Doings About Capitol

Lansing—Because heart throbs are involved, the state administration's handling of medical care for crippled and afflicted children was certain to stir up a rumpus. And it did.

Bent on economy, the 1939 legislature whacked the hospitalization budget to $800,000 from an expenditure total of $2,386,000 between March, 1938 to June, 1939.

The University hospital at Ann Arbor has closed two children's units and has dismissed a staff of 50 members, officials explaining that the average cost per patient has been $4.43 a day.

"Home Rule" Test
Although a totalitarian government is expected to assume welfare functions of all kinds, Michigan did not attempt this particular responsibility until quite recently.

Just when you are duly appalled, the social worker clutches the case with this appeal, which comes from the Michigan Child Guidance Institute at Ann Arbor:

"Unless boards of supervisors and other local agencies take advantage of their authority (quoted above) many maladjusted children in urgent need of hospitalization will fail to receive adequate treatment.

What Cost Crime?
Social welfare workers are fond of quoting figures on the cost of courts, jails and mental hospitals.

83 jails, 1937-38 --- 1,165,216
Prisons and prisoners, 1936-37 --- 3,001,500
Circuit judges, state police, etc. --- 1,267,316
State mental hospitals, patients --- 6,798,041
Handling juvenile delinquents, local and state --- 1,100,000

$13,332,073
During the past three years, Michigan with a population of 5,079,400 for 1937 (state department of health) committed through its courts a total of 7,507 persons to state prisons. Of the 7,311 inmates in prisons Dec. 31, 1938, just 47 per cent were first-termers.

Just when you are duly appalled, the social worker clutches the case with this appeal, which comes from the Michigan Child Guidance Institute at Ann Arbor:

"Unless boards of supervisors and other local agencies take advantage of their authority (quoted above) many maladjusted children in urgent need of hospitalization will fail to receive adequate treatment.

Prosecutors Pledge Action
A recent survey of crimes committed by minors was conducted by Michigan State police, and the result, according to Lieut. Harold F. Mulbar, disclosed "shocking figures."

In an appeal to prosecuting attorneys in annual conference at Mackinac Island, the police officer said: "They major part of crime in Michigan today is perpetrated by young men."

Oscar G. Olander, state police commissioner, proposes that community organizations in towns up to 4,000 population take the initiative in forming boys' clubs.

As juvenile delinquency is usually linked with liquor, Orrin A. DeMaas, chairman of the state liquor control commission, put his finger on a vital point when he scolded the home officials: "The people of Michigan, wet or dry, are not going to continue to see 16 and 17-year old youngsters

Milk Law Discussed At Convention Here

Over 50 dairymen representing leading milk distributing concerns in various cities in the upper peninsula attending the convention of upper Michigan milk distributors and dairymen held yesterday at the Delta hotel.

E. A. Beamer, commissioner of the state department of agriculture, was the principal speaker at the meeting discussing the new Michigan milk-marketing law and following his talk there was a round-table discussion on the various provisions of the act which was led by Leonard Francke, secretary of the Michigan Allied Dairy Council.

Mr. Beamer traced the history of the dairy industry in the state, pointing out that the program the state has made along this line is due to the fact that Michigan was one of the first states to recognize the value of the true dairy types of animals and to breed those types in preference to the less desirable ones.

Top Not Yet Reached
Much improvement has been made in the dairy animals by proper selection and breeding, he stated, but pointed out that we have in no way reached the maximum of possibility.

Tourist Meet At Mackinac
Resort Problems To Be Discussed at August 12 Conference

Mackinac Island, Mich.—A representative attendance is expected at the tourist and resorting conference to be held at the Grand Hotel here Saturday, August 12, when newspaper editors and publishers from the Upper Peninsula and the northern part of the Lower Peninsula will meet with state and city officials and representatives of the four larger tourist associations and others for a discussion of resorting promotional matters and problems.

The conference will open with a noon luncheon in the Grand Hotel followed by a brief speaking program at which Pres. J. J. Herbert of the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau will preside. A round-table will follow, with Roger M. Andrews of Menominee as leader, and opportunity for general discussion of the meeting theme, "Selling Michigan's Vacation Possibilities."

The Grand Hotel management has made a special low rate for those attending the event, and visitors may register for one or more meals only if necessary for them to get away the same evening.

It is hoped and believed that a greater degree of cooperation between the press in Michigan's summer resorting districts, and those who are occupied with the further building up of the resorting industry, will issue from the meetings," said Geo. E. Bishop of Marquette, the Upper Peninsula Development bureau's secretary-manager.

pounds there are animals in state herds on our institutional farms which produce from 20,000 to 30,000 pounds yearly. While the average farmer can never hope to equal this rate of production, if he continues to progress in the next decade as he has in the past ten years, the average for the state should be over 6,000 pounds per cow, Mr. Beamer declared.

Commenting upon the new milk-marketing act Beamer said: "We are all well aware that at the last session of the legislature there was placed upon the statute books a milk-marketing act, and a milk-marketing board was created for the purpose of putting into effect the provisions of the law."

Benefits Depend on Dairymen
Those interested in the dairy industry in the upper peninsula are naturally concerned as to how the provisions of the act are going to affect them and what benefits they are likely to derive from the operation of this law.

The commissioner of agriculture pointed out that there are a number of good provisions in the law. The principal provision is that once distributors have a milk-marketing area established they set up a commission of their home people composed of producers, distributors and consumers and work out the arrangements in regard to the production and marketing of milk along such lines, as in their opinion, will best serve the people in the community.

This is a home rule provision and does away with that remote control arrangement that has been guiding the destinies of men for the last few years," he said.

Regulation Up to Industry
This law is optional in its provisions and it is entirely up to the industry in the local markets as to whether they desire the regulation or not.

Three Escape With Minor Injuries In Wreck At Woodlawn

TAX RATE HERE FOURTH LOWEST

Only 3 Others In U. P. Lower; Marquette Is Lowest In State

Escanaba's general tax rate is fourth lowest among upper peninsula cities, with only Marquette, Crystal Falls and Gladstone having lower figures, according to a bulletin recently released by the Michigan Municipal league on 1938 rate schedules.

Marquette had the lowest general tax rate of 146 Michigan cities reporting to the league on 1938 rate schedules, according to the bulletin.

Last year's levy in Marquette raised $40,500 whereas the Bessemer tax raised $51,907.

Use Utility Profits
Principal reason for Marquette's low tax rate for general city purposes is the fact that for a number of years the city commission has followed a practice of using a large portion of the profits of the light and power and water departments to defray general city expenses.

All other tax rates for upper peninsula cities were at least three times larger than at Marquette. The general city levy per $1,000 valuation for U. P. communities in 1938 follows:

Table with 2 columns: City Name and Tax Rate per $1,000. Cities include Marquette, Crystal Falls, Gladstone, Iron Mountain, Iron River, Ironwood, Ishpeming, Menominee, Munising, Negaunee, Sault Ste. Marie, Wakefield, Bessemer.

Dark Sheer Is Flattering To Larger Figure

BY MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9086

If you're young-at-heart, you'll appreciate the exquisite freshness of this Marian Martin style. Pattern 9086 both slimms and enhances lines grown heavy. Make it of a sheer, or semi-sheer dark fabric. Isn't the surprise neckline becoming—see how it softly crosses over and buttons in smart double-breasted style? The yoke is decoratively shirred or gathered below to release splendid fullness. And the six-gore skirt spells unusual flattery. Make a broad, scalloped white collar, with lacy edging and cuffs to match. Or just edge the neckline and sleeves with lace. You may choose between above-the-elbow sleeves and the new three-quarter length.

Pattern 9086 may be ordered only in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 3 3/4 yards 39 inch fabric, 3/4 yard contrast and 3 3/4 yards lace edging.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coin for this MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS, and STYLE NUMBER. Midsummer always calls for an inventory of your wardrobe to see if it doesn't need replenishing. Something cool and crisp for days that are hot and nights that are sultry! MARIAN MARTIN will bring you dozens of easily-made designs for sport, play and formal midsummer wear in our NEW PATTERN BOOK. There are pages and pages of fashions for femininity of all ages. The book is fifteen cents but when ordered with a pattern the price for both is twenty-five cents. You will want to consult this pattern book frequently for your remaining summer costumes. Send your order to Daily Press, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

PREDICTS SPECIAL SESSION

Sault Ste. Marie—State Senator George P. McCallum, of Ann Arbor, formerly of the Sault, said today while on a trip here in connection with business of the Detroit, Mackinac and Marquette land company, that a special session of the state legislature is inevitable.

"We must either collect the taxes now on the books or levy new taxes. That's the situation and the people might as well be thinking about it," he said.

"True, we balanced the budget," he said, "but we did it at the expense of the crippled children, welfare and the schools." He claimed that had the legislature acted on some recommendations made by him last spring, the state would have been $35,000,000 richer without levying a single new tax.

Twilight League Matches Enjoyed At Highland Club

1940 DRUGGISTS MEETING HERE

Escanaba Men Named As Officers of U. P. Association

Escanaba was selected as the site of the 1940 convention of the annual meeting of the Michigan State Pharmaceutical association which was held at the Dickinson hotel in Iron Mountain this week.

A. B. Bracco, proprietor of the City Drug store, Iron Mountain, was named president of the upper peninsula division of the association. Other officers chosen were John Gaufrin, of Escanaba, vice president, and Al Pohl and William Knorr, both of this city, as secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Speakers on the convention program included John LaPoint, of the McKesson and Robins Drug company; Lloyd Huron, of Detroit, state representative for the Bayer company; A. J. Parr, of Lansing, director of drugs and drug stores for the Michigan board of pharmacy; and M. N. Henry, of Lower, president of the state association.

A. G. Buchman, of Iron Mountain, a member of the state board of pharmacy, was toastmaster.

LaPoint was one of the speakers at the business session. Resolutions adopted included one endorsing the health setup under the new state welfare act.

Entertainment included conversation movies, a floor show and dancing. Ladies were entertained at a bridge luncheon at the Covea club at Spread Eagle.

The meeting closed with the president's banquet at the Riverside club, which was attended by 175 persons, the largest attendance yet registered at a division meeting.

The upper peninsula division was organized in 1931 at a meeting held at Iron Mountain.

King's Gateway Is Bringing Tourists

Watermeet, Mich. — King's Gateway and Inn, exceptional summer and winter resort on the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan state line near here, is attracting delighted guests from all parts of the United States and Canada to the Land O'Lakes country.

In many ways this new northern ensemble is without an equal on the continent, say experienced travelers. Not even Sun Valley offers more luxurious appointments or better organized programs of entertainment for the touring public. The location is in the heart of an immense forest — a region fitted by Nature to provide the utmost in outdoor activities.

The Gateway's name is an allusion to the Lake Superior country of which the resort is one of the chief ornaments. Title and establishment constitute an outstanding complement to the Roof Garden of the United States.

Newberry News

ZANDI FUNERAL
Newberry — Funeral arrangements for the burial of Celestine Zandi, 51, who died at his home here Monday, Aug. 7, 1939, following an illness of two weeks, at the family home town at Hurley, Wis., were completed today.

Celestine Zandi was born in Italy September 9, 1888. He came to the United States with his family at the age of five years. He spent most of his life in Wisconsin, where he was employed in mines. The Zandi family came to live in Newberry in 1930.

Funeral services will be held in the Catholic church at Hurley, Wis. Thursday morning. Burial will be in the Hurley cemetery. Surviving him, beside his widow, Margaret, are two sons, William, of Flint, Mich., and Leonard of Newberry; four brothers, Victor, Peter, and Emil of Montreal, Wis., and Anthony, of Flint; a sister, Mrs. Emma Gilbert, of Flint; and also three granddaughters.

LOCALS
Clearance Bouchard, the Newberry Indiana infelder who was struck on the head by a pitched baseball, Sunday, during the Sault-Newberry game, is now making a satisfactory recovery in the Newberry Clinic. X-rays taken early Monday showed no fracture, but one ear may have been hurt internally, the doctors said.

Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Smith of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, are visiting with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Smith, of Newberry.

Jeff Stephens, of Dayton, Ohio, is vacationing with relatives in Newberry.

Dr. and Mrs. Carlton Brown, of Detroit, are visiting Dr. Brown's mother, Mrs. Fanny Brown, of Newberry.

Captain Joe Beach, who runs his "Showboat of the North" down to the Tahquamenon Falls daily, is planning to build another boat for next summer, because of the busy tourist season this year, and he believes that he will have a greater season in 1940. This new vessel will hold 300 passengers.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kincaid Sr. of Eckerman, were injured in an automobile accident near the car they were riding into a ditch. Mrs. Kincaid suffered a fractured nose, cuts and scratches. Mr. Kincaid suffered chest injury, both are recovering in Newberry Clinic. State police of Newberry are investigating the case.

The earthquake tremors heard in Escanaba on Tuesday evening were also heard by different residents of Stonington. They were heard very distinctly at the Ben Mattson home and the Sam Sigfrid home.

U. Of M. Students Present "Iolanthe"

Ann Arbor—As a grand finale to their 11th summer season, the University of Michigan Repertory Players will present Gilbert and Sullivan's gay operetta, "Iolanthe," at the Lydia Mendelssohn Theater in Ann Arbor August 9-12, with extra performances on August 14 and 15.

Considered the most significant of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, "Iolanthe" is the story of a fairy who marries a mortal and whose son, Stephen, is half fairy and half mortal. Stephen falls in love with the very mortal Phyllis, thus becoming the rival of the entire House of Peers and Phyllis's guardian, the Lord Chancellor.

The operetta is filled with witty attacks on parliament and the House of Peers, while the familiar "Lord Chancellor's Nightmare" is a masterpiece of whimsy.

Sullivan's beautifully tuneful music is the perfect accompaniment for the brilliant satire of Gilbert's dialogue, and, in "Iolanthe," it may be said that these two men achieve their full maturity as great artists of musical comedy.

Booklet Of America's Favorite Poems

This collection of the favorite poems of America was not made by authors or experts, but by the American people themselves. A nation-wide vote was taken to determine the favorite poems of the largest number of people. AMERICA'S FAVORITE POEMS, a 48-page booklet offered by this Bureau is the result. The old-time poems predominate, favorites from Longfellow, Tennyson, Bryant, and Whitman, but there are also some from the later poets. The finest sentiments of the race are expressed in its poetry. Every one should want a copy of this publication. Order your copy now. Only ten cents postpaid.

SUGAR QUOTAS REPEAL URGED

Bradley Hits Curtailment of Production In This Country

Washington, D. C.—The sugar quota act should be repealed and American producers, both in Continental United States and in the Territories and Possessions should be permitted to grow all the sugar they can before foreign sugar is given any concessions, Congressman Fred Bradley of Michigan declared here today in a special interview on the economic crisis in Puerto Rico.

He pointed out that Michigan and the other sugar producing areas in Continental United States have suffered along with Puerto Rico under the quotas, and said that he was very much opposed to trading off United States markets to Cuba and other foreigners at the expense of our own producers.

"I feel very keenly about that," he said. "While the United States, Hawaii & Puerto Rico are not producing at present all the sugar we can consume, their production is drastically restricted. I don't believe in that. I believe Americans should be taken care of first. Let the growers in Continental United States, Hawaii and in Puerto Rico grow all the sugar they can, and let the remainder be allotted among Cuba and the other foreign producers."

Commenting on the effect of the quota on Michigan, Congressman Bradley pointed out that indirect as well as direct employment had been curtailed as a result of the restricted production and new mills are not permitted to be built with assurance of market.

"One instance of this is in the limestone quarries in my state," he said. "These plants normally sell large amounts of limestone for use in sugar mills, but sales have been curtailed as a result of the quotas and as a result employment in this industry has been affected. This is but one example of the indirect effect of the quotas on employment."

"The Puerto Ricans are citizens of the U. S. A. and thus our own people," he pointed out, "and we must take care of them too. But instead of constructively caring for them, we restrict their production and throw them out of work, while granting concessions to Cuba and other countries which fly foreign flags."

Proposals Asked For Isle Boat Run

The U. S. Department of the Interior has announced that sealed bids, preparatory to awarding a contract for establishing, maintaining and operating a passenger and freight boat service between Houghton, Mich., and Isle Royale national park project on Lake Superior, will be received at Room No. 3117, Interior Department building, Washington, D. C., until 2 p. m. September 15, 1939, and then opened.

Specification forms can be obtained from the representative in charge, Isle Royale national park project, Houghton, or Room No. 5230, National Park Service, Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C. Other ports on Lake Superior may be included in service if deemed necessary by the Secretary of the Interior. It is proposed that the boat be operated on a yearly permit until the establishment of Isle Royale as a national park, after which a 10-year contract will be executed with the successful bidder.

Copper Country and other informed Michigan opinions is that the outcome of the move will offer the best and most logical solution of Isle Royale's vexed transportation problem, and will be of decided benefit to the island's resorting services and to the Upper Peninsula and Michigan generally.

Yesterday's Newspaper Boys Are Today's Leaders

TRUE or FALSE? An Idle Mind Is The Devil's Workshop . . .

If that age-old adage is true, then the American newspaper boy admittedly has little or no spare time for wayward thoughts.

DIVIDING HIS TIME among school work, church, home duties and route work, he is most likely to devote his spare time to healthful recreation, the kind in which any normal boy is expected to indulge. The healthful outdoor exercise a newspaper route affords has built up many an underdeveloped boy. Here regularity plays an important part again, for exercise is most beneficial when taken regularly.

THE MONEY newspaper boys earn might well be of secondary consideration in comparison with the splendid mental and physical advantages, and perhaps it is . . . but any parents will testify that their boy's earnings come in mighty handy for buying clothes, school supplies and other necessities, and many boys have savings accounts. Hundreds enter colleges every year who otherwise would be unable to further their education.

AS YOU read your newspaper today, be reminded that in keeping with its responsibility to maintain the reputation of America's most effective public servant, it is allied with other newspapers in promoting numerous praiseworthy endeavors, one of which is the act of contributing more than any other single factor toward the practical business training of the country's future leaders.

Governor Dickinson's Own Story

Dickinson Came Back From County Clerk Defeat, Climbed State Political Ladder to Governorship

Second of two stories.

BY GOV. LUREN DICKINSON
Written for NEA Service
Charlotte, Mich.—Mrs. Dickinson and I began our married life living with our parents. It isn't always advisable for young married people to do this. But we found very little that was disagreeable.

Between farming and gubernatorial chores: Governor Dickinson of Michigan glances over morning mail before pulling off boots and leaving for state capitol at Lansing.

Perhaps our principal activities were on church lines. Mrs. Dickinson was a Sunday school teacher in early life, and a leader in church activities until her condition became such that she had to drop them. I have always had a class that has continued until the present time.

I received my first "eye-opener" in politics when I was persuaded to be a candidate for nomination for county clerk. Judging from statements of delegates, I would be nominated easily. The convention ruled otherwise. I have heard others say that delegates had lied. I didn't want to look at it that way. I found that there are two ways of expressing one's self.

This was a real lesson and a profitable one for me, and should be for anyone who runs for office. It makes us more charitable even in politics.

WORE NO MAN'S COLLAR

I was elected to the legislature in 1896. I was nominated unanimously in convention. Julius Caesar Burroughs was a candidate for the U. S. Senate. While personally I favored him, contests arose. Various leaders, in order to get patronage at Lansing, wanted to claim credit for nominations that would favor him.

They asked a written statement from me to that effect. I informed these leaders that I would take orders from no one other than the electorate, and withdrew from the campaign.

I was called back to the House six years later. I immediately became a leader in the forces seeking a primary election law for Michigan. With the governor and leading forces against us, it was a hard fight, but we won, and the basic law on the books today is one which I myself wrote.

WROTE LOCAL OPTION LAW

The Anti-Saloon League was strong at that time, and with help of its leaders I introduced a "search and seizure" or "local option" law giving counties the right to institute elections to make the counties dry. In the course of this fight I was called into nearly every county of the state where there were local option fights, thus making acquaintances everywhere.

I was also elected to almost every Republican state convention, making political acquaintances throughout the state. I was also active along agricultural, church, and school lines, managing matters at home at the same time.

This produced a breakdown, and under doctor's orders I was compelled to lay off for about a year until health gradually returned. In all these activities, the number one adviser was the lady at home, Mrs. Dickinson.

People have stated that I have been elected practically every time I was a candidate, and without any effort. This has not been the case. In early life I was defeated by one vote for supervisor. The following year I was elected. So it was in a "nomination for the legislature, for the Senate, and for lieutenant-governor. In each case I was once defeated, but later elected.

In 1916 I was persuaded to be a candidate for governor. But three "dry" candidates and one

"wet" candidate sought the nomination for lieutenant-governor. The "dry" came to me insisting that I draw out of the governorship race and become a candidate for lieutenant-governor, as I could be elected, and none of the others could. I did so, and was elected lieutenant-governor, followed by a second term.

ASKED NEWBERRY WITHDRAWAL

I was known as a "dry" and as a proponent of women's suffrage, but my interest in the primary law remained. When Truman H. Newberry became candidate for the U. S. Senate, as author of the primary law I was interested in his excessive campaign expenditures. I wrote a letter to Newberry while we were both candidates on the state ticket, asking him to withdraw. Leaders told me that I would be heavily defeated as a result.

But I led the ticket by more than 100,000 majority, while Newberry received between three and four thousand.

During the World War, I was chairman of the County Divisions of the War Boards, and my wife was chairman of the county war work. Later, I was for 11 years state chairman of the Near East Relief Work.

The "dry" campaigns have drawn me pretty much across the continent both ways, and into Ontario. These journeys have given opportunity for study and observation on the matters I have referred to during the past few weeks, and made me feel that I knew what I was talking about.

On The RECORD

By Dorothy Thompson

He who has granted it becomes the prisoner of his beneficiaries. If he seeks to modify or diminish or more closely define a right once granted he is not only a "reactionary" he is a traitor! Since in the granting of the right he has already made one set of enemies he cannot afford to make enemies of the newly created friends. Therefore, he lays himself open to blackmail. And, gradually, he loses the reins of government. They are taken up by his supporters and beneficiaries, who speak and act for him, fighting for him against his opponents while, at the same time, they hold over him the threat that if he does not do even more for them than he has they will seek another leader.

THE SUMMER AND THE PRESIDENT

The evolution of a privilege into a "natural right" and into the demand for further privileges, which will become further rights, is a fascinating subject. We have scores of unfortunate examples in our history.

In a seemingly worthy zeal to develop the resources of this country with the greatest expedition we, as a government, offered special privileges to capital in the form of grotesque protective tariffs, rights of way over land, monopolies of mineral resources, and what not. These grants of special privileges then became, for capitalists, a natural "right"—although a few farsighted conservatives, like John Quincy Adams, whom nobody at the time listened to, because they said he was a reactionary, foresaw that the grants would bring serious social maladjustments in the future.

Reform governments who tried later to take back to the government the originally granted them some of these privileges, or to modify them or to make the granting of them subject to some sort of social control, were met with the fury of men deprived of something which, in their minds, were no longer privileges granted but, rights deriving apparently from nature itself; rights that were, it seemed, part of God's plan.

Now, in contrast, the labor relations act—which was an act granting certain privileges to another part of the population—has already assumed in the minds of some labor leaders the nature of an act of God, part of the eternal scheme of natural rights that can only be improved upon in one direction. So the President becomes a prisoner of his own beneficiaries.

To take another example: Mr. Hopkins, in establishing the W. P. A., established what is now constantly referred to as "the right to work."

The W. P. A. differed from all previous sorts of work undertaken by the government, for the motive was not economic; that is to say it was not undertaken because there was a need or demand for the product of the work but was undertaken as a disguised form of relief.

The recipients were persons who could not at the time sell their labor in any market; what they had nobody was willing to buy. Therefore, they could not bargain, either individually or collectively, for you can bargain only with someone who wants to purchase a product.

The state also did not hire them because it wanted the product of their work; it hired them because it was sorry for them and because it was afraid of them. What they were selling was not work but discontent—a political menace.

The above statement must be qualified. Because of the bankrupt conditions of towns, counties and municipalities, there were certain markets for those who work a real market, a real need existed. Roads needed to be repaired, bridges built, schoolhouses built or repaired, and the normal employer, the local community, was in the position of an industrialist who needs to keep his plant running through a depression in anticipation of future revival but lays off hands because he cannot borrow the capital.

Previous to the establishment of W. P. A. the men who were hired to do this work for the community were taken off the open market, worked under the same wage conditions as other workers, and were not hired because of the "right to work" but because the various communal projects were regarded as necessary or useful. These workers were now lumped, in part, with the body of relief workers, immediately enjoying a special privilege, elevated to the rank of a "right"—the right to be kept employed regardless of need for their product.

The W. P. A. broke the barrier, constructing a product for which there was a distinct communal demand, was put into the same system with the W. P. A. member of a writers' project, for whose product there was neither a private nor a communal demand even under normal conditions. The great majority of the people on the arts projects were people who never, under any conditions of national prosperity, could have earned a living as actors, artists or writers. There was no public to whom they could have sold their product even if the public had been very rich.

This new "right to work"—not very new at that; the Second French Republic played with this idea most disastrously—was first interpreted as the right to work

SERIAL STORY WAR AND A WOMAN

BY BETTY WALLACE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS LINDA STORM—Fell in love with her best friend's fiancé. MARCIA KING—Navy girl, loved a flyer. JIMMY COOPER—Naval flying instructor at Pensacola. GEORGE CAMERON—Linda's fiancé.

Yesterday, Linda tells Jimmy their marriage is impossible while her father lives, while Jimmy remains in the Navy. Later she meets George, refuses to tell him about Jimmy, gives back his ring.

CHAPTER XIII "Linda!" Started out of his calm, George Cameron was grabbing at her. "Linda, you can't do this!"

She eluded him, ran up the steps and yanked at the door. Behind her, she heard a tiny metallic sound as the platinum and diamond engagement ring fell to the stone walk. Then she was stumbling inside, closing the door against him. She stood with her back against it, her breath coming fast, for a long minute before she went upstairs. George would not ring the bell, nor hammer on the door. He'd go away, quietly. She knew him that well.

She did not realize until much later that her subconscious mind had acted against the will she had imposed on herself. "Break the engagement," Jimmy had pleaded. "No," she replied that she couldn't. And yet, almost before her airplane had time to take off from the airport, that blind impulse to tear George's ring off her finger had egged her on.

With a sinking heart, she remembered Daddy. If she didn't placate George quickly, Daddy would hear of this. He must not hear of it.

"No shocks," Dr. Logan had ordered. What a monster she was becoming! What a selfish, insane fool!

But on Monday, she could not force herself to telephone George.

in return for subsistence. But, immediately, of course, it was extended to the right to work for decent wages and, in the recent strike, for the right to work at trade-union wages. But the basis on which trade-union wages are set was utterly lacking; namely, the advantage of an economic bargaining position. The industrialist has to have workers if he is to make a profit; the state does not have to pay half a dollar a week to write poetry for which there is no market whatsoever.

The Workers' Alliance, therefore, is not a trade union at all. It lacks the fundamental basis for a trade union—an economic bargaining position. It is a political organization pure and simple. It cannot bargain for its votes! Since the W. P. A. was a purely political invention in the first place, its action can only be confined to the political field. And what that action would be should have been foreseeable from the outset: it must seek to enlarge the "right to work" into the right to work under conditions of its own choosing.

Now, obviously, no state can extend the right to work that far. No state! Neither a capitalist state, nor a socialist state, nor a Communist state. There is no utopia in which every one can choose the activity that pleases him most and vote himself whatever he deems to be an adequate remuneration. Therefore the right to work must eventually become hedged about by restrictions whereby the right becomes an obligation. "Right to work" becomes "duty to work"—see the Fascist countries and Soviet Russia. The dictum is issued: "One cannot strike against the state."

Since there is no economic basis for bargaining position, the price set is whatever the charitable inclinations of the public may be, and they are not likely to be generous, and the W. P. A. worker has only the political weapon, which he will certainly use, Hatch bill or no Hatch bill.

The moral of this is that the W. P. A. should never have been set up in the first place; that the state should never have taken upon itself the obligation to maintain a natural right which is actually a privilege granted by the rest of the people, measured by their humanitarianism, not by any economic yardstick; that the inevitable consequence was the creation of a pressure group; that it is silly to think that the Hatch bill or any other restrictive legislation will dissolve this pressure group; and that the right to work can only have significance in a state which controls all of the means of production, operates on economic grounds, and extorts from the people the reciprocal obligation of working at whatever wage the total economy will bear, or the leaders of that state estimate that it can bear.

But meanwhile the President has the W. P. A. as a political asset and a political liability. For the most energetic leaders among the workers in W. P. A. are much clearer in their minds about the ultimate implications of their position than Mr. Hopkins ever was when he brought this curious structure into being. They are Communists. And they are only for Mr. Roosevelt because the party line—which does not as interpreted by Dean Landis, mean party doctrine but party discipline and party strategy—tells them to be, and because they consider Mr. Roosevelt as a prelude to another order of things altogether.

It was better over. No matter what happened, this much was finished. If only she could hide it from Daddy a little while, until he was stronger.

She dreaded the time when Daddy would ask, "Where's George? He hasn't come to see me."

Yet when the day came—only three days after that fatal Sunday—she managed to answer, lightly enough, "He's been busy at the laboratory, I suppose."

Her father looked at her. "Linda, you're keeping something from me. I've tried to get it out of Rourke, but she's like a clam when she wants to be."

The palms of her hands were wet, and her mouth was dry. No shocks, Dr. Logan had ordered. No shocks. "How funny you are, Daddy, to think I'm hiding a deep, dark secret," she managed to say. "What could I possibly be hiding?"

"You've quarreled with George, haven't you?" The quiet voice was implacable. "You never used to lie to me, Linda. But now, behind your smiling, you're not the same girl. Can't you confide in me? Tell me what's wrong."

She bent forward and touched the frail, veined hand. "Nothing's wrong, Daddy. Really."

"I want you to be happy," he persisted. "If you've found that George can't make you happy, that's all right. I—I don't mind as much as you think, my dear." He patted her hand affectionately. "Sometimes I thought it was my influence that was the only cause for your ever having become interested in George. I used to wonder if it was wise. Because you're so young and alive—the way your mother was—"

Her mother. She had died when Linda was a baby. Daddy seldom mentioned her, his grief and loss had gone too deep.

"George is a fine man, Linda. You know what I think of him as a scientist and teacher. But when I saw you two together, sometimes, I had my doubts. I refused to face them." He smiled in a wry way. "I told myself that your youth and beauty were not as vulnerable as they seemed to me. I told myself you were enough my daughter to value George's mind, his scholarly achievements. I was an old fool, my dear. You are your mother's daughter. She married me for no reason in the world except that we loved each other."

Linda was weeping helplessly before he finished speaking. How correctly he had read her heart! She ached with love for him. But there was more to it than this. Much more. There were still those bombers, black against the sky; still Marcia, with her trusting brown eyes.

"I didn't want to lie to you, Daddy," she sobbed. "But I couldn't bear to hurt you." "Darling, it will always hurt me more cruelly to have you keep the truth from me, I'm your father. Surely I can understand anything that you feel is right."

She didn't feel that those planes were right. She hated them. This other problem was one she must face and fight alone.

Daddy didn't ask her what had precipitated her quarrel with George. All he said was, "Come here, Linda." He kissed her forehead. Then he was holding her in his arms as he had held her on those long ago days when she had skinned a knee or stubbed a toe.

"My little girl. My dear, dear little girl."

Rourke found them like that when she came in with the tray. "A fine mess!" she grunted. "Get off that bed, girl." Grudgingly, she added, "Go on, stay here if you want to. I'll be glad of a few minutes away from this room. He's been grumpy as an old bear!"

"I won't be now, Miss Rourke," Daddy promised humbly. "I'm very happy again. Happy and relieved."

Vaccination For Smallpox Is Urged To Check Epidemic

An average of 100 cases of smallpox is reported annually in Michigan. Thus far this year, more than 300 cases have been recorded. There is evidence that the disease is being spread to other communities of the state and only immediate and general vaccination will serve to check it.

Vaccination confers immunity from smallpox for a period varying from five to ten years. The modern procedure is simple, effective and is rarely followed by the reaction formerly encountered.

If an individual is immune to the smallpox organism, a tiny papule or pimple will appear at the point of vaccination within 48 hours and will shortly disappear. Partially immune persons will exhibit a similar reaction from three to seven days after vaccination.

LEADERS DROP TO 3 POINTS

STOCK MARKET AVERAGES

Table with columns for Net change, D.I.S., D.A., D.S., D.P. and rows for various market indices like Dow Jones, S&P 500, etc.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, Aug. 10 (AP)—The stock market again worked up a little war-fear fever today and leading issues sold down 1 to 3 points or so at the worst.

The list eased after an opening and picked up volume on the off-side near mid-day. There were frequent slack periods, however, and closing prices generally were above the lows of the session.

Transfers for the five hours amounted to 699,830 shares against 467,510 the day before. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .9 of a point at 47.9, the sharpest decline since August 4.

The day's principal worry apparently had to do with the scheduled speech of Danzig Nazi Leader Forster. This came after the conclusion of business and proved to be not so much a threat of nearby hostilities as a wordy barrage against Poland.

At that, speculative forces showed a disposition to trim commitments further because of the feeling of growing number of loaded cockpit guns in Europe could easily lead to an explosion that might shake world markets.

Earnings statements on the home front, together with additional evidence the industrial picture is retaining its encouraging aspects, continued as a bolstering influence but failed to stimulate buyers.

Aircraft put on a brief rally when the war department announced the award of contracts for some $100,000,000 of planes and engines. Aside from Glenn Martin, which obtained the largest individual award, most aviation stocks unchanged to a shade in arrears.

Rails, on the whole, kept declines to minor fractions. Last week's freight loadings today were reported up slightly less than seasonally, although merchandising shipments expanded substantially.

U. S. Steel's July shipments were about in line with forecasts, suffering a minor drop from June but being well ahead of July a year ago. The stock was off more than a point and Bethlehem and Youngstown were also behind nearly as much.

Scrap copper was reduced 1-8 of a cent a pound and copper shares were under occasional pressure as the international cartel at London hoisted allowable production quotas for its members.

POLO SQUADS CLASH SUNDAY

M & M Team to Meet Milwaukee Players At Menominee

Menominee—Polo fans residing in this territory will have the opportunity of watching two veteran clubs in action Sunday when the Marinette-Menominee team clashes with the Milwaukee Brookfield aggregation on the Menominee polo grounds.

The tilt will be the second home appearance of the season for the Twins, and judging from the advance ticket sales and interest shown in the game locally, it is expected that the record crowd of 1,500 fans, which turned out for the first tilt staged on the Menominee field several weeks ago, will be surpassed.

Field in Good Shape Arrangements are now being completed by the Twin City club for Sunday's battle and the field, one of the best in the midwest, is in perfect shape for the game.

The tilt with the Brookfields will send the Twins against a club made up of veterans who have been playing the game for the last 10 to 12 years.

Included in the invaders' lineup will be Robert Walters, Ed Rady, Jr., and Elmer Kersch, members of the Joy Farm team which appeared against the Twins in their first home tilt, and the fourth member of the starting lineup is expected to be Allan Tidball, another veteran.

A win for the Marinette-Menominee team, which is rapidly gaining state-wide recognition, would boost its reputation considerably and with this in mind members of the club have been holding regular drills in preparation for the tilt.

Lineup Remains Same The Twins' lineup will remain the same as the one which took the field in the tilt against the Joy Farm team.

Mercantile establishments in Escanaba will close their places of business during the annual Michigan American Legion parade on Monday, Aug. 21, it was announced Thursday.

STORIES IN STAMPS

How Webster 'Sawed' His Way to Education

PROBABLY no eminent American ever got his education more oddly than did Daniel Webster. Webster literally "sawed" his way to learning, combining work and study.

He did it in his father's sawmill, where he spent his free days and most of his spare time after school. The mill was located in a dense woods, and young Daniel liked to go there because it offered an ideal spot for quiet study.

So Daniel soon became his father's chief assistant and often his father left him in sole charge of the mill. It was at these times that Daniel got in his best ticks at schooling. He would set the saw and "hoist the gate" and while the saw was passing from one end of the log to the other he would reach for a book.

Ordinarily it took from 10 to 15 minutes for the saw to cut through a log from end to end, so Daniel devised a virtual "15 minutes a log" study course, encompassing history, science, religion, almost anything he could obtain at his home and from his parents' New England neighbors.
