A COMMUNICATION

MARQUETTE, MICH., March 1, 1907. EDITOR GLADSTONE DELTA:

Dear Sir.-My notice has been called to a statement made by I. E. Shelley regarding the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Co. in the Gladstone Messenger under date of February, 1907. This statement is a end in so far as it relates to our com-

This is falsehood number 1. Our reasons for forming Brampton township were as follows:

For a year or two prior to the formation of this township, the town of Rapid River had been expending considerable money in the installation of a water system, the purchase of a steam fire engine and the building and extension of a great deal of board sidewalks extending for long distances through that town. All these improvements were paid by the township. As the town of Rapid River is some seven miles from the Gladstone furnace it is self evident that it was manifestly unjust to tax the whole township, and especially interests so far removed from the town of Rapid River for these improvements.

The township officers, who are practically all located in Rapid River, were remonstrated with but to no effect. We have never in any way tried to influence the assessor in putting a value on this property. We have never asked any board of review to reduce our valuation as assessed, the only thing we have ascertained was the fact that we were assessed no more or no less than were others owning similar tissue of falsehoods from beginning to property. What more does Shelley want? We have offered our property in Gladstone as a whole or in part for less than we have been assessed and for much less than similar property has been valued at. We do not consider our Gladstone city property a good asset. We have no interest whatever in Gladstone city politics, and it is a matter of perfect indifference to us whom the people of Piano Solo. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT STARTS NEW RELIEF FUND WITH HIS OWN CHECK FOR $100.

TO SHARE PROSPERITY

Appeal from New York Committee Brings an Immediate Reply from the White House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 4 .-Declaring that Russia has been a good friend to America in the past, President Roosevelt, in a letter today to the Russian famine relief committee of New York, appeals for contributions in behalf of the famine sufferers in that country.

With the letter he sent his own check for $100. He calls attention to the "literally unparalleled prosperity of the country," and hopes that the people out of their abundance will give generously on this occasion.

Answers Appeal for Aid.

His letter is in reply to one received from the committee, calling his attention to the urgent need of assistance. The appeal follows:

Detailed reports received from Russia show that millions of people afflicted by a terrible famine are in a starving condition. All relief thus far organized has proved in adequate to cope with this great calamity, which affects a region half as large as the continental territory of the United States. Unless early aid is forthcoming the loss of life, will be treadeniable.

Unless early aid is forthcoming the loss of life will be incalculable.

With a view of showing in a helpful way the deep sympathy which the people of the United States feel for the people of Russia, in their distress, the Russian famine relief committee has been formed to solicit subscriptions in this country. Arrangements have been made by which the money solicited by this committee will go as directly as possible to the relief of the suffering without delay or dupilication.

Contributions addressed to the secretary of the committee, Samuel J. Barrows, 135 East Fifteenth street, New York city, will be properly acknowledged and deposited with the Morton Trust company. The reply follows:

Gentlemen—I have received your communication of February 28th, and I feel, as all Americans must feel, the deepest sympathy with the starving people in Russia who are suffering under the terrible disaster of famine. Russia has been a good friend to America in the past, and in addition to our general feelings of sympathy with any portion of mankind we must all feel especial sympathy in this case. It is evident that early aid must be forthcoming to prevent the most far-reaching suffering and a dreadful loss of life.

WHAT WESTERN CANADA DOES.

ment Agent, Indianapolis, Ind.: My Dear Sir-When you were at our place in July I promised to write you what my North quarter made per acre. You will remember it was all sown to wheat. Well, I finished threshing yesterday, and received from it an average of 431/4 bushels per acre-testing 641/2 pounds per stroked bushel. The wheat is the best sample I have ever raised-so uniform and even in size. You may know it was a good sample when I tell you that I have already sold 2,000 bushels of it for seed to my neighbors. This year has been my best effort in farming during my life. My wheat totalled 9,280 bushels and my oats nearly 5,000. If you remember I pointed out to you a half-section lying just west of our house and joining my upper quarter on the south, which I said I should have in order to make one of the best farms in Western Canada. I am very glad to be able to tell you that I now own that half-section. My ambition now is to be able to market, 20,000 bushels of wheat next year. If some of those good honest Hoosiers could have been with me during the last two weeks and could have seen the golden grain rushing down the spout into my wagon and then could have seen it in great piles in my granaries. I feel sure they would have been forced to acknowledge there is no better farming country in the world than this. I may just say that I have done all my farming with eight head of horses and one hired man except during harvest and threshing. This year I proved to my neighbor that the Hoosiers when once "woke up" can raise grain equal to the best Minnesota farmers. His best yield was 421/2 bushels per acre, so you see "Old Indiana" is holding the ribbon this year.

BEWARE THE SILENT MAN.

By Ella K. Dearborn.

Instinctively one distrusts a silent person, and this is well, for there is no possibility of understanding them, and it is doubtful if they understand themselves. Their silence leads you to wrong conclusions. They know this, but are too clam-like to say a word that will set you straight, even though they are the ones to be injured by an error in your judgment. You struggle to interpret their silence aright. It may be shyness—though not likely. It may be sullenness but what about?

If you have deluded yourself with the idea that there a warm heart under the ley exterior and a teeming brain veiled by silence, away with the delusion, for a warm heart will make itself manifest, and the active brain will not be found by silence. Thoughts find their way into words, just as surely as the river finds the ocean. No matter how great a sacrifice you may make in order to do an act of kindness to a silent man or woman, a distressful stare is the token of acceptance, and you do not know whether the silent one is struggling to express thanks or is trying not to kill you for your officiousness.

These people have not stamina enough to be either very good or very bad. They are unreliable in a business way and socially they are bores and nuisances, and the wife of a silent man is always unhappy; all efforts to please him are met with that impenetrable silence that hurts worse than a blow, and yet, since he has not beaten his wife with his fists or a club, he would claim to be kind.

Speech is nature's special gift to man, all other faculties are shared in common with lower animals; to mankind alone is given the power of clothing thoughts in words. Silence but thinly veils one's lack of thought. Beware of the silent person!

CLASS DISTINCTIONS IN CHURCH.

By Bishop Potter. I deplore the formation of castes in communities, the dividing of people into little cliques who affect to be superior to those outside them. The attitude of the Christian Church should be-to disregard all questions of caste, the point where our religion differs greatly from all other great systems of theology, doctrine and philosophy is that all people are alike in the sight of God. There is no place for caste and caste distinctions in the Christian Church, yet, unfortunately, it is fast growing here

In America. You will hear women and men tell you not so much who they know and with whom they associate as those whom they will not or do not care to know. It is a ridiculous condition here in democratic America. The people who are thus considered "impossible" are not so from any evil line; they are simply "not of our set." Such an idea and such a system has no place in this land.

I want you to consider a minute how different this spirit is from that which actuated the character of Him whose funeral procession in the Holy Land to-day is much the same as was that one when our Lord raised the son of the widow of Nain. It meant a toss of caste, a defilement to touch a dead person; yet our Lord not only | tune.

stopped the procession rather than passing down a side street, as we would be apt to do, but actually took the dead youth by the hand, risking what meant much to an Oriental. On the other hand, we have a list of those we do not care to associate with, because they do not belong to our particular class of society.

Never has there been a time when there was greater need of a more enlightened and a more Christian way of living. Conditions in America are such that it is impossible to follow the ideas of the founders of the land. The early Puritans had certain ideas which would be simply ludicrous were we to try to live up to them. We must add new standards.

SOCIAL PROGRESS DEPENDS ON INDIVIDUAL.

By Jeremiah W. Jenks.

We may not expect an immediate revolution in moral ideals or in business practices. But we may hope for steady improvement. Measures suggested favor greater publicity in business management-in itself a measure of reform. The principles of business hold also in politics. The time is coming when deception and trickery in diplomacy will no longer pay, when cruelty and unscrupulousness in international relations place a nation at a disadvantage. The prosperity of the nation, as of the individual or of the corporation, is in the long run secured not by hostile measures but through the closely linked commercial and social intercourse in times of peace and friendship.

Among nations, as among business corporations, we may see that in the long run, if the moral sentiments of ndividual citizens are right, moral practices pay. The ultimate responsibility rests with us as individuals; and the outlook for the future is hopeful. The evils clearly must be seen before the remedy can be found. Many of the evil deeds of the last few years have been committed because, under the changing conditions, the nature of these evils has been clearly seen. There is still, however, much more to do for each of us in the way of seeing more clearly the application of the simple old fashioned priniples of private honesty to the great transactions of corporate business, and to the still greater problems of statesmanship.

GREAT WEALTH NOT MENACE TO NATION.

By Henry Clews.

Let us bear in mind that the vast individual fortunes of Americans are nearly all self-made and in the hands of men who began life in poor circumstances, and that most of the most successful men in business are those who possess high character, as well as remarkable capacity, great thrift, and other good qualities; and that men of this type with great wealth have never proved a menace to the public wel-New laws could be enacted to prevent the evil and dissolute use of inherited wealth. So deep a conviction have I that a proper sense of responsibility comes only with earning and saving wealth, that I often have thought it a meet and just way for a man to distribute an estate by first providing for his family and then dividing the remainder among the employes who had served him faithfully and aided him to amass his for-

"FIGHTING BOB" EVANS.

White Flag in Life's Battle.

The report that Admiral Bob Evans 1s about to retire from the navy because of ill health has sent a throb of sympathy and regret through the country. Scores of telegrams and even cablegrams have been received at the navy department asking as to the truth of the report, and expressing high regard for "Fighting Bob."

Robley Dunlingson was the name given him at his birth, Aug. 18, 1846, over 60 years ago. But he is "Fighting Bob" to the American people.

He is a born fighter. At 6 he was handling a gun. At 13 he was on his way across the western plains to acquire a residence at Salt Lake City. He had been promised an appointment to Annapolis if he became a resident of the Utah city.

On the way the emigrant train was attacked by Indians. "Bob" was warned to stay under cover when the fight began. When the Indians had been beaten back an arrow pinning Bob's right leg to the mule he rode showed how he had obeyed the order. He had been in the thickest of the melee. The arrow had to be cut between his leg and the pony's side before he could dismount.

When the Civil War broke out young Evans, then at Annapolis, had a heart racking problem to decide. His mother was an ardent secessionist. His brother did not hesitate but donned the gray. But Bob decided to cast his lot with the ones who had educated him, although his mother sent his resignation to the Federal government.

His fighting spirit was vividly illustrated in the assault on Ft. Fisher, January, 1865. Twice he was wounded and fought on. A third bullet The ire of the wounded man was were closed. aroused, and grabbing his own rifle, he shot his enemy dead.

It was well for Evans after that battle that he had a strenuous spirit. When he was taken to the hospital it was decided that both his legs must be amputated. Bob heard the decision and that night armed himself with a revolver, which he hid under his pil-

TRENTON, N. J., March 6 .- The legislative life insurance investigation report, filed this afternoon, finds nothing seriously wrong with the conduct of companies in this state, and makes recommendations for new laws such as were compiled by the uniform law committee in Chicago last December.

After pointing out the enormous surplus held by one of the companies investigated, the committee recommends a law limiting capital stock of any in-surance company to $2,000,000 and re-stricting profits of stockholders to 10 per cent. If the company dissolve stock-holders should get no more than $2 for

The Panie Party. They tell us that trusts are in favor man and find that our team had left of Republican principles. The trusts are in favor of prosperity, the same as every individual should be in favor of prosperity. That is the only reason. The black hand of Democracy makes capital tremble. It means destruction of great enterprises. It means empty pockets. It means hunger and financial cyclone. It means more than that. It means that the ragtag and bobtailed element which wants free lunch and which never prospered would take control, and with Democracy in control it means a panic. No one wants another panic like the one of 1893. But Democracy gave us that, and put it in power again and the panic must come.-Moravian Falls (N. C.) Yellow Jacket.

My Bridal Veil.

I took it from its resting place.
My veil of fifty years ago;
I pressed it fondly 'gainst my face
To feel the old-time rapture glow.
When life was young and love was fair
And hearts knew not the touch of care.

I held it up against the light,
I shook it free from every fold;
Its silken mesh, once penrly white,
Had slowly changed to threads of gold
Ah! thus I snused, each grief of time
In heaven will change to joy sublime,

I laid it gently on my head,
To fall in waves of softest gleam;
Beneath its folds the loved ones dead
Came round me as in pleasant dream,
And he who crowned me as his bride
Methought stood radiant at my side.

O. Memory what unfailing power
Is thine to vivify the past—
The perfume of a single flower
Can bring back visions crowding fast—
My veil's soft touch made me once more happy bride on Love's bright shore!

The day itself came back to me-An April day, serene and calm,
The cloudless sky an azure sea,
And every breeze was bliss and balm;
No thought of change, of loss, of tearsAh! such are God's "eternal years."

One vision more; the church, the priest, Two kneeling forms, a holy prayer, Low vows that bind the greatest, least, And death's dread name commingled there, Christian hearts know naught of fear, For God is love, and heaven is near. When I am laid in coffin-bed, With fired hands upon my breast, Place this old veil upon my head And shroud me in it for my rest, It's bridal blessing, 'neath the sod, May plead for me before my God!

And now I'll lay my veil again Within its old familiar place; A sigh, a tear, a throb of pain

For faded youth and vanished grace. But God can all the past restore. And give us both our bloom once more! S. B. ELDER.

Getting Married as an Art.

making unhappy marriages. A great many of them do not make such marriages, but that there are many who do is too patent to admit of contradiction. The evidence is prima facie, and if other evidence could be gathered it would be found that the number unhappily wed-ded is much larger than surface indications show. I speak only of the kind of cases in which men are to blame for the unhappiness, that is, of cases in which men are the immediate cause of the unappiness, for if we were to go farther back it would have to be admitted that the girls are in very many cases themselves to blame for the primal mistake of marrying men of a kind to make them unhappy. a member of the universal brotherhood—as a brother, therefore, of all girls this proneness of girls to choose the wrong man has pained me not a little. and has caused me to cast about for a possible remedy. Of course, a universal remedy, an absolute preventive, is not to be had. Even if it were, girls would not "take" it. Some, at least, would argue: better marry unhappily than not to marry at all. Yet, for the benefit of those amenable to good advice, it seems to me there is something to be said, that, while not especially new, may be iterated with

And the result of my brotherly cogitations along this line runs somewhat as follows: Let every girl, as a part of her education, be encouraged to develop a 'fad.'' an avocation such as may be come, if need be, a vocation; not something frivolous and trivial, but something worthy of genuine affection on the part of the girl, and something that will appeal to the interest of a large number of her fellow beings. This fad—poorly so called—should be in line with the bent of the mind and heart, so that every bit of lands. the effort of both mind and heart expended on it may be given with a thorough sense of joy. It should also be important enough and big enough to absorb a large amount of attention without becoming a burden.

The arts suggest themselves at once as fields for such fads, and they are fruitful fields for those who can enter them, but they are not open to all, and they usually demand more attention than one expects to give to a fad. A simpler suggestion, as an example, is the growing of flowers vegetables-gardening. To one has a bent in this direction the field is without limit. Let one become absorbed in such work, not with serious intent, but purely for the pleasure of it, and its possibilities are annost enames, if it becomes necessary to make a serisibilities are almost endless; and then ous business of anything, the garden gate stands wide open.

To the sister who asks what such a fad has to do with saving one from an unwise marriage, the reply is: It gives diversion; it gives the mind something wholesome to employ itself upon, something that brings joy and serenity of mind, and fills the life, so that he who would displace even a portion of the in-terest so given must be of considerable genuine worth. But it does more than that; it gives the girl who cultivates it a sense of security, a feeling that she has future. No such fad lovingly followed to aid you in adjusting it, and to say can fail to offer, if the need comes, opmany polite things about its becoming portunities for self-support, and, what is more, self-support with joy in the winning of it. A girl so equipped is in no danger of marrying just in order to make sure of a living. The life offered by a suitor, in any event, must have substantial advantages over that she can

Cupid, she may say, has been left out these sage calculations. Not at all! But Cupid is prevented from acting too hastily if there is a well-loved fad as a factor for him to reckon with. Such a fad is a shield against the sly little god's

A family known to me-a family of four charming daughters-suggests itself as a case in point. All four of the girls have had unhappy experiences with men. Fortunately only one married before it was too late, before the real character the man in the case was disclosed. The trouble was the girls had nothing to absorb their minds; though all were capable they were brought up like idle princesses to wait each for her Prince Charming. Expectancy naturally threw a glamor about the first impressive strangers who came along, and in the eyes of the girls they became the looked-for princes. Had the girls looked at affairs with minds used to wholesome tasks and sane devotion to ideals, the bogus princes would have nad more difficulty tracting their attention and would have been valued at their true worth a good deal sooner than they were, and the girls would have been saved needless pain and mortification.—The Home Magazine.

A Guest Book That Is New and Useful.

The ordinary guest book is now a matter of course in most country homes but many hostesses with a love of novelty prefer to have their friends' visit when Lent begins. One generally conrecorded in a more distinctive way than siders the rural districts the land of by their signatures and the date of the plenty, but with the fish laws in force that is not only an unfailing source of interest to every one who sees it, but helps her out in many a tight place when at a loss to remember little idiosyncrasies of her friends. One evening, when merry house party was playing that hildish game where each player writes down her favorite pursuit, food, amuse ment and so forth, the tastes of he friends were found to be so varied that bright idea came to this hostess. "Why not utilize this information for my own benefit," she thought, "I'm constantly having guests in the country and am often at my wits' ends to remember their personal likes and dislikes. I'll just start a guest book on the principle of this game and make each of my friends write down the things she most cares for and dislikes."

Not being able to buy a suitable book, she took heavy white Irish linen paper of commercial size, 9x12 inches, and bound many sheets of it firmly together between heavy cardboard backs, covered with a gay flowered cretonne. At the top of one sheet she illuminated in quite large letters, "His Likes and Dislikes," using for alternate pages the same title, but with the feminine pronoun. Beneath this was left a small space for the name and date, while down the left side were run in smaller illuminated letters grouped subtitles, such as "His Favorite Game," "His Most Detested Game," "The Food He Likes Best," "His Most Despised Food."

These subtitles may be of such a na ture as the inclination of the hostess die tates, and may be made to include all the tastes and distastes of her friends in as many different directions as the size of the page permits.

Just at first, when people were asked to write in this novel guest book, they were inclined to take it as a joke and put down nonsense, but a little persua-sion usually resulted in the real tastes of the writer being inscribed.

The woman is now noted for being a most popular and successful hostess, and an invitation to her house parties is al-ways eagerly sought. She herself Girls have an exasperating way of ascribes this success entirely to the in making unhappy marriages. A great sight gained by her guest book into the fads and fancies and the personal peculiarities and idiosyncrasies of her friends

All these qualities the American won an might emulate, while she maintained her native sincerity.

Our young country has much to learn from older worlds. It ought to select whatever is admirable, and adopt it as ts own, while noticing the faults, to avoid them.

Just as an American when abroad se lects the art treasures or the costumes which will embellish her home and per son, and leave the things which would be unsuited for her purposes, so she should select the qualities and habits which might add to her attractions.

A little more repose, a little more appreciation of what is not American, little more modesty about vaunting one's own in public, a little less criticism of other countries, a little more attention to the manner of expression and the timber of voice—these are some of the things which would improve the American woman traveler, and yet leave her, as she should be, distinctly American.

For to lose her native individuality would be the greatest of all calamities. -Ella Wheeler Wilcox in Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

The Wife's Influence.

Every married woman, no matter how limited her life may seem, no matter how shut up she may be in the nursery or the kitchen, has a means of contact with the great world in the man who goes out into it-has a means of influence on it through him. Seen or unseen, it is there. The man who is happy in his home carhome car ries the atmosphere of it with him—he is himself more in touch with others because of it. In this day and age so many women are seeking scope for their pow-ers in arts and professions and business careers, there are some who realize that in their marriage there is the very wid-est scope—women who put the enthusiasm, the brain power, the artistic per-ception, the clear-sighted effort into their profession as wives and mothers, mis-tresses of households. These are the women who use their brains and their souls to love with, as well as their hearts, and who wield an extraordinary far-reaching power, all the greater be-cause that power is the last thing they are thinking of, or seek to attain. ### Another View of Mother's Cooking."

It is not always wise for young husbands to speak too often of or praise too highly the superior excellence of "mother's cooking," and to express regret that "things don't taste as mother's tasted," and yet there are times when most people have pleasant and tender memories of how good "mother's din-ners" were. It is not admitting that the palate has keener and quicker sen ations than the heart to say, that the memory of mother's dinners brings her very near to us, especially at home gatherings and holidays.

"My wife is one of the best cooks," writes a gentleman, "but no one living can make the apple and mince turnovers my mother used to make. I don't care much if they can't; for half the oleasure of my home-going would be aken away if such turnovers as mother's were to be found anywhere am glad, too, that her doughnuts have flavor that no one else can imitate. There are certain gravies and sauces and side dishes that I do not expect to taste, and do not want to taste, anywhere but at mother's table. They are a part of the things that endear me to the blessed memory of mother and home. think it might grieve mother if s thought I had forgotten how good her cooking was; I know she often says, with a pleased thrill of motherly love and pride, 'George says that no one can make such pies as I make, and that in all his traveling he never found any one who could beat me cooking.' So I am loyal to the memory of mother's cooking, and loyal and faithful I hope to be to every sweet and sacred tie that binds me to my mother."—Cooking Club

So many ugly things have been said American woman's voice that her pride has been aroused and she has now set herself the task of abolishing all grounds for criticism of her use vocal organs. Classes in voice culture are the latest thing. The pupils are not learning to sing. They are tearning to speak English beautifully and musically.

They are taught to breathe properly to enunciate clearly, to speak in mellow, throaty tones, and otherwise to correct the "nasal, whining, shuffling" speech whereof they have been accused.

The exercises may be practiced at home. They include particular care to speak deliberately and with precision; reading aloud to one's self a good hour each day; and closing the eyes and fo cusing the thought upon the voice while practicing to make it so delightful that if one heard it coming from the next coom one would desire to meet its own-

With all these practicings a necessary thing is to keep mind and body in good condition; for the voice is quickly af-fected by a sluggish condition of either. An unpleasant, meandering, irritating manner of speech rarely emanates from personality that is keen, direct and wholesome.

Both by law and custom the foregoing formula suffices, but I cannot bring myself to surrender the trust with which Wiscon-thought it compatible with the full and un-nterrupted discharge of public duty to pur-sue it, and I have, therefore, during my service, with two or three trifling exceppurely local, absolutely abstained therefrom.

For years private duties have plainly de-For years private duties have plainly demanded of me an early return to the practice of my profession, and I have never since I last took the oath of office wavered in the determination to retire from public life on the expiration of my present term, March 3, 1909. I might well content myself with a public declaration of my purpose so to retire if it were not for a like declaration made on a former and similar occasion, and what followed it.

In the year 1900 I announced through the tion made on a former and similar occasion, and what followed it.

In the year 1900 I announced through the press over my signature to the Republicans of Wisconsin that I had "unalterably determined" to retire from public life at the expiration of the term ending March 3, 1903, unless I should deem it my duty to resign at an earlier date. I justified the announcement so long in advance upon the ground that the people, and those who might aspire to the office, were entitled seasonably to know from me that I would not accept a re-election. Despite that declaration, circumstances with which the people of the state are familiar, and which therefore need not be here recounted, seemed to make it my duty to accept a re-election, proffered as it was in a manner which rendered it at once a command and a finer honor than any which I had ever dreamed would come to me, one indeed which ought to satisfy the pride and ambition of any man.

A similar declaration by me at this time.

A similar declaration by me at this time, A similar declaration by me at this time, however, strongly phrased (and it could not be more strongly phrased) would, I am persuaded, prove unavailing to withdraw my name from consideration during the next two years than did that which I so publicly and unreservedly made in 1900.

As my purpose to retire from public life is and has been irrevocable, I am unwilling to be further considered in connection with an office which I could not in the circumstances accept.

to be further considered in connection with an office which I could not in the circumstances accept.

A senator will be chosen for the term beginning on the 4th of March, 1909, and there will be, and should be, during the next two years grave and wide consideration among the people as to the person upon whom the honor shall be bestowed. After much thought I deem it to be my duty, all things considered, to the people of the state and to the party to whose partiality I am indebted for the highest honors within its gift to take myself now, beyond recall, from the field of possible choice. I am, therefore, impelled, not only for the reasons suggested, but also that I may be free to devote to the discharge of, private duty, too long neglected, the remainder of my term, to resign the office at this time, while the Legislature is in session to choose a senator for the unexpired portion thereof.

I avail myself of this opportunity to say, albeit 1 am sure it is not needful, that I am inexpressibly grateful to the Republicans of Wisconsin for the generous and abiding confidence which has led them three times to elect me to the high office of senator of the United States.

I have the honor to be yours respectfully, JOHN C. SPOONER.

Lo, the New Indian.

An Iowa man tells of an amusing incident in connection with an exposition held in that state, whereat one of the attractions was the Indian department, where the red men dwelt in their tepees and mimicked their own history dances and mock fights.

After one of these exhibitions by the Indians, a Boston girl undertook to talk to a young Indian brave. "Heap much fight," she said. The red man smiled grimly, drew his blanket closer about his stalwart form, and replied: "Yes: this is indeed a great exposition. We flatter ourselves that our por-tion of the entertainment is by no means the least attractive here. May I presume to ask who it is that I have the honor

THE REAL CHINESE GONG. It Makes an Uproar as Awful as It Is

Astonishing. By the way, did you ever hear a real Chinese gong? I don't mean a hotel gong, but one of those great moon disks of yellow metal which have so terrible a power of utterance. A gentleman in Bangor, north Wales, who had a private museum of south Pacific and Chinese curiosities, exhibited one to me. It was hanging amid Fiji spears beautifully barbed with sharks' teeth, which, together with grotesque New Zealand clubs of green stone and Sandwich Island paddles wrought with the baroque visages of the shark god, were depending from the walls; also there were Indian elephants in ivory, carrying balls in their carven bellies, each ball containing many other balls inside it.

The gong glimmered pale and huge and yellow, like the moon rising over a southern swamp. My friend tapped Its ancient face with a muffled drumstick, and it commenced to sob like waves upon a low beach. He tapped it again, and it moaned like the wind in a mighty forest of pines. Again, and it commenced to roar, and with each tap the roar grew deeper and deeper till it seemed like thunder rolling over an abyss in the Cordilleras or the crashing of Thor's chariot wheels.

It was awful and astonishing as awful. I assure you I did not laugh at it
