An appreciative audience witnessed Spedden and Vancook's "Thelma" at the Fuller Opera House last evening. Those familiar with the writings of Miss Corelli recognize in this production a field for dramatic art. The conception of "Thelma" as rendered by Miss Page was particulary pleasing and the company as a whole well balanced. Nevertheless the most able men in the assembly are counselling moderation and are doing everything possible to prevent demonstrations which might compel inter-ference. One of the strongest members of the conference said to the Associated Press:

"WHACKS"

And What They Mean.

When Old Mother Nature gives you a "whack" remember "there's a reason," so try and say "thank you;" then Miss Gesterling came from Germany set about finding what you have done to demand the rebuke, and try and get back into line, for that's the happy considerable means. Three years ago the girl took a course in a Denver business place after all.

Curlous how many highly organized people fail to appreciate and heed the first little, gentle "whacks" of the good old Dame, but go right along with the habit, whatever it may be, that causes her disapproval. Whiskey, Tobacco, Coffee, Tea or other unnatural treatment of the body, until serious illness sets in or some chronic disease.

Some people seem to get on very well with those things for a while, and Mother Nature apparently cares but little what they do.

Perhaps she has no particular plans for them and thinks it little use to waste time in their training.

There are people, however, who seem to be selected by Nature to "do things." The old Mother expects them to carry out some department of her great work. A portion of these selected ones oft and again seek to stimulate and then deaden the tool (the body) by some one or more of the drugs-Whiskey, Tobacco, Coffee, Tea. Morphine, etc.

You know all of these throw down is believed, that the suicide pact was the same class of alkaloids in chemical analysis. They stimulate and then and while his death was attributed to depress. They take from man or woman the power to do his or her best work. After these people have drugged for a time they get a hint or mild "whack" to remind them that they have work to do, a mission to perform, and should be about the business, but are loafing along the wayside and become unfitted for the fame and fortune that waits for them if they but stick to the course and keep the body clear of obstructions so it can carry out the behests of the mind. Sickness is a call to "come up higher." These hints come in various forms. It may be stomach trouble or bowels, heart, eyes, kidneys or general nervous prostration. You may depend upon it when a "whack" comes it's a warning to quit some abuse and do the right and fair thing with the body. Perhaps it is coffee drinking that offends. That is one of the greatest causes of human disorder among Americans. Now then if Mother Nature is gentle with you and only gives light, little "whacks" at first to attract attention. don't abuse her consideration, or she will soon hit you harder, sure.

New York, Nov. 22 .- Behind the publication by a detective agency in Wall street of a notice warning brokers and bankers that the assignment on two certificates for 100 shares of United States Steel preferred stock, worth about $18,-000, and one certificate for fifty shares of Michigan Copper Mining stock, worth about $500, had been forged, is a report that the certificates were stolen by trusted man in the employ of Edward Breitung of Marquette.

is stated that the employe expressed a desire to take a short vacation three weeks ago. After he had gone, Breitung learned that the man had left no definite address and told different persons various stories as to his destination. Suspicion was aroused and an examination of the safety deposit box to which the man had access was hurriedly made. It is said to have resulted in the discovery that several hundred shares were missing besides certificates mentioned.

Breitung hurried east and found that e man already had transferred some of the shares to his own name. Owing to the form of assignment which the certificates bore there is some question as to who will have to bear the loss.

Think Autocracy May Yield.

A parting of the ways is at hand and the autocracy, it would seem, must once more choose whether the people shall be allowed a voice in the government, for It is inconceivable that it can allow agitation for a convocative elective body to decide whether the time has not come, in the language of the memorial. "for a specially elected body to participate in legislation," without the intention of yielding.

Reactionaries of course, are horrified at the mere suggestion of anything approaching a parliament or a constitution. All their power and influence already are in the scale, but uo matter which way the balance swings the decision is bound to mark an epoch in Russia's history.

Let World Hear Authoritative Voice.

The actual participants in the meeting far from hopeful, but they sincerely believe the salvation of the country de-pends upon the solution they have to offer and have the satisfaction of knowing that as representatives of the most authoritative provincial institutions of the empire they have for once spoken out their views and have taken measures to their views and have taken measures to have them spread before the world as well as the government which is ad-dressed. Fore one result it is sure to give a tremendous impetus to the liberal movement. With the country in the throes of a great and hitherto unsuccessful foreign war and disturbed conditions at home, the measure, which is aimed to rouse united action, might overrule other considerations.

It seems hard work to give up a habit, and we try all sorts of plans to charge our ill feelings to some other cause than the real one.

Coffee drinkers when in will attribute the trouble to bad food, malaria, overwork and what not, but they keep on being sick and gradually getting worse until they are finally forced to quit entirely, even the "only one cup a day." Then they begin to get better, and unless they have gone long enough to set up some fixed organic disease, they generally get entirely well.

It is easy to quit coffee at once and for all, by having well made Postum, with its rich, deep, seal-brown color which comes to the beautiful golden brown when good cream is added, and the crisp snap of good, milu Java is there if the Postum has been boiled long enough to bring it out.

C. Landreth Dismissed at Janesville der to surrender the money shot and serionsly wounded him. Holden fled in a buggy, was pursued by officers in an au-tomobile and captured after an exchange of shots, in which Charles C. Englehorn was injured. The robber narrowly es-caped lynching. The bullet that struck Cashier Schroeder glanced from a button on his vest or he would have been collateral.

The chase of Holden was exciting. Following news of the hold-up, Howard Clarke, cashier of the State bank of Columbus, brought his automobile into ac-tion, took on Sheriff Carrin and two doctors and made a double-quick run to this village. The physicians were left here to attend Mr. Schroeder and the others started on their man hunt. The robber was pressed hard about nine miles west of this city and finally overhauled.

The robber was brought back to Platte Extending That Study in High School Center and positively identified by Schroeder, even though he had changed Historic Ships' Names.

At least four historic ships of our navy have been launched from Boston waysthe Constitution, the old Cumberland, the Hartford and the Merrimac. The old lumber.and, the ship of tragic glory, wa launched more than sixty years ago. The Merrimac, which, converted into a Con-federate ironciad and named Virginia, was to destroy the Cumberland, was pu into the water in 1855. The Hartfor was launched in 1856. The Cumberland The Hartford Merrimac and Hartford were all navy yard built. The new Cumberland is to be used as a training ship, and therefore her service will be of preparation rathe inspirations to young tars. The training

Diabetes.

In the treatment of diabetes the chief reliance of the physician is on the adjustment of the diet, looking to the exclusion, so far as may be possible, of all sugar-containing foods. It has been contended by some physiclans that little advantage is to be gained by this, since the excretion of sugar by the kidneys is only a symptom of the disease, and not the disease itself, and that the object should be to correct the condition which lies at the root of the trouble. If the physician knew just what are the conditions which underlie glycosuria (diabetes) he might, and he might not, be able to freat and cure it. But although many are trying to solve the ught him around the neck and he was riddle, it is not yet clear, and until it is the physician must do the best he can for his patient.

In diabetes not only is sugar excreted through the kidneys, but much also is circulating in the blood; the first may do no harm, except, perhaps, to the kidneys, and may even do good by taking sugar from the blood, but the second condition is exceedingly harm- fectually squelched. ful, and its removal or diminution by dieting will relieve many of the distressing symptoms of the disease, and may greatly prolong life. The problem in selecting a diet for the diabetic lies not only in excluding the sugar-containing articles, but in avoiding the starvation of the patient in so doing. Many of the saccharine foods, those made up chiefly of starch, for example, are very nourishing, and their exclusion from the dietary exposes the patient to the dangers of insufficient nutrition. The main reliance of the diabetic in the way of food must be on meats, fats, green vegetables and nuts. He should take milk sparingly, avoid fruits, especially dried and preserved fruit, indulge in moderation in new potatoes (which are less starchy than is popularly believed), and omit almost absolutely bread, puddings, pies, and everything made from flour. Fats (cream, olive-oil and butter) are of special value, and the sufferer from diabetes should get himself into the habit of buttering lavishly evervthing he eats.

In the way of drinks he may take tea, coffee or cocoa (without sugar, of course), and water, but none of the than war. But it is well that training ships should bear heroic names, since the flavored waters, such as bottled lemassociations that cluster about them are onade, ginger-ale or soda, which are al-

BIG BEE FARM.

Texas Man's Project to Establish It in Indian Territory.

South McAlester, Indian Territory, is soon to have an entirely new industry i the way of a bee farm. Four hundred an eighty acres of ground will be planted in white clover and other plants and flowers, suitable to bee raising and honey making. Col. Wiley Brock of Weathermaking. Col. Wiley Brock of Weather-ford, Texas, will import his best strain of bees from Italy, and locate one of the most modern aplaries in the United States within five miles of the city. The colonel gave out the following information:

ing information: "I propose to establish just southeast of this city, on Peaceable creek, on lands I have acquired, and will use only the very highest grade of honey bees. My queens will all be imported from Italy. Some of my present atock came from Ot-tawa, Canada, and have cost me more than their weight in gold. Queens of the bichest straip of bees cost from $25$ to highest strain of bees cost from $25 to $100 each. These queens are very kind and gentle, but when they get mad one must look out.

When asked about the climate and other conditions here for bee farming Col. Brock replied: "I have made a careful study of the country hereabouts and am pleased with what I have seen. Wild flowers abound here during the greater part of the year, but I will depend mostly on white and red clover, alfalfa, and the Kansas sunflower. My purpose is to house and care for my bees as they should be, and to feed thim as they do in Eu-rope and Canada. This is a great bee country. In fact, I see no reason why it thing."-Kansas City (Mo.) Journal.

It is a condition that is as old as human experience. Eighteen and a half centuries ago Seneca put it in these words: "Some portion of our time is taken from us by force; auother portion is stolen from us; and another slips away. But the most disgraceful loss is that which arises from the raising and tanning of skunks was an industry established in the northern part of the town of Stonington last year. made off.

Every now and then some traveler tells of a two headed snake which exists in Egypt, and whenever the narrator hasn't seen the snake himself, he is more or less disposed to assert that there really is a snake with two heads in Egypt, because he has been told about it by many reliable persons. Indeed, sometimes a traveler who snake is likely to declare that it truly is two headed, for the serpent certainly and three hundred four (3304) votes. appears to be so when seen only by chance.

It is only when the snake is actually taken up and examined closely that the truth is revealed.

The two headed snake is not a poisonstrictor, and it is fairly common. But and they were given for the following it is so secretive that it hides away in persons, viz: its sandy burrows almost constantly. It is strangely formed in so far that its tail, instead of tapering off to a point as the tails of other snakes do, widens out into a bludgeon shape, thus making it look so utterly unlike a tail that it is almost impossible to think it is anything but a head when the thousand two hundred sixty-one (1261) snake is seen for only a moment. To add to the deception, jugglers fully done that only a trained observer can distinguish the real head from the false. Thus the story of the two headed snake has obtained wide circulation, and has even crept into the books of otherwise accurate writers.

But the second "head" is only a tail after all.-Exchange.

Room For Improvement. At a dinner given by Sir Joshua Reynolds, at which were present Gar-

I have been listing to the tune The genial minstrel, Autumn, plays; And close my eyes to brood on June And immemorial Mays.

For in the swaying rise and fall There is encompassed all the mirth That takes the heart, and holds it thrail, In the bloom-ides of earth:

The long, eestatic poise, the sweep, The silvery cadences of theme. The rapturings that linger deep In the vast caims of dream.

And though I know that round me burn The dying ardors of the leaf. Like embers glowing in an urn, My spirit feels no grief.

The Extra Touch.

A business man of great promise failed in spite of it in one of our suburban towns lately. A shrewd friend of the family thus diagnosed the bankruptcy: "Jack made enough to live on, and could have kept on making it right along. But Louise wanted the extra touch. She knew just how to put it on; and in the end she put it on Jack's financial diffi-

Other women have done the same. The extra touch is the most delightful thing in the world, when it can be afforded. It gives distinction to the commonplace novelty, to routine things, grace to life. Yet, like other extras, it has a trick of running up accounts out of all propor-tion. If it does not cost money, its expenses in time and vital force are equally great. The extra touch in dress means either a great deal of money spent or a great deal of time expended, and few women can afford either unless they stint in more important directions.

In more important directions. The extra touch in social affairs often costs beyond all proportion. The ex-quisite nicety of table service attained by some hostesses means continual trouble with servants and enormous laundry bills, to say nothing of fret of mind.

Those who see through the eyes of hate never know tears save when the thirst for revenge suffuses them with its hot flood. Hatred is incompatible with all the ideas of tenderness that tears im-The woman whose eyes flash hatred is the woman who would murder for revenge; the woman who would forgive no rivalry in love; no deception on the part of the lover. Strange to say this extreme of emotional temperament is more often found in the dainty, tiny, refined woman, Madonna-faced and fair, whose nature has seemed all gentleness until aroused by a sense of wrong that transforms her from an angel into a fiend and leaves its tracings in her eyes. The eyes of pitying indulgence are the eyes hardest to read. They are the eyes of a woman who, though knowing herdeceived, is yet torn by conflicting emotions of hope, love, despair and cha-grin, in which some little scorn is more than evident. Such eyes belong to the woman who is strong, yet merciful; loving, yet doubtful; who craves the love of a man whom she knows to be unworthy, yet whom she loves despite his unworthiness, and though others represent him in his true colors she sees him only as her heart would wish him to be ather than her judgment knows him to . The only weakness in the character such a woman is her love, but that often a woman's weakness for which she must bear the criticism and ondemnation of those who love her. The eyes of pitying indulgence are without loubt very lovely eyes, because they are

Sumner Boyd was 14 years of age. Summer Boyd was 14 years of age. His parents both died two years before, and he was living with his aunt in a small village in New England. He never found fault with the little house or the surrounding country, for the scenery was just to his liking, but he could not endure the people. It seemed to him they knew nothing about progress, and his aunt was such a worker and scolded so much that he did not know what it was to have a pleasant moment except when his aunt was absent "I wish I could go away," he said to mself. But this does not mean that every chair should be located by a figure in the rug, nor that a magazine should never, never be found lying on a table where it does not This kind of order is not at all belong. vital. Once, in the long ago, it was called good housekeeping, but it can never be order that is vital.

One great fault with many housekeepers of today is that they overcrowd their homes with unnecessary furniture and so-called adornments. Women go shopping and see things "marked down," and they buy them. They are "bargains," and the temptation is irresistible. The consequence is their homes are soon over flowing with a mass of uninteresting rubbish. Elizabeth Emery, writing on this subject in The House Beautiful, that the waking hours destroy. The eyes of scorn tell the story of be trayed trust. When you see the eyes of a woman habitually scornful it is safe to conjecture that the world and love have both played her false.

There is something inexpressibly sad in the life of a woman who looks with scorn upon the world about her. Her eyes betray the secret of her heart-burnings, and while she will not stoop to resent an injury, yet the memory of it rankles in her heart, there to live until banished by a newer, happier experience.

Youthful women are no longer poison-ing the skin with cosmetics, but are us-ing wholesome skin foods, that build up the tissues and beautify the complexion. The milk diet is also doing a great work in changing the complexions for women. Predigested foods are holding a front rank in supplying new strength and vigor. It is seldom that one sees a bilwoman now. Women have turned on the X-ray, and each clear-minded woman is carefully studying herself. They are no longer slaves to time. To a great extent they have outgrown its conditions. They do not say, "It is 12 o'clock and we must eat," but they ask, "Are you hungry? Does nature call for food?" Time was made for slaves. Time was made for slaves.

Capt. Robards was a good deal of a ruffian, and in 1790 his wife left him. Later in the year he obtained from the Virginia Legislature an act giving him permission to sue his wife for divorce on the ground of infidelity.

Jackson, himself a lawyer, and his ad-visers, read the act as granting a divorce, and he married Mrs. Robards at once. After waiting two years Robards took advantage of the act and brought suit against his wife.

The case went against her, and in De-cember, 1793, Robards got a formal di-vorce. In January, 1794, Jackson re-married his wife. "And they lived happily ever after." But the romance of the marriage was poems

Robards, who seems to have acted as he did simply out of hatred for his former wife, was responsible for much of the scandal that was made during the campaign of 1828. KNOX STEALS MARCH IN KAUKAUNA CITY. A LABOR PROBLEM

Build Y on Disputed Territory on Sunday.

Kaukauna, Wis., Nov. 21.-[Special.] -The Knox Construction company, owners of the Green Bay and Kaukauna Inof Taylor street and Lawe street early Sunday morning and with a crew of fifty men proceeded to build a Y leading from their line on Taylor street onto Lawe, paralleling the track with the Wiscon-sin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company's line for two blocks. The Knox Construction company own a franchise permitting them to build on Lawe street the disputed Y, but every one expected they would have to cross the tracks of the Wisconsin Traction ompany in order to do so. This they have been refused permission to do, but they have now solved the question in an anexpected manner. The Knox people completed their new Y so far last evening as to operate a car over it before 9 o'clock.

A great crowd of interested people surrounded the workmen, who expected to some clash between the opposing parties.

The walking delegate is not the only one who can order the employee to give up his job. Some irregularity in his health may force him from his work and render him incapable of improving the very finest opportunity in the world. A remedy that will restore health solves many labor difficulties at once and makes the path to success a smooth one.

Miss Winnifred Ray, of No. 917 Water street, Wichita, Kansas, has passed happily through an experience which illustrates this point. She says : "In 1901 I began to suffer from considerable disturbance of my health. There was derangement of stomach and bowels, as well as female troubles. My appetite became very feeble. Some days I had no desire for food at all and when I did take any it caused me great discomfort, particularly burning sensations. Ialso had palpitation of the heart and often a sense of being smothered. and I became so nervous I couldn't sleep. One doctor thought I had heart disease. another consumption, another a radical disorder of the liver. While I was not confined to my bed, I was so miserable that I really thought I must die.

"After suffering in this way for a year without finding any relief, I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in a book and got a box and began to Although pleading guilty to a charge use them. In a week I was better. In of burglary, Mary Musil, who has been six or seven weeks I was well. My liver six or seven weeks I was well. My liver seemed to be stimulated at once and my complexion cleared up. The burning sensation left my stomach and I could eat nearly everything I wanted. I had no more pain in my abdomen and no more trouble with my heart. My whole system appeared to be regulated and the grave fears of the doctors were all banished. I have recovered my strength and cheerfulness and am able to do my regular daily work and to support myself again. The pills have done me great good and I believe they would help others equally if they would try them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold by all druggists, or direct by Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, postnaid.

Senator Blackburn's Trousers.

One of "Joe" Blackburn's friends tells a story which dates back to the time when that distinguished gentleman was rather a dandy in the fashion of a for-gotten period. He ordered a pair of trousers from his tailor, and he expressly stipulated that they were to be skin tight. The trousers came home, and the sena-tor tried them on. He went right to the tailor and opened fire on him. "What in the Kentucky-synonyms-for-places-not-on-the-map do you mean by sending me trousers like that?" he shouted. "Why, you said to make them skin tight," said the tailor. "Skin tight!" yelled the senator. "Yes, by this-and-that, I said skin tight. I wanted them merely skin tight. I can sit down in my skin and I can't in these." --Washington Post.

Searches for Her Lover.

A young Russian officer fell in love with a pretty nurse who reciprocated his affection fully. Recently this officer was among the missing and it was believed was wounded or a prisoner among the Japanese. In order to find him, it is al-leged, Miss Corelle strolled from the Russian camp and very cheerfully al-lowed the Chinese bandits to capture her,

This was about ten days ago. The next step in her scheme was to become a Japanese prisoner or reach their lines. The bandits, it is asserted, allowed her to communicate with the French consul at New Chwang, following which a de-Chwang.

Suspected of Being a Spy.

She tried to secure permission to go to Japan and search for her lover, but the Japanese gave her twenty-four hours in which to leave the town, suspecting her of being a spy. The French consul at Chefoo is now endeavoring to obtain per-mission for Miss Corelle to nurse the OLD DEFENDER IN PERIL. Senator Joe Blackburn of Kentucky is a gentleman of the old school, and his courtesy to women is never failing. Owing to this fact he recently had cold coffee served with his breakfast every morning for two weeks.

He was making a trip into the mountains in the eastern part of the state and made his stopping place a farm house at a remote point from the city. On the day of his arrival he was rather late for dinner and the lady of the house apologized for the coffee, which at that time was lukewarm. "Oh, do not mind it in the least, madam," said Senator Blackburn. "I really prefer my coffee cold, you know." -Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Young women may avoid much sickness and pain, says Miss Alma Pratt, if they will only have faith in the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

* "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: - I feel it my duty to tell all young women how much Lydia E. Pinkham's wonderful Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was completely ran down, unable to attend school, and did not care for any kind of society, but now I feel like a new person, and have gained seven pounds of flesh in three months.

"I recommend it to all young women who suffer from female weak-ness." — MISS ALMA PRATT, Holly, Mich.

FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO YOUNG GIRLS."

All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,--often it is never recovered.

A Young Chicago Girl Saved from Despair.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM : - I wish to thank you for the help and benefit I have received through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vege-table Compound and Liver Pills. When I was about seventeen years old I suddenly seemed to lose my usual good health and vitality. Father said I studied too hard, but the doctor thought different and prescribed tonics, which I took by the quart without relief. Reading one day in the paper of Mrs. Pinkham's great cures, and finding the symptoms described answered mine, I decided I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did not say a word to the doctor; I bought it myself, and took it according

MAY MEREDITH'S WAGER. "I'll bet you six pairs of gloves, my dear, that I bring that scorner of women to my feet within six weeks!" exclaimed to my feet within six weeks!" exclaimed Miss May Meredith, as she sat chatting with a gay party of girls. "Married? My wife dead?" the man answered, aghast. "My darling, what a mistake it has all been! I have never with a gay party of girls.

shrug of the pretty rounded shoulders. It was only Miss Harlon, Mrs. Meredith's poor dependent. She was a distant relative of the family, but so distant that the relationship was lost sight of in the meager salary paid to her for supervising the large household, and taking the part somewhat of Cinderella for the young ladies. What mattered it that, three years

The blow had almost killed her; but a sweet hope in her heart of another strong arm ready to protect her, and fill, as best he might, her father's place, enabled her to live through it, until she learned, as she supposed, that all the world was false, and she gladfully, thankfully accepted Mrs. Meredith's final offer of a home and independence, however small.

"Bringing him to your feet, May, is rather ambiguous, is it not?" questioned one of the party. "What do you mean by the phrase
