence of William C. Bullitt, American ambassador to France. The small party of four in addition to Mr. Bullitt included William Simms, foreign editor of Scripps-Howard newspapers; editor of the Kansas City Star, Mr. Haskell, and Mr. Quinn, editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Five people can cover a wide variety of subjects in one evening but the main topic of conversation to-night was the all-important subject—war in Europe.

Mr. Bullitt is a regular fellow, utterly frank and outspoken with very little patience for those unwilling to speak their mind. He loves France and the Frenchmen reciprocate to the fullest. His simplicity of manner and charming informality can much easier be appreciated after one has met a few of the stuffy, sedate, career diplomats of various countries.

It is indeed a most stimulating experience to sit down for a long talk with men able to say matter-of-fact tones: "Mr. Chamberlain told me the other day," etc. When you hear words straight from the shoulder without any quibbling from authentic sources it is more satisfactory and informative than a bushel of rumors from those not in "the know."

Here are some of the events, possibilities and a few general conclusions developed during the evening. Further mention of the political issues does not in any way carry the implication that Mr. Bullitt either stated or agreed with what was said. They are merely listed as highlights of the talk.

Asks Air Raid Shelter
The American chancery in Paris requested of congress $10,000 for the purpose of constructing an air raid shelter. Evidently Washington either does not expect war or places small cash value on diplomatic heads because they refused to allot the money. Mr. Bullitt had a pick and shovel ordered for the work of building a small shelter in the garden of his home. So far, none of the staff has summoned enough ambition to wield the tools, and besides, Mr. Bullitt laughingly declared, "It would mean tearing up our nicest flower bed."

Paris now has a system of shelters completed in the city parks providing protection for 800,000 persons. These underground pens are not to be confused with bomb-proof shelters. American military experts, from their observations made during the bombing of Barcelona, came to the conclusion that walls of reinforced concrete, fifteen feet thick, would be necessary for adequate protection against a direct hit. The public shelters in London, Berlin, Rome and Paris are all constructed primarily for protection against gas and flying debris.

The new type bomb has a delayed time fuse. So instead of ducking for the cellar, one is better off in the open. The bombs will penetrate through the roof of a building and travel down through several floors, not exploding, until near the bottom of the building. When the explosion occurs the building mushrooms outward on all sides.

All five at the meeting agreed that they preferred, in the event of an air raid, to take their chances in the open. That feeling is often expressed by Europeans. There is something very dreadful about being trapped underground. It could easily be worse than dying several deaths. Many feel that being in Paris, Berlin or London during an air raid is comparable to drawing numbers in a lottery.

If your number comes up, it's all over and there isn't much that can be done about it. The amount of oil that Germany can store for use in time of war is a vital question. Opinion varied widely on this matter but it was generally agreed that by cutting civilian gasoline consumption to the bone, Germany could easily hold out for six months.

One of the men in the group was of the opinion that Russia would be perfectly happy to sit on the sidelines and watch the rest of Europe tear itself to pieces and then step in and assume virtual control of the continent. If that is the case, Russia, today, is sitting in the golden chair.

Just how long the feeling of tense expectancy can endure in Europe is problematical. Adolph Hitler's recent talks and actions in the field of art, omitting all mention of politics, instead of having a quieting effect, has, on the contrary, made Europe more restless than ever. Many suspect some kind of a coup in the very near future.

Visits With Mowrer
The writer spent this morning in the office of Edgar Ansell Mowrer, foreign editor of the Chicago Daily News. He runs Dorothy Thompson's close race for Germany's rating of Journalist Public Enemy No. 1. Both he and his brother Richard received their walking papers from Dr. Goebbels, years ago. Richard Mowrer is regularly stationed in Paris but is at present in Warsaw for news.

Mr. Mowrer is anti-Nazi and has never given two whoops who knows it. His pet hobby is thumping the heads of dictators. He dislikes them, one and all, and seldom misses an opportunity to rap their knuckles, a feat at which he is most adept.

The visit with Mr. Mowrer was most interesting because during the conversation there were repeated interruptions as his correspondents called in from Rome, Warsaw, Danzig, Berlin and London. This is a daily procedure. After Mr. Mowrer has heard and analyzed last minute reports from all over the continent he groups the most important items, correlates the news and then personally dispatches a cable story to Chicago.

Paris is a good place to get around in and learn what is going on. Fortunately, too, if one's head becomes overburdened cramming information, Paris, more than any other city in Europe, provides any and all types of relaxation.

War scares have not sidetracked the French people from their main objective in life—having a good time. It takes a person possessed of far more resentment than your correspondent will ever have to be able to terminate, "evenings in Paris," before dawn. This is one place you are never placed in the predicament, "nothing to do, nowhere to go, tonight."

It is regrettable that in writing about Europe, today, one must constantly dwell on the subject of war or matters pertaining thereto. But that is what Europe is at present—politics, intrigue, armament and eventually war.

Just as the last of this is being written, thirty-eight great French bombers flew in formation over the city. Frequent flights of this kind are said to be staged purposely by the government in an effort to make the people less concerned about action overhead. So far the effect has been quite the opposite. The people seem fascinated by the planes much as one dreads a snake and still remains curious. At long last man has perfected a machine which he himself fears.

Newberry Enjoys Building Boom
Newberry, Mich.—This town is experiencing one of the biggest building booms in years.

Heading the list is the new hospital which will replace the old school house, which is now being torn down by local employees. This hospital is owned and operated by two local doctors, A. L. Swanson and R. E. Spinks.

The next in the list is the Newberry dairy on Helen street, which is owned and operated by William Majensky. This new dairy went into operation last week, and now is supplying most of the local stores with milk, cream, ice cream and etc.

Thomas Shimmens, already operator of one theater in Newberry, is building another theater on Helen street. This theater is being remodeled from an old brick construction. This work is being done by local employees. This theater is being built because the main theater is much too small, for all adults and children.

Another project nearing completion is the Gibson hospital, which is being built south of Newberry avenue. This hospital is being built in the place of the old Gibson home which was destroyed by fire a year ago.

The last building project is at the Newberry State hospital, which is rapidly nearing completion. These buildings are being financed by the P.W.A. building program.

BEHIND THE SCENES

By Bruce Cotton

Washington—It is just possible that Tennessee's Senator Kenneth McKellar has bitten off a trifle more than he can comfortably chew in his drive to purge the public payroll of J. Ross Eakin, superintendent of the Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

McKellar, who is popularly reputed to have put more people on the government payroll than any other senator now in Washington, went after Eakin's scalp some time ago, charging that Eakin was a Republican and was in the habit of appointing Republicans to his staff. Secretary Ickes, Eakin's boss, stood by Eakin, pointing out that the National Park Service is under civil service rules and that its employees' political affiliations, if any, don't matter.

McKellar then charged mismanagement in Eakin's conduct of his office. Ickes retorted that the only irregularities he could find were minor bookkeeping errors. McKellar followed by demanding a Senate investigation of Eakin's record.

ICKES' FRIEND HEADS PROBERS

Now he is getting the investigation—but in a different form than he contemplated. Instead of handing the job to a special committee, which under normal Senate procedure McKellar would have headed, the Senate referred it to the public lands committee. This committee's chairman, Senator Adams of Colorado, is considered a good friend of the Interior Department; other members include such stout New Dealers as Senators Wagner, Murray, Lee, Smathers, and Hatch.

Furthermore, the committee is instructed to look into the matter of Eakin's vote in the 1936 election. Eakin says he voted for Roosevelt. Tennessee election officials are said to have marked his ballot and to have charged afterward that he voted for London. The committee will dig into this proposition as well as into Eakin's record as a park superintendent.

All in all, it won't be in the least the sort of investigation Senator McKellar was originally shooting for.

Optimism apparently prevails among the staff at Republican National Committee headquarters here. Anyway, four members of the staff have contracted marriages this summer, and three more are due to take the step within a few weeks.

Somebody told National Chairman John Hamilton about it the other day.

"Huh," he grinned. "The boys must think we're going to win next year."

Not all the labor news out of Washington is a gloomy recital of fights and reprisals. The Maritime Commission reports an interesting case of boss-worker cooperation—and from the frequently stormy city of Seattle, at that.

The Seattle-Tacoma Shipbuilding Co., a subsidiary of the Todd Corporation, wanted to submit bids for construction of cargo ships to the Maritime Commission. Like all prospective bidders, it wanted to quote the lowest possible price. Consultations between management and labor were held.

As a result, the Seattle Metal Trades Council signed a wage agreement with the company, accepting a rate of 10 cents below the prevailing scale and making the agreement run for the duration of any contract the company might get with the commission. Ordinarily such contracts run for a year only; the knowledge that they must be renewed in the midst of construction activities usually forces a shipbuilder to keep his bid high, so he can have leeway for a possible wage boost when the job is only half done.

Because of this unusual wage agreement, the company was able to shave its bid considerably under the level it would otherwise have taken. Contracts have not yet been awarded—but in this instance, at least, capital and labor were able to work together for their mutual advantage.

SERIAL STORY

WAR AND A WOMAN

BY BETTY WALLACE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
LINDA STORM—Fell in love with her best friend's fiancé.
MARCIA KING—Navy girl, loved a flyer.
JIMMY COOPER—Naval flying instructor at Pensacola.
GEORGE CAMERON—Linda's fiancé.

Yesterday, Jimmy confesses that he no longer loves Marcia, that Linda is constantly in his thoughts. Angriily Linda blurts: "Even if there weren't Marcia—I'm a pacifist. I hate your work, and I hate you for being in it!"

CHAPTER VI

She hadn't meant to blurt it out like that. His eyes, stunned and stricken, were like holes in his face as he gazed down at her. She had hit him a blow in his most vulnerable spot—his work. She sneezed on. "You Naval men—Army men, too—professional war mongers—don't realize what's going on in the minds of the rest of us. That's what Marcia tried to tell you that morning on the field. These planes here drive me mad! I read the papers, I see the danger our country's in. I don't want us to be dragged into war, I can't stand the thought of people being killed. But you're teaching young boys how to kill more effectively, Jimmy! That's your work, and it's part of you, and I hate it! So I hate you!"

She darted from his arms, her breath coming fast. She ran into the lighted room where people were dancing. Peter spied her at once. "My dance, Miss Storm!" Linda saw Marcia's eyes raking the room for Jimmy, and she was fiercely glad that here she was, right under Marcia's nose, dancing with Peter.

She mustn't think about Jimmy—mustn't think about what he was going through now. At last she saw Marcia heading for the porch.

"I—I've had enough," she mumbled to Peter. "I've a headache. Would you mind taking me home?"

"Gosh, I'm sorry," he led the way to his car, parked outside. They passed Marcia and Jimmy, but Marcia's back was turned. Linda knew that Jimmy had seen her. Her chin went up. She took Peter's arm.

On the way home, with Peter driving, she tried to get control of herself. "Sure you're all right?" he asked once. "Perhaps we ought to stop at a drug store and get you a headache fizz."

"No, thanks. I'll be fine. But when you get back to the club, please tell Marcia... I forgot to say goodbye to her."

He hadn't noticed the two people on the porch as they left, evidently. "Be glad to," he said. When Linda entered the house, Marcia's mother was sitting under a lamp, busy with a piece of knitting. "How early you are, children!"

"It's just me," Linda said miserably. "I—I didn't feel well."

"I'm sorry. Is there anything I can do for you?"

"No. I—I'll be all right."

The telephone rang. Mrs. King rose to answer it. She came back quickly. "Lucky you happened to come in right now. That's long distance, for you."

George! Linda experienced a surge of thanksgiving. George had not written because he was so busy getting ready to leave, and now he was waiting to tell her. "I'll be there day after tomorrow. I'm taking the train right now."

"Hello," she said into the phone. "Hello, George."

"Hello, Linda. How good it was to hear his voice! Just the sound of it brought back Queensville and Daddy and home. All the safe, solid, everyday things that had been slipping away from her in the confusion of these past few days.

"George, you're coming down, aren't you?" she cried eagerly. "Oh, I'm so glad! When will you be here?"

Instead of answering that, he was asking, "What happened, Linda? Your letter sounded so queer. It alarmed me. What's the matter?"

"Nothing's the matter. I just missed you and I—I thought it would be nice if you could come and I—oh, George, surely you can leave the laboratory just for once! Surely I'm just as important to you as those experiments."

"But why do you need me, Linda?" She had forgotten how matter-of-fact George could be. Forgotten the solid common sense which always motivated him.

"I miss you," she said despairingly. "Isn't that enough? I—I'm lonely here, I—I wanted to go back, but Marcia wouldn't let me. Please come down, George."

"It's out of the question, Linda. I can't afford a jaunt like that now. I'm up to my ears in work and I simply haven't the time, my dear."

"But, George, I want you here!" There was a silence. His voice came at last. "You know if there was any urgent reason, I'd come at once, Linda. But this is silly! You're in a strange place and you're probably homesick."

"Then why did you bother telephoning me at all?" she choked. "Why didn't you just throw my letter into the wastebasket and forget it? If it doesn't matter to you that I need you, if you think I'm silly—"

"Linda!" he cried. "Linda, there is something wrong! You're not yourself."

"Oh, I'm myself, all right," she replied swiftly. "And you're being yourself, too. I see that now. Your work comes first. It always has. I don't matter. All right, stay there. Go on with the experiments. Never mind about me. I'll get along."

She took a deep breath, urged on by some malevolent impulse she did not fully understand herself. "Good-bye, George!" Of his own volition, her hand slammed the telephone back on its cradle, and she was getting up, walking unsteadily to her room.

When Marcia came in hours later, Linda pretended to be asleep. She heard the other girl rap softly on her door. She heard her whisper, "Linda! Linda!" Then the footsteps went down the hall.

In the morning, Marcia's mother told her over the breakfast table, "That long distance call came through again last night. But you didn't answer when we called you."

Linda crumbled her toast. "Did it?" There had been nothing further to say. George wasn't coming, and any excuses would only make matters worse.

"What alluded you last night?" Peter said with a headache and asked her to take you home." Her eyes narrowed. "You're still just a little seedy this morning. Want to go back to bed?"

"No. I'll be all right." There was the sound of the telephone again. "That's Jimmy, I guess," Marcia smiled. But it wasn't Jimmy. It was long distance, once more, for Miss Linda Storm.

She was glad the telephone was in the foyer, away from the others. When she picked it up, she felt the same cold anger sweeping through her that she had experienced last night. "Listen, George, if all you want to say is—"

"Linda!" George's voice was excited, different. "Linda, something terrible has happened. Last night after you hung up on me I was worried about it a while and then decided to go over and tell you. He didn't answer the door."

Her fingers on the instrument stiffened, chill foreboding clutched at her. "Dad? Oh, George, quick! Tell me!"

"I got in through the back way. He was in the study. He'd had a heart attack."

"Heart attack?" she echoed dully. "Why didn't you call me right away?"

"I did, but I couldn't get you. And I had no time to hang on the phone, I had to go for the doctor. There was so much to be done!"

"How—how is he now, George?" "They can't tell yet, Linda. You'd better come straight home."

"Yes. Yes, I'm coming. I'm coming on the first plane."

COAST GUARD HELPS

Calumet—Coast guardsmen from the Eagle Harbor station Monday afternoon went to Isle Royale after receipt of a message from the Coast Guard Cutter Diligence, at Two Harbors, Minn., at 8:30 a. m. Monday, stating that the "Seagull," a boat from Traverse Bay, had lost its wheel near Stannard Rock.

On reaching Stannard Rock, the Eagle Harbor crew found the coast guard cutter Rush of Marquette already on the scene, having arrived there a short time before. The Rush then took the "Seagull" to Marquette for repairs.

The Eagle Harbor crew which went to the scene in the lifeboat included John Liedke, officer in charge, and Henry Padberg, George Hill and August Kumpula. The men left at 4:30 p. m. and returned at 11 p. m., after making a 110-mile trip.

BISCUIT SHORTCAKES

When making biscuit shortcake (for two layers) divide the dough in two sections, roll each out lightly to pan size, spread one layer generously with butter, fit the other on top and bake both in the same pan. When done, they will break apart easily. That extra butter makes added richness.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

SHOWERS ARE WELCOME HERE

Fire Fighters Relieved By Rain; Farmers Also Pleased

Showers, which reached the city of Manistique about 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and which also reached surrounding territory throughout the day, were cheerfully received by residents of Schoolcraft county.

Forest service and state conservation department officials were especially pleased at the precipitation, which did much to alleviate a fire hazard which might have become critical had rain failed to fall within the next few days. Eight rainless days, accompanied by warm, summer sunshine, brought a high fire hazard throughout the district generally and yesterday's showers did much to relieve the anxiety of forest service and conservation department officials.

The forest service reported showers in areas under their jurisdiction in the Manistique region while the conservation department reported heavy down-fall at Cooks and at the Manistique fire tower on River road. The forest service station at Steuben recorded 1.2 inches of precipitation between 10:40 and 12:50 o'clock.

Farmers in surrounding communities whose fields and pastures were becoming parched welcomed the rain as did residents of the city because it brought down the humidity, which was nearly 90 per cent just before the showers broke.

YOUTH IS SEEN AT STEPHENSON

Braley Believed To Be Riding In Car With Indiana Plates

Local law enforcement officials have been asked to watch for a gray 1938 sedan carrying Indiana license No. 750-862.

The car is believed to be bearing William H. Braley, 17, of Menominee, wanted in connection with the larceny of an automobile for which one youth, Basil Chapman, already is being held in the Schoolcraft county jail, awaiting preliminary examination.

Braley was reported seen Tuesday afternoon at Stephenson, where a sister resides. He was riding in the car described above and had a companion, believed to be Thomas Hill Jr., 18, of Detroit, who also is wanted in connection with the alleged larceny of the automobile.

Local officials are seeking the two youths in order to bring them back to Manistique to face theft charges. The automobile in question is owned by Steve A. McDonald, assistant superintendent of Camp Cusino near Munising. The abandoned machine was found at Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Chapman was picked up at his home in Grand Rapids on July 28. All three youths were members of the CCC at Camp Cusino. Braley is out on parole at the present time, having been convicted of breaking and entering in the night time at the last term of circuit court.

Local People Feel Tremors Second Time

For the second time within several weeks, residents of Manistique and vicinity report feeling earth tremors.

Several persons reported hearing distant rumblings and feeling earth shocks about 11 o'clock Tuesday evening. No serious damage was reported, however, although windows rattled loudly and houses were shaken generally.

Walter LaPlante, North Fifth street, said that his attention was first called to the shocks by his son who was in bed upstairs. LaPlante said he went outside and rumblings seemed to emanate from the Lake region. Windows of the house rattled violently for several moments, the shocks lasting about five minutes, LaPlante said.

Other persons reported similar experiences.

MAKE PROGRESS IN FUND DRIVE

Solicitors Well Received; Make Headway On Golf Course

Good progress is being made in the drive for funds to be used for materials in construction of a clubhouse at the site of the Gladstone golf course and winter sports park on the Days River, it was announced yesterday.

Members of the group of young ladies that volunteered to make the solicitation for funds report they have been well received and the cooperation received has been most gratifying.

The project is a civic improvement and a necessary adjunct to the golf course and sports park. It will belong to the city of Gladstone, owner of the property now being developed for golf and winter sports park. It will be used by both golfers and winter sports enthusiasts.

Work on the building, construction of which was started several days ago, is progressing in good manner, walls of the house already being up.

Golf Course Progressing. Rapid progress is also being made on the golf course, a WPA project on which 100 men are now working, it is reported.

Seven greens have been roughed in, all bridges spanning the Days River and a small creek which meanders through the property-completed and fairways have been brushed.

A bulldozer is being secured for use in grading the fairways and leveling some of the steeper inclines on the course. This part of the work will probably start early next week.

One of the large contributors to the project has been H. J. Norton, automobile man and garageman, whose donation of the use of truck for the work has been of great value, it was pointed out by Walter Erickson. The name of Mr. Norton, through an oversight, did not appear in the list of contributors recently published.

WPA officials in this area are enthusiastic about the possibilities of the combined project as it lends itself perfectly with the recreational program for this area which both the federal and state governments are stressing.

Another Wood Bee Friday Evening At Golf Course Site

SKI club members will participate in another wood gathering bee Friday night at the golf course and winter sports park site, it was announced yesterday. Lunch will be served at the conclusion of the work. Persons who will assist in the work will meet at Granberg's shore store at 6:30 o'clock.

Miss Dorothy Lee Johnson, Washington, D. C., is arriving today for a vacation visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson, Minnesota avenue. Enroute here Miss Johnson visited for several days with friends at Green Bay.

Hard Luck Rowe Goes Route; Eastern Trip Is Big Success

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—The 12-game winning streak of the sensational rookie pitcher, Atley Donald, ended here today as the surprising Detroit Tigers knocked him out of the box and defeated the New York Yankees, 7 to 2.

Schoolboy Rowe, victim of much hard luck this season, was the winning pitcher. He went the full route and gave only seven hits.

It was the second upset managed by the Tigers in New York. First they beat Charley Ruffing for the first time since the spring of 1937. Then they walloped Donald, a feat not accomplished this season by any other team.

Donald's record now stands 12 victories and one defeat. Rowe has won 4 and lost 5.

After giving up six runs in the first five innings Donald did not appear for his turn at bat in the last of the fifth. Spurgeon Chandler, young Yankee pitcher out of action all season because of an ankle fracture suffered last winter, finished the game in good style.

Triple Opens Game

The Tigers really sewed up the game in the first two innings. Barney McCosky, first man up, tripled to open the game and scored on a sacrifice fly by Benny McCoy. Then in the second inning Pinky Higgins singled, George Tebbetts doubled and Higgins scored. Frank Croucher singled, scoring Tebbetts. Rowe and McCosky walked, filling the bases, and Croucher went home on a bad throw by Joe Gordon after the latter fielded McCosky's grounder. All hands were safe on this muffed but the Yanks finally retired the side without additional scoring. With four runs in, however, the game was on the ice.

Rowe got better as the game went along. In the second inning Bill Dickey hit his 14th homer of the season. In the fourth Rowe had his most serious problem and New York filled the bases with no one out. Rowe got out of the jam with only one run scoring.

In the sixth, seventh and eighth innings Rowe, pitching in masterful form, retired the Yanks in order. In the ninth one man got on but never reached second base. Twelve out of the last 13 batters were unable to do anything against the Schoolboy.

Fans Three in Seventh

High spot of Rowe's performance was the seventh when he fanned Chandler, Frank Crossetti and Charley Keller.

Donald's 12-game winning streak was the greatest performance in major league history by a first-year pitcher. The previous record by a freshman was 11 consecutive victories by Harry Krause of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Donald never beat Detroit during his unprecedented streak. Earlier this season he failed to finish against Detroit and the Tigers won the game but Johnny Murphy was the losing pitcher.

The Tigers have won every series of their current eastern trip. Another game remains with New York but the series already has been won by Detroit, victorious also in Washington and Philadelphia.

McCosky, Averill, Higgins, Fox and Croucher each made two hits today. Hank Greenberg, Rowe and McCoy went hitless although the latter drove in the first run of the game.

Old Trader Jimmy Dykes Inspires Patched Up Crew To New Heights; White Sox Nearing Top

BL HARRY GRAYSON NEA Service Sports Editor Chicago

Chicago—"What pulled the White Sox up?" is even a more puzzling question than "What pulled the Red Sox up?" Instead of being sixth, which position a majority of the experts assigned them when Monte Stratton suffered his tragic hunting accident last winter, the Pale Hose are a rousing third, fresh from taking six straight games from the two most formidable outfits in the American League—Boston and New York.

What makes the feat more remarkable is that James Joseph Dykes accomplished it with discarded and spare parts swapped off by other clubs.

Jimmy Dykes is truly the Old Clo's man of Baseball.

Superlative pitching accounted for the continuance of the Chicago array's surge against the Red Sox and Yankees. Hurlers who won for the South Side Slickers were Thornton Lee, Jack Knott, Johnny Rigney, Edgar Smith, the combination of Johnny Marcum and Clint Brown, and 38-year-old Ted Lyons.

All save Rigney and Lyons are castoffs.

MAKE 17 DOUBLE PLAYS IN 10 IMPORTANT GAMES

This chucking corps marched on backed by superlative fielding and timely hitting by Gerald Walker, Mike Kreevich, Luke Appling, Eric McNair and Joe Kuhel to prevail in 17 out of 22 battles.

Closing the Yankee series and hitting for Boston, first stop on the current eastern trip, the infield had reeled off 17 double plays in 10 engagements.

The only athletes now calling Comiskey Park home who were there when Dykes assumed command five years ago are Second Baseman Jack Hayes, Shortstop Appling and the venerable Lyons.

In 1935, Dykes picked up Rip Radcliff, who had been fumbled by Connie Mack, and Kreevich, passed up by the Cubs. In 1936, the little man with the big cigar picked up Clint Brown from Cleveland for small change and took Bill Dietrich from the Athletics on waivers.

During the winter of 1936, he talked Clark Griffith into a three-cornered deal which saw Johnny Salsoner, an untried recruit from the Coast League, move to Washington, Earl Whitehill to Cleveland, and Lefty Lee, much the best of the bunch, from the wigwag to Chicago.

A little reverse cooperation on the part of the candidates is responsible for the abrupt change in outlook. The Southampton and Seabright tournaments offering proof that a player might be ranked high one day and be rank the next.

When Bobby Riggs and Elwood Cooke returned from Wimbledon with pockets bulging with championships, they seemed ready to sweep through current tournaments with ease, and make the selecting of the Davis cup team a formality.

Then what happens? Riggs loses to Frank Guernsey, Jr., ranked No. 12, and Cooke bows to Jack Kramer, ranked No. 15, in the third round at Seabright.

Added to this little brow-wrinkler is the fact that other players lost to rivals of lower ranking. For instance, Sydney Wood, No. 4 last year, lost to the No. 9 man, Gil Hunt; Blitsy Grant, No. 6, lost to unranked Henry Prusoff, at Southampton, and Gene Mako bowed to also unranked Robert Peacock. In the same tournament, Grant also was defeated at Seabright, but that setback, although to Don McNeill, No. 13, was not astonishing. McNeill had been coming along like a prairie fire in recent months, and definitely is a Davis cup candidate.

Riggs is known as a hot and cold player, and his defeat at Seabright can be discounted inasmuch as he jumped from the boat into the tournament. Cooke also can use that as an alibi.

The one bright spot in recent performance is the play of Frankie Parker, winner of the Seabright singles. Parker has developed a good forehand to add to his backhand, and right now looks like the best bet for the team, unless Riggs starts playing the way he knows how.

The scrambled performances of the candidates as a whole, however, bodes ill for the United States chances against Australia, assuming, of course, the Aussies get past Cuba and Yugoslavia. Those matches should be no more troublesome than a slight rash to the adept Australians.

The Australian team literally is made up of Adrian Quist and John Bromwich. There is a rumor that Bromwich has been playing under wraps and that he will be a whirlwind when the chips are down. Quist, defeated in last year's Davis play by Riggs in the opening match, and later victim of Don Budge in the match which developed into a travesty as a judge continually penalized the Australian for his footwork, still rates as a threat in any game.

But whereas the Australians have two standouts, this country is cluttered up with players of more or less common ability, and common would seem to be the right word. There isn't a Budge in the lot.

Just as one person's guess as to the makeup of the United States team for the matches at Philadelphia September 2-4, it could be Riggs No. 1 in the singles, Parker No. 2, and the Cooke-Riggs combination in the doubles, although the Parker-McNeill and Sabin-Mako duos might squeeze in.

Diz Feels Better Over Bum Flipper

Chicago, Aug. 22 (AP)—Dixie Dean, who retired from the Chicago Cub-Philadelphia game yesterday after he "tried to break off a curve to (Morrie) Aronovitch and liked to break my arm instead," was feeling better about the whole thing tonight.

The Cub pitcher had an examination today by Dr. John Davis, club physician, who diagnosed recurrence of the old ailment as a strained deltoid muscle again, but nothing serious.

He advised Diz to keep on throwing for a few days, but not strenuously. However, Diz, who left the game yesterday after allowing two hits in three innings, said tonight he "hadn't thrown a ball today and probably wouldn't for a few days."

Davis Cup Committee Needs Derby Hat Now

BY WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—Just when it appeared the U. S. L. T. A. committee could pick its Davis cup team with one grand gesture, it finds itself fumbling around for a derby hat from which to draw names in single file.

A little reverse cooperation on the part of the candidates is responsible for the abrupt change in outlook. The Southampton and Seabright tournaments offering proof that a player might be ranked high one day and be rank the next.

GOLF CHAMPION AT MARQUETTE

Hogan of Escanaba Will Defend Title; Meet Opens Today

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 2 (AP)—One hundred and sixteen entries had been received by this evening for the twenty-eighth annual Upper Peninsula golf association tournament which begins on the Marquette golf course and Wawonowin links, between Ishpeming and Negaunee, Thursday morning. It is probable that additional entries tonight would bring the starting field up to 130, necessitating eight flights.

Playing in foursomes, golfers from every corner of the peninsula will be fighting par for 36 holes, 18 to be played at Ishpeming and 18 at Marquette, to establish flight positions for match morning. Following qualifying rounds, all entrants will be divided into flights on the basis of scoring, with 16 to a flight. Five prizes will be awarded in each flight.

Ishpeming and Negaunee golfers will be hosts at the annual association banquet to be served in the Wawonowin country club Thursday evening. Annual directors' meeting of the golf association will be held Friday evening in the Marquette club at which time officers will be elected and a site for the 1940 tournament chosen. The championship match is scheduled for Marquette's course Saturday afternoon.

Harry Hogan, of Escanaba, won the Upper Peninsula championship at last year's tournament in Sault Ste. Marie, and Frank Huska, of Menominee, was runner-up. Both are among the entrants scheduled to tee off tomorrow morning.

Another Ruth?

Detroit, Aug. 2 (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs came to Detroit today and jumped immediately into the task of completing details for his heavyweight championship bout at Briggs stadium September 20 between titlist Joe Louis and Bob Pastor of New York.

Accompanying Jacobs here were Walter St. Denis, his veteran publicity director; Lionel Levy, the New York architect who is laying out the seating arrangement for the playing field, and Livingston M. Bissland of Chicago, who will direct ticket sales. Jacobs said the Ducats would go on sale around August 20, approximately one month before the bout.

Tomorrow Jacobs and his party will visit the training camps selected by the fighters. Accompanying them to Northville where he will train at the Wayne county fair grounds will be Louis who will then leave for Stevensville to remain until August 26. Louis will not don gloves until he returns to Northville, John Roxborough, his co-manager, said.

Pastor, who will train near Brighton, is already taking preliminary drills at Saugatoga Lake, N. J.

King Of Belgians Shows Good Golf

Le Zoute, Belgium, Aug. 2 (AP)—King Leopold of the Belgians posted an 81 today to qualify for the Belgian amateur championship on the par 73 Lekkerbeek links.

His majesty's score equalled that turned in by Maj-Gen. A. C. Critchley of England, the defending titlist. It was beaten by only seven others. The king kept the fact he intended to play a secret, entering under the name of "A. N. Other."

Dodgers Squelched By Pirates, 6 to 0

Pittsburgh, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Pirates set a heavy foot down on the Brooklyn Dodgers' hopes of getting into the first division today with a 6 to 0 shutout on Joe Bowman's clever five hit hurling.

The Buccaneers, led by Chuck Klein and Arky Vaughan chased Luke Hamlin in less than three innings and scored another run off relief pitcher Vito Tamulis.

GIANTS SMEAR LEADERS AGAIN

Rampant Reds Snowed Under, 12-2; Sixth Is Big Inning

Cincinnati, Aug. 2 (AP)—The New York Giants humbled Cincinnati's National League leaders again today, 12 to 2, on the five hit pitching of young Bill Lohrman, who also had beaten the Reds in his last two starts against them.

Besides subduing the rampant Reds with his hurling, Lohrman participated in the 17-hit attack on three opposing pitchers with a double and two singles, batting in four runs.

Every player in the New York lineup hit safely and working together they bunched two big innings off Gene Thompson before he was replaced by Ray (Peaches) Davis in the sixth.

Knuckleball Stops St. Louis, 2 and 1

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—Washington made it two straight over St. Louis today as Dutch Leonard pitched a 4-hit game to win 2 to 1.

It was the big knuckleballer's eleventh victory and he would have had a shut-out except for his own misdeeds in the 7th.

Leonard walked Joe Grace after one was out. He retired the next batter but when John Bernardino tapped a roller down the 3rd base line, Leonard picked up the ball and—trying for a play at first—heaved it into right field, Grace scoring.

UTILITY SHARES LEAD IN RALLY

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES table with columns for date, index, and percentage change.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER New York, Aug. 7 (AP)—Utility shares took the stock market leadership today, turning an early retreat into a modest rally, and leaders finished ahead fractions to a point or more.

Cheering to brokers was the fact volume appeared on the upswing with transfers totalling 1,026,530 shares for the five hours compared with 575,030 yesterday.

The Associated Press average of 60 representative stocks added a point at 80.3 and the average of 15 utilities, up 3 of a point, touched a 1939 high at 40.6.

Interest in the power company issues was stimulated, Wall Street analysts said, by the defeat of the administration lending bill in congress. This was taken as meaning government agencies in the future would have less appropriations available for competition with private facilities.

Traders had appeared undecided as to the effect of the proposed legislation's removal, but toward mid-day came in on the buying side. Many were described as feeling the inflationary effect of the bill would have helped to stimulate business, but that the defeat put congress on record against administration policies regarded with disfavor in some Wall Street quarters.

Shares generally were a little lower at the opening and remained there until the buying of the power shares began. Then most sections of the list joined in the upswing only to drop back a bit from their best levels under profit taking at the finish.

Bonds were narrowly higher, and commodities mixed. Cotton finished at 40 to 40 cents a bale. Wheat at Chicago was 1/2 to 1 cent a bushel higher and corn unchanged to 3/8 of a cent advance.

Foreign markets inclined lower, although London prices improved slightly at the close. Electric Bond & Share rose 1/4 in heavy dealings in the curb. Others ranging to more than a point higher included American Gas & Electric, Standard Steel Spring, Niagara Hudson Power and Arkansas Natural Gas. Peppercorn Mfg. bounced 4 following a dividend announcement. Turnover of 207,000 shares compared with 144,000 Tuesday.

WILD, WILD WOMEN Check On Mashers Tulsa, Okla. (AP)—Seeking first hand information about the number of "mashers" in Tulsa and the tactics they employ, police recently dressed Patrolman H. L. Rogers and a newspaper reporter in women's clothing and assigned them to walk downtown streets.

In one evening they were accosted and halted by 16 men of youths, riding in cars. Approximately 100 other cars slowed down to allow a "once over."

The reported blew up when one carload of youths called him names because he declined to "come along on a little party." He threw a pair of brass knuckles through the rear window of the car and the occupants notified police that "a couple of wild women are loose."

Mungo Millers Are Forced to Abandon Honey-moon Trip

Mr. and Mrs. Mungo Miller, whose marriage took place in Escanaba Thursday, July 27, and who left on a wedding trip to the New York World's Fair, had their honeymoon plans interrupted by a Chicago car looter, according to the following story, which appeared in the Chicago Tribune:

"Mr. and Mrs. Mungo Miller of An Arbor, Mich., announced regretfully at the Central police station yesterday that their honeymoon was over. A brick, they said, was to blame.

"The Millers were married Friday and arrived in Chicago Saturday night on their wedding trip. They parked their car near Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue.

"Yesterday they found that some one had bashed in a window with a brick and had taken a suit of Miller's and three dresses and some other garments belonging to his wife.

"We're going back to Ann Arbor," said the bride. "I haven't a thing to wear."

Mr. Miller and his bride exchanged vows in a ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Frechette of this city. The bride is the former Barbara Weaver Shull, daughter of Professor and Mrs. George Harrison Shull of Princeton, N. J., and Mr. Miller is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Miller of Ann Arbor, former Escanabans, who are spending the summer here. Both are students at the University of Michigan.

Italy Tackles 'Piedmont Problem'

With 25,000 soldiers massed in region of Bolzano and Trentino, 60,000 more to be moved in by Aug. 5, Italy prepares for army maneuvers, in which German troops, now concentrated on frontier near Brenner Pass, may join. Problem is development of defense against possible French invasion of Piedmont province, shaded on above map. Piedmont is rich agricultural section; its capital, Turin, is key Italian industrial center. At least, four trans-Alpine highways from France converge on Turin. If France were to attack Italy via these routes, attacking forces would draw closer together with each advance; if Italy were to attack France, each advance would take invaders farther apart.

Wyoming Punter Rides A Bicycle; Horse Too Hungry

Laramie, Wyo. (AP)—Bob Mitchell has a stock reply to the tourists' stock question: "If you're a cowboy, why do you ride a bicycle?"

Says Bob: "You don't have to feed a bike."

A "synthetic" cowboy, with tangle hat, boots, chaps and buckskin gloves, Bob operates the Wyoming port of welcome on the transcontinental highway north of Laramie. The state hired him to dress up because all the tourists expect to see a cowboy in Wyoming.

CITY COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Action Will Be Taken Regarding Rescue Equipment

A report on an investigation of city-owned equipment for rescue purposes will be made by City Manager George Bean at the regular meeting of the city council this evening.

At a meeting of the council held two weeks ago a discussion of rescue equipment was taken up and Bean was authorized to investigate the present equipment owned by the city and also to contact the Bureau of Mines safety department to determine the best types of rescue equipment prior to the purchase of additional equipment by the city.

The primary purpose in purchasing the new equipment is for use in life saving work at the public bathing beach in the event of swimming or boating mishaps.

Among other items to be considered at the meeting this evening will be a request by the American Legion for a band on Monday, August 21, during the Legion convention, a passage of rate ordinance for utility rates effective in September billing and the consideration of water and sewer extensions.

Squaws To Ballot In Saskatchewan

Regina. (AP)—The squaws who have always done most of the work in Indian families, may be granted a voice in government of the reserves. Only the men vote at present.

Dr. Thomas Robertson, provincial inspector who introduced the motion, said the request came from the Indians themselves.

Minnesota Lady Praises KruGon

Mrs. Ann Ulvin Now Feeling Best In Years; Eats and Sleeps Well; Tired, Listless Feeling Now Gone

"It actually surprised me what KruGon was able to do in my stubborn case," said Mrs. Ann Ulvin, 302 West 4th St., Apt. No. 1, Winona, Minnesota. "For years I had been troubled with a stubborn case of constipation which had allowed the clogging of intestinal impurities. This constant irregularity finally got the best of me until I never felt good, lacked the pep and energy necessary to the enjoyment of life. My digestion was also affected and distress followed each meal that I ate. I did my best to find something to help me, but to no beneficial results, for it was not until I began KruGon that I showed improvement."

"I never saw a medicine before that would give such completely satisfactory results as did KruGon in my case," continued Mrs. Ulvin. "My bowels are now regular and the poisonous impurities are being properly eliminated. My digestion is good and I eat the foods I wish without ill effects afterwards. I get up each morning refreshed and ready for the day before me, that tired listless feeling is gone and it is 'treat to be alive. No wonder everyone seems to be talking KruGon. . . it is a medicine of ability, so I found by actual experience."

KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ludington St., this city.
