WAR COUNCIL ORGANIZED BY ADOLF HITLER

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder. The reason, the Associated Press was told authoritatively, was that this is neither a political nor a military council, instead, it has to do with concentrating all civil effort toward winning a war in case it comes.

The decision to set up this special defense council at this particular time was prompted by the desire to assure the public that every precaution is being taken early.

The announcement of the council was regarded as particularly opportune at this moment when Poland's virtually general mobilization was being announced.

Demands Unchanged. The decree was followed swiftly by the delivery by British Ambassador Sir Neville Henderson to Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop of Great Britain's reply to Hitler's note of Tuesday night—another swift move in a secret exchange of communications.

But it was indicated Hitler's flat demands still are for Danzig and the Polish Corridor from Poland.

Goering, as head of the new inner cabinet group, will exert authority second only to that of the Fuehrer.

The council may act on its own initiative under blanket authority given it by the Fuehrer, although Hitler may still issue decrees and direct legislation through the reichstag.

Goering's influence and power were greatly extended for it was specifically stated that he retains all authority vested in him as director of Germany's four year plan.

The propaganda ministry later said the purpose of the decree was to "concentrate the vital forces of the nation in a few hands to attain the greatest possible efficiency."

The decree was issued after cabinet consultations which started in the afternoon and lasted almost until midnight.

It was immediately read over all radio stations so that anxious citizens who sat up late at their receiving sets learned immediately that Germany had taken one more significant step in preparedness for any emergency.

While Hitler and his advisers conferred, another communication from Great Britain reached Berlin.

Problems Of Social Welfare Studied At Peninsula Meetings

Ishpeming, Mich., Aug. 30 (AP)—Here to receive, at first hand, the story of relief problems in counties of the upper peninsula, the state social welfare commission will conduct the first of a two-day peninsula session in the auditorium of the Ishpeming high school Thursday afternoon.

Ten counties have been invited to send representatives to the Ishpeming session. The remaining five will be heard at a meeting in Houghton Friday morning.

Bringing in their stories to the relief commission here will be representatives of Chippewa, Mackinac, Schoolcraft, Luce, Menominee, Delta, Alger, Dickinson, Iron and Marquette counties.

Because of the wide interest in the peninsula hearings, it is expected that from 300 to 500 persons will attend.

Walter F. Gries, of Negaunee, chairman of the commission, will preside at the session.

PRINTER FOUND SHOT Hillsdale, Mich., Aug. 30 (AP)—Coroner Frank P. Aldrich returned a suicide verdict after L. W. Stephenson, 59, was found dead from a shotgun wound in the basement of his home here today. SECRET NOTES FAIL TO MAKE ANY HEADWAY

The cabinet council was announced a government spokesman said Albert Forster, Nazi district leader in Danzig, had arrived in Berlin, presumably for another important conference with Hitler and possibly for instructions as to his future course toward Poland. The six man council, headed by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, was given all economic, financial and administrative power necessary for defending Germany in the event of a conflict.

Poland ordered a large scale "partial mobilization"—estimated to bring her men under arms to well over 2,000,000—at the same time that Warsaw officials received reports the latest British-German exchange offered no immediate settlement.

Message More Bitter As a matter of fact, a foreign office spokesman declared in Warsaw, the German Fuehrer's note last night to Chamberlain was "even more bitter" than his communication to Premier Daladier of France last Sunday.

The note to Daladier rejected the idea of direct negotiations with Poland and said "Danzig and the (Polish) Corridor must go back to Germany x x x the Macdonian (terrorist) conditions along the Polish frontier must cease."

Paris shared the feeling prevalent in London that the critical situation was "no better and no worse."

"There is no war yet and every day of peace is a gain," appeared, however, to be the consensus of high officials and common men in every land.

Britain's second note reached Berlin tonight.

It was described authoritatively as designed to bring a further communication from Hitler, prolonging the negotiations in the hope of finding a basis of settlement.

"Protecting" Slovakia "The president has ordered general mobilization," pink posters informed Polish crowds but an official communique in Warsaw said the order involved some exceptions.

Emphasizing her preparedness was "purely defensive," Poland said Germany's aggressive acts "leave no doubt but that Poland is endangered."

These acts, the Poles listed as Germany's bitter press campaign, "threats," "systematic border incidents," and "concentration of German mobilized forces along Poland's frontiers."

German military occupation of Slovakia, where an estimated 300,000 German soldiers were concentrated at four strategic mountain passes along the Polish frontier, was hailed by Premier Joseph Tiso of Slovakia as an act of protection for the little state "against the Polish danger."

France placed all railroads at the disposal of the army on the heels of a fourth urgent warning to civilians to leave Paris.

Less than one third of the 2,000,000 Parisians were believed to have obeyed. Some 50,000 children were removed from schools to country refuges.

Weygand in Syria General Maxime Weygand, former commander in chief of the French army, arrived in French-occupied Syria by plane from Paris and it was reported he has been designated to lead the British-French forces in the Near East in event of war.

Hitler conferred with his generals and some cabinet members late today as he awaited the British reply to his second communication. The note of optimism continued in official quarters.

"For the moment, Germany is in contact with Britain," one informant said. "Whether contact with Poland will come later is not clear."

Informed Italians represented Premier Mussolini as throwing his whole weight on the side of a comprehensive settlement of both German and Italian claims against Britain, France and Poland.

Il Duce's own newspaper, Il Popolo D'Italia of Milan, said "the Treaty of Versailles must be eliminated."

Italy Promises Help King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy cabled President Roosevelt that Italy was doing "whatever is possible to bring about a peace with justice."

The king's communication was in response to the president's appeal to him last week to take the leadership in securing European peace.

United States Ambassadors Joseph P. Kennedy in London, William C. Bullitt in Paris, and William Phillips in Rome, kept in close touch with the diplomatic

Government To Buy Up War Materials

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—The government is about to begin a $100,000,000 purchase program authorized by congress to build up stores of essential war materials.

The high command of the army and navy, keeping in mind that the outbreak of a European conflict might close some foreign sources of strategic supplies, has hastened preparation of a list of materials to be purchased with $10,000,000 which congress provided to start the program.

The treasury is expected to announce specifications for these materials within the next few days and call for bids on them in the very near future.

The government's military experts are considering limiting initial orders to these items, for an adequate supply of which, they say, the United States is dependent in whole or in part on outside sources:

Manganese ore, for use in the manufacture of steel. Chromium ore, for special steel alloys used in armor plate and guns. Tungsten ore, for machine tools and alloy steels.

Tin, for food containers and automotive equipment. Quinine, for medicinal purposes. Quartz crystals, for use in radio equipment, and for electric gauges used widely in industry and to determined pressure in gun barrels. Manila fibre, to be made into rope for maritime purposes. Officials say this fibre is the only rope-making material that does not swell when immersed in salt water.

International developments are expected to determine whether the list will be expanded quickly. The army and navy munitions board, which is now working with the recently-created war resources board, has designated a total of 17 materials as "strategic" and 20 as "critical." The strategic items are defined by the army-navy board as essential war materials for the supply of which the United States is dependent wholly or partially on outside sources.

Critical materials are defined as essentials which would present procurement problems of some what less difficulty. The materials purchased are to be stored on army and navy reservations and, in general, are not to be released unless the president proclaims the existence of a war emergency.

The last congress authorized $100,000,000 of such purchases over a four-year period. It appropriated only $10,000,000 to begin the buying, however.

Peace Plea Sent Hitler By Canada Is Acknowledged Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 30 (Canadian Press)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said tonight that he had received acknowledgments of each of the three peace appeals he cabled Friday to the leaders of the German, Polish and Italian governments.

The prime minister said he was advised yesterday by Dr. Erich Windels, German consul-general here, that Fuehrer Hitler had asked that Mackenzie King be advised his message had been received. There was no comment from Hitler.

Jan Pawlica, consul-general for Poland, also notified the prime minister that he had been instructed to acknowledge receipt of the message to President Ignace Moscicki and to say that President Moscicki appreciated the desire of Canada to further peaceful negotiation.

Premier Mussolini of Italy replied directly on Sunday assuring Mackenzie King that he would leave no effort untried that might lead to "a just and lasting peace."

Million School Enrollments Watched To Guide Michigan Education Policies

Lansing, Aug. 30 (AP)—Michigan educators today were awaiting the annual influx of approximately 1,000,000 children in the state's school system for evidence which will explain future educational policies.

Pointing to a "continued tendency for enrollments in the elementary grades to taper off," Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction, asserted that the public school system soon must prepare better education for the "13th and 14th grades."

The decline in elementary enrollments, Dr. Elliott said, will be offset by an increase in secondary school enrollments for the present. The general decline in the lower grades, he said, corresponds to a leveling off of the population and may be expected to reach the upper grades in a few years.

"In all probability," he said, "the leveling off of school enrollments, when it reaches the high schools, will lead to improvements in the curriculum of what I call the 13th and 14th grades."

Dr. Elliott said that designation differentiated between those high school graduates which attend junior colleges for continued academic training and those who seek technical or vocational education with which to find employment in life.

"The area of cost in the future," Dr. Elliott said, "will switch probably from the elementary schools to the 'after-high school' training." He said educators noted an increase in demands for adult education but that these courses were expected to be mostly self-supporting.

"One of the most significant trends is the growth of enrollments in the poverty-stricken areas near the industrial centers," Dr. Elliott asserted. "People are moving out of the cities and overloading the small and poorly-financed rural districts."

The state's financial strait as the new school year opens, he said, will increase the problem in those areas and may start most school districts in a state of fiscal stringency. The local districts will receive only $3,000,000 of the $10,000,000 state aid due in September and the remainder will be parcelled out as it is collected.

Some rural schools have started classes already to permit closing for a week during the fall for

DEADLINE FOR PLATES TODAY

Motorists Must Replace Half Year Licenses By Tonight

Local residents were advised yesterday by chief of police, Michael Ettenhofer, that today will be the deadline for the use of Michigan half-year license plates.

It is believed that there are a large number of motor vehicle owners in Escanaba and the surrounding area who have not replaced their half-year plates and failure to do so today will mean that they will be unable to drive their cars as the motor vehicle laws of the state do not permit any official to postpone this deadline.

The Delta county branch of the secretary of state's office for the sale of license plates is located at the Ludington Motor company, corner of Ludington street and Stephenson avenue. William Ranguette is manager of the branch office.

Plates which motorists purchase at the present time are good until March 1, 1940.

MEA Executive Talks To School Officials

The financial status of Michigan's public schools was the subject of a talk by A. J. Phillips, executive secretary of the Michigan Education Association, given at a meeting Monday of the Delta county association of school board members at the Escanaba township hall at Flat Rock.

A review of school finances in 1930-1931, said Mr. Phillips, revealed the fact that all school money was derived from local sources and at that time the state school fund was $105,000,000. The 15 mill tax, however, he said, had an immediate effect, and the property tax revenues went down $40,000,000 while the primary school fund dropped ten millions of dollars. Therefore, it was necessary for school purposes that a new tax be introduced and the three per cent sales tax was made a law.

At no time since then, Phillips declared, have the schools had within seventeen million dollars of the funds available prior to 1931, although enrollment in schools throughout the state has gone up 21,000.

Salaries Take Cuts
Schools, he explained, have certain fixed costs of maintenance which run to approximately 30 per cent of the school budget and cannot be cut, while 70 per cent of the school budget is in teachers' salaries. Therefore, he said, when state aid has been cut, it is the teachers' salaries that have been lowered.

Some people have over-estimated the salaries received by teachers, he said. A comparison of salaries received by teachers and other employees shows that a filing clerk in the state departments receives 30 per cent higher pay than do most teachers. The salary of the governor's secretary is $2,000, or more than that of 80 per cent of Michigan's teachers. Truck drivers for the state, receiving $100 a month, are higher paid than rural school teachers.

Quoting figures for the period from 1926 to 1929, Mr. Phillips showed that the schools have received less than the amount they asked for every year. In 1926 the legislature was asked for $25,000,000 for the schools, but voted them only $23,000,000. In 1927, 1928 and 1929, the yearly request was for $47,000,000, but in each year it was considerably less, amounting to $41,000,000 in 1927, $43,800,000 in 1928 and $31,000,000 in 1929.

He dwelt at some length on the fact that the public at large has not realized "the importance of the education of our future citizens and that this education is the best insurance against the 'isms' which threaten democratic institutions."

Schools Out First
The MEA has objected, he said, only because other state institutions have first been delegated their shares of state money and the remainder is left to the schools, forcing them on every cut in returns to bear the brunt of reductions. All but two state departments have larger appropriations for the next two years than

PARKS DRAWING LARGE CROWDS

1939 Mark Expected to Equal '38 Despite Two Fairs

Lansing, Aug. 30.—The large turnout anticipated for Michigan's 56 state parks during the Labor Day weekend is expected to keep this year's park attendance on a par with that of last year, second highest on record.

Latest tabulations by the parks division of the Michigan department of conservation show that 85,000 more people had used state parks facilities this season, as of the second week of August, than on a comparable date last year.

Records have not been completed concerning the number of visitors during the cooler weather in the latter part of this month, but W. J. Kingscott, chief of the parks division, holds the opinion that this year's turnout stands a good chance of equalling the 1938 figure of 8,500,000. A 9,000,000 visitor list was set up during 1937 as the high mark to date.

Labor Day weekend is the third major event, so far as "packing them in" is concerned, on the park schedule. Memorial Day and the Fourth of July provide other heavy attendance periods.

Kingscott said that following Labor Day, the back to work movement and school-days routine will occasion curtailed use of parks. By September 15 a few parks will be closed, beginning with those drawing smaller numbers of visitors. Continued heavy use prevails at some parks throughout the fall, when autumn scenic beauties and fall fishing and hunting draw people outdoors.

Parks division officials have been interested in watching what effect the world's fairs on both coasts have on park use this season. August attendance figures, ahead of last year, bear out the early season opinions that parks would hold their own against out-of-state attractions.

Of the "Big Three" in the parks list, two have rung up higher attendance scores. The Bay City park by early August had 768,000 visitors, compared with 661,000 for last year at the same date. The Grand Haven park stood 876,000 this year against 857,000 last year.

PLANE FLOAT JOB STARTED

Local Seaplane Mooring To Be First of 12 In Peninsula

Work was begun here yesterday under the direction of NYA engineers on a seaplane float, planned after a survey by the State Board of Aeronautics earlier in the summer, which will give Escanaba the first of 12 such structures now projected in the upper peninsula.

Twenty-two feet long and 12 feet wide according to construction plans, the float will be supported by 10 empty oil drums. It will have provisions for disembarking from and mooring of seaplanes. It is predicted by engineers in charge that the building of the structure will take approximately a week and a half.

Two NYA engineers, Albert Floeter and Alec Alapsa, are directing the project and 12 local NYA laborers will do the actual construction work. A survey was made in July of upper peninsula harbors by the Michigan State Board of Aeronautics with a view toward the improvement of facilities for taking care of seaplane traffic, and due to the ready agreement and cooperation of local civic NYA heads at that time, Escanaba will be the first of peninsula communities to have a float.

The location of the structure has not yet been indicated, but will be directed later by Col. Floyd E. Evans, director of the State Board of Aeronautics, on the basis of the survey made earlier this year.

Embalmers School Closed On Tuesday

A two-day school for members of the Michigan Funeral Directors and Embalmers association, at which 90 members received the twelve hours credit required every three years by state law, closed here Tuesday night.

Special hearings for violations and restrictions were held from 9 to 12 o'clock yesterday morning.

The banquet dinner held Monday night at the Sherman hotel was termed by members of the association as one of the most successful ever held by the group.

The highlight of the program was the singing of the Knights of Columbus chorus under the direction of Willard Clark. They were accompanied by Miss Elaine Brown.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Keep Cool and Keep Clear

It is said that comparatively few people read newspaper editorials. Of course, this may be the fault of the editorial writers, but if everyone who sees this will take good advice and read former President Herbert Hoover's review of the present international situation in a recent issue of the American Magazine, the writer of this article will feel well repaid.

If anyone knows the hellish results of war it is Mr. Hoover. He saw intimately and at first hand the moving tragedy of the World War, and tried on the ground in Europe to lessen some of its horrors. He feels that if we ever needed real statesmanship the time is now. He wants the Administration to make it plain to all concerned that we are not going to war with anybody in Europe, no matter what happens, unless the Western Hemisphere is attacked.

Here is some of the best advice that a country ever had—counsel born in the flaming crucible of war and its aftermath. Will the country take it and be governed accordingly? If war befalls, on our decision will surely depend the fate of American democracy. We have had, in the past few days, a signal example of what Mr. Hoover means by power politics. Communist Russia has bilked French and English leaders into believing that they might conclude an alliance with her while secretly, and no doubt for weeks past, she was negotiating a treaty with Germany.

New Uses for Woods

WHENEVER announcement is made that scientists have developed new wood products there is naturally speculation as to what benefits are to be expected in the Upper Peninsula.

Lumbering has supplied a livelihood for a large section of the Upper Peninsula's population during the past three-quarters of a century. While there are only a few sawmills operating now as compared with the number running at the turn of the century, there are still many communities dependent upon the woods industries.

For centuries wood was regarded as being only suitable for construction purposes of nearly all types, for fuel and for furniture making. The many other possibilities of the substance are now beginning to appear in the manufacture materials, some of which although new, now seem indispensable to the average home. In the discovery of new products from wood the science of chemistry has been an invaluable help.

The chemists, by use of a process called hydrolysis, have extracted a great variety of substances, among which are several sugars which may be converted into ethyl alcohol, aniline used in dyes, other liquids, molding power, and, most important of all, cellulose.

Cellulose could well be called the horn of plenty, since so many things come of it. For example gun cotton, which is a powerful explosive, smokeless powder, food for cattle, soles for shoes, poker chips, lemonade straws, long-wearing rugs and carpets, upholstery goods, materials to cover roofs and walls, substitutes for cotton batting, bags and purses of a leather substitute, lacquers and many other items which may be manufactured into anything from telephone receivers to salad bowls.

lignin useful. In their search for this knowledge they dealt with the actual structure of the lignin molecule and found that the elements of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen compose it, and are linked together in a five-sided molecular structure called the furanose ring. This gave chemists a new place from which to start. Already they have found that there are ways to compress lignin into wallboards and floor tiles, ways to make dyestuff from it and acid for bleaching clothes; a substance which will act as a binder for roads, and another that can be fed to cattle. The door to the uses of lignin has been only slightly opened; sometime the chemists will doubtless swing it wide.

Explorations go on into the mysteries of wood, each step becoming more interesting. Its possibilities seem only touched, and what the tree may produce is only a conjecture.

Mississippi Industrialized

THE movement of manufacturing industries toward the south has been a notable feature of recent years. It has been going on in a natural manner for 20 years, but during the past five it has been artificially stimulated until it is now a factor in national production, and a mark of the change in the regional setup in the country.

Mississippi, traditionally an agricultural state, last year actually produced manufactured products whose value exceeded that of its farm products. It has done this without developing any great industrial cities. The industries which have developed have sprung up in small towns, usually at places where raw materials could be processed on the ground.

The face of the country and its regional characteristics are changing before our very eyes, and as usually is the case in such things the changes will probably be largely accomplished before we realize it.

IT DOESN'T PAY (Providence Journal)

One need not be a lawbreaker to protest against the "crime tax" proposed by a Wisconsin legislator. The idea is that a convicted criminal pay an additional 10 per cent tax on his fine or at the rate of 25 cents for each day in jail.

Obviously, that would be neither a luxury levy nor an assessment on the necessities of life. From the standpoint of governmental budget balancing, it would provide an extremely unstable base for revenue raising. As a matter of public policy, payment of taxes would cease to be a patriotic duty under such circumstances.

AROUND THE PENINSULA (Ironwood Globe)

Knowledge that a former Marquette resident once was a sparring partner of Bob Fitzsimmons and fought "Gentleman Jim" Corbett in an exhibition became generally known on the death of Dr. George William Lawler, 65, at Waukesha, Wis., last week. Dr. Lawler was born in Marquette and spent his early life there. Before attending Marquette university medical school, from which he was graduated in 1908, he was a professional boxer. Typhoid fever prevented him from engaging in a world championship fight when he was at the height of his career as a boxer.

Manistique fishermen have heard so much of the success in trolling for lake trout in Lake Superior that two boatloads set out on a trolling expedition in Lake Michigan the other day, but they had no luck. They plan to make additional trips to locate the best trolling grounds, if any. More than likely their luck will continue poor, for Lake Michigan is rapidly being depleted of its trout. As evidence of that, whole fleets of fishing boats were laid up several weeks ago at several Upper Peninsula ports on Lake Michigan.

Congressman Frank E. Hook of Ironwood has been challenged to a debate on the Townsend plan because he told an Iron Mountain picnic audience of Democrats that he was unalterably opposed to the plan. The challenge came from Dr. Don Crabb, of Chicago, who extolled the virtues of the plan at Iron Mountain a few days after the congressman spoke. The congressman will probably ignore the challenge because it wouldn't be a debate—just an attack on personalities and generalizations about the so-called virtues of the Townsend plan.

The WPA lay-off regulation even crippled the WPA band at Iron River. Because 11 members of the band received their furlough slips, all concerts scheduled by the band have been cancelled until further notice. Even the director, Walter Matuszek, got a furlough slip, but he says he will continue to devote a part of his time to the band without pay "just to keep the band alive." He shows the proper spirit and maybe he can induce other lay-off members to play without remuneration for the time being.

Keith MacEachern and Herbert Powers Jr. have returned to St. Ignace after a 1-500 mile tour of the northern part of the Peninsula and a part of Wisconsin. It is a tour other boys ought to undertake. The Peninsula is one of the grandest places in the country for a tour and only a comparatively small percentage of its natives has a fair knowledge of what its area contains. There isn't a section in the Peninsula that doesn't have something unusual to boast about.

World Affairs Reviewed

Washington, D. C. — That India has been voted by students of ten universities as being the most complicated—racially, intellectually, religiously, and above all, governmentally—of any area in the world, does not come as a surprise to those who have studied this vast area of Asia.

But India presents other extremes. It presents extremes in climate, from coldest to the hottest; in soil, from the most fertile to the most barren, and from the most healthful spots to the worst forms of epidemic-ridden regions. Economically, there are the very rich living in luxury, and the starving millions living in dirty mud houses and stricken with disease.

Although India is more than half the size of the United States and contains two and one-half times more people, it is one of the least understood places in the world. Millions who live there have only a vague idea of India's area and less of the complexity of its society, or the multiplicity of the numerous governments under which the people live.

India is a peninsula, not a political unit. It is the most amazing conglomerate of states in the world. The area is the home of one sixth of all the inhabitants on earth.

On the map, the country seems only a small projection from the huge bulk of Asia. But its 1,805,252 square miles of area make it more than half the size of the United States. The lofty Himalaya Mountains, arching across its northern frontier, fence it off from the rest of Asia; and the sea on its two other sides complete its isolation. Into this huge, detached triangle are crammed more than 350,000,000 people who represent many races and who speak some 200 different languages. From its sea level, tropical south to its lofty, snow-capped north, India runs a gamut of climatic conditions. Thus in size, population, isolation, and diversity of human material and climatic aspects, India might almost be considered a continent in itself.

Governmentally, the peninsula is a veritable crazy-quilt of presidencies, states, provinces, protectorates, tribal areas, and foreign patches. The native states, covering a large part of the area of the peninsula, are not British governed, but are considered to be a part of the British Empire. Some fragments of territory are owned outright by foreign nations. These include approximately 200 square miles of French territory in five separate colonies, along the east and west coasts; and approximately 1500 square miles of Portuguese territory in four areas on the western side of the peninsula.

A map of India showing in red the territory wholly governed by Great Britain, and in a lighter shade the native states, gives a good picture of the general governmental situation. British India—the directly British governed territory—is a matrix like the dough of a plum pudding; embedded in the British dough, and cemented together by it like the large and small bits of fruit in a pudding, are more than 500 native states of varying degrees of importance and independence. Their cataloging is well-nigh impossible.

—COMPLICATED GOVERNMENTAL SYSTEM—

Although there has been much written of a dominion status for India and Indian self government, discussions in London of possible governmental changes usually refer to British India—the irregular territorial matrix which is subject directly to British law. Due to the many difficulties, especially in languages, religions and customs that divide many groups, independence for India, or even British India, appears remote.

British India embraces about 70 per cent of the area and approximately 80 per cent of the population of the peninsula. This scattered realm is equal in area to six times the area of Texas, while the population is twice that of the entire United States. This territory which Britain governs directly is divided into fourteen provinces. Eight of the provinces in the peninsula are large enough and populous enough to be comparable to many important nations of Europe. Thus, the smallest—Assam—is larger than Greece, while the largest—Madras—is almost as large as Poland and considerably more populous.

The governors of these eight important provinces, and also of Burma, are appointed by the British King-Emperor. The eight chief provinces of the peninsula are: Assam, Bengal, Bihar and Orissa combined, Bombay, Central Provinces and Berar combined, Madras, Punjab, and the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh.

The governmental machinery of the provinces as well as that of British India as a whole is probably as complicated as that of any state in the world. The chief executive of British India is a viceroy or governor general appointed for a five-year term by the British crown. Assisting him is an executive council of seven members also appointed by the crown for five years. Three of these are Indians.

Ridgeway, Wis., will be the judges. Five Copper Country men will serve as field marshals. The Peninsula may be represented by at least three organizations at the national convention of the American Legion in Chicago. In addition to the Ironwood Sons of the Legion drum and bugle corps and the Ironwood Legion chorus, the Menominee Legion band may attend. Efforts are now being made to raise sufficient funds in Menominee to send the band to Chicago. The Menominee band would not be eligible to compete for a prize, however, because the membership of the band is not strictly ex-service. Menominee is no less proud of the band and justly so.

If a certain Escanaba youngster doesn't become a financial wizard or a captain of industry when he reaches maturity, all signs will have failed. Yesterday a boy brought two hawk heads to the city clerk's office to collect the bounty of 50 cents each. Being told that he had to have a gun license before the bounty could be paid, he promptly ejaculated, "Oh!" and went out. Five minutes later another lad appeared and applied for a gun license which, upon payment of a dollar, was granted. This boy walked out and in two minutes was back with two hawk heads on which he claimed a bounty of $1.00. It was paid. Howya gonna stop a kid like that?

Historical Park, birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, comprises 110 acres, and lies three miles south of Hodgenville, Kentucky. The Lincoln Farm Association bought the site in 1906 and began the erection of a granite building in which to place a log cabin said to be that in which Lincoln was born. The cabin is 12 feet wide and 17 feet long, 11 feet from the floor to the eaves and 14 feet from the floor to the highest point of the roof. The memorial building, for which the cornerstone was laid in 1909 on the centennial of Lincoln's birth, is of Connecticut granite lined with Tennessee marble. Its inside dimensions are 44 feet in width, 34 feet in depth, and 45 feet in height. The Association in 1916 transferred title to the farm and the memorial to the United States, to be administered by the War Department. In 1933 the property was transferred to the jurisdiction of the National Park Service.

New York Column

BY GEORGE ROSS

New York—A lone and forlorn figure of Gotham's whirligig is William P. Buckner, the dapper young man indicted in the Philippine bond frauds who is awaiting the outcome of his fate on appeal. A playboy to the last, he exercises his freedom by resorting to the same dens where he cavorted extensively before the Law caught up with him.

But he travels alone, whereas a retinue of visiting firemen and comely maids accompanied him in the old days. Fear of a long prison sentence has not affected his sartorial pride, for he still wears fashionably-cut clothes and sports the inevitable boutonniere. But lately he has been revealed in celluloid and his libations are restricted to soda pop and milk. It would be less embarrassing to some of his former "friends" if he did not make the rounds, for his former Broadway "pals" now assiduously avoid him.

ONE IDOL WHO IS NOT BROKE

In fiction, ex-matinee idols usually wind up on the breadline or in some other humiliating downgrade berth. But hardly so with Caryle Blackwell who, your elders—and perhaps you—will recall as the cinematic Adonis of his day. It has been quite a while since the Blackwell profile and amorous pose has been revealed in celluloid and his exploits as a matinee idol are things of the past. But he did not go the way of most former stars.

He is quite solvent, thank you. Not only is he a partner in an expensive tailoring establishment for which he is a walking model, since his sartorial get-up is the talk of the town, but he has just become the super good-will man of a huge wine firm. He earns more money now than he ever did in his hey-day as a handsome Romeo.

SWING A LA RIVER BARGE

Navigators along the North River have been attracted lately by dissonant sounds emerging from a big, yellow barge. The captains of tug-boats, barges and miniature freighters who go by on their daily route never investigated the other night, though a grizzled barge commander ventured behind him were Steve Early and Charley Michelson. On the couch at his right were Brigadier General Watson, his secretary, and Captain Callahan, his naval aide.

The President was dressed in a seersucker suit with a white shirt and polka-dot tie. The doors of the oval office were thrown open, for the air-conditioning cannot take care of a sudden inflow of 200 persons.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY PEARSON AND ALLEN

Washington—All who helped prepare Roosevelt's peace appeals agreed that they must be sent, but there was backstage disagreement over the manner of the sending.

The fact that Roosevelt used Western Union to cable Hitler was what left the State Department aghast. Ignoring diplomatic routine, the President merely addressed his message to "Adolf Hitler, Berlin, Germany" and signed it "Franklin D. Roosevelt."

There was no way for Hitler or the German Government to know whether the cable was bonafide or sent by a crank. Anyone could have faked such a message. In fact, when Roosevelt sent his peace message to Hitler last April, the American Embassy in Berlin did not believe for several days that it actually was sent. The telegram had been dispatched through Western Union, and the Embassy couldn't believe that the President had used such an unconventional medium.

In the case of last week's first message to Hitler, the White House asked western Union to notify it when delivery had been effected; and Steve Early, presidential secretary for press relations, waited to get word from the telegraph company before making public the message.

Notification of delivery came at 10:15 p. m. Washington time, which was 4:15 a. m. in Berlin, so that about all the Western Union messenger could have done was to walk up to a guard in front of Hitler's palace and hand him the telegram.

In diplomacy, no attention is paid to messages delivered in this manner, and the State Department objected to the White House procedure for that reason. One function of ambassadors is to present telegrams of this kind, thereby guaranteeing their authenticity.

Note—Chief reason for Roosevelt's using ordinary commercial cables was speed. It takes half an hour to code a State Department message, another half an hour to decode it, an hour or two for an ambassador to get back from dinner in order to receive the message, and several hours or even half a day for him to arrange an interview with Hitler.

—SECRET DIPLOMACY—

Much greater pains were taken with Roosevelt's peace message to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, because in this case he was hoping to drive a wedge into the Rome-Berlin Axis.

The President knew that the King and Crown Prince Umberto, together with Generals Badoglio and Balbo, were much opposed to war. So he had Ambassador Phillips deliver the message personally.

Here again, however, there was disapproval in the State Department, not regarding the manner of delivery, but the fact that Steve Early immediately published the message to Victor Emmanuel. State Department opinion, argued that if the message were kept secret the King would have a chance to argue with Mussolini privately.

But with publication of the message, it became apparent to the Italian people that Mussolini was being put on the spot, thus making it far more difficult if not impossible for him to yield to the King.

Note—In the case of Poland where Roosevelt expected a reply (he expected none from Hitler), the State Department delivered a copy of the peace message to the Polish Embassy in Washington.

—WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE—

Gravest White House press conference in many months was that held just after Roosevelt sent his peace message to Europe. Attended by a record crowd of 200 correspondents who stood in front of his desk, the President carried on a banter with those who had reached the front row.

"Put on your best facial expression," he said with a wink. "You're being photographed."

Behind him were two news photographers, one with a still camera and one with a movie camera. They had been selected by the corps of photographers to represent them, and share the plates and films (the entire corps could not be admitted). In fact, admission of even two was unusual, and made this an outstanding conference.

Somebody smiled at the President's remark, and with a twinkle in his eye but a scolding expression, he said, "Look serious." Felix Belair of the New York Times assumed a deeply grave expression, and the President said, "That's perfect, Felix."

The photographers stood behind the President, one on either side. Directly behind him, standing erect with alert eyes, were two Secret Service operatives. Seated behind him were Steve Early and Charley Michelson. On the couch at his right were Brigadier General Watson, his secretary, and Captain Callahan, his naval aide.

The President was dressed in a seersucker suit with a white shirt and polka-dot tie. The doors of the oval office were thrown open, for the air-conditioning cannot take care of a sudden inflow of 200 persons.

AUTO ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL

Henry Bouchard Succumbs to Injuries Suffered Last Sunday

Henry Bouchard, 24, of Schaffer, died at 9:30 yesterday morning at St. Francis hospital as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident which occurred early Sunday morning on Highway M-69 between Danforth and Schaffer.

Bouchard, who was accompanied by Thomas Seymour of Schaffer, had stopped at Ten Mile Creek to put water in the radiator of his car and according to information obtained by the sheriff's department had parked on the highway.

As he was in the act of pouring the water into the radiator, a car driven by Henry Seymour, accompanied by Louis Gundon and George Hallfrish, all of Schaffer, crashed into the rear of the Bouchard car due to poor visibility because of fog.

As the result of the collision, Bouchard was thrown about 15 feet to the side of the road and his car knocked over to the west side of the highway. None of the occupants of the Seymour car were injured and Bouchard was rushed to St. Francis hospital by Robert Bruce, where it was found he had received a skull fracture.

He was born March 4, 1915 at Schaffer, and resided there with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theophile Bouchard.

Surviving, in addition to his parents, are 5 sisters, Clara, Lansing; Eva, Detroit; Mrs. George Schaller and Mrs. William Lantagne, Escanaba Route 1; Mrs. William Germain, Detroit; Mrs. Lucien Gunette, Schaffer; and Mercedes and Mae Ann, both at home; and two brothers, Louis, Lansing, and Arthur of Chicago.

The body was taken to the Alto funeral home and will be removed to the family residence at Schaffer this afternoon.

Services will be held at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in the Sacred Heart church at Schaffer, the Rev. Fr. W. J. Remmillard officiating. Burial will be made in the Schaffer cemetery.

Publicly Tells of KruGon's Merits

No Longer Troubled With Indigestion, Constipation; Skin Rash Disappeared Too With Proper Elimination

"I cannot say too much in praising this herbal laxative," said Mrs. Maggie J. Foss, 406 East Jackson St., Mankato, Minnesota. "Several years ago I began to be troubled with constipation which had its ruinous effects on my health in general. Poisonous impurities clogged up so that I began breaking out with a skin rash that would not yield to any other treatment I applied. It was so annoying and disturbed me so much it was next to impossible to get any rest or sleep as it itched and burned constantly. Then, too, I could not eat any foods it seemed without suffering awful distress afterwards. But now that I have given KruGon the opportunity of helping me I am feeling almost like a different person.

"KruGon has meant so much to me," continued Mrs. Foss. "With the first few doses of KruGon I began to notice rapid improvement and now those intestinal poisons are being regularly eliminated in a natural and effective manner. My bowels are regular, that skin rash has disappeared until I am no longer troubled with that burning and itching. I sleep well and enjoy my meals without that former distress. No wonder so many people are publicly praising KruGon... it is a deserving remedy."

KruGon is sold by West End Drug Store, 1221 Ludington St., this city.

PLAQUE HUNG IN POSTOFFICE

Ojibway Legend Compiled By Robert Wright Is Used As Theme

Munising, Aug. 30—A plaster plaque using an Ojibway legend as the theme was placed in the Munising postoffice this week by Hugo Robus of New York City, the artist who completed the work. Hanging in the postmaster's office was completed on Tuesday. The subject was selected by the arts division of the U. S. treasury department.

The legend which the artist used as the theme for the piece is one of a number in the booklet, "Legends of the Chippewas," written by Robert H. Wright. Mr. Wright is an authority on the manners, customs and culture of the Ojibways. The legend is of an unusual character and it is probably the first time that the Ojibway mythology has been depicted in sculpture. The design depicts the creation of the islands of Lake Superior located near Munising and is well adapted to this locality since it is, in mythology, the home of the demi-gods.

According to the legend, Nanabozho was a demi-god and possessed the power of creation. While the earth was still in the process of formation and there was not much land, Nanabozho was cruising along the shore of Lake Superior, called Gitche Gumee by the Indians, and had as his companions a boatload of animals. At that time all animals could converse with human beings. Nanabozho and the animals were exploring the shore for a suitable place to land and where they would be pleased to make their homes. While they were opposite the Pictured Rocks a fierce storm came out of the north and it was impossible to weather the storm. After consultation with the animals the muskrat was sent down to the lake bottom for some mud and Nanabozho assured them that if the muskrat procured the mud he would scatter it upon the surface of the water and cause it to grow quickly and form a land-locked harbor. The muskrat failed and came up exhausted and the beaver was sent down. Finally coming up, a bit of mud was found in his mouth, and drying it in his hands Nanabozho blew upon it and it started to grow.

A strong gust of wind blew some of the dry mud into his eyes and nostrils and caused him to sneeze hard, which scattered the mud upon the surface of the lake. The particles grew rapidly into islands, one of these islands—now known as Grand Island—forming the beautiful land-locked harbor of Munising, into which Nanabozho's canoe rode in safety.

The smaller particles of mud which Nanabozho's tremendous sneezing scattered over the surface of the lake floated away in different directions and grew into the smaller islands which dot the surface of Gitche Gumee here and there.

LANTING BACK FROM MEETING

County Health Officer Attended Mackinac Medical Session

"Unprecedented in the history of medicine in the state of Michigan," according to Dr. R. Lanting, Delta county health commissioner, was the joint meeting of the councils of the state board of health and the state medical society held at Mackinac Island over the past week-end.

The purpose of the joint session was to bring closer understanding and cooperation between the two bodies, Dr. Lanting said.

Although the purpose of the entire convention was at first announced to run along this same theme of bringing closer alignment in purpose and accomplishment, a good part of the group sessions were given over to the discussion of the problem of control of poliomyelitis, which has for the past several weeks been sweeping the lower peninsula.

Dr. Lanting reiterated that the danger of infantile paralysis in the Upper Peninsula is at a minimum when compared to other maladies such as tuberculosis and pneumonia. One case, he said, has been reported recently in Schoolcraft county, but that under normal conditions, there will probably be very few cases more in the rest of the area.

Dr. A. H. Miller, Gladstone physician and councillor for this district of the state medical society, also attended the Mackinac meeting and sat in the council proceedings.

Indiana's Man Of The Hour Will Address Women's Clubs

Dr. J. Raymond Schultz, sometimes referred to as "Indiana's man of the hour," has been secured to address delegates assembled for the twenty-second annual convention of the Upper Peninsula District of the Michigan Federation of Women's Clubs to be held in Escanaba and Gladstone beginning September 13 and ending September 16.

Dr. Schultz is professor of sociology at North Manchester college, North Manchester, Indiana, and extension lecturer in economics and sociology at Indiana university.

Years of training in various institutions of higher learning throughout the United States and in foreign countries, and a diversity of social experience with large groups of people have developed in Dr. Schultz a keen insight into human nature. From this acumen has evolved his splendid evaluation of the things of life and his philosophy of living.

Dr. Schultz as a graduate of Oberlin college and the University of Chicago. He was a graduate student of the University of California and Yale university. The speaker has made four trips to Europe where he studied at the University of Oxford, England, and Geneva, Switzerland.

Had Interesting Career
During his career, Dr. Schultz has served as high school principal, college professor and as a pastor of the First Brethren church of North Manchester. He has been active in Kiwanis, having served as Indiana District Governor and as chairman of the International Committee on Business Standards for Kiwanis International. At present he is president of the Standard Insurance company of Indiana.

Dr. Schultz has long been a lecturer, having delivered more than seven thousand lectures in 17 states in the past 15 years and an average of more than thirty commencement addresses annually. His reputation as a lecturer and a keen student of life is rapidly gaining national recognition. He will deliver his address, "The Fine Art of Living," on Thursday morning, September 14, at 10:45 o'clock in the William Bonifas Memorial Auditorium. There will be no admission charge for members of the Escanaba Woman's club and the Gladstone Child Welfare club. The public may attend the meeting by paying a nominal registration fee.

Housewives Busy Canning Peaches

Now that Uncle Sam has looked over his orchards and has concluded that the 1939 peach crop is going to be about ten million bushels heavier than last year's, Escanaba housewives have decided that the coming few weeks are not going to pass without accounting for some canned peaches, peach preserves and peach butter on the cellar shelves.

The nation's entire peach harvest is 61,164,000 bushels. After the southern crop is sold, Michigan comes on with what is probably the largest crop of peaches in its history, 2,730,000 bushels of choice tree-ripened fruit, the last of the 1939 peaches.

Much of this supply will be handled at the city owned and city operated market at Benton Harbor, where in 1937 more than a million bushels of peaches were sold to buyers from 26 states. After the southern peaches are sold much of the Escanaba supply comes from there.

Probably the favorite for canning is the Elberta peach, which is the standard wherever peaches are grown for home canning. The South Haven and the Halehaven are also popular varieties of more recent origin. The largest peach of all—one that is preferred by people who are familiar with it—is the J. H. Hale peach.

WE, the WOMEN
BY RUTH MILLETT

A married couple may live under the same roof for years and still be legally separated, the United States Court of Appeals ruled the other day.

And so a husband is asking the court to give him a divorce on grounds of desertion or voluntary separation—even though his wife has never left his house.

The court's ruling may shock some people. Though it shouldn't. Because no two people are further apart than those who don't want to be together. And if such a situation between a husband and wife goes on for years, they certainly are as separated as people living in separate houses.

The time may even come when a court will rule that a couple may have lived together as husband and wife — and still have been separated for years.

If that time ever comes, a judge might rule that a wife "deserted" her husband the day she started telling him what a mistake she made in not marrying the other man.

MORE TRUTHFUL THAN "MENTAL CRUELTY"

The court might even uphold a wife's desertion suit against a husband who constantly made a play for other women — even though nothing ever came of his flirtations.

It seems this idea that two people can be married and still be separated would be a more honest opinion than the term some States use to cover "almost every complaint."

"Mental cruelty" implies that one person was determined to make the other miserable.

"Separation" more nearly sums up what really happens to so many marriages that no longer seem worthwhile.

A WAR-MAD WORLD

I am not an old man, as years go, and yet I have lived long enough to see this world torn and mangled by a score of major wars, and pitted and scarred by as many minor ones. I have seen the old world suffering and bleeding, hopeless and helpless, and plunged into fear and abject terror by the cruel and insatiable monster-WAR. These wars have robbed us of our choicest young men and have greatly enfeebled the human race.

Humanity, while ever and unceasingly paying for the last war in tears and blood, in crime and lawlessness, in gold and silver, is always loaded with the still heavier burden and seeming necessity of preparing for the next one. Terrible, terrible is the monster WAR!

This world has known many a course, carried many a crushing and debasing load; it has known tears and sorrows and pain and blood, for sin has been, a hard taskmaster throughout the ages; but through it all no greater destroyer has been known than war. It rises above all other curses and afflictions as the supreme enemy of man.

It is no wonder then, that honorable men and noble women have time and time again risen up to overthrow war. Could men but stamp out the cause of hatred and battle and block the road to war, they would with that stroke go far indeed toward the ushering in of a world Utopia.

But worthy though such work is, it has been unfruitful. The brain and brawn of man has wrought wonders untold, conquered many enemies, overcome many obstacles, and brought blessings with without number to the race; yet these things seem powerless and inadequate before the scourge of battle and the blight of war.

Thus while I would not discourage opposition to war, but rather lend my aid to help the good cause, nevertheless I see the futility of it all. I know that man's dream of warless world will never be realized under the present order of things.

War is the offspring of sin—it's the most ignoble child. It is the major act in rebellion against God, and it will continue as long as the reign of sin shall last. He whose object it is to kill and to destroy will never surrender such an efficient tool as war.

We are assured in the Bible that the last great act in the present world drama will be one featuring the awful scourge of war. For we read of certain spirits which shall "go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. . . . And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."—Rev. 16:14-16.

It would seem that the rulers of the world are even now more than ever preparing for that great day and that final battle. Never was there such a mad rush in the building of war machines. Statesmen, sensing the world situation, where war preparations are filling the minds of men and hate is filling the hearts of men, have seized upon this Bible term "Armageddon" and feel and declare that the world is rushing on to such a fate.

They are right—just such a day and such a fate is rapidly approaching. The cry of peace on one hand and the universal pre-

New Teachers at Harris School

EDMER LACASSE

JOSEPH BARTOZEK

The Harris high school faculty will have two new members this year. Edmer LaCasse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victoria LaCasse, will serve as head athletic coach and instructor in biology and civics. Joseph Bartozek, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bartozek of Perronville, will teach mathematics and chemistry.

aration for war on the other, is a sure sign that we face the climax of earth's checkered career. For as says the scripture, "When they shall say, Peace and safety; then suddenly destruction cometh upon them as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape." Thess. 1:5-3.

However, the comforting and precious words follow, "But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief." verse 4. Indeed, the shouts of peace heard dimly and indistinctly above the clanging and noise preparations for war constitute a sign of the first magnitude. Christ is near at hand. This is one of the major signs of the times, a harbinger of the appearing of Jesus in glory "with power and great glory." God thus acquaints man with His plans and affords him an opportunity to prepare for that coming.

That preparation demanded of man is none other than the renunciation of sin and a new life through Jesus—through His Spirit dwelling within the heart and thus cleansing it from all sin and unloveliness. This is an individual work; for while Jesus died for the world as a whole, He saves men individually. "Whosoever will" is the admonition, "let him take of the water of life freely."

"If any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink," for He died that "whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Rev. 22:17. John 3:16.

While you and I cannot stop the chariot of war nor unseat the lords of battle, there is one form of warfare that we can check—we can cease fighting against heaven. You can throw down your arms. You can surrender to Jesus. This is the wisest, the best, the noblest thing to do. Through such a surrender the battle of all battles is won. Such a surrender is not only the road to peace, it is the gate to heaven. Do it. Do it now! "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation."

Great Lakes Fishing Good, Reports Show

Lansing, Aug. 30.—Fishermen using waters of the Great Lakes have found angling quite productive, especially off the northern and eastern Michigan coasts. It is shown in latest reports to the state department of conservation.

Lake trout trolling in Lake Superior is increasing in popularity to a point where, in the Chippewa region, fishermen were reported having difficulty finding trolling rigs because of the heavy demand. The sport has increased also in waters off Grand Marais, Munising and Crisp Point.

In Lake Erie near Monroe, there was good fishing for pickerel, perch and sheepshead. In the lower end of the Detroit river, trolling for pickerel was fair, and perch and black bass were giving still fishermen fair results in Lake St. Clair near Mt. Clemens. Good catches of black bass, perch and catfish were reported in Saginaw Bay.

LAND PARLEY OPENS TODAY

To Discuss Problem of Delinquent Tax Properties

Twenty administrative officers representing various cities in the upper peninsula that are members of the Michigan Municipal league will meet here today and tomorrow for a conference on the question of relieving local governments of tax delinquent properties and putting such land back into productive use.

Representatives will meet at 12 o'clock noon for luncheon at the Delta hotel and the conference will get underway at 1:30. A second meeting will be held at 7:30 tonight and two sessions are scheduled for Friday, one at 9 a. m. and the concluding meeting at 1:30 p. m.

Officials of the municipalities will attempt to work out a procedure for formulating a delinquent land management policy which can be applied to local units in the northern part of the lower peninsula as well as in the upper peninsula.

Speakers at the meetings will be Fred P. Strubbsaker, chief of the lands division of the conservation department; M. W. Alger, field representative for the municipal league, and C. A. Millor, village manager of Kingsford.

The group will seek to reach an agreement on how to turn tax reverted lands into private or public purposes, including the large number of holdings expected to revert to the state following the expiration in November of the period of redemption from tax sale.

Strubbsaker has pointed out that although each community has pretty much its own problem in this regard, it was thought necessary to study the whole problem underlying the issue so that local officials and state agencies could have the basic features in mind before writing down a settled policy.

Questions which the conference is designed to answer include the following: (1) How to find out accurately what lands within a municipality are to be deemed to the state; (2) the possibility of a city acquiring title and exchanging such lands for privately owned lands to the owner's or city's advantage; (3) what various uses can be made of such property by

New Traffic Law

Overtaking and Passing Another Car

Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of ten articles, prepared by the Michigan State Police, high-spotting Michigan's new traffic law. Important changes have been made in customary driving habits. Greater safety—and fewer traffic arrests—will result from a close study of these articles.

An important section of Michigan's new traffic law from the standpoint of accident prevention regulates the conduct of the motorist overtaking and passing other vehicles.

No vehicle shall be driven to the left side of highway on the approach to the crest of a hill or upon a curve where the driver's view is obstructed to such an extent as to make it unsafe to pass.

Outside of cities and villages the horn must be sounded before passing another vehicle.

As soon as a driver is safely clear of an overtaken vehicle he should return to a normal position as far to the right as possible. Usually only about 12 seconds are required to pass another car.

If the driver ahead has signalled his intention to turn left he must not be passed on the left.

No motor vehicle shall be driven to the left side of a highway when approaching within 100 feet of an intersection or railroad crossing. Michigan State Police point out many lives would be saved annually if this rule was never violated.

Tomorrow: Turning.

On The RECORD

By Dorothy Thompson

TO SIDNEY HOWARD They told me, Heraclitus, they told me you were dead. They brought me bitter news to hear and bitter tears to shed. I wept as I remembered how often you and I Had tired the sun with talking and sent him down the sky.

I do not believe that you are dead, Sidney. In my own mind, I go on talking with you. Our friendship—ours and mine—was only a few dozen hours of talk—a few dozen hours in a lifetime. Not personal talk... except as all talk is personal... about what drama is; how old themes recur over and over and how all plays can be reduced to a few eternal stories; about politics—the drama and philosophy of men, expressed through politics. About farming. The things people talk about.

Only, it is not so easy to talk as it once was. There are veils between the talk of people nowadays. Veils of distrust. Veils of ideologies—you know what I mean.

We talked about that once, too. One goes exploring with talk into the reasons why things happen and the nature of the forces moving society and moving us; what one hopes for; how one might bring it about. And then, suddenly, a sneer on the lip or the withdrawal. "Tory." "Reactionary." "Rich Man." "Poor Man." "Progressive." "Marxist." "Revolutionist." "New Dealer." "Old Dealer"—words plinned to thinkers and their thoughts, to fix them—pilloried, labeled, dead, sterile—always as barriers to communication between men, between men and women.

You never used words that way, as labels; words as labels meant nothing to you, whose clear, kind eyes saw only human beings, and accepted or rejected them not for what they thought or said but for what they were. Refusing to catalogue people, as though they were treatises of some sort, orthodox or unorthodox, to be accepted or banned.

You saw in humans folly rather than sin—the folly which was sometimes comic and sometimes tragic, and always, to you, touching. You were able to have no great opinion of the human race, and still to love it. With every word you wrote you declared your solidarity with it; with every word you wrote you tried to keep it together, to keep open communication between people, to remind them of their common fate; that they were born, would love, would work, would have some happiness, suffer much frustration and would certainly die. This was a fate of every human soul, you seemed continually aware, and therefore you had pity. Pity was a all your plays.

You could admire heroism and detest heroics. You hated war. I remember things you said about the last war, in which you were young, and an aviator. It wasn't the blood so much... it was not even the dying that you remembered with horror; it was the folly, the bureaucracy, the petty egotisms, the orders that became separated from all reality, the red tape that strangled men to death without a fair fight first.

"They sent up that boy in a tomato crate," I remember you said. "The mechanic told the officer the plane wasn't fit to leave the ground. But the officer wanted to assert his prestige. He had given the order in the first place. He barked at the boy, 'I suppose you are yellow!' So the kid turned white and got in and took it up. My God! He wasn't in the air ten minutes when down it crashed, and the kid was dead. Just because a damned fool was afraid to lose face. It's that that I hated most," you said. Do you remember? "To die for something that matters—that's all right. Everybody dies anyhow. That's one thing that's certain. But to die because some fool has made a mistake and won't admit it—I couldn't bear it."

Oh, Sidney! Perhaps you are lucky. We are always so near to seeing it all over again. People dying because "some damned fool was afraid to lose face."

You hated the machine—the way the war was a machine, the war itself, the organization itself; the way society becomes a machine.

"Men invented the machine," you once said, "and now they try to make themselves into its image, worshipping their own creation. The machine takes on a life of its own."

That is the phrase my memory has been groping for! That is what you said, Sidney, in one of those conversations that we had in the middle of a big party. "The machine takes on a life of its own!"

Oh, Sidney, it does! All over the world now it is taking on a horrible life of its own. It is eating up words, Sidney. They go into it good, clean, reasonable words, words meant for communication, and they come out in awful cries, like the groans of grinding machine parts, like the inhuman shrieks of locomotive sirens: Eja! Eja! Sieg Heil! Rot Front! Eja! Sieg Heil!

Shrieks of a runaway engine-state, running—where? Into what well?

"The machine takes on a life of its own." That is what happened to you, wasn't it, Sidney? The machine was a good machine. It was made to plow the fields with, so that corn and oats could grow, and cattle be fed and milk produced,

SERIAL STORY Murder on the Boardwalk BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

CAST OF CHARACTERS CHRISTINE THORENSEN—came to visit her cousin, found a mystery. BILL YARDLEY—had a reason for watching Christine. GEORGE WILMET—employed Christine as a Boardwalk artist. CHANDRA—looked into the future—and into the past.

Yesterday, Jaspar, hiding at Chandra's home, tries to explain how Mrs. Talbert had ordered him to deliver the bonds to Christine. Inspector Parsons, Wilmet and Bill arrive, trailing Christine through Lucille. Suspicion turns on Chandra. Mrs. Talbert was last seen coming out of his studio.

CHAPTER XV "I take exception to that 'last seen' inspector," Chandra said coolly. "However, it is entirely true that Mrs. Talbert was with me that night for an hour or more."

"And afterwards," Inspector Parsons continued, "so far as I can learn, she was not seen until her dead body was found." "But early this morning," the clairvoyant pointed out, "her car was also found—parked just across the Boardwalk from the 27th street dock. . . . Are you suggesting that after I had warned Miss Thoresen where to look for the bonds I, myself, had stolen, I stabbed her cousin—with a dagger that anyone in Surf City could identify as mine—and was also imbecile enough to leave her car parked just around the corner from my own studio?"

"What I'm suggesting is that you know a lot more about this business than you found it convenient to tell me this morning." "Now we're getting somewhere, Inspector. Because I know a lot more about this business than I did this morning." Chandra turned to Jaspar, who stood, glancing with a white, trapped look from one to the other.

"This, my friend," he said, "is now a police affair in spite of anything you can do. You must disregard Mrs. Talbert's wishes." "Wishes—what wishes?" Inspector Parsons snapped. "When Mrs. Talbert began to suspect that she was in danger, she instructed Mr. Jaspar that no matter what happened he must not call the police."

"He told you that?" "Mrs. Talbert told me that—the last time she came to consult me." "So she came to you for advice—the night before her death—and the best you could do was to let her get herself murdered without any warning—and you supposed to be the slickest medium in the country?"

Chandra's hands moved in a gesture of defeat which, even to Christine's unsympathetic eyes, seemed starkly sincere.

"Mrs. Talbert," he said, "was a woman of several fixed ideas. One which grew on her as she got older, and more eccentric, was the belief that, single-handed, she could outwit the world and the devil." "That's a weakness that seems to run in the family," the inspector glanced toward Christine. "Perhaps"—Chandra's smile was enigmatic—you are more right than you guess, Inspector. . . . Another of her peculiarities was that she thought police are all a set of clumsy bunglers. . . . I am setting forth Mrs. Talbert's viewpoint, of course, not my own. Otherwise, I shouldn't be advising Mr. Jaspar to tell you what he's told me."

"Well," the inspector's tone was uncompromising. "I'm listening. He'd better make at good." He glanced around at the others. "You might as well sit down, since you're all in this from the ankles up."

So they did sit down—Mr. Wilmet, obviously seething with curiosity and afraid that the inspector might change his mind, stumbling over a stool in his effort to find a chair without making himself conspicuous. And Jaspar began his story all over again.

When he came to the part about leaving the bonds in Christine's room, the inspector turned toward Christine and then toward Jaspar with frowning attention, and Christine recalled uncomfortably his words of that morning: "Perhaps it was even someone who counted on your keeping them safely for him."

A little later he interrupted. "If Mrs. Talbert had let the police go ahead when that young man was kidnapped, she might have got something for her money besides a headache and a crop of misleading and conflicting clues. First the boy was supposed to have been carried off and drugged as if he had been deceived into the swamp and drowned in a quicksand. I can't recall all the stories and children be nourished, and rough nature be tamed, and this world made more beautiful.

"I want to get back to the farm," you said, the last time we met. It was in Hollywood, and you looked tired and bored. "It gives me the feeling of doing something I am absolutely certain is good." But the machine took on a life of its own. You cranked it—it was in gear. Some one had put it in gear. . . . The machine sprang forward, all by itself, without any human will at all, and crushed a man against a wall.

You could write a play about that, Sidney. If the man had not been you.

"After Callimachus by William Johnson—Cory.

les; but there's one thing certain: someone who knew the family well was back of that. . . . By the way, you were employed by Mrs. Talbert then, too, weren't you, Jaspar?" "Yes, sir." Jaspar's eyes met the inspector's with the calm of desperation.

"But there's one rumor you may not have heard, Inspector," Chandra said quietly. "That Earl Talbert was not really kidnaped at all; but that he engineered the whole affair himself, and collected the ransom. I happen to know that there have been a number of checks forged on Mrs. Talbert's account that have never been run to their source. I have information that Earl Talbert, under another name, spent several years in a California prison; and I have had a feeling, from time to time, that Mrs. Talbert, herself, was sure that he was still alive."

"After a long silence, the inspector asked, 'Just how old was this boy when he disappeared?'" "He was in his first year at college," Jaspar hesitated and then went on. "I have been told that he was about to be expelled. . . . A—matter of a forged check, sir."

"A young man of that age could have changed—perhaps beyond recognition—in 12 years," the inspector said reflectively. . . . Christine wondered if she only imagined that he glanced toward Bill. . . . "Well, go on, Jaspar."

"Well, sir, Mrs. Talbert had gone out in her car. I was always worried when she went out alone at night, because it was generally known that she often carried valuables with her person, sometimes large sums of money. She's done that ever since so many bonds were closed some years ago. And only the day before, she had taken those bonds I left with Miss Thoresen from the bank."

"You know it. Does that make it general information?" "It was well enough known that the house was entered once, and there had been attempts to hold her up. . . . And she'd had extortion notes."

"Can you put your hands on any of those notes?" "No, sir. Mrs. Talbert always burned them."

Inspector Parsons smothered ejaculation was eloquent. "Did Mrs. Talbert have anything of value with her when she disappeared?" he asked.

"Mrs. Talbert," Jaspar answered after a brief hesitation, "carried in her briefcase exact facsimiles of those bonds. She had had them made by—a person who was clever at that sort of work in anticipation of just some such thing as happened. It was Mrs. Talbert's idea of a joke, sir," Jaspar explained. "You see, she'd spent a lot of money trying to get Mr. Earl back. She said that if she was abducted, too, the joke was going to be on the people who collected the ransom."

Somewhere in the room someone drew a sharp, hissing breath. The inspector did not glance up; he made no comment. Yet when he spoke, Christine knew that she felt as sure as she did that somewhere in that group sat Cousin Emma's murderer.

"Go on, Jaspar," he prompted. "Well, sir, about 9 o'clock the doorknob rang. When I answered, it was a special delivery messenger. I carried the letter to the light and saw that it was addressed to me—in Mrs. Talbert's handwriting."

"So you are prepared to identify Mrs. Talbert's writing?" "Oh, yes indeed, sir."

Inspector Parsons took an envelope from his pocket and passed it to Jaspar. "This is addressed to Miss Thoresen, you notice, apparently by her cousin. We found it in Mrs. Talbert's purse."

SEAPLANE BASE PLANNED HERE

Hiawatha Township to Construct Float at Indian Lake

Hiawatha township is planning the construction of a seaplane landing base at Indian Lake, between Arrowhead Inn and the Indian River. It was announced yesterday by Charles H. Howard, township supervisor.

The township will cooperate with the Civil Aeronautics Authority in the construction of the landing base. Work will be done by the National Youth Administration and materials will be purchased by the township.

It is proposed to construct a float 10 feet by 22 feet. The float will be buoyed with oil barrels and anchored with a mooring buoy. A gangplank will extend from shore to the float.

The float will have a series of discarded tires for use as bumpers along the sides, and can be used as a boat dock and bathing platform as well as landing facilities for seaplanes.

Only inland lakes three miles by three miles or larger are eligible for designation as seaplane bases. Indian Lake which is four miles in width by seven miles in length is eligible.

Of particular value will be the fact that government maps will designate Indian Lake as a landing base for seaplanes.

The cost to the township will be nominal. Mr. Howard explained, but the facilities will provide considerable advertising benefit for Indian Lake.

Minnie Kleist And Wallace A. Nuoffer Are Married Here

Miss Minnie Ellen Kleist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman A. Kleist of this city, became the bride of Wallace A. Nuoffer of Elkhorn, Wisconsin, son of Mrs. W. C. Nuoffer of that city, at a prettily appointed wedding ceremony which took place Wednesday noon in the First Presbyterian church.

The marriage service was read by Reverend DeLoyd Huenick, at 12:00 o'clock. Standards of pink and white gladioli stood at either side of the altar, garden flowers and ferns were also used.

"The Bridal Chorus", from Lohengrin, the processional, and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March", the recessional, were played by Mrs. James Fyvie, organist.

The bride wore a gown of white marquisette, fashioned with a full skirt, with heart shaped neckline edged with a ruffle of chiffon. The short bolero jacket was made entirely of tiny chiffon ruffles. She wore a cap of small white asters. Her bouquet was made up of lilies of the valley, bouvardia, and bordered with white roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Gertrude Kleist, who was her sister's only attendant, wore a becoming gown of shell pink marquisette with high neckline and shirred bodice. She carried a semi-circular bouquet of pink roses with blue and white sweet peas, and wore blue velvet ribbons in her hair.

Community Chest Is Planned to Care For Cases Of Emergency

Establishment of a "Community Chest" to provide assistance to persons in dire need and in what would be called emergency cases, was decided upon at a meeting of heads or acting heads of various civic and service clubs and labor organizations in Gladstone Tuesday evening, it was announced yesterday by City Manager A. F. Raddant. Mayor Milton Berg was named general chairman of the undertaking.

The Tuesday evening meeting was the outgrowth of the appearance before the city commission Monday evening of several citizens who declared there were rumors that there are instances of persons in dire need in this city and suggested that an effort be made to procure a fund which could be held in reserve to meet crises in event of hunger which occasionally arise.

To Solicit Funds
Manager Raddant was named to appoint a committee to solicit funds and he said yesterday he would name a group for the business district and committees of two for each of the four precincts.

An investigation and disbursement committee has been named by Raddant composed of A. T. Solberg, Ernest DeHooghe, Hector Berglund, John VanMill and Mayor Berg. It will be the duty of this group to probe the various emergency cases listed with Manager Raddant and if in its opinion a case merits assistance the amount to be expended for aid will also be designated.

In no case will an appeal for assistance be given consideration unless the person or persons in need be bonafide residents of this city.

The next meeting of the community chest group is to be held on Tuesday, Sept. 5, at 8 o'clock in the city hall.

Attending the organization meeting were A. T. Solberg, Hilting Granberg, C. A. LaFave, Max Neveaux, Fred Hoover, Wm. Blake, Charles Gogarn, John VanMill, Ernest DeHooghe, Gideon Drum, Mrs. James Huff and Mrs. Margaret Bates.

A shelter over the front door and the kitchen door is very desirable. It adds a decorative quality to the exterior of a house. It often adds interest to the blank wall and relieves the monotony of an unbroken surface. Pro Champs Beat All Stars At Chicago, 9 to 0

GIANTS SCORE 3 FIELD GOALS

Crowd of 81,456 Sees Football Opener At Soldier Field

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
Chicago, Aug. 30 (AP)—The New York Giants, national professional football champions, defeated the college All-Stars 9 to 0, before 81,456 in flood-lighted Soldier Field tonight, scoring all points by field goals.

The professionals outplayed their amateur brethren through most of the game, which saw the Collegians' best scoring chances ruined by pass interceptions.

Ken Strong, with eleven years of professional football back of him, scored two of the field goals for the Giants. Ward Cuff registered the other. Strong's last boot was a long, spectacular one of 41 yards in the fourth period.

Cuff Boots First

The Giants scored the most decisive victory a professional team has posted over its college opponents in the six year history of the pre-season gridiron classic.

The crowd was the second largest since the series was inaugurated in 1934.

The Giants, playing a safe and sane game, scored field goals in the first second and fourth periods. They missed another in the third period after they had reached the Collegians' 2 yard line.

Cuff, former Marquette university star, registered the first three points for the pros by booting a field goal from the 34 yard stripe in the first period, and Strong scored the other two.

In the second period, Strong, who learned his football at New York university, was called into the game for his specialty. Standing on the 22 yard line, he booted the ball squarely between the uprights. He registered the final points in the fourth period.

Pingel Is Sparkplug

The Collegians, drilled by Elmer Layden, head coach of Notre Dame, were outplayed and outmaneuvered throughout most of the conflict. The farthest they succeeded in advancing was to the Giants 22 yard line on a 20 yard pass from Sid Luckman to Wempie, of Colgate, in the fourth period.

Just ahead of that the college players carried the ball to the Giants' 31 yard line for their second best advance. Billy Patterson of Baylor was the spark plug in both advances, but pass interceptions ruined whatever chance the All Stars might have had to score.

In the second period, the All Stars offense showed a spark of life after Johnny Pingel of Michigan State entered the game. A lateral to Bill Osmanski, former Holy Cross star, Pingel's pass to Faust of Minnesota, and Osmanski's 15 yard smash through center carried the All Stars to the Giants 38. But Pingel's next aerial toss was intercepted by Lunday, Giants guard, to ruin that Collegiate scoring chance.

As a result of tonight's victory the professionals evened the score with the Collegians in the series. Each has now won two games, with the other two resulting in ties.

Score by periods:
All Stars 0 0 0 0—0
Giants 3 3 0 3—9

DIAMOND BALL

RICHE VS. TAVERNS REPLAY

The Richie Electric vs. Taverns game will be replayed on No. 4 diamond tonight beginning at 6:30 sharp. Last night's game ended with a score of 7 to 6 in favor of the Taverns and an argument on the part of the Electric and numerous spectators.

Not wishing to have any hard feelings and believing that good sportsmanship is more important than winning, Jens Jensen and the Taverns players voted unanimously in favor of the replay. The Richie complaint involving a play on third base was apparently justified, and while the benefit to the Taverns was unintentional on the part of the umpire, who was placed in the embarrassing position of having to call a play that he couldn't see, the Jensen aggression refused to lose the good will of the Richies by insisting that the game stand as played.

REPLAY PROTESTED GAME

The Forde vs. Sherman game scheduled for No. 3 diamond tonight is postponed until Friday night at the same diamond. This is necessary because of a replay between the Eskys and the Pearson Supply. The original game played Monday night was won by the Eskys in a short session.

Owing to some confusion on the part of the umpiring staff, the game started late and the Pearsons were under the impression that the game would be replayed because of not going the seven innings. Not wishing to take advantage of a misunderstanding, the Eskys, having an open date because of the replay of Richie vs. Taverns game, offered to replay their game with the Pearsons.

TOURNAMENT SCHEDULE

The complete and revised schedule of tournament games for tonight is as follows: CYO vs. Midways No. 1, Paper Mill vs. Red Ribbons No. 2, Pearson Supply vs. Eskys No. 3, Taverns vs. Richie Electric No. 4. Chief Umpire Bill Ranguette has issued orders to all umpires to start the games promptly at 6:30.

ERROR IN SCHEDULE

The Friday night Taverns vs. CYO game is an error. The game should be Paper Mill vs. Richies at No. 1 diamond.

MIDGITS COMING

The Marquette midget softball league champions will come to Escanaba to meet the Escanaba midget softball league champions, the game to be played on Labor Day beginning at 6 p. m.

The aggregation from Marquette, called the J. D. Spear & Sons Aces, have won fourteen and lost none in league play. The champs of South 19th Street barely nosed out the midgits of North Escanaba for the city title, but are a very strong team and the game should be a thriller. The players are all twelve and under as of June 15.

In addition to the value of the game as a competitive event, and as an attraction for Escanaba softball enthusiasts, the game will be a benefit for the champs, proceeds being used for the purchase of a trophy. Tickets are now available at a nominal sum from any member of the champs softball team.

Young Private Sets New Record; Puts 27 In "V" of Target

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 30 (AP)—Alfred K. Wolters, 24-year-old first class private of the marine corps of Paola, Kans., registered a new world record today at Camp Perry's national matches by winning the 30-caliber Wimbledon cup with a perfect score of 100.

With poor light, but favorable wind conditions, Wolters crashed 27 straight shots into the small "V" ring of the target at 1,000 yards, exceeding the previous record of 19 V's in 20 shots. He continued firing until his 28th shot slipped out of the V ring. He defeated 1,938 of the nation's outstanding 30-caliber marksmen.

Another marine, Sgt. Broax E. Clements of St. Mariae, Ga., equalled the old record of 100 with 19 V's, while several others were in with perfect counts, but with less or scores in the small inner circle.

The President's Cup match, with a personal letter of commendation from President Roosevelt hanging in the balance, was still up in the air as the marksmen failed to finish the 1,000-yard range firing before dark.

Six men were tied for the edge, at the end of the 200 and 400-yard ranges, with scores of 98 of 100. The entire field of 2,019 fires the final range Thursday.

Winners of other events today, with the runners-up:
N.R.A. Pistol Championship: Melton R. Rogers, U.S. Treasury; 296; Harry W. Reeves, Detroit police, 293.
Clarke Memorial Trophy: Emmett E. Jones, Los Angeles police, 291; Thamer Hill, St. Louis police and Al Hemming, Detroit police, 288.

Cleveland, Aug. 30 (AP)—Atley Donald, sensational rookie pitcher of the New York Yankees, tonight at the Cleveland Stadium threw a baseball at the rate of 139 feet per second, or 94.7 miles per hour.

Donald's throw was the fastest ever recorded by a speed meter owned by the Cleveland Indians and Cleveland Plain Dealer. Outfielder Dee Miles of the Philadelphia Athletics held the former record of 136 feet per second.

In 1917 Christy Mathewson was clocked at 134 feet per second in a test by a ballistics measuring device in an arm laboratory at Bridgeport, N. Y.

ROYAL OAK CORPS WINS VFW CONTEST

Boston, Aug. 30 (AP)—The blue and white drum and bugle corps of Royal Oak, Mich., retained its national championship tonight in competition at the Veterans of Foreign Wars 40th encampment.

The corps received a rating of 90.30 in carrying off the senior "closed" title and a $1,000 prize, but rested on its laurels only long enough to challenge the Marlboro, Mass., champion corps of the American Legion to a musical duel later tonight for an unofficial "veterans' crown."

SERIES OPENER WON BY TIGERS

Bunched Hits, Walks and Error Beat Boston 7-6 in Eighth

Detroit, Aug. 30 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers bunched two hits and two walks with a Boston error today to come from behind in the eighth inning and defeat the Red Sox, 7 to 6, in the series opener.

Boston's sensational rookie outfielder, Ted Williams, batted a home run with two mates on base to put the Sox in the lead in the third inning, but it was his error on Birdie Tebbetts' single that permitted Pete Fox to score from first base with Detroit's winning run in the eighth. Williams' homer was his twenty-second of the season.

Hutchinson Yanked

Jim Tabor and Moe Berg of Boston, and Earl Averill of Detroit also hit home runs. The Tigers were out-hit 12 to 8, Fredy Hutchinson giving up eight of the sixties and being charged with all the Boston runs before he was removed from the pitching mound in the fourth inning.

Jack Wilson pitched well enough to win until the eighth, which he entered with a 6 to 4 lead. With one out, Wilson walked Rudy York and Pinky Higgins. Fox scored York with a single, and Higgins counted the tying run on Tebbetts' safe hit to right, which Williams fumbled, allowing Fox to follow him across the plate.

The Sox threatened in the ninth putting two men on base on walks. With two out Buck Newsom, who hurled a full game yesterday against the Yankees, walked out to the mound for Detroit and proceeded to fan pinch-hitter Frank Finney to end the game.

Five Pitchers Used

The Tigers used five pitchers in all, Slicker Coffman who hurled the eighth inning, being credited with the victory.

Detroit took an early lead, marking up two runs in the first inning on a walk to McCosky and Averill's eleventh homer of the season, a drive into the upper right field stands.

The Sox moved ahead in the third with a three-run attack and made it 6 to 2 in the fourth on homers by Tabor and Berg, singles by Cramer and Wilson, and an error by Gehring.

There matters stood until the sixth, when the Tigers moved within shouting distance of the Boston club with two more runs.

Gehring, first up, was hit on the leg by a pitched ball and Benny McCoy ran for him. York doubled off the right field screen, sending McCoy to third, from which he scored when Higgins lifted a fly to Williams. York, who moved to third on the same play, scored a moment later when Fox grounded to Doerr.

Then, with the score 6 to 4, the Detroit team pushed over its three runs in the eighth to take the game.

Lefty Grove will pitch for the Sox in tomorrow's game. Paul Trout will twirl for Detroit.

Chicago, Aug. 30 (AP)—The veteran Ted Lyons returned to duty today after a 16 day layoff because of a wrenched ankle and pitched Chicago's White Sox to an even break in a double header with Washington.

Lyons allowed four hits in winning the first game 5 to 2—his 11th victory of the season. Joe Kraskauskas' seven hit pitching, coupled with Buddy Myer's pinch triple in the ninth and Kraskauskas' own sacrifice fly, gave Washington the second, 4 to 3, after the Sox had tied the score in the eighth.

Luke Appling drove in three Chicago runs in the opener with two singles, while Mike Kreevic's double with two on base in the first inning scored the other two.

Single In Tenth Noses Out Champions At Cleveland

Cleveland, Aug. 30 (AP)—Ken Keltner's single scoring Ben Chapman from second gave the Cleveland Indians a tenth-inning victory over the New York Yankees 4 to 3 tonight before a crowd of 35,000 at Cleveland Stadium.

The Tribe nearly gave the game away on errors. The Yanks tied the score at 2 to 2 in the seventh, scoring a run without a hit, and took a 3 to 2 lead in another run in the eighth when Bruce Campbell made a three-base muff of Red Rolfe's fly to right. Rolfe scored on Charley Keller's single.

The Indians tied it up in the ninth when Lefty Gomez walked Pinch-Hitter Oscar Grimes with the bases loaded.

New York collected only four hits off Southpaw Al Milnar and Harry Eisenstat, while the Indians were held to seven by Gomez and Righthander Johnny Murphy.

Joe Di Maggio doubled in the first inning, scoring Rolfe who had singled. Cleveland took a 2 to 1 lead in the fourth when Hal Trosky clouted his 33rd home run of the season into the right field stands with Ben Chapman on base.

In the seventh Joe Gordon walked, went to second when Lou Boudreau fumbled Jake Powell's grounder, took third on a sacrifice bunt by Gomez, and tallied on a wild pitch.

SCHOOL BUS RULES CITED

Elliott Emphasizes Steps to Safeguard Pupils in Michigan

Lansing—Regulations governing the transportation of school children, furnished by boards of education, were announced Monday by Eugene B. Elliott, superintendent of public instruction.

The state pays up to $40 per pupil a year for the service. These allowances are made to primary graded township and rural agricultural school districts under certain limitations.

More than 50,000 children living in 480 districts are provided with transportation, Elliott reported.

Safe and economical transportation, he says, is the responsibility of the school boards, operating the buses.

"Careful selection of bus drivers, purchase of standard equipment, including steel bus bodies, and a thorough checking of equipment must be a rigid policy of school boards," Elliott said.

Three-Minimum Districts to participate in the aid must levy the total tax allocated by the county tax allocation board, but in no case may it be less than three mills.

There are three classes of districts which may participate in state funds. The allowances under the legislative enactment are confined to the following:

Township and rural agricultural districts may receive state aid for transporting elementary pupils to outside districts when all of certain of the elementary grades are discontinued throughout the township.

Township and rural agricultural districts that do not maintain a high school but have not closed
