SET NEW AUTO CODE

Freshmen and parents attended convocation last Sunday.

Effective Date Not Set

A resolution setting up a uniform traffic code on Northern Michigan University's campus was adopted by NMU's Board of Control at its meeting last week.

Of significance: The new code will provide that tickets issued by campus security police for such violations as speeding and parking will be processed in Marquette District Court. In other words, the summonses will be handled the same as those issued by city, township, county, and state police.

No Effective Date

Details for establishing the uniform traffic code are still being worked out according to a University spokesman and no effective date has yet been set.

The University spokesman explained that in establishing the uniform traffic code the NMU code will become a part of the state of Michigan's Traffic Code, and that if one breaks an NMU code he will be breaking a law of Michigan.

Also ratified by the Board was a student code of conduct which spells out standards of behavior for all NMU students.

"University regulations" are included in the conduct code pamphlet prepared by the Office of the Dean of Students as are "residence hall regulations and management policies." Provisions for handling violations of either group are defined in the code.

A student-faculty judiciary replacing a student-faculty appeals committee, is to be set up to handle cases involving alleged violations of the code which are referred to it by the Office of the Dean of Students. Its decisions will be final unless appealed to the vice president for student affairs.

Each student should have received a copy of the code of conduct during registration. Extra copies are available in the Office of the Dean of Students.

Sale of Written Material

Also approved by the Board of Control were policies regarding registration of student organizations and the distribution or sale of student publications and other written material.

Student groups may become registered as official NMU organizations "provided their activities are

Freshmen Hear Presidents

The president of Northern Michigan University and the president of the student body joined in welcoming new students to the campus at a convocation Sunday for the newcomers and their parents.

NMU's chief executive, Dr. John X. Jamrich, proposed a "partnership" between parents and NMU because "we want the same thing... the best possible education for these very fine young people on whom we shall depend for the future."

Parents, Jamrich said, can help by reminding their sons and daughters "they owe it not only to themselves but to you and to the people of the State of Michigan to do the very best they can while they are here."

"This is not an easy concept to get across to some students, but we must keep trying if they are to learn that responsibility goes along with opportunity and that some day they will be held to account."

The NMU president also said parents can further help NMU by "recognizing and accepting inevitability of change in your son and daughter while they are here at the university."

Pointing out that education has as its basic purpose the stimulation of change for the better, Jamrich said the students will be exposed to new and different ideas, will meet students from a wide variety of backgrounds and cultures, and will be challenged by teachers to subject their present values to scrutiny and careful examination.

"Even if they were not in college, they would be changing rapidly at this point in their life," Jamrich said.

In his candid comments, Jamrich also touched on university rules and regulations which he said were a "basic protective device" for the welfare of the university and community.

Northern, he said, is in full accord with freedom of dissent and freedom to demonstrate in a "peaceful manner. It will insist, however, that any demonstration which interferes with the normal operations of the university cannot be tolerated."

compatible with the total educational, cultural, recreational and social goals of the university and they are willing to operate in accordance with the University's policies regarding student organizations," according to the new policy. Suspension of registration for submission of falsified information required upon registration or for other reasons is provided. Discrimination on the basis of race, creed or national origin could result in denial of registration. The policy on distribution or sale of student publications (other than official university publications) and other written materials states that Northern "believes in the freedom of students to express opinions and communicate ideas through writing, publishing and distributing" such materials.

Regulations in this policy do not attempt to control material to be published, but simply set up guidelines for their distribution in university buildings or on the campus. They do not, however, restrict freedom of distribution.

In other action, the Board of Control:

Allocated $5,000 to be expended for Oct. 14 ceremonies at which Dr. John X. Jamrich will be inaugurated a president of NMU.

Learned that the firm of Johnson, Johnson & Roy, Inc. has been hired to prepare a master plan for the university show short-term and long-term planning needed to provide services for a growing student body.

New Security Chief Named

A former Philadelphia, Pa. police officer who was graduated from Northern Michigan University in August has been named chief of campus safety.

He is William R. Lyons, a 31-year-old Army veteran whose mid-August appointment was approved by NMU's Board of Control.

Succeeds Stambaugh

Lyons succeeds C. Duane Stambaugh who resigned in April to enter private business.

Suit Joins Ferris Staff

Donald T. Suit, a member of Northern Michigan University's faculty since 1965, has joined the Ferris State College staff as disciplinary counselor, it was announced today in Big Rapids.

As a member of FSC's student personnel staff, Suit will administer procedures involving student conduct, including development of a student judicial system.

Before coming to Northern, where he has been assistant dean of students for the past three years, Suit taught in Florida public schools and served as a psychological diagnostician for the Ingham (Mich.) Intermediate School District.

Suit holds bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Florida and has completed the course work toward the doctorate at Michigan State University.

Lyons, who has been chief justice of NMU's student judiciary, is a graduate of the Philadelphia Police Academy and was a member of that city's police department from 1962 to 1965.

Before enrolling at NMU in 1967 as a business administration major, he attended Ventura (Calif.) College and Temple (Pa.) University.

Lyons, his wife Barbara, and their daughter, Nancy, live at 736 W. Magnetic.

This column will attempt to do what its name implies—move Northern Michigan University forward. We plan to fully support what we perceive to be the interests of Northern's students. We will give credit where credit is due, and direct criticism where criticism is due. The student is our only concern. Please feel free to comment, criticize or offer suggestions on statements we have made or you think should be made in this space.

Students who are returning to Northern this fall are in for an unpleasant surprise if they wish to cash a check. The surprise? The University will no longer maintain a check cashing service.

The University says it is cancelling the service "in compliance with a recommendation from the (state) Auditor General's Office." Our question—why?

Are the checks "bouncing"? Are too many checks being cashed, thus limiting the business office's supply of ready cash? These problems, or other problems—if they exist—could be remedied. Why must the baby be thrown out with the bath water?

Michigan State University runs a check-cashing service. If you write a check that bounces, you lose the privilege of using the service. It works there, on an infinitely-larger campus. Why not here?

The University officials who say that checks can not be cashed at local banks—and thus the elimination of the University service is not really inconvenient—evidently have never tried to cash a check at a Marquette bank.

This writer is from nearby Escanaba, and yet we can tell you that cashing a check at a Marquette bank—unless you have an account at that bank—is like pulling teeth. Imagine what it must be like for downstate and out of state students.

— On, Northern —

If we didn't know Northern was a university, we might be tempted to think of it as a less-than-reputable book or record company.

Why? Well, it seems that the Health Center—true to form (didn't all this happen last year?)—has once again gone into the insurance business.

Yes, the insurance BUSINESS. For the Center has decided that you will just love the insurance policy offered by G.M. Underwriters of Detroit. You WILL love it, because, if you don't you'll get it anyway—along with a premium billing each month.

Oh, you could send in the rejection card saying you don't want the policy. But on the rejection card you must state why you don't desire the policy—something which we, and doubtlessly many other students, find revolting.

If this doesn't smack of the techniques of a dishonest book or record company, we don't know what does.

Postal regulations make it clear that a person is never obligated to accept or pay for something he didn't order. These regulations have been upheld by several rather messy legal actions.

Does the University really want this sort of thing? Let's leave the matter of insurance purchase to the individual, with the university—for once—minding its own business.

— On, Northern —

Sincere congratulations to the Northern Michigan University powers that be for allowing television sets to be installed in dormitory rooms. Which is to say, now you can operate the damn thing when the R.A. is in the vicinity of your room.

Enough for this week.

Involves $56,000

Student Debts Cited In Change

by Lowell Easley

NEWS Editor-in-Chief

Officials from the Office of Dean of Students and the Business Office cited an increasing vote of bad credit as the reason for adopting a two-payment time plan option for paying residence hall room and board.

While either office would not elaborate, other reliable sources in close contact with the situation claim there were last year $56,000 of unpaid, collectable room and board. This involves approximately one hundred students, the source said.

The source said that the student debts have been getting greater every year. Also, it pointed out, that graduates at least as far back as six years ago still have outstanding room and board debts with the University.

Dean's Office and Business Office officials stated that "it is only natural that the University should want to strive to eliminate such large student room and board debts as they naturally put quite a strain on the self-liquidating budget, especially during these times when the low occupancy in the dorms in itself is taxing the budget."

Asked about that action is taken against those students delinquent in their room and board for last year, Dean Kafer confided that most of the students would be returning to Northern this fall. Dr. Kafer declined to comment on what action will be taken against these students.

Members of the faculty were entertained last week at a faculty breakfast. (See story page 8)

Reprimanded By Judge

Stevenson Ruled Innocent

After listening to two full days of testimony, Marquette District Court Judge George E. Hill "reluctantly and painfully" ruled David E. Stevenson, 19, of Berkley, not guilty on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

Stevenson, an NMU sophomore, was arrested in May by Marquette city police and State Police after an investigation of his activities as editor and general manager of the Campus Mirror, a weekly newspaper.

"Painfully and reluctantly I find you not guilty."

In addressing the verdict to Stevenson, Judge Hill said: "I reluctantly and painfully, cannot, beyond reasonable doubt, find you guilty. Therefore you are not guilty."

In arriving at his verdict, Judge Hill said Stevenson did not, as charged, obtain money under false pretenses. The some 20 letters mailed to his Post Office Box for "Student Publications" funds never reached him. They were sent back to the dead letter office by the post office. Judge Hill also pointed out that there was no evidence of criminal intent in Stevenson's attempt to obtain money.

Severe Reprimand

However, following the verdict, Judge Hill severely reprimanded the defendant.

He told Stevenson: "You're an ambitious young man searching for a launching pad—which is all right if done legitimately. . . You talk faster than you think. . . Your verbal footwork is fancy. . . You are guilty of delusions of grandeur. . . You are either a crook or close to being sick—I choose the latter. . . Your mental processes need straightening out. . . For your 19 years you have a lot of mileage. . . You need counseling of some sort. . . If you plan to continue your interests as a salesman and promoter, I suggest you see a minister, priest or psychiatrist for counseling. . . Again I say, painfully and reluctantly, I find you not guilty."

NEWS Seeks New Members

The summer vacation has come to an end and the Northern News finds itself in the same place it was at the conclusion of the '69 spring semester—urgently in need of staff members.

Northern Michigan University students interested in joining the staff are urged to either come in person to the News office in the basement of Kaye Hall or call 227-2043 anytime during the day.

"Working on a university paper provides a wonderful opportunity for the student to see and discuss with leading members of the university community various aspects of the university environment," Editor-in-Chief Lowell Easley stated, pointing to an advantage for working on a school paper.

"A student working on a university paper can many times get an inside look at what a given situation is all about and convey this on to the student body," he said, "and in his pursuance he becomes a more integral part of the University."

HIKE EXPLAINED

The hike in out-of-state tuition was explained by President John X. Jamrich as being the result of action by the Michigan legislature.

Dr. Jamrich said that the legislature, in signing Northern's state appropriation, allowed for a specified increase in the non-residence tuition when competing the monies to be allotted.

Dr. Jamrich said the legislature assumed than an increase of tuition would not be paralleled with a drop in out-of-state enrollment. "It will be interesting to see if they presumed correctly," Dr. Jamrich said.

One source, who did not want to be identified, said that the University has generally adopted an unofficial policy of not expelling students who have incurred outstanding room and board debts. The source would not explain further except to say that "powers to be" were responsible for the unofficial policy.

Student leaders in several quarters of the campus have expressed concern over the situation.

They are, for one, concerned that the two-payment plan is going to put an undue financial burden on a substantial number of students and may even prevent some from attending the University.

"There will be a significant number of students who will have to go through 'hell and high water'," Lowell A. Easley, Editor-in-Chief of The Northern News, stated, "in order to make the second payment of $251 on time.

Student body president, Harry Campbell, stated: "If this policy prevents just one student from attending Northern Michigan University, who could otherwise have attended, given the four-payment option, then it is wrong."

NMU's Budget $17 Million

Northern Michigan University's Board of Control approved an operations and capital outlay budget of $17,874,769 for the 1969-70 academic year, an increase of $1,219,639 over last year.

The budget, which includes $640,000 for capital outlay is based on a net state appropriation of $6,987,549 and additional revenue anticipated from student fees and self-liquidating projects.

Academic Success Responsibility Of All

If Northern Michigan University is to achieve academic success at all levels, cooperation will be required. The administration, faculty, and student body must live up to their responsibilities.

The administration has the responsibility of providing a quality educational program, and with this responsibility comes the obligation of hearing out all student and faculty concerns in good faith and acting on them in some manner, rather than ignoring or filing them away.

The faculty must continuously provide a classroom atmosphere that will stimulate and not dampen student interest. And, they must always be willing to meet the administration halfway in a spirit of cooperation and mutual trust.

The student, too, has responsibilities. He should be responsible in his actions, acting at all times with reason and then within reason. His reasoning should include an empirical understanding and toleration as the fact that no University structure is going to be perfect.

We hope that during the coming academic year—and future years—all will live up to their individual responsibilities so that a totally free academic atmosphere can from this day forward, always exist on this campus.

Room Debt Must Be Paid

The failure on the part of Northern Michigan University to take adequate and decisive action against those one hundred students who are responsible for the accumulation of the $55,000 room and board debt cannot, should not and must not be tolerated.

We feel, and I am sure you will agree, that the powers to be have no other course of action open to them except to suspend those students who fail to pay up in whole their entire room and board debt to the University and to take legal action against them.

Instead, most of these students who have not paid and who, in many cases, have no real intentions of paying their past debts to the University are being allowed to return to Northern this fall, only to infringe further on the rights of the majority of us students who face up to our responsibilities.

We say on this matter that the University must discontinue its policy of hitting the innocent majority with a wet noodle while pampering the irresponsible minority.

NEWS States Credo

The Northern News, desiring to serve as well as possible the students of Northern Michigan University, hereby states its ideas, aims and principles.

Housing Could Be Better

Those who are dissatisfied with housing conditions here at Northern Michigan University (and who isn't?) would do well to look to the University of Iowa for guidance on how to improve the situation.

Iowa's excellent situation is based on the simplest of principles: The old capitalist maxim of creating a product that will sell.

Thus, Iowa's residence hall information brochure stresses the "significant advantages" of residence hall living.

The reader is told that moving into a residence hall is "like coming into a motel: everything is there."

by Don Curran

And "everything" includes study lamps, bedspreads, blankets, sheets, pillows and pillow cases, as well as weekly cleaning and dusting of the quarters and weekly changing of linen.

If the individual chooses, he can have air conditioning at little extra cost (only $6.00 additional per semester, in most cases).

Also available at a slight extra cost (about $8.00) is a room with complete bath.

And all this is available at rates only slightly higher than Northern's current room and board rate.

Another significant feature of the Iowa system is the variable board rate; this allows the student to take fewer meals per week if he will be busy during regular meal hours and pay less accordingly.

In addition, each hall features "library annex" to assist the resident in his studies.

Persons not living in residence halls can pay for a "board only" service at a certain specified rate per semester. However, it costs little more to live in a residence hall and receive board than to pay board only.

Since students at the University of Iowa are not forced to live in residence halls, the University halls must compete with private housing.

The affect of this situation is to put boarder-landlord relationship on a much more professional level at Iowa than at Northern.

"Your room can really be your room," prospectives are told, "for there is considerable latitude for you to exercise free activity in adding touches of decoration."

Perhaps most pleasing to the student of Northern is the way in which Iowa describes its residence hall accommodations and the way in which the prospective student is treated as a renter rather than an inmate.

Noticeably absent in the Iowa system is the "resident advisor." Instead, each floor in a house is run by a manager—like any modern housing complex.

Iowa has achieved—through a combination of good facilities and the proper attitude—a most equitable housing system.

It's a system which Northern could—and should—imitate.

Paper Shuffle

Joel Smith

Just Another Year?

Another academic year is about to begin for more than 7,000 students at Northern Michigan University.

For many, it is just another year in what seems like a never ending battle to achieve a college education. For others, it means leaving home for the first time.

But whether you are a freshman or a senior or something in between, this year could be the most important year of your life and the life of this university.

Over the past few years many universities across the country have experienced campus disorders. Northern was no exception.

As many of you know, this campus was touched with demonstrations and picketing last year.

Whether it was just or not is really not important anymore.

The real issue is whether it will happen again this year.

I for one, think it will—unless of course, the students and administrators on this campus face up to the real problems.

The students of today are of a different breed than were those of twenty or thirty years ago. Today's students are not content with an answer of yes or no. They want to know why.

Too few administrations are willing to explain an answer to a student. This has caused students to take actions on their own.

Right or wrong the student has felt compelled to demonstrate, to force an answer from the administration.

Students want to know where they stand. What will happen to me if I picket the student center? What will happen if I disrupt a basketball game? What will happen if I participate in a panty raid?

No one can give an answer.

Sure a student can find the penalty for joining in a panty raid in the student handbook. But whether it is enforced or not is something of a guessing game.

The administration must provide a set of rules and regulations which must be enforced to the end necessary. It shouldn't matter if the student is a football player, honor student, or black or white. The rules should be enforced on all.

The students on the other hand, must realize that most of the administrators have been around a bit longer and know the problems of running a university.

There are always a few students at every university who think they know everything. Actually, if you get to know them at all, you will find they usually are the draft dodgers, spoiled brats, etc.

The students must be able to pick out these trouble makers and ignore them.

This university along with every other one in this country will cease to function if a working agreement is not made between the students and administrators.

It won't be an easy task to unite the two groups.

It may take a few weeks or maybe even a few months. But it has got to happen for the sake of this university and every other one.

I think we have a capable president at this university. And I also think we have the students to do the job.

Now let's do it.

Windowshopping

WITH WALLY EDWARDS

A completely unpredictable humor column, "Windowshopping" is written by Wally Edwards for the University of Missouri-Rolla student newspaper The Missouri Miner. Syndicated by Associated Collegiate Press, "Windowshopping" will appear in the Northern News until such time as a suitable humor columnist of our own joins the News' staff.

This week "Windowshopping" reveals the latest results in the search for "Mr. Average 1969 College Student." Our first concern is how the average student spends his time on weekdays. Through use of the pie graph (See Figure 1), we shall examine this research in detail.

You will notice the overlapping portion of the graph between the time spent sleeping and the time spent in classes. The reason for this should be obvious. If it isn't, I suggest you stay awake more in your classes to notice these things.

The 9.1% allotted for eating and drinking would have been reduced to 2.9% if the "drinking" had been eliminated. The reason for this should also be obvious.

The section labeled "Unsupervised Activity" deserves some comment. Before the graph was revised, a number of specific activities had been listed in its place. However, after reading the unsupervised activities in which those students attending coeducational universities indulged, administrative officials thought it best not to be so explicit.

You are probably puzzled in that the average college student spends 14.2% of his time reading homework assignments and only 2% of his time understanding what he reads. If you are really bewildered by this state of affairs, you will, no doubt, spend 14.2% of your time finding the causes of this disturbing condition and 2% of your time understanding them.

You will notice that the wedge of the graph marked "taking exams" does not come to a point. This is to be expected since many of the exams college students take do not come to the point.

All that remains to analyze is the 7.8% of time spent rebelling. This includes all those traditional items associated with college protests: sit-ins, lie-ins, etc. In reality though, the average college has never participated in such activities. However, a number of desperate men representing various magazines which thrive on the news made by student dissenters bribed the researchers into "padding" the graph, and we are forced to tolerate their quaint bit of commercialism.

If you have been alert to this discussion, you are probably ready to say, "Aha! The graph totals 101.1%. Okay wise guy, where'd the extra 1.1% come from?" That is a very astute observation, and the question deserves a good answer. Unfortunately, there are no good answers available.

Our attention now turns to Figure 2. Figure 2 is completely irrelevant to the topic at hand, but one must admit that if nothing else, it's labeled properly.

Figure Three

Dr. Zeke Zlick, head of the staff of researchers for this project, has conducted numerous experiments on his "average" class of college students. He proudly displays the results of his last exam in Figure 3. Explains Dr. Zlick, "It's the best bell-shaped curve I've ever gotten." One of Dr. Zlick's students commented, "It was an all objective quiz - everyone in the class objected to it."

But Dr. Zlick had the last word, "The average college student? There just ain't no such animal!"

Campbell, Jamrich Speak

Student body president Harry Campbell, a senior from Grosse Pointe Farms, told the incoming students that Northern was a "unique" university.

Northern, he said, was located in an area surrounded "by the last expanse of wilderness forest found east of the Mississippi... and for those of you who have come up (to Marquette) from the cities, that strange odor you smell outside is called clean air."

Northern's uniqueness, Campbell said, also lies in the fact "that although we have all the benefits of a large university... there is a community spirit here which is seldom found in other universities of our size."

Money For Teachers Of Mentally Retarded

A grant of $152,000 to the Marquette-Alger Intermediate School District for the training of teachers for the Upper Peninsula's mentally retarded was announced recently by superintendent Frank W. Mead.

The U. S. Office of Education grant funds the second year of three-year training program. An initial grant made last summer launched the project. Both have been made available under provisions of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1955.

Designed to fill the Peninsula's critical need for teachers of its mentally retarded citizens, the program is being directed by Dr. Robert E. Carter, associate professor of education at Northern Michigan University.

"Recognition of the university's resources by approval of this grant and of Dr. Carter's leadership in this field is most gratifying," said

NMU dean of education Wilbert A. Berg.

The program is being administered by the Marquette-Alger Intermediate School District which is sub-contracting the project to NMU's school of education.

Courses, which lead to certification to teach mentally retarded persons, will be offered beginning the week of September 22 at centers in the U. P.'s intermediate school districts including Marquette, Escanaba, Iron Mountain, Hancock, Wakefield and Rudyard.

Teachers enrolling in the project will be released from their teaching responsibilities through a teacher-substitution program, Carter said. Project funds are provided to reimburse school districts for full cost of substitute teachers, he added.

Teachers who are interested in enrolling in the program during the 1969-70 academic year are urged to contact Carter at NMU.

'Real Challenge'

Dr. Jamrich Tells Of Need To 'Resolve Problems'

Northern Michigan University president John X. Jamrich said last week that the real challenge facing higher education is the need to identify and resolve problems.

"Too much time and agonizing has gone into repetitious oratory on the evils and ills of our society and much too little effort has been devoted to action-oriented programs designed to alleviate them," Dr. Jamrich said in his address at the first faculty meeting of the new academic year.

'Leave The Picket Line'

Northern's chief executive said it was time for everyone, including students, to "leave the picket line and to design and implement action programs" for the economically underprivileged, educationally disadvantaged, for the aged, and for racial harmony. "An almost endless line of opportunity to help awaits us here in the Upper Peninsula," he said. Jamrich ticked off such U.P. concerns as mentally and physically handicapped children; young people who could benefit by tutoring; and the number of persons going hungry.

"We do not have to go too far from Marquette to find direct application of these needs," Jamrich said in pointing out that the U.P. has several areas in which the federal government's food stamp is a "basic trading commodity."

Jamrich also: "Said he was "deeply grateful" to the faculty and student members of the three Task Forces he appointed last fall for their "excellent reports."

*Stated Northern would spend more than $180,000 this year for additional books for the school library, now housed in the new Learning Resources Center.

*Revealed that the State Legislature has approved a "nominal sum" for Northern to employ a campus planner who will complete the physical campus plan layout.

*Emphasized the need for the university to "strengthen" its relations with U. P. schools. "I would urge and encourage all of our faculty to seek ways of working with elementary and secondary schools of the Upper Peninsula in order that the contribution of Northern Michigan University may be brought to bear on the work of these schools," Jamrich said.

*Encouraged faculty who seek areas of research and scholarly productivity to "think about the desirability of launching into work that deals with indigenous cultural matters of history and sociology in the Upper Peninsula, and a study of the economics and ecology of this area."

Fine Arts Week

*Announced the appointment of a six-member committee (Drs. Jacob Vinocur, Harold Wright and James Rapport, and Richard Gorski, Philip Legler and Earl McIntyre) to work with others in the planning for a Fine Arts Week to be held at NMU next spring.

Regarding the participation of faculty in support of economic welfare of higher education, Jamrich said "there was a time when this was discouraged, and still is in some institutions." But he said he encouraged NMU's faculty representatives to become involved because the real negotiations for adequate support "take place in the state house and not in the institutional president's house."

In his discussion of the Task Force on Academic Governance, Jamrich said it is "critically important" that faculty and students acquaint themselves with the report which, he said, "represents careful analysis of the existing situation at Northern."

The report, he said, contains "some very advanced and refined thinking and recommendations" and said he feels that the Faculty Organization Constitution and the Constitution of the Academic Senate should be adopted at the earliest possible date.

Jamrich said that a "university-wide council" also has tremendous merit, and that NMU should adopt this in one form or another.

The Student Rights and Responsibilities Task Force has come up with "some excellent guidelines," he said, and revealed that several parts of the report have been or are now in the process of being adopted and implemented.

He specifically cited a new Student Code of Conduct, the structure governing student publications, and the establishment of a committee on Students Rights and Responsibilities.

The Task Force on the Future of the University, Jamrich stated, has made "some sound suggestions" regarding the school's public services division and also had made "some cogent observations" regarding the matter of University relations.

He called all Task Force reports "outstanding pieces of work" which deserve "careful consideration during the early months of the academic year."

In closing, Jamrich told the faculty that "the ingredients for a productive and exciting academic year do exist here and now. It remains for us to mix these ingredients into a real experience for the students and for ourselves."

MICHIGAN

WESTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY - Recent action by the WMU Board of Trustees raised that schools tuition $30 per semester for full time resident undergraduates and $50 per semester for non-resident full-time undergraduates. The new tuition rates: Michigan residents, $215 a semester; non-residents, $500 a semester.

EASTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY - The EMU Board of Regents has approved an installment plan for the payment of tuition. Under the plan, students could pay 40% of their tuition at the beginning of the semester and pay the remaining amount in three payments.

CENTRAL MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY - The grade "D" for the evaluation of graduate students was abolished beginning with classes during the past summer session; The only grade below "C-" will be "E" for graduate students enrolled in 400 or 500-level courses either on or off campus.

EASTERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY - Student parking rates have been raised considerably. The vehicle registration sticker for commuters will cost $20. This compares with $10 last year. Faculty staff parking stickers will cost $60.

NATIONAL

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON - The appointment of Dr. George N. Aagaard, professor of medicine and former dean of the University of Washington School of Medicine, as the University's first Ombudsman was announced here by President Charles E. Odegaard.

The appointment was made by President Odegaard upon the recommendation of a special Ombudsman committee, composed of faculty, staff and students. More than 80 persons were nominated by the University community for the position.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY - Boston University will move to a four-course program in its College of Liberal Arts this fall in an ambitious attempt to provide seminars for 5000 students in the arts and sciences.

Eight other schools on campus will be directly affected by the shift, and some are expected to follow suit in adopting the four-course curriculum.

Boston University is believed to be the first large urban university in the country to move to four courses and to provide wide-scale seminars in an attempt to combat the alienation of the lecture hall.

New York University is the only other university parallel in size and diversity that has voted a shift to the four-course curriculum, but NYU is not yet ready to implement its program.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW MEXICO - New Hours and a key check out system have been adopted by the Associated Women Students (AWS) at the University of New Mexico. An AWS pamphlet outlines the regulations and expectations of the "self-determined hours."

Due to the variability of entry times, students will need to observe quiet hours carefully. Quiet hours start at 7 p.m.

An eligible student (one who has an AWS identification card) who wishes to be away from the dorm after hours must check out a key from the main desk of her dorm.

Special hours have been designed for key check-out.

Each student will be responsible for checking out and returning her own key. No one may check out or return a key for another girl. It was also emphasized that under the key system, dorm security is left up to the residents.

Dotsch Reflects On Year

The Panthers of the University of Northern Iowa will furnish the opposition tomorrow as the Northern Michigan Wildcats embark on their 1969 grid slate, hoping to improve on last season's 5-4 record. Game time is slated for 1:30 p.m. at Memorial Field.

The Panthers are the first of two North Central Conference schools the Wildcats face this year. The other is No. 1 ranked North Dakota State, making their Memorial Field debut Sept. 20 on the heels of Northern Iowa.

Young Line

Northern Michigan's 1969 offensive line, with two exceptions, is young and inexperienced, and will need time to develop.

That's the capsule summary from head coach Rollie Dotsch as the Wildcats prepare for the debut against Northern Iowa.

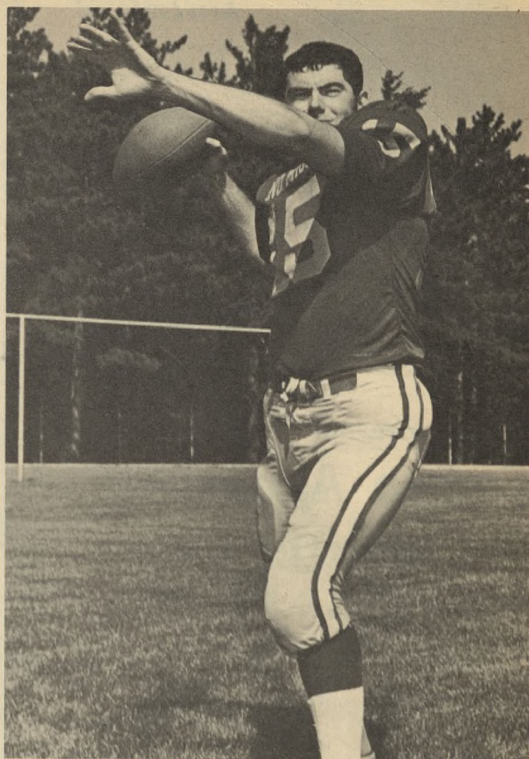

"We lost five starters from last year's line," explains Dotsch. "That means we have to go with at least four sophomores up front. This group will need time to develop into a working unit."

"I feel we have the right people in the right positions," states Dotsch. "I'm satisfied with the way the line has come along."

"The key to our offensive line is welding our sophomores into a solid, working unit," says Dotsch. "It may take a couple of games, but this is what we have to do. And I'm sure when they develop they'll be tough."

In the offensive backfield, two newcomers join veteran quarterback Rich McCarthy and two-time Little All-American Lonnie Holton. Dave Ripmaster, a transfer from Grand Rapids JC, mans the fullback

Monday Morning Quarterback

by Mark Kelly

Boy, you're lucky.

Here it is fall, the north wind is beginning to whip through campus, the leaves are starting to turn their autumn colors, the atmosphere of football is in the air—and due to the foresight of some people in the athletic department you have the opportunity to witness the beginning of the most demanding season a Northern grid team has ever embarked on.

In case you're new to Northern, let me make something clear. Football, when you're a Wildcat, is not just something you play to kill a Saturday afternoon and then read your clippings in the paper. Football to a Wildcat is a religion. It's based on Pride, with the capital P. Football players at Northern are dedicated individuals who combine their talents to form a skilled unit. They may not be the best football players in the country, but they have the desire to be the best football players in the country. There are no prima donnas on this team. It's a group effort.

The main reason for this attitude of group effort is the man who runs the show, Coach Rollie Dotsch. Dotsch has been around some quality teams in his career, and knows what they're made up of. In 1953, he was a guard on the Michigan State team that won the Rose Bowl that year, and in 1954 he played in the Blue-Gray game. As an assistant at Colorado, he went to the '61 Orange Bowl and later as a coach with Dan Devine's, Missouri teams, accompanied them to a Sugar Bowl and Bluebonnet Bowl.

So when Dotsch took over the Wildcat reins in 1966, he instilled the winning attitude and as a result owns a 20-8-1 coaching record at Northern going into tomorrow's encounter.

Along with high standards of the caliber of football to be played at NMU, Dotsch believes in scheduling schools that play better than average football. Thus the Wildcats play top notch football teams and play them on a par. Take for example, last year's game against North Texas State. The Texans schedule teams like the University of Arkansas and New Mexico State. Last year they boasted players like Steve Ramsey, who was one of the NCAA's leading passers, and defensive tackle Mean Joe Greene, who went on the first round of the professional draft and is currently dismembering people in the employment of the Pittsburgh Steelers. Despite the odds against the 'Cats, the game was 3-3 going into the final quarter before the North Texas size, depth, and experience took their toll and they won, 17-3.

So back to the teams you have the opportunity to watch play. Northern Iowa is always a battle. Out of the six game series played between the 'Cats and the Panthers, three games have been decided by four points or less. One Mr. Dennis Kettner returns at fullback for UNI. The same Mr. Dennis Kettner ran through, over, under, and around NMU last fall to the tune of 166 yards. You can rest assured that the previously mentioned Coach Dotsch has mentioned that magic number of yards to the defense, and you can also rest assured the defense will be determined that Mr. Kettner does not tread quite so much Memorial Field turf tomorrow.

Sept. 20 the Bison of North Dakota State roll into town, and quite the thundering herd they are. They are on a 23 game winning streak and, providing Illinois State doesn't score an upset over them tomorrow, will have 24 straight under their belts. They are the defending NCAA College Division champs. They come equipped with their complete '68 backfield intact, plus six starters from the offensive line. They have a bona fide All-American in Paul Hatchett, who gained a mere 1,213 yards last year in ten games while scoring only (yawn!) 17 touchdowns. Quite a lad, this Hatchett.

Next to visit Marquette will be The Chargers of Hillsdale, on October 4. The Charger team that upset Northern last year was a young, aggressive crew. This year they are an experienced, aggressive crew. After beating NMU last season, the Chargers galloped to three straight victories to finish their campaign with six wins against three losses. Their running is led by Dick Kraatz, a bruising fullback who boasts plenty of speed in the open field.

St. Norbert invades the Wildcat lair Oct. 25. The Green Knights come off a 6-2-1 season, and their rivalry with Northern Michigan dates back to 1916. They have a double-threat running attack with Larry Krause, who gained 890 yards and scored 17 TD's in '68, and Jim Maier, who lugged the leather for 803 yards and five touchdowns.

The last of the home opponents is Northwood Institute. Northwood is coming off a poor season, but have a new coach in Jack Finn. You have to believe that a coach like Finn, who compiled a 121-39-2 record as a high school coach, will start to generate some life into the Northern camp. Finn, a long-time friend of Coach Dotsch, isn't the kind of coach who loses for long. Northwood should come Lake Superior way with a much improved club.

So there they are, the five opponents the Wildcats will lock horns with on Memorial Field this season. And like I said before, you're lucky, because you have the chance to see some great football right in your own backyard. A team the caliber that Northern fields every year warrants some backing. There are 7,400 seats awaiting your presence tomorrow at 1:30 P.M. You're invited.

Defense Pivotal Factor Of Success

post vacated by graduated Kent Lefebvre and Gary Scutt, a junior college transfer from New York, will be at right half.

"Scutt demonstrated that he runs hard," comments Dotsch of the 6-0, 190 pounder. "He runs reckless."

In a nip and tuck race with Scutt for the starting assignment as halfback is Johnny Hutton, 5'7", 155 pound junior from Toledo, Ohio.

"Hutton has the speed," says Dotsch, "but Scutt is stronger and probably more durable. If Scutt starts Hutton will still see plenty of action because he can run from either halfback spot."

Defensively, the Wildcats have combined five sophomores, three juniors and three seniors into a hardnosed unit that demonstrated their potential in last May's spring game.

The defense boasts good size at the tackles with Lew Kautz, 245 lbs., and Ken Schuettpeiz, 255 lbs. Kautz has been bothered by an injury this week and will be backed up by junior Phil Milkie, a 225 pounder from Dearborn.

Dotsch is relying on defense as the pivotal factor of success in Northern Michigan's early games this fall.

"We have a young offensive line," Dotsch points out, "and defense will have to carry the load in our early games until our sophomores

"We're not going to be fancy..."

"Defense has to be a strong weapon early," reemphasizes Dotsch. "We expect it could be the difference in at least our first three games."

Dotsch noted that much needed depth may come from several freshmen. Pat Collins, 5-9, 182 lbs., from Menominee will furnish depth at left half while Tommy Davis, 5-11, 175 lbs., from Danville, Illinois will see standby duty at right half. Other freshmen expected to see action for the varsity this season are Bruce Magnusson, a defensive end, Larry Bittner, a linebacker, Ed Feters, a fullback, and Gary Pendl, a kicker and defensive back. The change in the freshman rules allows NMU to utilize freshmen in seven of 10 games.

Summarizing the outlook at Northern, Dotsch has these comments:

"We're not going to be fancy on offense, but what we do we'll do well."

"Defense will have to carry a heavy load in the early games until our sophomore offensive line develops."

"We have a solid running game and adequate passing, but I'm afraid we lack depth and would be hurt badly by injuries."

Assistant Director

Canale Appointed To Athletic Post

Gil Canale, a member of the Northern Michigan athletic department for the past 10 years, has been named NMU's assistant athletic director, effective immediately.

The appointment, made on the recommendation of athletic director Rollie Dotsch and approved by the University's Board of Control, was announced by Dr. John X. Jamrich, president.

Canale is a native of Crystal Falls, Mich., and an alumnus of Northern Michigan. He was a sergeant in the U. S. Air Force following high school graduation and received his bachelor's degree at NMU in 1956. He holds a master's degree from Indiana University, where he served as a graduate assistant.

High School Coach

In 1957 Canale began coaching at Munising, Mich., high school and remained there two years before returning to his alma mater in 1959 as head athletic trainer and assistant professor in the health, physical education and recreation department.

He is widely known throughout the state as a basketball and football official, and has served as president of the Lake Superior Coaches and Officials Association.

Canale, in his role as assistant athletic director, will continue to serve as head trainer and director of special events held in cooperation with the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

"I am tremendously pleased to have a person of Gil's experience and knowledge of athletics serving in this position," said Dotsch.

"He will be assuming a great many responsibilities that will play an important role in the improvement and upgrading of Northern's total athletic program."

FOCUS

NORTHERN IOWA

A great rivalry has developed between Northern Michigan and Northern Iowa since the inception of this series in 1963. NMU leads the series 4-2, having won the last four contests. It might be noted, however, that an average of only 7.8 points has provided the winning margin in the games played to date.

Last year the Wildcats whipped the Panthers 24-13, but the score is deceiving. Northern Iowa won the battle of statistics but fumbles deep in Wildcat territory ruined several scoring opportunities.

Offensively, Northern Iowa has lost veteran quarterback Phil Schooley through graduation and subsequent draft by the Philadelphia Eagles. Bill Raun will be the new Panther signal-caller. The running game appears solid, led by Larry Skartvedt, Mide Reed, and Dennis Kettner. Kettner gained 166 yards against NMU in last year's opener.

Inexperienced Line

UNI's offensive line, like Northern Michigan's, is inexperienced. Graduation created large holes from tackle to tackle.

Defense will be Northern Iowa's strong suit. Nine starters return defensively to form Coach Stan Sheriff's Mini-D alignment.

Northern Iowa is a member of the North Central Conference, which North Dakota State, NMU's Sept. 20 opponent, also belongs to. Last season's meeting between the two schools resulted in a 14-10 win for North Dakota State.

NORTHERN MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY CAMPUS

The campus of Northern Michigan University which was first opened in 1889 to 32 students now looks forward to a student body of 12,000 by 1980.

70th Anniversary

From Two-Year 'Normal' To Great University

Northern Michigan University was founded in 1899, and with a faculty of six opened its doors to thirty-two students on a campus of twenty acres, overlooking Lake Superior.

Originally established by the Michigan legislature as a two-year state-supported "normal school" to provide teachers in the Upper Peninsula, Northern today is a multi-purpose university with a three-dimensional program of research, instruction, and service.

Northern first opened its doors in September of 1899 in the temporary quarters of the second and third stories of the Marquette City Hall. The University has grown into an academic community of more than 7,000 students and nearly 400 faculty.

As enrollments grew and students sought more avenues of study, the Normal School successively became Northern State Teachers College, Northern Michigan College of Education, Northern Michigan College, and Northern Michigan University.

A four-year collegiate program was introduced in 1918, and the first Bachelor of Arts degree was awarded two years later. A curriculum leading to the Bachelor of Science degree was inaugurated in 1926.

Through its Public Services Division, created in 1956, Northern strengthened its service function, making the facilities and resources of the University available to people throughout the Upper Peninsula. In 1962, the University established, through a grant from the United States Area Development Administration, an Area Training Center dedicated to training people in vocational and technical programs.

Northern has grown under the guidance of eight presidents since 1899: Dwight B. Waldo, 1899-1904, James B. Kaye, 1904-1923, John M. Munson, 1923-1933, Webster H. Pearce, 1933-1940, Henry A. Tape, 1940-1956, Edgar L. Harden, 1956-1967, Interim President Ogden E. Johnson, 1967-1968, John X. Jamrich since July 1, 1968.

The future: A student body of 12,000, a faculty of 620 and a capital outlay of millions of dollars are envisioned for the Northern Michigan University of 1980. Enrollment projections call for a figure of 10,000 by 1975.

Set for construction within the next three years alone are an office building, a new physical education facility and a transmitting facility to place the University's ETV station on the air.

The cost of the general operation of NMU will nearly triple by 1980 to a proposed $17 million.

Long range construction plans call for an education building, a school of management, a service building, a classroom building and several additions to existing structures.

President Jamrich Invites Student Help, Participation

"We invite your interest and your help in developing the kind of University that will best serve its students."

It is with these words that Northern Michigan University president Dr. John X. Jamrich concluded his letter of welcome in this year's student handbook.

Dr. Jamrich states that students "have much at stake in the University, and are in a position to personally influence its development."

"Your participation in student government, clubs, and organization, or other student activities which interest you," he said, "will help shape the character of Northern Michigan University."

"With your opportunity to study at Northern comes an equal responsibility to make it a better institution," he said in the letter.

Dr. Jamrich, in addition, said that "few experiences will be as unique, exciting, and potentially rewarding as the part of your life you will spend as a student at Northern. These values result from the fact that a University is made up of people and ideas. Your contact with them, whether through books, lectures, or discussions, in class or out of class, is basic in higher education."

"You (the student) will have the opportunity of learning and developing," Dr. Jamrich continued, "by immersing yourself in this academic community."

"Your own interest and initiative will determine whether or not you take advantage of these available opportunities," he told students in the letter.

Two New Administrative Aides Join Auxiliary Enterprises

Two new administrative aides have assumed their duties in Northern Michigan University's auxiliary enterprises, it was announced this week by president John X. Jamrich.

NMU President Dr. John X. Jamrich presents an inaugural year medalion to Dr. James Rasmussen, for his work with the college bowl team that competed in New York.

Terry Nyquist Named To Alumni Office Post

Terry B. Nyquist, director of student activities since last August, has been named associate director of alumni relations.

Nyquist, 27, is a native of Marquette who received both his bachelor's and master's degrees from Northern.

His appointment comes at a time when Northern's alumni association is growing rapidly and seeking closer identification with the University's goals and objectives.

A graduate of Marquette Graveraet High School, Nyquist received his bachelor's degree in mathematics in 1965. He was awarded his master's degree in 1968.

As an undergraduate he won three major awards in varsity football and was among the top punters in the nation.

They are L. Stanton Walker, assistant director of auxiliary enterprises, and Robert M. Fisher, director of the Don H. Bottum University Center.

Both appointments have been approved by the university's Board of Control.

Native of Pontiac

Walker, a native of Pontiac, comes to Northern from Central Michigan University where for eight years he was manager of CMU's food service. Previously he was assistant to the manager of the 350 room Washington Youree Hotel in Shreveport, La.

The 34-year-old Walker received his bachelor's degree in hotel, restaurant and institutional management from Michigan State University and his master's of business administration from CMU.

CMU Graduate

Fisher, 28, also is a graduate of CMU and holds a master's degree from New York University.

His previous positions include that of catering coordinator of NYU's Loeb Student Center (1955-67) and manager of recreation for the city of Mt. Pleasant, Mich. (1963-64.)

During the past two years, he was a First Lieutenant with the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers at Ft. Belvoir, Va., where he was awarded the Army Commendation Medal.
