

400,000 AMERICANS MARCH ON WASHINGTON HUNT HALL COUNCIL SENDS 13 DELEGATES

By Frederick Pentz

It was often said, over the past year, that the anti-war movement was dead. The time for mass demonstrations was over and the kids were turning to violence and senseless destruction. Then the movement suddenly woke up and flexed its muscles and found that it was stronger than ever.

The scene was familiar. Nixon was hiding, the city was full of people, and hundreds of people were protesting the war. And yet, somehow, the scene was different. From the ten thousand Vietnam Veterans Against The War, to the bus loads of labor unionists and hard hats, to middle-aged "Mothers For Peace", this was by far the largest, most widespread and diversified anti-war demonstration ever. The movement was demonstrating that it had grown up. It had become more unified and solidified. There were more congressmen and senators than ever before. And there were more people, making it the biggest rally in history. Now, more than ever, it was a political movement to be reckoned with.

Past criticism was no longer applicable. This was no wild mob, no undisciplined group of long-haired kids. The 400,000 who came to Washington, D.C. were there, not for a lark, but to show that the American people are solidified and united against the war. Both in Washington and San Francisco, the massive crowds were amazing, not only for their size, but for the tremendous difference in the types of people involved.

In Washington, the people heard Country Joe Lead the "Fixin to Die Rag", followed by John Kelley, head of the Vietnam Veterans Against The War. Also speaking was Mrs. Coretta King, who called for an end to the war by August 28th, the eighth anniversary of her late husband's march on Washington. Mrs. Bella Azbug stirred the crowd when she said "Everyone is here but Richard Nixon. He's in retreat at Camp David, and he's in retreat from the American people." Finally they cheered for ten minutes after Senator Vance Hartke said: "Let our voices sound the two great words of peace-- OUT-NOW!"

BULLETIN

BULLETIN: YESTERDAY, MAY 3, 10,000 ANTI-WAR PROTESTORS WERE ARRESTED IN WASHINGTON AS THEY ATTEMPTED TO PREVENT GOVERNMENT WORKERS FROM GOING TO THEIR JOBS. POLICE SWEEPED THE CAMPUSES OF GEORGETOWN AND AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES IN AN ATTEMPT TO THROW ALL DISSENTERS INTO JAILS OR TEMPORARY CONCENTRATION CAMPS. MORE DETAILS WERE FORTHCOMING AS THE PAPER WENT TO PRE.S. POLICE HURLED TEARGAS AND MACE AT THE FLEEING YOUTHS AS THEY FLED FROM THE ONRUSHING POLICE CARS. SQUAD CARS WERE SEEN CHASING PEOPLE ACROSS THE GROUNDS OF SUCH FAMOUS MEMORIALS AS THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT AND THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL. RENNIE DAVIS, HEAD OF THE "MAY DAY TRIBE", AN ANTI-WAR GROUP, WAS ARRESTED FOR "VIOLATING THE CIVIL RIGHTS OF OTHERS AND FOR PREVENTING GOVERNMENT WORKERS FROM GOING TO THEIR JOBS."

In San Francisco, 200,000 heard comedian Dick Gregory swear, "As of this day, I will not touch solid food again as long as one U.S. soldier remains in Southeast Asia. All across the country, Americans paused as the demonstrations far exceeded the wildest dreams of the organizers. Expecting fifty to seventy thousand, they found themselves deluged by requests for places to sleep. Local churches and parks were swamped.

What did the demonstrations mean? Many things to many people. To a few it was a vacation. To most it was a tremendous outpouring of anti-war sentiment that had never before been matched. It was aimed not only at the President but also at the Congress. What was clear to all was that the American people were once again showing that they are opposed to the war. This unity was so apparent that even the skeptics had to admit it was there. What the people were saying was loud and clear. It's been a year since Cambodia and Kent State and we still continue to fight in Southeast Asia in a war that the people don't want to fight. The people are telling the government to stop the war or they are going to stop the government!

Today, as never before, a new social coalition is surfacing in the nation. It is a coalition that merges the tremendous power the student movement already has with the immense power of the working people and all the dynamic social forces represented in the spring anti-war rallies. It is a coalition that is angry, disenchanted with a government that refuses to end the war, and dedicated to forcing the United States to END THE WAR- NOW!

EXPAND BLACK STUDIES

It has recently been brought to the attention of the white students here at Northern, that at the end of this semester the Black studies program will be cut in half. (courses being discontinued - The Black Freedom Movement and Black Experience in Africa and America) According to the administration there will no longer be enough Black instructors to handle these classes.

The administration is simply not facing reality. With the race situation as it is today, it should be the hope and desire of the university to help further develop an understanding and perhaps compassion between the races. They will not develop this feeling by decreasing our Black studies program.

If it is the purpose of education to develop an individual into a value-seeking human being who will be capable of experiencing life to its maximum, then it is necessary for "our university" to provide its students with a wide and varied range of stimulating experiences. The Black studies program has and still is performing this task. Not only is it exposing the Black personality and culture to many white students, it is also showing the Black student that he has a heritage to be proud of.

On behalf of the students of Northern Michigan University, the UNIVERSITY FREE PRESS wishes to extend congratulations to the newly elected student body president, OZEL BRAZIL and the new vice-president, DENISE COURTNIER.

It is the responsibility of every student here at Northern to demand that the Black studies program not only be continued, but increased. We must also demand that the university provide adequate incentives when hiring Black faculty so that we may continue to develop a competent Black studies department.

WHY A "MINI-DOME?"

A good friend of mine, Tom Solka, referred to NMU's proposed "mini-dome" as "Northern's SST." I think it is an apt description since the very same questions asked of that project are being asked about the dome, viz., feasibility, need, priorities, and unacceptable costs.

On Wednesday, May 5, we will be asked to either (1) vote for a feasibility study or, (2) throw out the idea of the dome. Such a study, if taken will mean a head tax of 4-5 dollars per student next fall. This study would cost 24,000-30,000 dollars. Why waste this amount of money? Does this mean that every time student interest group desires a building a referendum can be held and a tax assessed? Before we engage in such ridiculous behavior I suggest a campus-wide priorities study. Let the students decide what things are and are not feasible. Do not forget that the proposed dome is geared for a campus of 12,500 while we only have 7,100, with an imposed ceiling of 8,000. Even Mr. McClintock admitted that these buildings might not be fully used. And who would take the loss? THE STUDENTS!

As to the so-called "need" of an all-events center, I ask you to consider the following facts. The next building to be built on this campus will be the new HPER. The governor has recommended that state funds be appropriated and the administration officials told me that it will be built. This structure will have a large pool, 3 gyms, 8 handball courts, diving tank, wrestling room, classrooms, offices and numerous other facilities. In addition to the new HPER, the city of Marquette is going to build a civic center/ice arena. This can also be used for conventions, rock concerts, exhibitions, and will seat up to 5,000. The university will be able to rent this. And of course we still have the present HPER and Memorial Field. We simply do not need the "mini dome" and I consider it a senseless and frivolous project.

The question of priorities is central to this issue. Is the "mini-dome" the first priority of Northern students? I hardly think so. Consider some of the following: student owned apartments, paying off the dorms, scholarships, cross cultural studies center, expanding the graduate program, more and higher paid teachers, etc., etc. This building will not cost four million but rather 8-13 million when you add interest and operating costs. Such an amount of money could benefit this university in innumerable other ways but not a domed stadium.

I must comment on the atrocious manner in which this issue was handled. This concept of the "mini-dome" was not initiated by the students, but rather by the administration for what I consider political and stature-seeking motives on the part of its highest officials. Is someone perhaps seeking to gain his permanent niche in NMU's history? They attempted to deceive the students

COMPASSION

-The Budana

"Compassion - the world's sole savior"

"Hatred does not cease by hatred, but only by love. This is an old rule."

"Anyone, who while strives for his own happiness, inflicts pains on the others will perpetually live in hatred and will never be able to release himself from hatred."

"The rain wets into the house with the poor roof as lust always clouds the undisciplined mind."

"A thief and a thief, or an enemy and an enemy, both desire for the destruction of one other. But the evil-based mind is more destructive to one's self than his enemies."

"A huge, solid stony mountain has never been moved by the wind. Likewise, a wise man is not moved by neither blame nor praise."

"Anyone who does not kill, does not make others kill, does not seek to win, does not make others win, is the one who is full of compassion for all beings and knows no hatred."

"Even the vastness and depth of all the oceans combined together are still shallower and narrower than the desire of the lustful mind of a man."

"No matter where you live - in the air, in the middle of the ocean, or in a cave, you cannot escape from death. A place where death cannot reach is none."

by holding an election only four days after Easter vacation, which is hardly allowed time for any meaningful dialogue to take place. Also, a brochure was published, the money coming out of university funds, that painted a rosy picture but gave no substantive information while urging a "yes" vote. Few students had any idea what they were voting on and at the time of the election was intended to keep them that way. Had it not been for a few dedicated people that election would have been held and the damage already done. We as students should be extremely disturbed over the way in which this entire affair has been handled.

It is said that the "mini-dome" will enhance Northern's reputation among other universities and people in general. But is our reputation to be based on mere inanimate structures, of shall it be found in the dedication to academic excellence by its faculty and students? Let us show everyone concerned, and in no uncertain terms, that we are committed to the latter course.

Methylmercury, nitrates, phosphates, DDT: They're coming on you but you're not into them. You're under the gun, and you can't scan the scope. What does it mean? I'm screaming Ecocide and you're saying, "Right on, Ecocide. What's an Eco, anyway?" Ecocide is the destruction of an entire system, usually by the pollution of that system, and I say this: if you do not grab your head firmly by both ears and pull it out of your ass, it's going to be far too late to get the hell out of Dodge City. I can hear you holding your breath and saying to yourself: "Another alarmist!" You bet your sweet Escherichia coli I'm an alarmist, but I'm into this arena, and I know where the heat's hauling from.

Start with methylmercury. We scientists sure got caught in the blizzard with our zippers down on this problem. Ten years ago it was known that no animal could convert inorganic relatively safe mercury into deadly methylmercury. It turns out that not only is the liver of mammals able to make the conversion in small amounts, but a mud dwelling microorganism called Methanobacterium omelanski can digest mercury and concentrate methylmercury 1000 times. Ultimately the lethal compound is deposited in the tissues of fish which is eaten by people. The scientific community has virtually ignored this warning, as did the state. (Science refused this article). So, while they (the ecologists and the politicians) pick through the fish bones, we eat fish, vomit blood, go blind, and die.

Let's run down phosphates and nitrates. What are they? These are merely names for compounds containing phosphorus and nitrogen. But these are very special compounds in that they are able to promote the growth of certain algae. The algae eat the compounds and grow more, bigger and better algae to the point that the algae are choking the lake by using most of the available oxygen that is dissolved in the water. The animals in the lake then die from lack of oxygen. Late in the summer the algae also die. Result? Yummy smell: dead algae and dead fish. With the lake depleted of oxygen, there is little likelihood that the lake will be able to support any life in the near future. We could say the pond has died from an overdose of phosphates and nitrates.

WAR-TAX

When you pay your phone bill next time, think about the two words "dispassionate violence". That roughly means violence is perpetuated by ignorance and lack of compassion for human beings that are being murdered by a brutal technology, withdraw your support to Federal Excise Tax on your phone bill which buys destruction.

Maybe this whole mess is a Fantasy to alot of you. But somewhere in Vietnam families wake-up to the concussion of bombs dropped from 50,000 feet. Some never wake-up. And strangely enough these precious human lives are nothing but a green "blip" on a B-52 bombardier's scope.

Now a few words on everybody's secret but favorite killer: DDT. DDT is able to destroy all of the life on a watershed (or any other system) without any trouble. The problem is that it kills. Not just bugs, not just birds, not just fish; DDT kills men. And this DDT can get at you in three ways. One way is very direct: you eat the DDT that is in and on the fruit that you eat. A second way is that the DDT is washed off of the trees into streams. The algae absorb this DDT, as do the insects; both of which are eaten by the fish; which you eat. The third way is that the insects are poisoned, and are easier to catch. The birds eat the insects and you eat both the birds and the bird's eggs. In the end you get a death dose from all three sources that makes hemlock look like the fountain of youth.

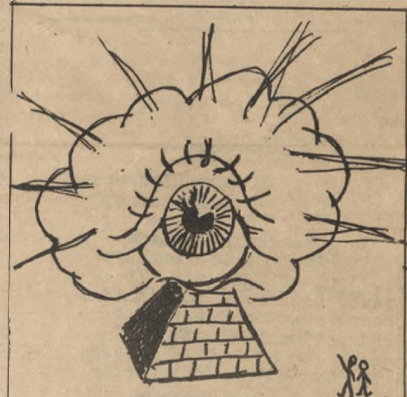

The music is building and the baddies are winning. Where is the seventh cavalry? Will this be a too-late-the-hero? Where is the messiah to lead us out of the polluted lands? Don't hold your breath; in ecology the seventh cavalry is bullshit. All we've got for swirling kilts and skirling bagpipes is you; and, you're marginal. Isn't that a kick in the ass? You expected to have someone save you and now you have to do it yourself. So clean the wax out of your ears and the lint out of your navel and get your raggedy asses in gear.

Get out and pressure the industry to clean up and produce some alternatives to the pesticide problem. If you do not, you will die. If you do not educate and pressure the farmers and the merchants, they will continue to grow and sell the chemically impregnated meats and fishes that can kill you. The farmers will continue the pesticide cycle that threatens already to engulf you. And if you do not fight for strict legislation to protect yourself, then you will die.

Do you understand? You are being slowly poisoned. If you can reconcile yourself to that fact, then eat shit and die. That's the choice: Do something or Die.

People generally believe that, in the case of seeing, it is the eye which actually sees. They think that, "Seeing is I: I see things: eye and seeing and I are one and the same person." In actual fact this is not so. Eye is the one thing and seeing is another and there is no separate entity such as "I" or Ego. There is only the fact of "seeing" coming into being depending on the eye-----the third eye!

ROD STEWART

Ron Wood Ron Lane

A feeling like being stoned. A very unique drummer driving you down through a spinning tunnel that is being woven by guitar and keyboards. You fall through and wait for that earthy voice to smash you back up again, "Baby I'm amazed at the way I really need ya". Just one of the live cuts on the new "FACES" that is really down home Rod Stewart. This is one of those albums in which you can listen to a thousand times and the jams still hold your attention. A very solid and together piece of work. On another cut you can feel the vibes as Rod asks the audience to join in. The reply to "Are you with me" lays some very mellow music on the people. Again the Stewart-Wood lyrics are unreal. A number like "Mother don't you recognize your son" is pure high vibes. I recommend this album to anyone who digs good English Rock Patterns.

An outstanding Broadway hit has come to Northern named Dark of the Moon. It achieved that rare combination of being spectacular and at the same time intimate and intense. Its hillbilly dialect has the stangly moving poetic quality of a folk ballad.

Lewis Nichols, of the N.Y. Times states it's "the kind of play the audience instantly likes." N.Y. Herald Tribune--"a show of magical appeal." London Daily Herald--"The American authors give us an astonishing play, a fearsome legend."

So all of you in the Marquette area come and see us hillbillies and hear what we have to say.

CROSBY, STILLS, NASH, & YOUNG
4 WAY STREET

by Oscar Watson

Four Way Street, recorded live by CSNY over a long period of time at different concerts, is a unique and diversified listening experience. The two record set, offering some 80-90 minutes of fine artistry and showmanship, is well worth the few extra dollars above a normal album price.

Each artist performs individually on two or three of his own composition, some of them new on this album, while the entire band comes together for some heavy jams on several familiar individual and collective CSNY tunes such as Carry On and Southern Man. Neil Young gives virtuoso performances on his own songs Don't Let It Bring You Down and On The Way Home. David Crosby offers fine renditions of his creative talent in The Lee Shore and Triad. Chraham Nash has several new songs which he performs like a professional, in Chicago and Right Between The Eyes, and Steven Stills, already distinguished in CSNY's previous albums continues to display his musical talent and ability on a cut that is sort of a wailing rally, join-in type song that is a combination of Bye Byes and For What It's Worth.

Seeing that this is a live album, there are many instances of conversation between the members of the ensemble themselves, as well as the audience and also many introductions and explanations of the songs.

The group is joined by several new backing musicians who replaced Dallas Taylor and Greg Reeves from Deja Vu. All in all, the album is a fine anthology of the better CSNY songs to date.

See George and Martha react to the phenomenon of cultural change showing love, passion, hate, interaction to their small subculture. Newsweek states "a brilliantly original work of art and exorcising theatrical experience, surging with shocks of recognition and dramatic fire." Time says "In the theatre there are, ultimately, two kinds of drama, the quick and the dead." Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? belongs articulately and terrifyingly among the quick.

ASTROLOGICAL ASPECTS

"HOW GIRLS GET THEIR MEN"

(For girls only, Men, don't you dare read this).

A girl has ample opportunity to meet men through school, job, parties, skiing, tennis, bowling, football, baseball, little theater groups, volunteer work for a community organization or a political party. Once she has met her special man, how she keeps him is determined by her sign. Some approach the problem the way a general goes into battle. It's fortunate that the "enemy", one he has been conquered, will be better off and happier for it.

Venus (Taurus and Libra) is the planet of love. The Taurians and Librians will have not only one of these ways ingrained in their nature, but all of them. The rays of Venus--wow!

The girl who gets her man through physical attractiveness alone is ruled by Venus (Taurus and Libra) and Mars (Aries). She invests much time and money in her wardrobe, in the care of her hair, skin, and appearance. She knows how to emphasize her best features and hide the bad ones. She must not neglect her mental attributes either.

The girl who wins her man through sex appeal is ruled by Venus and Neptune (Pisces). It's not the clothes and appearance that matter as much as knowing how to turn on her exotic charm. Her charm has a magnetic, mysterious, almost mystical appeal. It is a whisper, never a shout, it exudes a subtle attraction, never a blatant one. A man knows she has uncovered depths that make him want to know her better.

The girl who gets her man through "utter helplessness" is ruled by the moon (Cancer), Venus, and Saturn (Capricorn). She may be a whiz of efficiency, but will pretend to be undone by some small detail. She may have been the star of her accounting class, but before men, she will practically weep in confusion at doing her income tax. If she breaks her leg, he will see her as so in need of help, he knows she cannot possibly get along without him.

The girl who gets her man because of her general "wholesomeness" is ruled by Venus (Taurus and Libra) and the Sun (Leo). Many men like girls who can share in sports, hobbies, or a rigorous life with them. She has a lock of unblemished innocence, untarnished belief in the joy of living, in romance, in simple delights. She will be at home in the swimming pool, on the tennis court, golf course, the ski slopes. She will learn these enthusiastically for him. For him, she will give up a few of her late parties so she can get up early and go fishing with him.

The girl who gets her man through "intrigue" is ruled by Taurus and Pluto (Scorpio). She knows how to take advantage of the right moment. If a man is sick with a cold she's there to nurse him and pamper him, to make him hot soup, to soothe his fevered brow, to feed him aspirin. If he mentions a hole in his sock, she will mend it, then take his whole laundry, not only washing it, but mending and tightening and replacing buttons, until it is easier to keep her

"AND BE SURE TO WEAR YOUR RUBBERS" (This could be the best advice your mother ever gave you.)

If you are like me by this time in the semester you have quit reading posters. Shortly before I quit, I read one that said, Zero Population Growth and who to get in contact with. I did. I found a small group of people interested not only in stopping the explosion that has been engulfing the United States in the last few years but also a group trying to make a better place to live. We are people concerned about people pollution.

People pollution takes two forms. The first and most obvious is overpopulation. I know this doesn't seem to be much of a problem in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan, but ask someone from Chicago, New York, or some other large city what the effect of so many people have on the society. Find out about the housing, the welfare agencies, the breaking down of family groups, etc.

We have deluded ourselves into thinking that God was speaking to the people of the United States when he said, "go forth and replenish the earth". We have deluded ourselves into thinking that the sole reason for people being on earth is to produce more people—the more the merrier—and we don't feel fulfilled until we add our part to the growing pollution.

Some people don't know proper means of contraception. It seems that every time some women go to bed they wake up pregnant. This is unnecessary. With "the pill", condoms, vaginal creams and foams, and other asundry means of contraception available—many of them non-prescription—there is no reason for an unwanted pregnancy today. ZPG is attempting to make contraceptives available at cost—not to aid in the immoralization of our fellow students, but to protect you. Sexual roulette isn't fun—sex without worry is. Everything enjoyable doesn't have to be dangerous.

The second people pollution problem in Venereal Disease of V.D. This is where condoms again take their place, but even they are not 100% safe. The U.S. reports nearly half a million new cases of V.D. every year among people under the age of 21. The U.S. government spends $6.4 million every year just keeping records of these people. ZPG asks why this money can't be doled out as grants to universities to study the problem and attempt to develop a vaccine to protect against it instead of shooting a person full of penicillin to try to get rid of it. When you want to protect against fire you don't wait until the fire is going and call the fire department, No, You install a sprinkler system before it is necessary. In like manner, let's install a vaccine as protection against the fire of V.D. instead of trying to save the gutted out frame of a person practically destroyed by the ravages of V.D.

If you're interested either in helping ZPG or in the idea of having contraceptives available on campus by fellow students, just call John Thomas at 7-3065, Joyce Holbrook at 226-6896, or Eddie Burns at 7-0605. We will attempt to do what is necessary to help or to put you in contact with someone who can.

We want to know your ideas. With a concerted effort we can make some changes for the better in this section of the world—will you help?

PHI ZAPPA KRAPPA
ON THE MOVE

The growing brotherhood and sisterhood of Phi Zappa Krappa, is the only local service fraternity on campus, and has just taken second place in the Grand Root-Beer Funfest. To celebrate our triumph we all went cruising for burgers in a groovy '55 Ford (we also boozed it up and tore apart the seats, but we won't mention that).

In the past semester and a half our growing organization has had many fulfilled activities. To begin with we sponsored a Christmas social to help new students become more acquainted with fraternity life and above all with each other. The Christmas social was a smashing success and we were forced to sponsor a Martigra Golden Celebration.

At both occasions we enjoyed a delicious fruit punch, party favors, party games, singing, dancing, and a vast array of gourmet snacks. Phi Zappa Krappa has also sponsored a Zappa Teach-In which consisted of a guest speaker who was a most qualified authority on the music of Frank Zappa and his merry Mothers of Invention. Although the Teach-In was not a success, (since only the fraternity members showed up) it was, however, very informative. At least all of the members got to drink a lot more of the fruit punch, not to mention the root-beer and burgers. We could write a book concerning all the things we've done, but now let's forget about the past and dip into the future.

We have many plans for the future, for instance, we are all anxiously awaiting the Phi Zappa Krappa Kegger, and that delicious draft root beer. It was mentioned at the last meeting (which by the way was held over at the house) that we throw a little fruit punch in with the root-beer in order that we could have our first mixer. Plans are under way

my column

by Bert Montiegel

Linda and Richard Meyers, two former residents of Ann Arbor, and "kinda drop outs from Eastern," as Mrs. Meyers puts it, are now living here in Marquette. They are the owners, managers, general custodians and number one salesmen of Marquette's newest and most unique bookstore, i.e., The Third Eye.

The couple got together five-thousand dollars, and then combined this with a dream and opened the bookstore. Their goals for the bookstore do not include getting rich, as most businesses strive for. According to Mrs. Meyers, "we're on the world's lowest scale of capitalism." "We are trying to do our little bit to make the world a better place to live," she further stated. "We would like to offer the people of Marquette something in an alternative in reading matter through which people can change the world for themselves."

"Soon," Linda explains, "we will be moving our shop just up the street to 817 N. 3rd." "That will be right next to the Magic Mushroom," she continued. With moving, The Third Eye, hopes to be able to offer an even bigger and better selection of printed material.

One of the big things they hope to do at their new store will be to start dealing in textbooks, to give H.M.U. students a badly needed break.

Business for The Third Eye has not been all it could be. Richard Meyers speaking through his thick beard and moustache, "we generally get about 25 persons in here a day, and only about five of them end up buying anything." "What really upsets us," firmly stated Mrs. Meyers, is not the people that don't buy anything but rather the people who just step in thirty seconds and then take off." She continued, "We really don't care if anyone buys anything or not, but we live people to come in, look around, talk for a while, if they see something they like -- fine -- but if not so what?"

The Meyers store is the same as their home. They treat their book buying friends more like guests in their own home than they do as customers. "We like people to just come in and talk," stated Linda Meyers, dressed in her colourfully patched bell bottom blue jeans.

According to Mrs. Meyers, the two of them try to read most of the material that comes in to the store. "It's really is rather difficult, you know? -- more like impossible," she concedes. Linda admits that her husband reads more than she does, "right now I'm carrying eight hours at N.M.U., and I just finished working in the title role of the play based on Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland, with all of this it is hard to read very much outside." She, nonetheless, recommends books very readily. "May I suggest some novels by either Hemingway or Hess," she stated with a smile of a person truly knowing what she is talking about. Richard, who is more un-likelyly with book titles, half-jokingly, "I would want to his recommendation of 'The End of the Affair' by E.M. Forster or 'The Day After Tomorrow' by Gene DePaul or 'The Day After Tomorrow' by Gene DePaul or 'The Day After Tomorrow' by Gene DePaul or 'The Day After Tomorrow' by Gene DePaul."

Richard and Linda Meyers are beautiful people with a beautiful home. More important they are making their dream a reality!

Peace.

The North Vietnamese are not going to release highly trained pilots-which most of the 339 POWs are-to take up their former occupation of dropping millions of pounds of bombs on them. In the "Vietnamized" war even more than before, planes and pilots will be the key elements. Consequently, pilot-prisoners, whose training cost the United States more than a half-million dollars per man, will not be regarded in the same way a ground combat soldier would be.

So Vietnamization of the war will also be Vietnamization of the POWs, and we who care about these men had better be aware of that fact. No petitions, no threats, no negotiations will change it.

There is something President Nixon can do to gain the release of the POWs. And only one thing. That is to end the war, a war that the rest of us are sick of, and ashamed about, anyway. He can set a date, soon, by which all American fighting men and machines will be out of Vietnam. He can tell the South Vietnamese that our money and military power will not be used any more to keep "them" prisoners of a military junta-the Thieu-Ky government-that they hate. That's how to free the POWs and bring them, and the 365,000 other soldiers, home where we want them and they want to be.

MINI-DOME?

A few facts to consider before voting on the mini-dome proposal.

These figures don't even consider retiring the principal on the bonds merely annual costs and interest rates.

Interest Rates on Four Million $

1%	= $40,000.00
2%	= $80,000.00
3%	= $120,000.00
4%	= $160,000.00
5%	= $200,000.00
6%	= $240,000.00

These interest rates are per annum figures.

By conservative calculations, the operating costs per annum would be:

Labor (Presuming a maintenance crew of ten to fifteen permanent employees)	$150,000.00
Heat	80,000.00
Materials for maintenance & upkeep	25,000.00
Electricity	25,000.00
Management & Manager and secretaries	25,000.00
Managerial Supplies	5,000.00

Rough estimate of costs annually (total) $310,000.00

Other essential questions must be asked are:

A.) How much rent must the mini-dome management charge for:

- 1.) five football games?
- 2.) 12 basketball games?
- 3.) a four day basketball tourney? (High School)
- 4.) Several track meets?

In order to meet these rental expenses, what will the N.M.U. Athletic Dept. do? Raise ticket prices? Raise student activity fees? How low must the rent be in order to make the mini-dome attractive to local high schools for athletics?

B.) How much rent will be charged for concerts, plays, and automobile shows? Will the rent be competitive with the proposed ice arena that the city projects?

C.) How much rent will athletic and physical education offices pay? How will this influence N.M.U.'s operating budget? In turn, how will this affect library appropriations, faculty salaries, and the climate of learning as well as the quality of education and instruction at this University?

D.) N.M.U. football games will be played on artificial turf. Will the team practice in the dome? Will rent be paid for practice hours? If so, can the dome really be called an "all events center" from September through December? Or will the team practice outdoors? Will taxpayers be asked to provide an artificial turf and a special field outdoors?

In review of the probable high expenses for rental, is it not reasonable to assume that the Athletic Department will not schedule basketball and track in the Dome. Basketball can be played in the Hedgecock fieldhouse and track draws few spectators anyway. If operating costs increase, in theory, is it not possible that even football would be played at Memorial field and that N.M.U. would be stuck with a multimillion dollar white elephant. Can you really imagine how poor the acoustics would be in a dome that would require a one-hundred and twenty yard football field and would probably be an other one-hundred or more yards wide?

THE VIETNAMIZATION OF THE POW 'S

The Nixon Vietnamization policy means:

-the gradual withdrawal of half or more of the American ground troops in Vietnam-and the commitment of the rest to years more there;

-turning over most ground combat to Vietnamese soldiers to reduce American casualties-while increasing Vietnamese losses;

-continuation of bombing and strafing by American planes and pilots, to support the military forces allied with us in South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos;

-the possibility of a wider war that will draw the U.S. in deeper and deeper;

-the Vietnamization of the American Prisoners of War.

What does the Vietnamization of the POWs mean?

First, it means there will be more pilot-POWs as more planes are shot down (it means, perhaps thousands of American and Vietnamese ground troops will be killed, too).

Second, it means guaranteeing that the POWs will remain in their prison camps for years to come, until the war finally winds down somehow.

Have you ever wondered whether the campus bookstore makes a profit or not? Or whether the prices we pay for books are too high? I know I have, many times! And the answer to both questions is yes. The bookstore does turn in a profit, and a substantial one and the cost of our books are too high.

Recently the academic senate did a study on the operations of the university bookstore for the academic year 1969-70. They discovered some very interesting facts. It seems the university (in another one of its book juggling feats), charges itself thirty-five thousand dollars for rent. This amount by the way, if based on a standard twenty year mortgage would completely pay off a $700,000.00 building (that could be student run). Anyway, based on this rather 'arbitrary' rent figure, the bookstore earned in that year 4.5% NET profit on sales. In addition they had a 14% rate of return on investment, bringing the total NET profit to almost $63,000.00.

What is being done with this profit? That, I guess, is hard to say. It seems to disappear into the ledger books and turn up, who knows where. There have been recommendations... one of which is that all profits over 9% (this figure is not arbitrary, but based on sound business practices) should be rechanneled back into student oriented causes, such as lower prices or scholarship funds. This proposal is feasible, and we feel that the students should rally behind the faculty in support of it.

VIETNAM 1971

SUBMITTED BY RON ZWOLINSKI

The following is a letter I received from a friend of mine stationed in Vietnam. I feel its content is well worth sharing with others. It says a great deal, even without "reading between the lines."

Dear Ron, Giner, and Jenny,

Gee, it was good to hear from you again. You are often in my thoughts and I was glad to hear that things still seem to be going well.

As you are aware, I have been over here now for about seven months. Although I am trained as a radar operator, I now find myself driving a bus back and forth between Monkey Mountain (where I am stationed) and Da Nang Air Base. It's a hot, mind bending job, but it allows me to have three full days off a week. I spend those three days at the China Beach Orphanage, the Crescent Beach Orphanage, or the Crescent Beach Lepersarium.

I have been visiting the above mentioned places for several months. I help the missionaries out who are in charge by scrounging for them and doing minor repair work. I am supporting two little boys, A-Tronh at China Beach and Cvet at Crescent Beach. They are both Montanards(sp.) or tribes people. I think they are both five although no one knows for sure. They are both very quiet and have big sad eyes.

Tuesdays I go out to Crescent Beach. It lies across the bay from us and can be reached only by boat or chopper. I usually go by boat which takes about an hour. The orphanage and Lepersarium are about four-hundred yards apart and are situated on a gently curving sandy white beach protected by a back drop of lush green mountains. There are no roads leading to it and the area is quite isolated.

I usually spend the morning with the missionaries at the orphanage and then go to the Lepersarium in the afternoon and teach an English class. If I have time I usually go for a swim during the day.

The Lepers have a hard life. They are shunned by the normal Vietnamese and must exist in small colonies isolated from the rest of the community. Their deformities in most cases are pronounced (missing fingers and toes, scarred faces) which makes it hard for them to make a living. Limited fishing and farming are all they know. They exist for the most part on charity.

I attempt to keep my nights as filled as my days. I am taking a Vietnamese language course and I am also studying to become a Medic. I work closely with the Medic here on base and I am taking a government course upon the completion of which I will obtain a rating as a Medical Service Specialist. I not only keep mentally active but physically active as well by working out with the weights every other night.

As you can see I do many things in order to forget the fact that I am in the middle of a war. But it is a hard fact of life over here. The poverty is unbelievable. These people live a life style that hasn't changed for centuries. Refugees from the country are crowded into squalid slums that are made out of cast off plywood and tin patched together to form a shelter. The people are bitter and don't care for Americans. Vagabonds five years old and younger exist by stealing from the G.I.'s. If you walk through the villages you won't get two steps before the kids swarm around you to pick you clean or the "Boom-Boom" boys try to get you to hop on their motorcycles or in their jeeps for a ride to the nearest whore house (reaching said destination doubtful). I am convinced that these people's only wish is for survival. They could care less who wins the war. For the peasants, it won't make any difference anyway.

But never the less I have extended. I feel I must make an effort to change the way things are. I can't return to the unbelievable wealth of the United States without trying to end some of the misery over here. I sometimes become frustrated but I must continue trying. Write soon.

Love,
Pat

To the community:

The proposed mini dome seems to be the question of the moment. In considering this proposal we must be ready to look at every aspect. The university has supposedly given us a choice in the matter. Let's say the students do agree to finance the dome, it would only seem right that the dome be under student control. This would enable us to use any of the profits or proceeds from the dome for our own benefit - such as lowering tuition or in any other vital areas.

We must also consider the information put out by Free Students Now. The city of Marquette is constructing a combination ice arena and convention center; the university has proposed to the students the mini dome and is also planning on constructing a new HYPER building. It would seem much more logical to combine these three projects since they are all so closely related. A planning committee for all Marquette county should be formed so that plans can be made on a county-wide basis. It would be far more beneficial for the county to look far into the future than to consider only their immediate needs and interests. By combining these three projects, everyone - the university and the county and city of Marquette - would benefit and the entire expense would not be placed on the students.

Personally, we feel no need for the dome as it is now proposed. At the present time, the amount of money needed for this operation could be used in many, much more vital areas. Remember, it's up to you. Please take it all into consideration, then get out and vote no!

NMU STUDENT LOOKS AT D.C. RALLY

Steve Buechler

Why Go To Washington?

Even before I left for Washington, D.C., I was receiving criticism on the significance of participating in a peace rally. The Peoples Lobby, a group of hard core, anti-war activists, were organizing a peaceful demonstration April 24. The purpose in mind was to rally the people of America to show their strength in opposition to the IndoChina war. Students at Northern, and other universities as well, were wallowing in the thought of old marches and rallies. There were a million people in the streets of Washington and San Francisco in Nov., 1969, yet the war still raged on. Subsidized by the Hunt Hall council I travelled over one thousand miles to find a flaw in the obtuse claim of pacifists.

My appearance at the peace rally supplied me with a more knowledgeable perspective on the war. Through the use of public speeches and vast amounts of literature I found out the main reason we're in Vietnam. I found out from concerned citizens, not from members of Nixon's hypocritical staff.

We tried to buy the friendship of the Vietnamese--but failed. The Vietnamese army, we thought, would fight harder now that the battle was for their homeland. We assumed the quantity of the army would increase as well as the quality. On both accounts the U.S. failed to see this.

The girl who gets her man because he thinks he is doing all the pursuing is ruled by Venus and Mercury (Gemini and Virgo). These girls will do a lot of research on their men, finding out his favorite places, where he is likely to be, then just "happen to run into him." She will let him escort her home, and if she (somenow) has his favorite food on hand, will let him invite himself in for dinner. She will never seem to be forward or even want to get married, until he pops the question.

The girl who gets her man because she was a good listener and displayed sympathetic understanding is ruled by Venus (Taurus and Libra), the moon (Cancer), and Neptune (Pisces). These girls are always willing to listen to a man's problems at the office, with his family, or whatever. Her cheerful, optimistic outlook can always make things seem better than they are, and her man appreciated this.

The girl who gets her man under circumstances seemingly activated by the "fates" is ruled by Jupiter (Sagittarius) and Uranus (Aquarius). This can be a breathtakingly sudden thing which is not expected. It may be a "love-at-first-sight" kind of situation, or two old friends who suddenly realize they are in love. These girls are looking for intellectual and spiritual companions.

The girl who covets another girl's man, or gets him to leave his present girl for her is ruled by Mars (Aries), Neptune (Pisces), Saturn (Capricorn) and Pluto (Scorpio).

Good luck girls! Happy hunting!

John Kerry's Vietnam Veterans set Washington on its ear April 19-23. They had successfully stood up to a Supreme Court injunction forbidding them to make camp on the Mall. This plot of land is just a few hundred yards from the Capitol.

Friday night I slept out at the base of the Washington Monument. Along with my two buddies, George and Chris, we awoke to a bright sunshine the morning of April 24. Someone passed me a copy of the Spring Movement. On its cover read: It was a long, reflective winter. Now it is time to come together and renew the struggle for human rights, civil rights, and peace. Because of the Vietnam Veterans incident I felt that our power to protest would have some strength now that the media had given us some recognition.

The march down Pennsylvania Ave. was beautiful. Everyone had a banner with a different saying. Groups of students, intermingled with older people chanted, "Peace Now." Whole families marched showing they too cared--about their sons and relatives.

Assemblies of Blacks, Puerto Ricans, Indians, and even blue collar workers marched side by side protesting discriminatory actions by the U.S. government. The protesters aims were similar--stoppage of the war and funneling the war funds elsewhere.

people were protesting the degradation of the U.S. These people shouted aloud that a country so powerful in world affairs surely could rid itself of further humiliation in Vietnam.

At the steps of the Capitol speakers spoke of ending the war RIGHT NOW! Senator Vance Hartke (D-Ind) in one of the major speeches of the day spoke out forcefully against the war. He said, "We have bled too much, committed too many horrors and the time to get out is now. Let our voices sound the two great words of peace in no uncertain terms--OUT NOW!"

Kerry, leader of the anti-war veterans, reminded the crowd of this country's future. "Thirty years from now, when our brothers go down the street without an arm or a leg and the children ask why, we'll be able to say Vietnam," he said. "We'll mean a place where America finally turned and where soldiers like us helped in the turning."

Marches and rallies impart a solidarity and sense of unity. Most of the marchers that day, young and old, were taking their first step towards opposing the government. I feel that peace is soon forthcoming. The battle has yet to be won. If the government does not stop the war then the people must stop the government!

The students that went to Washington as representatives of Northern Michigan would like to sincerely thank the Hunt Hall Council and especially John Bair for their encouragement and financial support, without which we never would have made it.

PHI ZAPPA KRAPPA ON THE MOVE

for a dinner dance but nothing but nothing definite has been set as of yet. We are looking forward to the Mud-Fest and hope to announce our candidate for Mud-Queen shortly. Some of our plans for the Mud-Fest are:

1. To put up a booth for those who are having trouble in the night.
2. To establish a Zap-Line for emergency calls.
3. To conduct a campus-wide litter campaign for which we will supply rakes, pails, shovels, clubs, and other implements of destruction.

By far it should be a fun-filled week, and we can't encourage all of you students enough to participate. So put on your best shark-skinned coat and slick your hair back and get out there. Make this a worthwhile campus function.

Other spring activities include: An open fraternity picnic, which will include picnic games of all sorts, and food galore, not to mention fruit punch and Zapple wine. There will also be assorted fraternity projects. Keep your eyes open for further bulletins. In conclusion, we would like to encourage you to become acquainted with the music of Frank Zappa and the Mothers of Invention. We are currently working on getting them here for a gig. (Many are called but few are chosen).
