

NAZI NEWSMEN ATTACK POLAND

Warsaw Must Come to Terms on Danzig, Last Warning

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER Berlin, Aug. 19. (AP)—A week of intense German newspaper war upon Poland closed tonight without action as yet following Nazi "last warnings" that Poland must come to terms on Adolf Hitler's demands for possession of Danzig and at least a broad avenue through the Polish corridor to East Prussia. It seemed to neutral observers as if everywhere in Europe everybody in authority was hoping the nerves of the other fellow would crack first and that thereby the onus for forcing a decisive turn would be tagged on him. How long such a condition could endure was anybody's guess. A week ago talk in high Nazi circles still was to the effect that "England with her sense of realism will keep hands off Poland." This version no longer obtains. The change seems to date from the report on the Danzig situation by Prof. Carl J. Burckardt, Danzig League of Nations high commissioner, to British Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax following Burckardt's visit to Hitler. Apparently in highest German circles it is now accepted as fact that Great Britain and France intend to stand by Poland. (Both have pledged aid to Poland in event of an attack which she would resist.) Talk in Nazi political circles has therefore now changed to one of disparaging what aid Britain and France may be able to give Poland.

SNEEZE AND BE WELCOME

Lake Breezes Factor in U. P. Popularity As Hay Fever Refuge

"An' wait'll I tell you about our trip through the upper peninsula; that was a real ... Aa-ker chaw!—Dab hay-fever! I'd god me agaid since I god bag." And it probably was a real trip, with relief flowing into tortured nasal passages and red-rimmed eyes on every cool lake breeze that blew. The cool evening breeze off the lake is, according to Dr. R. Lanting, of the Delta county health unit, probably the biggest reason why Escanaba and other lake bordering upper peninsula towns offer relief to hay-fever sufferers from other parts of the country. The air in the evening, said Dr. Lanting, is almost free of pollen, due to the cleansing effect of the wind when in the right direction. Also, he said, the endocrine balance of the victim's body is changed when he moves from one climate to another, and often he is merely escaping from the proximity of the particular pollen or other cause which reduces him to a sneezing, sniffing wreck in short order. Not His Favorite Dish! For instance, coffee, according to Dr. Lanting, is one of his "tabooed" items, although he has built up a certain immunity so that he can indulge in the beverage in small amounts. In some cases, he revealed, the victim is allergic to some particular thing such as fish, and in a case in his own family, the thing to keep away from is white bass, no other food, fish, or pollen being harmful. Ragweed is the local offender to the sensitive noses of hayfeverites, according to all signs and information. A campaign was once carried on to rid the city of the weed by offering bounties for certain amounts of it, but so much existed that it was impossible to balance the "ragweed budget" in a few days and the plan finally went by the board. In Dr. Lanting's opinion, the task would be a tremendous one at any rate, since unless the weed in sections outside of the city were cleaned up as well, the plants from those areas would release seed and every wind blowing in the right or wrong direction would drop them over the town, resulting in a full crop for next year's allergia. An interview with City Manager George Bean revealed that there is no legal recourse to force the eradication of the weeds by conventions during the past six years. A second exhibition will be placed by the Canadian Legion drum and trumpet band, which will perform both in the afternoon and evening. It consists of 40 pieces, exclusive of the color guard, and is under the direction of John L. Cumming. The drum and bugle corps traveling the longest distance to participate in the contest is the Thomas A. Edison post of Detroit, which is the only Wayne county unit in the contest.

Rural Child Health Meeting McMillan, Mich.—A regular meeting of the Rural Child Health Association was held Tuesday afternoon at the George Root landing on Round Lake in Lakefield under the direction of Chairman Mrs. Root. A picnic lunch was served at one o'clock. The meeting was fairly well attended by members from Pentland, Columbus and Lakefield townships. The possibility of reorganizing the hot lunch club in the McMillan school was discussed and Mrs. A. J. Mainville and Mrs. Harry Smathers were appointed to confer with the Columbus township board of education with that object in mind. At the close of business short but instructive talks were given by Miss B. Swanson, Luce County nurse and Frank Manning, Sanitary Inspector also of Newberry. The next regular meeting will be held in the local town hall on the afternoon of Tuesday Sept. 19. McMillan members will be in charge of the program and lunch. Among those from here attending were, Mrs. Sarah Locke, Mrs. H. J. Skinner, Mrs. Frank Kirby, Mrs. A. J. Mainville, Mrs. Floyd Tucker and Mrs. Helma Anderson. Potato Growers Inc. Vast Forest Program Proposed in Peninsula

Washington, Aug. 19 (AP)—creation of a vast memorial to William Wadsworth Longfellow by throwing the protective arm of the Federal Government around the land of Halwatha he made famous is a step near realization. Legislation authorizing the Secretary of Agriculture to acquire large tracts of land in what already has been designated the Ottawa National Forest in Michigan was approved by a House subcommittee and a renewed drive is planned to push the bill ahead when Congress reconvenes. Chief purpose of the bill was emphasized to be the safeguarding of what Federal forestry officials represent as the last stand of virgin hardwood forests in the middle West. It is the land where on the shores of Lake Superior (Gitchee Gumee to the Chippewa Indians) "stood the wigwam of Nowomik" and: "Dark behind it rose the forest. "Rose the black and gloomy pine-trees. "Rose the firs with cones upon them." Described by Tinker The situation confronting the Federal Government was best described in hearings on the bill by E. W. Tinker, assistant chief of the Forest Service in the Department of Agriculture when he said about this forest: "We have in the particular part of Michigan a continuation of systematic devastation of these forests until we have now only this relatively small area of virgin timber left." "This beautiful hardwood, virgin timber is being progressively clear cut with the inevitable result that the last stand is about to be annihilated." He saw a possibility, as suggested in the pending bill, for maintaining employment in the area through establishment of a reforestation program that would permit sustained-yield cutting. "Mining in that district has suffered severely because of cheaper open-pit mining in Minnesota and they have permitted some of their mines, particularly iron mines to be flooded and they may never reopen." Tinker said. 1,722,628 Acres in Forest At present the Ottawa National Forest contains 1,722,628 acres of which 348,978 acres are classified as land more valuable of purposes other than forestry. Within the borders of the National Forest 354,000 acres have been re-property owners and landlords are not forced to allow crews to work on their property. It is also impossible to obtain federal aid in paying labor to remove the ragweed from vacant lots and city property, since such projects are classed as city maintenance. Sneezers Meet at Soo However, as long as the lake and its breezes hold out, it seems that Escanaba and its vicinity will be more free from weepy eyed of the Ka-Chew fraternity, as it is called at Sault Ste. Forty and Eighters Stage Night Parade

Blue-smoked, hilarious Forty and Eighters giving free "service" on every corner did little to improve traffic conditions last night as thousands jammed Ludington street to watch—and listen—to the playground of the Legion parade, with Roman candles, clanging bells and shrieking whistles, not to speak of a couple of cannons, making the night a nightmare of sound and light.

Every intersection became a firing post as aerial bombs were placed and set off while the parade moved up the street. Babies which had been brought for the thrill of their lives got just that—and squaled almost as lustily as their elder brethren in the line (?) of march.

But it was all in the line of a rip-roaring good time, and most of the 500 Forty and Eighters who registered yesterday at Legion headquarters were part of the mob who poured down the street in full parade disorder of the typical 40 and 8 brand.

Four Locomotives
Four of the vehicles which give the Forty and Eight its name added to the Legion convention spirit of the event, as singing Legionnaires hung in clusters from the windows, doors and back steps of the little box-cars with "40 homes et 8 chevaux" painted on their sides.

A snappy Ironwood Sons of the Legion drum and bugle corps led the column—by a couple of blocks as it turned out, the rest of the parade becoming involved in traffic after traversing half of the distance.

"Among the 'iron horses' taking part in the procession was the Detroit Voiture 102's pride, a gift from French war veterans at Le Havre, France, a maroon, streamlined version without the box-car, from Lansing Voiture 946, a unit from Flint Voiture 1116, and the upper peninsula representative, from Gogebie Voiture 397.

And not least among the rest of the show was the diminutive

"baby-buggy" model from Flint Voiture 1116, which was pushed by a brace of representatives from that organization.

Liberty Motor Post
The Flint Liberty Motor Post band, Class B state champs in 1938, was a big attraction with its drum-majorettes swinging lanterns instead of batons, and the members dressed as railway trainmen.

Another aggregation, the name of which was not indicated, swung down the street to the tune of "East Side, West Side," and was followed by a bathing "beauty" of the 1909 vintage carrying an umbrella—with a hole in it, at that.

Saginaw also contributed a band, as did Bay City, the latter's draped over a truck from the city.

The procession began at the corner of the Delta Brewing company at 16th and Ludington and broke up, if it had ever been put together, at the Eagles hall, in the 500 block.

After the official dissolution of the line of march the parade quieted down to pandemonium which bids fair, at the moment of writing, to last all night.

HORSE RACING PLANNED
Iron Mountain—Harness racing is definitely "on" for the annual Dickinson county fair, and three events, instead of two as at first proposed, will be staged, it was stated today by Art Lonsdorf, county agricultural agent.

The harness events will be run Saturday, September 2—the second day of the fair—and will include trotting and pacing races and one for three-year-old colts.

It will be the first harness racing at the county fair in about 10 years, and veteran horsemen of this and other districts of the upper peninsula are elated over the prospects for their favorite sport. It is expected that outstanding animals on the upper Michigan racing circuit will be entered.

Noted Air Pilot Visitor Here

Dean Smith, veteran aviator, pilot and executive of the Curtiss Wright Airplane company, is a visitor this week-end at the home of Jack Whitney, manager of the Escanaba Mink Ranch, at his Ford River home.

On New Year's Day, 1934, Mr. Smith located a huge air liner carrying four persons after it had crashed near Gloverville, N. Y. The survivors of the crash were rescued by a searching party after Smith had directed them to the scene of the wreck.

Flown to Escanaba by Jim Wheeler, Chicago pilot, in a Stinson Reliant plane, Mr. Smith is planning to stay at the home of Mr. Whitney, who is a close friend of his, three or four days.

FIVE HELD IN ATTACK CASE

Crippled Pencil Vender In Dangerous Shape After Slugging

Five men are being held on charges of assault in connection with the slugging and robbing of Frank Johnston, St. Louis, Mo., crippled pencil and shoe-lace peddler of St. Louis, Mo., in the Chicago and North Western railway yard, east end at 7 o'clock last evening.

The attack was witnessed by Mrs. John G. Bloom, 217 North 9th street, and her small son, Johnston, who is under observation at the St. Francis hospital, is in serious condition, having suffered a concussion of the brain, according to doctors. During one of his infrequent returns to consciousness, he spoke, confusedly, of five men taking his money, which he thought amounted to $28.

Upon further investigation by the local police department, it was found that the five men had taken only $5 and had not found the rest of the peddler's money. They also had a number of pencils and shoe-laces divided among them.

Names of the five alleged to have taken part in the crime and arrested by police are James McDonald, Albert Sikotky, Pingger Morfy, Frank Fisher and Edward McCourt. It is not yet known where they live, but they are being held for questioning and a more complete report is expected soon.

Forest Fire Losses

WITHIN the last 100 years approximately 2000 people in the United States have lost their lives as a result of forest fires.

Forest fires in the United States have been many and extensive. Such fires waged in the New World before the white man came.

One of the earliest forest fires on record occurred in Maine in October 1825, sweeping over 3,000,000 acres and taking as part of its toll 160 human lives.

One of the most destructive forest fires in American history occurred in Wisconsin in October 1871. A total of 1,250,000 acres were burned over.

In September 1874, Minnesota was visited by a forest fire which leveled millions of acres, wiped out a dozen towns, and resulted in the death of 418 persons.

Grant-in-aid from the federal government supplied one-fifth of the total revenue of the 48 state governments last year. It is disclosed in a survey conducted by the Federation of Tax Administrators.

Added to that outpouring of money from Washington to the various state capitals were the social security grants which began in 1935 and reached a volume of $266,049,000 last year.

It cannot be said that financial dependence of government upon government, from the bottom up, is either sound or healthy. Convenience is its chief virtue.

NEITHER STICKY NOR HIGH (Cleveland Plain Dealer) If Senator O'Mahoney's temporary economic national committee had a single motive it was to prove that the absence of competition in major industries supported a sticky price structure, and that sticky prices impeded industrial adjustments and thus business recovery.

Curiously the monopoly committee in accumulating a great mass of testimony designed, presumably, to demonstrate that monopoly dominates American business practice has failed to this time to call in representatives of the oil and steel industries.

New York Column

New York—The rickety elevator in the pulp publishing house of Street & Smith never fails to give me a thrill. For in that elevator, installed during the late eighties, rode the first man to turn the art of writing into mass production.

Like John Corryell, for example, who created the famous dime novel hero, "Nick Carter," Corryell had been the first of the pulp writers whose 1,000,000 words a year were devoured by 100,000 readers a month, but he died in 1924 at Mount Vernon, Me., because his nervous system could not stand the racket of such production.

Creating the adventures of Nick Carter or Horatio Alger of course was merely a matter of having the hero—who could not fall— race hickety-split from the first chapter to the last. But Melville, Conrad, Dana and Villiers—who were all doing yeoman work for the pulp around the turn of the century—created characters and plots of solid construction.

Rafael Sabatini's "Captain Blood" even today is a small classic and a veritable handbook on how to fire a broadside from a frigate, how to aim and load a brass cannon, how to take a harbor fortress by frontal assault.

AIM AT BROADWAY The summer theater season is now well past the half-way mark but still new plays continue to be staged by directors and playwrights hopeful for a production capable of hitting the Broadway jackpot in the fall.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN Washington—Next political move on the Roosevelt schedule is a brilliant relief speech. Possibly it will be a fireside chat just before the President leaves for the West in late September. Or it may be a speech delivered during his western travel.

WPA already has started gathering data for the Roosevelt talk. Among other things it will ascertain the people who obtained private employment and what has happened to those who did not.

WPA rolls, now a little over 2,000,000, will be cut to around 1,800,000 by September 1. This level will continue until the winter months, when the total gain will be boosted up to around 2,000,000.

But on one matter Rabaut is neither artful nor irresolute. When it comes to nepotism he takes a four-square stand. Members of his family have been on the congressional payroll almost from the day he took office. In fact, this particular gravy bowl has been a sort of family preserve, being handed on from one Rabaut to another.

Kitchen Hints Save Housewife

Cabinets and Work Tops Require Planning

Cabinets and Work Tops Require Planning

When designing the kitchen it is a mistake to build all the cabinets the same size. They should be built according to the use to which they are to be put.

Properly located counter space should be provided at a uniform height of two feet 10 inches above the floor. If counters are not the same height, there will be unnecessary breakage of dishes.

Counter tops may be of wood and in that case they should be of the type that withstands water. Marble, glass and tile tops are fine but are expensive and too hard to be practical. The linoleum top is one of the most successful being used present.

Counters in the kitchen should be at least 22 inches wide and should extend beyond the lower portion about two inches to allow foot room. Knee room while sitting on a kitchen stool should also be provided.

Outdoor Living Room

An outdoor living room can be enhanced with many colorful touches. — gardens, pools, rock gardens, sun dials and bird baths, gaily painted furniture, graceful pergolas, trellises, garden houses, gay umbrellas, etc.

If space permits, a clay or concrete tennis court can be made without much trouble and if space is too limited a paddle tennis court requires less area than do the court for shuffleboard and outdoor checkers.

PROCESS GIVEN FOR FINISHING NEW PINE TRIM

Interior pine trim should be perfectly clean and dry before the finishing starts.

Stain the wood with an acid or oil stain; light honey, amber or brown are the easiest colors to handle.

Lightly sandpaper the wood after staining. Then apply a thin coat of orange or white shellac. Paint over the knots with white lead paint and wipe off the paint at once with a cloth. This treatment will give the effect of age.

Rub down the first coat of shellac with steel wool and finish with a second coat.

BATHTUBS

If you are building or modernizing your bathroom, don't place the bath tub under a window unless it is impossible to avoid doing so. There may be an embarrassing moment when the shade accidentally snaps up while one is in the tub, but more especially chills from the draft may bring on a cold.

Also, the tub is harder to clean if there is dirt and dust sifting in through the window all the time.

DAMP-PROOF BASEMENTS

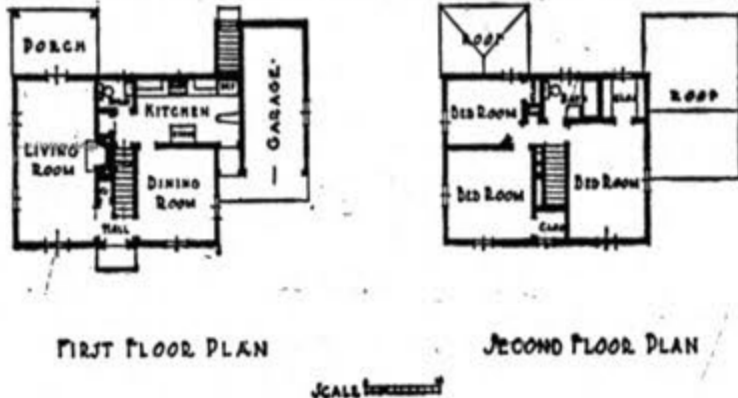

Damp basements are often due to improper backfilling. When a foundation is dug and later refilled, rubbish is sometimes used in the fill. Water running down the walls of the house collects in pools and seeps through pores or cracks in the walls and into the basement. The remedy is to refill the trench with clean, carefully packed dirt.

In extreme cases it may be necessary to install a tile drain at the bottom of the trench to carry off the water. Damp-proofing of cellars is eligible under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Frame Colonial

This dignified New England home represents a type of construction typically American. Its interior arrangement is as traditional as its simple exterior. Lack of waste space, a feeling of spaciousness, and honesty of architectural design make this home preferred by many over less conventional plans. Given a valuation of $6,700 by Federal Housing Administration officials, this home was built in Massachusetts with the aid of a mortgage for $5,900 insured by the FHA.

Good Painting Is Economical

Home Needs Two Coats Once Every Four Years

When you let your painting contract, or if you buy the paint yourself, be sure to explain to your painter or your dealer just how good a job you wish. Most painters and dealers wish to see a good painting job done, but in paint, as every other commodity, there are several grades and you will get just what you pay for.

Don't forget that the material is the smallest end of the job. The labor cost will be just the same for good paint or poor. So I suggest you buy good paint, not the cheapest.

The exterior of a house requires a special kind of paint to withstand the elements; and porch floors and steps need a paint that will dry harder and stand up under rough usage.

Give your home at least two coats of paint every four years, as the paint will last longer and give more protection to the wood. And don't forget the interior floors. They should be given a coat of wax at least twice a year to keep them beautiful.

Try painting and decorating for reconditioning your home. It will give a cheerful, new outlook. The old house will take on a new lease of life and can stand more proudly among its neighbors.

INVISIBLE HINGES

Door hinges, except those of wrought iron or brass in Colonial houses, are generally not considered ornamental. Hinges are now available that are completely invisible, yet function efficiently.

Laundry Chute Saves Steps

A laundry chute, with opening on all floors, is the quickest and most sanitary way of collecting soiled linens and clothing and disposing of them until wash day. The chute relieves the housewife of the necessity of carrying heavy, bulky bundles downstairs. Also bathroom and hall space is not taken up with hampers.

The most satisfactory chute is of a metal which will not rust, chip, stain or in any way injure fabrics which are sent through it to the laundry room.

FIXTURES HAVE DRAIN CONTROL

Some of the newest items along the line of plumbing fixtures are improved drain controls, a larger slab space on the lavatory, a square or rectangular basin in a lavatory, a cabinet lavatory underneath, towel bars attached to a lavatory.

Unusual Color for Dining Background

An attractive dining room has a floor painted deep blue, almost black. Chairs are upholstered in blue leather, with the same shade carried out in window, door, baseboard, and cornice trim.

The Federal Housing Administration program makes artistic home decoration possible through the advancement of funds by private financial institutions.

Cold Floors

Cold floors are an indication of excessive heat leakage in the basement. If the home owner is sure that the windows fit well and are closed, steps should be taken to locate the source of leakage.

Some effective insulation may be applied to the bottom of or between the joists of the first floor, thereby reducing the heat loss there.

CARE REQUIRED TO PLAN GOOD RE-ROOFING JOB

If you need a new roof on your home, be sure to find out if it is necessary to remove the old roofing and if the roof boards are solid. Then choose a roofing material that will harmonize with the architecture of your house.

Don't select queer, gaudy and freakish roofing patterns. In an effort to be original, award the contract to a reliable roofing concern that will guarantee the material to be used, and the workmanship.

At the same time look to the metal work, gutters, flashings, valleys and downspouts. They will probably need replacing.

No Locks

In houses where there are little children, the thumb bolts on bathroom doors should be of the type that can be opened from the outside with a key.

FORMS USED IN FIREPLACES

In the past, unless a fireplace was constructed by a capable mason who knew exactly how to build it according to the rules in use for generations, good fireplaces were rare and the chimneys often caused smoke in the room.

Now a sheet of metal form has been developed which is placed above the hearth before the masonry is added, the latter being around the form. This makes faulty construction of the flue virtually impossible.

This not only corrects the difficulty of poor construction but the walls of the form are double so that heat which ordinarily is lost in the chimney is conserved and sent out into the room through an extra opening. The opening is covered by a handsome grille so that twice the amount of heat ordinarily received from the fireplace is sent into the room without extra fuel cost.

These forms come in a variety of sizes and the home owner who uses one may feel greatly relieved in the assurance that he will secure a non-smoke fireplace.

Touring Author Climbs Dunes of Nagow Wudjoo

(By Arthur W. Stace) He who would view the great sand mass—Hiawatha's "dunes of Nagow Wudjoo"—on the Lake Superior shore between Grand Marais and Au Sable point must climb and trudge. He can go by automobile to Grand Sable lake where he comes abruptly to a high, yellow creeping wall of sand that is slowly moving on the lake itself, engulfing its northern end. He may even venture around the corner of the lake under the wall on a road that, like the lake, is constantly subject to attack by drifting, sliding sands. But if he would know what the dunes are like he must leave his car and scale the sand wall on foot. It is a hard climb—one that takes the breath and causes the heart to thump faster. No one with an organic weakness should attempt it. At the top, however, are views that reward the effort to gain them. Stretching far away is a mighty wilderness of sands—sand mountains, sand valleys, sand plateaus. The eye cannot reach their limit to the west, but beyond their tops to the north, riming the horizon, are the dark blue waters of Lake Superior. And here Superior seems a deeper blue than any place else along its Michigan coast. In the valleys are dark clumps of pines and other conifers. They seem to have conquered and tamed the immediate sands where they gained a foothold years ago, but frowning above them, crawling toward them are other sands in mountainous masses and their tenure seems precarious. Beach grasses and other vegetation have been planted on the sands in an attempt to hold them in place. Such efforts to stay the sands seem to have a temporary effect, and at least they slow up the movement of the dunes, but every once in awhile the winds and sand break all restraints and go into wild frolics that mock the efforts of man to control them. When winds blow on the dunes—and they are exposed west and north of Lake Superior's gentle breezes and mighty blasts—flying sands sting all who venture on the dunes, they drift across plateaus and hills, they pour over the tops of blow-outs, they load up lee slopes with fresh burdens of sliding sands. At such times one can vision the restless ghost of the mischievous Pau-Puk-Keewis, the Storm Fool, dancing again the beggar's dance with which he entertained the guests at Hiawatha's wedding. "Then along the sandy margin Of the lake, the Big-Sea-Water, On he sped with frenzied gestures, Stamped upon the sand and tossed it Wildly in the air around him: 'Til the winds became a whirlwind, 'Til the sand was blown and sifted Like great snowdrifts o'er the landscape. Heaping all the shores with Sand Dunes, Sand Hills of the Nagow Wudjoo." Thus the Indians may have accounted for the formation of the Superior dunes, but the geologists have another story. They say the dunes date back to the Lake Nipissing period, some 4,000 years ago. They were first sand bars in a broad bay. Sands from these bars built up dunes. Then the earth tilted upward as the glaciers melted and the dunes were carried well above the surface of the water. They now stand on bluffs high above Lake Superior. Winds playing and dancing among them—as did Pau-Puk-Keewis—whipped them into their present forms.

SOIL NEEDS OF SPUDS STUDIED

Results of Investigation of Potato Requisites Are Presented Statewide studies embracing more than 800 plots on 70 farms in the last 15 years have given the soils department at Michigan State College inside information on what it takes to profitably grow potatoes on Michigan soils. In brief, the staff members have found that fertilizer applications of approximately 500 to 600 pounds to the acre were most advisable, considering cost, danger of drought and the uncertainty of potato prices. Present crop prospects indicate Michigan's 1939 yield is to be about 28 million bushels, a national ranking likely of second in all states. In average years, potatoes mean a crop worth about 15 million dollars for Michigan growers. Average Michigan production to the acre is about 92 bushels, although some growers obtain yields from 350 to 400 bushels to an acre. Climatic conditions, soil fertility, variety, insect and disease injury and cultural practices all influence yield, the soils tests reveal. In 150 bushels of potatoes, there are these amounts of plant foods—31.5 pounds of nitrogen, 13.5 pounds of phosphoric acid, 45 pounds of potash. This about equals what is found in 25 bushels of wheat or 50 bushels of oats, except for the potash which is far more prevalent in the potatoes. Average composition of the best yielding fertilizers is one of 4-16-8 or similar. On some of the sandier soils a 3-12-12 fertilizer frequently gave as good or better yields than the 4-16-8. More complete information is contained in a new bulletin, "Special Bulletin 239, Soil Management for Potatoes," available through offices of county agricultural agents or by writing the Bulletin Room, Michigan State College, East Lansing.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILLETT Ladies, what is your batting average in the game of glamor? Are you good enough for the big leagues—or have you hit a slump? Take a little test and call every "Yes" one strike against you. Three strikes and you're out of the running. 1. Do you say something coy like "I'll bet you say that to all the girls" when a man pays you a compliment? 2. Do you mention to a man that you spent the afternoon in a beauty salon? 3. If you beat your date to the dance floor, do you make a hasty retreat to the dressing room rather than stand perfectly poised waiting for him to reach you? 4. Do you wonder in the middle of a story if you are boring your listeners? 5. Do you lose your self-assurance when another girl gives you stiff competition? 6. Do you get flustered when the spot light falls on you? 7. Do you ever feel that you have tried too hard to please? 8. Do your clothes escape the notice of other women? 9. When a man is sitting at a table with you, do his eyes keep straying to other women? 10. Do the men who take you out miss chances of showing you off to other men? 11. When you are in a crowd of men and women, do you get off in a corner and talk to the women? 12. Last—but significant—do other women think that you are a swell girl?

REFUGE IS FOR WILD FLOWERS

Group Plans to Protect and Preserve Blooms From Destroyers Buchanan—Richard Schwartz and a group of friends are establishing a wild-flower sanctuary. This will be the first recognized tract where flower lovers may find blossoms safe from pluckers and other destroyers, he says. A wooded tract owned by Schwartz a mile north of Buchanan has been designated as a sanctuary by the Michigan Conservation Department and the project has the support of the State Federation of Garden Clubs. Need Is Evident Schwartz says that the need for such a place is evident in the fact that many species of flowers, once common in this district, now are seldom found. These include several varieties of lady's slipper and arbutus. The wild-flower tract of 20 acres is on Moccasin Bluff, a region known for its natural beauty and historical associations and which has been used in the past as a botany field laboratory by college classes. It is noted for its variety and profusion of wild flowers.

Bursts and Duds At Convention

Yes, the Detroit "Frenchmen" of 40 and 8 Vulture got here—cannon and all. Although the canon is not the same one as that "lost" in New York, a good many shell-shocked watchers of last night's 40 and 8 parade can testify that it had plenty of BOOM behind it. The weapon uses 10-gauge shotgun shells and is deafening, particularly at short range. In the line of concessions, we nominate the following as most unusual and original: Charles "Chuck" Thatcher, son of well known Escanaba insurance agent, who set himself up a public stenographer's stand, typewriter and all, in the 600 block on Ludington. "No business at first," said Chuck, "but I'm waiting till they get homesick." Also in the novelty line is the jiriksha trade which was set up in front of the Delta hotel by Joseph Coplan. Names, too, are striking, including "Woo Flung Dung," "Wan Bunglung," which is pulled according to the manager, by a consumptive Chinaman. The "rickshaw" taxis, rubber tired and pulled by man-power, charge 10¢ per block fare—and get it, too.

Clawbar Is Missing Clue Of Streamline Disaster In Nevada

Carlin, Nev., Aug. 19 (AP)—Unexplained disappearance of a claw bar from beside the misplaced rail which wrecked the streamliner "City of San Francisco" a week ago tonight figured in testimony today before a Southern Pacific board of inquiry. The hearing was closed to the public, but Engineer Edward Hecox of the wrecked train told newsmen he had been closely questioned by Interstate commerce commission representatives at the hearing about the claw-bar. Twenty-four were killed in the wreck and more than 100 injured. He said he saw it lying near the fourth car of the train, which stood directly over the place where he declared a rail section had been pushed inward several inches, and held there by a tie plate which had been respiked out of alignment. As he started to examine the bar a man walking behind him in the darkness said, "don't touch it! It might have fingerprints on it." Later when he returned to the spot, the bar was gone. Because of the excitement and his agitation at the time, he did not remember who the man was that walked behind him. So far as he knew, he said, no one else saw the bar.

All Aboard! All Aboard! Has Trailer Breakdown

A. J. Olson of Ironwood climbs aboard the locomotive, which was brought here by the Gogebic County Vulture of Forty and Eight from Ironwood to the American Legion convention in Escanaba. Forty and Eight locomotives and box cars went up and down Ludington street all day and night, clanging their bells and sounding their whistles. Judge Joseph Gilles, common pleas judge of Detroit, just got to Escanaba in time, experiencing a bit of difficulty with his trailer when he arrived. It was fixed, however, and everything is ship-shape once more.

Kalamazoo Plane Crash Kills Two Near City Airport

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 19 (AP)—Two Kalamazoo men, flying homeward from Wisconsin in a four-passenger plane struck a knoll and was wrecked in a vineyard 12 miles southwest of the city. The wreckage caught fire and it was two hours before identification of the victims was possible. The dead were Harry Ames, 32, the pilot, and Harry Bulson, 31. They were fellow employees in a Kalamazoo engraving plant owned by Arthur Wilson, also owner of the plane. Both men were married and Ames was the father of a baby two weeks old. Ames has been a pilot for several years. Identification was made by Wilson, after he had viewed the remnants of the big plane (a three-year-old Stinson Reliant valued at $11,000). The plane had been chartered earlier in the day by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Malm for a trip to Eau Claire, Wis., where they wished to visit their son, Martin, who had undergone an emergency operation for appendicitis there. Because of the lad's condition they decided not to return tonight to Kalamazoo and Ames and Bulson started back alone. The plane was wrecked on the C. H. Doney farm, about five miles from Kalamazoo airport, its destination. Flying low in the fog, it struck the knoll, which tore off one wing, and then plunged forward some distance and became a flaming mass of debris. Pickets Withdrawn From Dearborn Job Detroit, Aug. 19 (AP)—A threat from Police Chief Carl A. Brooks of Dearborn to arrest pickets for violating the state labor act resulted in withdrawal today of mass picket lines from the Ford housing project at Airport and Greenfield Roads. The project was being picketed by American Federation of Labor Building Trades Union members. A disturbance took place at the project Thursday in which several persons were injured and 17 men were arrested. The union claims the firm constructing the job is paying less than union scale wages to its employees.

POOR FISH

"OSLO, Norway: Hamilton Fish, New York, following a meeting with German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, expressed grave fears for European peace. 'I have discussed the situation with Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France, and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax of Britain,' he said. 'I had intended to discuss the refugee question with Herr von Ribbentrop, but I took M. Bonnet's advice not to mention it, as it might irritate Germany. Our conference lasted for an hour. I mentioned that I intended to propose an armistice before war, but Herr von Ribbentrop was skeptical. We spoke about fateful problems, but I am not able to give further information, as we had a very open conversation.'"

"My impressions were very depressing. Europe is drifting toward war. America will go to war only if she is attacked or the British fleet is defeated."

By a Special Correspondent
Mr. Fish was politely searched before going in, for there was suspicion that he might be an alias for his distant cousin, Mr. Hamilton Fish Armstrong.

"Are you the author of 'We or They'?" he was asked.

"Good God, no," replied Mr. Fish. "I am writing a book to be entitled 'Anything is Better Than Roosevelt.'"

After extracting two Jefferson nickels from his pocket, which, Mr. Fish explained, had been planted on him by Communist Mr. Fish was allowed to enter.

Mr. Ribbentrop greeted him in the Rotary Club manner that once got him a blue medal as the best go-getter in the champagne business. With sparkling wit he began:

"Now, now, as they say in that British Alice in Wonderland. No Fish goes out to sea without a porpoise. What is your porpoise?"

"I just came to ask whether there is anything I can do for you," replied Mr. Fish, like a true American.

"Of course," said Mr. Ribbentrop. "No one ever comes to Berlin for any other reason. We get the question here, and you get the answer in Berchtesgaden."

"I would love to visit Berchtesgaden," said Mr. Fish wistfully.

"All in good time, my dear fellow," replied Mr. Ribbentrop genially. "All roads lead to Berchtesgaden, as the saying is. We've agreed with Mussolini that in the interests of the axis the proverb should be changed to read that way."

Mr. Fish, with the energy and acumen well known to his radio listeners, plunged immediately in medias res. "What's all this business about Danzig?" he asked boldly as man to man. "I have looked up the statistics and I see that the whole place is not half the size of the Bronx."

"The Jewish population of the Bronx would constitute a slight problem to us at the present moment. Under no condition would we consider an exchange of Danzig for the Bronx," said Mr. Ribbentrop coldly. "You can keep the Bronx."

"You can keep Danzig," replied Mr. Fish hotly, not to be outdone in spirit.

Ribbentrop reached over and grasped his hand warmly. "That is just what I expected to hear," he said happily. "All we need to do is to convince the Poles to give up Poland—pardon, I mean Danzig—and the world will have peace, for fully ten minutes. Mind you, I have no prejudice against the Poles. Some of my best friends are Poles. But in their place! That's all I say. Would you, Mr. Fish, as the descendant of one of the oldest families of the true Germanic strain in America, like to be ruled by Poles?"

"My folks were Anglo-Saxon," Mr. Fish corrected.

"All the same thing, my dear fellow," said Mr. Ribbentrop cordially. "What is Anglo-Saxon? Anglo and Saxon. Just drop the word Anglo and what do you have? Saxon. One of our best tribes. Why not give up Anglo? What's in a word? Is it worth while to fight for a word?"

"As a matter of fact, some of my ancestors were Dutch," said Mr. Fish, tactfully avoiding the issue while he made a note to take it up with Mr. Chamberlain when he returned to London.

"The name Fish comes from the Germanic Fiesch, corrupted because of the dastardly Anglos, whom our research workers have discovered to be a parasitic Israelitic tribe," continued Herr Ribbentrop. "Why do you tolerate such corruption? This world-wide plot against the German vowels and consonants must be avenged. Consider what the Anglos have done to the sacred Germanic language! Sohn becomes son; heim, home; tochter, daughter; blut, blood; akter, acre. The most sacred family ties, our very blood and soil have been corrupted, and day by day the newspapers perpetuate this atrocity. But we shall bring the English language home—I mean heim—to the Reich."

"What has all this to do with Danzig?" asked Mr. Fish blithely.

"Yes and no," replied Herr Ribbentrop, remembering that he was a diplomat. "What would the Republicans do in case of war?" he asked cautiously.

"Fight Roosevelt," replied Mr. Fish instantly. "He wants to be a dictator!" he added, forgetting for a moment where he was.

"The wrong kind of a dictator," said Mr. Ribbentrop soothingly, covering Mr. Ribbentrop soothing-

Serial Story Murder on the Boardwalk

By Elinore Cowan Stone

CAST OF CHARACTERS
CHRISTINE THORENSEN—came to visit her cousin, found a mystery.
BILL YARDLEY—had a reason for watching Christine.
GEORGE WILMET—employed Christine as a Boardwalk artist.
CHANDRA—looked into the future—and into the past.

Yesterday, Chandra, warns Christine of her danger, but she rejects his advice. Later, she meets Bill Yardley, coming up from the beach. She tells him the whole story, they return to her studio, find a crowd gathered there.

CHAPTER VI
Bill said, "Wait here. I'll run ahead and see—"
"Wait nothing!" Christine objected. "Bill—"
But almost at once he was lost to sight in the crowd.

From the Coast Guard tower a searchlight was swooping in great arcs over the water, picking out racing horses of foam, pointing for a moment, then moving insistently on. Above Christine's head a motor snarled as a plane put out to sea.

An area of the walk had been roped off, and men in uniform were herding the crowd beyond the ropes—Bill among them. It did not occur to Christine that the ropes meant her, too; and no one seemed to pay any attention to her as she edged along the railing just behind two officers who were directing powerful flashlights down into the studio booth.

Suddenly a voice from the edge of the crowd called out, "There's that girl I was telling you about, Sergeant—right behind you. She was drawing pictures down there this afternoon; and this evening I seen her slip down again and come out reading a letter or something."

Glancing toward the source of the voice, Christine saw that it was the flashily dressed proprietor of the shooting gallery across the Boardwalk.

"Stick around, Miss," the sergeant directed, turning upon her. "We'll want to talk to every one who works about here."

"Why, of course," Christine tried to make her voice crisply casual.

She peered down into the booth, but she could not see much at first except uniformed backs. Finally, as one of the policemen moved, she saw a man in a white coat bending over a figure on the concrete bench at the rear of the booth. Something unpleasantly rigid about the coat-sleeved arm and gloved hand at the edge of the bench convinced Christine that she didn't care to see any more.

An officer climbed into the booth from the beach below and reported to a man in plain clothes who seemed to be in charge. "There's the marks of two rowboats in the sand down there, Inspector Parsons—both made since high tide. One of the boats is there yet. No one seems to ly, covering Mr. Fish's confusion with infinite tact. "What was Benes? A dictator, leading his helpless people to ruin. And Schuschigg! A most shocking dictator! Oh, if I could tell you the horrible tales of the way our Nazis languished in prison in Schuschigg's dungeons! And all for what? For a trifling little assassination of that Dictator Dolfuss, who was only five feet tall anyway, a disgrace to the Germanic race. All eastern Europe today groans under the heels of petty tyrants. Our mission is to liberate them."

"I say, Herr Ribbentrop, could I have a drink?" asked Mr. Fish.

Mr. Ribbentrop poured him a glass of champagne. "And what are your other objections to Mr. Roosevelt—or as we call him Roosevelt—asked as he handed Mr. Fish the cup. "Just so we can know and follow the same line in our propaganda."

"He is strangling private enterprise and Initiative," said Mr. Fish. "He has swollen the national debt, put the government into business, agrandized executive power, ruled by the arbitrary degrees of discretionary agencies, extended bureaucratic control, increased the military expense, and he is steering us toward war!"

"We can use the last one of those arguments," said Herr Ribbentrop appreciatively. "Should Americans suffer for perfidious Albion! That's good stuff, Mr. Fish. Our agents over there are finding it the most effective argument yet. The motto of the Republican party should be 'No concern with anything outside our shores!' I think it may win you the election."

"But, of course, the rest of your argument is bunk. It will be hard for us to use. You see, we stand for the strangulation of private enterprise, putting the government into business, all power to the Führer, rule by decree, and although we fervently hope that we shall keep peace, and we shall unless war-mongering nations recklessly attempt to halt the inexorable course of justice, our motto is, if war must come, then God help our enemies, and no concessions out of fear of war. Mr. Fish, you Republicans are on the right track in foreign policy. Later we will love to talk with you about domestic policy, because I am sure you will want to switch into line with the dominant world power. That's just common
