LONG MURDER TRIALS.

Many Reasons For Them, Says a District Attorney.

SERVING ON JURIES UNWELCOME.

To Escape Jury Duty Talesmen Perjure Themselves, Says James W. Osborne of New York-Jurors Fear to Inflict Death Penalty - Justice Cowing Hopes For Legislative Remedy.

It is the belief of the New York public that trials of murderers in New York state occupy much more time than in other states of the Union or in other countries. The judiciary and the legal fraternity of New York city, however, do not appear to be unanimous on this point, says the New York World.

James W. Osborne, the assistant district attorney, who tried so hard to convict Dr. Kennedy, said the other day:

"I do not think it is true that murder trials in this state take up more time than in other states. It all depends upon the amount of testimony. I have known murder trials in this city to be finished in one day. Many require but two or three. But the public scarcely hears of these trials, for they are not sensational-just plain murders-and the newspapers do not give space to tnem. For instance, an Italian shoemaker stabs an Italian fruit vender to death. The murderer has no rich friends who can contribute money for appeals and stays, and consequently he is quickly disposed of, and very few ever notice it.

"Justices of this state and others, too, are rather prone to grant concessions to a man accused of murder, and that is why murderers so often get stays and new trials. There is an undeniable sentiment in this state against capital punishment even among the justices. When undecided as to whether to grant a new trial, a justice almost invariably swings around and decides to 'give the poor devil the benefit of any chance,' and this is the reason that even when a murderer is convicted it is hard, if he has money to take his case to the higher courts, to send him to the chair.

"This is what makes it seem to the public, in the cases of notorious murderers, as if the trials dragged on forever. It is not the trials that drag unnecessarily, but the many legal proceedings to prolong his days on earth. "I believe we could secure many more convictions in murder cases if imprisonment for life instead of the death penalty were the punishment. Jurors are timorous about inflicting the death penalty because of the general sentiment against capital punishment, but if imprisonment for life were the penalty for the crime they would have no hesitancy in bringing in a verdict in the first degree. "There are in New York county only 45,000 men upon whom we can call for jury duty, whereas in proportion to the population there ought to be 450,000. Many classes are completely exempt from service. This makes jury duty unwelcome, for the same men are called repeatedly, and they will perjure themselves rather than lose their time from business. Therefore it takes much longer than it should to fill the jury box in a murder trial. The fear these men have that they may be called upon to send a murderer to the chair induces them to evade serving in every way possible. "But, after all, the whole question simmers down to one of testimony. In the Molineux case there were 96 witnesses to examine. In the Bosschieter a fine. case there were not more than a dozen, and only half a dozen important ones, so that it was easy to rush the trial through. It is hardly fair to compare such a case with the Molineux and Kennedy cases, in which whole battalions of witnesses had to be exam-"The rapidity of the trial of Holmes, the man who confessed to 27 murders afterward, was due to the few witnesses to be examined. The case against was nothing to cause the trial to be spun out. Take the Eastman case in Massachusetts, the Borden trial in the same state and the trial of Mrs. George for murdering George D. Saxton, Mrs. McKinley's brother, and you will see that no better time was made than in famous cases in New York state. "In the Kennedy trials there was an the institution of civil government in immense amount of testimony to be got before the jury, and a large number of witnesses had to be examined. ## THE POWER OF LABOR.

Number 16

What the Sixteen Million American Workmen Could Accomplish. Three hundred thousand textile workers of North America are united in one organization.

Organizer Dilcher of the giant coal trust says that if necessary every coal miner in the United States can be made to stop work at once.

One hundred thousand men engaged in the production of steel are already closely united for defense and progress. Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation of Labor, urges wider and closer organization, stricter adherence to union rules and a concerted effort for shorter hours of work in those great capitalistic associations.

On every side is indicated the perception of the fact that the wealth of a nation consists in the strength of labor. There are in the United States 16,-000,000 working voters and 50,000 millionaires, of whom many are not vot-

Leaving out all question of power. there is not the slightest doubt that the interest of the 16,000,000 should be considered rather than that of the 50,000.

And there is not the slightest doubt that the interests of the 16,000,000 at present are bound in all cases to give way when the 50,000 demand it.

Superficially, from the brute force point of view, everything would seem to be on the side of the 16,000,000 and against the 50,000.

Take the workingmen out of this country, and property now worth hundreds of billions would be worthless in a day.

The coal mines are worth endless millions because there are workingmen to dig the coal.

The steel industry is capitalized at $1,100,000,000 because there are workingmen to make the steel.

Without these workingmen the mines. the wheatfields, the factories, would be worthless.

Apparently workingmen have only to organize, have only to realize their strength, in order to take for themselves as much as they choose of all of which their labor is an essential part.

But stronger than muscle is intelligent concentration. A handful of men can take the prairies of the west away from 10,000,000 bisons because the men can think and plan and the bison cannot.

A handful of millionaires can take the products of the mine and the bags of wheat away from the 16.000,000 working voters because the millionaires think and plan on a complicated scale and the workers do not. The millionaires were poor men yesterday. They are millionaires today, first, because they are selfish and, secthe greatest track and field performers ond, because their brains work well. It would hurt the country a great Arthur Duffy, the Georgetown flier, deal to take away the workingmen. It will join Baxter shortly on the other would hurt it almost as much to take side. Woman in an emergency is resourceful to a degree that would astound some men, as a freight agent of one of the railroads that enter St. Louis found. Men have long lain awake nights thinking of a sheme to beat a railroad. This little woman didn't quite succeed, but she would have done so had not the agent gone back on his word. The family had decided to move to a western city. The lady called on the agent to see how the goods were to be shipped. He told her she could ship them according to regular rates or else charter a car. He explained that the latter would be cheaper if she had enough goods, and the lady decided to take a car. Now, there are two well grown boys, and as money is not overplentiful in the family she wished to abridge expenses as much as possible. She went to see the agent again and asked if she could send her two boys in the car. He told her that she could not, and, as might be expected, she asked why.
