Groups replaced by expanded President's Council

BY LUCAS SPONSER
EDITOR IN CHIEF

As part of the administrative restructuring NMU experienced last summer, NMU President Judi Bailey sought to streamline some of the university's committees.

"In not wanting to duplicate the use of people's time — have them show up for two meetings when they only needed one," Bailey said. "What we said we would do is expand the President's Council."

Two groups were eliminated and one was expanded. The Administrative Roundtable and the University Priorities Committee no longer exist, while the President's Council has been expanded from 12 members to 35.

"The administrative roundtable had met only a couple of times a year. It was kind of an 'as needed' group," Bailey said. "Many of the administrators on the administrative roundtable, because of the reorganization, joined the President's Council so we would have their regular input."

Nearly all of the members of the former Administrative Roundtable are now on the President's Council, however, only three members of the former UPC are on the expanded roster for the President's Council.

"Membership for UPC wasn't replaced," said Paul Duby, associate vice president for planning and analytical studies. "But the President's council was expanded to do many of the same things

UPC was doing.

"It (UPC) was advisory to the president and so was president's council."

This is due in part to the transitory nature of the UPC membership.

"[UPC membership] changed every year," Duby said. "You had people rotate off, and new people rotate on every year."

The total number of students on advisory committees to the president has been

Graduate student injured in car accident

On Sept. 25 Master of Fine Arts program member Penny Olson had a diabetic reaction while she was driving to NMU, and her truck veered off the road, sending Olson into a fight for her life.

Olson, a member of Teaching Fellows, has her master's and bachelor's degrees in English and writing from NMU.

Olson suffered severe injuries to her leg, pelvis, face and ribs. An official from Marquette General Hospital said Olson was upgraded to fair condition on Oct. 3 and removed from intensive care.

English professor Ray Ventre has visited Olson at Marquette General Hospital nearly each day since the accident.

"She's expected to make a full recovery," Ventre said. "Penny is really looking forward to getting back into the classroom."

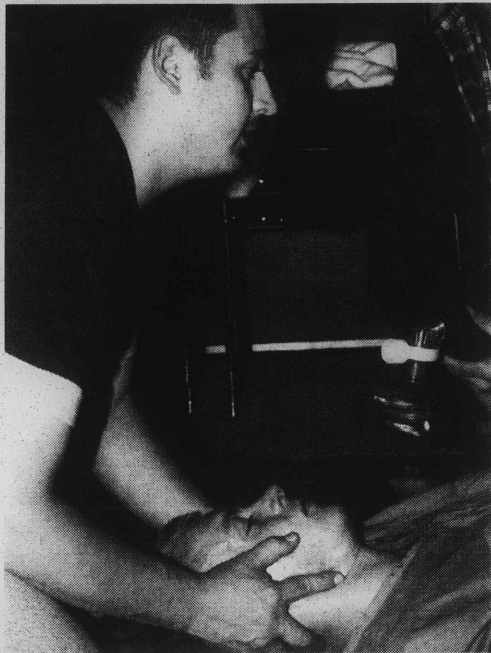

Ventre said that Olson had pins placed in her leg and had to undergo a series of reconstructive surgeries over the past week.

"She had about seven or eight breaks in one leg," Ventre said.

reduced from three to one. The UPC had two students on it, while the President's Council continues with only one, presently ASNMU President Nathan Leach.

The faculty is now represented on the President's Council in the form of four new seats. Five seats on the UPC were devoted to faculty.

The faculty representation on the new President's Council comes in the form of the current Academic Senate chair and three faculty award recipients from the previous year.

"Rather than me just reach out and pick somebody," Bailey said. "I thought it would be better to have a rotation that had people who were recognized by their peers as being leaders among the faculty."

The President's Council has absorbed more than just the UPC's advisory responsibilities.

Bailey said the President's Council plans "to hold a series of input meetings on campus, as we did through the UPC before, but to do that through a sub group of the President's Council."

Input meetings still in the planning stages will discuss enrollment-related issues, campus facilities and university budget issues, DUBY said.

OLSON

Ventre said that it was fortunate that nobody else was injured in the accident.

Olson was instructing a course as a special assignment from the Master of Fine Arts program in native studies and literature.

Last year Olson had to cope with the death of her husband. She is now raising two teenagers, in addition to teaching and taking classes at NMU.

"Penny is a survivor," Ventre said. "She'll get through this."

Olson called the NMU English department to apologize for missing her classes less than 48 hours after the accident.

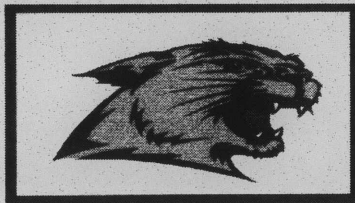

"MFA students are a cut above average," Ventre said. "We're proud of all of them."

Moose appear as mating begins

MARQUETTE — As the annual mating season for moose begins, the animal has been coming into contact with U.P. residents more often, biologists say. In Ontonagon last Sunday, a moose was hit by a car. No one in the car was injured. DNR officials searched for the animal, which walked away from the crash. They presume it is injured. Another moose was spotted on the grounds of the Newberry Correctional Facility. During the rut, moose tend to lose their characteristic shyness of humans and roam widely in search of mates. Bull moose can become especially aggressive and unpredictable. DNR officials advise keeping a safe distance from a moose if you see one.

Widow files suit following shooting

West Palm Beach, Florida — The family of a Florida schoolteacher shot to death at work, allegedly by a seventh-grade student, filed suit Wednesday against the distributor and dealer of the gun used in the killing. Barry Grunow was killed on May 26 in the final minutes of the last day of classes at Fort Worth Middle School near West Palm Beach, Florida. The teacher's widow, Pamela Grunow, is suing the distributor and Irving Mandel, the owner of Hypoluxo Pawn Shop. The suit claims the companies sold a defective weapon, and said the gun used to kill Grunow, a Raven .25 caliber semi-automatic, also known as a "Saturday Night Special," is easily concealed and has no sporting or self-defense use.

Milosevic loses, won't go quietly

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — The Yugoslav constitutional court has annulled parts of the contested presidential election, according to the state-run Tanjug news agency. President Slobodon Milosevic was defeated, the opposition party says. The opposition challenged official findings of the Federal Electoral Commission earlier on Wednesday, appealing to the justices of grant them victory in the presidential elections. The court met in emergency session to hear the complaints by the 18-party opposition coalition, who says Milosevic's allies manipulated election results using a software program. The Democratic Opposition of Serbia has not made clear what it will do if Milosevic refuses to leave office.

FBI confesses to reading Playboy

WASHINGTON — When the latest issue of Playboy magazine arrived at FBI headquarters each month, they really did read the articles. Agents ripped through the glossy pages of each issue throughout the 1960s. Supposedly they weren't interested in the centerfolds; they scoured features for cracks aimed at FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover or the bureau. "I knew somebody was buying it for more than the pictures," Playboy founder and Editor in Chief Hugh M. Hefner said in an interview with APBnews.com. The 213-page dossier on Playboy was recently sent to APBnews.com by the FBI — appropriately, in a plain brown wrapper — in response to a Freedom of Information Act request.

Parking questions voiced

BY JESSICA AYCOCK
STAFF WRITER

ASNMU and NMU's Public Safety held the first open forum for students to voice their concerns about parking and traffic situations on campus on Oct. 3 in the LRC.

About 30 students gathered in the LRC next to Bookbinders Eatery to voice their complaints about parking on campus.

The main concerns from students were about the new parking lots around campus.

One student asked about the possibility of Lot 28, by the LRC, being enlarged, but was told that parking will continue to change in that area over the next two years.

Public Safety Director Ken Chant said that plans include linking all the buildings together and making some of the parking lots smaller near the Academic Mall.

Plans for Lot 28 include downsizing.

"Commuters will have to park on the other side of Jamrich, in Lot 18," Chant said.

Chant and Gager told freshman concerned with the dirt lot on Center Street, Lot 21, that Public Safety is considering reopening the Public Safety parking lot for freshman.

Opening the Public Safety lot to freshman would provide a safer, lighted parking lot and sidewalks for students coming back to campus at late hours.

Commuter students voiced their frustrations about the lot between Thomas Fine Arts and Hedgecock Fieldhouse being converted to a faculty lot this year.

Darwin Gager, assistant director of Public Safety, said Public Safety is currently looking at the situation in Lot 62.

"We encourage commuters to use Lot 36 [behind Seaborg]," Gager said.

ASNMU President Nathan Leach said that Lot 36 is also available to commuter students and faculty on a first-come first-serve basis during the week.

Residence hall students are allowed to park in the bottom half of Lot 36, behind Spalding Hall,

"There is always parking available on campus, just not where you would prefer it to be."

from Thursdays at 5 p.m. to Mondays at 2 a.m.

Questions about the new shuttle service that started this semester were also addressed.

Public Safety will decide whether or not to continue the service after this semester.

Students voiced displeasure about the scheduling of the shuttle, saying that they were late to classes because the shuttle was not on time.

Concerns were also expressed over the number of parking passes distributed to students.

Currently there are no restrictions on the parking passes sold, but restricting freshman from parking on campus has been considered, said Gager.

"There is always parking available, just not where you would prefer it to be," Chant said.

Vote: it should go without saying

In this life, some things should go without saying. Be nice to the elderly. Help children with their homework. Get a job and don't be a burden to society and the people around you.

Be productive and get in line.

Wait a second, that last statement sounded more like an invitation to conformity. To many people, particularly those in the much maligned 18- to 24-year-old age group, conformity is not something to strive for. It is perhaps this aversion to conformity which keeps young voters from registering.

"Vote, it's the responsible thing to do," the establishment tells us.

The natural response is to shun the establishment and do the opposite; ignore our ability to affect our government. As a result, 18- to 24-year-olds have the lowest percentage of registered voters.

Arguments against registering to vote resemble arguments against buckling seatbelts. "It's my choice," or "ultimately, I don't have any control."

"I'm a good driver. I won't get into an accident."

The person who didn't wear a seatbelt has less reason to curse the windshield.

Young people, it seems, don't feel connected to the process by which we select our leaders. Perhaps if more young people sought to engage themselves in the process, others would feel more comfortable getting active.

The only people who non-voters are doing a favor to are those who are in power. When the disenchanting voice their frustration with inaction, it only serves to further entrench the establishment.

People who want to make a difference, have a voice, need to vote. It should go without saying.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Student questions Bailey's reasons

Now in my opinion, when attending something called "Building with the Baileys," one may expect from that title that the both of the Baileys would actually participate, not talk to the press, pose for photos, eat snacks or receive a tool belt that will never be used.

It wouldn't have mattered to me if Judi Bailey were building or not, I would have participated regardless. The point is, President Bailey wasn't concerned with helping others. She was only concerned with improving her own personal political status.

The day began with a presentation of an embroidered tool belt from Habitat for Humanity to Bailey. The tool belt had the NMU logo and her name on it. Are tool belts supposed to be fashionable? Honestly, we all know that tool belt cost money that could have been spent on the homes we were building.

President Bailey posed for more photos and talked to the press more than anything else. She's sure to impress many people with those photos and stories; however, most in attendance would agree that Judi

Bailey's presence was anything but impressive. Throughout the day as I worked calluses into my hands, and sweat from the tasks at hand, I kept glancing at President Bailey to see what she was up to. Every time, I was disappointed and let down. She was never working.

The day in itself was personally rewarding, and I found it exhilarating to be able to help a family in need in such a profound way. By helping to build a house, we were actually helping to build homes made with love. Unfortunately the people who move into that house will be under the impression that Judi Bailey helped them to improve the social status of their family, when in fact it was that family which helped Judi Bailey to improve her social status.

What angers me the most is that she will long be remembered for the building of that house while the real workers and helpers will be forgotten.

Habitat is a good program that helps those in need. Unfortunately though, those with power and status will always prevail simply because of their ranking within society. It is unfortunate that the president of our university would take advantage of such a good program.

Gangsta rap questioned

This statement is directed to North Wind music reviewer. Travis Margoni who said Nelly's CD "has all the elements of gangsta rap; violence, women, drugs and Range Rovers." (NW, Sept. 28)

Obviously you don't listen to too much gangsta rap or you would realize that Nelly is NOT gangsta rap, and gangsta rap consists of poverty, hard times, low income, crime, and real life necessities more than smoking "on the way to a rehab!"

Gangsta rap is more like a story telling about a struggle. I never heard Nelly say anything about a struggle besides stealing from his mother's purse, and even he admitted that his music is a mix of blues, jazz, and rap.

Learn the difference before you make such a blatant statement. Nelly also said that it would be an insult to all professional singers to say that he can sing. He knows he can't sing, I know he can't sing, he's just saying his words in his melodic voice. And rappers aren't supposed to be able to sing so why would you say "he can sing, unlike most rappers." They do what they're supposed to, RAP!

Yob's northern commitment questioned

BY JOHN COUNCIL
GUEST COLUMN

Defending our way of life ...

I had the privilege of interviewing Chuck Yob at length in August, and I'm still wondering just what part of our way of life he's going to defend.

Is it the way of life of someone who has lived virtually his entire adult life downstate? Maybe it's the way of life that says we all wear flannel shirts, ride Harleys and shoot guns.

Actually, I'm confused a lot by Mr. Yob. Let me explain. I'm terribly confused by the campaign ads where he tells us he's not going to vote Republican or Democrat, just Northern Michigan.

If that's so, then why has he brought in so many big shot Republicans to campaign for him? And why has he accepted huge campaign contributions from the National and Michigan Republican Parties?

I'm also very mystified about his complaint that Mr.

Stupak is a "beltway" guy with PAC money to burn because Mr. Yob turns right around and brags about all these big Republicans he knows and how he has connections. Does the word hypocrisy mean anything to you Chuck?

I'm confused about the bravado of Mr. Yob being a true 'up north' kinda guy, sporting flannel in his commercials and riding a Harley.

A lot of you may not know this, but Mr. Yob had a learner's permit when he fell off that Harley and broke his shoulder in August. I'm not even sure it was his bike.

I'm confused even further by his "threatened" Second Amendment rhetoric.

Mr. Stupak has protected the second amendment vigorously until last year, when he dared to go against the vaunted NRA and voted for background checks at gun shows, hardly the dream police bursting through the door and confiscating your machine gun.

Mr. Stupak, who by the way, I do not always agree with, has always been in the corner for his district. He's argued long and hard for fiscal responsibility in Congress.

He is known in Washington as an honest, decent guy who represents his district well. Mr. Stupak comes back home nearly every weekend, works tirelessly for his constituents and is as honest as the day is long. What else could you want?

If all Mr. Yob can do is attack the incumbent with mis-statements and innuendo, he should look no further than Michelle McManus, who got beat so bad two years ago, she didn't even win her own district!

The simple fact is Mr. Yob was chosen by the Republican Party to come up here and run a dirty, malicious campaign against a Democratic incumbent who has been a thorn in side of the National and State Republicans, especially Emperor Engler.

Mr. Yob is a cheap shill for the Republican Party and he has done exactly what the party has told him to do. And remember this — he is going to owe them a ton of favors if he gets elected.

Defending our way of life ...

Two-party debates deny broader views

STAFF EDITORIAL
"THE DAILY"

When the first presidential debate was introduced to the television-watching public in 1960, it was revolutionary. Wow, Nixon's on a two-year vacation with those eye-bags. And isn't ol' Jack Kennedy a looker?

But all aesthetics aside, it was a chance for the American people to gain unprecedented access to candidates — they were right there in your living room.

Nowadays, very few television viewers are enamored with the concept of television, and even fewer are smitten with the presidential debates.

What was once new ground is now a well-beaten path toward cue-card politics that's about as fresh as a hyper-color shirt.

And then there's the Green Party's Ralph Nader. Protesters nationwide voiced their discontent with Nader's exclusion from the presidential debates. When Republican George W. Bush and Democrat Al Gore took center stage, the other candidates waited in the wings for an Internet broadcast to be aired long after the country even cared.

That's not representative democracy. The two loudest voices aren't always the best ones.

Nader should've been allowed to debate. If nothing else he should not have been denied the right to attend the debate as a member of the audience.

Bush and Gore behind their respective podiums represents just that, a platform with two guys behind it.

With every exclusionary two-party debate, the status quo is being reinforced. Nader did not achieve the required 15 percent of the vote, but how is any third party candidate going to attain that number without mainstream media exposure?

It's obvious to most, you can't get the job without making yourself known to the voters.

Voting becomes a campus-wide concern

BY APRIL SPRAY
STAFF WRITER

It may be easier to find out how, when and where to vote this election because of new legislation passed this spring requiring NMU to alert students about the process.

The legislation was passed last spring and requires schools that receive Federal Student Aid to alert students how to register to vote and to provide information and forms for doing so, said Rob Roose of the financial aid office at NMU.

"We're pointing students toward the Student Services Center and Olsen Library," said Roose. "Forms will also be available at the front desks of the residence halls and in the University Center at a display near Willy's Snak Shak."

The Financial Aid Office is also doing a direct mailing that went out last week and has been sending e-mails to students.

The new law requires that the university do these things for every presidential and gubernatorial election, but Roose said they will likely inform students every fall of the process.

"The idea behind this, from the financial aid standpoint, is that students are using financial aid which is heavily funded by the government and to get them involved in the election process and get their voice into these policy decisions [made by government]," said Roose.

Forms for both local registration and out-of-town or out-of-state registration are available. No candidate information will be made available by the Financial Services Office, though other groups are looking at ways to inform the NMU community about what's coming up in this election.

The College Republicans are working on several campaigns in Marquette County and hope to do some work on campus before the election.

The group is trying to reinvigorate itself this year, said sophomore pre-law major Ben Weimert, a member of the group.

ASNMU has also weighed in with voter-registration efforts of its own.

Karen Seablom, a junior psychology major, said ASNMU has put together a "Rock the Vote" campaign that they hope to present at local high schools and to political science and history classes at NMU.

"The last election's voter turnout was so low that this project is trying to push and get the numbers up and let people know why they should vote," Seablom said. "Unless people do vote, you get a very narrow point of view elected and things don't run well. If people vote, it's more positive."

Charles Ganzert is teaching two classes this semester that address voting. BC 495/PS 495, the Election and the Media, is being offered specially during this election semester.

Ganzert is teaching the class with Steve Nelson, head of the political science department. The class is examining the ways in which the media, the candidates, and the voters manipulate each other through their desires for coverage.

"We're not advocating any party, but (we are) trying to understand the process," Ganzert said. He is also teaching BC 265, Writing and Announcing. County Commissioner Karlyn Rapport spoke to Ganzert early in the semester about the possibility of the class creating public service announcements encouraging people to vote.

The class has been working on these for several weeks now in anticipation of getting them on the air.

"This assignment is worthwhile for two reasons," Ganzert said. "If it gets a group of students interested in the process, that's progress. If we do what we intend to do, which is to get the message out, then that's great."

The class has generated a list of web links to pages with information about the election.

The list is available at www.nmu.edu/nmuvotes.

Step away from computer chains

Some call me a savage. Others call me a Luddite. I would say I'm neither. Rather in the words of Ronnie Van Zant, I'm a "simple man, I do something I love and understand."

In the wake of last week's nearly disastrous layout of the North Wind due to network server problems, I have reaffirmed my dislike for our generation's dependence on computers.

I know you are thinking, "Well, you are just computer illiterate," or "you just don't have training or patience."

I won't lie to you, I'm all of the above. Instead of staring at a glowing screen and going blind, I would rather go hiking.

I have never had a trail give me a corrupt file message.

I have never had the sky tell me "an error occurred attempting to use ethernet. Make sure your network connections are correct."

Have your shoes ever given you a type 11 error? Mine haven't. The truth is I liked my simple life, living without a telephone and a television for a year. I liked it because the outside world stayed outside. And there were less things in my house to confound me when they weren't working.

Simplicity is good. No cell phone, no laptop, no fax, no server, no scanner, no ATM.

"But how can you survive in today's fast paced world?" you ask. Well, I'll get by, somehow. I know it will be tough.

That's a little sarcasm for you; in case you didn't catch it, I tried to spread it on pretty thick.

Last week was easily the most frustrating time of my life. The entire editorial staff was calling for a ritualistic execution of our computers and network. Small caliber, close range, back of the head, BANG.

All week long it seems as if the ghost of Dr. Steven Hawking was being issued warning of impending server failures. A ghost in the machine. Rage against the machine, perhaps.

The problems festering in the North Wind office spilled over into the staff's personal lives, causing us to become aggressive toward anything electronic.

It's not often an inanimate box constructed of plastic, glass and fiber optics can get me so mad. Actually that's a lie. Any boxes of said materials get me worked up. They distract me, eat up my time and resources.

Just what the hell is a network time error?

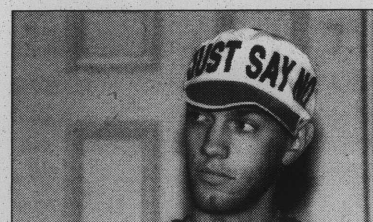

Do you ever ask yourself, "How many times is that little earth up in the corner of the screen going to turn before something happens?"

You should be asking yourself, "How many times is the Earth going to spin before I die?" This is a question I pose to you.

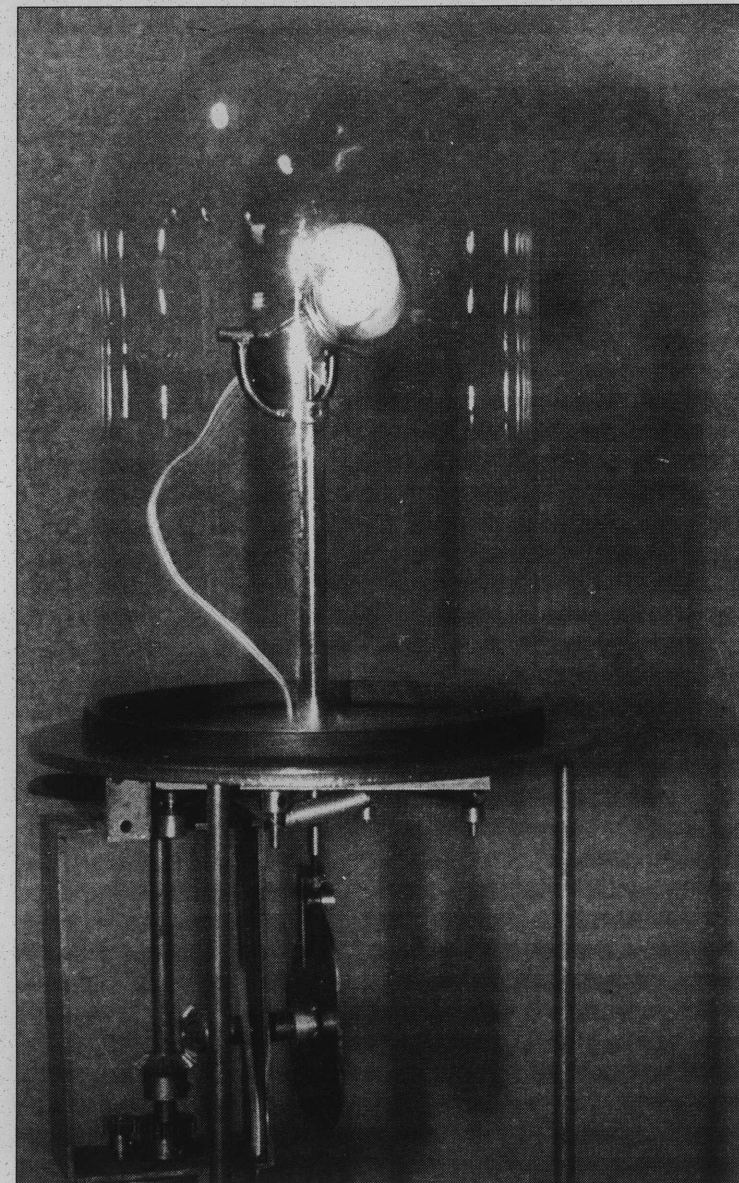

While you are answering these questions, log on to the NMU's server from off-campus between six p.m. and midnight, and try not to get booted off. Or you could just put your hand in a blender, it's just about as much fun and you don't need to plunk a couple hundred bucks down on a computer.

So for what it's worth, throw down your chains, walk away from your little black boxes and join me outside, if you still can.

Art moves viewers at NMU Gallery

Artist will speak and present show about 'Kinetic' work on Saturday

Art doesn't just hang on the wall of the NMU Art Museum.

"Kinetic Theater" features moving artwork and runs through Saturday.

The exhibit goes beyond the traditional paintings on the wall and marble structures in the middle of the floor format, said Wayne Francis, the Director of the Art Museum said.

It steps into today's computer driven society.

"The 'Kinetic Theater' is old technology combined with today's cutting edge technology," Francis said. "It is an introspective collection of found objects."

Furman's artwork has been featured at the Chicago Cultural Center.

Along with the Christopher Furman's "Moment's after the End," David Robert Nelson's Yeoman's Atelier is displayed.

Unlike the Kinetic Theater with its turning gears and rotating heads, Nelson's "Yeoman's Atelier" is a non-mechanized display of metal and machines.

Francis saw the two exhibits this past year while visiting Chicago.

"I was taken by the fact that the two artists are both young and hip," Francis said.

Both Nelson, who designed Yeoman's Atelier, and Furman are in their mid-20s and have MFA's from the Chicago Institute of Art.

The two artists reside in Chicago where they share a studio, frequently displaying their artwork together.

"There was something about the combination of seeing the two displays together that amazed me," said sophomore film major Michelle Baker. "I felt as though I had entered the time of my ancestors when I walked into the room and saw all the different pieces with their moving parts and the soft lights and music."

The "Kinetic Theater" and "Yeoman's Atelier" will be on display through Saturday.

The University Art Museum is open Monday through Friday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m.

There will be a special artist talk and slide presentation on Saturday at 7p.m.

Professors release disc

BY WINTER KYVIK
STAFF WRITER

The whole thing happened by accident.

Two professors of music, Nancy Redfern and Elda Tate, collaborated to write, record and produce the music on a new album of Irish folk music due to the luck of the calendar.

"It is a type of music that we do not perform often," Tate said.

The two, for 13 years now, have annually put on a lunchtime symphony at which they play classical music while people from all over the community bring sack lunches to listen.

"We enjoyed our past experiences working with this type of music. We also got positive feedback after performing some of the music at lunchtime concert at NMU," Redfern said.

This last year, though, since the performance date fell close to St. Patrick's Day they decided to keep things in the spirit and find some Celtic music to play.

Tate had a book of Irish folk music from which they found their inspiration.

"We then wrote our own arrangements of all the pieces but one, which was written in the 19th century," Tate said.

The compact disc features Redfern plucking the harp, which she learned to play on her own and has continued for three years now. Tate plays the flute, which for many years has held her interest.

They include renditions of "Greensleeves," "Londonderry Air," and "Last Rose of Summer," which Redfern said is a more classical piece.

The name of the album, "Irish Cream," as in Redfern's niece.

But they are much more than merely instructors of music.

Tate has been contributing to the learning atmosphere here since 1968. Her Japanese flute music interests have led to her 1991-92 solo lectures and recitals of non-traditional and Japanese flute music at Hamilton College in New York.

She also has numerous orchestral, opera, chamber and solo performances to her credit in Texas, New York and throughout the Midwest.

Redfern joined NMU in 1987, and has previously cut an album of her on the grand piano entitled "Amazing Grace."

She has co-authored a book published in 1992 titled "24 Karat Keyboard Skills," which Redfern said may be reprinted.

Previous to their latest release, there was a trio with Jason Edwards.

In 1996 Tate and Redfern created the background music for the NMU telephone service with Edwards, who added his oboe arrangements to the tone.

The recording process for "Irish Cream" took place at Redfern's farm in Carlsend. They took about three or four sessions of around two hours each, and they came out with a 48 minute album.

"Since the acoustics are pretty good, we decided to record this CD [at Carlsend]," Redfern said.

Redfern had all the equipment at her house from previous recordings; the mix board, the microphone and DAT. "Irish Cream" was mixed at a Traverse City studio.

They are self distributing the album.

To purchase a copy of the album, call Redfern at 227-1043 or Tate at 227-1041.

Women climb to leadership Saturday

BY KURT MENSCHING
FEATURES EDITOR

Women will have the opportunity to learn the basics of belaying on Saturday at the Physical Education Instructional Facility.

The women's only introductory rock climbing course is being put on as part of the Skill Builders! Fall 2000 Workshop Series. As part of the course, women will learn the basics of belaying and climbing.

The class is targeted toward the beginning rock climber, and allows women to learn the sport without the intimidation of men being around.

"There are so many guys around and they're really built up," said junior history major and class instructor Joy Karbon. "Women have different body types and need to use different techniques."

Another aspect of the intimidation, Karbon said, stems from being new to the sport.

Karbon began climbing three and a half years ago.

Since then, she has climbed in spots ranging from Tennessee to California, as well as the Upper Peninsula.

Karbon said climbing is a mental activity as well as a physical activity. "And its got damn good scenery," she said.

The rock climbing course is just one of many workshops designed to improve leadership ability, Leadership Programs Coordinator Tracy Rochon said.

"They can learn different leadership techniques and leadership skills," Rochon said. "There's a variety on assertiveness, busting stress, managing stress. All of it is geared towards building a well-rounded person."

Kochon said the rock climbing course is designed to help women improve their self esteem.

The rock climbing course will be held 1 to 3 p.m. on Saturday at the PEIF Climbing Wall in the NMU Recreational Center. There is a $6 fee and you must be 18 years old to participate.

VOLLEYBALL ASHLAND UNIVERSITY, UNIVERSITY OF FINDLAY PREVIEW

Volleyball team to end 6-match homestand

BY MIKE BROWN
SPORTS STAFF REPORTER

With a three-game winning streak intact and momentum on its side, the Northern Michigan University volleyball team will end their season long six-match homestand this weekend.

The Wildcats will face the Ashland University (Ohio) Eagles at 7 p.m. on Friday and the University of Findlay (Ohio) Oilers at 4 p.m. on Saturday at Vandament Arena.

The Wildcats (7-8 overall, 4-3 GLIAC) look to keep up their winning ways and improve their division record.

The Wildcats have winning records against both Ashland and Findlay. This will mark the tenth time the Wildcats face the Eagles. The 'Cats are 9-0 in the overall series.

The Wildcats are also undefeated against the Oilers, posting a 3-0 overall series lead.

Freshman outside hitter Kristen Koralewski continues to thrive offensively.

She leads the team in three categories — kills (165) with a 3.17 per-game average, digs (149) with a 2.87 per-game average, and service aces (25).

"We have really been working hard lately in practice and it has paid off for us," Koralewski said.

Freshman outside hitter Sabien Heisterkamp is second on the team with 161 kills and a 3.10 per-game average.

Senior middle blocker Yvette Sixbey leads the team with 55 blocks, 1.04 per-game and ranks third in kills with 141, 2.66 per-game.

The Ashland Eagles (6.14 overall, 1-6 GLIAC) are led by senior outside hitter Suzann Opperman, who leads the team in kills with 196 and a 2.76 per-game average. Freshman setter Britney Fout also plays a key role as she leads the team in assists with 445 and a 6.27 per-game average.

"Ashland has been struggling this year but we are not overlooking them," NMU head coach Scott Sandel said.

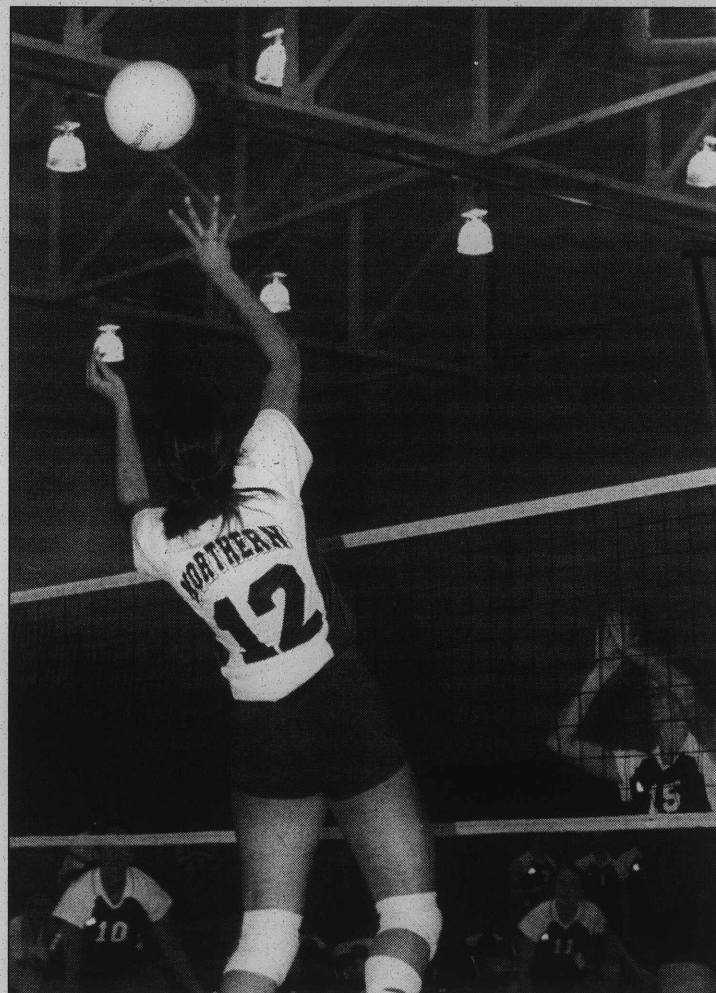

"We need to continue improving on our serve and service return game this weekend."

The Findlay Oilers lead the GLIAC South Division, they come into town with a 5-2 GLIAC record and a 17-5 overall record.

The Oilers are led offensively by junior outside hitter Deanna Behnfeldt and junior setter Holly Foster, Behnfeldt leads the team with 334 kills and a 18.56 per-game average.

Foster also leads the team in assists with 986 and a 51.89 per-game average.

"Against Findlay we really need to work on our left side defense," Sandel said. "They are really strong offensively on that side."

Jason Barnes/NW

Senior outside hitter Jill Balicki recorded a career-high 10 assists against Hillsdale College, breaking her previous record of three.

Matt Armstrong/NW

Sophomore linebacker Ben Laarman (50) scored a touchdown for NMU on a 4-yd fumble recovery in the fourth quarter against Grand Valley State University last Saturday in the Superior Dome.

FOOTBALL WAYNE STATE UNIVERSITY PREVIEW

'Cats looking to extend win streak

BY TOM MURPHY
SPORTS STAFF REPORTER

The NMU football team will attempt to continue its winning ways this Saturday, when they travel to Detroit to face the Wayne State University Warriors.

The Warriors, despite a 1-3 record, will be a worthy opponent, NMU head coach Eric Holm said.

"[The Warriors] are second in the country in offense," Holm said. "They've had two games over 600 [offensive yards], they have weapons and they know how to use them."

The Warriors are led by last week's GLIAC player of the week, junior quarterback Jason Charron. Charron helped the Warriors break a fifteen-game losing streak last week against the University of Findlay (Ohio), passing for 435 yards and four touchdowns.

In order to stop Wayne State's strong offense the 'Cats will look to control the ball and the clock.

"We're leading the league in time of possession," Holm said. "We're trying to keep our defense off the field. We're just not prolific enough, we don't have the weapons to let [WSU] score and then come right back down and score again, that just isn't going to happen for us. We have to be effi

NMU rallies against Grand Valley

BY DAVE SADENWASSER

The NMU football team trailed conference opponent Grand Valley State University, 28-10, going into the fourth quarter at last Saturday's game in the Superior Dome.

The Wildcats came back and put big plays to work on offense and defense to beat the Lakers, 29-28. Northern (4-1, 4-0 GLIAC) had trouble at times with the aggressive Laker defense. The Wildcats were held to only 71 yards passing. Sophomore Terrell Goldsmith led in rushing with 25 carries for 95 yards.

In the air, senior quarterback Bryan White went 4 of 12 for 32 yards before being forced out of the game by an injury. His leading receiver was freshman Chris Messano (1-32). Defensively, the Wildcats were led by junior defensive back Jason Lawson, who had 15 tackles.

The NMU defense was able to put the heat on Grand Valley quarterback Curt Anes, sacking him three times.

NMU initiated the scoring with a 20-yard touchdown run by Goldsmith on their first offensive drive of the game.

"[The touchdown play] was executed so well that we thought it would be easy all day," Goldsmith said.

The opposite proved to be true, as GVSU would score on two straight possessions to make the score 14-7 early in the second quarter.

NMU did not score again until the middle of the second quarter when senior wide receiver Jamone Mims ran 44 yards on a broken reverse play to set up an Andrew Coster 24-yard field goal.

By the fourth quarter, the Lakers held a 28-10 lead.

With 6:12 left in the third, sophomore quarterback Dustin Ramoie came in for the injured White and led the Wildcats to a touchdown on a 5-yard option play around the left side in the fourth quarter. Coster's kick extra point was no good, and NMU cut the GVSU lead to 28-16.

The turning point came on the very next play as an Ames fumble was recovered by NMU sophomore linebacker Ben Layman, who ran it in for a touchdown.

"That was huge," Lawson said. "It just got everyone up again."

Goldsmith and Ramoie brought NMU into the red zone on their next offensive possession, but they took to the air to get the score. Ramoie hit Senior fullback Hector Castellanos in the back of the end zone on a 3-yard pass play to get the score. NMU failed in its attempt for the two-point conversion, to leave the score at 29-28.

'Cats hit .500 mark in conference

BY MIKE BROWN
SPORTS STAFF REPORTER

The NMU volleyball team won its third straight match with victories over the Wayne State University Warriors and the Hillsdale College Chargers at home last weekend.

With the wins, the Wildcats improved to 7-8 overall and 4-3 in the GLIAC.

"We had some players step up and play big games for us," NMU head coach Scott Sandel said. "We really improved our service game and our defense as well."

On Saturday the Wildcats defeated the Warriors, 3-0 (15-6, 15-6, 15-6) attacking them early in each game.

"This is a great win for us," Sandel said.

"Beating the GLIAC South Division leader shows that we have been working hard lately during practice."

The 'Cats were led offensively by freshman outside hitter Sabien Heisterkamp, who registered a match high 13 kills.

Freshman outside hitter

Kristen Koralewski chipped in with 10 kills and also led the team with 10 digs.

"Our focus has really been high and we have played real well as a team lately," Koralewski said.

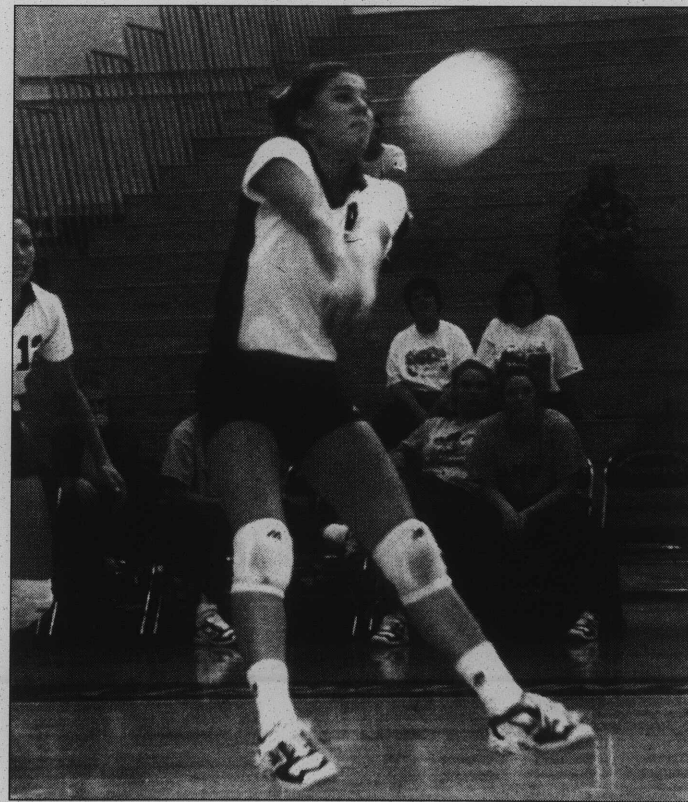

Sophomore setter Liz Madsen had a match high 38 assists and leads the 'Cats with 8.98 assist-per-game average.

For the first time this season, on Sunday the Wildcats went over the .500 mark in the GLIAC, with a 3-0 (15-9, 15-11, 15-7) victory over the Hillsdale Chargers. With the victory the Wildcats marked their longest winning streak of the year.

"Our defense came up big in this match," Sandel said. "Hillsdale played a good match. The discipline of our team has improved throughout year and it showed today."

The Chargers were held to a .106 attack average. The Wildcats had 12 blocks in the match compared to only 5 for the Chargers.

Soccer teams ties school record for wins

BY MIRIAM MOELLER
STAFF WRITER

Tying the school record for most season wins, the NMU women's soccer team brought home a 4-3 win against Saginaw Valley State University on Saturday, and a 0-0 tie against Grand Valley State University on Sunday.

"We're playing the best we've played all year," NMU head coach Carl Gregor. "We are finally fit enough to play."

On Saturday, Saginaw Valley scored right away in the third minute. Northern's freshman Carolyn Kunas answered with a goal in the 10th minute and freshman Michele Suszek scored in the 11th minute.

Suszek scored a second goal, which was answered by Saginaw in the 43rd minute, giving the Wildcats (5-5-1 overall, 2-3-1 GLIAC) a 3-2 lead at halftime.

In the second half Saginaw Valley tied the game, but a goal by freshman Lene Stavland in the 86th minute gave Northern the victory.

"We dominated on Saturday," Gregor said. "There were a couple of goals we shouldn't have given up — it should have been 4-1."

NMU outshot Saginaw 21-18 and freshman goaltender Amber Rivera saved all eighteen shots.

"Sunday's game was very long and tiring," freshman April Gieseke said. "In the past we have been getting kind of tired towards the end and I think we stayed 0-0 because our fitness has been really good."

GVSU was a better team than Saginaw Valley, Gregor said. Two overtimes left NMU tied, 0-0, in Allendale.

"We played two hours on Sunday," Gregor said. "Their field was huge and we had a hard time tracking players."

Rivera stopped 11 of Grand Valley's shots on goal and the Wildcats recorded nine shots on goal.

So far this season Ramoie is 4-6 passing with one interception and one touchdown. He will be making his first career start for the Wildcats. Last week Ramoie stepped in for the injured White, did not panic and with the team's help got the job done, said Holm.

The 'Cats' offense is led by sophomore running back Terrell Goldsmith who is third in the GLIAC in rushing with 523 yards on 109 carries. He also has a team-high four touchdowns.

Senior fullback Hector Castellanos is the leading active receiver. Tony Ebeling, who is out with an injury, continues to lead the team with fourteen catches for 126 yards and one touchdown.

TENNIS GRAND VALLEY STATE 6, N. MICHIGAN 3; FERRIS STATE 7, N. MICHIGAN 2

Tennis team ends its undefeated streak

The Northern Michigan University tennis team dropped its conference undefeated streak against first place Ferris State University on Saturday at the NMU Tennis Courts.

The Wildcats (6-3 overall, 6-2 GLIAC) fell to the undefeated Ferris State University 7-2, before losing 6-3 to Grand Valley State University on Sunday.

NMU's only victories against the Bulldogs (9-0, 9-0) came in the singles matches, as Ferris State swept the doubles.

Sophomore Brooke Aronin defeated Ellen Frost, 7-6 (7-1), 4-6, 6-2, in No. 3 singles, while sophomore Lavinia Janssen topped Suzanne Batten, 7-5, 5-7, 6-1, at No. 4.

"I give credit to Ferris State for stepping up with some big points in doubles," NMU head coach Troy Mattson said. "It could have gone either way in doubles, which would have made this a very close match."

Aronin won again at the No. 3 singles spot on Sunday, beating Grand Valley's Dana Morgan, 6-1, 6-2.

NMU took another singles win over the Lakers (8-1, 8-2) at the No. 6 spot.

Sophomore Heidi Ehlers downed Mandy Schiniker, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0.

The team of Junior Vessie Jeliazkova and Sophomore Kris Koopman shut out Becky Clanton and Stacy Schwalm, 8-0, at No. 2 doubles.

Aronin currently holds the team's best singles record (8-1) and is 4-1 at No. 3.

Northern will compete on the road today at the ITA Mid-American Regional Rolex in Indianapolis, Ind.

The tournament at the Indianapolis Tennis Center, involving NCAA-II tennis players from the Midwest, lasts through Sunday.

After losing eight seniors, including last season's two leading scorers, 10 new players join the Wildcats for ...

A Rebuilding Year

BY JENN JUREWICZ
SPORTS EDITOR

This season the Northern Michigan University hockey team celebrates its 25th anniversary.

This is also a rebuilding year for the Wildcats as they add 10 new players to the line-up after losing eight seniors to graduation, including the two leading scorers from last season: Roger Trudeau and J.P. Vigier.

NMU head coach Rick Comley, who is also celebrating his 25th year as coach, said the team has been faced with the rebuilding task before.

"We need to gain experience without getting into a big hole," Comley said. "Sometimes the bottom can really fall out on you. A young team loses confidence very quickly."

"We'll have to find a way to learn and get experience and win some hockey games at the same time."

The players want to start off the season on a positive note, by beating Upper Peninsula rival Michigan Tech University in the season-opening game Friday in Houghton.

"Our team goal is to go into every game hoping we can come out with a win," senior right wing Fred Mattersdorfer said. "The challenge to having a young team is getting everyone on the same page, especially the new guys coming in."

"So the older guys kind of have to look after the younger guys. Hopefully we'll get the win at Michigan Tech and we can go from there."

NMU has a 10-11 record in the last 12 games against the Huskies. In the last five games at the MacInnes Student Ice Arena in Houghton, the Wildcats have won four, including three in a row.

Northern also leads Tech in the overall series in Houghton (21-20-3). "I'm looking forward to Comley said. "Sometimes the bottom can really fall out on you. A young team loses confidence very quickly."

NMU was picked to finish eighth in the CCHA in the league's preseason coaches poll. The University of Michigan was picked to place first, and Michigan State second. Sophomore center Chris Gobert, last season's Bauer/CCHA Rookie of the Year, said that was a false prediction.

"We need to prove something to everyone in the league," Gobert said. "There's no way we are an eighth-place team."

Last season, Northern tied for third place in the CCHA. The Wildcats lost in the first round of the playoffs to the University of Nebraska-Omaha, two games to one in a best-of-three series.

This season, Comley believes a realistic goal would be to clinch a playoff spot and play that series at home.

The Wildcats's schedule will be a challenge in itself as the Wildcats face the other top three teams in the league from last season — Michigan, Michigan State, and Lake Superior State — four times.

"In a way it's good," senior goaltender Dan Ragusett said. "Because last year we didn't see Michigan and Michigan State until the end of the year. And by then we didn't have enough time to adjust to see if we were at their level."

"This way we have a chance to play the tougher teams earlier in the year and know what it's going to take all the way through to be a top four team."

Goaltenders

Comley said the goaltenders in the lineup are the best the team has had. Ragusett returns and so does sophomore Kevin Hulsey. New to the Wildcats this year is freshman Craig Kowalski, who was picked up by Carolina Hurricanes in the 2000 NHL Draft.

Ragusett was the team's top goaltender last season, posting five shutouts, a 2.15 goals-against average, both of which were school records, and a .908 saves percentage. Hulsey dressed for every home game last season as a back-up goaltender, but did not compete.

Kowalski comes from the Detroit Compuware Ambassadors of the North American Hockey League and recorded a 2.39 GAA and a .923 saves-percentage in the '99-'00 season. Kowalski also ranked third among goaltenders in the NAHL last season.

"We look good," Ragusett said. "It's going to be a positive situation for us because [Kowalski is] going to be pushing me and then you have Hulsey pushing both of us. You couldn't ask for anything better — we're going to be solid in goal this year."

The goaltenders are still competing right now, Comley said.

Who is going to be in goal against Michigan Tech has not been decided yet.

Defense

Comley said when building a team, the defense is the first place to start.

Six defensemen return to the Wildcats this year, including sophomore Jimmy Jackson, who last year led all defenseman on the team in points (8-10-18). Jackson was also named to the Bauer/CCHA All-Rookie Team.

The Ottawa Senators picked another returner, Sean Connolly, in the 2000 NHL Draft. Connolly only played in half of last season's games because of a hand injury. He led all defenseman on the team in assists with 14.

Comley said the one thing hurting the team defensively right now is an injury to junior Sean Owens. He broke his ankle about a week ago and is expected to be out for two to three weeks.

"With Owens out of the line-up right now," Jackson said. "It's kind of hard to see who will be paired with who right now. We'll just have to wait and see."

Forwards

14 forwards return, but lost are the top two scorers from last season, Trudeau and Vigier. Both went on to sign NHL contracts, Trudeau with the St. Louis Blues and Vigier with the Atlanta Thrashers.

"We expect obviously the line with Gobert on it to be our best line offensively," Comley said. "That's what it looks like in practice so far. I think our offense will take the longest to build."

Gobert was the team's third leading scorer behind Trudeau and Vigier (18-15-33). Besides being named Rookie of the Year, Gobert was also named to the Bauer/CCHA All-Rookie Team.

"Even though we lost our top two wingers," junior center Chad Theuer said. "The guys who were freshman last year peaked at the end of the year, so I expect a lot from the sophomores this year."

With the team being young, and the top two scorers from last year not returning, as well as a tough schedule, the Wildcats have a challenging season ahead of them.

"We have a lot to show because we are a young team," Theuer said. "We may be young, but we have a lot of talented players who work hard and work good as a team. I think all that will help us in the long run."

Comley celebrates 25 years

by Jenn Jurewicz
sports editor

Celebrating a 25th anniversary with the NMU hockey team is head coach Rick Comley, who has been with the program from the beginning.

The 53 year-old Stratford, Ontario native began his coaching career at his alma mater, Lake Superior State University, as an assistant coach in 1972. From 1973 through 1976 he was head coach of the Lakers and posted a 59-46-3 record.

Comley has recorded a 494-404-59 record in his 24 seasons at NMU (553-450-62 overall) and is eighth on the all-time college hockey coaches win list. He is also one of only eight coaches to reach 550 career victories in college hockey history.

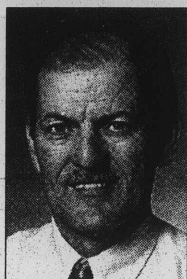

The 1990-91 team (38-5-4 overall, 25-3-4 WCHA) won the league and went on to become national champions. NMU was undefeated after 26 games, including the 8-7 triple overtime victory over Boston University for the national title.

"The greatest level of satisfaction is seeing former players succeed," Comley said. "Not only success in the NHL, but success as a whole — when you see them leave here and go out and be good people, good fathers and good husbands, and successful career people."

Comley was named WCHA Coach of the Year and received the Spencer Penrose Memorial Trophy for National Coach of the Year after that season. He received the WCHA award previously in the 1988-89 season when his team finished second in the league (20-13-2).

Comley was Coach of the Year in the CCHA for his 1979-80 and 1980-81 seasons. The '79-'80 squad captured first place in the CCHA (17-3-0) and took second place in the national tournament after losing to North Dakota, 5-2. Comley also received the National Coach of the Year award for that season.

Comley said the highlight of his career at Northern, as far as wins go, is the national championship. The real highlight, however, is the building of the program and how successful it has been.

Senior right wing Fred Mattersdorfer said Comley works the team hard in practice, but everyone respects him for it.

"I think he's a really good coach," Mattersdorfer said. "If you work hard day in and day out, and do what he expects in the game, you'll be fine."

Sophomore center Chris Gobert said Comley's honesty is his best quality.

"He'll tell you what's on his mind about how you're doing," Gobert said. "He's honest about what he expects from you."
