Four Local Music Students Will Attend Interlochen Camp

In recognition of their contributions to Negaunee High School instrumental and vocal groups, four students from the music department have been selected to attend the National Music Camp at Interlochen during July and August, Sept. E. W. Bond has announced.

Two of the pupils, Susan Cory and Bonnie Dahlstrom, will enroll in the All-State High School Orchestra session, which runs for the last two weeks in July and the first week in August.

The girls were recommended because of their outstanding work as members of the Negaunee High School orchestra, which is directed by Walter L. Dandy, music teacher. Dandy has been concert master of the unit and student director, while Miss Cory plays the first chair position in the cello section. Both girls have studied privately through the individual lesson program of the Negaunee public schools. Miss Dahlstrom has also worked with Dandy, and Miss Cory with Mrs. Sundquist.

Two boys, Lowell Pentrose and James Anderson, are slated to attend the All-State Clarinet section which will be held in the middle of August. Both boys were selected because of their outstanding contribution to the youth of the Negaunee High School Mixed Chorus, which is directed by Mrs. Sundquist.

The Negaunee Board of Education has set aside scholarship funds to assist these students in furthering their musical education. It is believed the students will gain immeasurably by participation in these unique music camp sessions, and will bring back to their respective groups the inspiration of their work at camp when they return to Negaunee High School in the fall.

Parents and friends are invited to visit the National Music Camp at any time. Guides are available to take visitors on conducted tours. The camp is of special interest to Michigan residents, since it was founded by Dr. Joseph Moody of the University of Michigan. From a humble beginning, it has grown to include instruction for students in music, art, theater and the dance. There is also a camp for children as young as eight years of age, an intermediate camp, a high school division, the all-state high school sections and a camp for university students.

Residents of this area who travel to Lower Michigan during the summer months are advised

TV Survey Tests Are Favorable

Following several weeks of testing, representatives of Jerold Electronics are of the opinion that television signals in this area warrant installation of the community antenna system, according to announcement Tuesday by City Manager George E. Melonick Jr.

Melonick's announcement followed receipt of a letter from Elmer Melts, field test engineer for Jerold Electronics, who notified the manager regarding results of a survey recently completed by Jerold.

Melts informed the Negaunee 1955.

manager that he was filing a report of the survey with the home office of his company and that it is hoped work will be started on the community antenna system in the very near future.

In response to a letter from the city manager regarding the possible effect the new jet air base might have had on the community system, Melts wrote that Jerold would not be affected by the jet base installation, as the antenna array which his company would install would only be 60 feet high.

The equipment, Melts pointed out, will be placed at a point, where it will not necessitate an array in excess of 60 feet, and this figure will be within requirements established by the Air Force.

Woodpeckers Peck for Several Reasons Say Wayne University Biology Students

Lorraine Hurn of Pigeon Hills and Carol Scott of Flint examine a mounted bird-headed woodpecker, property of the Detroit Field Station. Both girls are students at Wayne University.

Why does a woodpecker peck and how can he peck so hard without causing itself any harm? Wayne University biology students say that whenever they see a woodpecker drumming away the usually has a good reason. Dr. Charles W. Cressler, chairman of Wayne's biology department, says the woodpecker is an unusually hard pecking bird.

He explained that a woodpecker's bill is used as a hammer, chisel, saw or to peck into a tunnel in the morning. He spies a good feeding area so he proceeds to hammer it, jelling all others of his kind king into his feeding ground for the day.

When the woodpecker isn't signaling, he might be pecking curiously, says Dr. Cressler. That is, he's digging insects out of the wood—a business at which he is extremely adept. His sticky, barbed tongue is capable of fishing out and grabbing insects in hard-to-get-at places.

In the nesting season his drumming is intended to be a mating call—a warning that this is his home range. This also is the season in which he delights in pounding on tin roofs.

Sometimes he is preparing a nest for his family. It makes little difference to him whether the wood is hard or soft, whether it's the trunk of a tree, a telephone pole, a roof or

Virginia Offers Much For Motor Trip

By Mary Lou Chapman

Virginia is a state rich in history and natural beauty. Most delightful in spring and fall, the area also attracts many visitors in summer.

A suggested itinerary might take you from Washington, D. C., to Richmond, Fredericksburg, and Virginia Beach, to Norfolk, then west to Petersburg, Lynchburg, and Roanoke. From Roanoke, the Shenandoah valley to Staunton and across the Blue Ridge Mountains in Charlottesville and west to Washington via Skyline Drive. This Mrs. Chapman would be about 650 miles.

At Old Point Comfort is an old ship museum which will intrigue ship fanciers, as will Norfolk with its fine harbor. The Great Diamond Spindle, just below Portsmouth, is eerily intriguing with gnarled spires, trees, hanging moss and winding canals.

Historical Petersburg

Petersburg again takes us back into history. Here was fought one of the final battles in 1865, now commemorated by Petersburg Military Park.

Further west in Appomattox, scene of the end of the war and surrender of General Lee. Just south of Roanoke is the Blue Ridge Mountains Parkway to Washington and the Civil War battle areas are provided at points north in the Shenandoah Valley area Lexington, the home and birthplace of George Washington, and the home and birthplace of both Robert E. Lee and "Stonewall" Jackson, and Staunton, which was Woodrow Wilson's birthplace.

Turning east at this point will take you to Monticello, the impressive home of Thomas Jefferson designed for himself, "Ash Lawn," home of James Monroe, and the home of George Washington Parke Custis, and sister, and the Mercer Apothecary Shop, reconstructed in 1777.

Richmond also is filled with historic homes and buildings. This was the capital of the Confederacy from 1862-1865. The battle of Bull Run commemorates the struggle for the city. It is now the capital of Virginia.

Williamsburg has preserved Richmond and Norfolk. This was the capital of Virginia Colony from 1699. The entire town has been authentically restored so that it looks very much as it did in the 18th Century. Among the beautiful buildings to see are the Governor's Palace with its adjoining Anderson, crank-operated ejection windows provide ample light and ventilation for this modern kitchen. They swing outward, and so don't interfere with work areas.

The proper use and design of ejection windows is best illustrated in the Iron Herald's recent feature—The Kitchen.

Whether you're remodeling a new kitchen or remodeling an old one, windows are a much thought as any other kitchen feature.

Kitchen windows should provide abundant light for the house's principal work center. They should ventilate quickly, resisting cooking heat and odors with fresh air. Windows should open and close readily so a small person can easily operate them while leaning over a sink or table. And, the operation of kitchen windows should not interfere with work at sink or counter by swinging in over these areas.

Most important, kitchen windows is over the sink. Frameless units usually is caused by a small, sturdy, double-hung sash that requires no stress strenuous to open it at arm's length.

Large, crank-operated casements that open outward are the Old-fashioned double-hung windows provide insufficient light. The ventilation for kitchen, can be difficult to open or close.

When completely remodeling an old kitchen, it should cost less than ten per cent extra to install the correct windows. In planning a new kitchen, this cost should be less than two per cent of the cost of the kitchen, according to the Anderson Corporation, leading manufacturer of complete window units.

MICHIGAN OUTDOORS

INLAND LAKE WHITEFISH
Not enough Michigan anglers know that some of our large inland lakes abound in the true species of whitefish—one of the most valued of our food fishes.

In some areas these fish are mistakenly called "ciscoes" or lake herring—and while it is true that ciscoes are common to a number of southern Michigan lakes, these fish are readily distinguishable from whitefish in size and form.

May Be Taken On Hook and Line
There is no closed season on the whitefish in our inland lakes, and it is entirely possible to take them on hook and line using caution in playing the fish. An extremely tender mouth characterizes the whitefish—and this fact, combined with their tendency to take their food in more or less of a "milking" style creates a problem for the fisherman.

During the summer months, with the first catch of the common Mayfly, whitefish come from the deep water to chase the Mayfly larvae as they ascend from the bottom of the lake to take wing.

At such times the surface of the water may literally boil with the swirl of the fish feeding on the larvae within inches of the surface. Some of the fish frequently jump clear of the surface causing nearby fishermen plenty of excitement.

Casting spinners, night crawlers and various lures in the very center of a school of whitefish will yield no strikes however.

Small Hook Needed
If you want a chance at hooking a whitefish use light tackle—a fly or spinning rod with a very light monofilament leader of about a three or four pound test.

Use a number 10 or 12 long shank hook on the end of the leader, with a single hook set about two feet above it. The bait should be a very small minnow not over an inch and a half long sown on the shank of the hook with a barb of the hook concealed in the minnow head. Whitefish are easily "spooked" so casting will only result in putting the fish down. While it is possible to still fish if you happen to be in a school of whitefish, the best method is to let the fish work slowly, allowing the bait to work through eight to ten feet of water. When the fish strikes—and it'll be a very light tug—play out line rapidly for a matter of ten seconds or so, then strike lightly. Whitefish put up a real fight and are a worthy challenge to any fisherman.

For a suggested list of lakes, and more "dope" on the whitefish read "Michigan Outdoors" next week!
