DEAR ERIN: Have been out shopping and the things I expected to buy here for our party are so much more expensive that we had better buy them at home.

The GLADSTONE GROCERY Co. have the paper napkins, olives, wafers, canned meats, pickles, and everything else we need for the party, and their prices are more reasonable.

P. S.—Regards Very truly, to all.

THE LOST MAN

One evening a man came into a New York restaurant and sat down opposite another man.

"Dalton!" the newcomer said. "Well, Holloway?" said the other. "I thought you were dead."

"So I am, so far as you're concerned. Who'd have thought you'd turn up here?"

"Yes, what luck! I thought New York was big enough to turn around in without stumbling over some confounded old acquaintance."

"Old acquaintance-well, that's pretty cool. However, I shan't bother you. You needn't be afraid of me. I'm not going back out there, and if you ever and Times. do I'll trouble you to keep a still tongue. You needn't say you saw me.

There is, however, no direct evidence now in the hands of the police to prove that Father Kaspar was the priest that

The body of the priest was in a kneeling posture, with the head bound against the knees by a heavy strap that passed over the back of the neck and was buckled under the shins. The murdered man must have been about 60 years of He weighted probably 160 pounds and was about 5 feet 4 inches in height A flowing beard twelve inches long wa streaked with gray, but the long and bushy hair was black. An undershirt of balbriggan and a cuff on the right wrist were all the body wore, but on top of it had been thrown three coats of pairs of black lace shoes, a soft felt hat

Underneath the body was a meal ticket, unpunched, with "S. Ermoyion Bros. Restaurant," across the face of it, and the address, "12022 Halsted street, West

Pullman, Chicago."
When the body was lifted from the trunk there was disclosed an empty silk money bag. Those who knew the priest told the detectives that he recently received a large sum of money.

Trunk Security for Rent.

Three weeks ago Mrs. Annie Sherer rented one of her six rooms in a tene ment on West Thirty-seventh street to two Greeks. Late Wednesday afternoon an express wagon brought to the house the trunk, was found to contain the body. One of the lodgers, with the aid of a young man who drove the express, carried the trunk, with difficulty, to the next day unpleasant odors were detected coming from the room the strangers had occupied, and yesterday Mrs. Sherer appealed to the police and the trunk was forced open. The body was removed to the morgue and the police began a minute examination of its hiding place. It was a cheap built affair and showed marks of hard usage. Inside the cover was printed a name that looked like Guiseppe Sarkis. On the outside of the chest was the name "Ermoyion."

That night Mrs. Sherer asked her roomers for the rent due. They pointed to the trunk and said it would be found to contain ample security for what they owed. Later the men said that the trunk delivered to them was not theirs, and that a mistake had been made. It remained in the house, however, and was there the next morning, though the roomers had left before Mrs. Sherer was up. She did not see them again.

Tells of Missing Man.

Mrs. Sherer told the coroner that when the two men engaged the room in her and Paul Sarkis, each about 35 years attributed of age. John was dark and smooth shaven, and the woman understood that he conducted a restaurant in the tender-loin. The other resembled his brother, but wore a moustache.

The autopsy developed that the neck had been broken as had one arm. Cor-oner's Physician Lehane declared, however, that death was due to suffocation The internal organs were congested, and Lehane gave it as his opinion that the man was thrust into the trunk while alive and the cover of the trunk held down until death ensued. The condition of the organs was found to be similar to those in cases of asphyxiation.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 28.—

Officials here who have kept in close touch with the state of public feeling in south-ern China are satisfied that the rebellion which has just broken out in Kwang Tung province is radically different in from the famous Boxer uprising of 1900, in the important fact that it is not directed against foreigners. It is stated that the present rebellion is purely anti-dynastic, against the existing Manchu reign at Pekin. The movement is by no means confined to Kwang Tung but is generally felt in southern China, being fomented by the secret societies. The opinion here is that the present uprising in Kwang Tung was premature and will be soon suppressed.

FROM ROOSEVELT.

That the President Retract Fiction Charge.

William J. Long yesterday made public a letter sent by him to President Roosevelt. The letter says in part:

To His Excellency, Theodore Roosevelt, resident of the United States.—Dear Str: To His Excellency, Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States.—Dear Sir: The issue between you and me is no longer one of animals, but of men. It is not chiefly a matter of natural history, but of truth and personal honor. In a recent magazine article you deliberstely attack me, as well as my book. You have used the enormous influence of your officiar position to discredit me as a man, to injure my reputation, and incidentally to make a poor man even poorer by destroying, if possible, the sale and influence of his work. In my book I have given the result of long years of watching animals in the wilderness with no other object than to study their habits and. other object than to study their habits and, so far as man can, to understand the mystery of their dumb life.

Every Incident True.

In every preface I have stated, and I now repeat the statement, that every incident I have recorded from my own observation is true as far as an honest, educated man can see and understand the truth. In your recent attack this is what you chiefly deny. I have spoken the truth and you accuse me of deliberate falsehood and misrepresentation. As President of the United States you have gone out of your way publicly to income the state of the control of the have gone out of your way publicly to in-jure the private citizen who was attending strictly to his own business, and as a man you have accused of falsehood another man whose ideals of truth and honor are quite as whose ideals of truth and honor are quite as high as your own.

This is the whole issue between us. I meet it squarely and so must you. If I have spoken falsely, if in book or work of mine I have intentionally deceived any child or man regarding animal life, I promise publicly to retract every such word and never to write another animal book.

Calls for Apology.

On the other hand, if I show to any disinterested person that you have accused me falsely you must publicly withdraw your accusation and apologize. As a man and as President no other honorable course and as President no other honorable course is open to you.

You base your recent charges chiefly on the matter of a big white wolf killing a young caribou by a bite in the chest, described by me in "Northern Trails." You declare the thing to be a mathematical impossibility, and declare by no possibility could a wolf perform the feat.

Dr. Long declares he knows from his own observation and from the testimony of Indians that wolves do sometimes kill in this way, and then quotes the signed and witnessed statement of S. J. Hapidan, an educated Sioux Indian, who states he saw a horse which a wolf had killed by tearing its chest. In addition to this, Dr. Long says he himself had seen a deer which had been slain in this manner by a wolf, and further recites that his Indian, Matty Mitchell of Bonny Bay, N. F., declares that the big white wolf frequently kills caribou in this manner.

Square Deal Demanded.

Continuing, Dr. Long says:

Continuing, Dr. Long says:

These are the facts underlying the incident which you declare to be impossible and false. If this testimony is not enough I will fill it up to full scripture measure. You cannot at this stage, Mr. Roosevelt, take refuge behind the presidential office and maintain silence. You have forfeited your right to that silence by breaking it by coming out in public to attack a private citizen. If your talk of a square deal is not all a sham; if your frequent moral preachall a sham; if your frequent moral preaching is not hypocrisy, I call upon you, as President, as a man, to come out and admit the error and injustice of your charge in the same open and public way in which you made it.

TO EXPLORE CONGO.

Mineral Prospecting Expedition Sent Out by Thomas F. Ryan and Others Makes Start.

ANTWERP, May 29. - [Special.]-The mineral prospecting expedition to the Congo sent out by the International Forestry company, in which Thomas F. Ryan and other New Yorkers are interested, will depart from here tomorrow for Luebo, in the Congo, by way of Boma. Prospecting will commence immediately upon the arrival of the party. The expedition is headed by R. Dorsey Mohun, a well known explorer and former American consular agent at Boma. S. W. Ball is the geologist of the expedition.

The American company received from

King Leopold last November a grant for rubber and other exploitation about 2,500,000 for sixty years. concessions include not only exploitation of the India rubber resources of the country, but a franchise to construct a railroad, and mining leases over a terrairoad, and mining leases over a ter-ritory rich in copper and half as large as the territory of Alaska. There is silver also and some gold, as well as other valuable minerals, but the principal reliance of the prospectors is upon copper. It is accordingly to copper mining that the coming will first devote its energies.

The concession to the Americans is generally regarded as a clever move on the part of King Leopold to involve the United States in any future international complication which may arise owing conduct of affairs of the Independ ent State. Those interested in the company are men of great influence as well as vast wealth. Besides Mr. Ryan they include the Messrs. Guggenheim, Harry Payne Whitney and John D. Rockefeller,

ITALIAN PRIESTS ACCUSE POPE PIUS.

Declare in Letter Pontiff Violated Rights of Conscience in the Murri Case

ROME, May 29.—A group of Italian priests has issued a remarkable open letter to the Pope. It is a daring reply to the censure uttered by the pontiff in his allocution of April 17 against the most modern school of ecclesiastics, and it accuses the pontiff of violating the rights of conscience in his treatment of Father

Murri and other priests. Father Murri was suspended from the priesthood for criticising the Vatican's policy. The letter contends that Roman Catholicism should abandon its archaeic position, and by recognizing the claims of science and democracy regain its hold on mankind. It vindicates the right of the young men in the church to a certain amount of liberty in their work for her and strongly criticises certain pontifical appointments to high dignities. The Pope is charged also with paralyzing the work and institutions of its predecessors. The writers of the letter repudiate the idea of rebellion and appeal to the Pope for wisdom, equity, and clem-

At the annual banquet of the Americus Club of Pittsburg, in honor of the birth of U. S. Grant, Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, Congressman Grant Mouser of Ohio and Washington Gardner of Michigan were the chief speakers. Wilson spoke on "Agriculture in Our Industries." He said in "Agriculture is a creative force among our industries. The result of the farmers' work of 1906 was $6,794,-000,000, an increase of 44 per cent over the last census year. We exported in 1906 $1,718,000,000 worth of goods of all kinds, and of this 72 per cent was grown from farms and forests. Animals and their products yielded $323,-000,000, or 19 per cent, for export after supplying the home demand. Cotton and cotton products exported were $481,000,000, or 28 per cent; grain and products sold abroad were $197,000,-000, or 11.5 per cent; and $113,000,000, or 6.5 per cent, was miscellaneous farm products.

"Forest products are 7.5 per cent of our exports. We raised Sumatra wrappers last year to the extent of $7,000,000 worth. The department, after discovering principles, conducts object lessons on the farms of the people to help them toward better things.

"We found in the Connecticut valley and in Florida the same soil that grows the wrapper tobacco in Sumatra, after visiting that country and studying their methods and soils. We found in Alabama and Texas the same soil that produces the filler tobacco in Cuba, after learning what soil is suitable, and last year raised 400 acres of it in those States. We hope in time to grow all the tobacco now imported from Cuba and Sumatra into the United States."

GOTHAM WOULD OUST GAS TRUST

New York Begins Action Against Public Service Corporations-Sues for All Franchises.

NEW YORK, May 28 .- Suit to compel the Consolidated Gas company and the eight other companies doing business in this city to relinquish their franchise and to take from them all the permits to use the streets which they now enjoy. was begun in the supreme court today by Corporation Counsel Ellison on behalf of the city.

The actions begun by the corporation company, the New York Mutual Gaslight company, the New Amsterdam Gas company, the Standard Gaslight company, and the following subsidiary companies of the Consolidated; the New York, Manhattan, Metropolitan, Har-Municipal and Knickerbocker Gas-light companies. The capital stock of the Consolidated company, which controls all the other companies, is $80,000,000. The suits are brought separately so that if the Consolidated be declared illegal the subsidiary companies may be declared illegal also and their franchises declared null and void. The Mutual, New Amsterdam and Standard are proceeded against sepa-rately because their franchises originally contained provisions prohibiting consolidation with any other company. The corporation counsel alleges that all of the franchises originally granted the gas companies, with two exceptions, have expired by limitation, and he moves to oust the companies from the use of the streets and entirely cut off the right of eminent domain or the use of public or private property for distributing gas to

In commenting on the suits today Mr. Ellison said they were brought in fulfill-ment of a determination made several months ago to begin action as soon as the conditions of the present 80-cent gas litigation would permit. He believed then and he believes now, he said, that under the law the gas companies have no rights at all in the city. Mr. Ellison said his suits will not interfere in any way with the action begun last week by Attorney General Jackson to have the charter of the Consolidated Gas company

Body of Mrs. McKinley in Canton Cottage Viewed by Many-Eva Booth Sends Note of Condolence.

CANTON, O., May 28.-Long before the time set to admit to the McKinley home those who might desire to take a farewell view of the body of Mrs. Mc-Kinley, there had gathered in front of the famous North Market street cottage a crowd of people made up of youth and old age.

Chief Sutton of the United States secret service arrived in Caton today. He consulted with Chief of Police Smith and together they made plans for the protec-tion of the President and other distin-guished visitors during their stay in this

Gov. Deneen Signs Two-Cent Rate Bill-Missouri Railroad Man's Proposition.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 28 .- House bill 406, the 2-cent passenger fare bill, was approved of by Gov. Deneen last night. This is a direct 2-cent fare measure, making this the maximum rate per missible upon any railroad in the state The only exception made is in cases where a passenger fails to purchase a ticket at a station where the ticket office is open thirty minutes prior to the de-parture of his train, in which event a harge of 3 cents a mile may be made aboard the train.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 28 .-The Missouri state board of equalization, has received an unusual proposition from B. Hauck, representing the Hauck railroads, having a total length of sixty-three miles. Mr. Hauck told the board that, as an experiment, he would be willing to let the state of Missouri operate the Hauck railroads for a year or two, giving the state the profits as taxes, so that the board might understand the relation that taxation bears to and profits. He said that the lines had been operated at a loss, although taxed lightly. Legislation as to freight and passenger rates, he said, made if impossible for his lines to earn any money

ALL OFFICIALS AT WONG WONG ARE ASSASSINATED.

Native Rioters Destroy German Mission and Kaiser's Gunboat Is on Warpath.

SWATOW, Province of Kwawtung, China, May 27.-A rebellion has broken out at Wong Kong, in the Uping district of the Chinchu prefecture. All the civil counsel are against the Consolidated Gas | and military officials at Wong Kong have been assassinated and their homes burned.

The local revolutionists who were joined by natives, of the neighboring provinces, concentrated for their attack on the officials without being molested by the populace. The Chinese bankers have organized a steam launch patrol of the coast to prevent piratical attacks on the part of marauders from the seaward. Admiral Li with the Kwangtah and Meefoo, on board of which are detachments of troops, is proceeding to the scene of the rising.

German Mission Burned.

BERLIN, May 27.—According to dispatches received here from Shanghai and Hong Kong, native rioters have destroyed the German mission station at Lienchow, near Pakhoi. The mission-aries escaped. The German gunboat Iltis, reinforced by twenty marines from the gunboat Tsingtau, has left Hong Kong for Pakhoi and it is expected that British gunboat will also be sent to that port.

According to advices received by the German Cable company, from Shanghai, disturbances have also broken out at Pakher and the situation there, as at Lien Chow, is apparently serious.

Four Missionaries There. NEW YORK, May 27 .- Four missionaries of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions are now stationed at how, according to a statement made at They are Rev. John S. Cunkle, who lately returned to Leinchow, after a furlough in England; Rev. Reese F. Edwards and his wife, and Miss Elda Patterson. They have been in the mission field so long that their home addresses are not accessible at the office of the board in this city.

Since the outbreak of 1905 the Presbyterian missions at Lien Chow have been re-established, but are not connected in any way with the German mission, the destruction of which is reported at Ber-

Wreckers Chose Ideal Place for Horrible Catastrophe-Bungling Job Saved Lives.

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 27 .- An attempt was made to wreck Erie passenger train No. 6 Saturday night, at a point a mile and a half east of Alden. This is the Erie's fast night train from Buffalo to New York, and on Saturday night it had a full load of passengers. The spot chosen for the work was just east of what is known as Sullivan's crossing. The tracks are laid on a dec fill over a long ravine, and at a point in the middle of the curve a heavy 40foot rail was placed across the east-bound track and bolstered up by huge

CONVICTS TAKING DAILY EXERCISE IN AN ENGLISH PRISON.

This interesting photograph shows the scene in the prison yard at Wormwood Scrubs, England, when the convicts are taking their daily exercise. The men are taken out in squads. It will be noted that the walks in the yard are so laid out in serpentine manner that they never cross. Every convict has to start in at one end and follow the windings of the walk until he reaches the other end. These fellows get coffee and bread for breakfast and supper and the same for dinner, with potatoes and a bit of meat added. It does not seem likely that the men can hanker for much exercise on such fare, but it is compulsory. Wormwood Scrubs is called the greatest penal institution in England.

Broken Music.

A note All out of tune in this world's instrument.

A know not in what fashion she was made. Nor what her voice was, when she used to speak

Nor if the silken lashes threw a shade

On wan or rosy cheek.

I picture her with sorrowful vague eyes Illumed with such strange gleams of in ner light As linger in the drift of London skies Ere twilight turns to night.

I know not; I conjecture. 'Twas a girl That with her own most gentle desperate From out God's mystic setting plucked life's pearl—
"Tis hard to understand."

So precious life is! Even to the old The hours are as a miser's coins, and she— Within her hands lay youth's unminted And all felicity.

The winged impetuous spirit, the white That was her soul once, whither has it flown?

This is her Book of Verses—wren-like notes, Shy franknesses, blind gropings, haunt-ing fears; At times across the chords abruptly floats A mist of passionate tears.

A fragile lyre too tensely keyed and strung, broken music, weirdly incomplete: e a proud mind, seif-baffled and selfstung, Lies colled in dark defeat.

A brilliant foreign actress, writing to a woman here, was delivered thus: "I love you very much. I long to love you more. I should like to be with you hours and hours. But what? In America there is no time for tenderness." Tenderthere is no time for tenderness." Tenderness was her name for much. It included affection, of course, and loyalty no doubt. In her mind, behind that word lay peace and harmony, sweetness, light, and measure. She heard in it, perhaps, echoes of silent thought, imperhaps, from the syring or "course tions". pulses from the spring, or "sensations sweet, felt in the blood, and felt along the heart." Had she been an American, or an English woman, her thoughts might have gone to that great soul who, best of all our poets, has expressed the richness of the quieter world; who, in con-trast to "the fretful stir unprofitable, and the fever of the world," has sung

Of something far more deeply interfused.

A Broken Heart.

Just a queer little story of a broken heart, and we don't purpose to try to ex-plain it. It is called up by the news item from an Ohio town telling of the sudden er was punishing him, and the death of the boy's mother three days after from a broken heart. Our little story runs this way, and you must take it as it was told to us: An engineer on a railroad run-ning through Ohio had charge of an enming through Onio had charge of an engine drawing a train that was standing at a way station waiting for passengers, including a wedding party. The engineer was engaged to be married to a young woman who lived at that particular station, and he was looking out of the window of his cab, wondering the big wreetheast was not year. why his sweetheart was not near the station to exchange greetings with him, when the wedding party drove to the station in carriages. His hand was on the bell rope, ready to ring when he should get the signal to start. He never got that signal. Looking in a disinter-ested way at the passengers hurrying toward the train he recognized in the bride the girl he was expecting to marry There was one loud tap on the engine bell and a minute later the engineer was found dead, standing bolt upright in his cab, his hand still on the bell rope. Doctors said a leision of the heart. No mystery about that. But the engine bell was cracked, in fact split, from top to rim. The stroke that broke his heart split the bell. For years that cracked bell hung in the round house of that railroad at one of the division headquarters. road at one of the division headquarters and all kinds of psychological and scientific theories have been advanced to explain how the bell was cracked and the heart broken at the same time. And yet materialists insist that heart-break is mere figure of speech.—Exchange.

English Author Says American Wemen Are Nation's Aristocracy.

Dr. Emil Reich, the noted historian and author, who is lecturing for the Lon-don university extension at London university, in a recent paper on women and social eruptions, makes American women a prominent feature of his discussion this connection he says:

People who have never traveled, or who have done so after the manner of their Gladstone bags, can hardly imagine how varied and divergent the several nations are, not only in point of occupa tion, dress or amusements, but also respect of the causes apropos of which they go mad. Madness has its geography, as its degrees. Where an Englishman remains calm and callous au irishman is next door to insanity, and vice yersa. The Americans, high-strung to a degree, show a mentality totally different from that of the average European. There is, to talk music, no legato in their life. Everything is staccato prestissimo. Hence, when they get excited they can come only to a rapid finale with a fearful crash. Their ungovernable rage neither a big fire nor a vast flood, but a volcanic eruption.

"Of the things that bring that American volcano into function there is especially one that will seldom fail of ef-I mean attacks on their women Every American has, in all truth and sincerity, a deep-seated respect for a strong desire to worship his womenfolk. He is chivalrous and invariably polite to them. He treats every woman as if she was a lady born.

"As has been remarked a hundred the American gentleman is quite satisfied to pile up money by continu ous and most worrying labor in the office or the factory, provided his 'missis' is thereby enabled to give receptions, to 'do' Europe, to become a scholar and to shine in society. It is quite true that millions of American women are working just as hard as do American men. "This, however, does not impair the generalization at all. Like all true generalizations, the present one comprises both the actual and the potential woman in America. Any one of the hard-working American women would as soon as husband made money enough to her husband made money enough to tions, and made him think and speak. Then we pointed out to him that his talwould continue to drudge for her with a contented smile.

We are at whonever we try to make him take without loving her; and love can be left absolutely out of the question. But if fault whenever we try to make him take he will only show her the courtesy that the same path that the quick child takes. is, after all, her due, and try and remember that her fussy and perhaps rather interfering ways are only the outcome of her great affection for her daughter, she has anything nice in her daughter, she has anything nice in her daughter, she has anything nice in her days of the great men of history who were accounted dull children. I have told the great men discouraged children are discouraged children. these stories to many discouraged children, and at once their eyes brighten,

That is the husband's side. The wife as a far more difficult time. Women are more ambitious for their women are more amortious for their sons than they are for their daughters. Hardly any girl is considered good enough for her darling boy. She may possess beauty, money and a sweet nature, and yet, until the mother has grown to love the girl herself, there will be a thought sometimes that he might have done better. She has to go through an ordeal when she is first introduced into the family that a man rarely has to. Her appearance, her manners and actions are criticised sharply, and the mother-in-law-to-be is the sharpest of all.

It is the aim of most mothers to get their daughters married; therefore, when the future son-in-law makes his appearance he is usually welcomed. Not so with the daughter-to-be. In nine cases out of ten his mother would rather he didn't marry, and when he does she hardly ever thinks any one good enough for him. But women have usually more tact than men, and if a girl sets herself to win her husband's mother's heart she can generally succeed in a way that often quite surprises the more blundering masculine mind. That there will be trouble and pitfalls to avoid is certain where there are mothers-in-law. A little perseverance on both sides will make things easier. The poor, despised mother-in-law need not, and should not, be the object of dislike and ridicule she is so often described. She can be, and often is, a good and true friend. It is hard for her to take second place where she has always been first, but a sensible woman knows that it is inevitable, and if she is treated with kindly consideration, unless motherin-law is very hard to get on with, there is no reason why she should not become almost as dear in the heart of her daugh er-in-law or son-in-law as "Mother. "How is Louis getting along?" asked friend who had been absent from the

"Splendidly," said the mother, "I think I am safe in saying that he is the most promising one of the three."

"But he was so backward!" said the friend in evident astonishment.

"So he was," said the mother, "but we encouraged him. He will never be a fiery orator as Fred is capable of becoming, nor a social favorite as Tom already But he is going to make something worth while, and when he gains a friend he doesn't lose him again. These children have been told in school, and sometimes in other places, that they are slow and stupid, until they come to think it is no use trying, and they accept with that a man in society must be amiable to women, I stepped among the ladies and also talked Emerson. A few minutes later I overheard one of the Americans remark to another: 'Has that John-word the step of the slow child it not hopeless, but on the contrary is decidedly promising. children it is good news to hear that the case of the slow child it not hopeless, but on the contrary is decidedly promising.

A most cheering thing is the story I heard told of a child who was so back-ward and discouraged that some people ward and discouraged that some people believed him mentally deficient. (The story is absolutely true, by the way.) The mother refused to accept the failure of the child as a fact. She began by de-termining that he should understand one thing, and she worked with him until he did green one subject. It took patience nuisances, and only fit to be the sub-such as only a mother has. But when he did succeed and was praised for it, he was utterly bewildered. She made him observe, questioning him about what he saw in the streets or elsewhere, training doubt of it.

Alas! poor mother-in-law. Are there not many, though, who, in spite of coarse jests and vulgar ridicule, can forward and be thankful for theirs, at any rate? > SIR DOUGLAS FOX, who has been commissioned to prepare the new plans for the much-talked-of tunnel under the English channel, was born May 14, 1840. He is regarded by the members of his profession as one of the greatest engineers of his time. It is owing to his marvelous creative and constructive genius that the Cape of Cairo railway has developed into an actuality instead of an impossible dream of the empire builders, the late Cecil Rhodes and Alfred Beit. The great bridge across the Victoria falls on the Zambesi river will always remain a monument to his great ways remain a monument to his great abilities. The Mersey tunnel, opened in 1885, which connects Liverpool with Birkenhead on the opposite side of the River Mersey, is another of his engineering achievements, as is also the Liverpool Overhead railway and the Hawarden railway bridge across the River Dee.

MADE STRONG AND ENERGETIC BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

General Breakdown Caused by Deficient Blood Quickly Corrected by This Tonic Remedy.

A feeling of general weakness, poor appetite, loss of breath after the slightest exercise and broken sleep are some of the symptoms of general debility. You may think that they have no relation to each other and that you will worry along, hoping all the time to feel better soon. This is a mistake, for every one of the symptoms is caused by bad blood, which must be made pure and new before health will be restored again. A tonic treatment is necessary and for this purpose there is no better remedy than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mr. J. G. Havey, of 95 Willow St., Chelsea, Mass., says: "I was sick for a number of years from general debility and indigestion. I was never free from stomach trouble and my nerves were so shattered that the least excitement unfitted me for any serious work. My sleep was restless on account of terrible pains in the small of my back. These pains would sometimes last for a month or two. My sight grew weak, there seeming to be a blur constantly before my eyes. I couldn't concentrate my mind on my work, and the attempt to do so completely exhausted me.

"I was finally forced to give up a position I had held for twenty-eight years. After trying several medicines without help, I read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and gave them a trial. They made me feel so much better and so much stronger that I started in business for myself here in Chelsea. I have never had a return of my former sick-ness and cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as an excellent nerve

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have long been recognized as an excellent tonic remedy in cases of indigestion and general debility, where the stomach and other organs of the body are weakened and disordered simply through lack of proper nourishment. They have also been especially successful in curing anæmia, rheumatism, after-effects of the grip and fevers.

PROJESSOR AND PUPIL

Prof. Carl von Steinmann had come ver from Europe to escape political persecution, he said. He held in his heartwhich was big and strong-a profound love for the fatherland and an equally strong detestation of militarism and of Kaiser Wilhelm's ideas of governmental rule, and his one-man despotism. This radical disaccord on political views resulted in professor, who was also Baron, Von Steinmann, a man of much erudition and considerable fortune, being privately, but strongly advised to leave the land of his birth if he cared for personal liberty and the pleasures of ventilating his socialistic views undisturbed.

Of course, the United States loomed up as the proper place for the professor to spend the declining years of his life under the circumstances.

Prof. Carl, approaching middle age, and handsome, with a fine, strong face, had views on moral ethics and right living as transcendental as those of Ibsen, and his pupils were early impressed with the took Peruna and Manalin and followed | futility of attempting careless or indifferent work.

His prime favorite. Estelle Penrose, in shom an admixture of good old French and American blood had produced a very ovely specimen of humanity, versatile, courageous and brilliant, was the only pupil of Prof. Carl who was not in mortal terror of his severe criticism and comments and who ventured to discuss

Estelle was 18 and had been her widwed mother's support for several years. Estelle took lessons from Prof. Carl to attain greater perfection in execution, already all but perfect. But that was no reason why she should accept, without protest, the dry sarcasm of of promise case in which both parties are | Prof. Carl on her, to him, faulty interpretation of the old masters.

"Prof. Carl," Estelle said, and her voice was very soft and musical, "you and I being both young, let us go to see the carnival parade together tomorrow night. You will see that the crowd does not annihilate me, and we will stand at some street corner and get a good view of the procession in a sensible, plebeian way. Mamma abhors crowds and would scorn to come. When we are tired of enjoying ourselves we will come back home and have a nice hot supper. We will enjoy ourselves hugely, much more so than my dreaming dreams. poor Cousin Honore, who will drive to handsome in his full-dress suit, and he will consider the whole thing an intolerable bore. properly and with care."

The evening was pleasant and sped fast, and Prof. Carl was describing a certain old castle on the Rhine, with which he seemed very familiar, when Honore came in the little parlor, with his usual nonchalant air, bringing with him a subtle atmosphere of disaccord, which was so acutely felt by the professor, that he cut short his account of the picturesque medieval stronghold, and ancient posses sion of his ancestors, and drew back into a cynical mood of criticism, his lips compressed, his steel-blue eyes running over the faultless attire of the young man, born. who was distinctly good looking, the professor was obliged to grudgingly admit to himself.

Honore's mission was to request his andsome cousin to go with him to see Momus parade from the club balcony, and afterward to the ball. "Persuade her to come, tante," he said, turning to Mrs. Penrose. Estelle smiled a little scornfully as she hook her head, and her mother asked Honore if he thought a ball costume could be improvised in twenty-four hours. You know very well, Honore," she addused in conjunction with good rich ed, lowering her voice to a confidential undertone, "that Estelle can not indulge in fetes and balls and worldly pleasures.

Why do you invite her?" Leaning on the back of the sofa on tion became steady and normal, the which his aunt sat, Honore made a murmured remonstrance. "If it is only a matter of a ball costume and its accessories, my dear tante, the difficulty can be easily removed. We live in modern days with modern facilities, you know. "But, professor, I distinctly refuse to break my engagement with you," Estelle said, detaining him. "I will put on my hat and coat and will be ready for you and waiting impatiently at the appointed hour, and if you fail to come for me I will be frightfully disappointed. Have you not taught me, professor, the emptiness of such frivolous pleasures as car-nival balls?" she added gaily. "I will go with you to that comfortable corner on the avenue, cher professor, and guarantee a noble appetite, when all the floats have passed, for our chicken may onnaise when we get home."

There was a pause, and the look Prof. Carl saw on Estelle's face made him add slowly: "But-if you desire me to come for you, little one, send me a line, one or two words only. I will construe it to mean—much. That you also give me the right to pour on this dear young head, deep as the ocean and limitless as eternity, a love which will endure."

The professor was gone and the door behind him. Estelle stood, her heart beating, a glad, tender smile on her lips. Pleading fatigue, Estelle's mother said good-night to Honore, and left him alone with Estelle. "Cousin Honore," Estelle said, having keen appreciation of what had passed between him and her mother, as they stood on the hearth rug facing each oth-"you are very charming, but you a confirmed bachelor, although you are much too young for the role. Or is it that your allegiance is given elsewhere?"

Estelle's faithful brown eyes looked steadily into his and a wave of color swept over her face. 'I understand, little one," Honore said, dropping her hands. "You prefer your walk with Prof. Carl. May it be through the roses of life." Honore placed his hand lingeringly on Estelle's pale, beautiful hair, and, turning, left her. Estelle sighed slightly and sat down before the fire until it went out, "We will buy peanuts and pralines, the ball in his handsome coupe, looking Prof. Carl, and we will talk to all the maskers. We will be frivolously happy,' Estelle said gayly as they tramped down the street together, elbowing their way

DR. R. H. KLINE, Ld., 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa

-Captain Anderson of the African Prince relates that while on a voyage from New York the liner was nearly struck by a meteor.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing well that they ought to have immediate assistance.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well and strong? The cause may be easily traced to some feminine derangement which manifests itself in depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere or do anything, backache, dragging sensations, flatulency, nervousness, and sleeplessness.

These symptoms are but warnings that there is danger ahead, and unless heeded, a life of suffering or a serious operation is the inevitable result. The best remedy for all these symptoms is received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female ills.

Miss J. F. Walsh, of 328 W. 36th St., New York City, writes:—"Lydfa E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been of inestimable value in restoring my health. I suffered from female illness which caused dreadful headaches, dizziness, and dull pains in my back, but your medicine soon brought about a change in my general condition, built me up and made me perfectly well." Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cures Female Complaints, such as Backache, Falling and Displacements, Inflammation and Ulceration, and organic diseases. It is invaluable in preparing for child-birth and during the Change of Life. It cures Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility, and invigorates the whole system. Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free.
